Ben Wilson was thrown from a horse Tuesday, which he was breaking for hurdle races. The horse made a good jump, but lost its balance and when it fell Ben's foot was caught underneath and the ankle badly wrenched.

Miss Clara Thies and Mr. A. Gierke were married at home of the bride's brother, H. L. Thies, at Plum Grove, Wednesday night. A large number of relatives were present to witness the ceremony and it was a pleasant affair. The bride is well known in this vicinity and the groom is a young man of good and steady habits. The Review wishes them a long, happy life.

Two extensions to the water system will probably be made this spring. One extension will be from Mr. Burlingame's corner to one block north and the other from Will Schering's corner two blocks west. This will give the west side perfect fire protection and the village is well covered except the subdivision, which will not be long in securing water if the present plans are carried out.

To the people of Palatine and vicinity: The well-known milliners of Barrington have moved their store to Palatine and located in the Grebe building, where they have opened with a full stock of spring and summer hats of the latest styles, which will be sold at reasonable prices. We would be pleased to see our old customers of Barrington, and every one buying will receive return car fare. Call and see us before you try other places.

THE MISSES ADELSON.

Those who attended the entertainment last Tuesday evening at Methodist church were treated to as nice an entertainment as was ever given here. Miss Kittie Richards was called upon time and again, her readings being excellent. Her impersonations were so real that the audience was simply captivated. Miss Mildred Sleeper added to the evening's pleasure by several solos, which were well rendered. Walter Sears received a good share of the honors, his violin solos being well rendered. His cornet solos were highly appreciated and he was called upon for several extra pieces. The Ladies' Aid society can well feel proud of the entertainment.

C. E. Julian and family drove to Elgin Friday to visit his folks near that place. Mr. Julian's father has been suffering from a cancer for some time, but the doctors believe they have it under control.

The recital given by Prof. Sears' class at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Gainer last Friday evening was an interesting musicale. The pupils showed the excellent training given them by a careful instructor and the renderations in nearly every instance were cleverly executed. The orchestra assisted in the program and they were heartily applauded for their excellent playing. We doubt if there is an orchestra in the country, gotten up in the same way, that can equal it. The professor and class are to be congratulated on their work the past year.

The Barrington Thursday club was entertained by Mrs. G. H. Arps and daughter Thursday at their home. Mesdames Hunt, H. C. Matthei, R. M. Putnam, H. Schirday and M. Richmond assisted the hostesses. The club's regular program was rendered, consisting of a paper, "The Usefulness of the Kindergarten," by Mrs. McIntosh and the study of Italy. The guests were called to the dining room by an Easter bell, to find the table decorated in Easter array. The lunch consisted of celery salad, stuffed eggs, rolls, pickles, radishes, coffee, orange sherbet, fruit cake and angel devil's food. Those present from Barrington were: Mesdames Howarth, Peck, Alverson, L. A. Power, Fackelman, C. Meyer, Etta Hawley, Emily Hawley, Minnie Hawley, Seebert, McIntosh and Otis.

H. C. GREBE, Township Clerk.

May Always Review Reality.

The right of County Boards of Review to review the assessment of real estate in years other than the year of assessment was affirmed by a decision of Judge Small in the circuit court last week. The decision was given in the case of James W. Martin against the Board of Review of Will county and this is the first judicial decision on the new revenue law of 1898. In deciding the case Judge Small overrules the practice that has been in vogue in every county of the state, and disagrees with Attorney General H. L. Hamlin and his predecessor, Mr. Martin last year bought eighty acres near Braidwood for $750. It was assessed in 1890 for $40 and acre. The board filed a demurrer to Mr. Martin's bill, and the decision was given in overruling the demurrer. The court said: "Even a literal construction of the statute does not prevent the Board of Review from reviewing an assessment on reality when asked to do so."

ANNOUNCE NEW SCHEME

For the Union of City of Chicago and Country Towns.

New Organization Supports Theories of Thomas Marshall.

The Municipal League of Chicago has found a competitor in the work of erecting a Greater Chicago out of the big city and the towns of Cook county. Many plans have been suggested but none found satisfactory to the League and Township Federation. Now, Mr. Marshall, an attorney, has figured out a scheme and is satisfied that it is just what is necessary to cement the union good and solid.

At a preliminary meeting Wednesday afternoon in the county commissioners' room, at Chicago, a temporary organization was effected, the object of which is to promulgate the idea of city and county government, with the county as the force.

The plan of the organization is to effect consolidation powers of the city officials, the county officials and park boards, the sanitary trustees and the board of education under the general supervision of the county officials. This is to be accomplished without an amendment to the state constitution and without much legislation, it is promised. The plan goes further and proposes to do all this in spite of the opposition of the country villages and country districts throughout the county. A paper was read by Thomas Marshall, exploiting the theory and suggesting the plans by which the theory could be carried into effect.

The organization adopted the paper of Mr. Marshall as its platform. According to Mr. Marshall all the tax levying and collecting machinery will be brought under one department and the useless and expensive red tape will be abolished.

The feasibility of the plan was acknowledged and Mr. Marshall was elected president and Samuel Work secretary of the temporary organization. The club will attempt to promulgate the ideas throughout Cook county and effect an organization which will have a membership representing every section of the city and county.

CROAKING

A Sign of Folly, Not Wisdom—Ignorance Is Never Bliss, Nor Is It a Sorrowful Thing to Be Wise.

It has been said that "croaking is a sign of folly, not of wisdom," and the saying is true. The people who see black spots everywhere have defective eyesight. Queerly enough, some of these long-faced people assume that their melancholy is a sign of wisdom. If they see a dark world where others see a bright one, it is because their eyesight is much better than that of their neighbors. If they find bad motives for actions that seem generous, and selfish aims in apparent self-denial, it is because they have a deep insight into human character.

According to their narrow creed it is wise to doubt and distrust everyone, to take the gloomy view of everything to wake sighing, to go about work with a long face and heavy heart, and to fall asleep without one comforting, hopeful thought to smooth the pillow. They can see nothing in the pleasures and amusements of life but evil; they have no ambition to move with the parade of Progress.

Fortunately the doctrine they advocate is as false as it is disagreeable. In order to prepare for the happiness expected in the next life it is not necessary to renounce this world and all that gives pleasure in it. "Ignorance is never bliss, nor is it a sorrow to be wise." Let our young people enjoy life and keep their hearts happy, for the true wisdom leads in the way of happiness and peace, and her daily companion is joy. You'll get to the beautiful shore just as quick if you come out in the sunlight, stop croaking and have faith in humanity.

EASTER SEASON

Noteworthy for it Commemorates the Crucifixion and Resurrection of the Savior of Mankind.

Last Sunday was known as Palm Sunday, and tomorrow Easter will be ushered in. It is a notable season in the religious world, for it commemorates the passion, crucifixion, and resurrection of the Savior. The branches and sprigs of palm and evergreen carried and worn by the devout churchgoer last Sabbath typified the triumphal entry of Christ into Jerusalem, when, seated upon an ass' colt, he received the plaudits of the multitude, who strewed his pathway with flowers and palms. Then for the first time during his ministry he was recognized by the masses of the people as the Messiah sent by God to redeem them from thralldom. In one short week, however, the fickle multitude had changed and he was driven to Calvary bearing the cross upon which he was to be crucified amid the jeers of thousands.

The observance of Easter dates back to the early days of the Christian era. Although there is no authentic data now in existence, the early disciples no doubt observed the anniversary of the resurrection of Christ in a fitting manner. At any rate, it was not long after their time that Easter became a recognized holy day in the Christian church, and in all lands where a knowledge of the Savior has penetrated the day is regarded as one of peculiar sacredness.

