"Norma" and Liberty.

In an air in the opera of "Norma" the theatrical censor went so far as to cancel the word "liberty" (liberty) and substitute for it the word "lealtà" (loyalty). * * * Signor Ronconi, the famous baritone and a great public favorite, having, in the ardor of his role, forgotten the above mentioned emendation, was imprisoned for three days in order to refresh his memory.

Not long after, singing the line in the "Elisir d'Amore" describing how a peasant enlisted, "Vende la liberta, si fe soldato" (He sold his liberty to be a soldier), he waggishly altered it to "Vende la lealta, si fe soldato." This variation in the text was received with lively applause by the public, who always warmly welcomed anything that savored of political opposition.

The next day the poor singer was summoned by the head of the police to receive a reprimand for having said that "loyalty could be sold," to which Ronconi replied by observing that a few days before he had been taught in a way he was not likely to forget that "lealtà" ought always to be substituted for "liberta."—Pietro Orsi's "Modern Italy."

MOTHERS' MEETING ENDS.

An Address at the League's Closing Sessions.

The closing sessions of the League of American Mothers was held in the Prospect Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, Walden, Ill. At the morning session there were about forty women and two men present. The two men, attending were J. W. Stewart, an aged resident of Ravenswood, and the Longwood octogenarian, C. H. Smith. In the course of an address on kindergarten training Miss Eloise Cameron MacGregor said: "We aim in our training to bring the pupils in as close contact with domestic life and nature's materials as possible. The use of primitive materials gives the child the experience of having nature yield to him, and thus the power of overcoming nature is developed. It is a lamentable fact that children are not given more of the practical, everyday experience in the home."

Toadstools Are Fatal.

Mrs. Edith Norris and her children, Maud, 15 years old, and Thomas, 13 years old, died yesterday at the stock farm of her husband, J. A. Norris, just outside of Harvey, Ill., from eating toadstools. The father and two other children, Eva, 17 years old, and Edith, 19 years old, with Robert Smith, a farm hand on the place, are critically ill from the same cause and may die. The death of the boy, Thomas, is largely attributable to the heroic effort he made to save the other members of the family. They were all seized with excruciating pains about midnight and as his father was prostrated, the boy, though suffering intensely, rode a horse bareback three miles to Homewood at breakneck speed, for medical assistance. The exposure and suffering caused by this ride made more sure the effect of the poison. Had he not made the effort all eight must have died before assistance reached them.

Deserts Coachman Husband.

Mrs. Adrian Schoenmacher, a Holland heiress, who eloped with her coachman from Amsterdam and went to Appleton, Wis., last April, has deserted her husband. Leaving him in possession of a farm in Iowa, where they have recently been living, she has returned to Holland. Mrs. Schoenmacher was Marie Aaltsz, daughter of a professor of language in the University of Amsterdam, and sister of a captain in the royal navy. She fell in love with Adrian Schoenmacher, her coachman, and eloped with him to America, being married at Hoboken, and going to Appleton, where they lived for a time with relatives of the groom, later settling on a farm in Iowa which the bride purchased. She soon tired of farm life and her coachman husband, and her flight followed.

Ferry-Boat Strikes Whale.

Mariners in San Francisco bay are keeping a sharp lookout these days for vagrant whales, as the harbor seems alive with the sportive leviathans, who do not respect the right of way of ferry-boats and other craft. Since the wreck of the pilot-boat Bonita last week there have been many jokes over this fish story, and among the skeptical was Captain McKenzie of the Sausalito ferry-boat San Rafael. McKenzie is no longer a doubter, for Wednesday when the ferry-boat was at full speed a whale rose directly in its course, not twenty feet away. Before the engines could be reversed or the wheel swung over the vessel struck the whale fairly, and passed clean over it. As it came up astern it spouted, and then disappeared. The shock was as though the vessel had run into a mud bank.

Wrecked by an Explosion.

By an explosion of gas two buildings in Lackawanna avenue, in the heart of the business district of Scranton, Pa., were completely demolished, and twenty-one persons were injured by being caught in the wreckage or struck by flying debris. The most seriously injured are: F. W. Woelkers, janitor of the bank; leg fractured and otherwise severely hurt; Miss Maloney of Philadelphia; struck by flying debris and seriously injured. Thomas Brennan of Moosic, one eye blinded; H. W. Skivington, artery in arm cut by glass; Anthony Patrolay of Green Ridge, back hurt and face cut; Mrs. Annie Clark, cut in the eye by glass; will probably lose sight; Miss Annie Klein, eyeball cut in twain by flying glass; Miss Mary Sandislaus, back broken, leg fractured and otherwise injured.

Cyclone Kills Vermonters.

The cyclone which swept over the vicinity of Burlington, Vt., caused two deaths and several hundred thousand dollars' damage to property. It raged with great fury for upward of an hour, disabling telephone, telegraph, fire alarm and electric power systems, filled the streets with trees and tangled wires and poles, unroofed several buildings and scattered broadcast huge piles of boards and lumber. Several yachts on Lake Champlain were capsized or driven ashore and wrecked and the buildings of the Catholic summer school at Cliff Haven were moved from their foundations.

Malley, Chicago, engineer of wrecked engine, head cut and shoulders bruised; taken home; will recover. Dynamite Ousts Squatter.

Unable to get Jeraboam Morris, an old negro, to pay rent for the cabin and small bit of land which he has held for the last ten years, Charles Carew, the owner, took advantage of Morris' absence to blow up the cabin near Louisville, Ky., with dynamite. Morris was an old slave and lived with his former master, near Brandenburg, until the latter's death in 1890. Then he got into a skiff and came up the river on a prospecting tour. Finding a piece of land that suited his fancy he settled down as a squatter and built himself a little hut. This arrangement was satisfactory to the then owners of the land, but when a year ago Carew came into possession he demanded that Morris pay rent. This the old negro persistently refused to do.

Predicts Long War.

The predictions of Mr. T. H. Storts, of Van Buren, Ind., have been fulfilled to a remarkable degree so far. In the year of 1894 he prophesied that the United States troops would be called into the field of battle in 1898, and that our government would not cease from war for seven years, and that in the year 1900 we would be embroiled in a war with all the leading nations of the earth. He also predicted that when this war ended there would be no more use for the sword and bayonet. He further says that when the powers have subdued China the swords will be turned toward each other, and a great destruction shall befall the nations. All this he gathers from his reading of the

J. H. STORTS.

Revelations of the Apostle John, and says that we are very close to the "last days."

Origin of "Lobster."

Boston is now engaged in the attempt to determine when the word lobster was first applied to a man as a term of opprobrium. New York had been satisfied for two years with the explanation that the phrase was first heard on the Guttenburg track, where it was used to describe the quality of the horseflesh that took part in the races there. It was the particularly bad performance of one horse on which a crowd of small bettors had staked all their earnings that led to the first use of the name by a disgusted sport. This explanation of the word's use has generally been accepted by everybody, although more erudite theories, suited better to Boston's particular case, have recently been forthcoming. John Adams, in his argument in defense of the British soldiers on trial for murder because of complicity in the "Boston Massacre," mentions the word "lobster" as one of the epithets applied by the citizens to the soldiers. The use of the word "lobster" as applied to a soldier has also been shown by a Bostonian interested in the subject to have been found as far back as 1642, if not before that time. In the face of such learned investigation, the Guttenburg race track hypothesis seems to have small chance of acceptance.

From Riches to Navy.

