PALATINE LOCALS.

A. G. SMITH, LOCAL EDITOR

Good boiled cider at L. Peck's.
St. Valentine's Day will soon be here.

Tom Burgess is now working for Dr. Muffat.

The Athletic club will play cinch tonight.

Dr. Earle of Des Plaines was in town Saturday.

Miss Clara Harrison has been ill the past few days.

Harry Roberts of Spring Lake was in town Saturday.

Mr. Benson's mother is quite sick at her home in Indiana.

Mr. and Mrs. Dr. E. W. Wood have been ill a few days this week.

Harry Coffee of Chicago was a visitor at Dr. Alverson's Sunday.

When you want neat, careful printing go A. G. Smith, as usual.

Rev. W. H. Smith of Nunda visited here between trains Monday morning.

Miss June Julian went to Elgin on Wednesday to visit relatives for two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Heise of Barrington visited at M. Richmond's Tuesday.

Attorney Wallace Sherer of Arlington Heights was here on business last Saturday.

Emil Sigwalt of Chicago was a guest of P. H. Hartlett and family Saturday.

Mrs. Dr. Hulett of Chicago attended the funeral of Mrs. Ray Wilson Thursday.

G. H. Arps and children and Miss Converse were skating in Lincoln park Sunday.

A masquerade ball will be given in Humberg's hall next Friday night. Costumes to rent at the hall.

Rev. J. C. Hoffmeister spoke before the Young People's society at the Arlington church last Sunday evening.

The best piano or organ manufactured in Chicago for sale by J. C. Hoffmeister. Will save every buyer money.

John Brinkamp of Barrington was down Saturday to make a bid on moving Mr. Boyle's barn on the Owen place.

Good home grown wheat flour at two cents a pound. Satisfaction guaranteed. Leave orders at Elmer Robertson's.

The explosion last Saturday night was made by a fire-cracker. Harry and Hutchins were helping to boom the town.

All persons holding membership in the Traveling library must pay their dues or lose their membership. A. G. SMITH, librarian.

Mrs. Benson visited the school at Arlington Heights Monday. Miss Mattie Hodgkins teaching the primary room in her absence.

Prof. W. Don Smith and Will Mueller of Arlington Heights took the 4th degree in Royal Arch Masonry at this place Tuesday night.

Hutchins Hart attended the wedding of Miss Mabel Peacock to Mr. Francis Browne in Kenwood Evangelical church last Tuesday.

Ray Fox visited his grandparents here Sunday. He has been sick for a couple of weeks with chills, which has stayed by him since his return from Cuba.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Roberts were greeted with a full house at the Methodist church last Thursday evening. Mr. Roberts is as interesting as ever in his readings and the monologue. His impersonations were of the highest order and duly appreciated, as all artists are by Palatine audiences. Mrs. Roberts assisted in solos and the two sang duets. The spirit put into the song made them very enjoyable. About $30 was taken in at the door, which was good, considering the cold weather.

Karl Volker and Miss Alma Strickfaden of Barrington attended the Roberts entertainment Thursday night.

We know that THE REVIEW is away up in the estimation of some of our people, but we are hardly a tail to somebody's kite, although we do balance pretty well.

The following officers were installed at St. Paul's Evangelical church Sunday: William Foss, trustee; Louis Krueger, Elder; and Charles Ost treasurer. A large congregation was present.

Thirteen members of the Palatine Fox River club went to Cary to move their boat house up the river Sunday. They got the house about a quarter of a mile and had a break-down and put the job off until later.

The Literary society held a very interesting meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Arps last Friday evening. The society is taking in new members at every meeting. About 30 members are now enrolled.

The Maennchor have their big posters up announcing their ball and concert for February 10. Miss Olga Seimoll will assist in the program with violin solos, and the Elite orchestra of Chicago will furnish music.

Deputy Coroner M. Reynolds held the inquest on the remains of Michael Howley, the boy that was killed by falling from a horse last week, and the jury returned a verdict of "accidental death caused by falling from a horse and being kicked by said horse."

Rev. J. C. Hoffmeister now has 20 scholars in attendance at his evening German school. Mr. Hoffmeister teaches these pupils in the evening so that they need not break off their studies in the public school. The act is highly commendable as it involves much extra work.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Debating Society Program.

The Debating society of the High school had a good program last Friday composed of several very interesting and elevating selections. Some of these were:

Inaugural speech... Pres. Karl Volker
Recitation... "The Launching"
Mabel Hardin.

Recitation... "Statesman"
George Zimmer.

Humorous recitation... Henry Imhoff
Recitation... "A Mother's Love"
Henry Abelman.

The debate on Protection and Free Trade was won by the affirmative.

Karl Volker's Inaugural Address.

"With pleasure, with pride and with hopeful results shall I accede to the presidency of your society as it emerges from the rule of President Beutler. During the past this society has certainly been a symbol of success on account of the diligence and unity of its members in exacting their duties. It moved forward to a platform in which are based the motive of the pupils of the High school, and one well worthy of attention. I hope that in the future this society will bend itself forward to a war, whereby we may effect a conquest of essays, declamations and debates to further its progress and gain a foothold in the fertile soil of 'Literary Palatine.' I desire the support of the members of the society in the exacture of my duties and duties of several officers. I hope that after the stars of my administration has faded out, they may have shown back upon a firmament of success and an instinct in the High school, that shows this society has not degraded, but advanced in every step. In the past, at times this society has blazed forth with the indignation of the declaimed and culmination of enthusiastic debaters. Let this be our aim for the future: 'Let by-gones be by-gones and let your self-exertions so manifest themselves that they may bring forth a hundredfold.' I hope that peace, prosperity and good may join this society as it sails along the pathway of knowledge, and I further hope that when it has reached its termination then and there may it deposit fruits of victory. Such is the toil of our society, and therefore I wish to dwell but in the suburbs of your good pleasure while I remain in the presidency."

PLAIN FACTS.

It has become so now-a-days that after a man has held an executive office in Cook county for a few months that he becomes imbued with the idea that the people elected him to his job to help loot the county treasury of all it contains. Some of our county commissioners find that their office is not paying them well, so, in line with the old adage, "the more a man gets the more he wants," they have passed a bill to increase their salaries from $3,000 to $4,000 a year. They also increased other salaries and created new offices with salaries, making a total increase of $15,000 in salaries to be paid by our tax-payers. The commissioners seem to think they have been doing charitable work for the county heretofore and now they want enough to live on. If the commissioners think for a moment that the people are going to be taxed that they may raise enough to pay campaign expenses, they are mistaken. If the commissioners don't like this job at the $3,000 salary, let them just step out. We have plenty of men who have just as large a brain calibre under their hats as these fellows with itching palms, and they stand ready to take the positions. All honor to President Irwin and Commissioner Mack who voted against the "grab." Commissioner George Struckman was not present at the meeting, but we understand he is opposed to the action of the board.

WOULD WELCOME A CHANGE.

There is some talk of either forming two counties out of Cook and having Chicago in one county and the rest of Cook county to be a new county or force Palatine, Barrington, Hanover, Wheeling, Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships into Du Page or Lake counties. This would be all right for Palatine as we would clean ourselves of the enormous taxes now paid to high-salaried county officers and towards paying for numerous expenses in Chicago. This is something that is worthy of the attention of our people and if there is any chance of such a division let us do what we can to bring it to pass.

Obituary.

Clarissa B. Clay was born at Falls River, Mass., in the year 1823. She came to Illinois in 1839 and lived in Chicago for 21 years, during which time she was a member of the Clark Street church. In June, 1863, she was married to John B. Clay and moved to Palatine, where she was an active church member and ever ready to assist the sick and needy. Owing to her failing health she and her husband went to live with their son at Wilmette, Ill., in 1891. Since that time she has gradually failed, both in mind and body, and was at last called to her last home on Thursday, January 19, 1899.

The funeral services were held at Wilmette, Saturday, January 21, at 10 o'clock, Rev. Miller of Chicago preaching the funeral sermon. The remains were brought to Palatine for burial the same day.

Good Time Assured.

The Brownies will entertain you right royally next Friday evening, January 3, at the Baptist church. An excellent program has been prepared, consisting of dialogues, recitations, vocal and instrumental music and pantomime pictures. The Brownies will give you a poetical contest, consisting of 12 questions and award suitable prizes to the winners. A dainty souvenir will be presented to all as they enter as a memorial of the evening.

Last, but by no means least, is the supper which cannot fail to satisfy the daintiest appetite.

Don't forget the date (January 3) and come early in order to here all the program. The proceeds will be used to purchase singing books for the junior choir, which is becoming a prominent factor.

Executors Notice.

Public notice is hereby given that the subscriber, executrix of the last will and testament of Frederick Reese, deceased, will attend the County Court of Lake county, at a term thereof to be holden at the court house in Waukegan, in said county, on the first Monday of April next, 1899, when and where all persons having claims against said estate are notified and requested to present the same to said court for adjudication.

JOHANNA REESE,

Executrix of the last will and testament of said deceased.
Waukegan, January 21, 1899.