Easter is a movable holiday. Why it is so there has been a great diversity of opinion. While it was observed by the Christian church from its very inception, there were disputes in the beginning about the date on which it should be celebrated. In some localities the actual anniversary of the day was observed as a feast; in other localities the date was determined according to the prescription of the Mosaic law. A general council at Nicea in 325 ended both this diversity and all controversies arising therefrom by giving authoritative directions to the following effect:

"The festival of Easter is to be celebrated on the Sunday which occurs next after the first full moon after the beginning of spring."

If the moon becomes full upon the day on which spring begins, the Sunday after the next full moon is of course, indicated by the directions. If the moon becomes full on a Sunday the next Sunday similarly must be Easter day.

A Correction.

An item appeared in these columns last week, which announced as follows: "The population of Chicago Highlands was increased by the arrival of 29 Bohemian employes. Many of them have families, which will arrive next month."

It seems that the 29 are not Bohemians and some of them are very much worked up because they were mentioned as being of that nationality.

The item was published just as given to us. We had always supposed that one nationality was just as good as another in this land of freedom, and that it was not considered an insult to be called a Bohemian any more than a German, Swede, Irishman or blue-bellied down easterner.

There was no intent to cast any reflection upon the "29." It didn't make any difference who or what they are, providing they obey the laws of the state. Be what they may, they are welcome as citizens. That anyone should feel aggrieved at being called a Bohemian is certainly a new one to the newspaper writers.

DON'T TALK TOO MUCH

And Thereby Save Yourself a Heap of Embarrassment—If Not Posted Don't Make Believe.

A clever woman—clever because she knew how to hold her tongue—was heard telling a friend, in confidence, when asked why she had not taken part in a general conversation of the previous evening at a woman's meeting, that she had kept quiet because she was ignorant of the subject under discussion. That was a frank confession of the truth.

She said "Whenever I am not conversant on a subject, and feel incapable of talking intelligently, why I just get settled in a corner and hold my tongue. I have a reputation of being a talker, and rather enjoy the notoriety, but if I talked about what I did not understand, I would lose that reputation."

"But, one appears so stupid to sit still and say nothing when everyone else is giving an opinion," was the reply.

"I don't mind that in the least, and willing to run the risk. It is a great temptation, I know, to want to put in a word when a piece of gossip is being handed around, but if you don't know positively don't talk. It is also a good rule to follow when subjects of current comment are brought up for discussion."

Pretty sensible suggestion. Talking too much is not a habit of women alone. The men are also afflicted with the same habit, and it's a bad one. If a man or woman is suddenly surrounded by a lot of people "who know it all" it is far better for him or her to keep silent. The art of talking well, and not too much, is one which all men and women, young and old, should cultivate.

PASS RIVERS AND HARBORS BILL

Measure for Improvement of Waterways Goes Through House Without a Roll Call—Senate Votes for Presidential Protection and Repeal War Revenue.

Thursday, March 20.

The day in the senate was devoted to consideration of the bill to protect the president. An agreement was reached to vote on the measure and amendments at 4 o'clock Friday. Three substitutes are pending. Mr. Aldrich, chairman of the committee on finance, reported the bill to repeal war revenue taxes, and gave notice that he would call up the measure for consideration Friday. An executive session preceded adjournment.

Slow progress was made in the house on the rivers and harbors bill, only thirty pages being disposed of, leaving fifty pages still to be considered. The rivers and harbors committee succeeded again in defeating every amendment offered, though none was of general importance. An appropriation of $6,000,000 to improve the harbor at Havana, Cuba, was suggested by Mr. Robertson (La.) but was ruled out on a point of order. Mr. Williams (Ill.) attempted to secure an appropriation for continuing levee improvements at Shawneetown, Ill. Mr. Burton opposed the amendment on the ground that a new policy had been adopted under which the government will no longer co-operate in levee improvements except on the lower Mississippi, because it has been found that most of the money appropriated for this purpose has been used to improve the property of railroads or of individuals and corporations financially prepared to do the work at their own expense. The house supported Mr. Burton. Mr. Bellamy (N. C.) during the debate took occasion to denounce the Crumpacker proposition to investigate Southern election laws as designed to stir up sectional strife. He appealed to the conservative Republicans to defeat the resolution.

Friday, March 21.

In the Senate passage of the bill to protect the President by a vote of 52 to 15, and of the war revenue repeal bill, without division, occupied practically all of the session. A bill appropriating $125,000 for a marine hospital at Buffalo, N. Y., was also passed. On motion of Mr. Proctor, chairman of the committee on agriculture, the oleomargarine bill was made the unfinished business. After an executive session adjournment until Monday was taken.

The rivers and harbors bill was passed without division in the House. Mr. Sulzer (N. Y.) attempted to force a record vote, but only three members, Messrs. Smith (La.), Fitzgerald (N. Y.) and Cochran (Mo.), supported him. Several minor committee amendments were adopted, one authorizing the Michigan Power Company, with certain restrictions, to take water from the St. Mary's river for use in its power canal. During the debate H. C. Smith (Mich.) complained that the $20,000,000 charged to Michigan in the bill benefited the commerce of Chicago, Duluth, Buffalo and Cleveland, and not a single port in Michigan. Adjournment followed final action.

Saturday, March 22.

Consideration of the contested election case of Moss versus Rhea from the Third Kentucky district, occupied most of the day in the House. The committee on elections divided on party lines, the majority sustaining the view that Mr. Moss had been elected and the minority that Mr. Rhea, the Democrat, was entitled to retain his seat. In the face of the returns Mr. Rhea had 156 plurality. According to the contention of the majority certain votes rejected under the Goebel election law would transform this plurality for Rhea into a plurality for Moss of seventy-one. Mr. Mann (Ill.) and Mr. Smith (Iowa) spoke for the majority, and Mr. Burgess (Texas) for the minority. An agreement was made whereby the vote shall be taken next Tuesday. Before taking up this case the unanimous report of the committee in the case of Spears versus Burnett from the seventh Alabama district, confirming the title of the sitting member to his seat, was adopted. Several bills of minor importance were passed at the opening of the session, including one to authorize the Secretary of War to loan tents for the use of the Knights of Pythias encampment to be held at San Francisco. Adjournment was taken at 4:15 p. m.

Monday, March 24.

Consideration of the oleomargarine bill was begun in the Senate. The river and harbors bill was received from the House and referred to the committee on commerce. Messrs. Cullom, Warren and Teller were named as conferees on the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, and Messrs. Aldrich, Allison and Vest as those on the war revenue reduction bill. An executive session preceded adjournment.

Mr. Boreing (Ky.) injected an attack on the Goebel election law into the continued discussion of the Moss-Rhea contested election case from the third Kentucky district, but Mr. Rhea declined to be drawn into an extended debate on an issue not directly involved in the case. The other speakers were Mr. Howie (Ala.), Mr. Powers (Me.) and Mr. Fox (Miss.). The Senate amendments to the bill to repeal the war revenue taxes were nonconcurrent in, and Messrs. Payne (N. Y.), Dalzell (Pa.) and Richardson (Tenn.) were appointed conferees. A similar course was taken with reference to the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, and Messrs. Bingham (Pa.), Hemenway (Ind.) and Livingston (Ga.) were appointed conferees.

Tuesday, March 25.

A sharp attack on the oleomargarine bill was made by Mr. Money in the senate. He denounced the measure as "unconstitutional, immoral, dishonest and unjust." He said it was a proposition to tax out of existence one industry for the benefit of another, and was "protection gone mad." On behalf of the working people of the country he appealed to the senate not to enact the bill into law, and declared if it could be voted upon by a secret ballot it would not receive a dozen votes. Mr. Hansbrough denied there was any attempt in the measure to destroy the oleomargarine industry. The bill, he said, provided that oleomargarine and kindred products should be put on the market for what they are and not palmed off on the public for what they are not. Forty-five private pension measures were passed, as was the bill to amend the act establishing a code of laws for the District of Columbia. Adjournment was taken after a brief executive session.