From the glare of the ballroom's candelabra to the twinkling of stars upon the deck of a man of war, from the purring adulation of society to the bellowing of big-mouthed cannon, from the luxuries of a millionaire father's home to hardtack and black coffee, from a practically unlimited income to pay of $16 per month—such was the transition begun last week in Chicago by Samuel Fritz Nave, the seventeen-year-old son of S. M. Nave, one of the wealthiest bankers and merchants in St. Joseph, Mo., when he took the oath required of those who enlist in the United States navy. The recruit, then a guest at the Great Northern hotel, where he had a suite, was attired in the most fashionable raiment, wore a big diamond shirt stud and diamond rings. His manners were faultless, and to assure his success in being accepted he told the recruiting officer that he was 19 years old. He gave his right name, but told no one that he had left a mansion in Missouri.

AS THE WORLD MOVES ROUND

Tod Sloan Hurt.

Tod Sloan, the American jockey, had a frightful fall while riding Lilly Langtry's horse Moluma in the race for the Liverpool cup. The horse, a strong favorite, was in front at the time of the accident. He went down with a crash, with Sloan under him. He rolled over the jockey, kicking furiously. The crowds in the stand, in Tattersall's ring and in the paddock were on their feet screaming in an excitement of horror. Women fainted at the spectacle. Those nearest the point of the accident rushed to Sloan's assistance as quickly as possible. The horse was kicking furiously.

Sloan lay prostrate in a big pool of blood. When rescued from under the struggling animal he presented an awful sight. Blood was streaming from his head, nose and mouth. One ear was nearly severed from his head. One side of his head was battered in. Everyone thought he was dead. He still breathed, however, and was carried to Lord Derby's carriage, which was driven hurriedly to the Adelphi hotel and half a dozen doctors were immediately summoned to the jockey's side. They pronounced his injuries serious, but not necessarily fatal. All who saw the accident and the furious struggles of the horse as it lay on Sloan's body marveled at his escape from instant death.

Compromising Endowments.

Whatever one's position on the merits of the question, there is something morally reassuring in the fact that the acceptance of Mr. Rockefeller's $100,000 gift to Wellesley college, at its recent commencement, was challenged by a portion of the faculty. Of course, no such issue would be expected, for example, at Chicago university, since questions of that sort were settled in respect to that institution at the start. Wellesley, however, especially in view of its pronounced moral tone, is a college where a question as to the origin of endowments would seem quite natural, and the fact that it was raised—though apparently without hindering the final acceptance of the gift—is a wholesome reminder that the relation between endowments on the one hand and moral standards and intellectual liberty on the other is by no means ignored at that center.

A Ducess in Prospect.

Neither the penniless Duke of Manchester nor the rich and beautiful Miss Helena Zimmerman of Cincinnati will discuss the reported engagement of marriage between them. Their silence is generally taken to give assent to the story. A formal announcement of the engagement is expected in a short time.

Miss Zimmerman, who is the daughter of Eugene Zimmerman of Cincinnati, is worth $1,000,000, and it is expected that she will eventually inherit eight or ten millions more from the estate of her father. Mr. Zimmer-

The Explosion at Camp Lincoln
There is to be an inquiry into the causes of that deplorable accident at Camp Lincoln, whereby two artillerymen were fatally injured and a number badly burnt. It should be a searching investigation and show who is responsible directly and indirectly.—Chicago Tribune.

Italy's New Queen.

The new queen of Italy, formerly Princess Helene of Montenegro, is considered one of the most beautiful women of Europe. She is in great contrast with her husband, being nearly six feet tall. She is healthy and robust, and partly for that reason was selected for the king. They were married Oct. 24, 1896.

No children have been born to them. The prince married reluctantly, as he feared he might become the father of an imbecile, which, by some fatality, is born every century to the house of Savoy. The princess is a lover of outdoor sports, and excels in shooting, hunting and riding.

For an amateur she is an excellent musician, playing the mandolin and piano exceptionally well. She speaks English, French, German and Italian and is a clever artist. She is also a great lover of literature.

Boers Near the End.

The hardest blow struck the Boer cause in South Africa came last week when Gen. Prinsloo surrendered 5,000 men into the hands of the British. The following report of the affair, just made to the British war office by Lord Roberts, tells the pathetic story in detail:

Gen. Prinsloo.

"On July 26 MacDonald fought a rear guard action with the enemy from early morning until dark nine miles outside of Naauwpoort, in the Bethlehem hills, resulting in his effectually blocking Naauwpoort to the Boer wagons. Hunter reports that the enemy twice checked his advance by holding strong positions on two necks, one of which was taken before dark by the Scots, the Royal Irish, the Wiltshire and the Leinster regiments. Our casualties were only five or six. The second neck was taken during the fight by the Scots and Guards, without opposition, the enemy retiring closely to Naauwpoort.

"The prisoners taken stated that 1,200 burghers would surrender if guaranteed that they would be treated as prisoners of war and not as rebels. To this I had assented. As a result of these operations Prinsloo, commanding the Boers, asked under a flag of truce a four days' armistice for peace negotiations.

"Hunter replied the only terms he would accept were unconditional surrender, and, until these were complied with, hostilities could not cease. I expressed my approval and told Hunter on no account to enter into negotiations. As I am writing a telegram has come from Hunter saying that Prinsloo had written a second letter expressing willingness to hand over himself with his men, rifles, ammunition and other firearms upon condition that the horses, saddles, bridles and other possessions of the burghers be guaranteed them and they be free to return to their homes.

"I have replied that the surrender must be absolutely unconditional; that all rifles, ammunition, horses and other possessions must be given up, and that the burghers will be considered prisoners of war. I added that Prinsloo's overtures will not be allowed in any way to interfere with Hunter's operations, which must be continued until the enemy is defeated or has surrendered."

A later dispatch from General Roberts announced the surrender of Prinsloo with 5,000 Boers.

Favors American Girl.

Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll, has taken a great fancy for her new American niece, that Miss Lawrence of New York who, a few months ago, married young Douglas Campbell, only son of Lord Walter Campbell, brother of the present Duke of Argyll. The duchess has just given a practical form of expression to her affection for the fair American by placing at the disposal of the young couple Hilkatrine, an exceedingly pretty place in Argyllshire.

A WEEK IN ILLINOIS.

RECORD OF HAPPENINGS FOR SEVEN DAYS.

Gold Found Near Joliet and an Assay Ordered.—Row in the State Signal Corps at Springfield—Sam Jones on "Manhood and Money."

Row in State Signal Corps.

Farce comedy was in progress at Camp Lincoln, Springfield. An election to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of J. B. Inman furnishes the plot, and Lieut. B. F. Herrington of Yorkville, who is in command by virtue of seniority, and a candidate for the place, was cast in the star role. Herrington undertook to defeat the election and hold over in command, claiming irregularity in the call and the delivery of the notices. The election was called for 8 o'clock Thursday evening and Herrington declined to hold it. Gov. Tanner was appealed to and ordered the election to be held. Herrington then announced a postponement to 5 o'clock Friday morning, and another appeal was made to headquarters. Col. Mack Tanner then came over and reiterated the governor's order that the election must be held at night. Herrington then fixed the hour at 11 o'clock. In the meantime the side play that went on was highly amusing. Lieut. Herrington called his men into line and was making a lengthy address against time when the first sergeant stepped up and asked him if he was making a nominating speech. The intrepid "non-com" was promptly placed under arrest, and two or three privates that ventured to express themselves rather freely shared his fate. Late at night J. H. McConnell of Chicago was elected to the vacant captaincy after a hot contest. McConnell had 57 votes, Herrington 7 and Ernst 4.

