VOL. 15. NO. 36.

BARRINGTON ILL. SATURDAY NOVEMBER 10, 1900.

$1.25 A YEAR.

PALATINE LOCALS.

A. G. SMITH, Local Editor

Dennis Putnam came home to vote.

FOR SALE:—Good platform spring wagon. Enquire at REVIEW office.

William Meyer will give a dance and raffle in Knigge's hall Thanksgiving eve.

Charlie Bogart of the Soldiers' home Milwaukee came home to help elect McKinley.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Tank of Chicago visited with Palatine friends the first of the week.

Miss Mattie Weymer and her aunt, Mrs. J. Downing, visited relatives here over Sunday.

Walter E. Daniels of Ravenswood came out to attend the club election and banquet last Friday.

FOR SALE OR TRADE—Three lots in Jefferson Park. Address Mrs. F. I. Biggs, Palatine, Cook Co., Ill.

James Harris of Chicago attended the club banquet Friday. Mrs. Harris and son came out with him for a short visit.

One man in Elk Grove wrote O. K. next to the republican column on his ballot and passed it in. Of course it didn't count.

Mrs. Paddock entertained her sister and sister-in-law, Miss Alice Stiles and Mrs. David Stiles of Mokena, Ill., over Saturday and Sunday.

Harry Rea came home last Friday for a few days' vacation and a fellow student of Northwestern University—Mr. Corliss came with him.

Chas. Seip has moved into the Ahlgrim house and rented his place to Fred Ehler of Dundee who has moved his family into it and started a saloon.

Dr. E. W. Olcott & Son, dentists, have arranged for two days of each week at their Palatine office. Dr. E. W. Olcott on Fridays and Dr. H. L. Olcott on Tuesdays.

The democratic rally last Monday night was well attended and a most successful effort on the part of that party. No comments are necessary at this time on the arguments.

Now that politics are done for for some time to come let us get together again and be citizens, patriots, and find that Mr. So and So isn't so bad after all, even though he is a—

Get your furniture of F. W. Karsten's. Special sale of stock on hand. I can save you 25 per cent on furniture. Don't buy in Chicago until you call and see me. F. W. KARSTEN.

Miss Vashti Lambert entertained a number of her teacher friends last Saturday. A bounteous dinner was served at five o'clock. Among those present were Mrs. and Miss Stiles of Mokena, Ill.; Mrs. Hanna of Chicago; Mesdames O'Keefe and Best of Arlington Heights; Miss Della Smith and Mrs. Paddock.

The pupils of the High school held an open meeting of the society at Knigge's hall last Friday night which was well attended and greatly enjoyed by those present. The program was one of the kind given at the meetings Friday afternoons and was a very interesting one. A political debate by representatives of two leading parties proved good and the judges decided in favor of Bryan's constituents. The collection was used to pay subscriptions for magazines for use of High school.

The Election.

Palatine polled only three votes in excess of the vote of four years ago although 530 were registered this year and 512 in 1896. About 25 votes were sworn in. The total number of votes cast was 484 of which 5 were thrown out, 2 being not marked at all and 2 for more than one list of candidates. There were 330 straight republican and 108 straight democratic votes cast. Four women voted for University trustees. It took the officials until 6 o'clock Wednesday morning to complete the count. The ballot on prominent officers resulted as follows: McKinley 336; Bryan 125; Yates 333; Alschuler 131; Northcott 333; Perry 139. Congress, Foss 339; Peacock 125. States Attorney, Deneen 336; Goldizer 129. Probate Judge, Cutting 336; Gridley 129. Commissioners, Hauberg 335; Organ 128; Beer 334; Stoffel 129; Carolan 344; Richardson 127; Busse 348; Stoehlike 119; Hoffman 338, Tarning 126; Steenberg 333, Bushnell 127.

Village Board Proceedings.

The Village Board met in regular session last Monday night. President Olms presided and all members present. The board accepted a street lamp from St. Paul's church. The clerk was instructed to notify J. Sturm to build a new walk on the south side of his property and repair walk on the west.

Fred Ehler petitioned for a saloon license which was granted.

The collector's report showed $53.23 collected from water consumers for the quarter ending Oct. 1.

Club Election and Banquet.

Members of the Athletic Club had a very pleasant time after their annual election last Friday night. The banquet was held in lower Masonic hall where Mrs. Bergmann served the young men one of the best suppers that one would care to meet with. Tempting dishes of salads, oysters, fruits, etc., were placed before those at the tables and all joined in the work of causing devastation to the eatables. Different ones were called upon to relate a story, incident or comment and a deal of amusement was occasioned by some. After supper the boys returned to the lodge room where progressive clinch was indulged in and Sam Snyder captured the prize, a handsome umbrella, and Bert Pierce carried off the booby prize, an umbrella of very small dimensions. The affair passed off most pleasantly for all present as these gatherings of the club have a tendency to. The following former officers were elected for the ensuing year: President—Robert Mosser. Vice-president—A. G. Sutherland. Secretary—B. L. Smith. Asst. Secy.—S. Snider. Treasurer—G. B. Stroker. H. W. Harmening and I. O. Clay members of the board of directors.

Mr. Blum Writes a Letter.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Nov. 5, 1900. Editor PALATINE REVIEW:

An article appeared in the Palatine Register which stated that I was dishonest and I would like to have you state in your paper that the editor, Mr. Paddock, is no man to talk about another man being honest. I have lived in Arlington Heights most of my life and people here know whether I am honest or not. I don't move away from a place every two years and leave debts behind. I pay my debts and think I am trusted by all who know me. I held the office of deputy sheriff for sixteen years and my neighbors in Arlington Heights went on my bond for $100,000. I don't care what Arlington Heights people read about me but I don't want to have my character talked about to strangers by one who can't stay in a place longer than it takes people to find him out. I would thank you to publish this in your paper as we have no newspaper here.

Yours truly,
MEYER BLUM.

Twice Hanged.

A former police sergeant of this city interests his friends occasionally with reminiscences of his career on the force. One of his stories is that of a man who was hanged twice. The old man had become weary of life and determined to end his earthly existence by hanging himself. He arose one night after the other members of the family had retired. Procuring a rope, he fastened one end carefully around his neck and the other to the stair rail, and then threw himself over the balustrade.

His sons awakened at the usual hour in the morning, but upon starting down stairs were horrified to see their old father hanging at the end of a rope. They cut down the body and then hastened to apprise the neighbors of the tragedy. Some of the neighbors, being great respecters of the law, advised the sons that in cutting down the body before obtaining permission from the police or coroner made them liable to imprisonment in the penitentiary. Frightened by this information, the sons hurriedly returned home and, obtaining another rope, fastened it about the neck of their father and let the body down in the position in which they had found it.

They then hunted up the police sergeant and told him of the suicide of their father. When the police sergeant reached the house, he cut down the body, but was quite surprised to find that there were two ridges around the throat. He asked for an explanation. The sons hesitated for a time, but finally confessed to the whole affair.—Baltimore Sun.

Freed by Witty Retort.

Few if any judges can be severe with a prisoner who has made them laugh. Just why this should be so is a problem for the psychologists, but that such is the case can be testified to by any one who has much to do with the courts. A case in point occurred not long ago in Center street police court. An old dandy had been arraigned on a charge of shooting craps.

"Deed, jedge, I didn't shoot no craps," protested the prisoner.

"How about it, officer?" asked the court.

"I saw him with my own eyes," said the policeman.

"No, no, jedge," still protested the dandy, "he didn't see me shootin no craps. I wasn't playin, 'deed I wasn't."

"Now, look here," said the magistrate, "which am I to believe? The officer swears positively he saw you playing, and you swear equally as positively that you were not. What am I to do?"

The prisoner evidently appreciated the unfortunate position of the court. He scratched his head in perplexity, heaved a long sigh and said:

"Waal, I dunno, jedge; we all has our troubles."

He was discharged.—New York Mail and Express.

When Cats Were Worshipped.

A mummy cat is a very curious thing. Tons of these embalmed creatures were brought to England a few years ago to be ground into bone manure. What an unromantic ending after 4,000 years' mummification! Some of the cats were bound with the ears standing erect, others laid flat. The clothes were still adhering to the mummies, though in one shipment, supposed to contain 180,000 cats, very few really complete specimens could be found.

It is supposed that the cats were of the species known as Felis maniculata, a kind formerly found in north Africa, and probably tamed by the ancient Egyptians, from which we get our domesticated pussy.

As early as 1800 B. C. tablets recorded that cats were kept in the Egyptian temples as an object of worship.

Fast Bowling.

Below is a story found in a recent book, "Talks With the Old English Cricketers," which prompts the reflection that "there were giants in those days" of the "old" cricketers.

A man who did a private business in athletic requisites at his home in Blackpool was one day approached by a man who asked him if he kept a full supply of cricket requisites.

"Certainly," was the response.

"Then," said the man gravely, "wrap me up a bottle of arnica, a paper of court plaster and an arm sling. I am going to play in a cricket match this afternoon against Jack Crossland."

No Reciprocity.

"Annie Nibbins is the meanest kind of a gossip."

"What variety is that?"

"She's the kind that doesn't tell anything herself, but gets you to tell all you know."—Chicago Record.

Detailed Reports.

Maryland—McKinley made unexpectedly large gains in Baltimore. With but six precincts missing the vote is: Bryan, 49,846; McKinley 56,879, indicating a plurality for McKinley of about 7,200. His majority in the state will almost certainly reach 11,000, the figure set by Chairman Goldsborough of the Republican state central committee. Murray Vandiver, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, concedes Maryland to McKinley.