By a vote of 137 to 127 the house decided to unseat Mr. Rhea of Kentucky, a Democrat, and seat in his place J. McKenzic Moss, a Republican. Hanbury and Vreeland, of New York, voted with the Democrats. Mr. Rhea made an eloquent defense of his right to the seat. Mr. Gaines (Rep., W. Va.) followed with a forty-minute speech in support of the claims of the contestant. Mr. Mann (Ill.) made a strong appeal in favor of the contestant. Consideration of the army appropriation bill was begun, with the understanding that general debate should continue for ten hours. Mr. Scarborough (S. C.) discussed the southern election laws and Mr. Gaines (Tenn.) the Philippine situation. Mr. Hull (Iowa), who was in charge of the bill, explained its provisions briefly. It carried $90,880,934, being $11,025,005 less than the estimates.

Term Easter is of German Origin.

Our term Easter is of German origin, but the name by which the festival is designated from the beginning is the Paschal, a name derived from the Hebrew; it commemorates the deliverance of the Jews from Egyptian bondage when the destroying angel spared the first-born of the Hebrew because their doors were marked by the blood of the Paschal lamb.

The Easter festival is the greatest in the Christian calendar; it is the climax of the events in the life of our divine Lord—his birth, his labors, his miracles, his betrayal, the bitterness of his agony at Gethsemane, and his cruel death on Calvary all culminated in the victory we commemorate on this glorious day.

The church has always held that the miraculous deliverance of the Hebrew people from Egyptian bondage was the type and figure of the far greater deliverance which would follow when Christ, our Pasch, as St. Paul says, would be sacrificed and by his blood would save us from eternal death.

The Christian Pasch was instituted on that night when our Savior, Jesus Christ, surrounded by his disciples at the Last Supper which he held with them, gave them under the form of bread and wine his body and his blood to drink. There is nothing in all the gospels set forth in language more unequivocal than this fact. The church has always taught, as he himself declared, that our divine Lord is truly and really present, under the forms of bread and wine, consecrated by the words uttered by himself, and spoken by those authorized by him to use them.

It is true, that he suffered and died that all men might be saved, yet we know, from his own words and the teachings of his apostles, that many may not be saved because they will not make the necessary effort and sacrifice—"Many are called but few chosen." Faith alone in the redeeming sacrifice will not bring salvation; the mere fact that we believe in the divinity of Christ, in the teaching of Christ, in the redemption purchased for us by the death of Christ will not bring us salvation unless we ourselves do our part to make ourselves worthy thereof. It is not enough to have faith; we must also labor. "I have fought the good fight, I have kept the faith," St. Paul says; he did not consider it enough to have the faith only—it must be accompanied by good work.

The church, therefore, celebrates this day with more of joy and gladness and ceremony than any other in commemoration of the institution of that Christian Pasch which means so much to humanity for millions of her children, under her guidance and direction, through prayer and repentance, and other penitential works are made worthy to participate in this divine banquet. They are restored to the friendship of God and have earned for themselves eternal life, for our Savior has said: "If any man eat of this bread he will live forever, and the bread that I will give is my flesh for the life of the world." (John vi.)

And she celebrates this day with unusual joy and gladness for the further reason: That it is the anniversary of that day on which the Founder by his own inherent power raised himself from the dead, thus giving the strongest possible proof of his divinity, and leaving to us, who believe in him and love him, a reason for the faith that is in us.

The Book of God.
Highest of all is the book of God. This book is the story of earth's noblest spirits, in hours when they were filled with a passionate hunger for righteousness, and how they made a record for these great spiritual experiences in their poems, psalms and letters. No other book has such treasures of wisdom and culture. It teaches us the path that leads to prosperity and peace. It is the great book, the book of hope and life, because it is the book of God.—Rev. N. D. Hillis, Congregationalist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Heathen Nations Celebrate the Day

In the Christian churches of all nations Easter is celebrated as the day on which the Great Teacher, the Jesus Christ, rose from the dead and thereby consummated his divine plan of redeeming the human race. Since Easter is so indissolubly associated with the life of the Founder of the Christian religion, one would naturally assume that it is a purely Occidental festival, having its origin in the west and being confined in observance to Caucasian countries. Yet, strangely enough, in several of the countries of the Orient, in India, in Japan, in China, we find religious festivals bearing a wonderful resemblance—festivals that were observed by pious people thousands of years before the beginning of the Christian era laid the foundations of western civilization and power.

The festival of India analogous to the Christian Easter is called the "Feast of Buddha"; in Japan it is named the "Feast of the Higon," while in China they term the great springtime celebration "The Ancestral Worship." All these holidays have deep religious significance, for all have their origin in the spirit of thankfulness and rejoicing; that wherever man lives he has ever greeted the death of winter and the dawn of spring. In this sense Easter, the Higon, the Ancestral Worship, are all more than mere church days—they are man's spontaneous outpouring of gratitude

The Chorister.

Ye choirs of new Jerusalem,
Your sweetest notes employ
The Paschal victory to hymn
In strains of holy joy.

to nature, alike beneficent mother of both Occident and Orient.

A deep religious sentiment governs the Christian observance of Easter, and in that particular the Chinese ancestral worship is similar to it. The fifth commandment of the Christian decalogue is their first, "Thou shalt honor thy father and mother; and no sin in the eyes of the pious Chinese is so heinous as that of disobedience or disrespect to parents.

This filial piety is the fundamental virtue of their social life, and the respect which a son shows his father does not end with life, but is still shown to his memory long after his death. Nor is the deference merely an individual custom. Time has hallowed it into a great national festival.

It is called Tsing Ming, and occurs in the spring of the year. The Chinese do not make much ado about the death of a child or a young person, but when a father or a mother dies, especially if they have grown old, great ceremony attends the burial, from which proceeds one of their great common proverbs, "As much trouble as a funeral."

There is nothing in the lore of eastern religions to conflict with the hope of a life hereafter. Almost every faith of the Orient has for its foundation the theory of a risen Redeemer. And yet who can make answer to these momentous questions?

Easter Festival of Great Age.

The festival of Easter is much older than the Resurrection of Jesus. Christianity not only converted the magnificent pagan temples, which it could not pull down, into churches, but it also adopted and adapted as many of the rites and ceremonies of heathen antiquity as were too deeply rooted in the habits and affections of the people to be eradicated. From the Greeks and the Romans the early Christians borrowed their emblems of resurrection and immortality—the Peacock and the Phoenix. The Easter egg, too, as a religious symbol is as old as the pyramids of Egypt and the primer of Oriental philosophy, which taught that the world was hatched from an egg about the time of the vernal equinox. We read also that the Romans in early spring ran races in an oval—an egg-shaped arena, when the winner was presented with eggs accompanied with wishes that his noble family may increase and multiply. Christianity colored the egg red to remind the people of the blood shed for their redemption.

That ceremonial Christianity is in a large measure paganism transformed or rejuvenated is admitted by the best scholars in the church as well as out of it—by Cardinal Nicholas Wiseman and Baronius, as well as by Max-Müller and Renan. "The church has borrowed many customs from the religion of the Romans and other pagans," says an ecclesiastical authority, "but it has meliorated them." Another writes that "the pagan festivals laden with superstition were changed into the praiseworthy festivals of the martyrs." Still another defends the practice by saying: "It was permitted the church to transfer to pious uses those ceremonies which the pagans had wickedly applied in a superstitious worship."

