The settling on the division of the town into two precincts seems to be a thing that will be some time in coming to a focus. Some want a polling place in Palatine and one at Highland Grove, while others want both polling places in the village. The subject is causing some warm discussions, but we believe it will be satisfactorily settled before many days.

FREE TEXT BOOKS.

Superintendent Bright of Cook County Schools Advocates the Move.

A demand for free text-books in the public schools of Chicago and a centralization of the county schools by townships was made at the conference of the Improvement Societies of Cook County held in Chicago last Saturday. In addition Gov. Yates was scored for vetoing the bill that passed the legislature during the last session providing for a centralization of county schools throughout Illinois wherever the people desired the change.

The demand for free text-books and centralization was made by Orville T. Bright, county superintendent of schools. "The very existence of our public school system depends upon the introduction of free books," said Mr. Bright. "Every little fellow, be his parents pitifully poor, points with pride to the school building in which he is enrolled as a pupil. 'That's my school,' he says, with a world of pride and dignity in his voice. He has as much right to say it as the son of a man who counts his fortune by the thousands.

"But when the two boys, the son of the pitifully poor and the scion of the extravagantly rich; enter the school-room under present conditions there ends the equality that exists on the outside. The rich man's son buys his books, the son of the poor man is compelled to look to charity for his. That is where the trouble comes in. Whenever you let the spirit of charity enter into the public schools you vitiate the whole system. You force upon the children a class or caste that works to no good end."

Married.

At Geneva, Ill., Sunday, October 6, by Rev. Willard, pastor of the Congregational church, Miss Lenora Houghtaling of Barrington and John Miller of Las Vegas, N. M. Many beautiful and useful presents were bestowed. Mr. and Mrs. Miller will reside in Danville, Ill., until spring and then locate in the west.

WILL HAVE TO WALK

Or Pay Regular Fare—Railroad and Steamboat Companies Will Cut Off all Free Passes.

After January 1, 1902, the free pass system on all railroad and steamboat lines throughout the country will be abolished. The time-honored custom of giving transportation for nothing has received its death blow. For several years the companies have talked of wiping out what has become a very troublesome question to them. In a number of ways the issuing of passes has tried to be avoided by the railway companies but they found no way to escape until the traffic association, composed of all transportation lines in the United States, took up the matter at a meeting held in New York lately. The adoption of the new rule will work a hardship to thousands who have never known what it was to pay railroad fare, and who now will have to purchase tickets like the ordinary traveler.

There is to be no favors shown to even railroad presidents, managers or to other officials who wish to travel over other than their own lines. Senators, congressmen, members of the legislature, judges, politicians and all sorts of officials. The newspapers, it is said, will not be included in this sweeping reform, because, as a general rule they pay, and pay well, for every accommodation given them, in advertising. The metropolitan papers do not, as a rule, ask for passes—pay for transportation and charge the companies regular rates for space, and are under no obligations.

The class who have been in the habit of "grafting" from the genial railroad passenger agent, will next year put up for a ride or walk. The action of the railway companies is in every way correct.

Heise's sub-division on Williams street, at existing rates. The committee was given power to act.

Complaints were presented by several parties relative to the condition of certain sidewalks, and the following resolution was passed:

That the committee on streets investigate the condition of all sidewalks and be empowered to enforce the proper measures for their repair before winter.

Demand for Labor.

Times were never so good for the moneyless man—or woman—as they are at present. If the sign of "Help wanted" is the most certain indication of prosperity in the world of industry. It is not, however, always a criterion to judge by, because the want columns of the city papers are often padded. But just now labor is in demand and it would require considerable investigation to determine just what class of employment offers the greatest inducements, numerically and remuneratively, to the army of toilers who constitute the majority of our population. It is said there are ten offers of employment now to one application in all lines of industry and he who lacks work, in the more humble callings at least, is he whose hands were never taught to toil or who remains idle through sheer lack of hustle.

Of all classes of employment open to women the field of domestic service offers the greatest number of places and the hired girl problem grows in intensity with the increase of population.

He Believes in Me.

There is nothing which quite takes the place, in a boy's life, of the consciousness that somebody—his teacher, brother, sister, parents or friend—believes in him. One of the most discouraging things to a youth who is apparently dull, yet is conscious of real power and ability to succeed, is to be depreciated by those around him, to feel that his parents and teachers do not understand him, that they look upon him as a probable failure. When into the life of such a boy there comes the loving assurance that somebody has discovered him, has seen in him possibilities undreamed of by others, that moment there is born within him a new hope, a light that will never cease to be an inspiration and encouragement.

If you believe in a boy, if you see any real ability in him, tell him so; tell him that you believe he has the making of a man in him. Such assurance has often proved greater advantage to a youth than cash capital.

There is inspiration in "He believes in me."

whose possession the cup passed in 1857, has been called on to defend the old trophy eleven times, and always successfully. Ellis Glenn Set Free.

Ellis Glenn, the man-woman, is free. Judge John Jay Jackson of the United States circuit court discharged the prisoner from the criminal court of Wood county, W. The first trial resulted in a disagreement and the jury was discharged.

THE AFGHAN AMEER DIES

Great Monarch of Eastern Country Is Dead.

ENGLAND FEELS SOME FEAR.

Britain Is Likely to Support the Accession of a Younger Son—The Eldest Brother Is Assuming the Reins of Government.

London dispatch. The Ameer of Afghanistan, Abdur Rahman Khan, died on Thursday after a brief illness, and as far as can be learned his eldest son, Habib Oullah Khan, has taken the reins of government. The news was officially given to the British agent at Cabul, but little is known of the actual state of affairs in Afghanistan. The announcement of the death of the Ameer came with a shock, and the further revelation that Habib had made full use of his position has caused no little uneasiness. It is known that Habib is not friendly to the British interests, but is a Russian ally at heart, and undoubtedly some efforts will be made to place Nasrullah on the throne, as he is in sympathy with the rule of England, but the plans which had been made for this step had not yet matured. The knowledge of the Afghanistan frontier is the weakest spot in the border line of India, has been a nightmare to every statesman who has had to do with the foreign policy of Great Britain, and the history of that border country is a record of Machiavellian cabals and intrigues in which both the powers have figured. No matter which of the sons may succeed to the throne the news of the death of the Ameer is a dire portent to the foreign office, overbushy with the Boer complication. As long as the old Ameer was alive there was little fear for the frontier, as the oriental ruler was too wisely a diplomat to give either side an advantage. Future events will be watched with much anxiety.

AMEER OF AFGHANISTAN. (Ruler who has just expired.)

Express Confidence in Viceroy.

At the foreign office no confirmation has been received of the report of the death of the Ameer of Afghanistan, but the accuracy of the report is not doubted. Great confidence, however, is there expressed in the ability of the Indian viceroy to deal with the situation. Before Lord Curzon attained his present dignities he had traveled through Afghanistan as the guest of the Ameer and had thoroughly mastered the problem of British policy in central Asia.

Bolivia Seeks to Grab Mines.

It is asserted at Lima, Peru, on reliable authority that the greed of Bolivia has been excited by the wealth of the Santo Domingo mines, which are the property of the Inca Mining company, an American organization. The Bolivians declare that the mines are on Bolivian territory, which they claim extends into the Inambari river. The government of Peru is determined to oppose this contention firmly. The new Peruvian minister to Bolivia, Dr. Felipe Osma, will proceed to La Paz (capital of Bolivia) to discuss the issue, as well as other questions.

Army Law in Cape Town.

Martial law has been proclaimed in the Cape Town district and at Wynberg, Simon's Town, Port Elizabeth, and East London. The proclamation is the outcome of the recent visit of the premier of Cape Colony, Sir John Gordon Sprigg, and the under secretary of native affairs in South Africa, J. Rose Innes, to the British high commissioner, Lord Milner. It places under military control the few points in Cape Colony hitherto exempted, and the constitution therefore is now suspended over the entire colony.

Ohioan Is Dead from Worry.

Frank Frisco, of Niles, O., died Wednesday of worry. His niece, Rose Tauro, was charged with killing Frank Augusta, who had slain her husband. Frisco signed the woman's bond and she was released because of a five weeks' old baby. Mrs. Tauro fled and all efforts of the uncle to find her were useless. When sued for the bail money Frisco collapsed and gradually declined until death came.

Kills His Wife and Himself.

Robert McKinnie and wife, each about 74 years old, and for years respected residents of Princeton, Iowa, were found dead in their home. Mrs. McKinnie had been shot through the abdomen and her husband's death had been caused by poison. The circumstances indicated that McKinnie had arisen from the supper table, shot his wife, and then, going to his bedroom, taken the poison that ended his own life.

Czar's Army at Afghan Border.

It is regarded here as certain that there will be an outbreak of civil war in Afghanistan, says a dispatch from St. Petersburg to the London Mail, "arising from the claims of the fourth son of the late Ameer, Mohammed Umar Khan, who is favored by Russia. Telegrams were sent to Kush ordering large reinforcements of Russian troops along the frontier to be in readiness, if necessary, to seize Herat."

Fraud in Oil Boom.

The state of Texas is starting prosecutions against fraudulent oil companies. More than 100 of that class sold millions of dollars of worthless stock during the early stages of the oil excitement boom. The suits will be tried at Austin, where the Travis county grand jury is investigating.

W. H. Eckman Is Dead.

BRIDGING THE CANAL QUESTION.

By the terms of the new treaty in the broad sense the Isthmian water way is to be "all-American." The United States is to build it and to have complete control of it, unhampered by onerous restrictions.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Lipton May Try Again.

New York dispatch: Sir Thomas Lipton has given the first intimation that he would challenge again for the America's cup, says the Herald. "You may say for me," he said, "that if the cup is to leave this country I am determined to have it." From saying more than this Sir Thomas wished to be excused. George L. Watson, the designer of the Shamrock II, had left the Erin only a few minutes before Sir Thomas made this announcement.

Colorado Woman Kills Bears.