The Oliver Typewriter

It has taken 25 years to find out that typewriters have been built up-side down. The OLIVER is built right-side up, where the WORK IS IN SIGHT.

The OLIVER is popular because it is an up-to-date typewriter; not in the trust, and because it SHOWS EVERY WORD AS YOU WRITE IT.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

What does it do?
It causes the oil glands in the skin to become more active, making the hair soft and glossy, precisely as nature intended.

It cleanses the scalp from dandruff and thus removes one of the great causes of baldness.

It makes a better circulation in the scalp and stops the hair from coming out.

It Prevents and It Cures Baldness

Ayer's Hair Vigor will surely make hair grow on bald heads, provided only there is any life remaining in the hair bulbs.

It restores color to gray or white hair. It does not do this in a moment, as will a hair dye; but in a short time the gray color of age gradually disappears and the darker color of youth takes its place.

Would you like a copy of our book on the Hair and Scalp? It is free.

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expect from the use of the Vigor write the Doctor about it.

Address, DR. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

Fifty-One Bridges for B. & O. R. R.
Baltimore, Jan. 23.—One of the largest bridge contracts that has been awarded in many years has been let by the receivers of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. In order to place the lines west of the Ohio river in proper shape to handle the heavy freight equipment that is being used east of the river the receivers found it necessary to rebuild 51 bridges between Benwood, W. Va., and Chicago. That the structures might be rapidly pushed to completion it was decided to divide the work among three companies. The Youngstown Bridge Company of Youngstown will erect 31 bridges on the Central Ohio division between the Ohio river and Newark, Ohio; the Pencoyd Bridge Works was awarded the 11 bridges on the Lake Erie division, Newark to Sandusky, and the Edge Moor Bridge Company of Wilmington, Del., will erect the 9 bridges needed on the Chicago division. The total cost of these bridges is in the neighborhood of $300,000 and it is expected that all will be in place by September. Nearly six thousand tons of steel will be needed for the structures.

The Stuart Kings of Scotland.
To be King of Scotland for many a day implied that the monarch ascended in childhood, and came to an unnatural death while in the prime of life. Thus James I. ascended the throne when he was 12, and was murdered. James II. was 7, James III. 9, James IV. 15, and all were killed—the last two in battle. James V. was only 16 months old when he became a King, and his daughter, Mary Queen of Scots, was 8 days old when she came into that hard heritage. She was a widow at 18, she married Darnley when she was 23, and Bothwell when she was not yet 25, abdicating a few weeks after she had married for the third time. Her son, James VI., thus became King when he was 13 months old.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured
with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

MY POOR WIFE.

BY J. P. SMITH.

CHAPTER XVII.—(Continued.)

As she looked the prayer for help died on her lips, the tumult in her heart ceased, and she knew Edith's husband was at that moment as safe from molestation from her as if already ten thousand miles of water flowed between them. No impulse urged her as she had feared, to throw herself at his feet and tell him she could never leave him again, that he must give up home and children for her sake. No, she felt she could sit in his presence till morning, watch him playing with his children, chatting familiarly with his so-called wife, and never even wish to claim him as her own, because her love for him was dead. She cared no more for him for whom she had sacrificed her youth, almost her life.

She watched him passing out, followed by his family, then rose with a bewildered gesture, scarcely knowing where she was. She looked at her companion, still sleeping in her corner, from her to Mrs. Dennys, who came flouncing in for the fourth and last time, and who addressed her unceremoniously.

"Oh! Can you tell me, please, if my maid has returned? No? If she does will you tell her the box has been found, and we—" Then the maid appearing, she went on, "Oh, here you are! The box has turned up and we are ready to start at last. Are the children in the landau? I am taking Master Percy in the brougham with me. Be sure to put my dressing-case on the front seat. I think that's all. Oh, if ever I travel with such a nursery again!" she muttered, impatiently fastening on a gauze veil before the glass. "I wonder where Paul is? Does he intend driving in the brougham, or laudau? I haven't seen—"

"Mr. Dennys, madam, has gone on foot—he said it was such a fine night he would like the walk across the fields."

"Fine night! Why, it is raining hard and blowing almost a gale. Extraordinary idea!"

At last the station was clear of Mrs. Dennys, her nursery, maids and footmen; and Helen, numb with horror, looked at him whom a short half hour before she had seen in the bloom of prosperous comely prime, now changed—changed into a haggard, storm-beaten aged man, with dimmed heavy eyes, worn wistful face, and hair plentifully sprinkled with grey, robbed of youth, health, hope, peace, by that moment's glance at her.

At this piteous sight love rose in arms, quickened her fainting soul, and roused her numbed limbs to resistance. She struggled and shook him off fiercely.
"Who—who are you? How dare you—you touch me? What do you mean? Are you—you mad or—tipsy, to assault a harmless stranger like that? I—I—"

"Helen, Helen," he exclaimed, in a sighing whisper—"oh Helen!"
She stammered, stopped, swayed irresolutely, then burst out violently—
"Helen! Why do you call me that? I—I am not Helen. She—she was drowned seven years ago in that water. You know it—you know it as well as I. You must be—must be mad! Oh, go back—go back, I tell you, to your wife, your children, your home—go, let me depart."

"I have no home, no children, no wife but you."
His arms were round her, pinioning her tightly to her side, his hot breath fanning her face.
"Liar!" she panted, pushing his lips from hers. "Liar! I saw you, not an hour ago, at the station with her, your children in your arms—I heard you—"

"You saw my brother, Arthur, with his children and wife, to whom he has been married for the last ten years—not me. Helen, my wife, love of my life, how could you treat me so—how?" he asked, tears choking his voice.

"Your brother, Arthur, and his wife—not you—not you!" she murmured dizzily, and closed her eyes. "I think—I think—I knew it all along. Oh, I think I knew it wasn't you!"

He took her to a little quiet village within sound of the sea, she loved so well, and then by strict medical injunctions kept from her all subjects likely to disturb or agitate her mind. It was no difficult task; she never once alluded to the past, or showed any anxiety to learn the history of the seven years they had spent apart—a blissful lethargy came over her, and the mere fact of living, of being together again, was sufficient for her. She wanted no explanation, no mutual confession, no explanation, no mutual confession, no cursory back into the land of trouble and sorrow she had left, he assured her, behind forever. But it was different with him. Jealousy even in the supreme moment of his happiness was already gnawing at his heart and he knew he could not live with her in peace and let those seven years sleep.

One day, about a week after their reunion, she was well enough to take a little turn on the shore; the soft salt breeze blowing in her face brought there a tinge of returning health and youth that tempted him to make an effort to recall the past. She looked at him with mournful eyes, then said with peevish pathos—

"What—can you not let me be, Paul? I am alive and happy now—why drag me back to death and torment? I want to forget it all—all—"

"And so do I," he answered eagerly; "but I cannot, I cannot, my wife, if you will not speak. Men are different from women, and, if I do not know how and where you spent those seven years, they will poison my peace until the day I die. Tell me now, and I will forget them, put them from me after this hour, no matter what—what you tell me."

She sighed restlessly, then spoke.

"So be it. The first three years after I left home. I—I spent, Paul, in—in a—"

"She stopped, her eyes fell; she slipped her little wasted hand wistfully into his.

"Go on," he said hoarsely. "You—you have begun; I must hear all now. You spent in a—"

"Lunatic asylum, a pauper lunatic asylum outside London."

"My darling! Oh, my poor darling!" he cried, covering her hand with kisses, in a burst of compassion and relief.

"Our—our little son was born there," she continued softly, after a slight pause, "and after a few weeks of life went peacefully to Heaven. He—he was a nice little child, they told me, Paul, with fair hair like yours, and very dark eyes. I—I don't remember him at all; but they kept me this lock of his hair; it's pretty and soft, isn't it? Poor little mite! I never gave him a thought or a tear; he was as well without, I dare say."

"The night you left me you went straight to—the asylum?" he prompted, after a long pause, during which they had sat with trembling hands close clasped.

"No, no, to the river—to the river," she answered quickly and feverishly, a bright spot burning on her cheek.

"I was mad, you know, quite—quite mad, though I knew what I—I was trying to do, and remembered it afterwards. You got my letter? You heard about my poor mother, how I deceived you—how they all deceived you—yes?" She paused to take breath, then went on quickly as if she were repeating a lesson she loathed, but was forced to say—

"I wanted to kill myself and end it all—I saw no harm. I jumped off the first bridge above the churchyard where the water was deep, and the weight of my clothes kept me under until I was half drowned; then nature asserted itself. I could swim, you know, in the wildest seas, and, no longer able to bear the agony of suffocation even in my madness, I struck out for the bank, and then I suppose—for I remember nothing clearly after that—wandered aimlessly across the country all night and next day. I was taken up as a homeless vagrant, lodged in a poor-house, and thence sent to the asylum, where after a couple of years memory by degrees came back to me."

For La Grippe Use "5 Drops"

FOR 30 DAYS YOU CAN TRY IT FOR 25 CENTS.

Rheumatism, Sciatica and Catarrh

CURED BY
"5 DROPS" Three Years Ago.