Ostera or Eostre, derived from "Ost," meaning East, was a Saxon Goddess who presided over the luminous powers which revived the earth and resuscitated life out of the shadow of darkness and the mold of the grave. She was the divinity whose face shone like the glory of the sunrise and the brightness of the dawn; her ambrosial breath made hill and dale fragrant, and her smile shed beauty over every breaking bud and blossom. The people congregated in the fields to cheer her arrival in the skies, because she came to destroy the genii of winter-darkness, sterility, storm, and death, and to shake from her golden urn blessings upon man and beast alike. "The Sun is risen!" they shouted, as they greeted one another and kissed and danced on the new grass. Our Teutonic ancestors devoted eight days of April, which they called the Ostermonat, to the worship of this beneficent goddess of life and love perennial, whose arrows, tipped with flame, had shot fresh hopes into their hearts. When Christianity converted the pagan Saxons, instead of attempting to abolish this joyous festival, it christened it into an institution of the church, preserving all its poetry and music—the flowers and the eggs, and only substituting Jesus, the "Sun of Righteousness," for Ostera, the Goddess of the East.

Easter, then, is a day in which Christian and heathen memories mingle, and we regard that as its most pleasing feature, because it lifts it from being merely a sectarian symbol into a festival of humanity. It demonstrates that all festivals have a common ancient source—the needs of the human heart, and that all religions, instead of being miraculously given to any chosen people, spring out of the eternal soil of humanity.

Let us rejoice to-day not that the "Sun" has risen or that one man has been raised from the dead, but that all mankind has been steadily rising during these many ages—rising from the deep, dark grave of ignorance and slavery to freedom and power. Let us change the Easter salutation, and instead of greeting one another with "Christ is risen" and "He is risen, indeed," let us say, "Humanity is risen," and let the refrain be, "Hail, risen Humanity."

MANY ARE BURIED UNDER AVALANCHE

Fire Follows Snowslide in Japan, Destroying Petroleum Works.

TWO HUNDRED DEAD AND HURT

Two Killed and Fifteen Injured in Mail Train Wreck in Virginia—Burning House Causes Dynamite Explosion in Houghton—Five Convicts Cremated.

The steamer Duke of Fife brings news of a terrible and unprecedented disaster at the Ohio petroleum works, the big refinery established at Katsunosawa, near Niigata, on the west coast of Japan, which involved the loss of fully 200 lives.

The works were located under the brow of a steep hill, and there had been a heavy fall of snow. Suddenly a huge avalanche thundered down from the sheer height of 600 feet, crushing and burying the oil works, buildings, tanks, reservoirs, offices and work people's dwellings.

Part of the place was completely submerged; in another portion the roofs were crushed in and buildings shattered. This caused an outbreak of fire, which reached the oil and spread with awful rapidity through that part of the buildings less heavily buried.

Up to the time of the latest telegrams received at Yokohama 80 bodies had been recovered and four persons had been dug out terribly injured and barely alive.

The total number buried and burned was not yet ascertained, but the superintendent of works placed the number of fatalities at not fewer than 200.

Rust, A. B. Lynn. The loss of mail was the greatest in the history of southern railroading.

EIGHT RAILROADS ARE RESTRAINED

Judge Philips Issues a Temporary Injunction at Kansas City.

ARGUMENTS TO BE IN CHICAGO

Order the Result of an Application Made by Counsel for the Interstate Commerce Commission—Roads Offer No Objection but Reserve Rights.

Judge John F. Philips in the United States district court at Kansas City, Mo., issued a temporary restraining order against eight Chicago-Kansas City and Kansas City-St. Louis railroads on the application of Judge W. A. Day, counsel for the interstate commerce commission, who asked that the roads be enjoined from deviating from published schedules.

It was mutually agreed by Judge Day and counsel for the railroads that if the arrangement could be made the Kansas City and Chicago cases should be argued jointly at Chicago on June 23 at the time a similar case in that city is to come up. This was agreed to by Judge Philips.

The restraining order issued by Judge Philips is practically the same as that issued in Chicago by Judge Grosscup.

The following roads are affected by Judge Philips' order: Chicago & Alton; Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul; Chicago Great Western; Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe; Chicago, Burlington & Quincy; Missouri Pacific; Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific and the Wabash.

In addressing the court counsel for the different railroads made no opposition to the issuance of the restraining order. Gardiner Latrow said that while he did not wish to waive any right of his client he would not oppose a temporary order, made returnable some time in June, and this proved to be the sentiment of all concerned.

While the counsel for the different railroads offered no objections to a temporary writ they asked for a stipulation by which they waive none of their rights to file a motion or take other action to dissolve the injunction when the time comes to argue the case more fully. The import of this is that the railroads will resist an order making the injunction permanent if after an investigation there is found to be a weak spot in the interstate commerce act on this point or if they believe that the power of the federal court to hold the railroads to their published rate schedule is limited.

THE EASTER EGG.

The Easter egg has always been one of the most popular features of the Easter tide. It owes its origin, as many of the popular Easter observances do, to pagan tradition. It was held as symbolic of renewed life, and in the Christian church is an old emblem of the resurrection. In Germany, instead of the Easter egg, is presented an emblematic print, in which three hens are holding a basket, wherein are three eggs; whereas in Vienna the Easter egg is composed of silver, mother of pearl, or bronze, and filled with knickknacks of some kind.

Formerly in England the Easter egg was solemnly blessed by the priest, and, being elaborately colored, was often kept as an amulet. Easter eggs, or pace or pask eggs as they used to be called, have from time immemorial been prepared much as they are today, being boiled hard in water colored with red, blue, or violet dyes, with inscriptions, devices, or landscapes traced upon them. Some of the designs are very beautiful.

OF NOVEL DESIGN.

Perhaps the most curious Easter egg ever made was one ordered by a South African millionaire for his bride. It was made in London, and was nine feet long and eighteen feet in circumference at the widest part. The shell of this wonderful egg was made of chocolate, most elaborately adorned. It was intended as a wedding present, and held the whole of an expensive trousseau for the girl he was to marry. It also had in it an enormous quantity of superfluous confectionery.

It is said that the most costly Easter egg ever made in the country was ordered by a railway magnate for his little son. It was a minie carriage, most exquisitely appointed, in the shape of an egg. The exterior was of the finest white enamel, and the interior of white, quilted satin. This dainty little vehicle was drawn by two tiny ponies in gold harness. A boy would be hard indeed to please if such a beautiful present did not fill his heart with gladness. But the boys of the present day are luxurious.

TO BE HAND PAINTED.

Anybody who can use a brush at all can make lovely and at the same time novel eggs by taking a little trouble. The prettiest idea, and one which can be carried out easily, is to take a goose egg and paint a little spray of violets on it. These blossoms are symbolic of the spring, and so especially appropriate. Next make a little bunch of paper violets, ending as described before, in a bon-bon. These, of course, are to fill the opening which has been made to blow out the egg. Fill the rest of the egg with candied violet leaves. This makes a beautiful little egg as the heart could wish, and especially dear to the recipient as representing the work and thought of the giver. A pretty variation of this notion can be made by drawing roses instead of violets, using a paper rose for the stopper and filling the egg with candied rose leaves. Endless designs are shown in the confectionery shops of the cities, but they can be painted at home just as well, and will be more valued.

The latest Easter novelty is a hen that lays candy eggs. The little fowl is standing over a nest of green moss, and when a spring in her breast is touched, behold! an egg drops into the nest as naturally as if she was indeed alive. This is the most ingenious and interesting contrivance yet produced for the Easter season. The chicken is a little box whose head lifts off. In it are placed eggs about the size of those of a pigeon, made of a sweet material the buyer desires. She has the great advantage over a real hen that she will lay as many eggs and in as quick succession as may be desired.

FAD BECAME A MANIA.
Tempted by Harvard Book Plates, a Doctor Turned Thief.

It would seem from the experience of the Harvard college library that book plate collecting may sometimes develop into a dangerous and expensive mania. A few years ago the Harvard library found that the engraved labels which it pastes on the inside of the covers of its books as marks of its ownership were disappearing from some of the less used volumes. The older book plates, it appears, are highly prized by collectors, and some of them are particularly valuable for their artistic merit as well as for interesting associations with early book collecting in this country. These were naturally the special prey of the thief.