Five Men Lodged in Jail.

The citizens of Herrin, a mining town, ten miles northwest of Marion, are very much stirred up over the death of A. T. Roberts, the teamster, who was killed two miles east of that place last Sunday night. Roberts was hired by a party of men to haul them and a keg of beer out to the woods late Sunday afternoon. The beer-drinking continued till late in the night, when the party returned to town with the dead body of Roberts in the wagon, claiming that he accidentally fell out of the wagon and killed himself. On Monday the coroner's jury held an inquest, and returned a verdict to the effect that Roberts came to his death from a cause unknown to the jury. State's Attorney Fowler ordered a post mortem examination of the body by competent physicians, who found that Roberts' head had been crushed at the base of the brain by some heavy instrument, and that his cheek and neck had been cut by something sharper than a wagon wheel, which the beer-drinkers claim had run over Roberts, causing his death. State's Attorney Fowler, after securing evidence, ordered the arrest of Guy Cole, Wyley Cole, Eph Evett, Abe Priddy and Bert Welch, and they were placed in jail by Deputy Sheriff Throgmorton to await their preliminary examination.

Gold Found Near Joliet.

Gold has been discovered on the property of W. Norris of Braceville, near Joliet. Desiring to remove a number of large boulders on his lot he ordered them broken up. When the rock was shattered it was noticed it sparkled brilliantly. An acid test showed the undoubted presence of gold. Other pieces of rock were also broken open, and gold was found in them also. An assay will be made.

Jones on Manhood and Money

Sam Jones spoke at the Chautauqua assembly, Pontiac, and 10,000 persons were present and heard the southern orator deliver his lecture on "Manhood and Money." George L. McNutt of Indianapolis spoke on "Sociology," and Col. John Sobieski delivered a lecture on "Ten Years in the United States Army." The Ottumwa male quartet of Chicago gave a concert.

G. A. R. at Delevan.

The Grand Army of the Republic of Delevan and vicinity held their reunion and picnic at the park at Delevan. They unveiled a twenty-four-pound cannon obtained from an old fortification down on the coast through the government, naming it William McKinley. This relic was fired. Col. S. W. Thornyon of Jacksonville was the principal speaker.

Old Maids Have a Picnic.

The De Kalb County Old Maids' association held its third annual picnic northwest of Kingston. A large attendance came from the various towns of the county. The following officers were elected: President, Esther Branch; vice-president, Genie Sherman; secretary, Sadie Campbell; treasurer, Bay Faulkerson.

Are Captured by Filipinos.

Washington, Aug. 6.—The first serious check which the American troops have met in the Philippines during the last two months is recorded in a dispatch received from Gen. MacArthur. It is as follows:

The first serious check which the American troops have met in the Philippines during the last two months is recorded in a dispatch received from Gen. MacArthur. It is as follows:

"Manila, Aug. 4.—Adjutant General Washington: First Lieut. Alstaetter, corps of engineers, United States army, with escort fifteen men attacked Aug. 1, road between San Miguel de Mayuma (Luzon) and San Isidro (Luzon) by armed band of insurgents reported 350 strong. Entire party killed, wounded or captured."

New Philippine Rule.

On Sept. 1 the commission headed by Judge Taft will become the legislative body of the Philippines, with power to take and appropriate insular moneys, to establish judicial and educational systems, and to make and pass all laws. No money will be permitted to be drawn from the insular funds except by authorization of the committee. Judge Taft and his colleagues will also exercise certain executive functions. For instance, they will appoint judges, officials in the educational department, and officers of municipalities which the commission establish pending elections. General MacArthur will be the executive head to enforce the laws of the commission.

Dynamite for St. Louis Cars.

After a pause of five days dynamiters have commenced again to place explosives on the tracks of the St. Louis Transit company. A Bellefontaine car was blown up in North St. Louis Tuesday. It is the first case of daylight dynamiting since the strike commenced. The explosion was terrific. All of the windows in the car were shattered, the forward trucks were broken, and a hole twice the size of a bushel basket was blown through the floor. There were no passengers on the car, and neither the conductor nor the motorman was injured. At night women along the line were warned not to ride on the cars, as they would be blown up.

Rain Needed for Crops.

The government crop report says the week has been hot in the states of the Missouri and upper Mississippi valleys, and while there was a general lack of rainfall over a large part of the country east of the Rocky mountains excessively heavy rains fell in portions of the gulf states and over portions of the central Ohio, upper Missouri and Red River of the North valleys. Rain is generally needed in central Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys, and in that Atlantic coast states from the Carolinas northward. The general absence of rain has been favorable to thrashing winter wheat, which is nearing completion in nearly all districts.

England Wants a Loan.

Four of the leading financial firms of this country have notified the British government that they are prepared to take the entire $50,000,000 of exchequer bonds, the issue of which the Bank of England announced Friday. These firms are J. P. Morgan & Co., and Baring, Magoun & Co. of New York, Drexel & Co. of Philadelphia and Kidder, Peabody & Co. of Boston. The British government declined to accept their offer, but appointed the four firms as American agents of the loan, and they will receive subscriptions on the terms announced in a circular just issued.

Prairie Fires Rage Widely.

Reports have reached Pierre, S. D., of extensive prairie fires in Potter county and northern Sully, destroying the range-grass and hay, both of which are scarce this year. The last week has broken all records for heat here. The average maximum for the week was 103 degrees. The highest was 111, and the temperature was above 100 for five days in the week. Reports from Huron say a week of unprecedented hot weather was terminated with a heavy rain and thunder storm last night. The temperature for seven days had vibrated between 100 and 106 degrees in the shade.

Bride His Step-Grandchild.

Deputy Clerk of the Orphans' Court Hittle issued a marriage license to Jacob Doney, a farmer, 57 years old, of Powder Valley, and Ida J. Kriebel, aged 16 years, of Hosensack. Doney was the father of Samuel Z. Kriebel's first wife and the intended bride is a daughter of Kriebel by a subsequent marriage. The bridegroom is, therefore, the stepfather of the bride.

Murderer John Bad Elk Dead.

John Bad Elk, Sioux Indian murderer, who has been in jail at Sioux Falls, S. D., since April of last year, died in the county jail in that city of consumption. In March, 1899, on Pine Ridge reservation Bad Elk shot and killed John Killsback, one of a party of three Indian policemen who were striving to effect his arrest.

Furnishing Britons With Flags.
A London dealer in decorative goods is quoted in The Morning Leader of that city as saying that most of the British flags sold in England nowadays are imported from America. No statistics are given, but according to this dealer the number of British flags made in the United States runs into the millions. He explained the fact by saying that Americans made the flags better and cheaper and that more flags were made and sold in the United States than in any other country in the world. He also added that nearly all the British flags used in Canada came from the republic. The British also import, this dealer declares, large quantities of buttons and badges similar to those used in this country in political campaigns and on festal occasions.
Some enterprising American citizen recently sent over an enormous shipment of them, with pictures of Lord Roberts, Queen Victoria, the Prince of Wales and other people especially popular at the moment, and they sold rapidly and at good prices. The London dealer declares that England could not compete with America in the manufacture of these articles. All this is very gratifying to Americans and one of the many indications of the way the United States is invading the markets of the world, but it must be rather annoying to some Englishmen to know that even for their union jacks and patriotic buttons they must come to this country.