DOCTORS PRONOUNCED HIM INCURABLE.
He is Still Well and Writes, on Oct. 10, 1898: "I feel it a duty that I owe to God and suffering humanity to announce to you and All the World What "5 Drops" Has Done for Me."

SIBERIA, PERRY CO., IND., JAN. 29, 1896.
SWANSON RHEUMATIC CURE COMPANY.—I would like to thank you for your great remedy, "5 DROPS", and tell you what it has done for me. I had Rheumatism in every joint and in the heart, and I had Catarrh of the Head for 30 years. I was so poorly that I lost the use of my legs and arms, and could not move without pain. I was so crippled that I had done but little work for seven long years, and our family physician, a good doctor, told me that my Rheumatism and Catarrh were incurable, and I believed him. But now, after using "5 Drops" only two months, I can truly say I have not felt so well for seven years. This medicine does more than is claimed for it. At this time my Catarrh is much better and I have scarcely any Rheumatism at all, and the heart weakness and pain are gone. My hearing is now good and my eyesight is much better. I have gained more than 10 pounds of flesh and can do a full day's work. It is the best medicine I ever saw to give a mother who has a young child, for it has the same effect on the child as on the mother. It wards off Croup and cures the Hives of the child and causes sweet and refreshing sleep to both young and old.

WM. M. KELLEMS.

SIX TESTIFY TO ITS TRUTH.
In a letter of Oct. 10, 1898, from Mr. Kellem, he says: "I feel it a duty that I owe to God and suffering humanity to announce to you and all the world that I am yet in the ring with untold thousands of others, to testify to the great merits of your valuable remedy called "5 DROPS." I believe I was the first sufferer in this part of the earth to learn of the existence of "5 DROPS," some three years ago. I was then badly afflicted with Rheumatism, Catarrh, etc., which my letter of Jan. 29, 1896, fully speaks of. All I can say is "5 DROPS" cured me. To make a long story short, "5 DROPS" needs no recommendation in this part of the country, as everybody knows the "5 DROPS" remedies around here. It has cured more cases of Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, and many other pains than any other medicine that has ever been sold or heard of. For the last three years I have noticed the effect "5 DROPS" has on the sick, through my own observations as well as my brother, who is a practicing physician and uses the "5 DROPS" in his practice. All ye that wish for further information, write and you are sure to get a reply without any delay. I will (as I have done in this letter) cheerfully recommend it to anyone that I may come in contact with. I myself can never forget what this remedy has done for me and many others.

Witnesses to the above: Jas. Brady, J. R. Cox, E. R. Huff, S. Taylor, Dr. S. W. Kellem, Jno. Hays, all of Siberia, Ind.

The wonderful success that has attended the introduction of "5 DROPS" is unprecedented in the history of the world. Think of it! It has CURED more than One Million and a Quarter sufferers within the last three years. This must appeal to you. One million and a quarter people cannot all be mistaken. If suffering we trust you may have sufficient confidence to send for three large bottles of "5 DROPS" for $2.50, which will surely cure you. If not, then send for a $1.00 bottle, which contains enough medicine to more than prove its wonderful curative properties. Prepaid by mail or express. This wonderful curative gives almost instant relief and is a PERMANENT CURE for Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia, Backache, Asthma, Hay Fever, Catarrh, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Nervous and Neuralgic Headaches, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, Croup, La Grippe, Malaria, Creeping Numbness, Bronchitis, and kindred diseases.

"5 DROPS" is the name and dose. LARGE BOTTLE (300 doses), $1.00, prepaid by mail or express; THREE BOTTLES, $2.50. Sold only by us and our agents. Agents Appointed in New Territory. Write today.

He—he was a nice little child, they told me, Paul, with fair hair like yours, and very dark eyes. I—I don't remember him at all; but they kept me this lock of his hair; it's pretty and soft, isn't it? Poor little mite! I never gave him a thought or a tear; he was as well without, I dare say."

"The night you left me you went straight to—the asylum?" he prompted, after a long pause, during which they had sat with trembling hands close clasped.

"No, no, to the river—to the river," she answered quickly and feverishly, a bright spot burning on her cheek.

"I was mad, you know, quite—quite mad, though I knew what I—I was trying to do, and remembered it afterwards. You got my letter? You heard about my poor mother, how I deceived you—how they all deceived you—yes?" She paused to take breath, then went on quickly as if she were repeating a lesson she loathed, but was forced to say—

"I wanted to kill myself and end it all—I saw no harm. I jumped off the first bridge above the churchyard where the water was deep, and the weight of my clothes kept me under until I was half drowned; then nature asserted itself. I could swim, you know, in the wildest seas, and, no longer able to bear the agony of suffocation even in my madness, I struck out for the bank, and then I suppose—for I remember nothing clearly after that—wandered aimlessly across the country all night and next day. I was taken up as a homeless vagrant, lodged in a poor-house, and thence sent to the asylum, where after a couple of years memory by degrees came back to me."

Plants Killed by Heat.

The ordinary furnace-heated house is a bad place in which to grow plants. The air seems to have had all the dampness removed, and that moist condition so conducive to a good growth in plants is not found. This may in a measure be overcome by means of evaporation, which, while not supplying a great amount of moisture, should do something toward relieving the bad condition of the atmosphere. Place jars or pans of water in, around or about the furnace, hang buckets of water down inside the furnace pipes, below the registers, or place them anywhere that rapid evaporation may be induced. Keep all the plants in light, airy locations, but away from drafts. Never consign a well-grown specimen palm to a corner of the room, though it may look better there. Its beautiful appearance will last a short time only in the dark, close place. It may seem strange to some, but the very best place in the house, if the temperature can there be maintained at an even point, is the kitchen, because of the constant evaporation of the water as it puffs forth from the spout of the tea as it puffs forth from the mouth of the teakettle.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

Week's Proceedings in the House and Senate.

ARMY BILL IS TAKEN UP.

Debate Begins in the House—Peace Treaty in Executive Session—Discussion of the Question of Fixing a Day for a Vote.

Friday, Jan. 20.

The proceedings in the house were enlivened by a wordy duel between Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio and Mr. Lewis, the member from Washington. During the debate on a private bill to refer to the court of claims the claim of Cramp & Sons, the Philadelphia ship-builders, for damages from the government for delays incident to the building of the warships New York, Massachusetts, Indiana and Columbia, due to the failure of the government to deliver armor plate and other materials for these ships on time, Mr. Lewis made the bill the text for a general attack on army and navy contractors, whom he charged with being traitors for taking advantage of the necessities of the government in time of stress.

Speaker Reed put an end to the speculation regarding the chairmanship of the ways and means committee by appointing Mr. Payne (rep.) of New York to the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Dingley. This carries with it the floor leadership of the majority. At the same time he filled the vacancies in the minority representation on ways and means caused by the retirement of Mr. McMillan by appointing Mr. Richardson of Tennessee to both places. Mr. Crumpacker of Indiana was appointed on census.

Saturday, Jan. 21.

Senator McMillan presented the credentials of Julius Caesar Burrows, re-elected senator from Michigan for a term of six years beginning March 4, 1899. The senate passed the Nicaragua canal bill. There was at last no opposition to a vote, and a roll call developed only six votes in opposition to final passage.

Monday, Jan. 23.

The Carter bill relating to the government of Alaska was favorably reported to the house by Mr. Broderick of the house committee on territories. It preserves the general plan of the senate bill, but makes numerous changes. An important amendment provides that "whenever practicable the secretary of the interior shall require that all children between the ages of 6 and 15 years shall attend public or private school, where the instruction shall be in English, at least three months in each year."

Tuesday, Jan. 24.

The debate on the army reorganization bill opened in the house to-day under an agreement by which the general debate is to run fifteen hours, exclusive of three night sessions; the final vote to be taken not later than 3 o'clock next Tuesday. Practically three propositions are before the house: the house bill providing for a standing army of 100,000 men, the minority substitute increasing the standing army to 30,000 men and lodging with the president discretionary power to call out 50,000 volunteers for emergency service, and a proposition to continue temporarily the regular army at its present war strength—62,000 men.

It is also understood that Mr. Marsh (rep., Ill.) will champion the Miles bill. Among the supporters of the majority bill there are some, like Mr. McClellan (dem., N. Y.), a son of Gen. George B. McClellan, who favor a provision for a general staff made up of officers of the line, so as to make the army organization responsible to a single head. The fate of the measure is still considered doubtful, though Chairman Hull and his friends profess great confidence in its passage.

The senate resumed consideration of the peace treaty in executive session to-day. The Berry resolution for the consideration of the treaty in open session was voted down and there was more or less talk of taking a vote, though on this point no definite decision was reached.

The session opened with a strong appeal by Senator Berry to open the doors and allow the world to listen to the debates on the subject.

Absorbed by a Trust.

Almost all of the natural gas supply companies furnishing gas to towns and cities in Indiana and Ohio have been absorbed by a trust. The capitalization of the concern is $60,000,000.

Fast Mail to Seattle.