Detectives took the matter in hand, and the offender was discovered with full evidence of his guilt upon him.
He confessed to stealing the library's property and to having it in his possession. By the time the matter reached the courts the greater part of the book plates had been restored, the thief having settled satisfactorily with the persons to whom he had sold or given them, and, as the prisoner had repaid the expense to which the library had been put, the college consented to leave the matter of sentence with the court, which imposed a fine of $150 on one count and put the other count on file, to be brought up again later if it should be desirable, meanwhile placing the offender under $1,000 bonds for his future appearance if he should be wanted.

A striking point in the case is that the guilty man is in no way a common criminal. His education (he has a degree of doctor) and his taste seem only to have made his thefts more intelligent and discriminating, however. He knew the value of his peculiar booty, and he knew how to dispose of it, his very personality being a protection to him in that part of his misdemeanor.
Apparently the fad developed to a mania and that to kleptomania in his mind.

A number of the stolen plates have not yet been traced at all, and collectors have been warned against accepting Harvard plates of the older engraved varieties unless there is unmistakable evidence that they came honestly into the possession of the person who offers them.

LAW POINTS.

A druggist may be convicted of maintaining a liquor nuisance, though having a permit to sell liquor, holds the supreme court of Kansas.

The giving of a new note for an existing indebtedness will not of itself release collateral security held for payment of such indebtedness, holds the supreme court of Nebraska.

A child of divorced parents is a ward of the court and must not be removed from the state by the parent to whom the court has awarded the custody, holds the appellate court of Illinois.

A reservation of title in a conditional sale of goods is valid as between the parties and those succeeding to their rights, with knowledge of such reservation, either personally or from the records.

A decree or order for alimony in a divorce proceeding is not a debt within the meaning of that term as used in the constitution prohibiting imprisonment for debt, holds the supreme court of Washington.

A bequest in a will for the purchase of books on spiritualism, to be free to all, is held by the court of chancery of New Jersey in the case of Jones versus Watford (50 Atl. Rep., 189) to be a charitable gift which a court of equity will enforce.

How They Differed.

During the last term of the late Zeb Vance in the United States senate his brother, Robert Vance, was elected to represent the Asheville (N. C.) district in the lower branch of congress. One Sunday morning soon after Robert made his appearance in Washington a friend asked the senator if he and Robert agreed on the subject of religion as well as they did on politics.

"No," replied the senator; "Bob is a Methodist and believes in falling from grace, but never falls, while I am a Presbyterian and don't believe in falling from grace, but am all the time falling!"—New York Times.

Good Reason For Selling.

"I notice," said the man who had called in answer to an advertisement,
"you state that you wish to sell out this business and can give good reason for using so. May I ask what is your reason?"

"Certainly," answered the other man.
"The reason why I want to sell out this business is that I'm not making any money at it."—Chicago Tribune.

It is a wonder where the missionaries get the money to enable them to use the cable so liberally. Most people have to content themselves with transoceanic mail service.

Lake Michigan ice floe, with a full list of passengers, has occurred.

The Easter Lily.

Few people who see the multitude of lilies used on Sunday in the adornment of the churches will realize what has been the labor of bringing these lovely flowers from the places where they were grown, or even what care has been necessary to force them into bloom for this time of year. America uses for all kinds of decorations, but especially for Easter, ten times as many lilies or flowers as any other country. This is not an imported fad, but an original one. Many of the lilies used here have in former years come from Bermuda, having been sent as buds packed in moss. When put in warm water these buds will quickly open, and thus quantities of lilies are obtained with little trouble. Flowers raised in this country are grown from the bulbs.

Most Forlorn Women.

The poorest girls in the world are those not taught to work. There are thousands of them. Rich parents have petted them, and they have to depend upon others for a living, and are perfectly helpless. The most forlorn women belong to this class. Every daughter should learn to earn her own living, the well-to-do as well as the poor. The wheel of fortune rolls swiftly around; the rich are likely to become poor, and the poor rich. Skill added to labor is no disadvantage to the rich, and is indispensable to the poor. Well-to-do girls should learn to work. No reform is more imperative than this.

A QUEER BUSINESS.

Making Up Beggars So That They Will Excite Public Sympathy.

"How beggars are made" might be made the subject of a singularly interesting article. And it would refer not to the unkind cuts of fortune, but to the appliances whereby a certain deft and none too scrupulous manufacturer equips men and women who, for purposes of their own, wish to be considered lame, halt or blind. That it is easier to be crippled than to work is the maxim upon which this particular trade is established.

"I'm what is called a street 'sham fakir,'" said one of these dealers in disguises recently. "I fake up most of the sham disabled mill operatives, crippled sailors, etc., and charge 'em a small fee. If it's a woman with a tale that her husband beats her, I paint her a black eye and put her arm in a sling. Say it's a man on a 'blind' lay. Well, I paint some scars on his face to imitate the marks of a lead explosion and give him a green eye shade and a 'blind' card.

"If a man's really maimed, it makes it easier. Suppose he's been run over and had his leg off. I paint a picture of a burning house and him jumping out of a top window with a child in his arms and a yarn under it. 'Kind friends, I lost my leg through rescuing my employer's child.' That's a sure take of a 'fiver' a day.

"I make all these rigs myself," he said, "and hire 'em out. It pays, but I have to keep dark, for the police are very down on my sort. This hollow wooden cap with an iron hook fits over your head, and here's a clubfoot boot and yonder a pair for both feet.

"A queer business? You'd say so if you knew the jobs I'm asked to do sometimes. Only yesterday a woman wanted vitriol scars made on her face and actually wanted me to use real vitriol. Didn't know what she was asking? Oh, yes! Why, bless you, some beggars'll maul themselves horribly to excite sympathy. In fact, they'd do anything rather than work."—New York World.

SPRINKLING SINGAPORE.

The Solemn Procession That Accompanies the Watering Cart.

Poulney Bigelow in his description of the marvelous progress made by the city of Singapore under English rule gave a quaint picture of the manner in which the streets are watered:

The watering cart was drawn by little white bullocks and driven by Malays with turbans. It seemed to take five Malays to do this driving. One roosted aloft on top of the barrel for the purpose of controlling the outgo of water. He seemed very proud of his appointment. Another native in a big turban roosted on the pole and controlled the little cattle.

Then there was a man in thin brown legs and much turban who walked solemnly behind enjoying a footstool. He was obviously a government functionary, although his exact sphere of usefulness I could not discover. He appeared to be something in the nature of a rear guard.

Then there was a "foreloper," or advance guard, for the purpose of clearing the way. There appeared to be an idea that the little bullocks might suddenly go mad and rush ahead. At any rate, it gave congenial employment to one more native, and that was something.

There was yet another, who bent down now and then to pick up a piece of stone or brush away some irregularity unseen by ordinary eyes.

This outfit was a treat to me. It was solemn; it was full of self-consciousness; it was magnificently oriental.

I have seen men in sublime moments; I have seen the red capped station master of Germany strut up and down his platform when an imperial train was about to arrive, but even that impressed me less than the watering cart of Singapore, with its municipal hierarchy of Malay ministers, each earning perhaps 2 cents a day.

A Remarkable Story of Love, Gold and Adventure.

As the musicians struck the first low walling notes a shout of universal applause greeted the fair dancer. Slowly the mandolins sounded the measures of the dance, and with tranquil, almost hesitating steps, the young girl interpreted the rhythm and time with her tiny feet. Gradually the chords quickened and became livelier, and the slow-moving Circe merged into a radiant Terpsichore. Her eyes, hitherto bent timidly upon the floor, were now proudly raised and swept the crowd with half coquettish, half inquiring glances. They seemed to say: "Are there none brave enough to risk being my partner?"