Here is an opportunity for some enterprising town, rightly located, to secure an important and somewhat unique manufacturing plant. John C. Covert, the United States consul at Lyons, France, reports to the authorities at Washington that M. Leuret, an extensive manufacturer of artificial pearls from fish scales, has announced that he "will go to the United States and erect works there as soon as he hears of a locality where the right kind of scales can be had in large quantities." M. Leuret thinks he could use about 25,000 pounds of these scales the first year after establishing a factory in this country and twice that quantity in a few years. The price of suitable scales ranges from 80 cents to $1.25 per pound. An enterprise of considerable magnitude has grown up in France in utilizing this hitherto useless byproduct of the fishing industry, and there is no reason why it would not be successful in this country. The scales used in making artificial pearls must be small and have a silvery sheen. The brighter they are the higher price they will command. The fish used in France are called the bleak, or blay. Consul Covert thinks herring, alewives and menhaden, which are abundant in American waters, could be profitably used in the enterprise.

This is the season of the year when suggestions as to how to keep cool are freely offered. They should be received with respect, if not with gratitude, though in following all the rules laid down by solicitous persons one would be likely to become overheated. About the best advice that can be suggested is this: Don't sit still and fume about the heat. Go about your business in your accustomed manner, and don't worry over the weather. Dress yourself so that when you perspire freely you will not feel unhappy. Don't be afraid of perspiration. It may wilt your collar, but let it flow. It will do you good. Above all things don't fill yourself up with hot and rebellious liquors. Even the so called cooling drinks won't cool you half as much as a calm and placid mind and an uncomplaining disposition. Beware of the seductive "ricky" and the subtle "high ball." The "Mamie Taylor" is likewise a delusion and a snare. The various concoctions known generally as "soft drinks" are little better. Better abjure them all. Better still, don't worry, and don't swear about the heat.

A Russian princess is reported to have been robbed of $50,000 worth of jewels. It would seem that a princess would be in a position to go on the stage without advertising the loss of diamonds.

Preserving Wild Animals.
It is a fact of common knowledge that many of the larger wild animals, such as the deer, the buffalo, the elephant and the lion, have utterly disappeared from some parts of the world where not many years ago they were abundant. In our own country the buffalo has become practically extinct except in forest preserves, zoological gardens and other places where the animal is kept as a curiosity. In the greater part of South Africa, where wild beasts of all kinds were numerous a few years ago, it is only rarely now that an elephant or lion is found.
The same process of extinction is going on in other parts of the world, until it seems probable that unless some effective measures are adopted it will not be long before certain species of wild animals once common will be found only as they are stuffed and mounted in the museums of natural history. With the view of preventing this wholesale and indiscriminate killing of noble game an international conference was recently held in London at which an agreement to that end was signed by the representatives of the queen of England, the emperor of Germany, the king of Spain, the president of France, the king of the Belgians (for the Kongo State), the king of Italy and the king of Portugal. Uniform laws were agreed upon to be enforced as far as possible within the African possessions of the powers represented which prohibit the hunting and destruction of certain of the rarer animals, establish preserves within which hunting shall be unlawful and also prescribe other measures for the better protection of animal life.

A rather unusual case has lately been adjudicated in the courts of New York. It appears that a man traveling over one of the railway lines from Cleveland to the former city bought a sleeping car berth. When he went to take possession of it, he found that another person already occupied it. Through some mistake it had been sold twice. As all the other berths were occupied, this victim of a blunder had to sit up all night in a day coach. When he reached New York, he sued the company for damages and was awarded judgment for $750. The motion of the defendant for a new trial has just been denied on the ground that the judgment is not excessive in view of the discomforts the plaintiff had to undergo in sleeping in an uncomfortable posture in a day coach. There are, of course, a good many men who would be willing to sit up all night in a railroad car or lie cramped up on a seat for considerably less than $750, but that doesn't matter. The sleeping car companies exact a heavy fee for the service rendered, and this particular company will get very little public sympathy because it has to pay for the blunder which caused a passenger to pass an uncomfortable night.

The new charter of the city of Havana is now in full force and operation, and under it the powers of the lately elected officials are greatly augmented. The municipal authorities have control of all matters within the city limits, particularly the establishment and regulation of the local administration, the adoption of measures relating to the use, arrangement, improvement and ornamentation of public ways and parks, the comfort and health of the inhabitants, the promotion of their material and moral interests and the security of their persons and property. It will be interesting to note how wisely the Havanese administer these larger privileges and responsibilities of local self government, as the success of the experiment will measurably define the preparedness of the people of the island for complete autonomy.

The Mexican electoral college has formally proclaimed the re-election of President Diaz. And there doesn't appear to have been any great amount of hurrah over it either. These Mexicans don't seem to get anywhere near as much fun out of their elections as we do. Perhaps when they get older they may learn how to "play politics." At present they are woefully ignorant in this respect. But after all they appear to have no trouble in selecting the man they want for chief executive.

The Boston evangelist who is reported to have thrashed a small boy who threw stones at him is not supposed to have been under the influence of restraining grace.

An Ohio woman has projected an ice cream festival to raise funds to pay for the burial of her deceased husband. Here is a practically loving widow.

It was officially stated at the national convention of educators, recently held in Charleston, that there are tens of thousands of white children in the Indian Territory for whom no school system is provided. Either white settlers and traders should not be allowed to remain in territories set apart for Indians or there should be provided educational facilities for their children.

It is stated that Consul Adelbert Hay, who was sent to represent this government at Pretoria, is now on his way home. Does this signify that the state department at Washington no longer recognizes the existence of the Transvaal as a distinct state?

It would be a difficult thing to try to convince hotel keepers in towns eligible for convention purposes that once every four years is too often to have presidential campaigns.

Some day the publisher of some influential London newspaper may be "desired to make known" that the presence of William Waldorf Astor on English soil "is uninvited."

It may be observed that the celebrated Fayerweather will case has been settled again. This annual event happens with the most pleasing regularity.

PEPSIN SYRUP CO.

DEAR SIRS—I feel it my duty to write to you and let you know how much good your medicine has done for me. Twenty-three years ago I was taken with some kind of stomach trouble and I tried everything I heard of. They did me but little good. Three years ago neuralgia set in on me and I got so poor and weak that I could hardly walk—couldn't work any. My husband received a book through the mail, advertising your medicine, and he sent our little boy to the drug store to get one of your ten-cent bottles. I began to use it. It is strange to say, but it's the truth, the second dose I took gave me lots of relief. I kept on using it till I used it nearly a year and now I am nearly as strong as I used to be and can do any kind of work. I recommend it to all, for it seems to me it would cure anybody. I have gotten several to use Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and they all say it has done them so much good. God bless Dr. Caldwell and his medicine for doing me so much good.

Yours with respect,

MRS. ISABELL WHEELER.

LOST ON THE... VELDT

A STORY OF THE BOER CAMPAIGN IN NATAL

By H. B. Mackenzie

But they were hardly prepared for the sight that met their eyes. In the shelter of the kopje, her face turned towards it, lay a young girl, her print gown torn and stained, her face like that of the dead, her eyes closed, her hair falling in tangled masses about her face. She was frightfully pale, and at first they thought she was dead.

"Feel her heart, Preston," said Greene, in a whisper. "What an emaciated creature! Is she dead?"

"I don't think so," said the other. "Quick! give me some water, Greene!"