The widespread public interest in the contest for the fast mail contract between Chicago and Omaha has caused one temporarily to overlook the similar achievement of the Great Northern railway in establishing quick mail communication from New York, via Chicago and St. Paul, to Seattle, and thence to the Orient. The fast Pacific mail service by way of St. Paul to the Puget Sound country is now quite as remarkable as that via Omaha to San Francisco. On January 3 the Great Northern placed in service a fast through mail and passenger train from Chicago to Seattle, on which the mail pouches never once leave the car after the transfer at St. Paul.

From New York to Seattle the time by this Northern route is just four days. East of St. Paul the mails are carried on several roads, but west of that city—on a run exceeding the eastern portion by 500 miles—the mail goes through without change across five great States on the tracks of the Great Northern. Forty-five minutes are consumed in transferring the mails in Chicago, and thirty minutes in St. Paul. After that the Northern Oriental flyer does the rest without a pause, until the Asiatic mails go on board the steamers of the Japan Mail Steamship Company. Both the importance of Seattle as an Oriental shipping point and the speed of the Great Northern transcontinental mail service make the achievement a noteworthy feature of American railway progress.

The Puget Sound cities have already become formidable rivals of San Francisco as regards the freight and passenger traffic for Japan, China and Asiatic ports. The steamer route from Seattle to the Orient seems to be more free from storms than that from San Francisco, and as a large proportion of the Oriental exports are products of the Northwest the freight traffic has naturally taken this course. The fact that the full capacity of the Japan Mail Steamship Company's boats is engaged as far ahead as next August is in itself a striking proof of the growing importance of the Oriental trade that has its outlet at Seattle.

It is expected that Sereno E. Payne, of Auburn, N. Y., will be given the place of the late Nelson Dingley as chairman of the ways and means committee. Speaker Reed has intimated to some members that a chairman will not be appointed at the present session of congress, but it is generally expected that after a reasonable time elapses, Mr. Payne's appointment will be announced. Mr. Payne is entitled to the place by reason of his standing next to Mr. Dingley on the committee, and he fills as well as any other member the important condition that the chairman shall be in the confidence of the speaker. He has been a member of congress continuously, excepting two years, since the forty-eighth congress. He has always been in Speaker Reed's confidence, and along with Messrs. Dingley, Dalzell and Boutelle, has long been considered one of the republican leaders. He will be the leader when he becomes chairman of this committee, for that is the most important condition that attaches to the position. He is now in his fifty-sixth year. He is a native of New York state, a graduate of Rochester University, and an able lawyer. As an orator he has not achieved eminence, but he is a good speaker, and it is believed by his friends that he will be an effective party leader. He has frequently been the temporary presiding officer during the deliberations of the house, and his long service on the ways and means committee has rendered him familiar with much of the work which will come before it.

Official Triviality.

A well marked peculiarity of the American people at large is that they will not waste time over puerilities that are so apt to tangle the red tape of European nations inexplicably. A normal American cannot comprehend the smallness of a code which permits the arrest and punishment of a man for idle words spoken when under the influence of liquor, and yet such is the procedure in Germany, and very much the same undignified littleness is apparent in the whole of the Lippe-Detmold squabble. In France M. Beaurepaire has thrown the bourse into a fever by charges of preposterous triviality that would be laughed down the wind here. It will be remembered that when our illustrious Coxe set out upon his crusade The Saturday Review saw the end of the great republic looming up at last. Fancy such a movement in France as was Coxe's! But we laughed the crusade out of public sight, and the great republic went on unperturbed. It is not generally known that a Jew in Russia must apply to the police when he wishes to name a child, and the authorities furnish a name. The imperial senate in St. Petersburg has just had a solemn sitting over a Jew who named his child Samuel when the police insisted that it should be Shemuel, the proper Yiddish spelling. Commenting on this, the Paris Temps says: "That such puerilities should engage the attention of the highest legislative and consultative body in the Russian empire is a striking indication of the intellectual level which even the educated Muscovite appears to have attained at the close of the nineteenth century."

The religious periodicals of the country in reviewing the past year mainly agree in recognizing an increased intellectual activity in the churches, but with one or two exceptions they point out that there has been a falling away in spiritual interest. From the various organs of the sects there is an admission that devotional activity has decreased while the humanitarian machinery of the church has been enlarged. Even the evangelical organs acknowledge a decline in religious enthusiasm. The deficiency and change are variously attributed to the secularization of church methods, the growth in luxurious habits and the preoccupation of men's minds in vast commercial undertakings or the stress of competition in industrial ranks. These remarks apply more particularly to the centers of population than to the country at large.

The Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, who has left the west to fill the pulpit of Plymouth church in Brooklyn, gave the congregation of that church a taste of his qualities recently. Among other things he said: "There are exclusive churches, the members of which say to themselves, 'We are the cream of the city.' And so they are, but they are the ice cream, and any piety which has to be preserved by going into a refrigerator isn't worth preserving." This sentiment is said to have whetted the appetites of the Plymouth brethren for Dr. Hillis' farther independence.

New York city consumed in 1898 12,882,106 cans of milk, which amount was worth $17,458,759. This milk comes to New York from all over the state, and the report shows that the production of milk has doubled in ten years and that the butter and cheese farms are gradually being turned into milk producing districts. The increase in the consumption is attributable in part to the enforcement of the milk standard law, pure milk having entered into innumerable varieties of prepared foods and drinks.

Even the majestic ruins of Baglbec, which are still counted among the wonders of the east, were not respected by the antics of a servile sultan consorting with a peacock emperor. The Turk raised a commemorative slab glorifying the occasion among the sublime relics, over which the drums and trappings of innumerable conquests swept when the world was young.

Half a century ago Cuba was one of the most important coffee raising countries. Today it is full of coffee plants growing wild. One wonders whether hereafter the island will not raise one of the finest coffees in the world again to drink with its sugar.

Attacking the Lawyers.

The extraordinary episode in which Mr. Ollie Teall appeared at a referee's examination with a horsewhip and threatened to flog the lawyer if he cross questioned him has been followed by another case in the United States district court in which one of the witnesses attacked a lawyer during recess and tried to batter his brains out against the walls of the stone corridor. He declared plainly that he intended to be avenged for the examination he had undergone. Simultaneously with this comes the dispatch from Cracow saying that Lieutenant Pakkareviev, who was recently sentenced to a term of imprisonment for neglect of duty, shot and killed Colonel Zelincki, the advocate. The murderer was arrested and made a statement in which he coolly announced that he intended to shoot all the members of the court martial who had convicted him. There is no possible defense for any of these acts of violence, but, coming back to the cases immediately under our inspection, it may not be out of place to again make the remark, that has been made many hundreds of times before, that the lawyers themselves may now and then use their brief authority and court immunity to goad witnesses beyond all human restraint, so that men not under the best of discipline may in desperation resolve to take, not the law, but the lawyers into their own hands.

Considerable discussion has been provoked this winter by the character of the theatrical exhibitions. No less than four plays of an expensive character have been produced at what are called high grade theaters which have for their main purpose the exhibition of the worst side of theatrical life itself. The latest of these plays, which is also the most elaborate, deals with the actress's life behind the scenes of a variety theater, disclosing her amours, her artifices, her vulgarities and her seminudity. The complaint of that portion of the press which holds the theater to some sort of account of itself is that these disclosures are not half as interesting to the general public as the playwright imagines, and that there is danger of getting too much of it. That the adventures and manners of a dissolute woman who makes her living by exposure and intrigue should be of intense interest to a large class of earnest people is rather absurd, but the device catches the thoughtless and curious crowd, and the pecuniary success of the venture is held to be by shallow people a sufficient evidence of its propriety.

The reports sent to this country from Madrid about Aguinado must be taken with some allowance. That he is ambitious and even unscrupulous in his political aims has not yet been disproved. But the Spanish accounts of his treatment of Spanish prisoners wear a suspicious air of exaggeration. The report that he drove the monks through the streets with rings through their noses, to which cords were attached, and employed numbers of others as beasts of burden until they died of ill treatment is hardly credible. Such documentary evidence as has come to us of this man's character does not show him to be a ferocious savage.

Among the recent kleptomaniacs brought to light in the department stores by the industrious female detectives was a woman accused of purloining various articles who on examination was found to be worth $175,000 in her own right and not stingy at that. Her lawyer immediately put in a plea of temporary aberration, but the lively female detective said that there were plenty of women who were quite able to buy all they wanted, but saw a great deal more fun in stealing it.

Senator Hoar's resolution, introduced in the senate on the 14th, may be said to sound the keynote of the antiexpansionists. It declares that the people of the Philippines of right ought to be free and independent; that they are absolved from political connection with Spain, and that they have full power to establish a government for themselves, with which the United States does not propose to interfere. This may be called the bugle note from one side of the question.

Somebody has at last seen Aguinado at short range and describes him as a small, ordinary, smooth shaven, small-pox marked man with pompadour hair. He is not impressive or authoritative, and his face utterly lacks decision of character. The same writer says that the room in which he has his headquarters is guarded by two gigantic Filipinos with enormous battle axes, who look like the traditional headmen of the dark ages.