North Carolina—Returns indicate that Bryan's majority will be not less than 30,000. Seven Democratic congressmen are elected, with two in doubt—the Eighth and Ninth districts. It is almost certain that the Republicans have carried the Ninth.

Ohio—Chairman Dick of the Republican committee claims the state by from 75,000 to 80,000 and says that the figures may reach 100,000 and possibly more. Conservative Republicans, however, are confident of a Republican plurality of 70,000 or more.

Result in Nebraska.

Nebraska—Indications are that McKinley has carried the state by from 7,000 to 10,000, although this may be changed by the western part of the state, which has always been relied upon to give a good Bryan majority.

Oregon—The state has gone decisively for the Republican electors, the plurality possibly reaching 10,000. A considerable Prohibition vote was cast. Chairman Steele of the Republican state committee claims at least 10,000 plurality for McKinley, and Chairman Sheridan of the Democratic committee concedes the state to the Republicans.

Utah—Revised returns point almost certainly to the election of the McKinley electors by a plurality under 2,000. The Democratic state ticket is probably elected. The legislature is almost surely Democratic.

Wyoming—Returns indicate a victory for McKinley in Wyoming by 2,000 majority. Mondell, Republican, for congress, is probably elected by about the same majority. The legislature will be overwhelmingly Republican.

Wisconsin—The Republicans have swept Wisconsin from one end to the other. Returns from 100 scattering precincts outside of Milwaukee show that McKinley and LaFollette will carry the state by about 110,000, a gain of 8,000 over the big wave of four years ago.

Michigan—President McKinley has carried Michigan beyond doubt. Conservative estimates place his majority at 65,000. His majority in 1896 was 41,542.

Lind Wins in Minnesota.

Minnesota—The returns received indicate that McKinley has carried Minnesota by 40,000, and that Gov. Lind, Fusion, has been re-elected by a plurality ranging from 10,000 to 20,000.

Delaware—Returns received indicate a Republican majority in New-castle county of 2,000 to 2,500. This will give the state to the Republicans by 1,200 to 1,500. The Democrats have a majority in the legislature.

Texas—Returns indicate a plurality of approximately 225,000 for the Bryan and Stevenson electors in Texas. The indications are that a solid Democratic plurality 55,000, with the Democratic counties—Warren and Sussex—missing. To offset them are missing the returns of many small towns in nearly every Republican county in the state. The indications are that the Republicans have elected six of the eight congressmen.

Iowa's Big Plurality.

Iowa—The Republicans have elected their state and national tickets in Iowa by 60,000 plurality. One congressional district—the Second—is in doubt, and Henry Vollmer, Democrat, is probably elected. The cities generally gave slight Democratic gains, which were offset by the rural Republican gains.

Maine—The Republican majority is 28,000. This is a considerable falling off since 1896. Many Republicans, counting on a sure thing anyway, remained away from the polls. The returns are as yet incomplete, and later developments may change the apparent plurality.

Massachusetts—Incomplete returns give this state to McKinley by 50,000, a falling off as compared with the plurality of 1896. Bryan won in Boston and in the larger cities of the state generally. The legislature is Republican by greatly reduced majority. The Republican state officers are elected, running ahead of presidential electors.

Connecticut—The Democrats still claim that they have elected the state ticket. The result is somewhat in doubt and may require the official count to determine. On the presidential ticket the Republicans have a plurality of 25,000 on face of present returns. This will increase with later news. The legislature is strongly Republican. All the congressional districts went Republican.

New York and Pennsylvania.

New York—Complete returns show a plurality of 31,000 for Bryan in Greater New York. The state is Republican by from 90,000 to 110,000. The congressional delegation will be a gain for the Democrats. The legislature is Republican. In Oswego McKinley received 2,364; Bryan, 2,808. That district in 1896 gave McKinley 2,628; Bryan, 2,450, making a gain of more than 400 votes for Bryan. Bryan carries the city of Elmira by several hundred. Rochester gives McKinley a majority of 4,091, against 6,233 in 1896; McKinley's loss, 2,147. For governor, Odell's plurality in the city is 1,732. Seven hundred and sixty-two districts outside of Greater New York give McKinley 72,598; Bryan, 51,841. In 1896—McKinley, 72,312; Bryan, 43,926.

Pennsylvania—McKinley and Roosevelt carried Pennsylvania by a plurality of 240,000. Senator Hardenbergh is elected, auditor-general by about 225,000 plurality. Both the Quayites and fusionists are claiming a majority in the state legislature which will elect Quay's successor in the senate.

Returns indicate the election of the following congressmen: Republicans—Bingham, Adams, Burke, Young, Morrill, Butler, Wagner, Brosius, Connell, Palmer, Olmsted, Wright, Mahon, Lewis, Evans, Jack, Dalzell, Graham, Acheson, Showalter, Bates, Sibley, Grow, Foerderer—24. Democrats—Mutchler, Green, Ryan, Polk, Hall—5. The vote in several districts is very close, and official returns may slightly alter the results.

A General Summary.

The early returns received from the east, although showing a gain for Bryan, as compared with the vote of 1896, were still of such a decisive character as to indicate the re-election of McKinley. In New York the Republicans had everything their own way. The same result was manifested in the early returns from New Jersey and Connecticut. The Republican state tickets in the three states named kept pace with the presidential ticket. In Massachusetts alone the Democrats showed encouraging gains, carrying the great city of Boston by a small plurality. Pennsylvania gave the old-time Republican plurality. Maryland also lined up in the Republican column with a plurality not quite equal to that of 1894 and 1896. Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire showed considerable losses as compared with the vote for McKinley in 1896.

The trans-Mississippi states surprised almost everybody by what looks like a complete reversal of the pluralities in 1896. It was not expected that Nebraska would go Republican at all, whereas it seems that McKinley has a small plurality. Kansas also reverses the verdict of 1896 with Utah, Minnesota and the Dakotas giving close Republican pluralities. In Iowa the Republican plurality of 1896 is somewhat reduced. Colorado and Montana seem to be for Bryan, although the latter is said to be yet in doubt. Idaho and Nevada are also said to be in some doubt, but are reasonably claimed by the Democrats.

The states of the middle west show Democratic gains. Ohio, Illinois and Wisconsin lead, while Michigan and Indiana also show gains for the Democrats.

PRESIDENT McKINLEY.

cratic delegation is returned to congress and that Hawley, the only Republican representative, has been defeated.

Kentucky—Returns from the country show big Bryan gains, with Beckham running behind his ticket. It looks as if Bryan had the state by 7,000 to 8,000. The state race, however, is very close.

South Carolina—The vote was about normal, the majority received by the Bryan electors being in round numbers 50,000. McSweeney and the full state ticket are elected, there being no opposition.

West Virginia—W. M. O. Dawson, chairman Republican state committee, estimates McKinley's plurality at 17,000, and the election of all four Republican congressmen and a majority of 20 on joint ballot in legislature, insuring re-election of Senator Elkins.

Bryan Wins in Montana.

Montana—Returns from Silver Bow county, which casts about a fourth of Montana's vote, indicate that Bryan has carried the state by something like 20,000; that the Democratic fusion state ticket is elected, and that the fusionists will have a majority in the legislature, which elects two United States senators.

North Dakota—Three hundred and twenty-six precincts in North Dakota give McKinley 2,887, Bryan 1,337. The same precincts in 1896 gave McKinley 2,433, Bryan 1,737. Chairman Kleinagle, Democratic state committee, concedes the state to McKinley by 6,000 to 8,000. Marshall, Rep., for congress is undoubtedly elected.

South Dakota—Every point heard from shows heavy Republican gains now. It looks as if the majority would be over 10,000 on the state ticket, with a sure Republican legislature. Returns are from the principal cities of the state, carrying the heaviest legislative ticket.

Colorado—Thirty precincts in Arapahoe county give Bryan a majority of 2,500. On this basis his majority in the county will be about 8,000. His majority in the state will be about 35,000.

Kansas' Heavy Vote.

Kansas—The heaviest vote in years was polled in southern Kansas. The Democrats' hope lies in the country districts. The fair weather caused nearly all the farmers to go to the polls. Fusion headquarters claim the state for Bryan and the fusion ticket. W. E. Stanley, Republican candidate for governor, predicts his own election. Sixty per cent of the German and 80 per cent of the railroad vote is claimed for Bryan by the fusion forces. This would probably carry the state against McKinley. Chairman J. Macklove of the Democratic state committee of Kansas says: "I fear Kansas has gone with the rest of the country. I guess McKinley has carried the state and the whole Republican state ticket."

Washington.

Official returns from seventy picked precincts in the state of Washington give McKinley 7,430, Bryan 3,470. Frink, Rep., for governor, 5,659; Rogers, fus., 5,490. Returns from many precincts scattered throughout the state, while giving 25 per cent less majority than in Pierce county, indicate McKinley's majority will be upward of 7,000.

Arkansas—Bryan's plurality will hardly exceed 40,000 or 45,000. The Democratic nominees for congress were elected by the usual majority.

Missouri—Indications are that Missouri has given a Democratic majority of 50,000. The normal Democratic vote was polled. The plurality for the state ticket is about 40,000. Idaho—The Democratic party may reach 10,000. In 1896 the plurality was 16,000.