One of the young fellows thus interpreting the look, and perhaps eager to show his courage, quickly advanced to the estrada, and, uncovering, presented his gay sombrero with its garniture of silver and lace for the acceptance of the bewitching dancer. Receiving it with a smile, without pausing for an instant in the evolutions in which she was engaged, she placed it coquettishly upon her head. A prolonged viva greeted this act, while the pleased gallant, who had thus been conceded the floor, placed himself opposite to her and joined in the dance. It continued for a time, when, at the cry of "Cham-mara!" by the spectators, the young gallant, bowing gracefully to the girl, retired to give place to the second aspirant. Placing himself opposite Circe, the new partner went through the same series of evolutions as his predecessor, ending by unwinding the crimson China crape sash from his waist, which he fashioned into a rosette and hung from one of the bare shoulders of the girl.

This act constituted a challenge to all comers, while by permitting it to remain the girl signified her acceptance of him until such time as another should present a better claim. It could only be answered in one way—by the knife. From the crowd arose the cry of "Machete! machete!" and in prompt response the rival lover sprang into the estrada, and, with a graceful bow, presented himself to the girl. A slight nod told him that he, too, was welcome to the honor of bestowing his favors; and, drawing his long, glittering cuchillo from its sheath, he suspended it by its bow of purple ribbons from the right shoulder of the girl, already carrying the sash of his rival upon her left. A new pas de deux now began, carried on as before, though with many extemporized variations. Every now and then a chorus of vivas and bravos greeted the execution of some more than usually difficult step, or suggestive figure.

Suddenly a strident voice in the crowd shouted "Bomba!" and the dance was at an end. The women, now that the dancing was over, took themselves out of harm's way. The two factions, occupying opposite sides of the estrada, clamored for the fight.

Dona Juanita, proud and radiant, stood in the center of the estrada awaiting the final ceremony with a tranquillity which went far to prove her indifference to the claim of either aspirant. But the pledges were still to be redeemed, and, with a practical eye to the business features of the play, she waited with extended hand. The usual fee of each pledge is a silver half real, but the two gallants, advancing one after another, filled both her hands with silver coins, amid the murmurs of applause which such prodigality excited.

The estrada was now cleared for the fight, which nothing could now avert. The sylvan temple, so lately the scene of gayety and pleasure, was converted into a gladiatorial arena. Into its midst one of the gallants advanced, and, first tracing a rude circle in the hard-beat sand of the floor, planted his knife in its center. The second promptly followed and placed his long blade close beside that of his rival, while both courteously uncovered. A polite altercation then ensued as to who should first place his hat upon his head, each claiming an honor which, granted by either, would make him the superior in point of courtesy. The difficulty was, however, decided by both contestants covering at the same time. The spectators were then relegated to the outside of the estrada, the combatants placed face to face, and the signal given.

The combatants stood each with his long blade grasped in his right hand, and with his left hand and arm wrapped in the folds of his marga by way of shield. At the word the combat began. The Gautauricans know nothing of scientific fencing, and rely wholly upon strength and agility of body. The blows were furiously given, but were far from dexterous. On both sides it was only a series of quick thrusts and clumsy parries, of sudden lunges and hasty retreats. Their long knives struck one another with a metallic clang, or cut the air with a mournful sigh. But there was a ferocity and determination about the men which resulted in much bloodshed and mutual hacking of flesh. They swayed to and fro upon the floor, the tumultuous crowd closing about them as they were successively displaced. Thus it continued for ten minutes, when, wounded and bleeding, both men came to the floor, and were carried off by their more intimate followers.

It was when the barbarous duel in the public square had been brought to a termination that Overton, indulging in a little bitter reflection regarding the evil that befalls man through his natural love for woman, felt a hand plucking his sleeve, and knew from the whiff of villainous tobacco smoke that his new Jonathan, the general, stood at his elbow, his face wreathed in smiles and his portly frame swelling with the importance of the communication he bore.

CHAPTER X.

The Maker of Presidents.

As soon as his eyes fell upon the smiling countenance of General Bar-rajo, Jack knew the latter carried a message—he seemed so pleased with himself, so desirous of doing some favor to the brave Senor Overton, who had saved his precious life, and made him overwhelmingly his debtor.

When, however, the verbal communication was delivered Jack's face took on a frown and he bit his lip. For the stout general bore a message that Dona Juanita desired to meet the American at once; and he also gave Jack to understand that this summons was to be considered a great honor, about which, however, that worthy had his doubts.

He concluded to meet Dona Juanita. He found the senorita not far away, and her manner of receiving him was peculiarly coy for one who had shown herself so bold when the rival young gallants were vying with each other for the privilege of her smiles. Jack, had he known these hot-blooded creatures of Gautaurica better, would have taken warning from this very fact and studiously avoided the senorita, for it was quite patent to the astute general she had conceived a sudden and overpowering admiration for the American that was very apt to blossom presently into a passion.

Jack carried on a spirited conversation with the belle of San Jose, and could not but note the deep satisfaction shown by the general. In the goodness of his heart, no doubt he wanted the man who had saved his life to have all the prizes there were in the lottery, and the senorita, in his mind, came within that category.

So he worked the strings. Had Jack suspected his philanthropic design, he might have deeply regretted running those three revolutionists off when they had the general cornered.

As it was, having in mind a sketch of some mythical goddess, which the senorita as he had seen her dancing so alluringly before her many admirers would fill to perfection, he studied her while thus engaging her in conversation.

Doubtless he forgot that in thus exerting himself, with the purpose in view of drawing her out, he at the same time accomplished a double object, and appeared unusually attractive in her eyes.

That was where the boomerang came in.

It chanced that after this night they met frequently—not so much through his inclination as an apparent combination of circumstances.

The lovely daughter of the tropics had taken a great fancy for Senor Overton, and his indifference pliqued her, since she was so accustomed to having gallants go mad for an iota of the favor she bestowed upon Jack. Sometimes it appears as great a crime to be diffident as to show egotism—it may not push one into hot water as often, but there are occasions when it counts as much.

And the wily general looked on, and behind Jack's back rubbed his hands, very much as a miser might over his gold.

It was his purpose to devote his life to showering blessings on his noble deliverer—love, power, wealth, all should be his, and he would bless the day when he first met Pedro Alphonso Bar-rajo—indeed, it would be a red-letter day in the affairs of the little republic as well.

Overton had never taken the general into his confidence, to tell him the bitter story of his past and how he had become a full-fledged woman hater, pledged to remain forever a bachelor.

He had found a means of engaging in business. Such energy as he possessed was a new element in San Juan, and from the way in which he started it was evident that in due course of time, say, ten years, if nothing happened to overturn matters—something is always occurring in these torrid little republics—he bade fair to own the whole community, which shows what push and enterprise may accomplish when properly applied.

Ten years was a long time to wait—he had calculated on half that period when he could go back to London and pay up old scores.

And then it occurred to Jack to partially take his friend the general into his confidence, and tell him how necessary it was that he should roll the ball of fortune faster, in order that the result should be hastened.

Brave Bar-rajo had met danger when it appeared about to overwhelm him with a steady front and a flashing blade.

He was equal to the occasion now. Slapping Jack most heartily on the back, he winked his left eye mysteriously, and, looking cautiously around to see that they were alone, whispered hoarsely:

"Caramba! Make your mind easy, senor—it is all arranged—the train is laid and at the proper time the match will be applied—then comes the explosion, and, pouf! there you are in a jump! One thing tell me, Senor Jack, how long you have been in San Jose—on Gautaurica soil?"

Jack figured it out. "Just six months to-morrow—how time has flown, and I have only made a start," he said slowly.

The general rubbed his hands together in almost delirious joy.

"Six months—it is quite enough. You shall be made a citizen to-morrow."

"Is it positively necessary?" dubiously.