The German officer, Count Stolberg-Wernigerode, who stabbed his sergeant to death, has been cashiered and condemned to 40 months' imprisonment. Following another recent example, that probably means only half the term in confinement and restoration to rank. That he murdered a soldier instead of a civilian, though, may be regarded as some aggravation of the crime.

It is said that more than $1,000,000 changed hands during the recent New York election in the form of private bets. There is no feature of political campaign so debasing in America as this tendency to transform a great contest of men and principles into a betting ring.

There is no place where a soul can be so solitary as in a great city. It sometimes surpasses the loneliness of Sahara and the coldness of the north pole.

LAKE ZURICH.

E. S. Bruce is in Joliet.

How about those gold nuggets, Frank?

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Glasscoe, a daughter.

J. W. Torrence was in Waukegan last Saturday.

M. W. Hughes of Wauconda was in town Saturday.

It now looks as if we are going to have some cold weather.

A number of the golf players were out last Sunday, as usual.

George Spinner of Chicago was among the Sunday callers.

We hear that Henry Lemke is buying stock for Frank Roney.

Henry Seip and H. Branding were among the Chicago visitors this week.

School Superintendent Marvin was in our village on Thursday of last week.

Miss Evelyn Davlin of Wauconda was a pleasant caller Thursday at the school.

John Froelich, who lives two miles south of town, is quite sick at this writing.

C. H. Patten, the Palatine banker, was a pleasant caller in our village on Thursday.

H. C. Paddock, editor of the Palatine Register, was among the Saturday visitors.

A. G. Stevens of Waukegan passed through town on his way to Wauconda last Saturday.

A large amount of live stock has been shipped from this point during the past two weeks.

Joe Collins and Pat Callahan, from up the country, sawed wood for Fred Holland last Friday.

G. H. Stewart, general agent for the Osborne Farm Implement company, of Auburn, N. Y., was in town Thursday.

Charles H. Seip and family were entertained at the home of Mr. Seip's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Seip, on last Sunday.

Some of those who assisted in harvesting ice are husking corn and otherwise assisting the farmers in this vicinity.

Quite a number of our young people took in the masquerade ball at Wauconda last Friday night and report a very enjoyable time.

F. C. Kuckuck has taken the agency for the Milwaukee Harvesting Co., which firm manufactures a first-class harvester and mower.

One of our neighbors, who is considered reliable, says he saw a robin one day this week, and thinks the backbone of the winter is broken.

Bruce Ice company has a conditional order for 500 car loads of ice, but owing to the condition of the ice and scarcity of cars nothing has been done this week.

The school board has decided to have nine months school this year. The majority of the people in the district, we understand, are in favor of having the school year extend to ten months.

The teacher and pupils of the Bennett school, two miles north-east of this village, will give a school entertainment and basket social Friday evening, February 3, to which all are cordially invited to attend. Ladies are requested to bring lunch for two, while the gentlemen are requested to bring the price.

PLUM GROVE.

John Meyer is repairing his barn.

Mr. Vogt is quite sick with rheumatism.

Alvina Haemker will spend Sunday at home.

Mr. Nordmeyer is kept busy at his mill now.

Miss Martha Glade is learning dress-making at Palatine.

The wedding bells will soon ring for a Plum Grove couple.

Mr. and Mrs. William Thies visited Elgin friends Monday.

Oh my! but didn't those scholars have fun coasting on the hill near the old mill.

Miss Amanda Rennack spent a week in Chicago visiting her sister.

Fred Porep took a load of poultry and oats to Chicago Wednesday.

Mr. Drumskuski made a trip to Chicago Wednesday night with a load of oats.

Martin Meyer had the misfortune to be severely injured by a cow kicking him.

Mr. Rascher and family attended the wedding ceremonies at Hildebrandt's.

Barney Meyer will soon leave us for his new home near Elgin. We are sorry to have him go.

If other schools would follow us let them come and learn how we can entertain at coasting and skating.

Willie Vogt had the misfortune to come in contact with some poison ivy and was laid up for a day or so.

Mr. Allard and father-in-law visited Fred Rascher last Saturday and took home with them one of his blooded chanticleers.

Dr. Butcher's Letter.

STEAMSHIP LINDULA, Dec. 17, 1898.

Editor Palatine Review: I wrote my last letter as we were approaching Nagasaki. We landed at Nagasaki Sunday, November 27, and went at once to our Japanese church where the native pastor preached a missionary sermon to about 200 in a neat little chapel. Three missionaries of the general society were present and a number of the W. F. M. S. Our party went to dinner with the latter to the large girls' school, where 165 are enrolled, two-thirds being boarders. Among them being the daughter of Prince Park, the banished reform minister of Korea. This was our first meal in a private house since November 1.

The harbor of Nagasaki is very beautiful and it was here that the Dutch merchants maintained their factory for 200 years, having a monopoly on the trade of Japan, but never going outside their own walls. Going out of the harbor we saw the island with a precipitous rock where the Jesuit tradition says 30,000 native christians were hurled down because they refused to trample on the crucifix. The island is a small one and travelers and it hard to believe the story, though there is no doubt that the Jesuits got a good many converts in Japan, as they have done everywhere else, interfered in politics until the government was moved to exterminate them as a measure of self-protection. Roman Catholic institutions seem to be much more prominent in the parts of China and Japan than in India, but the work in all countries seem to be the same—to build up institutions, rather than to convert the people to Christ. They have large boarding schools and in China orphanages, where they take in or buy orphans whom they train to their faith.

Tuesday, November 29, we reached Wosung and from there went up the river in a launch an hour and a half, to Shanghai. All young Chinamen from the Mission Press of the American Presbyterianists escorted us around the wall and through the native city of Shanghai. It's a city of 400,000 and very dirty, but there was not that evidence of extreme poverty to which we were accustomed in India. The streets are very narrow, seven feet being the standard width in Chinese cities, though I am told that Peking has some very wide streets. Outside the walled city are the foreign settlements—in the concessions—the French nearest the native city, and containing a large population, and the American and English settlements, which are under one municipal government, is one of the finest cities to be found anywhere—fine streets and magnificent buildings. Shanghai is now undergoing a boom, rich Chinamen from the interior are moving into the foreign concessions, so as to be free from official oppression. They are buying property and expansion is the result. We visited the large American Presbyterian Press, the headquarters of the China inland mission and the Anglo-Chinese schools of the M. E. church. The last named society has a very valuable plant in the heart of Shanghai.

Hong Kong will be held in everlasting remembrance. We reached there December 2 and had to leave the "Empress of Japan." We found all hotels full and no room for the missions. The conquest of Manila has thrown Hong Kong into confusion. The cost of living has increased enormously, while the boat houses are crowded. It is a beautiful spot from which the British command the coast of Southern China. We secured a fine room in a poorly managed hotel for which we paid a large price, and as the French mail left the next day we secured passage on her as far as Singapore. The Oceanic is a fine boat and board excellent. We went second-class, but were really better off than the first-class passengers, as our cabins were amidships, while they were over the screw, and the whole of the deck was common to all. We had as fellow-passengers 16 Spanish priests, nearly all in plain clothes, being from Manila. My roommate was a young Frenchman, who had been 18 months in Manila. He said the Americans would have their hands full in keeping the Philippines from taking vengeance on the Spaniards. We stopped a day and night at Saigon, the French capital of Cochinchina, a genuine French town, full of cafes and hotels, the people seeming to make a study of amusement. By this time we had begun to realize that we were in the tropics, still there was generally a cool breeze blowing. December 7 we reached Singapore, the great British port of South-east Asia. We stopped there with our mission brethren from Friday to Tuesday and had a most delightful restful time. Tuesday, the 13th, we left Singapore in the Lindula, a trim little Scotch boat of 2,180 tons, and expect to stay by her until we reach Calcutta, thus closing our long sea voyage—probably on December 24.

We sailed slowly up the straits and reached Penang on the morning of the second day, our missionary friends there made it very pleasant for us. The work in Malaya is rather new, but the success of the Anglo-Chinese schools, both in Singapore and Penang has been phenomenal. Since leaving Penang we have put on full steam, and as we are over the stern we get the full benefit of the shaking. Tomorrow we expect to reach Rangoon, where we will probably stay until next Friday and then go on by this same ship to Calcutta, which we ought to reach on the following Monday. We are all well, though Mrs. Butcher suffers from sea-sickness when the ship shakes.

J. C. BUTCHER.

LaGrippe Successfully Treated.

"I have just recovered from the second attack of la grippe this year," says Mr. Jas. A. Jones, publisher of the Leader, Mexia, Texas. "In the latter case I used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and I think with considerable success, only being in bed a little over two days against ten days for the former attack. The second attack I am satisfied would have been equally as bad as the first but for the use of this remedy, as I had to go to bed in about six hours after being 'struck' with it, while in the first case I was able to attend to business about two days before getting 'down.'" For sale by A. S. Olms, Palatine; A. L. Waller, Barrington.

