A Horrible Accident

Fréd Gieske Dead, Three Others Injured.

WIPED OFF THE CARS

Barrington the Scene of a Shocking and Deplorable Railroad Accident Last Evening, When Four Section Hands Are Scraped Off the Gravel Train of the C. & N.-W. Railway.

Barrington people were shocked to learn of the horrible misfortune that befell four of our boys about 7:30 o'clock last evening, resulting in the death of one, and the injuring of the other three.

The Victims:

Fred Gieske, Dead.
Gus Blum, back hurt and bruised. Will recover.
Frank Bohm, left leg injured. Will Recover.
Fred Kunzman, injury to Right Side of Chest. Will Recover.

The statements of how the accident occurred are somewhat conflicting but the following are the facts as near as could be ascertained in the excitement that naturally everybody was laboring under last evening:

The gravel train was backing up to a point about a quarter of a mile east of Barrington. The car containing the gravel plow was next to the engine and the cable attached to it ran in the center of the train, the end lapping over the foremost car and dragging on the ground. On the fourth car ahead of the plow sat Fred Gieske, Gus Blum, Fred Kunzman and Frank Bohm. All of a sudden the end of the cable caught in a "frog" and held, causing the plow to start rapidly towards the four unsuspecting men, scraping them off with the exception of Bohm, whose leg got tangled up in the gravel and iron work, which held him suspended by one leg until he was released by some one. Fred Gieske was thrown under the wheels of a car and was cut and mangled so severely that he lived but an hour after being brought to Dr. Clausius' office. Fred Kunzman and Gus Blum were at first thought not to have received any injuries to amount to anything but after reaching home Blum became delirious and after the physicians had examined him it was found that his spine was injured, while Kunzman had sustained injuries in the right side of the chest.

The injured men were brought here on the 7:55 Barrington train and were attended to by Drs. Clausius, Richardson, Kendall, and Dr. Ballou of Crystal Lake, who had been telegraphed for and came on the limited. These gentlemen deserve the highest praise for the promptness with which they answered the call.

While being tenderly cared for in Dr. Clausius' office Mr. Gieske, realizing that his end was near, he left a tender farewell message to his wife and a kiss for "my beloved baby."

Over in the other end of town Gusie Blum, in his delirium, seeming to realize that his comrade, Mr. Gieske, was seriously hurt, kept requesting "Help Fred!"

There is no country in the world where such immense benefactions are given to institutions of learning, colleges and universities in especial, as are given in America. In England or Germany such a thing would instantly excite universal comment. Here it passes without a ripple.

The most enviable persons are not such as have the largest possessions. They are the happy spirits able to get the most out of the things they have who never suffer dyspepsia for lack of digestion at the banquet of life.

Vessels of the Navy Rendezvousing at Provincetown, Mass.

Provincetown, Sept. 2.—The nine vessels of the United States navy which were ordered to rendezvous here preparatory to proceeding to Boston in squadron formation today, reached port yesterday and during the afternoon were put in condition for today's event. It was scarcely broad daylight in the morning when the battleship Massachusetts, the only one of her class in the squadron was reported from Highland Light and she had reached this port and was riding at anchor by sunrise.

About five hours later the eight other vessels of the squadron were sighted and just before noon the gunboat Bancroft, then of the line, had come to anchor inside the harbor. The smaller vessels came in the following order: Machias, Wilmington, Helena, Detroit, Marietta, Castine, Topeka and Bancroft. It was expected that visitors would be allowed on board the vessels yesterday, but they were not, as the crews were very busy in putting the ships to rights, scrubbing, painting and cleaning all parts of their respective crafts.

MEN WILL BE CARED FOR.

General Wheeler, in Command of Camp Wikoff, Telegraphs to That Effect.

Washington, Sept. 2.—Secretary Alger last night received from General Wheeler, in command of Camp Wikoff, at Montauk Point, the following telegram which is self-explanatory:

"Camp Wikoff, Montauk Point, N. Y., Sept. 1, 1898.—Secretary of War, Washington, D. C.—What further reference to your very thoughtful and humane telegram regarding help being given to soldiers arriving in New York, every arrangement has now been made to comply with your instruction. Men on arrival will be met at trains at Long Island City, provided with food and shelter, and those who are too weak to walk will be transported in carriages by the Red Cross society, and transportation will be secured to their homes by Colonel Kimball in New York.

"WHEELER, Commanding."

GENERAL STRIKE IMPENDING.

Superior Flouring Mill Operatives Want a Higher Rate of Wages.

Superior, Wis., Sept. 2.—A general strike is said to be threatening among the millers, nailers and all union hands in general at the East End flour mills. The object of the proposed strike is a raise of 25 cents per day in the wages of all hands. The unions have made no public announcement of their intentions of taking any such action, but it has been talked quietly among the men lately and at a recent meeting they took action upon the matter, and may be ordered out the latter part of this week or next, if their demands which they expect to present are not acceded to by the mill managements.

If any men at all leave work, it is probable that all union men employed at the three East End mills will strike. Men are scarce and the mills will be obliged to meet the demand or lose the start of the fall business.

To Keep Up Regular Army.

Washington, Sept. 2.—In order to keep the regular army up to the maximum of 61,000 men, the war department will have recruiting officers at all stations which the volunteers are mustered out with a view of giving the men an opportunity to enlist in the regular service. The time which they have served in the volunteer service will be allowed them as a part of the continuous service in the regular branch. It is estimated that the regular army is some 4,000 or 5,000 below the maximum allowed by the bill which provided for the increase of the regular army when the war began.

Michigan Mine Title Cleared.

Ishpeming, Mich., Sept. 2.—The title to the Eagle Harbor Copper mine in Keweenaw county has just been cleared of clouds that have long hung over it and mining is to be resumed within sixty days, if possible. It is rumored that capital for development of the property comes mainly from England. In any case there is enough money in sight to guarantee adequate development of the mineral bodies, which are of large size and very extensive area.

Costly Fire at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Sept. 2.—At midnight the five-story brick building of the A. Geisel Manufacturing company took fire and within twenty minutes was totally destroyed. The loss is estimated at $100,000. The building stood at the corner of Second and Clark streets, and was the second largest manufactory of tin utensils in the city. It is supposed the fire started from an electric wire.

Madison Man Commits Suicide.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 2.—Word has been received from Minneapolis that William W. Allen, a young lawyer of this city, son of Mrs. William P. Allen, committed suicide there while temporarily deranged. His father was formerly a professor in the state university and he was a young man of unusual mental ability.

Arrested for Stealing Stamps.

Washington, Sept. 2.—Postoffice department is informed that Joseph W. Gillis, late wholesale stamp clerk in the Chicago office, has been arrested charged stealing $2,000 worth of stamps.

MACIAS IS NOTIFIED.

Gen. Brooke Informs Him of the Appointment of the Peace Commission.

MILES IS NOW HOMEWARD BOUND.

In a Telegram to the War Department He Announces His Departure for the United States—Gen. Wheeler Says Sick Troops Will Be Cared for at Montauk—Vessels of the Navy Are Rendezvousing at Provincetown, Mass.