Illinois—Illinois has gone for McKinley by a plurality of 60,000 to 100,000, and the Republican state ticket has been neglected. The Republican state committee claims that the state has gone Republican for the head of the ticket by 100,000; the Democratic state committee concedes McKinley a plurality in the state of 60,000 to 75,000. Returns from the state at large were scattering and did not indicate that Yates had run so far behind McKinley as to endanger his election.

Len Small, who has had charge of the legislative end of the Republican campaign, claimed that the legislature would be Republican in both houses by at least a large majority on joint ballot as was the last general assembly. He added that the scattering returns indicated that the Republicans would make a small gain in the lower house.

Secretary Nelson of the Democratic state committee at midnight claimed that the Democrats had elected 12 and possibly 13 congressmen in Illinois. He said the Democrats had carried the 2d, 3d, 4th, 5th and 6th, 13th, 15th, 16th, 17th, 18th, 19th and 21st districts.

Indiana—Steady and continued Republican gains in the precincts of the state indicate that McKinley has carried Indiana by a greater plurality than he did in 1896, when his plurality was 18,181. It seems safe to say that the Republicans have carried Indiana by not less than 20,000, and perhaps by more than 30,000.

California—George Stone, chairman of the Republican state committee, said California would give 25,000 for McKinley. Reports from all quarters show the Republican majority is increasing. He also said California would send a solid Republican delegation to congress.

New Jersey.

New Jersey—New Jersey has gone for McKinley by an overwhelming vote. State Chairman Murphy places McKinley's plurality in the state at 65,000. An impartial calculation based on all the returns at hand, makes the McKinley's majority, 137.

Latest returns from Tuesday's election indicate that President McKinley has secured at least 292 electoral votes. This is a gain of eighteen over 1896. In 1896 McKinley carried twenty-three states. Tuesday twenty-nine states elected the Republican electors. Those which turned from Bryan were Nebraska, South Dakota, Utah, Washington and Wyoming. Mr. McKinley also gained one vote from California this election, as in 1896 a presidential elector on the Democratic ticket was successful.

Congress Strongly Republican.

The Fifty-seventh congress will be more strongly Republican than the preceding one. According to the returns at hand the Republicans will have a majority of thirty-five in the lower house, while in the Fifty-sixth congress they had but fourteen. There is every indication, however, that there will be a marked decrease in Republican strength in the United States senate. In the Fifty-sixth congress the Republicans had a majority of twenty-six. In the Fifty-seventh congress the probability is that this majority will be reduced to about thirteen, because some of the states in which the Republican presidential ticket was successful elected Democratic or fusion legislatures.

Latest Returns from Illinois.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—The best returns obtainable show that in Illinois McKinley's plurality in the state outside of Cook county is 67,674, and that in Cook county he secured a plurality of 17,245, making a total plurality of 84,919.

Iowa Republican by Over 100,000.

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 8.—Semi-official returns from eighty-six of the ninety-nine counties in the state give the Republicans 266,966 votes, Democrats 178,548 votes, a plurality of 87,418, or an average of 1,000 Republicans to the county. The other thirteen counties, at the same ratio, will increase the Republican plurality to slightly more than 100,000, which is the high-water mark in the state's history. Every Republican candidate for congress is elected by increased pluralities ranging from 2,300 to 15,000.

Indiana Gives About 30,000.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 8.—Incomplete returns from all of the ninety-two counties of the state maintain the ratio of gain shown by the earliest figures and indicate that Indiana has gone Republican by a plurality somewhere between 28,000 and 32,000. The Republicans have elected nine of the thirteen congressmen and the legislature will show a Republican majority of about 40 on joint ballot. The legislature will be Republican in both branches.

Kansas Strongly Republican.

Topeka, Kas., Nov. 8.—Returns received late only tend to confirm the early estimates of the result of the election in Kansas. Practically complete returns show that McKinley has a plurality of 25,000 and that the Republican state ticket is successful by a plurality of probably 5,000 less. The legislature will be Republican in both branches, insuring the election of a Republican United States senator to succeed Lucien Baker.

Massachusetts Gives 82,988.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 8.—The vote of Massachusetts, returns having been received from every city and town, is as follows: McKinley, 239,495; Bryan, 156,507; McKinley's majority, 82,988. Vote for governor: Crane, 219,929; Paine, 121,158; Crane's majority, 88,771. The Republicans elected ten out of thirteen congressmen and the present delegation remains politically unchanged.

Democrats Gain in St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 8.—Returns from forty out of the 114 counties in the state had been received at the headquarters of the Democrats and Republicans here. They indicate a decreased Democratic majority out in the state, which will aggregate about 10,000 or 12,000. The Democratic decrease in the state is counterbalanced by the big Democratic gain of 15,000 in St. Louis.

No Doubt in Kentucky.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 8.—At a late hour tonight there remains no reasonable doubt that Bryan and Beckham have carried the state by from 4,000 to 7,000 majorities.

The most impartial estimates of the Democratic gubernatorial vote give Beckham a safe majority of not less than 4,000, while Bryan's majority is conceded to be between 6,000 and 7,000.

Plurality in New York State.

New York, Nov. 8.—Revised returns show that McKinley will have a plurality in New York state of 146,461. Bryan carried but four counties in the state. They were New York, Schoharie, Richmond and Queens.

Wisconsin Plurality 110,000.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 8.—The plurality for McKinley will be between 105,000 and 110,000. The only counties in the state carried by the Democrats were Dodge, Calumet, Jefferson, Ozaukee and Manitowish.

Latest Figures from Ohio.

Columbus, O., Nov. 8.—McKinley's plurality in Ohio will be 70,000, which is 10,000 less than Chairman Dick estimated it earlier.

To the North Pole.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 8.—Professor William H. Brewer, head of the department of agriculture of Yale, has been selected as the leading assistant of Evelyn P. Baldwin of New York City, who will have charge of the arctic expedition to be fitted out by William Ziegler, the Brooklyn merchant prince. Mr. Baldwin has arrived here to confer with Professor Brewer relative to the expedition, which may be largely recruited here. Professor Brewer had charge of the expedition to Alaska of the New York millionaire, Horriman, a year ago, and is therefore especially equipped to direct Mr. Baldwin's party.

Bryan No Candidate.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 8.—William J. Bryan is not and will not be a candidate for United States senator from Nebraska. With both sides claiming a majority on joint ballot in the next legislature, and with the chances in favor of the fusionists, the thing causing the most general conjecture in view of Mr. Bryan's defeat is settled. Mr. Bryan has made no public announcement of his intentions concerning the senatorial matter, but his word is out and will be undoubtedly kept.

To Take Police Out of Politics.

New York, Nov. 8.—Senator Thomas C. Platt announced positively that a state constabulary bill, taking the control of the police out of the hands of the local authorities in cities of the first and second classes, would be introduced and passed as soon as possible after the incoming legislature has met. He declared that the police of Greater New York had been used to coerce and intimidate voters. The enactment of the bill means the retirement of Chief of Police Devry.

McKison and Wife Seek Divorce.

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 8.—A great surprise has been caused here by a petition filed by Mrs. Robert E. McKisson against her husband, former Mayor McKisson, for divorce. The ex-mayor has filed a counter petition and it was heard in Elyria. A decree will be entered by Judge Kohler soon. Both petitioners charge neglect of duty. It is announced that the former mayor will marry a West Side lady as soon as his present matrimonial bonds are severed.

Victim of Robbery Dead.

Richmond, Ind., Nov. 8.—The brutal assault and robbery of John Houck, a well-to-do citizen of Centerville, a week ago, has now become murder. Houck having died from the effect of his injuries.

Bids Good-by to Miners.

President Mitchell made his last speech to the United Mineworkers of the anthracite region at Nanticoke, Pa., Friday night, previous to his departure for national headquarters at Indianapolis. Two thousand people packed the opera house in which the meeting was held and 5,000 thronged the street in the vicinity of the hotel, where an overflow meeting was held later. A parade of members of various trade unions also took place.

Twelve Are Killed in a Mine.

By an explosion at the mine of the Southern Coal and Transportation company at Berryburg, six miles from Philippi, W. Va., twelve men were killed and two probably fatally injured. The dead are: Ollie Marks, pit boss, Andrew Blackwell, Albert Brown, Lawrence Duncan, Pack Adams. Seven others whose names are not known. The injured are: William Marks, James Jackson.

Four Indicted at Paterson.

After the examination of six witnesses and a thorough investigation of the death of Jennie Bosschleter, the grand jury of Passaic county, N. Louis Silberstein, who has been posing at New Haven, Conn., as a Russian count worth $70,000,000 and who offered to pay $50,000 for a wife, has been arrested for deserting his first wife in Buffalo. Through the efforts of the police she was brought on to New Haven. Friday she met the young woman to whom Silberstein became engaged. The police prevented a hair-pulling match with difficulty.

Put Twins in Incubator.

Tiny twins that came to Charles C. Hammers' household at Hartford, Conn., will be put in an incubator so as to give them every possible chance for life. Both are girls. The larger weighs one and a half pounds and is 7 1/2 inches long. They are both doing nicely so far. A peculiarity of the twins is that their eyes are not yet opened. They are more like kittens than babies.

At Berne the referendum on the proposals to elect the standerath, or state council, by popular suffrage, and the nationalrath, or national council, by proportional representation, has resulted in the rejecting of both by large majorities.

FENCING A PASTIME.

A Lobster That Fights Hard for His Liberty.