Mrs. Katherine Sullivan, who owns a ranch on the Fountain, ten miles south of Colorado Springs, Colo., when she drove home from town Saturday found three bears in charge of the premises. They retired as she appeared, but returned later. Next morning the mother bear, weighing 600 pounds, was found in a trap and Mrs. Sullivan killed the cub. The survivor ran. Mrs. Sullivan and some neighbors are in pursuit.

MISS STONE MAY BE ALIVE

Boston Friends Believe the Missionary Is Safe.

PART OF RANSOM IS SENT.

Agent of the Mission Board Opens Negotiations for an Extension of Time—The Total Amount Subscribed Is $56,574.61.

Though noon Tuesday was the limit of time fixed by the Bulgarian brigands who hold Miss Ellen M. Stone prisoner for the reception of the ransom of $110,000, falling which she was to be burned to death or married to one of the bandits, no news has reached Boston to indicate that the threat was carried into execution. On the other hand, a cable message was received Tuesday afternoon from Mr. Haskell, the American board agent at Samokov, saying that he was opening negotiations with the brigands to secure a reduction in the amount of the ransom. Mr. Haskell's action was based on the fact that $35,000 was cabled Monday from Boston to Constantinople and the knowledge that over $20,000 more awaits transmission. The result of these negotiations is not known at Boston, but it is confidently believed that Miss Stone is still alive and that the brigands have informally at the least granted some sort of delay. The publication of the Vienna dispatch saying that the brigands had granted a respite of one month, while wholly without confirmation, had the effect of checking contributions to the ransom fund. The total receipts Tuesday were only $4,031.21, in sums ranging from a few cents to $500, bringing the total up to $56,574.61. Most of these subscriptions came in the early mail from distant points, indicating that they were belated gifts. In the afternoon the contributions almost wholly ceased and it is thought that no more will be forthcoming until some new appeal is made. Charles A. Stone, brother of the missionary, whose sources of information concerning his sister's situation are better than those of anyone else outside the American board of the State Department, said that the family did not feel altogether certain that the dispatches saying that a respite had been granted by the brigands for one month could be relied on.

Was Safe on Saturday.

Wednesday afternoon a cablegram was received by the state department at Washington from Consul General Dickinson at Constantinople saying that Miss Stone had been located in the mountains on the Turkish frontier and that on Saturday last she was alive and well. The time allowed by Miss Stone's kidnappers expired Tuesday, yet she is still alive and unharmed. It is known now officially that her captors have granted a short extension of time, and the officials feel there is yet reasonable hope to save her life.

Knocking at Dominion Door.

A movement is under way at Ottawa, Canada, for the entry of the Northwest territories into the confederation as a full-fledged province. Frederick W. Haultain, attorney general and treasurer of the territories, and Mr. L. A. Sifton are at the capital conferring with the Dominion authorities on the subject.

Texas Oil Wells Failing.

The oil wells in the Beaumont, Tex., field have caused new wonder in the last few days. Investigation of the probable cause for the strange action of these former gushers is to be made by the state geological survey, of which Dr. William B. Phillips is at the head. The drillers have noticed that the flow of oil in some of the wells was spasmodic; that they would spurt for a few minutes and then almost completely die out. It is now admitted by the oil men and drillers that flow of all the wells is decreasing.

Beveridge Talks of Treaty.

Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana, an acknowledged authority on constitutional and international law, regards the new canal treaty with Great Britain as perhaps the greatest triumph ever scored by American diplomacy. He said so at the Auditorium Annex in Chicago Monday. He explained: "According to this report the new treaty contains all the particulars for which I contended in the Senate when we had before us the Hay-Pauncefote treaty. This new treaty provides for an American canal. And inasmuch as the canal is to be built with American money and by American brains, inasmuch as it will connect American coasts, it is a rational conclusion that it should be under American control—and that exclusively." The construction of an American canal means simply the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty and the announcement definitely to England that America is amply able to take care of American interests.

Football Claims a Victim.

Robert I. McKee, left tackle of the Alma (Mich.) College football team, died Tuesday at the Brainerd Hospital of injuries received in the game played at Detroit Saturday against the Detroit Athletic club. McKee went into the game in a serious condition from an old rupture. In the second half he was fiercely tackled, and his former injury was greatly aggravated. Until his death he was in terrible agony. An operation was performed, but it did not relieve him. McKee was a senior, was president of the college Y. M. C. A. and prominent in literary and religious work. He was one of the best known athletes of the state, having been a member of varsity team for seven years, both as preparatory and college student.

National Road Is Urged.

Citizens of Knox county, Tenn., started the ball rolling for a congressional appropriation of $50,000,000 for the construction of a public highway 100 feet wide, to be paved with asphalt and lighted with electricity, from New Orleans to Washington. The petition in the form of a resolution was passed unanimously and referred to Congressman Henry R. Gibson. The road is to have a water main along its entire course and be lighted with electricity. It is to follow the line of the proposed national road of 1828-1834, which was the leading issue in politics in those years. The road is to be twenty feet wide each way for automobiles, twenty feet each way for horses, wagons and carriages, five feet on either side for bicycles and paths of five feet for foot passengers.

Fight the White Slave Evil.

London cable: The Brussels correspondent of the Times says that, though the congress on the "white slaves" traffic now assembled at Amsterdam is due to private initiative, it appears that the matter will soon occupy the attention of the European governments. The French delegate has stated that his government will shortly convocate an international conference to discuss means of coping with the evil. The next private congress will, it has been arranged, assemble in Berlin next year.

THE WHITE HOUSE TOO SMALL

ILLINOIS ITEMS

The family of President Roosevelt is the largest that has ever occupied the White House at Washington. As the house has only five bedrooms the Roosevelts with their six children and several servants are said to be suffering great inconvenience.

How these people are going to be accommodated in a house which only contains five bedrooms, a sitting room, a dining room and a parlor, is one of the mysteries which confront Colonel Theodore Bingham, U. S. A.

He, by the way, also acts as master of ceremonies at the President's public receptions.

The White House was the first public building erected in Washington, and its first cost was paid by the states of Maryland and Virginia. President Washington selected the site.

A prize of $500 for the design was awarded to a young Irish architect named James Hoban, who modeled his design after the castle of the duke of Leinster, near Dublin.

The corner stone was laid on Oct. 13, 1792, and although the mansion was not completed, President John Adams and his family took possession in 1800.

In 1814 during the British invasion the White House was almost gutted by fire and was only saved from total destruction by a thunder storm.

The work of restoration was not completed until 1818. The building is 170 feet long by 86 feet wide, and the private grounds contain 20 acres. It consists of a rustic basement, two stories and an attic.

Having the peculiar characteristics of a public office, which is at the same time the home of a private family, the wear and tear upon its household belongings are almost incredible, and each year has brought some material change in the decorations. The government has spent nearly $2,500,000 in repairs on the building.

At the present time the first of the state apartments is the east room—the nation's parlor—which is decorated in white and gold. Full length portraits of President and Mrs. Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln occupy the panels along the east side, and eight large mirrors, with three chandeliers of cut glass, add greatly to the magnificence of the room. From the east room a wide corridor leads into the state parlors.

The first of these, called the green room, is used as a music room, and is furnished tastefully in pale green plush. Next the green room is the blue room, an elliptical room in the center of the suite. The blue room is the official audience room, where the President receives foreign ministers on their presentation of credentials, and on such occasions, at public reception and often at less formal gatherings, the presidential party stands in line at the upper end of the room.

West of the blue room is the red room, which, being the family drawing room, seems more home-like than the other parlors, with its flowering plants, shaded lamps and bric-a-brac. Though red is the dominant color, it is used only in subdued tones.

Beyond a screen partition is the family stairway; on the right is the private dining room, handsomely furnished in carved mahogany, and at the end of the corridor is the entrance to the conservatory. On the left is the state dining room, lately remodeled, where the decorations are in yellow, and harmonize with the lavishly gilded table ornaments.

The eastern portion of the upper floor is devoted to the executive offices. The end of the central corridor forms the lobby, to the left of which are the telegraph room and a larger apartment where the routine work is carried on. The small room in the southeast corner is used by the President's private secretary, while the large room adjoining is the office of the President. Adjoining the President's office is the room where cabinet meetings are held, handsomely frescoed and furnished, and containing a number of private portraits.

The private apartments, which are shut off from the official wing by a screen door at the sight of the public stairway, are reached by a long corridor. The first one is the library, a beautiful oval room, which serves as the family sitting room, and, with its books and pictures, is the cheeriest and most home-like of all the apartments. Next is the President's room, which still retains its old-fashioned grandeur of canopy bed and crimson satin hangings. The bedrooms on the north are usually set apart for guests, although the northwest room was occupied by President and Mrs. Cleveland during their first residence.

It has long been seen that the present White House is entirely inadequate to the social, domestic and business necessities which are enjoined on the President, and it is not improbable that some changes will be effected during President Roosevelt's administration.

Roosevelt and Wood.

Previous to his departure for Cuba, recently, Governor General Wood had a long interview with President Roosevelt. Not all of their conversation was official, but on the contrary there is authority for saying that the two distinguished men had a little heart to heart talk regarding the changes which five years have wrought in their careers. Five years ago President Roosevelt was out of business, both as civil service commissioner and as a member of the police board of New York.

Leonard Wood was then only an assistant surgeon in the regular army with the rank of captain. The advent of the McKinley administration worked wonders for both men. Dr. Wood was selected as the president's physician, and this gave him a prominence he might not have secured after years of faithful service in an obscure position. Theodore Roosevelt, after considerable of a campaign, was appointed assistant secretary of the navy. When the war broke out Roosevelt himself conceived the idea of organizing a Rough Rider regiment, but chose Wood as the colonel instead of taking the place himself.

Today Wood is a brigadier general in the regular army and governor general of Cuba. He is so young that in the ordinary course he is destined to become lieutenant general in command of the army of the United States. His former lieutenant colonel is now president of the United States, and it was perfectly natural that the two men should put in a little time in solemn contemplation of the swift passage with which Providence works at times.