Ponce, Porto Rico, Sept. 2.—General Brooke Wednesday notified Captain General Macias, the Spanish commander at San Juan de Porto Rico, under a flag of truce carried to the Spanish lines by Colonel Goethal, that Rear Admiral Schley and General Gordon, the American Porto Rican peace commissioners had sailed for San Juan from New York on the steamer Seneca. At the same time, General Brooke, who is also a member of the commission asked if there was any objection to his proceeding overland with an escort. Major Jose Reyes, of the Spanish army, brought the reply of General Macias yesterday. It was sent by wire and said there were no objections. Consequently General Brooke has arranged to leave on Friday or Saturday with his staff escorted by troop H, of the Sixth Cavalry, and Captain Pitcher's company of the Eighth Infantry.

Spanish Fortifications Strong.

Several stone culverts between here and the Spanish works on the crest of the mountains which have been blown up, will be repaired by Colonel Goethal's engineers. The colonel has examined the Spanish fortifications. He says they are marvelously strong and that he could have held back the strongest army in Europe with 500 men against an assault in front. The Spaniards had trenches and two guns. All but 100 of the 600 men stationed there have returned to San Juan.

Miles Has Left Porto Rico.

Washington, Sept. 2.—General Miles is en route from Porto Rico to the United States. He sailed from Ponce yesterday afternoon on the transport Ogdam and will arrive in this country probably next Monday. The announcement of his departure was contained in the following cablegram received by Adjutant General Corbin last night:

"Ponce, Sept. 1, 1898.—Corbin, Adjutant General, Washington: General Miles and staff, nine companies, Second Wisconsin with 800 men and twenty-eight officers sailed at 2 p. m. today, transport No. 30, Ogdam.

"WILSON, Major General."

The following cablegram also was received from General Wilson: "Ponce, Sept. 1, 1898.—Adjutant General, Washington: Transport Chester sailed at 2:30 p. m., with General Schwan and staff, General Hains and staff, Fourth Pennsylvania with forty-one officers and 1,150 men.

BODY SHIPPED IN A PINE BOX.

Remains of a Dead Soldier Received at Marquette in a Terrible Condition.

Marquette, Mich., Sept. 2.—Disgustingly putrid, clad in nothing but a night gown and thrown into a pine box the body of Private Charles Evans, company H, Thirty-Fourth Michigan, of Ironwood, arrived here yesterday on the blind baggage en route home from Montauk Point. The remains were accompanied by his brother, Private William Evans, company F, Houghton, who had no idea of their condition till he arrived here and they were given to an undertaker to examine and see if they were in shape to be taken home. When taken to the undertaking establishment the dead soldier had not a rag on him but a night gown, and that only half on.

The box in which he was shipped was absolutely bare of padding or lining. His head was supported by two strips of pine board. The face and head were badly braced where he had rattled around in the box on the trains. Private William Evans says his brother's remains were given to a New York undertaking establishment to embalm for the journey and that he saw $20 paid over by an officer for the service. This firm has a contract, and $20 is the contract price. C. A. Hager, undertaker at Marquette, says that not one drop of embalming fluid had been put into the corpse. Besides being a mass of putrefaction the body is emaciated beyond power to believe.

The persistent snubbing which the new Prince Bismarck and his family have given the kaiser from the funeral to the present time should be wholesome discipline for the imperial young man. It is not often that he experiences such a shower bath. It is to be assumed that he forgets all thought of leze majesty as his anguished fancy dwells on a certain literary dynamite magazine in London.

ONE NIGHT STANDS.

"Last act!" the call boy shouts as he comes bounding up the stairs three steps at a time. "Last act!" he yells on every landing, until at last he hoots at the chorus girls, who, huddled together in a ten-foot room, come out of their pen and follow him, as though they were a bell sheep, down the winding stairs.

The prima donna gives a daub of paint to her cheek, and a brush of the hair's foot, before throwing herself on the couch. There is no need for her to hurry; who ever heard of a prima donna being discovered when the curtain goes up.

Then the comedian, with wig and painted face, passes slowly along the landing, and with eyes riveted on the stone steps, goes down the winding stairs. As he turns the last corner a hand is laid on his shoulder, and he looks up into the pretty face of a girl in gauze.

"Is your child better tonight?" she asks, as she draws a pink wrapper more closely about her shapely form. "Is there anything I can do?"

"I'm afraid there is nothing," the comedian answers, his voice low and sad. "My little girl has stood the fatigue of travel bravely, but now she is very, very sick, and I am afraid I shall have to leave her here."

"Surely not alone?" the dancer asks, putting out her hand, which he unconsciously takes in his. "Surely you will not leave her alone?"

"If I remain," he answers, and his voice trembles as he speaks. "I can only comfort her by my presence; I can not pay the doctor then, nor can she have the little luxuries she craves."

The dancer draws her hand from his and draws from the bodice of her dress a silken purse.

"Take this," she says, as she holds it out to him. "It is not much, but it will help."

He turns away, and leans his head against the iron railing.

"Coals of fire!" he mutters. "Coals which shall always burn!"

The dancer comes down a few steps to where he stands.

"I want to go home with you tonight," she whispers. "I want to nurse your little girl."

He turns and takes her hands in his. "You must not, Blanche. You must not ask it. Think what the others would say."

"I care not what they say!" she cries, throwing her arms around his neck. "I once had the right to go with you. I had the right until another took my place."

"Then the call boy comes running up the steps, shouting: 'Your cue!' So they hurry to the stage below, he in time to enter with a ringing laugh, which is taken up by the audience when he tumbles down the palace steps, only to bound like a ball to the footlights, where, with a mock bow to the duke, he sings: 'Woman is faithless, and man is true. How do I know? Oh, I've proved it so.'"

And the chorus shouts back: "How does he know? Why, he's proved it so!"

Yes, he's proved—he's proved—he's proved it so!"

And with a whirl and dance, he goes round and round, singing, "Woman is faithless," while he knows that he has not proved her so.

Then, heralded by cymbals and beat of drum, the little dancer comes tripping on, and by her winning ways and pretty face soon wins the applause of the audience; and she smiles back at them until they think that life and her must be a happy dream. While the comedian, who stands poised on a table, forgets to grimace at the people as he watches her until she makes her exit.

THE CHILD WAS DEAD.

Then he turns with a leap and is the fool once more.

When at last the curtain is rung down he hurries to his dressing room, and, discarding the ugly wig, washes the grease paint from his face and stands, no longer a fool, but a father whose only thought is for his child.

As soon as his trunk is packed he goes down stairs to find the dancer waiting at the stage door.

"May I go home with you?" she asks, beseechingly.

"I would rather, for your sake, you would not," he answers.

But his voice belies his words, so she puts her arm in his, and together they pass down the street, only pausing for a moment beneath a dim lamp that he may wrap his muffler around her neck.

"You know what this means, Blanche?"

"Yes, Ralph."

Then they pass on again.

They reach the cheap hotel near the railroad station, ascend the narrow stairs, and along a gloomy hall until they reach a door at the farther end. The comedian turns the knob and enters, leaving the dancer standing in the doorway while he lights a lamp; when the flickering flame throws its feeble light around the dreary room he hurries to the bed, where a child lies sleeping.

As he stoops to kiss the burning temples the child opens her eyes, and, putting her arms about his neck, whispers:

"I was dreaming of mamma, dad!"

Then as her eyes rest on the figure in the doorway a smile of happiness steals across the wan face. "Is it mamma?" she asks. "Is it mamma who has come back to me?"