That fencing is a pastime among lobsters I have no doubt from some little experience I have had with them. Once I found a lobster near low water in a pool some nine feet long by six feet wide, having a rough bottom and eight or ten inches of water on it, with a cavern at each end. Although I was armed with a crab hook, or iron gaff about three feet long the extreme darting and fencing of the lobster were too much for me to grapple with. When in the deeper caverns I found it could see me through the water as plainly as I could, so that the better constructed eyes of the genus homo had no advantage over the rough, hard stalk eyes of the crustacean, and as I could not get to gaff across it every effort I made was evaded. At last, however, by mere vigorous and energetic gaffing I made the cavern so uncomfortable for the lobster that like a lightning flash it darted between my legs and back into its old haunt. Here the same game went on, and with like results, for in a moment he was again between my legs and back into his old haunt. Finally, becoming tired of gaffing and missing (for its fencing was perfect and could not have been achieved without long practice) I declined to be beaten by a mere crustacean, and proceeded to bail out the pool. It was only by this effort that I eventually conquered it. And here I must confess that throughout the battle so deft, crafty and subtle were its actions that it was like fighting a being endowed with human intelligence. I have further proof that they manifest a severe martial spirit in the sea when hunting for food. It is nothing uncommon for fishermen when drawing up their traps in the morning to find the large claw of another lobster in the pot beside the prisoner, says the Contemporary Review, and there have been instances where three large claws have been found together with the above conditions and a lobster with one arm, as a prisoner, showing that in a recent fight the victor had lost one and the vanquished both arms. But these are only trifles when compared with that the late Sir Isaac Coffin saw when on the coast of Nova Scotia, for it is given on his authority that he once witnessed a terrible battle between two armies of lobsters, and that they fought with such fury that the shore was strewn with their claws.

Fate of the Peacemaker.

A certain traveling salesman from the Bluegrass country was wending his way over the rocky roads of the southern part of the country to reach the store of a friendly merchant before night overtook him, says the Jackson (Ky.) Hustler. As he was passing a log house near the roadside he heard a terrific noise, screams and yells within, and, rushing into the humble domicile, discovered a man whipping his wife. He seized the burly mountaineer, and entreated him to desist, when the woman quickly turned to one side and grabbed a large earthen bowl of sour buttermilk and dashed the entire lot all over the knight of the grip, who took to the creek near by as fast as his legs could carry him, with the faithful watchdog swinging to his coat tail. The next time, he says, that he runs up on a man and wife in a scrap he will let them fight it out.

About the Bathroom.

The bath itself must, of course, always be kept spotlessly clean and the taps brilliantly polished, and the linoleum covering the floor always carefully swept and washed, but even more than this is needed to make a really comfortable bathroom. A cork or rubber mat should be kept in every bathroom. Woollen mats are useless; they absorb the moisture and become unhygienic. A place should be found on the wall for a mirror—a plain one with a black frame will answer the purpose admirably; the longer it is the better, and it should be placed where there is a good light. Two wire trays should also be fastened to the wall beside the bath, and low enough to be within easy reach of the person using it. These are to hold the sponge and flannel and soap when not in use during the bath. Also shelves should be made and placed upon the walls of every bathroom. These may be of plain deal, enameled any color that is liked.

In Need of Renewal.

Apropos of the trouble the Shah is causing at Ostend, a story is being told by the "Belgium Times" of the first visit of Nasr-ed-Din, the father of the present monarch, to the king of the Belgians at the Chateau de Laeken. When he saw the queen surrounded by ladies-in-waiting, the shah said to the king, "Your harem, sire?" The question took the king so much by surprise that he did not for a moment reply, and the shah, taking his silence for consent, looked critically along the line and added, mildly, but decidedly, "You will have to renew it."—London Express.

The Question of Cheap Living.

There has been much newspaper and magazine talk of late about the possibility of properly sustaining life at an exceedingly small cost. The discussion, we believe, started from a statement that a man and wife proposed to live on 15 cents a day each for food while studying at the Chicago university. It is generally conceded that they would be able to live at that rate and possibly cheaper.

A correspondent of the Brooklyn Eagle lately furnished some facts about the cost of living in parts of Germany. The German government is trying to Germanize a large tract in the eastern part of the empire now populated chiefly by Poles. Great government farms have been established on which only Germans are employed. They are allowed a ration which costs 9½ cents a day. It consists of half a pound of meat each week, potatoes, rye flour, a little rice and cheap coffee. Protests against this cheap food led to the discovery that many Germans live at a cheaper rate. The actual expense of a family of six for the food upon which they had lived for six years averaged only 8 1-3 cents a day for each. This ration consisted of 6 pounds of meat a week and 62 pounds of potatoes for the six persons. Such a diet as this may sustain life, but it can hardly be considered a nourishing fare. It may satisfy the pangs of hunger and fill the stomach, but it is not sufficient to furnish that nourishment which the human body requires.

Doubtless people generally live more expensively in the matter of food than is either necessary or conducive to the best physical results, though on the whole it is better to be overfed than underfed. At all events it is a good deal more satisfying. The exploitation of the matter, however, is not altogether fruitless, since its avowed purpose is to ascertain what foods, taken in what proportion, keep the body at its highest efficiency. But most of us will prefer that the experiments with cheap foods be tried on the other fellow.

The saw palmetto, indigenous to the soil of several of the southern states, which has long been regarded as a nuisance, turns out to be a decidedly useful shrub, and the jungles of palmetto scrub, heretofore regarded as worse than waste, may yet become a source of much wealth. The medicinal properties of the saw palmetto have recently been discovered and have been found to be especially valuable in kidney and kidney troubles. The tannic acid in its roots can be extracted at small cost, and already proprietary medicines derived therefrom have appeared in the market. Its most important use, however, is likely to be in the manufacture of paper. A factory has already been established in Pensacola, Fla., which turns out paper of an excellent quality. Thus the hitherto despised saw palmetto promises to furnish a new and extensive industry for the south.

According to a Chicago paper, a woman in that city has invented a machine for the measuring of human emotions. This ought to fill a long felt want, but the machine would have to be built very strongly. In measuring feminine emotions on certain occasions it would have to do mighty quick work and register a good many conflicting emotions at practically the same time. It ought, however, to be a good thing for lovers. Heretofore there has been little reliable evidence as to the exact amount of love which one person may have for another, and this machine for measuring emotions would enable the young and ardent lover to correctly gauge the intensity of the affections of his sweetheart and indicate to him whether they had reached what Shakespeare calls the "sticking point."

The great success that the beet sugar industry has attained in Germany should serve as an impetus to the firm establishment of that industry in this country. Assuredly if the comparatively small area covered by the German empire, with its climate at the best no better than the worst of ours and its soil in the same general category, can produce beet sugar in such great quantities as not only to practically supply the domestic market, but to furnish also a large surplus for export, a result at least as satisfactory can confidently be looked for in the United States.

British Fight For the Ballot.

"The late president of the Boer republic has taken his Bible under one arm and Mrs. Kruger under the other and gone to visit his relatives in Holland. He has become a uitlander without a vote and is on a level with a woman. Awful descent!" says Ida Husted Harper. "This South African war, with its terrible sacrifices, was waged ostensibly for the purpose of obtaining the franchise for about 40,000 Englishmen who had gone to that country not for the purpose of building it up, but to get what they could of its treasures. They demanded the ballot. The Boers refused it, both sides recognizing that herein lay the source of power. Thousands of lives and millions of property seemed a small price to pay for this valuable privilege, and yet England at home refuses it absolutely to 2,000,000 native born English women.

"For over 30 years these women have made every possible effort to secure the franchise, sending to parliament petitions containing hundreds of thousands of names, and have seen the question voted down again and again. Among its strongest opponents have been the very men who have been most eager to plunge the country into a war to obtain this same concession for a little handful of Englishmen on a foreign soil. A fragmentary suffrage they have been successful in obtaining, but the parliamentary ballot, the one far beyond all others in the power which it confers, is resolutely withheld.

"In framing the recent local government bill the most important right which women possessed, that of a seat in the London vestries, was boldly taken away from them by parliament because women cannot vote for members of that body and therefore have no influence over its actions. What a satire! A year's relentless war to secure for Englishmen what they themselves deny to the women of their own households."

Dr. Wettler, professor of physiology in the Illinois State university, has been analyzing the causes of nervousness in the American people. He says: "The primary cause of modern nervousness is modern civilization, with its high living, its keen competition, its exhausting rounds of amusements, its rivalry of wealth and station, its fads, follies and fashions, its sensationalism, its superficiality and mental bulimia, its self indulgence, luxury and unnatural excitement. And this is undoubtedly true if to these causes be added the dissipation and irregular habits of the individual, the roar and stress of city life, the ceaseless routine of business and the narrowing tendencies of the intense industrialism and refined specialism of the present age. Concentration, strenuousness and uninterrupted expenditure of mental and physical energy are not conducive to quiet nerves, though even these may be borne under proper conditions by a nervous constitution that is free from hereditary taint." Dr. Wettler, however, holds that "civilization must go on, and if nerve force fails it must be regenerated in some other way than by schemes to check competition and human progress." Simpler modes of life is one of the remedies he suggests and better attention to the fostering of mental and physical vigor.