The Deadly Grip

Is again abroad in the land. The air you breathe may be full of its fatal germs! Don't neglect the "grip" or you will open the door to pneumonia and consumption and invite death. Its sure signs are chills with fever, headache, dull heavy pains, mucous discharges from the nose, sore throat, and never-let-go cough. Don't waste precious time treating this cough with troches, tablets or poor cheap syrups. Cure it at once with Dr. King's New Discovery, the infallible remedy for bronchial troubles. It kills the disease germs, heals the lungs and prevents the dreaded after effects from the malady. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Money back if not cured. A trial bottle free at H. T. Abbott's drug store.

SETS UP A REPUBLIC.

Existence of Insurgent Government Proclaimed.

TROUBLE ON HIS HANDS.

Northern Provinces May Rise in Revolt Against the Filipino Leader and Self-Constituted Dictator—Natives Ready for Revolt.

The government at Washington has been notified that Aguinaldo has taken a decisive step and publicly proclaimed the republic of the Philippines.

The ceremony took place at Malolos, and was witnessed by the members of his cabinet.

This news comes from Manila, where the tidings of Aguinaldo's proceeding were received with public demonstrations of a mild nature.

All is not plain sailing for the insurgents, as it is said the rival authorities at Cebu are fighting. The trouble has not yet reached an acute state, but the safety of the town and surrounding country is in danger.

The northern provinces have recently given indications that they are not in accord with Aguinaldo, and should this rash step on his part lead to hostilities with the Americans he may have a revolution as well as a war of conquest on his hands.

Another serious feature, according to the dispatches, is that the interior of Luzon is in a ferment. Native officers have been murdered and no effort made to punish the criminals.

MONSTER PAULIST SERVICES.

They Will Be Conducted by the Leading Prelates of America.

New York, Jan. 24.—The greatest celebration the Catholic church has had in years will be that conducted tomorrow by Archbishop Martinelli, Archbishop Corrigan, Bishop Farley, and others as notable. The ceremony is in charge of the Paulist Fathers of America, who will, with great pomp, observe the feast of the conversion of St. Paul, the patron saint.

MARTINELLI.

The celebration this year partakes of a national character, for celebrities from all over the country have been invited, and will meet with the papal delegate, Martinelli. A choir of over 500 voices has been secured for the services. Mgr. Martinelli is an Augustinian, having once been prior-general of that order.

Prison Congress Finish Their Work.

In the prison congress at New Orleans, La., papers were read by Dr. Blake of Alabama; Mrs. Ellen Johnson, superintendent of prisons for women in Massachusetts; Mrs. Adine Mitchell of California, Miss Thom of Alabama, Warden E. G. Coffin of the Ohio penitentiary, and Superintendent Caldwell of the house of refuge at Louisville, Hartford, Conn., was selected as the next place of meeting. The congress closed with to-night's meeting.

Mayor Expelled from Church.

Mayor P. C. Hesser, of Fort Scott, Kan., has been expelled from Grace Methodist Episcopal Church by public announcement because of his failure to make an effort to close the saloons of the city. His wife thereupon withdrew. Hesser was elected as a prohibitionist and his wife was president of the local W. C. T. U. He has been a regular attendant of the church services.

To Locate Confederate Graves.

An investigation is in progress by the war department to locate the graves of the confederates, anticipating some legislation along the lines suggested by the president.

Promotion for Col. Griffin.

Washington, Jan. 24.—The president today nominated Colonel Eugene Griffin, First United States Volunteer Engineers, to be brigadier general at Durango, Col.

Reach an Agreement.

Mine owners and miners of the organized competitive coal field reached a final agreement at Pittsburg and the interstate joint convention came to an end.

A Remedy for the Grippe.

A remedy recommended for patients afflicted with the grippe is Kemp's Balsam, which is especially adapted to diseases of the throat and lungs. Do not wait for the first symptoms of the disease, but get a bottle today and keep it on hand for use the moment it is needed. If neglected the grippe has a tendency to bring on pneumonia. The Balsam prevents this by keeping the cough loose. All druggists sell the Balsam.

FARM AND GARDEN.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRICULTURISTS.

Some Up-to-Date Hints About Cultivation of the Soil and Yields Thereof—Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

Sawdust as an Absorbent.

I have about 500 bushels of clear hardwood ashes that we make here at the factory in a year, and any amount of hardwood sawdust of three different grades, writes E. L. Tracy in Practical Farmer. One grade is coarse, the largest pieces being about the size of a small pea, and from that down to the size of a turnip seed. This has a great deal of glue in it, probably about 3 per cent in weight. The next grade is about like fine corn meal, and the other grade is as fine as the finest flour. Have been using all of these for two years past as bedding under horses and cattle, using it liberally, which means a barrelful to bed four horses two nights, and about the same quantity under five cows for two nights. I have used this manure both to top dress and on crops, land being a deep loam with very little clay mixed in. Have never used more than ten loads to the acre, and put on land that I supposed to be poor, with about twenty-five bushels of ashes sowed on. My grain grows so stout as to half lodge down. On one piece that I considered very poor, I put ten loads of this manure to the acre, and twenty-five bushels of ashes, as is my custom. I took off a nice crop of oats in 1896, two heavy crops of clover last year, and will take off two good crops this year. I mean by heavy crops two tons to the acre, and the first crop this year was two tons and second one and one-half tons. Did the ashes make the crops or the manure? I consider the manure worth twice as much as it would be if the sawdust had not been used. It is the best absorbent (the kind I have) of liquid manure that can be used in my opinion, and I further believe the sawdust rots in one year and makes humus to benefit the soil. I put one load of very fine dust direct from the mill on about four square rods of corn land and harrowed in. Result, corn about half a crop. Put a load of same kind on same size piece, and harrowed and seeded to grass in the spring of 1897. Got only a half crop of hay last August. This year on same piece with nothing more put on, the clover was lodged, and where the poor corn was last year the barley was heavy. It had rotted and made the land fertile. Something has brought my land up very quickly, as my new stocked this year was very heavy and mostly all lodged, and land top-dressed was also heavy hay. I attribute it partly to the ashes and to the strong manure made so by the use of the sawdust holding the liquid. It might not be so good on sandy land but I shall continue its use on my farm. I have never put more than ten loads of manure to the acre. I sow nothing now but clover, and I'm sure clover likes sawdust as well as I do.

Marl as Manure.

A bulletin of the Virginia Experiment Station says: Marl is the name which is applied to a variety of earthy deposits of varying composition containing a considerable per cent of carbonate of lime. It forms a very valuable addition to our list of natural fertilizers. While its fertilizing value is increased very largely by the percentage of phosphate of lime and of potash, its chief constituent is carbonate of lime, which gives to it its main value. When applied to the soil lime affects it in different ways and there are several points to be considered in its use. It may be regarded somewhat as a direct plant food, as well as a chemical agent acting upon the organic matter of the soil and various mineral constituents of which the soil is composed. Another important property is the mechanical action which it exerts upon the soil. If applied to a light sandy soil it makes it less porous and less inclined to part with its moisture, while on the other hand, when applied to a wet, clayey soil it tends to make it more porous and more easily worked. Notwithstanding the fact that large quantities of lime are consumed by plants it is not usually regarded as a fertilizer to be added to the soil, for the reason that the soil is usually abundantly supplied with it. It, however, has the power of making available the compounds of potash and soda from their insoluble combinations. The former of these substances is certainly of great importance in the growth of plants. Lime also decomposes organic matter in the soil and renders it available for plant food. Organic acids, such as humic, etc., tend to be formed in lands which are very rich in vegetable matter and these acids in concentrated form are poisonous to the growth of plants. The application of lime to such a soil not only corrects this acidity but liberates a large amount of plant food. By lime is usually meant the burnt limestone. Limestone and marl contain calcium carbonate, which is easily changed by burning to quick lime or calcium oxide by the loss of carbon dioxide gas. It is, however, not always best to do this for agricultural purposes as much labor and expense are involved in the process.

American Fruit in Germany.

In a report published in the December issue of Consular Reports, Consul General Frank H. Mason, stationed at Frankfurt, says:

"It is probable with all concessions that are likely to be made under the present system German trade in fresh fruits from a source so remote as the United States will continue to be somewhat risky and uncertain. Fruit dealers here, while freely conceding the superior tenderness, flavor and cheapness of American apples, say that the profits of handling them are meagre and uncertain, always liable to be swallowed up by losses incident to rotting and deterioration of the fruit during the long voyage. This uncertainty must continue until American shippers will take the trouble to pack and prepare apples specially for export, as is done in the Tyrol and France, in ventilated barrels lined with paper and wood wool, in which the apples, first carefully selected and wiped dry, are laid by hand to avoid danger of contusion. Hitherto the apples imported from our country have been those which have been barreled for the home trade, and while some shipments have been received in good condition, others have required opening and picking over, with a loss of twenty to forty per cent before the remaining sound ones could be offered for sale.