Tokyo is City of Pleasure.

Of all the lands in the world, none exerts the peculiar fascination of Japan. Others have equal beauty of scenery, greater grandeur, more noble works of art, more interesting problems of society. But none possess an equal fascination. No one who has been in the real Japan which lies outside the treaty ports and the foreign hotels and railways, ever could or ever would forget his experience. No one, if he could, would ever fail to return. The great secret of this charm lies with the people themselves. They have made a fine art of personal relations. Their acts are those of good taste and good humor. Two cities of about the same size and relative importance are Paris and Tokyo. No two could show a greater contrast in spirit, says David Stan Jordan in Humanitarian. Both are, in a sense, cities of pleasure. Tokyo is a city of continuous joyousness, little pleasures drawn from simple things, which leave no sting and draw nothing from future happiness. Paris is feverish and feels the "difference in the morning" and the "hard, fierce lust and cruel deed" which go with the search for pleasure that draws on the future for the joys of the present.

No one who catches the spirit of Paris can fail to miss the underlying sadness, the pity of it all. The spirit of Tokyo—hot of all Tokyo, but of its life as a whole—is as fresh as the song of birds, as "sweet as children's prattle is," and it is good to be under its spell.

Present Ruler of China.

Kwang-Su, formerly known as Tsai-Tien, is the ninth Emperor of China of the Manchurian dynasty of Tsing, which overthrew the native dynasty of Ming in 1644. He was born in 1871, and at that time nobody supposed that there was the slightest chance of his succeeding to the throne. His predecessor, Tung-Che, died in 1875, and the empress dowager and the Manchurian Princess held a meeting and selected Tsai-Tien, son of Prince Chung, as successor to the throne. Prince Chung was the seventh brother of the Emperor Hien-Fung. There is no doubt that Tsai-Tien was made Emperor because of his extreme youth, and the consequent fact that there would be a long minority during which the dowager empress would be nominal as well as actual ruler. However, he was chosen, and the name Kwang-Su, or "Glorious Successor," was given to him. His education was conducted by the supposedly wisest man of the empire and when he was fifteen years old he was married to a bride chosen by the dowager empress. Immediately after his marriage Kwang-Su formally ascended the throne with much ceremony, but he has been a cipher in the affairs of the nation ever since, and on only very rare occasions has ever been allowed to receive the foreign ministers. The dowager empress is the real ruler.—Indianapolis News.

Abner McKinley's resemblance to the late president is so striking that it is a shock to anyone who now sees him for the first time.

By a unanimous vote the school board of Elgin has decided to change the name of the Prospect street school to that of the William McKinley school.

The state board of equalization at Springfield took another week's recess because the counties of De Witt, Lake, Gallatin, Madison and Vermilion have not reported. Until these returns are in and properly abstracted and classified the committees on lands and lots and personal property can do nothing. All of the railroad returns are in and by next week will be in shape for committee work.

Detective Thaddeus J. Collins of Chicago died suddenly Tuesday afternoon. He succumbed to an attack of heart disease.

Warden E. J. Murphy of the penitentiary at Joliet entertained the delegates to the state convention of the Federation of Labor, which opened with about 175 delegates in attendance. The warden gave the visitors unusual privileges. He personally conducted them through the institution, explained the workings of the various departments and afforded them all possible opportunity to obtain a practical idea of the labor of the convicts. A recess of the convention was taken to permit delegates to act as pickets to head off non-union machinists from Chicago who wanted to go to work at the Bates works.

The wife and 14-year-old son of Dr. G. W. Glasscock of Raleigh, five miles west of Eldorado, were fatally burned at 1 o'clock a. m. by the burning of their dwelling.

The regular meeting of the board of pardons convened. The following cases were continued: William Brown, Adams county; Asa Hodgeman, Cook county; larceny; John Hickman, Jackson county; murder; Chester Smith, Knox county; burglary and larceny; James Devorach, Cook county; burglary; Edward Dempsey, Cook county; burglary and larceny; Joseph Zuraski, petit larceny, Cook county; Thomas Hickman, Jackson county, murder. The petition of John Schroll, Vermilion county, for murder, was stricken from the docket.

Two hundred delegates were present at the opening session of the twenty-eighth annual convention of the Illinois Woman's Christian Temperance union which convened at Galesburg. An effort will be made to raise the state dues of each member from 50 cents per annum to $1. Mrs. Rounds will probably retire from the presidency and there is a movement in favor of Mrs. Lucie B. Tyng, the state vice-president, as her successor.

Chicago physicians laughed when asked their opinion of the Evansville (Ind.) cure for consumption—the inhalation of the smoke of burning leaves. They declared the idea too ridiculous to be denied.

Mrs. L. A. Seeley, an aeronaut known as Lillian Le Fay, who has been one of the State fair attractions, made a balloon ascension in La Salle Wednesday night, and up to a late hour Thursday night no trace of her whereabouts had been discovered. It is thought that in making the descent she fell into the Illinois river and was drowned. The balloon was found in a pasture in Oglesby by a searching party Thursday afternoon.

Henry Ketta, who has been a soldier in the Philippines for the past two years, has returned to Waukegan, to the surprise of his relatives, who had understood he was dead. He was a member of the Fourth regiment. Last spring he wrote to his aunt that he was very sick. The same day his name appeared in the death list.

Mrs. Mary Thompson, an old resident of Rogers Park, died Monday at the Tabitha Lutheran Hospital from old age. Mrs. Thompson was 80 years old, and was a widow. Some time ago she fell and broke the left leg above the knee. Death was due to old age and complications caused by the injury.

The next shakeup in Governor Yates' official family will take place when Walter S. Robbins, personal secretary to the governor, will be retired. It is understood that the duties will be divided between the governor's private secretary and his stenographer. Robbins declines to discuss his retirement, saying that he prefers that Governor Yates shall explain the matter.

Peoria is in gala attire. The glare at night of thousands of electric lights presents a most beautiful spectacle throughout the business section of the city and the exposition grounds. The third annual corn exposition and carnival have been formally opened with a parade participated in by the exposition officials, city officials and the several performers of the Midway. President Morgan and Mayor Bryan opened the carnival and the exposition is in full blast. There is a remarkably large attendance, and the display of corn is more extensive than ever before. The attractions are of a higher order than ever before.

Louis Blum, a prominent merchant of Elgin, has sued the Street Carnival committee for $50, the amount of his subscription. The carnival was a success financially, and the committee, after paying all bills, decided to donate the surplus, about $500, to the Orphan's Home. Blum and other subscribers claim that the committee is attempting to give to the home money that belongs to them according to the agreement made when it was contributed. They propose to have the money returned and then to give it to the home themselves.

Ben C. Brown, a carpenter, was shot in Carbondale by Rev. Joseph McCamish, who acted in self-defense, as Brown had drawn a knife. Brown died in forty minutes. The coroner's jury exonerated McCamish. The clergyman said that for the last fourteen months he had been followed by Brown, who on one occasion stabbed him and on another struck him.

J. Otis Arthur, aged 36, chief claim clerk of the Pullman Palace Car Company, died late Friday night at Tacoma, Wash., of heart trouble and complications, shortly after his arrival from the east. He went west in a private car to recuperate his health, being accompanied by Mrs. Arthur and her father. The body has been taken to Aurora, where his parents live, for burial. He was a prominent member of the United Presbyterian church in Chicago.

Dr. Samuel J. Jones' funeral took place at his home in Chicago Sunday. Dr. Jones was the eye and ear specialist who started the anti-noise crusade a year ago. He was the first to agitate the need for a pure food commission. The services were attended by a delegation from the Farragut Naval Association, by the staff of St. Luke's Hospital, of which Dr. Jones was a member and by many prominent physicians.

Rumors that Mrs. L. A. Seeley, the aeronaut, who was supposed to have fallen into the river recently, has been abducted, are gaining credence at La Salle. Andrew Nelson of Oglesby claims to have seen the parachute fall into a field several hundred yards distant from the spot on which the balloon fell. This field is covered with high weeds. From the center of the field to the roadside a portion of the weeds are lying flat. This would indicate that the parachute had been dragged to the edge of the field. These circumstances have led the husband of the woman to the belief that she was caught after landing and spirited away. He suspects a professional aeronaut of Fond du Lac, Wis., who was enamored of Mrs. Seeley, with being implicated in the kidnapping.

The city engineers of Pana have returned to work and the city is saved from another night of darkness, while the various industries forced to close by the strike can resume operations. The engineers will remain at their posts until the next meeting of the council, October 7, when, it is hoped, a satisfactory settlement can be reached.

The thirty-fifth annual session of the Illinois conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, closed at Carbondale after the reading of the appointments for the entire state for the coming year by Bishop H. C. Morrison of Louisville, Ky. There are three presiding elders in the state, situated as follows: W. D. Blaylock, at Waverly; J. R. Nelson, at Murphysboro, and J. W. Westcott, at Salem. The church has a membership of 7,472, a gain over last year of 296. There are fifty-one pastoral charges, with forty-six ministers in active work. The next conference will be at Waverly, next October.

What to do with Malvin Charles Keith, 4 years old, who lives with his mother at 323 Twenty-sixth street, Chicago, and is feeble-minded and ill, is puzzling the probationary officers. The child was refused entrance to the Illinois asylum for feeble-minded children because it was too young, and there is no other institution where it can be sent legally.

Western lines at a Chicago meeting decided to make an advance in homeseekers' rates for 1902 from one fare to one and one-third fares. The action, which was taken in a joint meeting of the Western Passenger association and Transcontinental association, is dependent upon the approval of lines in the Southwestern Passenger association. There is little doubt that the latter will give their approval to the advance. In this same connection it was decided to permit the present arrangements as to homeseekers' rates to remain in force for the remainder of the year. It was also agreed that there should be a substantial curtailment of the territory and time to which homeseekers' rates shall be applied.