It is strange that the trend of modern governments toward republicanism has not awakened the royalties of the old world to the imminent danger of the loss of their prerogatives and privileges. The new king of Italy is certainly not wanting in sense or wisdom, and his country is rife with republican ideas, and yet he is reported as saying: "I will not give up one of the royal prerogatives. On the day when I cannot maintain them I will abdicate." This "royal prerogative" idea is the rock upon which many a royal hope has sunk. Italy's young king has yet to learn that in these days of progress "royal prerogative" lasts only as long as it is in accord with the wishes of the ruled. The days of "I am the state" in enlightened communities are long past, never to return.

The St. Louis justice of the peace who announces with the hope of increasing his business that he will kiss no brides joined in wedlock by him must be a very homely man and conscious of the fact.

Of Service to Our Readers.

[From the Camden, S. C., Messenger.] We know of no way in which we can be of more service to our readers than to tell them of something that will be of real good to them. For this reason we want to acquaint them with what we consider one of the very best remedies on the market for coughs, colds, and that alarming complaint, croup. We refer to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. We have used it with such good results in our family so long that it has become a household necessity. By its prompt use we haven't any doubt but that it has time and again prevented croup. This testimony is given upon our own experience, and we suggest that our readers, especially those who have small children, always keep it in their homes as a safeguard against croup. ## Attention

We beg to announce to our patron and the public in general that we now have a complete stock of the most stylish fall and winter hats, which have never been seen before in this village or vicinity. Instead of buying your hats ready-made and having them trimmed over, buy your hats at the right place, which is our millinery store. Have your hats trimmed the first time according to your taste. We offer to repair any hat brought to us free of charge. To give you an idea of our cheap prices, we let you know that you can get a fine trimmed hat from $1.25 up. We sell our ladies men's and children's heavy fleec-lined and woolen underwear and our complete stock of dry goods at reduced prices.

Give us a trial and be convinced that ours is the cheapest store in Barrington and vicinity.

F. L. Carr spoke at the democratic rally at Lake Zurich Monday.

Ben Stillings of Pistaqua Bay called on J. F. Freund and family Saturday.

Messrs. E. W. Brooks and J. S. Hass transacted business in the city Monday.

J. F. Grosvenor came out from the city Friday to attend the funeral of his grandfather, Mr. Gray.

Martin Murray of Chicago is spending a few days with his relatives and friends in our village and vicinity.

If your children are fretful, peevish and cross, mother the same, ditto the boss, it would seem proper to give 'em all Rocky Mountain Tea. 35 cents. Ask your druggist.

FARM FOR RENT—The Higley and Hawley farm, comprising about 300 acres, will be rented for a term of years to responsible tenant. Inquire of Fred Hobelin, Barrington. tf Messrs. L. E. Golding, H. T. Graham, Orton Hubbard and C. W. Sowle came out from the city Saturday evening to spend a few days vacation and cast their presidential vote.

Druggist Morgan of Crawfordville, Ind., says: Dr. Caldwell's Syrup of Pepsin is a medicine I can conscientiously recommend as it does just what you claim. It is the best laxative I ever saw. Sold by Chas. E. Churchill.

Little Nora Tekampe met with a serious accident Monday afternoon. Mr. Tekampe had been digging potatoes and was loading them into the wagon when the child attempted to climb on the wagon. Just as she mounted the wheel the horse started twisting her leg and breaking it above the knee. She was brought to the home of C. A. Hapke, Dr. Wells was summoned who set the limb. The little one is getting along nicely.

D. Brown drove his team up in front of the Cash store, Monday, and leaving them untied stepped inside after some parcels. But meantime the horses started off. They went up as far as the corner of Mill and Main streets going as far as the Oakland hotel, turned and went down and turned again and went up Bangs street. Here they were stopped by Mr. Brown assisted by Messrs. George Pratt, Jr., J. W. Gilbert and J. M. Clark. Luckily no damage was done.

Last Sunday evening the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wheelock met with quite a serious mishap. He was playing about the house with some playmates add seeing a feed cutter by the barn proceeded to examine it. He placed his hand in the cutter when the knives were started in some manner and clipped off the third and fourth fingers, skipping the second, cutting the first so that it hung by the skin. The child was taken to Dr. Wells' office, the wounds dressed and the first finger put back with a few stitches.

VILLAGE BOARD PROCEEDINGS.

Board of Village Trustees met on Monday evening with all members present. Minutes of last two meetings read and approved.

The following bills were read and referred to the finance committee:

A. G. Schruerman, lumber.....$ 19 08
Globe Lt. and Heat Co, chimneys..... 2 81
Harry Selp, tile..... 7 20
G. E. Jenks, hauling gravel..... 6 75

Geo. Boughton, repairs on lamps..... 2 05
G. P. VanNetta, hauling gravel and tile 19 00
K. V. Werden, express, cartage, postage 60
Fuller & Wentworth, incidentals..... 2 50

Moved and carried to allow bills and orders be drawn on treasurer for the same.

An ordinance relating to the licensing billiard and pool rooms in the village of Wauconda was brought up for the second reading. Moved and seconded to lay same on table. Vote on motion; Neville, J. M. Fuller, H. T. Fuller, aye. Jenks, Cook, Brooks, and President, no. Motion lost. Moved and seconded that roll be called on the passage of the ordinance. Vote, J. M. Fuller, H. T. Fuller, no; Neville, Jenks, Cook and Brooks, aye. Carried.

An ordinance defining and fixing the name of a street in the village was read for the second time, and passed. A committee was empowered to investigate in regard to opening the said street and report at a special meeting.

LAKE ZURICH.

Election is over and everybody is satisfied.

Winter weather made its appearance Thursday.

Miss Mary Courtney was a Barrington visitor Monday.

Mrs. Givens and daughter visited friends at Wauconda the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Eichman were at Plum Grove this week visiting friends and relatives.

F. L. Carr of Wauconda closed the campaign for the democrats here last Monday night and delivered a good address.

E. A. Ficke, who has been quite ill, is reported considerable better. It is hoped he will soon be able to attend to his work again.

J. D. Lamey & Co. have a large stock of kalsomine, which will make an excellent finish for walls. Give them a call.

O, beauty! what a powerful weapon thou art. The bravest men fall at thy feet. No wonder women take Rocky Mountain Tea to prolong that joyous spell. Ask your druggist.

New York's Slaveship.

When New York city owned a slaveship is told in an article in Pearson's Magazine. The greatest impetus was given to the slave trade by the act of parliament of 1684, which legalized slavery in the North American colonies. This does not mean that slavery was unknown in what is now the United States before that time, because as early as 1620 a Dutch man-of-war landed and sold 20 African negroes at Jamestown, Va.

In 1626 the West India company imported slaves from the West Indies to New York city, then New Amsterdam. The city itself owned shares in a slaveship, advanced money for its fitting out and shared in the profits of its voyages. This recognition and encouragement may account for the astounding fact that in 1750 slaves formed one-sixth of the entire population of New York. The general prevalence of slavery is shown by the fact that at this time there were 67 slaves in New York's small suburb of Brooklyn, and that in London itself there were resident 20,000 slaves.

Slaves were at that time publicly dealt in on the London exchange. No wonder the traffic in human flesh was a recognized commerce, and that in 1771 the English alone sent to Africa 192 ships equipped for the trade and with a carrying capacity of 47,146 slaves per trip.

A Tricky Dog.

Not long ago a very fat spaniel was introduced into the house where a fox terrier had always been the master. The latter was told, however, to behave well to the newcomer and not to bully him. So the two seemed fairly friendly and in the end got in the habit of taking short rambles together.

However, the fox terrier was evidently of a thoughtful disposition and on one occasion came across a bank, or wall, which was easy enough to leap off, but there was greater difficulty in returning. The fox terrier sprang down the bank and enticed his heavy companion to follow, with the result that the latter could not get back, while the former, by reason of his greater activity, was easily able to do.

Now the terrier saw his opportunity, returned home and cruelly left his companion lamenting. Never did the former seem happier or gayer than on that day when he had once more the sole run of the house, and he sulked when later on the spaniel had been found, assisted up the wall and brought home.

Since then the fox terrier has repeatedly got the spaniel down the same place, with the usual result, and seems to glory in his mischievous act. Whether the "fat dog" will learn to avoid temptation to such a ramble remains to be seen.—Buffalo News.

How "David Harum" Came to Be Written.

An interesting little anecdote is told about how "David Harum" came to be written: It is rather pathetic. It seems that Mr. Wescott, the author, was the kind of man who could do pretty much anything—paint a picture, plan a house or compose a sonata—but he had never made much money, so when he became ill and realized that he might not live long and would leave his family with little or no money he was desperate.

"Write a book," suggested a friend and neighbor to him one day when they were talking over the situation.

"I did make an attempt at it once," answered Mr. Wescott. "I tried a love story, but I couldn't make it go."

"Add a little local color to it," said the first speaker. "Take one of the people about here that you know and work him up—old —, for instance," mentioning a character familiar to them both. "He'd be first rate."

"That's a good idea!" exclaimed Mr. Wescott, and the result of this conversation was "David Harum," and yet "David" was never in the story at all as it was first conceived.—Anna Wentworth in Woman's Home Companion.

Belaying His Jaws.

Shark stories, with some reason, are commonly received with incredulity. A well authenticated anecdote, however, is told of Dr. Frederic Hill, an English surgeon of distinction.

A man fell overboard in the Indian ocean and almost into a shark's mouth. Hill, who was standing close to the rail, grabbed a belaying pin and without hesitation jumped to save the sailor.

The great brute was just turning on his back to bite, when Hill drove the belaying pin right through both jaws. Both men were got on board again unharmed.