"No, my dear. She is some one who loved dad when he was a better man, and she has come to nurse you and make you well again."

He turns away as the dancer stoops to kiss the child's feverish cheek and brush the golden hair from the burning forehead. But he cannot help perceive the start she gives at seeing the child's resemblance to its dead mother.

As the dancer takes off her heavy cloak the comedian goes to the bed, and wrapping the child in a blanket, seats himself in a rocking chair and tries to lull the little one to sleep by singing a lullaby.

The dancer sits herself about the room, smoothing the pillows and hanging up the child's clothing, stopping now and then to smile on him. And when everything is put away she pushes a stool to his feet and seats herself by his side, prepared to share his vigil.

Hour after hour they sit there, not a sound breaking the stillness of the night but the low lullaby. Then the song dies away. A cry rings through the room as the comedian springs to his feet and with trembling hand tears the blanket from the face of the child. But the eyes are closed—the hands are cold—the child is dead.

Next morning, in the churchyard, they bury her. When the dull thud from the sod is echoed back as it strikes the coffin lid the father turns away and hurries to the station to catch the western train. He must laugh tonight and make others laugh, for he is an actor playing one-night stands. But he is no longer alone. The wrong he has done the woman beside him is forgiven, and she has promised to be what she would have been years before but for the treachery of another—his wife.—Ex.

CUPID IN A CANTEN.

A dispatch from Rock Island, Ill., announces that a letter written in 1864 by a romantic Brooklyn girl of 16 has just been discovered in an old canteen. A workman at the Rock Island arsenal found the letter, faded and brown, in one of a number of canteens made in Brooklyn during the civil war and sent to Rock Island to be recovered. The letter reads as follows:

"If the soldier who receives this canteen should chance to uncover it let him remember the young lady that covered it by addressing a letter to her, as she likes to hear from our soldiers, and I hope the soldier that receives this will vote for Little Mac, for I hope we shall have him for our next president. We have had enough for Old Abe."

The letter was signed by Rosa Corvin, 211 Gold street, Brooklyn. In the years during which this letter of a sentimental school girl has been moldering away in the old canteen the character of the best sections of the big cities has changed, and that part of Gold street to-day is a tenement quarter. In 1864 it was a good residential district.

The former school girl, Miss Rosa Corvin, has since become Mrs. M. A. Leary, and now lives at 1962 Seventh avenue, Manhattan. She said last night that she was a very young girl in 1864, and that she had no recollection of having written the letter which was found in the old canteen. In fact, she was so very young at that time that she thought it impossible that she could have written it.

Reclaiming California Dunes.

The reclamation of the sand dune territory of the Pacific coast at Golden Gate Park, near San Francisco, is carried on as follows: The shifting sand is first seeded with sand grass (Arundo arenaria) and this is allowed to grow for two years; by this time the ground is sufficiently held in place to permit the planting of the Monterey pine and cypress, and these trees, in two or three years, complete the reclamation. The entire cost of reclamation does not exceed $50 per acre, and out of the 1,040 acres in the park 500 acres are now planted with the pines.—Engineering News.

Miss Schley is a member of a Society for the Promotion of Peace, and at one of its meetings she was selected as the person to call on President McKinley and Queen Christina to ask them to put an end to hostilities. The queen told her that she was unable to do anything without the aid of her ministers, and that Miss Schley would have to consult them. The next day the niece of our commodore saw a member of the cortes, but her mission seemed to be almost fruitless, and besides, the news reached the residents of her presence in Madrid, and she had to be secretly taken from the city under a strict guard for fear of a raid upon the convent. Miss Schley is a beautiful young woman and her line of ancestry is a long and famous one. She has a soft, sweet voice, charming manners, and is a person of great versatility.

ARTISTIC HOMES.

How a Great Manufacturer Has Brought Them Within Reach of All.

Probably at no time in the world's history has so much attention been paid to the interior decoration of homes as at present. No home, no matter how humble, is without its handiwork that helps to beautify the apartments and make the surroundings more cheerful. The taste of the American people has kept pace with the age, and almost every day brings forth something new in the way of a picture, a draping, a piece of furniture or other form of mural decoration. One of the latest of these has been given to the world by the celebrated artist, Muville, in a series of four handsome porcelain game plaques. Not for years has anything as handsome in this line been seen. The subjects represented by these plaques are American Wild Ducks, American Pheasant, American Quail and English Snipe. They are handsome paintings and are especially designed for hanging on dining-room walls, though their richness and beauty entitles them to a place in the parlor of any home. These original plaques have been purchased at a cost of $50,000 by J. C. Hubinger Bros. Co., manufacturers of the celebrated Elastic Starch, and in order to enable their numerous customers to become possessors of these handsome works of art they have had them reproduced by a special process in all the rich colors and beauty of the original. They are finished on heavy cardboard, pressed and embossed in the shape of a plaque and trimmed with a heavy band of gold. They measure forty inches in circumference and contain no reading matter or advertisement whatever. Until October 1 Messrs. J. C. Hubinger Bros. Co. propose to distribute these plaques free to their customers. Every purchaser of three ten-cent packages of Elastic Starch, flat-iron brand, manufactured by J. C. Hubinger Bros. Co., is entitled to receive one of these handsome plaques free from their grocer. Old and new customers alike are entitled to the benefits of this offer. These plaques will not be sent through the mail, the only way to obtain them being from your grocer. Every grocery store in the country has Elastic Starch for sale. It is the oldest and best laundry starch on the market, and is the most perfect cold process starch ever invented. It is the only starch made by men who thoroughly understand the laundry business, and the only starch that will not injure the finest fabric. It has been the standard for a quarter of a century, and as an evidence of how good it is twenty-two million packages were sold last year. Ask your dealer to show you the plaques and tell you about Elastic Starch. Accept no substitute. Bear in mind that this offer holds good a short time only, and should be taken advantage of without delay.

He Came Too Late.
He came too late!—Neglect had tried Her constancy too long; Her love had yielded to her pride, And the deep sense of wrong, She scorned the offering of a heart Which lingered on its way, Till it could no delight impart, Nor spread one cheering ray.

He Came Too Late!—At once he felt That all his power was o'er; Indifference in her calm smile dwelt— She thought of him no more. Anger and grief had passed away, Her heart and thoughts were free; She met him, and her words were gay— No spell had Memory.

He came too late!—The subtle chords Of love were all unbound. Not by offense of spoken words, But by the slights that wound. She knew that life held nothing new, That could the past repay, Yet she disdained his tardy vow, And coldly turned away.

He came too late!—Her countless dreams Of hope had long since flown; No charms dwelt in his chosen themes, Nor in his whispered tone. And when, with word and smile, he tried Affection still to prove, She nerved her heart with woman's pride, And spurned his fickle love.

Doolin and the Thunderbolt.

P. Doolin was a track-walker on the Erie railroad. He attended a wake one day shortly before it was time for him to go on duty, with the lamentable result that early in the evening he seemed ambitious to walk on both sides of the track at once, says Harper's Magazine.

The "Thunderbolt" express was due to pass the Haskell road at 8:45. At that time Doolin reached the road, but the train did not appear. She was still invisible at 9, and Doolin began to worry about her in a maudlin way. When she was twenty minutes late he could control his anxiety no longer, and began walking the track toward her as fast as he could in his unsteady condition.