"In view of all the essential conditions, it would seem probable that the future development of the fruit trade between the United States and Germany will be more in the direction of dried and otherwise prepared than of fresh fruits. Just as the restriction of imports of live cattle and swine from neighboring countries has resulted in an increased demand in Germany for cured meats, in the production of which our country is pre-eminent, so the difficulties, natural and artificial, which obstruct and complicate the importation of fresh fruits have increased the popularity and use of American evaporated and otherwise preserved apples, apricots, pears, peaches and prunes, which have now acquired a hold upon popular appreciation here which nothing can dislodge. Of the 141,372 metric tons of fresh fruits which were imported to Germany in 1897 the United States supplied only 10,336 tons, a little more than 7 per cent; while of the 49,122 tons of dried and preserved fruits, imported during the same period, our country supplied 17,850 tons, or more than 36 per cent of the whole. This does not take into account the imports of canned fruits, which, although burdened with an excessive import duty, and therefore costly and comparatively little known, have a definite and growing importance."

United States Fruit in Manitoba.

Mr. W. H. H. Graham, United States Consul at Winnipeg, states that the fruit growers of the United States (chiefly those of the Pacific slope) supply at least four-fifths of the green fruit consumed in Manitoba and the Northwest territory of Canada; but there is danger that this practical monopoly of the market may not be maintained in future. Owing to the excellence of their product and the great care they have exercised in its selection and packing for shipment, our fruit farmers have been able heretofore to defy the competition of Canadian producers, notwithstanding the fact that the latter have much the advantage in shorter lines of transportation. Now Canadians seem to be waking up to the situation and are bringing urgent pressure to bear upon the Dominion and provincial boards of agriculture to induce them to assist in providing better facilities for preserving, packing and transporting Canadian fruits. These bodies have heretofore bent all their energies toward securing the English and other European markets, but are now making a vigorous effort to capture the home trade. Encouragement is being given to the erection of cold storage plants and packing houses, and transportation lines are being worked. The United States system of packing fruits has been adopted, and, altogether, a much stronger bid will be made for these markets than heretofore. Still greater care in selecting, packing and shipping will be necessary on the part of American fruit growers if they would continue to hold their supremacy in this market.

Farm Regions of Japan.—The soil, largely eroded from the hills and mountains of volcanic origin, is remarkably rich. The rainfall is always plentiful and irrigation is only resorted to in the mountainous districts where rice is grown in the small, level areas. Horses are used, if used at all, for packing purposes, and are not plentiful. They are a hardy little breed, quite docile, but as a rule not well treated. No stock is grazed except in the northern portion of the empire. Sheep have been tried but proved a failure. Silk and cotton goods are mostly used. No fences are used except slight bamboo affairs about the house, more for ornament than use.—Indiana Farmer.

ILLINOIS LEGISLATURE.

Condensed Report of Week's Proceedings in Both Houses.

RIGID ANTI-TRUST BILL.

Sen. or Baker Has a New Measure—Stringent Provisions to Prevent Combinations in Trusts—Bill in the House.

Thursday, Jan. 19.

Two sessions were held by the house. At the afternoon session the following bills were introduced and referred to the proper committees: Mr. Lyon, providing that insurance companies shall pay full value of the policy in case of a total loss; Mr. McGorty, to amend the disarmament clause of the military code so as to provide that independent civil organizations may drill and carry arms.

In the senate Senator Granger offered a resolution of condolence on the death of ex-Senator George Kirk of Waukegan, who died at his home Nov. 19, 1898. Senator Kirk was a member of the Thirty-second and Thirty-third general assemblies. The resolution was adopted. The following bills introduced were as follows: Senator Gardner, revising the mining law; this is the measure which has been agreed upon by the miners and operators; another providing for the incorporation of free employment agencies; Senator Funderburk, providing for county uniformity of text books.

Friday, Jan. 20.

The house was in session but a few minutes Friday, less than a quorum being present. Aside from the adoption of resolutions relating to the usual supplies for members, no business was transacted. An adjournment was taken until 5 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The house elections committee had a meeting and set the contest of Stapleton vs. Boyd for 2 o'clock on Thursday of next week.

The senate concurred in the house joint resolution thanking Miss Helen Gould for her untiring devotion to the American soldiers in the war with Spain and then adjourned until Monday.

Monday, Jan. 23.

The only action taken in the legislature was the passage by the house of a resolution introduced by Representative Varley condoling with the family of the late William K. Sullivan, who was a member of the twenty-seventh general assembly.

Tuesday, Jan. 24.

Senator Baxter will introduce in the senate the strongest and most stringent anti-trust law ever presented in the Illinois legislature. Under its provisions trusts and similar combinations will be impossible in this state. It is understood that the bill has the approval of the Republican leaders in the general assembly, and that it will be treated during its course through the legislative processes as a party measure. The bill is designed to take the place of the present anti-trust law, which it repeals. At the same time many sections of the existing statute are retained in the new bill.

The bill introduced in the house by Representative William Barclay provides that foreign corporations doing business in this state shall be assessed on their company stock by the state board of equalization in the same manner as domestic corporations. The new section reads: "Section 108 A—The state board of equalization shall assess the proportion of the capital stock represented by property or business transacted in this state by all companies or corporations or associations incorporated under the laws of other states, territories, or foreign countries doing business in this state, in the same manner as hereinbefore provided for the assessment of companies, corporations, or associations incorporated under the laws of the state."

Encouraging Him.

"Hurry up, there," yelled the conductor to a man who had chased the car about a quarter of a mile. "We can't wait all day for you." "Is this a Woodward avenue car?" asked the tall, thin man, who was panting like a tugboat after his long run. "Yes," was the curt reply. "That's right," said the thin man, "always speak the truth, and your neighbors will respect you." And so saying he hurried around the corner, while the conductor came down from the car to look for a brick

Sterilized Milk Essential.

Milk from a healthy cow is, in the first instance, absolutely free from bacteria. It becomes contaminated in the mere process of milking, and so admirably adapted is milk to bacterial growth that in a short time it is swarming with minute forms of life. Let us consider whence these are derived. Of first importance are the vessels in use. A momentary application of boiling water or steam is insufficient to destroy germ life, says the Contemporary Review, to be effectual it is necessary to expose the vessels to the influence of high heat for several minutes; at least, and steam is by far the best agent that can be used. Vessels are often used that are in an improper condition for handling milk; a rusty milk can often spoils more milk than sufficient to buy a new can. Wooden pails ought not to be tolerated. Vessels should be of pressed tin, the joints well flushed with solder, so as to be easily cleaned.

An interesting experiment was made with two cans in summer; one was thoroughly well cleaned in the ordinary way, the other was sterilized by steam for thirty minutes; in the first, the milk went sour in twenty-three hours, in the second in twenty-eight and a half hours; and the first can was found, on examination, to contain twenty-six times as many bacteria as the second. The same experiment repeated in winter showed that the sterilized can kept the milk sweet for nine hours longer than did the other. Milk that has been deprived of most of its germs by Pasteurization will remain sweet in cans thoroughly sterilized by steam for about twice as long as if put into cans cleaned in the ordinary way. Where milk is sent to a factory, it sometimes happens that the milk cans are returned to the farm containing separated milk, whey, or butter-milk. It need hardly be said that this practice is utterly disastrous as well to the factory as to the farmer.

The importance of rejecting the first drops from the udder, called the "fore-milk," is not always recognized. In a sample of the fore-milk that was examined, it was found to contain eight times as many bacteria as the following milk. The actual loss occasioned by rejecting the fore-milk is slight, because the first pint of milk contains a very low percentage of butter-fat. The coat of the cow offers exceptional facilities for the harboring of dust and dirt; it is, therefore, extremely rich in various forms of bacterial life that stick to the flanks and underparts of the animals when they lie down. What is true of the animal is likewise true concerning the person of the milker. Clothed in dust-laden garments that he has in daily use, he himself is covered with innumerable bacteria in a dried condition. A large amount of this filth can be restrained or cleaned off. Bacteria can be dislodged from a dry surface with ease, while from a moistened surface, however rich in germs, there is little chance of their diffusion. Therefore, the flanks and under-part of the animal, after carding and cleaning, should be thoroughly moistened with water and then dry-sponged, taking care there shall be no drip; so the myriads of germs that remain may be effectually kept out of the milk.

Turkey Gospel.

The first clutch of eggs laid by a turkey are seldom fertile, and if by chance a few are they invariably hatch out weakly poults and crippled ones, no matter whether the eggs were placed under a hen or in an incubator, says Poultry Journal. The second clutch laid do quite often hatch very well, but the poults are not so strong as the ones hatched from eggs laid by a two-year-old hen. If the young turkey hens can have their entire liberty and can forage at will there will be quite a difference in the vitality of the poults. Of a naturally roaming disposition they are better contented, do better, in every way, are not so liable to disease and the results are in every way more satisfactory if you allow them to follow this instinct of roving at will in search of a living. If the hen should select a nest in some out-of-the-way place, don't meddle, just let her alone, and do not allow yourself to be unnecessarily nervous over it. Turkeys can stand a great deal of "letting alone," and they hatch more poults and stronger ones by such treatment. I shouldn't advise anyone to move a brood turkey unless it was an old one and accustomed to being handled by its owner. The second cause is lice; they will kill more poults and do it quicker than any other one thing.

Fig Fertilization.