"Perhaps that fellow won't want another toothpick. Has any one got a clean shirt to lend? This was my last," were the only words of the rescuer.

Experience Versus Theory.

"Marcus Aurelius says," the professor began, "that nothing happens to anybody which he is not fitted by nature to bear."

"Oh, that's rot!" replied the man who had eloped at the age of 21 with a girl whom he had known three weeks. "Just tell Marc for me that he has another guess coming."—Chicago Times-Herald.

A Sacrifice To Conscience

BY
H. B. Welsh

CHAPTER IV.—(Continued.)

He looked at the girl. She wore a plain gown of some cheap grey stuff, simply made, and a narrow white collar; but the gown nearly touched the floor, and Enderby was astonished at the change the different garb wrought in her. She now looked a girl of seventeen. Her figure was very slender, but the grey gown showed soft, womanly curves.

Then he glanced into her face. A slight color was in the cheeks, her eyes were soft and dreamy. There was something in the whole face wonderfully gentle and sweet, yet the mouth spoke of firmness and steady purpose.

Enderby was the first to speak. "I hope your ankle is better now, Miss Lloyd?"

"Oh, thank you, yes! It is nearly well again," she answered quickly. "I do not think it could have been a sprain after all. I bathed it with a lotion, and it is only stiff now. You see, I understand a little about doctoring people," she added, with a slight smile.

"I am very glad," he answered. "And your father—how is he?"

The girl's face quivered a little. "He is a little better than he was that night, or he would not be here now. But he is still very ill."

"And the doctor you wished—Doctor Lyndon. Have you found him?" Enderby asked.

His voice was hardly under his control as he put the question.

She hesitated a moment; then answered:

"Yes; I have found him. He has been to see my father, and says he thinks there is no immediate danger."

"Perhaps he knows your father's constitution well? I suppose that is the reason why you were so averse to having a stranger?" said Enderby. "By the way, I know a Doctor Lyndon, and wonder if he is the same man. A Doctor Dundas Lyndon—a slender man, with brown hair, a good complexion, grey eyes, and wearing a beard."

"Yes, that is he," said the girl, with a reluctance in her words. "Then you know him, Mr. —"

Enderby started, then smiled.

"Why, I believe I have never told you my name! How stupid of me! It is Paul Enderby. I am a barrister by profession, and met Doctor Lyndon only the other day. Do you know him well, then? He is an intimate friend?" "Of my father, he seems to be," the girl answered slowly. "But I have not known him for very long. You see, we have been abroad—" She drew herself up sharply, then looked at Enderby with a sudden fall in her eyes. "Oh, you must forget that, Mr. Enderby! Will you? I have no right to talk about my father's affairs."

"Don't be afraid. A lawyer learns to keep his own counsel, Miss Lloyd," said Enderby.

But a sudden chill had fallen upon him as the girl spoke. He stood for a moment silent, then looked up and spoke.

"Miss Lloyd, will you answer me one question? Your name is a Welsh one; is it possible you are of Welsh descent?"

"I think my mother was Welsh; but I am not sure about my father," said the girl. "You see I was away from my parents for a long time, Mr. Enderby. When I was quite a little girl, an aunt—a sister of my father's—took me to stay with her. My father was very poor then, so poor that he had to teach in a private house; he was a tutor, I think. Did you speak, Mr. Enderby? I thought you did. Then, I joined my father later on, when—But I must not say any more."

She looked into Enderby's face with sweet, childlike, trusting eyes. Enderby felt himself a traitor, though he had done no harm to either the girl or her father.

This was the man, then! His vague suspicions had been correct. How strangely, how wonderfully Fate—or rather Providence—had thrown these people in his way—the very man whom he was to prove guilty of a base and terrible crime!

And Dundas Lyndon? Somehow, the thought of this man made Enderby's heart grow vaguely prescient of evil. What part did he play in the arena of human sin and suffering that he should be trusted both by Sir Henry Lennox, and by the man whose crime it had been Sir Henry's part to prove? Suddenly the girl said:

"Will you allow me to go up and tell my father you are here, Mr. Enderby?"

I told him how you had helped me, and I think he will see you."

"I should like very much to see Mr. Lloyd," said Paul earnestly.

And the girl left the room. She returned in a short time.

"My father says he would like to see you, Mr. Enderby. Will you come this way?"

He followed her across the dingy corridor, until she paused before a door and opened it. He found himself in a room much more comfortably furnished than the other. A bed stood in the center, with a white coverlet laid neatly over it; the room was as tidy and clean as it could be.

Beside a small fire—the sun was shining brightly outside—stood a comfortably-cushioned easy chair, and in it, clad in a somewhat old and worn dressing gown, sat the mere shadow of a man—a thin, emaciated creature, whose long limbs and evident height seemed to make his emaciation more marked. His hands, almost skin and bone, were crossed on his knees; a paper lay between them. He turned his face toward the door as they entered, and Enderby saw it fully. It was a face that had once been a handsome one, gentle and refined; but now the bloodless lips, the hollow cheeks, the sunken blue eyes, the temple, over which thin gray hair kept straying, made it more like the face of a dead man than of a living one.

A strange feeling of mingled pity and compunction moved in Enderby's heart as he came forward to the chair.

"I am sorry to see you looking so ill, Mr. Lloyd," he said, as the sick man made a gesture to rise, bowing as he did so. "Do not rise, I beg of you."

"Jasmine, will you place a chair for Mr. Enderby?" said the sick man. It was the first time Paul had heard the girl's name, and he turned to look at her as she brought forward the chair.

Jasmine did not raise her eyes, but she must have felt the look she did not see, for a second blush dawned in her cheeks. For the moment she seemed a woman in the first glorious dawn of womanhood.

She placed the chair, then almost noiselessly withdrew from the room. Her father glanced to see if she was gone, then he turned to Paul.

"Mr. Enderby, you were very kind to my poor little girl the other night, and for that let me beg to thank you. We have few friends, my child and I. We are poor and unknown; and therefore friendless. For me it matters little, but for my child I feel sorry at times that it should be so. I sometimes wonder what would happen to her if—I died. Yet surely God would raise up friends—the God who has never quite forsaken me, however low I have fallen."

He spoke in a quiet, gentle voice—the voice of a recluse who is more accustomed to think than to speak; and Enderby glanced at him quickly. Was it possible that this man could be a criminal—this gentle looking, emaciated, and now evidently dying man, the father of Jasmine? Or was it as Sir Henry had said, that he was really insane, at least on one point?

"I thought, from what your daughter said, Mr. Lloyd, that you had at least one friend," he said, determined to probe the matter as far as he could. "Doctor Lyndon."

The sick man was startled at the name, and looked up sharply.

"Ah, yes—Doctor Lyndon! He was my friend—once," he said slowly, "and now also, I suppose. Yet sometimes—What was I about to say?" he broke off suddenly. "Mr. Enderby, there is something in you which seems to draw my confidence; or is it that I have been so long exiled from kindly humanity that I am eager to seize the first hand stretched out to me? But at least you are kind and generous; so much I know from what you did for Jasmine. I should like if you would come to see me again. Will you?"

"I shall be very glad to do so," said Enderby, almost eagerly. "May I come on Sunday? I have more time at my disposal then."

"Thank you," said the sick man faintly. He stretched out his wasted hand, and Enderby could not but take it, yet again he felt a traitor. Jasmine let him out.

"I am so glad you came," she said in a low voice—and he saw a mist come over the soft eyes. "He knows no one, and sometimes I think, if only he could speak of what is preying on his mind, he would be better."

"Then there is something?" Enderby said, holding the small hand with an unconscious close grasp. She checked herself again.

"You must not let father know that I said that!" she exclaimed eagerly. "Good-by, and thank you so much!"

"Good-by," he returned. As he went down the long stairs he wondered again if he were a traitor.

CHAPTER V.

"Do you think I shall soon be all right, Lyndon?"

"I certainly think so; with care and good nursing, such as Miss Jasmine is able to give you, you will soon be as well as any of us."

"I must get well soon," said the sick man, with a flash of passion. "Lyndon, I can't die and leave my child with this horrible stigma on her name. I have made up my mind to write to Sir Henry, and if he refuses to do anything then, I must tell the truth."

Dr. Dundas Lyndon stood silent for a moment. There was no change in his smooth, freshly colored face; his light eyes were on the ground. Presently he raised them, and looked at his patient.

"You must not tell me these things, old friend—you really must not. I am simply a doctor, and am doing the best I can for you; but I should much prefer if you did not speak to me of these matters. Now I must go. You will take your medicine as usual, and I shall call again tomorrow."

"Lyndon," said the invalid, a little huskily, "you are too kind to me. How am I to repay you for all the kindness you show me—and gratuitously?"

"Tush, man!" said the doctor—but an observant watcher might have fancied that he turned slightly paler now. "Is that much for one to do for an old friend? We have known each other these fifteen—seventeen years—since you were my coach, Lloyd."

He went away, and Jasmine stole back to her father.

There was a strangely cruel expression on Dundas Lyndon's face as he turned toward the door for a moment.

"Yes," he muttered, between set teeth; "I am doing my best for you—and for us all—David Lloyd."

Jasmine sat down at her father's feet on a low hassock.

"The doctor thinks you are better today, daddy?"

"Yes, little one. Perhaps I shall be better soon now, Jasmine. I hope so. There is the work I have so often spoken of to you to be done yet."

"Yes, dear."