The other obeyed, and Preston put some to the white, stiff lips. The liquid seemed to bring back a feeble flicker of life. Her eyelids half closed, then shut again.

"Quick! get her on my horse! We must take her with us," said young Preston quickly. "We cannot leave her here to die, even if she dies in our hands. Help me, old fellow!"

The girl was a mere featherweight. Greene uttered an exclamation as he lifted her. They carried her to Preston's horse, and managed to hoist her up in front of the saddle, Greene holding her while Preston mounted.

"It's all right," said the latter. "I think I can manage. Get into your own saddle and let us ride as quickly as we can and rejoin the men, Greene."

"I hope she won't die in our hands," said Greene, as he tumbled into his saddle.

The two speculated as to the extraordinary occurrence as they rode onwards. They were young, and had perhaps a touch of romance in their prosaic English hearts, and the lingering traces of beauty in the seemingly dead face had touched them more than they would have confessed.

"What's to be done with her when we get to camp? We have no place fit for a wounded girl, though our quarters may do for wounded men," said Greene.

"Perhaps we can get her sent to Ladysmith. She could be looked after there," the other answered, reflectively.

As they were nearing the camp, suddenly out of the darkness—it was coming down rapidly—two horses whirled toward them, a white man and a native.

"Halt! Who goes there?" said Preston, as the former galloped right in front of him. Then he added, with an exclamation: "Rothes, old chap, is it you? What on earth are you doing here? And you look ill! Are you ill?"

The other horseman's face was ghastly, and for a moment he seemed to stay in the saddle; but, recovering himself with a great effort, he pointed to the figure Preston was supporting with his one arm.

"What have you there?" he asked, hoarsely. "I have been for six days scouring the veldt between this and Harrismith, seeking for some one who has been lost upon it; and now I fear you have found something. For pity's sake let me see her face, Lieutenant Preston!"

Without a word the young man dismounted, still holding the inanimate figure securely; then, lifting her down, he laid her gently on the dry sand.

Adair Rothes, who had sprung from his saddle, bent over her. A sound that was almost like a wild cry came from his lips; but no one heard it but Arthur Preston.

"It is she!" he said in a moment, in a choked voice. "Thank God she is still living! You will give her into my charge, Lieutenant Preston?"

CHAPTER IX.

There was a farmhouse not far from Newcastle, whose owner, a kindly Scotsman, Adair Rothes had known since he came out to Natal.

It was thither he carried Bluebell, not knowing whether she would live or die. The farmer, Mr. Dalziel, learning the facts of the case—he had already heard of the tragedy of New Kelso—insisted on sending his "spider" at once for Miss Elizabeth, notwithstanding the unsettled state of the country.

Bluebell was laid in a pretty white bed in the little bedroom, which opened, like many South African bedrooms, out into the garden; and there she lay for many hours like one dead, with hardly a pulse to respond to Rothes' touch. The tide of her life was very low; it could not be much lower.

When at last it began to rise again, to his alarm it was with a wildly disordered pulse. She was in a high fever, and raved deliriously and without cessation.

How much the man watching her with agonized eyes and racked heart was to learn of all the poor child had come through!

"Water, water!" she would moan. "Not a drop! O God, let me die soon! Don't let me endure this maddening thirst longer! Hark! that was a lion's roar! Oh, I hope it was! Better to die at once! And they say one doesn't feel pain. It is like a mouse in a cat's claws! Oh, anything—anything better than this awful burning thirst! My throat, it's like a red-hot coal!" Then she would imagine herself in Moore's power.

"No, no! I shall die before I marry you—die a thousand times rather! O God, is there no help for me? Help me, merciful, kind God!" Then her voice sank to a whisper. "If Adair were here—ah, he would help me! He is good and brave. But he will never know now that I loved him." The voice trembled a little, and then silence—blessed silence—came.

And Adair Rothes, with trembling hands, and eyes full of passionate, longing tenderness, bent over the unconscious girl with an agonized prayer.

"Merciful God, spare her to me, if it be Thy will! My darling—my own darling! And she cried to me in her extremity, and I did not know of it! Bluebell, Bluebell!"

Miss Elizabeth arrived in the spider twenty-four hours after, and could only wring Rothes' hand in silence, her thin, sorrowful, unlovely face working convulsively.

"God will spare her, Miss Elizabeth," Rothes said huskily. "We both owe a debt we can never repay to the young fellow who found her, for you know it was not I who did so. We might never have seen her again but for Lieutenant Preston."

Rothes knew his duty lay in Ladysmith, yet he could not tear himself from Bluebell's side until he knew whether it was to be life or death. Mercifully, the delirium did not last long, and on the third day, after a long sleep, she opened her eyes, that had full reason in them, upon her aunt.

"Auntie, where am I?" she asked feebly. "Oh, what a fearful dream I have had!"

When Miss Elizabeth ran for Rothes the strong man felt himself trembling like a child. He returned with her quickly, but he could not speak when Bluebell's eyes rose to his.

"I have had such a fearful dream, Dr. Rothes," she whispered, her eyes appealing with dumb pathos to his trustful ones. "I am afraid it was a reality, though. Is my father dead? Did Mr. Moore carry me away? And was I dying in the veldt?"

"It is all true"—holding the poor little weak hand in his own strong one—"but, God be thanked, you are safe now—safe and in good keeping. All you have to do is to get well."

"Did you find me?" she whispered. And he felt the little hand quiver.

He had determined not to speak, but the question upset all his determinations. He sank on his knees, holding the little hand to his lips.

"I was seeking for you six days, Bluebell; but after all it was a young officer who found you and gave you to my keeping. Oh, Bluebell, my heart is torn in two when I think of all you have gone through and I unable to help you—not knowing at first you wanted help—I, who would give my life to save you pain! My darling! my own darling!"

A little wave of color spread over her white face; her throat fluttered.

"You—love me, then?" she whispered.

"I have loved you ever since I first met you at Maritzburg, Bluebell; but I never dared to hope. Bluebell, it seems wrong to speak of it at this terrible time; but you do care a little, after all, about me?—do you?"

The little, wasted hand stroked his cheek.

"I love you with all my heart, Adair. I knew it that awful night when the Boers"—she paused, shuddering—"You'll take care of me, and not let that dreadful man come near me?"

He folded the hand to his breast, and, bending, kissed again and again the pale little face, cheeks, and eyes and lips.

Rothes went back to Ladysmith next day. The battle of Elandslaagte had taken place, and the hospital in the little town was full.

Mr. and Mrs. Dalziel were kindness itself, and insisted on the Leslies staying as long as ever they felt inclined.

On the first day on which Bluebell was able to get up Adair Rothes appeared. It was two days after the battle of Ladysmith, of which word had been brought to the Dalziels.

Bluebell welcomed him with a blush and a smile that made Rothes' heart throb. But there was something in his face which made Bluebell's heart fret with mingled fear and anxiety.

"You have some news? What is it? Tell me quickly, Adair!" she breathed, lifting her face from its hiding place.

"Yes, my darling," Rothes answered slowly; "I have strange news for you. I do not know how you will take it, Bluebell; something very terrible happened at the battle on Monday. Some one was killed there—some one whom you knew!"

"It was Gerald Moore!" said Bluebell quickly. She turned very pale, and shivered a little.