The Department of Agriculture has made a preliminary attempt to introduce from southern Europe into California an insect which is responsible for the fertilization of the Smyrna figs of commerce. The entomologist visited California in the spring of 1898 and found that conditions were ripe for such an attempted introduction, and an agent in Europe will, during the coming year, endeavor to take the necessary steps to bring about this introduction, which, it is hoped, will result in the production by California of a fig equal to the Smyrna fig.

You can't mend your manners with a needle.

LATEST ILLINOIS NEWS.

Beat Their False Prophet.

Peoria, Ill.—Meyer Goodman, the false prophet of the local ghetto, who made so much trouble a few weeks ago by prophesying the death of several members of the Hebrew Burying Society, to which he belongs, is in trouble. Monday night Goodman's prophetic tendency got the better of him, and as a result he was beaten within an inch of his life and driven out of town. Goodman went to see Moses Faenger, who is ill. When he entered the room he found sitting with the sick man Cinosky and Wineman, two of the five whose deaths he had predicted for this year. The old instinct proved too much for him, and, beating his breast, he cried:

"Prepare ye to die. I come to tell ye that ye shall die."

This was unpleasant for the sick man, and disconcerting to Cinosky and Wineman, who were just getting their nerves back in good condition. So they rose up and cast him out. Goodman tarried in the front yard, and consulted the stars, returning presently with an even more lugubrious wall of impending doom. This proved too much for Wineman, who rose up and smote the prophet of evil. Cinoski also buffeted him sore, and the other Hebrews, who had been attracted by the report that Goodman had broken out again, saw their chance to get rid of an unpleasant associate, and thumped Goodman until he was glad to promise to leave town at once. He was as good as his word, for early Tuesday he got out of town, leaving the local Israel to enjoy life with no greswome predictions of speedy death to alarm it.

Labor Troubles at Elgin.

The striking employees of the Selz-Schwab shoe factory at Elgin held a consultation with President Tobin of the Shoe Workers' Association of Chicago to arrive at some settlement of the troubles. Mr. Tobin will hold a conference with Mr. Selz and if no agreement can be reached a sympathetic strike of the employees of the Selz-Schwab Chicago factories and a boycott of their product may be ordered. The matter will be decided at a meeting in Chicago. The policy of the union is to settle the dispute this week. President Tobin offered to send the union men back to work if the company would agree not to discharge any more without first holding a conference. This was refused. The employees of the watch case factory and the clerks of this city are now organizing unions.

Considering the Tanner True Bill.

Carlinville, Ill.—The Macoupin county circuit court opened Monday. The indictments against Manager F. W. Lukens of the Chicago-Virden Coal Company and the Thiel guards, for manslaughter, will not be called till the fourth week. The state's attorney refuses to say what disposition will be made of the indictments against Governor Tanner. The following named miners who participated in the Virden riots pleaded guilty to minor charges and escaped with small fines: Thomas Davis, carrying concealed weapons; John Juric, assault and battery; Wright Collins, James Cooley and Virgil Dunrigan, rioting.

Taking a Federal Office.

Springfield, Ill.—William Malloy, who for the past two years has been the assistant secretary of the railroad and warehouse commission, will tender his resignation to Governor Tanner tomorrow. Mr. Malloy has accepted a new position as chief clerk to the United States district attorney, located at Chicago. Previous to receiving the appointment as assistant secretary of the railroad and warehouse commission Mr. Malloy was the official stenographer of the city council of Chicago. Mrs. Malloy, his mother, who has been making her home in this city with her son for some time, will return to Chicago with him to reside.

Robbed the Postoffice.

Charleston, Ill.—The postoffice in this city was entered last night, and the contents of letters in the boxes were stolen. Over $1,000 in drafts and checks was secured, mostly from the mail of the banks. As these were nearly all payable to order they will be useless to the robbers. Entrance was made through a skylight. The apartments of C. R. Reed, a wealthy bachelor, were entered last evening while he was at church and over $1,000 in cash and checks secured. Mr. Reed sent for bloodhounds this afternoon to see if he could trace the thieves.

Kills Himself at His Desk.

Carmi, Ill.—John R. Kuykendall, county clerk of White county, and one of the best known Democratic officials in southern Illinois, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head while sitting at his desk in the county clerk's office at Carmi, Ill. With the exception of four years, when he served as deputy, he had been county clerk since 1880, and he had just entered upon another term of four years.

Tomorrow at the M. E. church all services will be held as usual. In the evening at 7 o'clock Rev. T. E. Ream will preach on the topic: "Remembering or forgetting God," from the text found in Job 8:13, "So are the paths of all that forget God." A special song service will be held in connection with services. All are cordially invited.

A bill brought before the state legislature recently asks that a state board be provided, the members of which shall examine all men and youths who desire to become full-fledged barbers in their proficiency and if found up to the top-notch, issue them a license to practice the tonsorial art. The bill has now been sent to the committee on licenses. It seeks to relieve people who patronize barber shops from part of the danger of getting a cut on the cheek from a razor in the hands of an inexperienced shaver.

Celebrated Her Eighth Birthday.

Miss Violet McIntosh entertained fifteen of her small friends on last Saturday from 3 to 5:30 o'clock, the occasion being the celebration of her eighth birthday. The children enjoyed themselves at various games until 4:30 when a luncheon was served at small tables.

WAUCONDA.

J. N. Freund transacted business at Waukegan last Friday.

Ansel Stevens of Waukegan called on friends in our village Sunday.

A. R. Johnson is out from the city spending a few days at the Lakeside.

Merritt McCracken came out from the city Friday to attend the dance at the Oakland.

L. M. Hill of Chicago was called home Saturday by the serious illness of his mother.

J. A. North of Lake Zurich spent the first of the week in our village with his parents.

Ernest Williams and Ed Johnson of Chicago are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Fitch.

L. E. Golding transacted business in the city for the firm of Golding Bros. last Wednesday.

Martin Murray returned to the city Sunday, after spending a few days with friends and relatives here.

Messrs. Sott, Ernst, Donlea, Cannon, Hutchinson, Otis and Meyer of Barrington attended the masquerade at the Oakland last Friday evening.

Messrs. F. L. Carr, K. V. Werden, E. Meyer, C. Hapke, sr., F. Thomas, W. Lamphere, E. W. Brooks, A. C. Stoxen, H. Werden and Cal Lincoln went to Dunham's stock farm at Wayne, Ind., to look after the purchasing of a $1,600 coach horse.

Perle Pratt came home from the city Saturday on the verge of an attack of pneumonia. He had been troubled with a cold for nearly a week when it took on a serious nature. His attending physician advised him to start for home at once. It may take three or four weeks before he will be about again, but we hope for his speedy recovery.

Three lawsuits inside of a week is a record hard to beat for a village of our size. They were all before Justice Fitch, who fills his position to perfection. In each case the decision was given in favor of the plaintiff.

The case of C. E. Mead vs. F. Roney Monday was the most interesting we have heard yet, each gentleman acting as his own counsel. The case grew out of the result of the horse race a week ago, in which Mead says Roney promised to pay him $5 if he won the race, while Roney claims no agreement was made. A judgment was rendered in favor of Mead.

Gone to Her Reward.

Miss Addie Belle Church, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Church of this place, died at the Sherman hospital, Elgin, Saturday, January 21, 1899. Aged 23 years, 8 months 28 days.

Miss Church was well known to all in this community. She was born at Barrington Center, April 23, 1875, and passed her childhood and girlhood days with her parents at that place, making a large circle of friends and acquaintances. Later, her work being in the city of Elgin, she left her home for that place, and while there, by her congenial spirit, her affable manner, and sympathetic heart of loving consideration, made her friendship circle still larger, which even death itself cannot break asunder, for there are ties that bind our hearts in kindred love, which extend beyond the veil into that "summer land" which God has prepared for his children. At the time of her death, Miss Church was one of a family of four children—two little brothers in the home and a sister, Mrs. Edward Sott of Oswego, Ill. It is needless to say that her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Church with the members of the family and relations mourn deeply the early departure of so loving a daughter and so affectionate a sister. Others also are bowed in heavy sorrow and grief because she, who was so much loved, has been removed from our midst, and taken her journey to her "long home." But the comforting Savior speaks to troubled hearts: "Blessed are they that mourn for they shall be comforted." She did not leave us to make that strange journey alone—there is one Friend, though unseen, who has promised to go with us always even to the end. This Savior was her Savior.

The funeral services were conducted at the M. E. church Wednesday afternoon by Rev. T. E. Ream. A ladies' quartet from Elgin had charge of the singing. Their songs were beautiful and impressive. The church was filled to the doors with relatives and friends of whom many were from Elgin and other places. It is estimated that fully 500 people were in attendance. Her remains were laid to rest in Evergreen cemetery.

How to Prevent Pneumonia.

You are perhaps aware that pneumonia always results from a cold or from an attack of la grippe. During the epidemic of la grippe a few years ago when so many cases resulted in pneumonia, it was observed that the attack was never followed by that disease when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was used. It counteracts any tendency of a cold or la grippe to result in that dangerous disease. It is the best remedy in the world for bad colds and la grippe. Every bottle warranted. For sale by A. S. Olms, Palatine; A. L. Waller, Barrington.