The girl looked into the fire—they had always to have a small fire burning, even when the sun was shining warmly out of doors—her brown eyes soft and dreamy.

It was strange how really little Jasmine Lloyd knew of her father.

She had been, as she told Enderby, brought up by an aunt who lived in Cornwall, while her father, whose wife had died when Jasmine was very young, had acted as tutor in private families.

Then, when she was twelve, there came a sudden summons for her. It came in the shape of a sea-captain, who brought a letter from her father. Jasmine was to go out to him; the captain would take care of her.

She was taken to a wild, little-known place in California; there her father was making a poor living by schoolmastering the miners' children and conducting the "St. Jago Argus." She was happy enough in that lovely, warm climate of rich luxuriance and fertility; her father was good to her, wonderfully gentle and kindly.

Then had come the upheaval of her life again. News had come to her father which agitated him terribly, and in a week's time they were on their way home. They came to London and took the shabby two-roomed flat in Burdon Mansions. Her father wrote articles on California for some papers.

Then came the first visit of Doctor Dundas Lyndon, which agitated her father again. Soon after he was taken ill, and sent for Doctor Lyndon.

That was four months ago. Since then he had been steadily growing worse, until that terrible night when the lives of Paul Enderby and Jasmine Lloyd came in touch.

Her father had told her vaguely there was a work he had to do in England, and she knew, more by instinct than by anything he said, that some terrible cloud of disgrace or fear hung over her father's life. But she did not ask him to tell her what it was. She waited patiently until the time came when he should be willing to divulge it to her; and meantime she loved her father with all her heart, and trusted in him implicitly.

She broke the silence presently. "Father, you know Doctor Lyndon very well, don't you?"

"Yes, my child, he was my friend years ago."

"If it were not for that," said Jasmine, slowly, "I think I should ask you, dear, if you really trusted him. I don't, father."

PURE BLOOD AND STRONG NERVES

With glowing health all things are possible, small annoyances fade into nothingness and real troubles are battled with successfully. Women who are blessed with perfect health are a constant joy to themselves and all around them. The beauty which health alone can make permanent is a crown which raises a woman above other women. Such beauty is always accompanied by a sweet disposition, for snappishness is a sure sign of ill-health and leaves its mark quickly on the features.

It seems to be the fashion for women to ignore health and sacrifice it to the little every-day trials, or offer it up on the altar of devotion to daily tasks. Then again the nervous organization of women is constantly attacked by woman's natural experiences, so that it is practically impossible for her to retain the beauty which nature gave her, unless she has discriminating advice and right support.

Dr. Greene's Nervura

for the Blood and Nerves.

Trials and troubles are easily overcome by the women whose strength is the genuine strength of perfect health. Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, bridges the chasm that separates the sickly woman from happiness. It fills her veins with blood that is pure and clean.

Mrs. WM. E. Bosse, of 85 Farrington St., Flushing, L. I., says:

"In regard to myself, I have suffered for years with disease, having been troubled with great nervousness, female complaints, indigestion, and great weakness and prostration. I did not have strength to do much of anything. Knowing the great value of health and strength I consulted doctors and took many medicines, but they all failed to cure me, and I grew worse rather than better. I happened to see in the papers how much good Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, was doing in restoring to health everybody who took it, and I thought I would try a bottle. I used it and to my surprise I began to gain strength every day. I am so thankful that I tried it! It is certainly the most excellent tonic and strength giver. I recommend it very highly and wish that other people who are troubled in any way would take warning and use it."

TO PRESERVE WOMANLY BEAUTY

At all the stages of a woman's life Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, is shown to be efficient to ward off the results of nervousness, or overwork, or impure blood. From early girlhood to advanced years, this world-renowned medicine builds up the forces destroyed by disease, grief, or overexertion, and the effects of this great medicine are quickly felt and permanently retained. Let women guard well their health, and consult Dr. Greene freely. Nothing they can possibly do will so surely keep them strong and well, or repair the exhaustion from acute illness, nothing will work so continually to the preservation of beauty as the great health-giving Nervura. Dr. Greene's office is at 35 West 14th Street, New York City, where he may be consulted either by personal call or by letter. Women may write in perfect confidence, and get Dr. Greene's advice free.

Home of Joan of Arc.
Just beyond the church is the Joan of Arc cottage, an ugly building which has no charm in itself or in its surroundings, says Clifton Johnson in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly. It looks more like a big shed than anything else, for the roof all slants one way from a very high wall at the front to a very low one at the back. The inside is kept as a museum and it has all the museum's blankness and stiffness, with no suggestion of its ever having been occupied as a home. The old garden at the rear, with its narrow paths and little plots of flowers and vegetables, happily has about it a real touch of humility and you can fancy it is not unlike what it was in Joan's day and the mind easily calls up the scene in those twilight hours long ago when the bells of the near church rang and the voices spoke to the humble shepherd maiden.

Operators and Miners Meet and Discuss Mutual Interests—Site Purchased for Catholic College for Boys—Aurora Zouaves Go to Europe.

Operators and Miners Meet.

A meeting of the operators and miners of the Danville coal district and state and district officers of the United Mine Workers of America was held in the armory in Danville to discuss mutual interests. The state officers present were: President Hunter of Streator, Vice President Russell of Tilton, Secretary Ryan of Springfield. Members of the executive board: Ed Cahill, Virden; Eugene Zellars, Athens; James Beattie, Springfield; Thomas Reynolds, Carlinville; Thomas Jeremy, Duquoin; W. E. Smith, Coal City; Oscar Horton, Nastoria. The operators were William Garraghty of Chicago, G. P. Sandmyer, M. Kelly, O. L. Ridgely, Superintendent. Halbert of the Westville Coal company of this city, Bernard Himrod of Chicago and J. E. Windsor of Chicago, salesman for the district. Friday a meeting was held by the operators and hoisting engineers of Illinois and Indiana to fix the scale for the next year.

Fail to Prove Seer's Words.

The Chicago police have so far been unable to locate Moses Pearson, the aged Nashville (Tenn.) man who has been missing since Aug. 22 and who was traced to Chicago by aid of a clairvoyant. H. M. Brennecke, father of the missing man, is still confident that he made his way to Chicago and that he met with foul play in that city. He declares he will pursue the search until he finds some more tangible trace of the missing man than is furnished by the register of the Palmer house. The clairvoyant declared that on Aug. 25 Mr. Pearson registered at the Palmer house under the name of A. W. Walker. Such a name appears on the register for that day the seer further declared that Pearson left the hotel and went to a three-story frame house bearing a door plate of "Mrs. Warner." This neither the police nor the son-in-law have been able to confirm.

Rockefeller Is Displeased.

John D. Rockefeller, the patron saint of Chicago university, is much displeased at the notoriety attracted to the university by recent utterances of some of the professors. Prof. Trigg comparing him to Shakespeare was the last straw. Mr. Rockefeller immediately sent a letter to President Harper commanding that professors refrain from the use of his name in any connection. The note is also said to have mentioned something about idiots and to have suggested an insane asylum. The letter was the cause of a star chamber meeting of the faculty in Dr. Harper's room, in which the doctor commented upon some of the "pyrotechnical, irrational and, sensational statements" recently made by members of the faculty to their classes.

Raid on Blind Pigs.

A wholesale raid of "blind pigs" took place in Englewood Friday morning. Eight warrants were sworn out by C. W. Jones of the Law and Order league, Chicago. The warrants were served in time to bring the prisoners before Justice Duggan at the regular morning session of court. Information concerning the alleged "blind pigs" was secured by an officer detailed by Inspector Hunt.

Instruction to Daughters of Rebekah.

A district school of instruction for the third district of Illinois, Daughters of Rebekah, opened at Carbondale, with delegates present from all the nineteen lodges in the district. State President Olive J. Blackman of Harrisburg and State Secretary Lola L. Richards of Decatur have charge of the work. A banquet was given in Odd Fellows' hall.

Buy Site for Boys' School.

Bishop Jensen of the Belleville Catholic diocese has purchased Glen-Addie, a country house, ten miles west of Lebanon, and will establish there a new Catholic college for boys, which he says will make the best of its kind in the central west. Glen-Addie consists of a large tract of land and a mansion erected in 1865 by Colone Morrison, a hero of the Blackhawk war. It is one of the finest country places in the state.

Aurora Zouaves Go to Europe.

The Aurora Zouaves, victors in the three last fancy drill national tournaments, have been engaged by a well-known circus for their European tour this winter. They will leave to appear with the circus first in Vienna, Austria, on Jan. 1. In national tournaments the Aurora Zouaves have competed with and won over the Chicago Zouaves and the Walsh Zouaves of St. Louis.

Stirring music was rendered by the league choir. Elegant refreshments were served and the good nights left glad memories."

The boys along this end of the Wisconsin Division are having considerable sport with a well known engineer who howled for Bryan until election day and then flopped to the Hannaites. His brother engineers assisted by several other railway men, dunked the deserter in a bath tub filled with ice cold aqua pura until he gave three lusty cheers for the defeated champion of the paramount issue.

Betting on election results was lively in Barrington Monday and Tuesday evening. Up to 7 o'clock on the day of election democrats were so confident in the success of their candidate for governor that they were willing to wager even money and some were wild enough to give odds. Republican money was plenty, and although no large bets were placed the number of small ones footed up a good sized total.