"I went up to him, when the battle was nearly over, hearing him groaning. I did not know who he was till I was beside him. He was moaning for water, and I turned to get him some. As I did so a wounded Boer near called: 'Look out, doctor!' I stepped aside, and as I did so a bullet whizzed past me, striking my ear. I turned and saw Moore on his elbow, a look of such unnatural hatred on his face as I shall never forget, his gun still in his hand. As I turned he uttered a strange sound, the gun dropped from his hand, and he fell back on the grassy knoll. When I reached him he was dead!"

With a little cry Bluebell folded her arms about her lover's neck.

"Oh, Adair, thank God! thank God, you were saved!"

For a few minutes Rothes did not speak. His strong mouth quivered a little. At last he said:

"Now comes the strange news I have for you, Bluebell. Papers were found upon Gerald Moore, and the officer into whose hands they fell—the general, Bluebell—sent for me. He knows me personally, and knows what you are to me. Those papers affect you, and you only."

"Adair, what can you mean?" she asked, in startled surprise.

Adair took her hand in his, and held it for a moment without speaking.

"A barrier has risen up between you and me, Bluebell—a barrier such as I never dreamt of. I am a poor man—you are an heiress."

She uttered an incredulous exclamation.

"It is true, Bluebell. Now we have the real reason of Moore's determination to marry you. He had seen an advertisement in an English paper, gone home, learned everything, and came here with his mind firmly made up as to his own course. As you know, your father always declared he had been done out of Tinsilverstock. His cousin has had it in his possession for fifteen years. Maurice Leslie had three sons. Your father never hoped to come into the property; but, by a strange fatality, these sons have all died since. Maurice Leslie, on whose mind it always preyed that he had cheated your father out of his inheritance, has made you his heiress. You—not your father."

"Oh, Adair!" The girl clung to him, her arms clasped round his neck. "I do not wish to be an heiress. I am happier as I am."

"It seems," said Rothes, "that your father's cousin died a few months ago. The lawyers are now searching for you. You must write to them, Bluebell. And I have been thinking, dear, you and Miss Elizabeth are safer out of the country just now. We must get you to Durban, thence to Scotland."

She uttered a little cry, her face deathly white.

"Adair! You wish to get rid of me, then? Oh, and I thought—I thought—you loved me!"

He clasped her close, covering the sweet face with passionate kisses.

"My own darling! But, Bluebell, do you think I am so selfish as to wish to keep you here during this dark time that is coming upon us, when you might be living in luxury and safety at home?"

"And you in danger, doing your duty here?" she half sobbed. "Adair, are you to have all the selfishness and I none? No, dear, I shall not go. I have made up my mind."

They were married. The bride's father had been but a month in his lonely grave, and they were themselves in the midst of that dark tragedy which had not then ended. But human love, next to divine, can lighten the darkest sorrows and the most terrible surroundings.

"You are not afraid," he said, as, having bade farewell to the weeping Miss Elizabeth, who had agreed to go meantime to Maritzburg, he led his wife into the pretty little house that was beginning to look desolate and deserted in the forsaken town.

She raised her sweet face to his. Her eyes were full of tears, but they had a smile in their depths.

"I am sad at parting with poor auntie," she whispered. "But I am glad, so glad, to be beside you, Adair, and I am not afraid with you, dear. Why should I be. We are together, and God is all over, and He can take care of us in the future as He has in the past."

(The end.)

THE WAR WITH THE BOXERS

Severe Battles in the Empire of China.

MANY NATIONS TAKE A HAND.

Allied Forces Closing in Upon the City of Peking and a Great Battle Is Anticipated—Japanese Suffer a Loss—Russians in Command.

Thursday, August 2.

Allies on march to Peking score victory, Chinese troops and Boxers entrenched at Pitsang, eight miles from Tientsin, being dispersed and Russians holding position; allies have 21,000 men and 170 guns; Chinese force estimated at 50,000. Mohammedans aid allies. Chefoo report said imperial troops marching to engage allies wiped out Christian town, killing over 10,000. Reported confirmation of murder of fifty missionaries in Shan Si. English women beheaded in streets.

War against China by United States and European powers deemed inevitable if participation of imperial troops in attacks on legations is confirmed. At cabinet meeting in Washington Secretary Hay's course endorsed. State Department made public correspondence with Li Hung Chang, insisting unconditionally on free communication with Conger and putting responsibility for safety of envoys on Chinese government.

Friday, Aug. 3.

Two members of the tsung-li-yamen at Peking were beheaded for urging protection to the ministers. The allies are said to have advanced to a point thirty-five miles beyond Tientsin. British member of parliament declares war is on in China and that the allies cannot stop it until Peking is seized.

Sunday, August 5.

China backed down day after receiving Secretary Hay's ultimatum; imperial edict issued that envoys have free communication with their governments and ordering escort by high officials for them to Tientsin; Li Hung Chang reported escort had been provided; belief ministers may refuse to leave capital. Consul Goodnow, Shanghai, reported message from Minister Conger dated July 21, saying all well, no fighting, provisions enough, anxious for quick relief. English correspondent in Peking wrote in similar strain: truce almost arranged after fall of Tientsin arsenals, when new generals beheaded peace party leaders. American and British forces began advance on Peking Thursday; all allies now in motion, 30,000 to 40,000 men; Chinese attacked Tientsin Aug. 1 and were repulsed. General Chaffee encountering difficulties, Russians and Japanese started flank movement from Shan Hai Kwang. Relief column expects trouble at Lang Fang. Chinese driven from Aigun. Father Marquet, Province of Chi Li, described incidents of uprising; many missions wrecked and converts slain. Secretary of State Hay ill from nervous exhaustion, due to late arduous labors. Southern viceroys terrified by executions of Hsu Ching Cheng and Yuan Chang. Gen. Miles has offered to take personal command of American forces in China.

Monday, August 6.

Allies, 16,000 strong, fought Chinese at Pitsang on Sunday, forcing latter to retreat; allies' loss 1,200, mostly Russians and Japanese; Chinese loss much heavier; desperate engagement expected when allies reach walled city of Tung Chow; army men believe effect of Pitsang fight may demoralize Chinese; position of United States diplomatically unchanged; insistence that cipher messages must pass freely to and from ministers; believed in Washington envoys are still safe and will not consent to leave Peking; Li Hung Chang stated ministers left Peking on Friday under escort, and now on way to Tientsin; London informed by Chinese minister envoys are safe and well cared for; Japanese dispatch said supplies stopped; Secretary of State Hay better. Transport Logan, with fugitives from China, arrived San Francisco, bringing news accounting for many persons thought missing or dead in hostile districts; eye witnesses tell story of Tientsin battle; expect trouble to last two years. Andrew D. White, ambassador to Germany, at home on vacation, said Chinese depredations justified czar and kaiser in declaring war; believed Germany not seeking partition. Foreigners leaving upper Yang-tse region.

Tuesday, August 7.

Minister Conger sent word from Peking, probably Aug. 2, legation still besieged and situation more precarious; Chinese government insisting on envoys leaving Peking, which was regarded as certain death; rifle firing daily by imperial troops on legations; abundant courage, but little ammunition or provisions; all United States legation well. Pitsang battle showed Chinese forces well prepared; every mile to be contested; American troops played gallant part in Sunday's fight; Chaffee has been active. Refugees by transport Logan told of first fighting around Tientsin; bravery of Capt. McCalla; mutilated Christians; looting by Russians; fanatical courage of Boxers; son of Consul Ragsdale proved hero. Italian naval officer reported legation safe on July 30, with plenty of provisions; Japanese message Aug. 1 said envoys safe and expecting attack. Li Hung Chang declared in case allies advance the Chinese must fight; allies not to be allowed to enter Peking. England will hold imperial government personally responsible for foreigners at Peking. England said to have objected to Russian warships passing Bosphorus.