The "Thunderbolt" meantime was flying along at unusual speed. She had been delayed by a trifling wreck, and the engineer was making up lost time. Suddenly a lantern whirled like a giant pinwheel in the gloom far down the track. The engineer's face whitened; the brakes ground into the complaining wheels; the engine rocked and trembled; passengers lurched in their seats, and with a hiss of air and steam the "Thunderbolt" stopped. Dropping from his cab the trembling engineer ran up to where P. Doolin stood.

"What—what's the matter?" he gasped. "Ye're late," said Doolin. "F'what kept yez?"

NO WOMAN IS EXEMPT.

Regularity is a matter of importance in every woman's life. Much pain is, however, endured in the belief that it is necessary and not alarming, when in truth it is all wrong and indicates derangement that may cause serious trouble.

Excessive monthly pain itself will unsettle the nerves and make women old before their time.

The foundation of woman's health is a perfectly normal and regular performance of nature's function. The statement we print from Miss Gertrude Sikes, of Eldred, Pa., is echoed in every city, town and hamlet in this country. Read what she says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel like a new person since following your advice, and think it is my duty to let the public know the good your remedies have done me. My troubles were painful menstruation and leucorrhœa. I was nervous and had spells of being confused. Before using your remedies I never had any faith in patent medicines. I now wish to say that I never had anything do me so much good for painful menstruation as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; also would say that your Sanative Wash has cured me of leucorrhœa. I hope these few words may help suffering women."

The present Mrs. Pinkham's experience in treating female ills is unparalleled, for years she worked side by side with Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, and for sometime past has had sole charge of the correspondence department of her great business, treating by letter as many as a hundred thousand ailing women during a single year.

All suffering women are invited to write freely to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for advice about their health.

Sanguine Merchants.

One swallow does not make a summer, nor does the experience of one city necessarily measure that of every other. But in the vast mechanism of trade the conviction is reasonable that there must be a generally diffused energy to make the complicated machine clatter with a whizz of wheels. Local and fragmentary prosperity would not do this. One may conclude then that the August trade opening in New York city is at one with the same forces operating in Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, New Orleans, Denver and San Francisco as well as in innumerable lesser trade marts.

The report made by the secretary of the Merchants' Association of New York is a very remarkable one and worthy of comment. Merchants from all parts of the country are buying profusely in every department of business. The show of confidence surpasses that of any previous year since 1892, and the words of all express the intense conviction that national affairs are on the full impulse of a swiftly rising tide. There is scarcely a branch of business activity which does not reflect the powerful impulse. It need scarcely be said to any student of economics that this very feeling tends to augment the condition which it recognizes.

Aside from the waste of war, a loss quickly recouped by other accompaniments of national conflict, in many cases of triumphant war, the influences of the episode of which we are approaching the end have been stimulating rather than retroactive. The universal sense of resourcefulness and power which the war has brought to the surface in an unequalled degree has been stimulated through and through. While war is not to be sought in any spirit of medievalism which seeks for glory in what is terrible and destructive, the consciousness of strength, which is active to strike crushing blows as well as potential, has the highest bracing vigor in other pursuits than those of arms. The convergence of all our energies and sympathies to one center of focal splendor in the erasure of lines of north and south, east and west, is another most effective incentive to the sanguine attitude of the public mind. Everything is operating to convince the people of the land that they have reached the mountains of Beulah. There is scarcely a drawback in the general sentiment of confidence. It is natural, then, that our merchants should be more than hopeful. It is not merely, either, one is fain to hope, a bare question of sordid money making which is at the root of the satisfaction. It is the thought in many a mind that additional labor will find employment; that the miseries of the poor may be alleviated in the general good; that the fortunes of the nation, as a power in the world, may find their due expansion. The man of business in seeking his own profit may be credited with some degree of pride in contributing to the greatness of the people, of whom he is a humble member.

Mrs. Lynn Linton, the well known English authoress, not long dead, is the victim of some reminiscences in The British Weekly. In those she is said to have asserted her secret knowledge of unknown facts in the lives of Dickens and Thackeray, and that these great men could and did love deeply, passionately, madly. Both those great geniuses lived so much in the light and blaze of the world's eye that it seems hardly possible that any great romance of their lives could remain unknown.

A first decision of Commissioner Scott under the new war tax law decided that the rent payer must pay a tax stamp to be put on the landlord's receipt. This has been revoked since, and no stamp is necessary now. It is difficult to see how the most superserviceable official zeal could have come to the first opinion. It would at once discriminate between rich and poor. The rich man generally pays by check, which in itself acts as a receipt.

The most powerful personages in name and seeming are those who rarely have their own way. Monarchs are often helpless slaves of policy, of bureaucracy, of tradition. The Russian czar, for example, is an ardent lover of England and English ideas, yet circumstances make him pose as their formidable foe.

University Training For Women.

Woman is held in higher regard as a social power here than in any other country. She has more political and business rights than elsewhere. Her competition in nearly every line of occupation, so far as her physical power enables her to enter any race which she wishes to run, is unrestricted. Even her lack of fitness to carry a rifle in the battle front she offsets by her generous ardor in going to the front as a nurse in larger numbers even than masculine red tape can be persuaded to countenance. But proportionately to population her university advantages are even greater in several other countries than our own. The test is in the admission to university training under the same conditions as those given to men. Columbia, Harvard and the University of Michigan are the only high class universities in the United States which put her on an equal footing as to curriculum and degree. In England Oxford and Cambridge open their doors, with two colleges in each, while there are three other large university colleges of less note where she is welcomed. Several medical colleges also admit both sexes. The University of Copenhagen makes no distinction, nor do several of the German universities, though the rude burschen often make it very unpleasant for the women students with their cruel, staring and impertinences. Switzerland is the great power in the higher education of women, and there are more woman students in its universities than are found elsewhere. The fact that it is the political asylum of Europe causes a constant escape to its hospitable shores of hundreds of refugees from their own lands. So among its woman students, perhaps indeed a majority of them, are to be counted many foreigners. Much of the nihilistic plotting which in times past threatened the lives of czars emanated from the Swiss universities and their women. That nihilism, fed so constantly by Russian student life among the women, has not induced the successive czars to shut the doors of their own universities to the fair sex certainly scores a credit mark to the imperial generosity. But half barbaric Muscovy is in the very van of forwardness in this respect, even in the Russian schools, while France, with its most artificial of European civilizations, frowns persistently at the whole theory of woman's higher education.

The progress made throughout the world in the fuller extension of educational chances for women is an interesting fact. Nothing in the last quarter of a century more clearly marks the advancing wave of intellectual and moral progress. Whether woman does or does not need to support herself, a larger intellectual outlook equips by that much the better for any duty or station which falls to her. In answering this need the latter half of the nineteenth century has developed one of its most striking features.

Some curious experiments have been recently made on animals raised on sewage farms. The result shows an interesting effect on the flesh and secretions as influenced by the herbage manured by the sewage. Where no more sewage goes into the soil than is fully assimilated and transformed by the tissues of the plant cattle and other animals fed on the grass show no deleterious trace in their flesh or milk. If the soil, however, is fully gorged with the sewage, then the herbage crop will be surcharged with the sewage elements and dangerously unfit for cattle to graze. Both meat and milk will be replete with the same constituents, unpleasant to taste and dangerous to the health. The susceptibility of milk to the flavor of the food eaten by cows is well known. But it seems that the effect on the flesh is even more marked and unwholesome.