The reunion of the One Hundred and Seventh Illinois regiment was held in Monticello. Ninety-one members of the regiment were enrolled. A rousing camp fire was held at the opera house, the principal address being made by Judge Shonkwiler. At the business meeting a resolution was passed calling for legislation to stamp out anarchy and commending the promptness with which the assassin of the President had been tried and convicted.

Henry J. Knouth of Colfax and Hatlie Kitchens of Tomahoc, Bond county, were married at Bloomington.

Eccentric Mode of Burial of the Dead.

A more eccentric mode of burial than that adopted by the Turks for their honored dead could hardly be found; and one of the most curious sights in Constantinople is the interior of the Royal mausoleum within the precincts of the Valide's mosque at Stamboul. In the outer chamber are about three dozen coffins, all inclosed in oblong wooden receptacles higher and broader at one end than at the other, and rising to a roof-like ridge at the top. These boxes are draped with costly shawls and rich brocaded stuffs, the coffins of the princes being distinguished from those of the princesses by the white turban fixed at the head. The last resting place of a sultan is enclosed by a balustrade of walnut wood, ornamented with inlaid work in mother-of-pearl.—Constantinople Correspondence.

To Stop the Drink Traffic.

The evils of the drink traffic in Great Britain have reached such tremendous proportions that a movement, headed by the Duke of Norfolk, has been inaugurated to check drunkenness. It is universally known that the drink habit prevails to a greater extent in Great Britain than in any other nation in the world. The new movement is in the shape of a public house trust to be established in every county.

The scheme will, no doubt, be watched with more than passing interest by temperance reformers all over Christendom. It does not mean prohibition in the strict sense of the word—in fact, there is nothing sumptuary in the method. Those who have studied the question assert that it will do away with many of the evils common to the drink traffic. In some degree the new method savors somewhat of the South Carolina plan.

In the new method the present licensing power is to be used with much more discretion than heretofore. A premium is placed upon the sale of nonintoxicants, the profits to go to the manager of the house.

Protect the Presidents.

It is time that the custom of the president shaking hands with the public should cease. It is an empty ceremony at best. It merely gratifies the curiosity of the crowd and invariably exhausts the individual who must submit. Ex-Speaker Reed voices a popular sentiment when he says that presidents must be protected from contact with crowds.

Mr. Reed sensibly remarks that such protection will not call into question the courage of a president. Neither will it imply a lack of democratic spirit. It will simply render it difficult for anarchists of the Czolgosz type to carry out their plans of assassination. Under present conditions it has been demonstrated that a bodyguard of friends and detectives cannot prevent a president from being shot down in cold blood. Detectives were looking at Czolgosz as he advanced to shake hands with the president, yet he was cunning enough to successfully conceal a revolver under a handkerchief. It will be equally easy to adopt some not less innocent means of concealment in the future if the public reception is maintained.

Which is the most important city in the United States? One person will name New York, another Chicago and still another San Francisco, while Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other centers of population will have their admirers who will argue that because of certain advantages of location, etc., their favorite is entitled to the palm. But they will all be wrong from the viewpoint of the loyal Pittsburger. In his opinion there can be no question as to which city is just now the most important in the country, for has not the Pittsburgh Baseball club won the pennant after any number of years of that experience with "hope deferred" which "maketh the heart sick"? No, Pittsburgh must temporarily be regarded as the premier municipality of the United States. If you don't believe it, ask any resident of Pittsburgh.

"Turn about is fair play." That is what the Londoners used to quote to us a few years ago when our stage was literally overrun by good, bad and indifferent players from the other side of the water. Now, however, since the conditions have been reversed and most of the very successful plays in London are of American origin the British sense of fair play has mysteriously and suddenly disappeared, and in its stead we find arguments against "permitting these Yankees to come over here and monopolize our best playhouses to the exclusion of our really worthy actors and dramatic authors." It makes a lot of difference whose ox is gored, especially to your typical Englishman.

The latest Newport fad is to have one's fortune told by a foot reader. How the foot reader can tell a person's characteristics and antecedents from the feet is rather mysterious unless the patient keeps his shoes on during the operation. In that case a bill collector, and a bondholder could be easily distinguished from a cotton leader.

It has been stated that the defeat of Columbia university's lacrosse team last year was due to the smoking of cigarettes by some members of the team. If these abominations impair a young man's ability on the athletic field, what about their effect upon the more serious work of life?

If Lieutenant Peary has not succeeded in accomplishing anything practical, he will at least receive the heartfelt thanks of thousands of school children for changing the monotonously vague appearance of the upper portion of the map of Greenland.

OCTOBER DAYS

...AT THE...

PAN-AMERICAN

AT Chicago October was the great month in point of attendance at the World's fair. There is every reason to believe the same result will come to the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, where October is always a month of delightful weather. The Exposition in point of beauty and interest is at its climax, and the programme of special events is such as to attract and please. September started with great crowds, and only the tragedy in the Temple of Music, which stunned and shocked a world, halted an overwhelming success in that month. The Exposition management as a tribute of respect closed the gates for one day, Thursday, when the state funeral of the third martyred president took place. The crowds since then have poured to Buffalo. The Temple of Music, now hallowed and historic ground, has been the Mecca of thousands.

Buffalo, has demonstrated her ability to care for great crowds satisfactorily, not only in hauling them to the Exposition by street car and steam railway at a fare of but 5 cents from any part of the city, but to house and feed them at prices in the reach of all. The stories of exorbitant prices were long ago shown to be fables, and every visitor who makes the slightest effort to get accommodation can do so wholly within his means.

The Exposition itself, with its beautiful buildings, its coloring by day, its magic lighting at night, its walks and courts, its canals and lakes, its fountains and statuary, its exhibits and its amusements, has been a delight to the 5,000,000 visitors who have already been to the Pan-American.

The Exposition Company opened up the month of October, beginning Monday, Sept. 30, with a Carnival week of splendid events, including a baby coach parade, with 3,000 school children singing in the procession, a monster pageant with the floats used in the New Orleans Mardi Gras and allegorical parade and the feature of the beautiful floral parade at Saratoga. These will take place on Thursday and Saturday, Oct. 3 and 5, but every day from Sept. 30 to Oct. 5 will be replete with interest. Special fireworks on the lake, with decorated and illuminated launches in a procession of fiery grandeur, will afford new and wonderful sensations to the visitors.

Thus October will be ushered in with a programme so arranged as to give the American public a delightful week. The life saving drill, daily, has become one of the great attractions of the Exposition. It tells the story of the work of the heroic men who guard the shores of ocean and great lakes, always on the alert to drag from death's brink the shipwrecked sailor or passengers. The model camp of United States marines, the seacoast guns, the ordnance and all the exhibits showing war's panoply and our defensive measures have been a great educator to thousands of visitors. Some military company is always encamped in the park, and that part of the grounds is never without interest.

With the magnificent exhibit of the United States Government and the South and Central American States' buildings every visitor can spend a day. No exposition has ever provided in so compact a space, with such beauty of architecture and with so beginning Sept. 23 and continuing to Oct. 25, has proved an attraction for those interested, from every section from Maine to California and Canada. Among the states represented are Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin, New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Vermont, Ohio, New Jersey, Texas and Missouri. Of the total number of flocks on exhibition twenty-seven have been sent here from the Dominion of Canada, most of the exhibitors being located in the province of Ontario. The province of Quebec is also represented. During the course of the sheep show there will be held in the New York State building a series of meetings of prominent North and South American sheep breeders. The Buffalo Review of Sept. 24 said that "this ought to be a great time for the farmers to visit the Pan-American. Every farmer in New York State, not to mention those in other parts of the country, ought to see the attractions of the Rainbow City during the next three or four weeks."

"The cattle show last week was a big feature of the Exposition, and this week there is a great sheep show in progress."

"The New York State farmers and the sheep raisers from other states will find it most interesting to compare the South American breeds with those of North America."

"It will surprise many to learn that the pavilions for animals at the Pan-American cover ten acres and are capable of housing 30,000 animals."

The programme for October so far as made up at this time is as follows:

Can Care For 250,000.

Director General Buchanan says the only problem now confronting the Exposition is how to find days enough within the closing weeks to adequately take care of the many attractions and features now being planned. He predicts a great attendance during the month of October and one far in excess of the highest estimates that have been made by the most sanguine. In answer to the inquiry as to whether or not Buffalo could take care of the crowds, he said there was no difficulty whatever in this regard; that Buffalo could easily care for 250,000 strangers every day comfortably and at reasonable prices.

In the Music Temple.

The organ recitals in the Temple of Music are daily features of the Pan-American Exposition. Many celebrated organists are on the programme for October. Victor Herbert's famous orchestra will be at the Temple of Music from Oct. 14 to the close of the Exposition.

Stricken with Paralysis.

Henderson Grinnett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite awhile without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured.—GEO. R. McDONALD, Man, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all druggists.

For Interior and Exterior Painting

Pure white lead and pure linseed oil make the best paint.

It is the cheapest paint—in first cost and durability. A house can be kept well painted for a term of years with white lead at less cost than any other paint.

It completely covers the surface to which it is applied.

It penetrates and firmly adheres to the surface, protecting it from the elements and preventing decay.

Does not Scale or Chip

The best white lead is made from metallic lead by the "Old Dutch" process, which requires from four to five months time to complete the finished product. There are numerous quick processes of making white lead, but the products differ materially from those produced by the Dutch method, and it has so far proved an impossibility to make in a few days the same quality that requires months of time to perfect. This may be compared to a process of ripening, that cannot be hurried without detriment to the product.

Pure Linseed Oil

Is as necessary as pure white lead. There are numerous mixtures and substitutes offered in place of linseed oil, containing resin, coal oil and other deleterious materials, which, if used, will ruin the best white lead paint.

You can buy pure white lead and pure linseed oil by purchasing HEATH & MILLIGAN'S PAINTS. It has been in use for 50 years, so that its value and character is thoroughly established. Be sure to get this brand.