The natural picturesque surroundings have been made more attractive and the hotel is a model of comfort and elegance.

For the greater accommodation of guests who come in constantly increasing numbers from every section of the United States, arrangements have now been made for the enlargement of the hotel buildings. The contract was let yesterday by Major Kramer for additions that will cause an outlay of over $30,000. The improvements will consist of a new bath house and an addition to the hotel. The addition will be two stories in height and will occupy a ground space 80x160 feet. It provides forty additional guest chambers. The entire addition will be handsomely and elegantly furnished. The bath house, when completed, will be the finest in the United States.

Besides the bath house and the guest chambers there will be on the first floor a dining hall, a music room, a billiard hall, physician's offices and a barber shop. In connection with the bath house there will be ladies and gentlemen's dressing rooms and cooling rooms. The dressing and cooling rooms will be elaborately decorated and the floors will be laid in white tile. In both cooling rooms will be built large ornamental fire places which will be used for heating purposes in addition to the regular steam heating. The work will be entirely completed in 90 days.

The improvement and the entire arrangements of the hotel and grounds are made, keeping in view the artistic effect of the whole, and when the improvements arranged for are completed the hotel and surroundings will be much more attractive than before.

Major Kramer states that a still further addition to the hotel is contemplated, and that plans are now being prepared for an additional structure to contain 150 rooms for guests.

Already a quarter of a million dollars has been expended on the Indiana Mineral Springs enterprise and under the present management greater growth and development in the future is assured.—Attica Daily Ledger.

THE BOXERS OF CHINA

are attempting to solve a gigantic problem, but they are going about it in the wrong way and will never succeed. Some people, in this country, seem to think that they have as great a puzzle on their hands in selecting a location for a home. They will certainly go about it in the wrong way unless they inspect the beautiful farming country on the line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway in Marinette county, Wisconsin, where the crops are of the best, work plenty, fine markets, excellent climate, pure, soft water; land sold cheap and on long time. Why rent a farm when you can buy one for less than you pay for rent? Address C. E. Rollins, Land Agent, 161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

NO HURRY IN MEXICO.

Plan for Resting and Missing Trains Without a Pang.

"Speaking of the high tension of modern life," said a New Orleans man of affairs to a New Orleans Times-Democrat man, "I am reminded of a little incident that occurred during a visit I paid to Mexico City several years ago. I had planned to take a trip to a neighboring town, and was very careful to be at the depot considerably before the time advertised for the train to leave, so as to take no chances on missing it. As it happened, however, it was half an hour late in starting, and just before it finally pulled out, a gentleman, who was evidently an American, came slowly sauntering up, smoking a cigarette. Without hurrying in the slightest degree he reached the platform exactly in time to step on the moving car. It was as close a connection as I ever saw in my life, and the amazing imperturbability of the chap piqued my curiosity. 'Pardon me,' said I, after making some pretext for conversation, 'but were you aware that this train was due to leave half an hour ago?' 'Certainly,' he replied, 'then how in the world, I asked, 'did you happen to strike such a leisurely gait in coming to the depot?' 'Well I've quit hurrying since I came here,' he answered, smilingly.

"I chose California, and was just beginning to find out what a good thing life really was when some fool friends tempted me to go into a railroad scheme, and in two months I was on my back again. That time the doctor used language. He drew a little picture of mental and physical wreckage that made my hair bristle on my head, and then there I swore off on all forms of hurry. Naturally I came to Mexico, which is the one place where a man can keep such an oath without seeming eccentric, and at present I am engaged exclusively in taking things easy. You have no idea how delightful it is. My plans never miscarry, because I never make any, and no consideration on earth could induce me to get a move on myself. 'But suppose you had missed the train today,' I suggested, 'I would have gone tomorrow,' he replied calmly, or perhaps not at all. Why, my dear sir,' he said earnestly, 'missing trains without a pang is an exquisite pleasure to a man who has chased 'em for eighteen solid years! Trains are emblematic of all that is headlong and breathless in modern life, and to grin at the rear platform as it moves away and say, 'G'long with you; I don't care a cuss!' is one of the sweetest joys I know. I love to miss trains. I often think of that happy exile," said the speaker, sighing. "I believe he has solved the problem of life."

A FILIPINO DRUG CLERK.

Omaha, Neb., has the distinction of having the only Filipino drug clerk in the United States. His name is Raymon Rives and for one of his years he has had an interesting career. He was born in Borongan, a small city on the island of Samar. His father is a merchant and young Rives received a good Spanish education. He was not content with life in his native city and ran away from home. He went to Iloilo and for a time worked in a factory. Later he enlisted in the Spanish army and was at Manila when Dewey destroyed the Spanish fleet. He was twice wounded in battle, once in the chest by a fragment from a bursting shell and later by a rifle ball through the right hand. The American soldiers took him prisoner and after his release he came to this country on a transport. He is very intelligent and although he has been in this country but a short time can speak the English quite readily. He has no desire to return to his native home as he likes the United States and declares that he is ready to fight for the stars and stripes should the opportunity offer.

Wheat Statistics.

Wheat statistics exhibit some curious features. The reduction in the world's supplies from Jan. 1 to July 1, 1899, was only 7,000,000 bushels, while from Jan. 1 to July 1, 1900, it was 50,000,000 bushels, yet the supply reported on July 1, 1900, is about 2,000,000 bushels larger than reported on Jan. 1, 1899—eighteen months previous.

The Duerber Watch Works, at Canton, O., form the finest and most complete watch plant in the world. The twin factories producing both watch movements and watch cases are devoted exclusively to the manufacture of high-grade watch movements and watch cases. Every resource and every effort is concentrated in the single direction of making watch movements and watch cases as nearly perfect as lies within human power. All common watches are pendant set, and consequently dangerous and unreliable. The Hampden 17 jewel watch is Lever set and pronounced by all experts as the most reliable and accurate watch on the market. In buying a watch, get the very best you can afford. It will be the cheapest in the end and give the greatest satisfaction. Railroad men, in the nature of their employment, are necessarily good judges of a timekeeper. They will tell you that no watch made equals the "Special Railway 23 Jewel" manufactured by the Hampden Watch Co., Canton, Ohio. Thousands of these watches are the standard in train service, and their accuracy of movement and reliability under all conditions have earned for them the enviable reputation of surpassing all others in the world. The latest production of these Hampden factories is the smallest ladies' watch made in America. The name of this unique production is "The Four Hundred." Any lady who is the proud possessor of one of these gems has a thing of utility and beauty not exceeded by anything that money can purchase. The mechanical equipment of the Duerber-Hampden Watch factories is of the finest quality, and its experienced workmen stand without peers in the watch industry. To-day the Duerber-Hampden Works produce the greatest watch plant in the world. All first-class jewelers keep these goods, demand the Duerber-Hampden watches and accept no substitute.—Irish World, July 7th, 1900.

Roumanian Hebrews for Canada.

For a number of weeks past there has been a constantly increasing stream of Roumanian Hebrews passing through Vienna, in parties of from fifty to one hundred. Thousands of them have been compelled to desert their homes by a steady persecution which made it absolutely impossible for them to earn a livelihood.