The quaint old couplet about the sick devil and the well devil finds a fresh illustration in the action of the sultan of Turkey in refusing to grant compensation for American losses at the time of the Armenian massacres. When the pressure was sternly forced, he was profuse in promises and agreements. Now that the powers of the civilized world have begun to show their teeth and snarl not at him, but at each other, the shrewd Moslem laughs in the faces of applicants and repudiates all responsibility.

General Lord Wolseley is an enthusiastic Americo-maniac. To Hiram Maxim, about to set sail for America to preach the new Anglo-Saxon alliance, he wrote: "I think your proposed 'campaign' would be worth to us far more than a dozen Wei-Hei-Weis or Sudans and to the United States far more than Cuba, Manila and the whole kingdom of Ferdinand and Isabella thrown in."

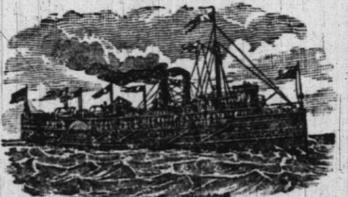

The real importance of an individual can only be judged by the effect his death makes. Yet great men survive the active period of their greatness, and the effect is purely sentimental and critical. Dead Bismarck and Gladstone! The world is not moved a whit except in curious contemplation. "Imperial Caesar dead and turned to clay" becomes only good for Hamlet's moralizing over an open grave. The death of the biggest man, after all, makes a very small ripple in the ocean of life.

The retired officers of the United States army, constituting a large body of able and in many cases physically competent men, have not been encouraged in giving their services to the government in our recent needs. Hundreds of military offices have been filled by civilian appointments and the trained soldiers debarred. In the naval service this rigid exclusion has not been enforced. It is not easy to grasp the philosophy of the distinction.

There is a strong reaction against the "manual training" idea which has been introduced into the school methods of many of our large cities. The argument is that the children of the poor need more than aught else a substantial drill in the elementary English studies, for which time is too limited. The manual drill wastes time for a mere smattering without skill.

Society is composed of two great classes, those who have more appetites than dinners and those who have more dinners than appetites. The returned heroes of Santiago will have belonged to both these classes when they are free to receive social attentions.

The ice cream social given by the ladies for the benefit of the sick and wounded soldiers at the M. E. church last Thursday evening was fairly well attended, and the ladies earned a small sum for the worthy cause. Editor Bugbee of Arlington Heights makes the following assertion in last Saturday's Cook County Herald, in regard to firemen's contest at Des-Plaines: "The boys ran well and, barring accidents, can beat any company in this section." Well, Brother Bugbee, if they can't do it with two weeks more practice than Palatine, we don't see how they could win if Palatine should take a notion to practice.

School Opens Monday.

The Palatine public schools will open again next Monday, ready to give another year's instruction to the attendants. The building has been repaired in many ways. The upper rooms have been thoroughly overhauled and cleaned, giving them a fresh and wholesome air. The basement floor has been cemented in good shape, and a wash room has been fitted up at the foot of the stairs, which have been widened. The pupils will not have to come in from play with dirt on their hands or faces hereafter. The water is supplied from pipes leading from the mains.

The outlook for a splendid year of instruction is exceedingly bright.

Prof. W. L. Smyser has been retained as principal of the high school. Miss Anna M. Salzer, a graduate of Oberlin college, will act as assistant principal; Miss Aveloe Hopkins will have charge of the 7th and 8th grades; Miss Ada Jewell, of Iroquois, Ill., the 5th and 6th grades; Miss Lulu Abbott, the 3rd and 4th grades, and Mrs. Benson of Niles, Ill., the primary room. The Board has been careful in the selection of teachers, and has done everything in its power to make our school worthy of the patronage of all who desire a thorough course of studies, enabling the pupils to step from the High school into college.

About one month ago my child, which is fifteen months old, had an attack of diarrhoea accompanied by vomiting. I gave it such remedies as are usually given in such cases, but as nothing gave relief, we sent for a physician and it was under his care for a week. At this time the child had been sick for about ten days and was having about twenty-five operations of the bowels every twelve hours, and we were convinced that unless it soon obtained relief it would not live. Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy was recommended, and I decided to try it. I soon noticed a change for the better; by its continued use a complete cure was brought about and it is now perfectly healthy.—C. L. Boggs, Stumpdown, Gilmer county, W. Va. For sale by A. L. Waller, Barrington, and A. S. Olms, Palatine.

TOLD BY THE SERGEANT.

From the Democrat, Grand Rapids, Mich. At the Michigan Soldiers' Home, in Grand Rapids, lives Sergeant Richard Dunn, hale and hearty, although he carries the scars of several wounds sustained in some of the battles of the Civil war. In recounting his experience to a reporter, Mr. Dunn said: "About a year and a half ago I began to have trouble with my stomach. My suffering was so intense that I tried different medicines and doctored with several physicians, but without permanent relief."

A Wounded Soldier.

"I read an account of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People having cured a case much like mine, and I decided to give them a trial, which I did. "After taking five boxes I was cured. I never felt better than I do now, even in my younger days. I am naturally a robust man, but that stomach trouble, together with rheumatism, which afterward set in, were making fast inroads upon my health and I am satisfied that it would have been but a short time before my comrades would have been conducting the regulation funeral ceremonies over my remains, had I not chanced to read of and taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

"There are several others in the home who are taking these pills and are receiving great benefit." RICHARD DUNN. Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 1st day of Nov. 1897. HENRY GIBSON, Notary Public.

Sergeant Dunn is perfectly willing that anyone should write him in reference to his case, provided stamp is enclosed for reply.

All the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves are contained in a condensed form in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. In men they cure cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature.

TRAVEL WEST THIS YEAR.

The Tourist Seeks the Mountains Rather Than the Seashore and Lake.

The periods of Western migration of people vary with the years. Sometimes the attractions of the East overcome the distaste to long travel, and the flood of excursionists is in that direction, but, latterly, the beauties and benefits of Colorado scenery and air have tipped the scales of doubting minds in favor of the great central summer resort of the continent. The present summer has been a Western resort epoch, largely because the railroads have established and maintained unsurpassed facilities for comfortable travel, and the desirability of the location has become widely known through judicious advertising.

The great game preserves and the rivers stocked with finest specimens of the finny tribe, the vigorous mountain air, the gathering of pleasant people at first class hotels, and the proximity to home and business if required, have proved stronger attractions than the sea coast and the Northern lake regions. The vast mineral resources of Colorado have tempted the watchful business man to combine something of business with his outing, and as a consequence of all these reasons travel to the West has been unsurpassed this year and the state has found new friends and gained new tongues to tell its praise.

It is a matter of such great importance that comfort shall be a striking feature of travel that the tourist as well as the daily traveler in pursuit of business should select his route with care and judgment. The Missouri Pacific, with its many branches affords opportunity for all the people to use its magnificent trains as far as Pueblo, and there the Denver & Rio Grande road, with its justly bestowed celebrity for piercing the most beautiful scenery of the mountain wilds, continues the care and watchfulness which has been so readily observed on the route to Pueblo, and with every comfort at hand and inspiring scenery round about, the traveler finds himself at his destination unwearied, satisfied and ready for what Fate has in store for the future.