We handle the best grades of Raw and Boiled Linseed Oils, White Leads, Turpentine, Varnishes, Hard Oils, Colors in Oil, Dry Colors, Brushes, etc., etc.

The right arm is always a little larger than the left, but the left foot is almost always larger than the right, presumably because while nearly every man uses his right arm to lift a weight or strike a blow he almost invariably kicks with his left foot, while the lounge stands on his left leg and lets his right fall easily, because he has learned by experience that this is the best attitude he can assume to prevent lassitude and fatigue.

This constant bearing of the weight on the left foot makes it wider than the right, and it often happens that a man who tries on a shoe on the right foot and gets a close fit has to discard the shoes altogether because he cannot endure the pain caused by the tightness of the left. If when riding on the street car you will take the trouble to notice, you will see that in laced shoes the gap is much smaller on the right foot than on the left, while with button shoes the buttons have to be set back ten times on the left shoe to once on the right.

A Tussle With English.
The pitfalls of the English tongue to a foreigner are many. A Frenchwoman who has undertaken housekeeping in New York thought she had a good working knowledge of the language, but soon discovered her mistake.

One day she called a carpenter and planned with him to have some work done about the house in the way of putting up shelves, etc., and she went over the ground with him as carefully as possible to get from him an estimate of what it would cost.

After the work was done the bill submitted was considerably in excess of the sum first named. The Frenchwoman endeavored to remonstrate, but only succeeded in making the following remarkable statement to him:

"You are more dear to me than when we were first engaged."—New York Sun.

Almonds.
The world's almond crop, exclusive of those raised in California and the west, comes from Italy, Sicily, Majorca, Spain, France, Portugal, Morocco and Algiers. The highly prized Jordan almonds come from Malaga, Spain, and not from the Jordan river, as many people suppose. The common almond is the most indigestible of all the nuts and contains very little nourishment. There are many ways, however, in which it is advantageously used as a desert or as a flavoring. One peculiarity about the almond tree is that its leaves contain prussic acid and are therefore poisonous, while the fruit may be eaten with impunity.

A Sure Thing Sport.
A well known politician on setting out for a day's sport with a friend pointed to a large spaniel which lay apparently asleep in the hall and bet his friend a guinea he could not attract the dog's attention.

The bet was readily accepted, and after the failure of a shrill whistle and a blank cartridge to cause the slightest movement the guinea was delivered up.

"That's my old dog Mahatma I had stuffed a few weeks ago," laughed the politician, "and that's the tenth guinea he's brought me."—London Tit-Bits.

Italian Bees.
Italian bees are more hardy than the native and more profitable. They are more energetic and will gather honey in partial droughts when natives will do nothing. They will gather honey from blossoms that natives will not touch. They are stronger on the wing, will fly more directly and swiftly and are not so irritable.

CHAPTER XIII.

"Salvarez Must Be Saved!"

"This plan of yours—to have the execution of Salvarez postponed until midnight—is beyond my comprehension. Is there any game in it?"

It was Gomez who spoke. He and Francisco were in the Council Room. Philip was away in another part of the castle with Don Juan.

"Game?" replied Francisco. "What game could there be? What do you mean, Gomez? Explain your insinuations!"

"It is strange that a true lover of the king and a hater of the Republic should seek to delay the execution of one of Crespo's most dangerous generals. Rather, to my mind, should he hasten the death of the entire hoyle."

Francisco smiled. "General Gomez," he said, "there are other hearts than yours. You are not the only friend the king has in Venezuela. Have I not led my soldiers?"

"Your soldiers? Oh, yes, your soldiers. Of course, my dear Pedro, your valor is beyond dispute. But in this case of Salvarez—the delay of his execution as demanded by you and yielded by Philip—is, to say the least, inexplicable. There must be a motive in it."

"Yes," replied Francisco, after a pause, "there is a motive in it. There is a reason why I have asked to have the execution of Salvarez postponed. I have explained this reason to the king. It satisfied him. It must satisfy you."

Gomez laughed. "Which is your way of informing me that it is none of my business," he said.

"Not so. You are general of the army. You—" "Oh, well, let it drop. If Philip is satisfied, I am sure I ought to be. There are matters to be thought of that are more important than this rebel general. It is time we moved toward the Orinoco."

"I thought it had been decided that our safest plan was to wait here for Crespo's army to attack us. He will, undoubtedly, send only small detachments at a time. We can destroy them as they come."

"Nonsense," said Gomez, shrugging his shoulders. "Are we to sit here inactive while Crespo fires the enthusiasm of the mobs north of the Orinoco? What would Godoy, Hernandez and the others say to that? Remember, we have thousands of supporters there who are ready to join us as soon as we begin our triumphant march toward Caracas. If we remain here, they will think we are afraid, and will desert the Crespo. I understand our people well enough to know that their loyalty to our cause can be depended upon only as long as we show them we are succeeding. Our best move is to cross the Orinoco as soon as possible, picking up reinforcements on the way. We shall have easily twice as many followers as Crespo by the time we meet him."

"But will the king leave the castle as long as Garza's daughter is ill?"

"He must. Is the cause to be lost through his infatuation?"

When Francisco had gone, Gomez sent for a certain captain upon whom he felt that he could rely.

"General, you sent for me," said the captain, as he entered.

"Yes, I sent for you, because I trust you more than I do any other officer of the king, and I have something for you to do."

"Thank you, general. I will endeavor to deserve your high regard."

"Captain, what do you think of Francisco?"

"Francisco? What do I think of him? That is a strange question, general."

"I know it is, but strange circumstances cause it. You were probably surprised when you learned that the execution of Salvarez was postponed till midnight."

"Yes, I was surprised at that."

"You would no doubt be more surprised if you knew that this was done at the solicitation of Francisco himself."

"Francisco! He was to give the command to fire."

"Just so. Now, captain, you have lived near enough to Francisco to know something about him. What have been the relations existing between Francisco and the family of Salvarez? Is there anything there?"

"Oh, Francisco has long wanted to marry the daughter of Salvarez. Everybody knew that."

"Do you think his love for the girl is sincere?"

"Sincere? It is strong enough."

"You don't like the word sincere."

"It hardly applies to ordinary cases of love on the Orinoco. I think Francisco wants her for his own happiness. I don't think he considers hers."

"Still, his passion for her is such that he would resort to any means to compel her to marry him."

"I think so."

"So do I. Now I will tell you why I sent for you. I believe Francisco is a traitor."

"Traitor! Caramba! I like such traitors. He was in the thickest of the fight."

"That is all true enough, but does not alter my opinion. There is something in this request of his to have the execution of Salvarez delayed till midnight that makes me doubt him. The change from daylight to darkness was significant. With this suspicion in my mind, I took the trouble to learn whom he had chosen to form the firing squad. They are, to a man, picked friends of his. There is some treachery afoot, you may be sure. Could it be possible that he has promised to let Salvarez escape, to gain the girl's love?"

"It could be done if Francisco wished to do it."

"But he must not be allowed to do it. It must be your work to take a dozen of your men—men who are not friendly to Francisco—and watch, without being watched. That is, secrete yourselves some time before midnight where you can see the execution. Give Francisco plenty of time to prove his treachery. If he allows Salvarez to escape, see that the rebel general is at once killed and arrest Francisco and bring him before the king."

"That is easily done."

"Then do it."

"I will."

"And keep your own counsel. Do not allow Francisco to know that we suspect him."

"You may trust me," said the captain, as he went out.

While all this had been going on, two forms were crouching close to the sliding panel that separated them from the council room, and every word uttered by Gomez and his associates had been heard by Medworth and Tempest.

When the captain had gone, one of the crouching figures made a sign and crept noiselessly away. The other followed him. In a moment they had descended the stone stairs to the caverns under the castle.

"Well," said Tempest, "the thing gets hotter and hotter. But we have something to do."

"What is it?"

"Salvarez must be saved!"

"Salvarez! He ought to be, but how?"

"I do not know yet. We know what room he is in. In some way he must be told of this scheme of Gomez's. Come what may, Salvarez must be saved!"

CHAPTER XIV.

The Barred Window.

That evening was dark and cloudy. By nine o'clock the largest object would not cast a shadow.

Jacinta, still weak after the exhausting excitement of the day, waited almost breathlessly for the midnight hour to come, for it was by this time certain that the plan of Francisco was working to perfection. But, so strangely are women constituted, even as she rejoiced in the fact that her father's life was to be saved, she began to rebel against the fulfillment of the promise that had made his salvation possible.

She loathed and despised Francisco, whom she knew to be a man of low and brutal tastes, a small, mean soul, and her heart grew sick when she thought of the future that must now be hers—bound to a man upon whom she would look only with loathing and contempt.

And as her mind dwelt on the shortcomings and evil character of the man who was destined to be her husband, there rose before her the picture of the handsome young American who had rescued her from Francisco's evil hands.

There was a man she could have loved.

"He loves another," she said to herself. "And that other is to be married to the hateful conqueror. Ah! if I were free, why might not the American love me?"

She cast aside her gloomy thoughts and went to the window, where, pressing her tear-stained face against the bars, she peered out into the starless night. A slight rustling sound beneath the window startled her. She took a step backward in sudden fear.

She listened intently. What was that? A whisper! She listened again. This time there could be no doubt.

A voice came out of the darkness, whispering, almost whispering, the name, "Salvarez."

"Are you the daughter of General Salvarez?" came the voice.

"Yes, yes," she replied. "We are prisoners. I thought you were also taken."

"So we were," replied Medworth, "but Tempest and I escaped."

"You will be captured," said Jacinta, really alarmed for him. "Why do you not remain hidden?"

"I came to warn your father—to save him," was the reply.

Jacinta's breath came hard. She strained her eyes, and by the aid of what little light escaped through the window she saw the handsome face of the American upturned to hers.

"To save my father!" she exclaimed.

"Brave friend! But he is already safe."