NEBRASKA THE LAND OF PLENTY

I wonder why it is that so many men spend their days working hard on rented farms, barely making enough to get along, with no great prospect ahead of owning their own homes, when within a few hours' journey is a land of plenty—Nebraska—where all kinds of grain and fruit can be raised with the least amount of labor; where cattle and hogs fed on corn bring a handsome profit; where the climate is healthful and churches and schools abound; where land is cheap and can be bought on very easy terms.

Think of this, and if you want information about the country send to me for "The Corn Belt," a beautifully illustrated monthly paper that tells all about Nebraska, and also for "The West Nebraska Grazing Country," an interesting illustrated booklet containing a large sectional map of Nebraska. On the first and third Tuesdays of each month during the balance of this year cheap excursion tickets will be sold over our road to Nebraska, so that people may go and see for themselves. In Populistic Kansas.

Fred P. Rockwood, well known in newspaper circles in Lake and McHenry counties, is now located in the populistic belt of Kansas, having gone there as manager of the mechanical department of a Chicago printing concern establishing a branch at Atchison. He prefaces a letter to a friend and former associate residing here as follows: "Today finds me 500 miles west of God's country out in the wilds of populistic Kansas—the native heath of Ingalls, Pfeffer and Sockless Jerry Simpson. The change in the country and the people is very noticeable, especially to a native of Chicago and its suburbs, who has become imbued with a metropolitan life. The native Kansan wanders along the streets with an air of apathy which is in direct antithesis with the hustle of a Illinois product, and if one is destined to sojourn here any length of time he is apt to become inoculated with the same malady." Fred will no doubt return to civilization one of these fine days, sockless and wearing the populistic badge of identification—a spare bunch of lilies on the point of his under jaw and hayseed in his hair.

The Torrid Season.

The weather of the last week has been the most torrid experienced in this section within the memory of the the oldest inhabitant. Everything in shape of vegetation excepting corn is broiled. Humanity has been prostrated and work, in many vocations, suspended. The American desert was a summer resort compared to this section since last Saturday, when the mercury started in bright and early at 87° and flirted with the nineties and visited with the 103° on Sunday. On Monday it entered into a contract to roast the earth at a temperature of from 90 to 100° and carried it out up to Friday forenoon when a light breeze brought small relief.

She was crossing the main tracks, became confused and was struck by the engine, hurled forty feet against the fence of the camp grounds. Her skull was broken and death was instantaneous.

William Nawselt, a farmer residing at Norwood Park, was run down while walking on the tracks of the Northwestern road at the intersection of Norwood road and Sixty Fourth avenue, Monday afternoon. He was 60 years of age, married and a well known resident of that section.

For County Surveyor.

I am a candidate for the office of County Surveyor subject to the decision of the Republican County Convention at Libertyville, August 24. H. L. BOWEN.

A Great Day for the Woodmen.

Thursday, August 9, 1900 will long be remembered by the neighbors of Barrington Camp 809, M. W. A., their families, and the hundreds of their friends who filled Comstock's Grove on that day to enjoy the attractive program, witness the sports and a season of social intercourse.

The business men of Barrington contributed to the success of the picnic by closing their places of business and giving employes an opportunity to attend. From surrounding towns poured in Woodmen accompanied by their families; the young men of the adjacent county and his best girl were present—in fact most everybody was there. The village streets presented a gala appearance when at ten o'clock the big band gave a concert on the public square. At its close everybody made a rush for the shady spots down in the grove.

The weather was sweltering and the roads dusty, but the crowds didn't seem to mind that, they were out for pleasure and looked upon the heat and dust as a part of the day's program—and it was. The grove was as hot as a furnace, but all seemed happy.

The greatest attraction on the grounds was the refreshment stand and the way the lemonade, ice-cream etc., disappeared was gratifying to the committee in charge. The addresses by Hon. C. T. Heydecker and Hon. Marvin Quackenbush, were entertaining and well received. The vocal and instrumental selections by quartet and band received merited praise.

Fun started with the races. The little folks started it and the older ones kept it up. There was all kinds of mix ups during the sports. The old maids were there in all sizes, shapes and degrees of beauty—blondes, and brunettes—in search of an offer. They run a race, and a whole barrel of fun was turned loose. The bachelors—those proof against the darts fired by Prince Cupid—were there in all their manly glory. They sprinted down the course amid the plaudits of admiring young ladies. From the number of contestants in these two races it is evident that Barrington has in its midst a number who regard marriage as anything but necessary happiness.

The contest for the most popular little miss on the grounds was spirited and Mable Steffenhofer. In the contest for the most popular young lady present, Miss Ida Hutchinson carried off the prize.

The tug of war between the strong men of Lake and Cook counties was hotly and pretty evenly contested. Good natured bantering was indulged in by both teams. Cook county Samsons made the strong pull and won the prize.

Enjoyment ran rampant until evening. Each committee worked like Trojans for the success of the affair, and considering the severe heat and desire of people to keep quiet as possible, express themselves as well satisfied with the outcome.

Tenting On the Old Camp Ground.

The moon shone bright that night down by Pat Corkin's; through the woods came shouts of greeting from far and near; through the oaks that lined the banks along Fox river, could be seen the gas lamps of Barrington boys camped down there. With apologies to a popular song writer.

A handsomer, more hospitable and healthier party of gentlemen never left their happy homes to go forth and commune with nature, fight mosquitoes, wild canines, hold up the festive bovine and extract lacteal fluid, bask in the crystal waters of Fox river and trample down the floral decorations on Pat Corkin's lawn, than Messrs. G. R. Hawley, G. M. Otis, Carl Ernst, Henry Donlea and Wm. Cannon, who have been enjoying a surcease from duty in Basswood Camp the past week.

The gentlemen are not foughing it, but on the contrary are supplied with all the comforts of a home, especially a wellstocked larder, and the culinary department is in charge of chefs of local reputation. George Otis is known as a decorator, but when it comes to cooking—that's his forte. Billy Cannon can twist a brake wheel with the grace of a Chesterfield and announce a station in twenty-seven different languages, but where he excels is in the art of preparing a meal. It's a team.

The weather has been just what the boys desired and enjoyment has floated to them in chunks.

Wednesday was the day set apart for visitors, and the entertainers were prepared to take care of their large number of friends who attended the evening fete. Glenn Hawley clad in faultless attire, welcomed everybody, Henry Donlea acted as high executioner of the mosquito tribe and exhibited many dead ones large as crows. Henry was always in evidence. Carl Ernst, browned to a resemblance of well-smoked bacon, was attired in a scarlet sweater, white duck trousers, and made himself conspicuous in an effort to over feed the visitors. Geo. Otis and Billy Cannon—well their dress was perfect, their attention to visitors marked by sundry presentations of large doses of spring water and trimmings, while the man who discovered Fox river, P. Corkin, was there to assist in the night attack on the contents of the horseless carriage, and act as toastmaster. A lawn fete in that section without the presence of Mr. Corkin would be a tame affair.

A collation was served at 11 o'clock, and it was out of sight—soon after. Everybody was full—of camp fire lies, music and sandwiches. It was a swell affair if appearances count.

Tuesday the boys were surprised by a party of ladies, Misses Edith Cannon, Minnie Abbott, Ethel Robertson, Grace Otis, Nellie Donlea, Lelia Lines and Edna Hutchinson, who took possession of the camp for that day and added much to the week of enjoyment.

Tonight the boys return to town, a trifle healthier, tanned to a finish and much benefitted by their outing. The multitude so generously treated will not soon forget the outing at Basswood Camp in August 1900.