It is a mental treat and rest as well as a physical relief from heat and labor, and should be provided for in the yearly itinerary as much as the provision for the habiliments which custom prescribes. F. P. Baker.

"Straws Show Which Way the Wind Blows."

This is an old adage and one that has been demonstrated as truthful many times. The fact that the excursion business in Colorado seeks to use one particular line is a straw that indicates where the excursionists find the best scenery, lowest rates and best train service. The line in question, the Colorado Midland, has handled more excursion and tourist business this season than ever before in its history, and this is a straw which indicates that the Colorado Midland always offers the lowest rates, the finest scenery and the best train service through the Mountains and to the Colorado Tourist Resorts.

DAIRY AND POULTRY.

Dairy Commissioner for Illinois.

The position that Illinois has in the dairy industry and dairy developments of the Northwest demands some official representative of that branch of agriculture, not only for the purpose of enforcing such laws as may be enforceable regarding the fraudulent sale of butter substitutes, but farther, to collect, preserve and compile statistics of the dairy industry in this great state, so that outsiders may know what Illinois is doing in that line, says Elgin Dairy Report. We are having applications frequently for a list of the creameries, cheese factories and private dairies of the state for business purposes, and are unable to furnish any such list. A dairy commissioner whose duty it would be to compile such a list from information furnished by the manufacturers of dairy products would be a very great advantage when we are asking for legislation to advance, conserve and preserve this industry. Very few people in the state, and especially among our legislators, are posted as to the value and importance of the dairy industry of this state, and of the whole people of the state. The situation in Illinois is not creditable to the dairy farmers and creamerymen. There seems to be a woeful lack of "esprit du corps" among the creamerymen and dairymen. Having attained a position and held it for years, it would seem the part of good business to do everything they can to advance all matters pertaining to the production of milk and its manufacture into a merchantable product. Looking at the matter on the surface, many people are inclined to believe that we have accomplished all, and that little more can be done; yet there are new problems coming forward continually that must be solved; new methods of manufacturing, handling and putting on the market the product of the cow. Experiments in feeding and in cheapening the cost of producing have been undertaken and are being carefully conducted by experiment stations in other states, yet this great state of Illinois lags behind. In the legislation that has been attempted for the last few years, this one idea of a dairy commissioner seems to have been left in the background, whereas, in our judgment, a dairy commissioner with reasonable power, and a reasonable amount of money to carry on the work and duties of his office, could have done more to have consolidated and strengthened the dairy industry, than all the other things that have been partially accomplished by means of legislation. By all means let us have a bill before the next legislature that will provide for a state dairy commissioner, whose business it will be to enforce what laws we have regarding the manufacture and sale of adulterated dairy products, and also to compile statistics regarding the dairy in this great state with over a million milk cows devoted to the production of milk for all purposes, and an investment of several hundred million dollars in farms devoted to the production of milk. With a state dairy commissioner, whose duty it shall be to compile these statistics, we shall have better grounds to work upon when we ask for legislation to help improve and foster this great industry.

Cold Storage Shipment.

Great things were expected of cold storage. By an improved system of cold storage facilities for meats, fruit and eggs, we have been told, Canada and the countries at a considerable distance from Great Britain would be able to compete on equal terms in her perishable goods markets with the continental producers. After some experience with cold storage it becomes apparent that the expectations of merchants have not in all branches of the trade been realized. At considerable expense a steamship service has been fitted out with refrigeration plant. A Glasgow importing house refers to this as follows: "As for putting eggs in cold storage on board these steamers, we think it is the worst thing for the eggs, because they run the refrigerators at such a low temperature, with the result that the shells of the eggs often get very brittle, and the least knock breaks them and causes a lot of damage to the eggs." This firm has instructed all its packers not to ship a single egg under refrigerators, "as our experience this season is that eggs coming in under ordinary freight have been more satisfactory, and there is no doubt that when eggs are shipped fresh, for the short time they are on the voyage, they should be in perfect condition when they arrive here." Unfortunately, all the consignments of eggs sent across the Atlantic are not fresh when they leave the forwarder's hands. There is nothing that will make amends for delay in marketing eggs. It has been found that when eggs are taken from cold storage into a warmer temperature a moisture gathers on the shells, which, passing into the paste-board cells used to pack them, causes an objectionable mustiness and mold to form on both eggs and package. This must prove a great hindrance in the way of the sale of the eggs, and leads merchants to prefer the domestic eggs or those that have been imported without the assistance of refrigeration.—Toronto Monetary Times.

The pith of the whole matter lies in the last lines of the first paragraph, says Farm Poultry. That "all are not fresh when they leave the shippers' hands," expresses a great deal. Eggs that have already begun to "stale" are in poor shape to stand the hardships of a journey, either with or without cold storage, and a long stride forward will be made when eggs are collected and shipped daily, just as is milk. Eggs that lie in the hot kitchen "buttery" for a week before being "traded" at the store, then lie on the store counter for a week or two, exposed to the delicate odors of codfish and kerosene, reinforced by the aromas of strong tobacco smoke and tobacco juice, will hardly be "fresh" or appetizing. Eggs should be collected and shipped daily—and where it is not possible to ship daily they should be stored in a cool (not cold) place. A temperature of 45 and 50 degrees Fahr. is better than below 40.

Paste This in Your Stable.

It is everybody's business to interfere with cruelty.

You can get no more power from a horse than you give him in his food. Yelling and jerking the bit confuses a horse and advertises a blockhead. The horse is man's invaluable helper and should be treated as a friend.

Any fool can ruin a team, but a wise driver maintains its value.

The best drivers talk much to their animals.

Your horse needs water oftener than you.

A sandy or muddy road doubles the work.

A rise of only one foot in ten doubles the draft.

Balking is caused by abuse, overloading or tight harness.

Never strike or hurt a balker. Stuff cloth in his ears or hold up his foot and tinker with it fully three minutes. Divert his attention and do it kindly.

No horse should wear a shoe more than four weeks.

The whip costs more than it saves. Put it up.

Blinders are useless and injurious. Cut them off.

Wide tires save much horse power.

But few farm horses need shoes.

Quiet and patient drivers are worth twice as much as any others.

Your horse intends to please you, but does not always know your wishes.

Dark or damp stables cause low spirits and various diseases.

Axle grease pays 1,000 per cent. profit.

Good blankets are profitable and save food—if wisely used.

Cruelty qualifies for crime—they are close neighbors.

It is cruel and silly to whip a horse for fright. Soothe him with kind words.—Humane Alliance.

Frozen Eggs in the Klondike.

A man at Seattle, Washington, has made a neat little fortune out of frozen eggs, which he took to the Klondike. Hearing that eggs in that region were selling at $1 each, he determined to supply the demand. So he bought 1,743 dozen of eggs, broke them into cans and had the cans sealed and then frozen. He packed them in ice and started for the Klondike. When on the trail in Alaska a man stole a can of eggs. He was arrested and taken before a magistrate, who compelled him to pay to the egg-man a fine of $1,110. In attempting to float down Thirty-mile river his raft upset and his companion and dogs were precipitated into the stream. Fortunately the bags of eggs floated, and he was enabled to get them all by repeatedly plunging into the icy water and bringing out his sacks. His clothes were frozen, but he was able to thaw them out at a hut near there. He was offered $3 per dozen for his eggs and took the offer, realizing a sum of $5,211, which, in addition to the $1,110 he had obtained from the man that stole one can, made him the neat sum of $6,231. Who can beat this for an egg story?