"No, he is not," said Medworth. "I know what you mean. You promised to marry Francisco—"

"I loathe—hate—despise him," whispered Jacinta.

"Perhaps you do," said Medworth, in reply to her remark about Francisco.

"You ought to. Did he promise to save your father if you consented to be his wife?"

"Yes, yes," panted Jacinta. "Is the wretch false?"

"No. I think he means to carry out his contract, but it is impossible for him to succeed. By crouching at the sliding panel, we can hear all that is said in the council room. Gomez was there with Francisco. Gomez seemed to think Francisco would play him false and allow your father to escape. The men that Francisco picked to form the firing squad were friends of his own, and Gomez thought it looked suspicious. But Gomez seemed at last to be reassured by Francisco, and they talked of other matters. But Francisco had no sooner left than Gomez sent for an officer, to whom he gave this order: 'The officer is to take some men and lie hidden near the spot where the execution is to take place. If your father is not shot by Francisco he is to be shot by the others.'"

"Oh!" sobbed Jacinta. "Then there is no hope for my poor father!"

"I want to help him escape," said Medworth. "Have you not thought of the secret passage?"

"Yes, we have thought of it; but to what purpose? My father says the enemy were there, and drove our men who were to blow up the castle from the place."

"No; that was Tempest and myself. We alone know the secret."

"Is it so? Ah, but what good is it to know that? An armed guard is just outside our door, and no other room connects with the secret passage but the library. Even if my father made a dash for liberty, they would discover his retreat, and all would be lost."

"Can these bars be wrenched out?" asked Medworth, placing his hand on one.

"No," replied Jacinta; and as if to test their strength with them, she placed her hand above his, touching it. At the contact another thrill set her young heart to fluttering.

"Then in some way he must be assisted," said Medworth. "The secret passage must be reached."

"I can suggest nothing," said the girl. "Francisco was my only hope."

"How many guards are there?" he asked.

"One," she replied.

"Listen. You are not far from the library."

"No. The distance from that door to this is not great."

"Then I will go back, creep up to the sliding panel, and see if any one is in the library. If there is no one, I will endeavor to fasten the door. Is there a lock?"

"Yes. We always kept the key hanging near the door—on the right."

"Good. If it is there still, I will look the door and bring the key to you. That will keep others out, and your father will know the coast is clear. Or, course, if they come and find it locked there will be an uproar, and we shall be defeated, but so we should be if any one went into the room unknown to us."

"Not if my father was armed," said Jacinta. "If there was only one."

"No, that is true enough. Better take the chance then with the door open. But I must go to see if there is any one there, and to get a pistol for your father. My own is in the secret passage. Your father must be informed of the plan while I am gone. When I return, he must in some way attract the attention of the guard, get him inside the room and silence him before he has time to give the alarm. Then you can all three escape to the secret passage. I will meet you there. When you are safe in the caverns we can plan further," and Medworth was gone.

The trembling girl lost no time in acquainting her father with the details of Medworth's plan. While he listened to her a grim smile played around the old warrior's mouth.

"A brave youth!" he said. "We will see how his plan can be made to work."

ITALY GIVES US A HINT.

What Her Five Fast Battleships Could Do to This Country.

We are not accustomed to consider Italy very much of a naval power; yet the five battleships of 20 knots and better that she has built or building might make us endless trouble if we were so unfortunate as to have them against us. They could range our whole coast, destroying everything afloat except our battleships and our fastest cruisers, and remaining themselves in absolute obscurity. They could cut off all trade between the United States, Cuba and Porto Rico. They could wreck the entrance of the Nicaragua canal, if that were finished. They could go through the Suez canal, harry our naval force at Manila and rekindle the insurrection in the Philippines. They could loot our coaling station at Tutuila, carry off our governor from Guam, as the Charleston did to the Spaniards, and wreck our trade with Hawaii. They could devastate our Pacific coast, ruin the shore mines at Alaska, and capture the gold fleet from Alaska. No battleships that we could send in pursuit of them could catch them. The only things with which we could hope to bring them to an engagement would be our new armored cruisers, and it might be that these commerce destroyers, without a gun heavier than eight-inch, and with only six inches of armor, but with the all-important quality of speed, would save us from a danger before which our ponderous battleships would be helpless.—New York Journal.

Uncle Sam's Gun Shops

The extensive plant established by the United States government at the Washington navy yard is one of the attractions for visitors to the capital city. Several immense buildings are required for the accommodation of the machinery and workmen employed, and the entire work is carried on under the supervision of naval officers. The principal structure of the group of buildings is approximately 900 feet long and 100 feet wide, and is devoted to the boring, rifling and jacketing of the guns, or the complete construction of the guns proper as distinguished from the carriage and other accessories. The well-known Morgan traveling cranes and hoisting apparatus are employed for suspending and moving the heavy ordnance, and in applying the jacket thereto, and this machinery is all of the largest and most substantial type.

Trackways and beams of great size and strength extend along the sides and across the upper portion of the building to support the traveling hoists, and the suspending chains, made up of enormous links freely travel longitudinally and across the building, and upon each of the movable beams is a house or cab containing the propelling mechanism and the operator.

Gigantic lathes are used for supporting the heavy guns and operating the drills and other required tools, and the most expert workmen are employed in this important work.

The "jacketing" of the gun is a delicate operation, requiring the highest order of mechanical skill. The slightest flaw or inequality in the surface of the gun is quickly detected, and frequently more than a single trial is necessary before the jacket is successfully placed in position. The visitor observing the "jacketing" process will be impressed with the quiet discipline of the workmen engaged. The master workman directs his subordinates, and especially those in charge of the hoisting apparatus, almost entirely by signals with the head and hands, and the noisy shouting of orders is not resorted to. In fact, the discipline of the great establishment is quite strict and along naval lines.

Numerous notices are conspicuously posted to the effect that workmen are not allowed to talk to visitors. Necessarily the quality of the metal employed in the manufacture of the huge guns, constituting the armament of our great warships, is a matter of first importance, and the materials are subjected to the highest tests known to science. As a result of the great care required in this respect, as well as in the subsequent steps involved in the development of the finished product, the cost of producing these guns is very great.

Another large building is devoted to the building of gun carriages, especially designed to support the large guns and a large force of machinists is employed to operate the great variety of machinery employed in this branch of the work.

Many curious and specially designed machines are seen in operation here for scraping, shaving, drilling and re-cessing the hard gun metal, and most of them are entirely automatic, requiring only the attention of a skilled workman to adjust the work and keep the machinery in perfect working order.

In still another separate building the work of forging and drawing cartridge cases is carried on, and this is by no means the least interesting department of the plant to the ordinary visitor. The rapid transformation of a bulky, cumbersome looking blank into a thin, shapely cylinder is an operation which attracts the eye and excites the interest of the unskilled looker-on.

The array of boxes or crates of completed cartridge cases ranged along one end of the building would indicate that Uncle Sam is a firm believer in the soundness of the injunction, "In time of peace prepare for war." The formidable looking rows of cartridge cases, however, are harmless, as they have yet to be charged with the projectiles and high explosives.

As above stated, all of the work connected with the gun plant is in charge of naval officers who are specialists in the construction of ordnance, and here and there about the great workshops is seen one of these officers arrayed at this season in his summer uniform of white duck, with a cap of the same color, the spotlessness of the garb contrasting conspicuously with the rather grimy surroundings and the greasy overalls of the hand workers.

The gun shops necessitated the establishment within the yard of a railway system on a small scale, and the tooting of locomotives and the shifting of loaded flat cars give evidence of industry and labor.

The manufacture of naval guns and ammunition has greatly increased the number of the government's employes, and constitute another step in the growth and development of our national strength and resources.

Anarchists Don't Prosper.

"Very few anarchists ever become prosperous and contented citizens," says a detective. "There have been some instances, though. I have in mind one man who fifteen years ago was very prominent in anarchistic circles here. He even published a little paper in the interest of an-right side to twenty-one; the toes giving ten numbers more, to thirty-one. Beyond this they are satisfied with "many."

"An Error in Nature."

Among the more interesting examples of uncommon British birds at the Zoo is a crossbill, the seed-eating fowl which Buffon stigmatized as being "an error and a defect in nature." But Buffon only dwelt upon the odd way in which the upper and lower beak cross each other obliquely, and was not aware that this apparently deformed bill is exceedingly serviceable in extracting the seeds of apples and pines, upon which the crossbill chiefly feeds. The specimen at the Zoo is of a greenish-yellow hue, but the full-dressed male bird is bright red, which color, together with its crossed bill, has been explained in a medieval legend as due to its attempts to draw out the nails from the cross.—London Express.

Eradicating Rabies.

During the whole of 1900 no case of rabies was found in England or Scotland and it is asserted with confidence that the disease which had been present for centuries has been entirely eradicated. This official statement justifies the stringent muzzling order, passed by Parliament a few years ago and the vexatious regulations against importing dogs. A few cases of rabies were reported from Wales, where the regulations were not enforced strictly. For the first time in fifty-one years not a single person died of hydrophobia in England and Wales in 1899.—New York Sun.

Harmony in House Furnishings.

Women would do well to give much thought to color harmony and circumstances rather than style when choosing house furnishings. Upon the harmonious blending of wall and floor covering, together with the woodwork, depends much of the success of the room; yet some women, hearing that red walls "are the style," and seeing how effective a soft shade of it is with the pure black Flemish oak, straightway has it put on her walls to combine with yellow oak. How much better a gobelin blue burlap or cartridge paper would be! Then, too, often the mistake is made of having everything of one color to match, thereby causing monotony. Artistic decorators advocate old rose in rugs and hangings as a relieving contrasting bit to gobelin blue walls and yellow oak woodwork.—Chicago News.

Which is the Nobler Animal?