"Undoubtedly so," came the prompt reply.

"Then I submit—any sacrifice so that I may attain the end to which I aspire."

"Madre do Dios! You will not call it a sacrifice, Senor Jack, when you learn what a feast of good things is being prepared for you. Never was a man more favored by fortune, I swear."

Jack smiled and shook his head. "Ah! you speak in enigmas, general."

"Soon—soon all will be made plain. Wait, have patience; your loftiest dream of pomp and power could not attain to what awaits the friend and preserver of Pedro Bar-rajo. I do not forget—I can never forget!" with a gesture of vehemence.

"Well, I place myself in your hands, my general," Overton felt compelled to say, having concluded to go the whole thing, once started.

"Aha! you are wise—you will bless me to your dying day. Love, power, fortune, all shall be yours. The vow is recorded. One thing I must beg of you, Senor Jack. It is this. If, some night, after tomorrow, you should hear a commotion in San Jose, shots fired and loud cheers from the army, pray do not show yourself upon the street until I call upon you."

"Ah! prospects of another revolution, I suppose?"

"Hush! Not so loud, please. Robaldo's spies may be about—they suspect something is in the wind. No, it is not Montejo this time—he is a dead herring in Gautaurica politics now. Ask no more questions, only wait and see; great events are on the eve of transpiring. You promise—good! Go your way, my dear friend, and prepare for a grand surprise. Silence!" and with his finger on his lips the remarkable general bowed, and mounting his horse galloped toward the barracks, leaving Overton a badly puzzled man.

After that mysterious warning from Bar-rajo, Jack was exceedingly careful how he strayed from his domicile after old Helios dipped his glowing face in the western sea and the black pall of night descended upon gay San Jose. For he placed great confidence in the general, and that worthy's directions had been so very direct and explicit they could not be mistaken.

His reward came.

It was the fourth night after the flower procession, and San Jose had in a measure calmed down—that is, resumed the normal condition that marked the passing of early evening.

The gay crowds still lingered in the plaza near by, as though having some inkling of the tremendous epoch in Gautaurica's history that was on the eve of occurring.

Overton wondered how it came that the sounds of merriment had long since died away, while the throng still remained abroad.

He had not known so strange a thing to happen before, and he had been half a year in San Jose, too.

He had just completed his task of writing, and, utterly fagged out, filled his pipe for a comfortable smoke before retiring, when the sound of a sudden shot electrified him.

Ye Postmen.

The native runner-postmen of Natal are strikingly picturesque objects when on business bent. With their sandaled feet and head-dress of dried leaves, which rattle as they run, and a military great coat, underneath which is a garment called the muctetu, they travel for miles at a jog trot of four miles an hour, and receive as payment $1 ($5) a month.

In Holland the extent of the mail service routes is over 39,000 miles. The uniform of the postmen is semi-military in character, and they themselves are said to be a remarkably handsome body.

In Austria the government gives to the postmen every year one tunic, one pair of cloth trousers, one pair of linen trousers, one waistcoat and a cap, while every second year a coat and blouse are given. Previous military service is considered as postal service, and each year of war counts double.

Wherefore!

"Huh!" growled the cynical celebrator to the beaming benedict, "Huh; you seem to know all about women, you do. Can you tell me why a pigeon-toed woman is always duller of perception than one who isn't? And why would a woman rather be pretty than anything else. And why does a girl always giggle when she talks to a man? And why can't women pass a mirror without looking into it? And why are women so much more particular about the outside of their heads than they are of the inside? And why do women so much more admire bad men whom they love than they do good men who love them? And why do women dislike women in the same ratio that they like men? And why is it that women, who are meant to be heaven's best gift to man, ain't always? Say, tell me those, will you?"

Blood will tell—but the less some blood tells the better.

BEJEWELED PUSH-BUTTON.

Some Set with Diamonds and Other Precious Stones for Millionaires.

"Here are some rather odd things—the first of their kind I have ever made," said a jeweler, as he laid upon a cloth of black velvet a number of silver and gold buttons, into which were set small diamonds, pearls, sapphires, opals and emeralds. "They are electrical push-buttons," he explained, "and they are to be used in a country house that one of our millionaires is building."

"Push-buttons, you know, are coming into wider and wider use. The dwellings of the rich contain fifty or sixty of them nowadays. And as a consequence of their profuse appearance everywhere architects are giving a good deal of care to their designing. These six buttons, for instance, that are to go in a white and gold drawing room, are, you see, of silver, studded with opals, and they are to be set on a plate of onyx in a silver frame."

"They will go well, don't you think," asked the jeweler, according to the Philadelphia Record, "with the drawing room's delicate and pale decorative scheme?"

A Very Strong Letter.

La Farge, Wis. Wm. T. Payne of this place has written a rather startling letter to the papers. He says:

"I was in great pain across my back for four weeks, and was taking medicine from a doctor all the time, but it did not do me any good."

"I bought a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and had not taken more than four or five doses before I noticed that they were doing me good."

"They helped me right along, and I kept on using them till I had used four boxes when the pain left me altogether. One box of Dodd's Kidney Pills has done me more good than five dollars worth of doctor's medicine."

"This remedy has certainly worked wonders in my case, and I feel it my duty to give it the credit due."

In the Book Shop.

A salesman in a Philadelphia book store is said to have been asked these three questions: "Do you sell that new book I heard my niece telling about last week? Here's the name of it (taking out a slip of paper), 'Ben Hur'?" "Have you a novel by Hawthorne called 'Mosses from an Old Man'?" "I want a copy of 'When Nightshade Was in Flower,' please. I think it's a novel, but it sounds like a work on gardening."

Nurses' Experience.

Medical men say that a good nurse in a difficult case is better than medicine, but when we can get a good nurse and good medicine, the patient stands a much better chance of recovery. The few words of advice given below by nurse Eliza King, are well worthy the attention of all readers:

"I have constantly used St. Jacobs Oil in the various situations I have occupied as nurse, and have invariably found it excellent in all cases requiring outward application, such as sprains, bruises, rheumatic affections, neuralgia, etc. In cases of pleurisy it is an excellent remedy—well rubbed in. I can strongly recommend it after several years' use and experience. It should be in every household."

Sister CAROLINA, St. Andrew's Hospital, writes: "I have found St. Jacobs Oil a most efficacious remedy in gout; also in sprains and bruises. Indeed, we cannot say too much in its praise, and our doctor is ordering it constantly."

DAN GROSVENOR SAYS:

"Pe-ru-na is an Excellent Spring Catarrh Remedy ---I am as Well as Ever."

HON. DAN. A. GROSVENOR, OF THE FAMOUS OHIO FAMILY.

Hon. Dan. A. Grosvenor, Deputy Auditor for the War Department, in a letter written from Washington, D. C., says:

"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from one bottle of Peruna. One week has brought wonderful changes and I am now as well as ever. Besides being one of the very best spring tonics it is an excellent catarrh remedy."—DAN. A. GROSVENOR.

In a recent letter he says:

"I consider Peruna really more meritorious than I did when I wrote you last. I receive numerous letters from acquaintances all over the country asking me if my certificate is genuine. I invariably answer, yes."—Dan. A. Grosvenor.

A Congressman's Letter.

Hon. H. W. Ogden, Congressman from Louisiana, in a letter written at Washington, D. C., says the following of Peruna, the national catarrh remedy:

"I can conscientiously recommend your Peruna as a fine tonic and all around good medicine to those who are in need of a catarrh remedy. It has been commended to me by people who have used it, as a remedy particularly effective in the cure of catarrh. For those who need a good catarrh medicine I know of nothing better."—H. W. Ogden.

Treat Catarrh in Spring.

The spring is the time to treat catarrh. Cold, wet winter weather often retards a cure of catarrh. If a course of Peruna is taken during the early spring months the cure will be prompt and permanent. There can be no failures if Peruna is taken intelligently during the favorable weather of spring.