Lice.—There is nothing quicker or surer than spirits of turpentine poured on at the ends of the roosts, or where lice accumulate. It is dead shot and easily procured. Do not put it on the bodies of fowls or chicks. Kerosene oil poured on the roosts, etc., is an excellent preventative. Poultry houses should be white-washed inside at least once a year with a pint of spirits of turpentine to a gallon of white-wash. (Keep it well stirred.) Carbonate of lime or tobacco dust is good to dust among the feathers in case any of your fowls become infested with vermin. Roosts, boxes and other fixtures in poultry houses should never be nailed or made permanent. They should be constructed as to permit of being cleansed to keep clear of vermin.—Ex.

Some scientists assert that the purest air in cities is found about 25 feet above the street surface.

THE NEWS OF ILLINOIS.

Happenings of a Week Recorded in Short Telegrams.

Pana Miners Obey the Law.

Pana, Ill.—Considering all circumstances matters are exceedingly quiet in mining circles; no riots or lawlessness was resorted to by the miners, although their ranks have been greatly strengthened by their brethren from over the state. The United Mine Workers' leader, John Mitchell of Spring Valley, national vice-president; J. W. Russell of Danville, state vice-president; W. D. Ryan, state secretary and treasurer, and President Topham of Danville district, are here advising with the miners and aiding in every way possible to have the law respected and obeyed. Their opinion is that all of the remaining negroes, some fifty in all, will leave the city in a few days, after they have learned the exact situation. Operator Penwell stated it was the intention of the local operators' association to have shipped in 150 more negroes from Alabama as soon as possible. Negro deserters who left Springside mine camp yesterday, some sixty-five in all, have notified their friends at Birmingham, Woodward and Bessemer, Ala., of conditions existing here, advising them to have nothing to do with any other agents with propositions to come to Pana. Union miners sent thirty-seven of the deserting negroes to Chicago in a special car and twenty back to Alabama, while several walked out of town in different directions during the night. State Mine Inspector Walter Rutledge of Altoon examined the remaining negroes at Springside mine and found only part of them content miners.

Interesting Law Case.

Nashville, Ill.—One of the most peculiar cases which will come up at the present term of the southern Illinois appellate court is that of John Knecht, appellant, vs. Phillip Lehr, appellee. Both parties are prominent farmers of this county. Knecht was a school director and Lehr took several bushels of coal from a school house near his home and refused to return it. Knecht and the other directors had him arrested for larceny, but he was acquitted in the circuit court, and he then brought suit for damages against Knecht for $5,000, claiming that he suffered in credit and public esteem to that amount. The court gave him $150 judgment, and to reverse this Knecht appeals to the appellate court.

Sangamon's Old Settlers.

Springfield, Ill.—The annual reunion of the Sangamon county old settlers was held at Miller's grove, ten miles north of Springfield. It is estimated that 6,000 people were present. Many of the pioneers of the early days attended the reunion and a program of music and speeches interested the big crowd. A concert by the watch factory band of this city closed the day's entertainment. The meeting was presided over by Joseph Dodds, president of the association. Miss Bessie Turley delivered an address of welcome and President Dodds responded in behalf of the association. Addresses were made by James H. Matheny, Dr. William Jayne, Rev. A. H. Scott and J. H. Pickrell, of Springfield.

Canal Hearing Is Postponed.

Joliet, Ill.—The controversy between the sanitary district of Chicago and the state canal board, growing out of the disputed possession of certain lands north of Joliet and involving the arrest of Messrs. Haley, Nadelhoffer, Shannon, McDonald and others, and also the injunction tying up all local work on the ditch, came before Judge Hilschir this morning. Robert Shannon, the prisoner, was the principal figure in the habeas corpus proceedings. Sanitary district attorneys wanted to have the hearing on the injunction and the habeas corpus case, tried at once and together. The other side objected strenuously.

Two Conventions Called.

Decatur, Ill.—Representatives of the trades unions of Decatur have adopted a resolution to ignore any convention of the state Federation of Labor that might be called by P. F. Doyle, the secretary-treasurer deposed by the executive board of the state federation. Today, on receipt of a call by Mr. Doyle for a convention in Decatur on Sept. 27, the local committee on arrangements of the federation sent out invitations to all unions in the state to attend the convention Oct. 4 called by President U. G. Hinman, and warned local unions not to pay any attention to a call for a convention issued by P. F. Doyle.

Quarrel Among German Women.

A division in the ranks of the Nord Chicago Frauen Verein, a German women's association of Chicago, which meets every two weeks at Jaeger's hall, Clybourn avenue and Larrabee street, culminated last week in a suit for $5,000 damages, brought against the society in the circuit court by Mrs. Clara Schmieding, former president. The Frauen Verein gives occasional balls and parties. One of these affairs given last winter was not the financial success which its promoters thought it should have been. It is said a letter signed by Mrs. Guggenbuehl, charging Mrs. Anna Schmidt, the secretary, with appropriating the money, was received by the society. Suspicion rested upon Mrs. Schmieding as the instigator of the offending note. It is said she was deposed from the presidency and suspended from membership without a trial. Mrs. Schmieding refused to accept the decision of the society, and two weeks ago at the regular meeting of the order assumed the president's chair as usual. This action was objected to by several members of the order, and she was forcibly ejected from the chair. Mrs. Schmieding claims to have been injured on this occasion, and she asks the court to award her damages for her injuries and for suspension from membership.

George W. Perry Sentenced.

Springfield, Ill.—George W. Perry, a colored editor, was sentenced by Judge Allen in the United States circuit court, to two years in the penitentiary at Chester for forging a postal money order. Complaint was made by James Porter, colored editor of the Illinois Record. Porter is the man who threw venomous shafts at Gov. Tanner, the negroes of Illinois and the Republican party generally until his experience with the Eighth regiment one night at Camp Tanner, after the governor had delivered an address. Perry was part owner of the Record with Porter. He secured a contract, received a payment of $3 in a money order for it, and signed Porter's name. Perry pleaded guilty to the charge. He has been in jail several months, having been arrested in and returned here from Davenport, Iowa, where he had purchased the Colored Plaindealer.

Gas Plant for Waukegan.

Waukegan, Ill.—The Chicago men who proposed to supply Waukegan with gas about November 1 have let contracts for the erection of the works and the laying of the additional mains needed. Work will shortly begin upon the gashouse on the lake front, opposite the Northwestern railway station. It will be of brick, 80x40 feet. The rates will be $1.25 for illuminating and $1.15 for fuel. The officers of the Waukegan Gas Light and Fuel company are: President, W. Orving Osborne; vice-president, C. T. Boynton; secretary and treasurer, Louis M. Grant; general manager, Lewis Brittain.

Lake County Contest.

Waukegan, Ill.—State Secretary Rose has given notice that the contest for the Democratic nomination for representative in the Eighth Senatorial district will be heard. The county judges of Lake, Boone and McHenry counties will come here to sit on the case. The contestants are Daniel A. Grady of this city and John C. Donnelly of Woodstock, each claiming to have been regularly nominated. The one getting the place on the regular Democratic ticket is almost sure of election even should his opponent choose to run as an independent candidate.