A group of spectators stood in front of a cigar store near Seventh and Spruce streets last night and watched an intoxicated man being led home by a red setter dog. The man was almost helplessly drunk. He held the dog by a chain. Once in a while he would grab a lamp post and cling to it with one hand while he held the dog's chain by the other. The faithful, patient dog would sit down for a while and then would tug at the chain and arouse his inebriated master. "That's nothing new," remarked the center of the group at the cigar store; "that dog takes that young man home in that condition almost every Saturday night."—Philadelphia Record.

France's Increase in Population.

France is proud of the increase in her population. The census figures for this year are 38,641,333, an increase in five years of 412,364. The increase in the preceding five-year period was only 133,819.

A Funny Numeral System.

The natives of Murray Island, Torres strait, have a numeral system which is based on two numbers, netat, one, and neis, two. Above two they compute by composition—neis-netat, means three, neis 1 neis, two and two, four. Where they get above this figure they have recourse to different parts of the body, beginning with the little and other fingers of the left hand and going from there to the wrist, elbow, armpit, shoulder, etc., on the left side, and thence down the LAND SEEKERS, HELLO!

Here is a Splendid Chance in the "Cloverland" of Wisconsin.

You want land. You realize that land is getting higher-priced and in greater demand every year. If you get a farm now and hold it 10 or 20 years—even if you should not make any money by farming—the farm will make you rich. A farm tributary to the cities of Minneapolis or St. Paul in northern Wisconsin, will increase in value faster than land in the prairie states because of its nearness to market and because of its greater productivity.

It is hard for people who have never seen that section to appreciate its wonderful growth of blue grass and clover. Where else in America will you find grass, clover and alfalfa spring up spontaneously and cover a patch or a field as you will among the hard wood lands of northern Wisconsin? The waters of the "Soer" section, the soil, the climate and all the natural elements tend to make it an ideal dairy country, and the markets near insure a good price for products all the year. Our readers will do well to write to D. W. Casseday, agent of the "Soer" Line, Minneapolis, and ask him to send them printed matter describing that great section for the landseeker.

THE CHART IS WORTHLESS

Schley's Attorneys Demolish Official Map of the Battle.

A JUMBLE OF COMPROMISES.

The Proceedings Bring Out a Great Deal of Technical Matter but the Members of the Court Show an Interest in All the Details.

Washington, telegram: Admiral Schley's attorneys managed to establish the fact during the progress of the inquiry that the carefully prepared chart purporting to be the unanimous declaration of several navigators of the correct positions of the vessels engaged in the Santiago sea fight during various intervals of the battle was in reality a jumble of compromises, satisfactory to none of the men engaged in preparing it. This evidence was brought out by Attorney Rayner while examining Commander Richard Wainwright, who was chairman of the board that prepared the chart and who commanded the famous little Gloucester during the battle. Commander Wainwright's testimony was given without hesitation and was very positive in character. He concluded his statement by saying that not one of the navigating officers who signed the report adopting the chart believed that it was correct. The day's proceedings brought out a great deal of technical matter, but the members of the court never lost their deep interest in all that was said.

Testimony Is Interesting.
Lieutenant C. W. Dyson of the bureau of steam engineering of the Navy Department was recalled early in the proceedings and continued his evidence concerning the steaming condition of the Brooklyn and her engines on the day of the engagement. Lieutenant M. L. Bristol, who, as ensign, was watch and division officer on the Texas during the Spanish war, talked of the Santiago and Cienfuegos blockades in an entertaining manner, going into all the details of the watch kept and the patrolling methods employed. He contradicted the evidence of Lieutenant Commander Hodgson concerning the distance of the Brooklyn from the nearest Spanish ships at the time the "loop" was made, and cast doubts on the accuracy of the stadiometer with which the commander had made his measurements. Lieutenant Bristol's testimony was enlivened by a tilt between the attorneys, Mr. Rayner and Mr. Hanna finding occasion to begin an interchange of sarcastic remarks which lasted most of the afternoon.

Corrects His Testimony.
Captain W. M. Folger, who was recalled for the purpose of correcting his testimony of yesterday, was asked further questions concerning the blockade of Santiago. In reply to a question by Captain Lemly whether he had had any conversation with Commodore Schley during the blockade he said: "Toward evening of one of the days, the 30th, there was an extended, very severe rainstorm, so severe that I feared Cervera had gotten out, as it was sufficiently long to have permitted him to do so. I went on board the flagship the next day, thinking it my duty to tell the commodore what I had seen as to the blockade as kept by the Japanese off the port of Wei-Hai-Wei, where similarly an enemy's fleet was within a fortified harbor. I said to the commodore that the adoption of the tactics of the Japanese, forming a circle directly in front of the harbor, would, in my opinion, be preferable, as then it would be difficult for anything to get out."

The judge advocate then asked him: "Was there any reply by the commodore?"
"I cannot testify exactly as to his reply," said the witness. "I would prefer not to do so. He did not agree with me as to the necessity for it."
Captain Folger also said that he had no recollection of a picket line on the inside of the American fleet. At the request of Captain Parker of counsel for Admiral Schley, the witness examined the log of the New Orleans for May 30 and 31, 1898, for the purpose of determining accurately the state of the weather on those days, but he declined to modify his statement of yesterday that the weather on those days was bad.

Lieutenant Dyson, who appeared next, testified, in answer to questions by Captain Lemly, concerning the steaming condition of the Brooklyn on July 3. The witness stated that on the morning of that day fires were only banked under three of the vessel's seven boilers having no steam in them. He added that on the day of the fight it took twenty-five minutes to start the fires.

Fruits That Quench Thirst.
Chemical analysis would assign practically no nutritive value to the juicy fruits, for they consist of little more than a cellulosic envelope containing a solution of sugar, the amount varying from 17 per cent, as with grapes, to about 1.4 per cent, as with lemons. The amount of water in fruit is considerable. In watermelons it is no less than 95 per cent, in grapes 80 per cent, in oranges 86 per cent, in lemons 90 per cent, in peaches 88 per cent, in apples 82 per cent, in pears 84 per cent, in plums 80 per cent, in nectarines 82 per cent, and in strawberries 90 per cent, not a fruit in the whole category containing less than 80 per cent. The irresistible conclusion, considering these facts, is that fruit plays an important role in the diet as a thirst quencher. Moreover, the juice of fresh-cut fruit is perfectly free from microbes, is as sterile as freshly clean drawn milk, and the fruit acids tend to inhibit the power of those disease-producing bacteria which flourish in neutral or alkaline media. The marked anti-scorbutic properties of fresh fruit due to the vegetable acids and their salts in the juices are of great importance.

STILL TALKING ABOUT IT.
Bryant, Mo., Oct. 7th.—The case of Mrs. M. A. Goss, continues to be the chief topic of conversation in this neighborhood. Mrs. Goss was a cripple for a long time with Sciatica; she was so bad she couldn't turn over in bed and for four months she lay on one side.

She had tried everything without getting any relief, till at last she heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills. She is strong and well today, and has not a single ache or pain.

Mrs. Goss says: "I don't know if Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure anything else or not, but I do know they will cure latic, for they cured me, and there couldn't be a worse case than mine."

Honors in Store for Malcolm.

The dignities that confront the elder brother are usually appalling to the small sister, and there is a little girl in Columbus, Ohio, who has been giving to the subject much careful attention, as the Despatch bears witness. She electrified the family at breakfast by announcing: "Next year Malcolm will be a lawn-mower. I wonder why they call him that." "A lawn-mower?" echoed the astonished mother. "What do you mean?" "That is what you told me," replied the child, gravely. "This year he was a freshman. Next year he'll be a lawn-mower, and then a janitor and then a senior. And then he'll graduate."

PERSONAL TO SUBSCRIBERS

WE WILL SEND to every subscriber or reader of THIS PAPER, by mail postpaid, a full-sized ONE DOLLAR package of VITE-ORE, sufficient for one month's treatment, to be paid for within one month's time after receipt, if the reader can truthfully say that its use has done him or her more good than all the drugs and doses of quacks and good doctors or patent medicines he or she has ever used. READ this over again carefully, and understand that we ask our pay only when it has done you good, and not before. We take all the risk, you have nothing to lose. If it does not benefit you, you pay us nothing. Vite-Ore is a natural, hard, adamant, rock-like substance—mineral—Ore—mined from the ground like gold and silver, and requires about twenty years for oxidation. It contains free iron, free sulphur, and powerful, efficacious mineral water, drank fresh at the springs. It is a geological discovery, to which there is nothing added or taken from. It is the marvel of the century for curing such diseases as Rheumatism, Bright's Disease, Blood Poisoning, Heart Trouble, Diptheria, Catarrh and Throat Affections, Liver, Kidney and Bladder Affections, Stomach and Female Disorders, La Grippe, Malarial Fever, Nervous Prostration and General Debility, as thousands testify, and as no one, answering this writing for a package, will deny after using it. This offer will challenge the attention and consideration, and afterward the gratitude of every living person who desires better health or who suffers pains, life and diseases, which have defied the medical world and grown worse with age. We care not for your skepticism but ask only your investigation, and at our expense, regardless of what life you have, by sending to us for a package. You must not write on a postal card, it is answered to this address, Theo. Noss Company, Dept. W. N. U., 627, 539, 531 W. North Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Gliding through the unblemished
Autumn light,
There comes a poet from the Arctic lands;
And though his form can never meet
our sight,
His viewless harp, as swept by cunning

Now seems to moan a dirge for Sum-

And now to gaily lead the harvest
songs;
But when the leaflets feel his sudden breath,
They flutter down, in rainbow-shaded throings.

will show you a man whose head is shaped like a piece of pie, with the exceeded by his gigantic gall.

receipts were $60,000, of which $40,000

largest in the history of the association. The net receipts will be over

The shrinkage of corn varies according to the condition of the grain when put in the crib. Cases have been known in which corn lost 20 per cent.
from shrinkage, the corn being damp.
From 8 to 12 per cent. is the average,
the shrinkage depending upon so many circumstances as to make an exact estimate very difficult, but the rule is to allow 10 per cent.