As a systemic catarrh remedy Peruna eradicates catarrh from the system wherever it may be located. It cures catarrh of the stomach or bowels with the same certainty as catarrh of the head.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Edward Hachmeister will give up his residence here April 1, and remove to Park Ridge where he has purchased property for his future home.

Rev. John Nate of Chicago visited with his daughter, Mrs. M. C. McIntosh, Sunday, and filled the pulpit of the Salem church in the morning.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. McIntosh will attend the annual banquet of the Chicago Club of the Illinois university at the Sherman House Chicago this Saturday evening.

Henry Pingle has resigned his position as assistant baggage man at the North-Western depot and accepted a position in Peters' livery where he was formerly employed.

Rev. John Nate, formerly pastor of the Methodist church in this village, for several years superintendent of the Illinois Home and Aid society and for over forty years a minister in the Rock river conference, is the candidate of the Prohibition party for alderman in the troublous 27th ward of Chicago.

Thursday Club.

The Thursday club accepted the invitation of Mrs. Arps, of Palatine, and met at her home in that village Thursday afternoon. The visit proved a delightful one. The program consisted of readings from the Bay View Magazine, the subject being "Genoa, the Home of Columbus." A paper was read by Mrs. M. C. McIntosh, her subject being "The Usefulness of the Kindergartens." Musical selections were furnished by Miss Elanora Arps. An elegant luncheon was served, the tables being prettily embellished with Easter decorations.

Before departing for their homes the guests returned a vote of thanks to their hostess for the pleasant entertainment. The club will meet next Thursday at the home of Mrs. Austin in Ravenswood.

Totally Destroyed.

Tuesday night about ten o'clock, fire was discovered in the south section of the engine shelter shed of the Chicago & North-Western road at this station. An alarm was sounded and the fire department responded promptly but its efforts did not save the big, barn-like structure or any portion of it. Three locomotives were in the shed at the time the fire broke out. Two of them were run out on the siding and escaped damage but the third one was left a prey to the flames, the wood work being burned off.

How the fire originated no one seems to know, but it is supposed to have ignited from the fire box of the engine in the south stall. The structure was of frame construction and burned like a pile of kindling wood. There was very little wind stirring and adjoining property suffered no damage.

Agent Powers says he knows nothing about the plans of the company as to rebuilding on the old site or any other place, nor does he know the estimate placed on the loss.

Political Notes.

The candidacy of Judge George W. Brown of Wheaton for congressman from the eleventh congressional district to succeed A. J. Hopkins was formally launched Wednesday afternoon at a gathering of representative republicans of DuPage county.

Congressman Walter Reeves of the twelfth district is not a candidate for reelection, but at the same time he is by no means out of politics. He said in an interview Wednesday: "I have not the slightest notion of quitting politics. On the contrary, I intend to participate in the politics of Illinois. My reasons for not desiring a reelection to congress are purely personal and pertain to my individual affairs. I signed the letter with Senator Culom and others addressed to Speaker Sherman protesting against certain practices now in vogue in Illinois. Any pretense that state appointees are not being assessed a percentage of their salaries to create a fund with which to maintain a faction of the republican party and to promote the interests of one candidate for the United States senate is a mere sham."

The contest for delegates to the Lake county republican convention is on between the forces of Hon. George R. Lyon and A. K. Stearns. Both of the gentlemen aspire to a seat in the legislative halls at Springfield, and both have friends who are alive to their interests. They have been pitted against each other before and realize what they have to do to round up supporters. It is the fight of two years ago over again.

The Waukegan Register-Gazette is of the opinion that Lake county is in line for the circuit judgeship. It is of the opinion that Judge Fuller, will succeed Congressman Reeves, that A. J. Hopkins will go to the senate and that Judge Donnelly should succeed Hopkins in congress and thus open the way for a Lake county man to succeed Judge Fuller of Boone as judge of the 17th district. Of course Judge Donnelly's successor would be allotted to McHenry county, and among those mentioned as being eligible for the honor are O. H. Gillmore and V. S. Lumley of Woodstock. Such a series of moves on the political checker-board, as the Register-Gazette outlines, is possible but hardly probable, in the near future, and then there are many candidates seeking the offices who must be "settled with" before Lake gets a share of the provender.

Enjoyable Affair.

Mrs. J. E. Heise gave a most enjoyable party to the members of her Sunday school class last Thursday evening. The inviting home on Liberty street was where the young people enjoyed several hours playing progressive dominoes and bean bag, Max Lines winning a pig as a prize for buying the most beans at the end of the game. Other games were also indulged in, after which refreshments were served. Those present were Misses Grace Freeman, Lulu Decker, Edna Peckham, Laura Neimeyer, Clara Harrison and Mrs. H. W. Meyers. Messrs. Elmer Pecknam, Max Lines, Floyd Harnden, Elmer Frye, Will Gieske and Henry W. Meyers.

Batt of Dundee, is rapidly closing out a part of the goods preparatory to removing the rest to his Dundee store.

THE HIGHER LIFE.

EDITED BY HACKETT.

The pure white lily lifts its cup,
At Easter time, at Easter time;
The crocus to the sky looks up,
At happy Easter time.

"We'll hear a song of heaven!" they say
"Its glory shines on us today;
Oh, may it shine on us alway,
At holy Easter time!"

Not dollars, but noble deeds well done,
Constitute the true measure of manhood.

Set before you high models. Try to live with the most generous and to observe their deeds. Be contented, yet aspire; that should be the faith of all, and the two are quite compatible.

The true calling of a Christian is not to do extraordinary things, but to do ordinary things in an extraordinary way. The most trivial tasks can be accomplished in a noble, gentle spirit, which overrides and puts aside all petty, paltry feelings, and which elevates all little things.

Sacrifice has gone out of fashion among Christians to quite an alarming extent. The very meaning of the word is almost forgotten. To sacrifice is to give up some lawful self-gratification for the good of others. It is the voluntary subjection of one's self for the sake of others to some danger, loss, or suffering, which we could avoid if we would. It is the transfer of our talents, powers, influence and possessions from the altar of God and humanity. In other words, sacrifice is love made manifest. It is the revelation of love. Sacrifice is the language of love. Love without sacrifice is like a fire without a flame, a tree without a leaf, a stalk without a flower.

Since last Easter day the world has grown sadder for some of us. In the dining room, perhaps, there stands a high-chair for which there is no use, and yet we cannot bear to put it out of sight. Upstairs there is a tiny crib whose pillow no longer bears the impress of a curly little head, an empty nest from which our bird has flown.

Today we pick up some broken toy and cry over it. Tomorrow we may come across some little dress, soiled and worn perhaps, hung away because it will not be needed again, and as we hide our wet eyes in the folds we wonder if this pain of loneliness will ever grow less. If only we could hear again the patter of little feet in the hall or the sound of baby laughter! How still the world is without that dear voice! How dark, lacking the sunshine of that happy little face! We talk about our loss, and that is a mistake. Our treasure is guarded more tenderly than is possible when only human love and wisdom keep watch. The dear life which has slipped out of our keeping leaves us the poorer while we stay on earth, but we shall be the richer by and by when we claim our treasure laid up in heaven.

Since last Easter day, for some of us the other world has taken on new beauty. The little cares and troubles and pleasures of daily life no longer claim our entire attention. We have time now to think of the life which is coming, and of the need of preparing for its joys. Close following the cold and storm of winter comes the spring with its buds and blossoms. After the anguish of bereavement Hope awakens and fills the day with fragrance. Our hearts have followed our treasure and already heaven seems ours because we have given to its keeping something dearer than our own lives. To those of us who mourn comes the Easter message that love can never lose its own, and that the treasure which seems lost is safely kept for us by one able to guard all that is trusted to him.