Wednesday marked the opening of the winter season. The cold wave which swept down upon us Thursday was announced ten days in advance, still it found many unprepared to receive it. There was a hurrying of the coal and wood supply and the head of the family hustled around and got the heater fired up. The mercury played around 25 above zero Thursday and on Friday touched the 30 mark.

From an exchange we clip the following bit of truth: "If the church members would quit finding fault with the preacher's methods, manners and expressions, and turn their hypercritical microscopes upon their own attitude, actions and expressions concerning church affairs, where they have full power to apply the remedy to faulty conditions, the kingdom of Heaven would advance with a majestic sweep instead of with jerky, halting steps."

Hawley Bros. have decided to go out of the dairy business and will sell at public auction on Tuesday, November 13, at 10 o'clock, all the dairy interests, consisting of 38 head of Holstein heifers from 2 to 3 years old, some with calves, balance coming in soon; 31 dairy cows, some fresh and some coming in soon, 12-year-old stock bull, 4 farm horses. Wm. Peters will cry the sale. Hawley Bros. will go into the cattle feeding business.

Mrs. C. B. Otis entertained the Thursday club by giving a luncheon Thursday afternoon. The occasion was a very pleasant one and greatly enjoyed by all present. The usual program was given, vocal music rendered by Mrs. Austin and Mrs. Robertson and instrumental music by Miss Beulah Otis. Luncheon was served at two finely appointed tables. The decorations were carnations and roses. After luncheon a short program was enjoyed, consisting of singing by the club ladies and readings by Mrs. M. C. McIntosh. Mrs. Otis was assisted in receiving her guests by her daughters, Mrs. Robertson and Miss Grace Otis. About thirty were present.

A SWEEPING VICTORY

For McKinley, Sound Money and Continued Prosperity.

The national election of 1900 has passed into history. William McKinley has been reelected to the presidency by a large majority of the electoral vote. The people of the nation deemed it unwise to change the administration of the government at this critical period. The country has enjoyed, under the present administration, an era of general prosperity and no doubt the same conditions will continue.

The paramount issue as put forth by the democrats, did not, it seems, serve to frighten the people, nor did the great trust issue seem to have any terrors for the wage earner. From a general survey of the result it is evident the people could not, and would not believe that Mr. Bryan represented anything better this year than he represented in '96.

The result of election has shown plainly that the American people will not have any man hampered with the financial views as pronounced by the defeated leader, at the head of the administration. The 16 to 1 fallacy is dead and buried beyond resurrection, its chief advocate has fought his "second battle" and lost; he is removed from the stage of National politics.

The result of Tuesday's balloting has given populism a blow which will render that party unable to conduct another campaign under its own banner or that of democracy. The principles advocated by the leaders of that political combination can have no place in the administration of this government.

Richard Yates will head the administration of affairs in Illinois the next four years, and there is no reason to believe but what he will make an excellent chief executive of the second great state in the Union. He will be supported by a republican legislature and in position to carry out any reform in state government he may choose to make.

Lake county elected the entire republican ticket by 2,892 plurality, a decrease of 425 votes compared with the vote of 1896. The defection reported to exist in the townships of Cuba, Ela and Wauconda especially, did not materialize. In Cook county the republicans were generally successful.

Election day in Barrington was a quiet one. The weather was warm and bright in the morning but toward noon the sky clouded and it rained and snowed, blowed and was about as disagreeable as the weather man could manufacture. A large per cent of the vote in Barrington township was cast by 2 o'clock and when the polls closed 400 votes had been polled, within 25 of the number registered. McKinley received 338; Bryan 50; Yates 329; Alschuler 62.

In Cuba township the vote came in early. The democrats were of the opinion they would add at least thirty votes to their total of 1896. They polled 61 votes an increase of 17 over the vote given Bryan in 1896. The vote was as follows: McKinley 157; Bryan 61; Yates 154; Alschuler 64.

Wauconda township gave McKinley 192; Bryan 74. In 1896 the vote was McKinley 204; Bryan 66. Ela township, in 1896 gave McKinley 194; Bryan 64. Tuesday it gave McKinley 171; Bryan 89.

Of Interest to Women.

Half of the quarrels between a man and his wife start when she is doing up her hair.

The average woman will forget a man who risked his life to save her a lot sooner than she will a man that sent her a pickle dish when she got married.

No woman's feet feel comfortable unless she has got them in a pair of shoes that are too small for them.

After a girl gets married she tries to look at an old maid as if she was some kind of a curiosity.

Half the girls you meet are either pretty or clever. The other half are the ones who would make good wives.

It is a historical fact, well worth considering, that the first and original mother of the human race was the first to observe the rules of politeness and etiquette, to the shame of the ungentler sex be it said, for did she not divide her apple with man? Moreover, it was she who set the pace for the decolees of all future ages, whereas Adam did not have the grace to don the regulation dress suit on the occasion of the first social reception.

Then and Now.

What is probably one of the copies of the first railroad guides ever issued in the United States is in possession of the passenger department of the Chicago & North-Western R'y. This quaint little book was printed in the Reflector office in Schenectady, N. Y., in 1836, and its title proclaims it "A Western Traveler's Pocket Dictionary and Stranger's Guide." Its 96 tiny pages are 2 1/4 x 3 1/4 inches in size, bound in red covered boards. At the time this little guide appeared all the states through which the Chicago & North-Western Railway now operates, with the exception of Illinois, were territories, and the time of immigration was just beginning to set toward the West. Chicago was a village, and it was not until twelve years later that her first railroad was begun to be built, which pioneer line is now a part of the great Chicago & North-Western system, operating 8,500 miles of first class railway in Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska and Wyoming, and running through trains daily between Chicago and San Francisco and Portland. This mighty empire has a population vastly greater than the whole nation possessed in year 1836. The total population of the United States, as given in the Globe, was 9,185,623, confined to the territory east of the Mississippi river. Beyond was an unknown and unexplored wilderness.

The canals of New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio were the chief means of transportation, both for people and the commodities of commerce, as there were but 1,500 miles of railway in the republic at this time, while the mileage of the canals was considerable greater. Much of the space in the guide was given to rates of freight and passenger tariffs on the different canals, together with points about the best wagon roads in existence at that time.

It is but sixty-four years since this little guide was printed, but centuries of progress have been compressed into this comparatively short time. The canal is but a memory, while thousands upon thousands of miles of steel bring the remotest regions of the nation within a few hours' journey and the subtle potency of the telegraph makes the whole world kin.

Opportunities for Business.

During the past year the Chicago & North-Western Railway Company built 474 miles of new line through the most fertile portions of Iowa and Minnesota. These new lines of railway are now in full operation, and are dotted with promising towns, which are trade centers for well located communities. A descriptive pamphlet with a list of the business opportunities in each town may be obtained upon application to agents of the Chicago & North-Western Railway or to W. B. Kniskern, general passenger and ticket agent, Chicago, Ill.

Unclaimed Letters.

The following is a list of unclaimed letters remaining in the postoffice at Barrington, November 9, 1900:

Thos. Larufe, Frank Mathews, Wm. Mitchell, Henry Sewell.

H. K. BROCKWAY, P. M.

A new remedy for biliousness is now on sale by all Druggists at Barrington, and A. S. Olms, Palatine. It is called Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. It gives quick relief and will prevent the attack if given as soon as the first indication of the disease appears. Price, 25 cents per box.

An Acrobatic Spider.

A curious instance of the ability of an insect to successfully measure distance was evidenced once while I was traveling through northern Argentina.

I first made the acquaintance of my friend on the back veranda of a little village tavern. I was lying in a hammock. About two feet from me was a 3 by 3 inch hand rail of wood, supported by wooden balusters. As I lay there I noticed a fly alight on the top of the wood. While I watched him, the fly apparently turned into a spider. I could not believe my eyes, but on closer inspection I saw that a spider jumped from somewhere, and alighted on top of my fly.

I thought this worth watching and found that this was his method of procedure: A fly would alight on top of the railing, the spider would take in the distance at a glance and would disappear down the side of the rail, walk along toward the fly, but out of sight, until he reached the place on the side of the rail at right angles to the position occupied by the fly when he last saw it. Then he would walk nearly to the top of the rail and fasten his web, then walk down, paying out his web as he went till he was as far from the place where he had fastened his web as was the fly, then one vigorous leap, the web swinging him round in the arc of a circle, and he would alight on top of the fly.

I have never seen one miss this seemingly difficult leap, except when the fly left his position before the spider had finished his preliminaries. —E. A. Suverkrop in Scientific American.

Black Sea Peculiarities.

The Black sea has peculiarities which distinguish it from the Mediterranean, Atlantic or Pacific. The greatest ascertained depth is 1,200 fathoms. A surface current flows continually from the Black sea into the Mediterranean through the Bosphorus and Dardanelles and an undercurrent of salt water from the Mediterranean into the Black sea. This undercurrent of water is warm and sinks to the bottom and in consequence of its great density prevents vertical circulation. The result is that these deeper waters are rendered stagnant. They are saturated with sulphureted hydrogen, and consequently life is impossible. In an expedition in which Sir John Murray took part the water brought up by means of a water bottle from a depth of 300 fathoms smelled exactly like rotten eggs. No life therefore is possible in the Black sea beyond a depth of 100 fathoms, which is a striking contrast to what happens in the open ocean, where there is an abundance of animal life at that depth. This brings about another extraordinary condition with reference to the deposits—that in all the deeper deposits there is an abundant chemical precipitate of carbonate of lime, a condition not obtaining as far as is known in any other ocean.