The assessed value of lands in Lake

over the figures returned by the assessors. The personal property value was raised $487,556. The assessment for Cuba township, as returned by Assessor Kirschner, was not disturbed.
The total assessed value for the county is $7,350,780; full value $36,753,900.

We have received from the Groom Music company, Steinway hall, Chicago, several professional copies of their late music. This company is putting out some good pieces, both vocal and instrumental, and will gladly examine authors' manuscripts with a view to their publication. It sets song words and poems to music on a basis that pays a good profit to the author.

Many a good intention dies from in-attention. If through carelessness or indolence or selfishness a good intention is not put into effect, we have lost an opportunity and stolen from the pile of possible good. To be born and not fed is to perish. To have a talent and bury it is to be a "wicked and a slothful servant." For in the end we shall be judged not alone by what we have done, but by what we could have done.

The circuit court of Lake county,
October term, opened Monday, Judge Donnelly presiding. George Prouty, sr., of Cuba was called as a grand juror and H. G. Lageschulte as a petit juror. The calendar shows 32 common law cases; 138 chancery cases and 35 criminal cases. The judge, taking cognizance of the excellent weather for farm work, discharged the jury
until the first Monday in November.

As will be learned by a perusal of the village board proceedings, the committee on streets will make it interesting for property owners who have paid no attention to defective sidewalks adjoining their real estate holdings. Some of the walks are in a very bad condition and have been so for the past year, though notices have been served for their repair by the clerk and street commissioner. As no attention was paid to such notices the committee on streets propose to take a hand in the matter and learn why.
It is cheaper to make your own improvements. Every property owner should have pride in the appearance of his premises. A dilapidated and broken down sidewalk is a detriment to the value of your home.

The funeral of Paul Kampert, victim of the accident at Hawley's crossing, Friday morning, October 5, was held Sunday afternoon, and was largely attended. Rev. Strickfaden conducted the service and spoke feelingly of the sad accident that in the twinkling of an eye crushed out a young life and robbed a home of one of its brightest ornaments. The family have the sympathy of all in their hour of sorrow.

This morning at ten o'clock the pro-motors of the Chicago Highlands will visit the property. They will be accompanied by the officials of the American Malleable Castings company, the corporation that has erected the big plant there. An excursion of employees of the American company and many looking for investments in suburban property will be run from Chicago. The new plant, which is an extensive one, will be open to the inspection of the public.

Elmer Kampert, who so narrowly escaped being killed in the grade crossing accident last Friday, is rapidly recovering from his injuries. He is able to be about the house but complains of severe pains in the back. It was thought at first that his spine was injured, but Dr. Ballou, the railway company's surgeon, from Crystal Lake who is attending him, says such is not the case. His escape was one of those miracles that happen once in a great while.

Another act in the "continuous"
play Levy & Son vs. Gonyo, was given here Monday morning. Mr. Gonyo, his attorney and witnesses, made the third trip from Antioch prepared to defend the case, but the trial justice was absent. Representatives of the plaintiffs called in Justice Frey and continued the case another week. It is said an injunction against the justice before whom the case is being continued in Cook county, will now issue and the plaintiffs be obliged to go into a court of record to show cause why they do not substantiate their case;
stop proceedings in justice court. It is said there are many kinks in the law and this case is certainly proving the truth of the saying. The probabilities now are that the defendant will have an inning. Four times he has been ready to play but the umpire has called the game on a technicality.

AN OPEN VERDICT

Rendered at Inquest Held to Hear Evidence on Death of Paul Kampert.

Last Saturday morning Coroner Taylor of Lake county summoned the following jury to examine into the facts relative to the killing of Paul Kamp-ert at Hawley's crossing of the Chicago & North-Western Railway, Friday morning: Geo. Comstock, foreman, M. T. Lamby, E. A. Schaefer, H.
H. Church, Chas. Boyce, C. H. Morrison.

The inquest was held at the undertaking rooms of E. M. Blocks. An examination of the body showed the skull crushed near the base of the brain, and that death was instantaneous. The body was identified by the father. The first witness sworn was C. A. Toops, engineer of No. 657, the engine drawing the train at the time of the accident.

His evidence was to the effect that he had used all usual precautions to guard against crossing accidents by sounding the whistle at usual point and also the danger whistle when he noticed the team attempting to make the crossing. At the speed the train was running and the down grade it was impossible to bring the same under control in time to avoid the accident.

Robert Frick was called and testified that he was about 80 rods from the scene of the accident; noticed the train approaching but did not hear either the whistle for the crossing or danger signal. Was of the opinion he would have heard a whistle if it had been sounded, although the wind was blowing so as to carry the sound in an opposite direction.

Elmer Kampert, who was driving the team, was unable to be present owing to injuries, but his deposition was offered. In it he stated about approaching the crossing; he heard no whistle for the crossing but did hear the danger signal as he was on the tracks.

That concluded the testimony. It was evident from the testimony of the engineer and Elmer Kampert that the whistle was sounded. That the train which had passed but a moment or so in the opposite direction, occupied the attention of the boys and they gave little attention to surroundings. It was clear to the jury that the crossing whistle could have been sounded at the usual point and owing to the wind blowing in the opposite direction, not heard by parties at the crossing. The verdict was that Paul Kampert came to his death by being struck by an engine belonging to the C. & N. W. R'y.
at Hawley's crossing, while said Paul Kampert was crossing the tracks of the said company.

Gone Home.

Another pioneer settler has laid down the burdens of life work and entered into eternal rest; gone into the land of perpetual bliss, to the home prepared for those who keep His commandments.

Mary Adelheit Listharcke passed to the great unknown, Monday morning, October 7, 1901, aged 90 years, seven months and twenty-six days, the cause of death being a general wasting away of the physical forces, hastened by asthma from which she suffered for a number of years.

She was born April 19, 1811 at Pippin, Furstrau Hanover. At an early age she was joined in marriage to Gerhardt L. Listharcke, and coming to this country in 1845 settled on a farm two miles east of Barrington, which for fifty-six years has been her home, the husband having passed away several years ago. To them was born six children; three sons and three daughters. One son died some years ago the other children survive.

Mother Listharcke, as she was familiary known by a large circle of friends and neighbors, was beloved for her many virtues; for her Christian life.
She was an honored member of the Evangelical Association, and until advanced age forbade attended Zion church in this village. The funeral was held Wednesday from the church services being conducted by Rev. J.
Haller. Interment was in Evergreen cemetery.

To reign with Christ! I do not understand it. I cannot grasp the thought. But it inspires me, uplifts me, fills all my soul with joy. It is something more than sovereignty over my heart, though this be rulership over an important realm; something more than victory over sin, though this be a prime necessity—it must be a sovereignty reaching to the world beyond! The throne of this rulership is higher than that of the greatest Caesar! We do not know what it means, but this we do know, that it is something to satisfy the loftiest ambition that can ever inspire the soul of young manhood. What a calamity to fail! But we cannot fail with Jesus as our captain and king! Every true Epworth Leaguer faces this throne of rulership with Christ. As Christ triumphs, so does he; as Christ is exalted, so is he.

Confidence is the corner stone of social life. The most suspicious man is obliged constantly to trust his fellow-men with his health, his happiness and his life. When we take a railroad journey we trust ourselves to the grimy man in the engine whom we never saw and whose name we do not know. On the faithfulness of the telephraph operators and switchmen along the line, our safety depends. Yet we pass our waking hours untroubled by an anxious thought, and sleep tranquilly at night, because of our confidence in these unknown men and the company which employs them. Sometimes this confidence proved to be misplaced. A telegraph operator blunders, a switchman falls asleep, an engineer makes a fatal mistake. But there is no cause on record where Christ failed one who trusted fully to him. Surely our faith in our fellow-men should not surpass that we have in the Son of God, who has pledged himself to keep safely all that is committed to him.

The Other Side of the Story.

An article appeared in our last issue in relation to the treatment of a young woman who had been employed as a domestic by a Barrington family.
The article gave the young woman's version of the matter, and no names were mentioned. However the lady who employed the narrator of the statements in the article, has taken exception to the same, and says she has been wronged. In support of this she says:

"Your informant has greatly misrepresented the matter. Instead of being considered a drudge or a slave she was accorded many privileges and given all the consideration any girl giving as a domestic could ask; she was treated as one of the family; the accommodations given her were as good as any in the house. Her duties were comparatively light to those required of some girls who work out, and the wages were what she offered to work for. It is true, I informed her that her services were no longer needed in my house, because she did not wish to do the work required, and was inclined to be indolent and saucy.
I did not strike her or attempt to do so, but did throw the dollar after her because she refused to take it and she had only served one-half the week—I considered it all she was entitled to.

I have always treated my help with all due respect. To be sure, an employer of help often has many things to try them and feel it their right to dictate how the work about the house shall be performed. It is a very common occurrence for girls to make themselves disagreeable. At one time this girl worked for $3 per week, and when she took a place at $2 she informed her friends that when she received $3 per week she would do $3 worth of work, and when she only received $2 she would only do $2 worth of work. That is the way she worked for me. The "paltry" dollar was all that was due her at the time she left.
This she can have any time, she may call for it.

The article published was exaggerated and a great injustice was heaped upon me, as the girl in question must know if she wishes to be fair and truthful in the matter."

THE REVIEW regrets the publication of the article in question if an injustice or wrong was done anyone, as such was not the intention. It is well known that the "servant girl problem" is one that is very prominent and has caused no end of trouble for both mistress and servant. There is no doubt both have much to put up with. In towns of this size, it is said, domestics have many privileges not allowed to them in the cities, and receive much consideration in the way of treatment and accommodations, which no doubt is true. In this particular case it seems the complainant considered herself a most abused party and reported it.

Communications on the question have been sent to us before, but because the same were not signed no attention was paid to them. We considered the young woman's statement
the foundation for an article on a popular subject and published it with no position to wrong any one; without knowing the name of the lady complained of. The public, if interested, have now heard both sides of the question.

Take the home paper. It pays.