Tanner's Order Displeases.

Quincy, Ill.—Gov. Tanner's order prohibiting members of the Soldiers' home from working outside of that institution has caused those who have been doing little odd jobs in the city to growl about the order, but the others regard it as proper. They say the state is supporting them in a good home and that they ought not to try to work outside. As one veteran expressed it, if they are able to work outside they have no occasion to enter the home.

One Year Over Century Mark.

Rockford, Ill.—"Aunt Kitty" Rice, who, so far as known, is the oldest person in Illinois, was busy receiving congratulations on her one hundred and first birthday anniversary. Mrs. Rice has lived through a part of the eighteenth century, nearly all of the nineteenth, and there is nothing to indicate that she will not live to see the twentieth.

Wool-Eating Sheep.

This trouble is of the same nature as the depraved appetite of cows which leads them to eat all manner of articles other than ordinary food, says National Wool Growers' Journal. In sheep it causes loss of wool, occasional mortality among lambs, and is at all times a source of great annoyance to the shepherd. Some are of the opinion that the disease is the product of imitation, arguing that when one lamb starts the wool-eating habit, others follow suit, until several will be seen eating wool from the same sheep, until it may be entirely denuded. Others consider it as the result of malnutrition, either from an insufficiency of food or lack of some required chemical ingredient. In sheep it is seen most often in winter, when food is scarce or lacks variety; in lambs it happens ordinarily, according to Friedberger and Frohner, when the milk-giving ewes are fed too sparingly and where there is a deficiency of milk, or if its chemical composition is poor. It is said that in such cases the trouble has been cured by furnishing the lambs with cow's milk; while in spring it disappears under the influence of a change of diet, or green grass. We incline to the opinion that both imitation and lack of needed nutrients produce the wool-eating habit. It is not so much imitation, we think, as a habit acquired by the young lamb from accidentally getting wool locks into its mouth when sucking an udder that has not been denuded of its wool tags by the attentive shepherd. We think, too, that lambs suck the wool at first just as young calves do each other's ears, and that they gradually learn to eat the wool in this way, and later on may develop wool balls in their stomachs and succumb to their presence. When lambs become confirmed wool eaters, digestive troubles appear; they lose flesh, their growth is retarded; they become constipated and may die of inflammation. Treatment indicated is largely preventive. Strip the udder of all wool before allowing the lamb to suck. Change the food of all sheep or lambs showing the habit and separate the wool eaters from the rest of the flock. See that all are well nourished and that the rations are properly balanced. Supply the flock with salt or a mixture of salt, bicarbonate of soda, powdered wood charcoal and ginger root. Quite recently, according to the authorities already mentioned, Lemke has obtained extraordinary results through subcutaneous administration of chloro-hydrate of amorphous upon 80 sheep. The dose should be 0.1 to 0.2 gramme. The curative effect is said to last for about four months.

About Churning.

When butter is salted in the churn and allowed to stand two to four hours (either in the churn or in trays in a room at the right temperature) before working, or when the butter is twice worked, less working is required to insure an even color in it, and thus the grain is well preserved, says a writer in Farmers' Advocate. When worked twice the butter should be worked the first time just enough to incorporate the salt, be allowed to stand two or four hours in a room whose temperature is between 52 and 55 degrees, and worked sufficiently the second time to make the color even. Either of these methods of salting and working butter entails more work than salting and working the butter all at once, and though both are excellent methods, yet it is quite safe, and more speedy, to adopt the method of salting on the worker and completing the working of the butter at the same time, if proper conditions as to temperature, etc., are observed. However, I would advise the adoption of either the method of salting in the churn or the twice-working method if troubled with mottled butter or if you cannot control the temperature of the room in warm weather. They are especially safe methods for beginners. Practice daily, examining a sample of the butter of the previous day as to color, etc. Do not mistake curdy specks in the butter for mottles. They will not dissolve with the heat if placed between the fingers, and are caused by the cream being overripe and not strained into the churn.

For Bowel Complaints.—Pure charcoal, or the charred wood from the stove, when fresh, is an excellent aid in arresting bowel complaints, and is both simple and harmless. Where the hens have not had a variety, parched grain, nearly burned, affords an agreeable change and serves nearly the same purpose as charcoal. Oats, corn, wheat, or even bran, will be readily eaten by hens when they have been regularly fed on a sameness of diet, and such food will greatly aid in arresting diarrhoea, or other bowel disorders.

The Creamery Profitable.—A well managed creamery has given the farmer a larger per cent of profit than any line of farming he runs; second, the cheapness of feed has guaranteed the farmer a much larger profit of his cows; third, it has been demonstrated time after time that the quality of butter turned out of a South Dakota Creamery, which is operated by a first-class butter maker, cannot be excelled by any country on the globe. This is a strong statement to make, but it is a fact, says Cambell's Soil Culture.

According to our exchanges there are three towns in the race to secure the location of the United Evangelical college within their borders, and two of them have done some tall hustling, while Barrington made a splurge and then seemed to have fallen into a comatose condition. What's the matter with the committee, and especially the Barrington property owners? Are they going to let a golden opportunity slip through their fingers without twitching their muscle? Come, wake up, committee, and hustle; and wake up, citizens, and put your names on that subscription paper for a liberal amount. Fortune is knocking on the door. Let her come in.

The dance given by the Barrington Social and Athletic club at the Oak Park pavilion, Lake Zurich, last Saturday evening was a grand social success. Over sixty couples were present, and enjoyed one of the pleasant social events of the season. When the boys of the B. S. A. C. entertain they do it royally.

The picnic given by the Salem church Sunday school at the camp grounds Thursday was well attended. Excellent music was furnished during the day by the Barrington Military band. Delightful games were the order of the day, with a liberal interspersing of dainty and palatable refreshments. Altogether, the picnic was as pleasant a day's outing as one could wish for.

After several nearby doctors had been consulted without any apparent relief Dr. Clausius of this place was called, with the result that the little lad is rapidly regaining the use of his limbs, body and speech.

Tom Thumb Wedding.

The Epworth League of the M. E. church gave a "Tom Thumb Wedding" last Friday evening which proved to be such a success that it was again presented on Tuesday evening of this week. About thirty-five children belonging to the Sunday school and Junior League took part. The characters in the entertainment were represented as follows:

Bride.....	Violet McIntosh
Groom.....	Dan Pomeroy
Maid of Honor.....	Mabel Stiefenhofer
Bridesmaids.....	Madaline Blocks
	Violet Ulitsch
Groomsmen.....	Charles Boehmer
	Earl Powers
Flower Girl.....	Gertrude Yale
Clergyman.....	Herbert Wilmer
Ushers.....	Verne Hawley
	Victor Rieke

The wedding guests were represented by nine couples of little folks, and five little girls in caps and aprons acted the part of waitresses to perfection. During the entertainment the audience was treated to some beautiful and finely executed music by Prof. Charles Alberding, which added much to the enjoyment of those present.

The costumes of the little folks were very pretty, and the dignity with which the little men and women conducted themselves, seemingly very much at ease in their evening dress, shows that there is a great deal of natural dignity and refinement in our children, of which we should justly feel proud, and try our best to cultivate, thereby enabling them, as they grow to womanhood and manhood, to become ladies and gentlemen to whom dignity and grace shall be natural characteristics.
