Fred Bode has sold his place in the village of Palatine to Mr. Fuhlman, a farmer west of town, who will move in a few weeks. Mr. Bode will go to Oklahoma next week, and after finding a suitable place to locate, will send for his family.

Henry Bicknase has been away this week from his work on account of sickness and the doctor has advised him to go to the pineries of Wisconsin. He and his brother Frank will start for Minocque, Wis., next Monday to stay a month or two.

D. W. Couch of New York City will lecture in the Methodist church on Wednesday evening, August 13. Admission 25 and 15 cents. Mr. Couch is an old friend of Rev. D. J. Holmes, and happening to be in the West, he has consented to deliver a lecture while here. Everyone should attend.

Parties interested in the Chicago-Palatine-Lake region electric railway were in the village Monday and have decided to go through Palatine to the lakes north of here. They will cross the North-Western tracks at Mount Prospect and run west to Palatine, entering the village on Chicago avenue to Hart's corner, thence north one block, thence west to Whipple's corner, thence north and past Baldwin's farm. The promoters have secured much right-of-way over the route and will be out to get a franchise from our village officers some time next week. The other promoters are still in for a road and each are trying to get the right-of-way from here to the lakes.

A Word About Our Business.

Many persons have vague and peculiar notions concerning a newspaper's source of revenue. Some innocent souls go even so far as to imagine that newspapers are printed solely through philanthropic motives and that their columns belong to the public, who have an unquestioned right to fill them with communications setting forth their own peculiar views. Still others have an idea that advertisements are merely to fill up space. A brother publisher tells of a woman who is deeply interested in church work who remarked, "We are soon going to have a celebration at our church. Then the paper will have enough to fill up with, and they have to print so many of those horrid advertisements." That is just like the majority of them. We have in mind two women who promoted an entertainment in this village for a society. For a month preceding the event they flooded these columns. A total of 85 lines of reading local was contributed. (Had we used all sent in 850 lines would have appeared.) A day or so before the affair took place one of the ladies called and begged us to purchase tickets.

For the information of those not familiar with newspaper work it may be interesting for them to know that newspapers are printed for the same reason that shoes and furniture and hats, etc., are made; to sell to provide an income for those who invest their money. The columns of the newspaper are its wares, and the use of them is sold to persons in other lines of business who desire to advertise their especial wares. The revenue received for advertisements—display and local readers—is what sustains a newspaper, just as the profits that the grocer makes on his goods enables him to live and continue business.

Probably no men in business are more liberal than the publishers of newspapers. Column after column of gratuitous advertising is done for church entertainments, charitable entertainments, secret society socials, amusements etc., so that many persons have conceived the idea that the newspapers should deem it a privilege to tell the public of their nice little schemes to make money for their organizations.

The publisher of a country paper is a philanthropist, but is opposed to being "worked" too hard in that line. A worthy cause will always be given a reasonable amount of "free advertising" but affairs promoted to make money should expect to pay for any publicity accorded by the local press.

"The Public Not Concerned."

"It is none of the public's business," says a coal-road president, in answer to the question why they will not consent to arbitrate a strike, the entire loss whereof falls finally on the public. This is the bee that is getting into the bonnets of the presidents of our publicly franchised corporations—"none of the public's business." It is a form of megalomania peculiar to monopolists. They have no use for the people except to get a franchise from them and then go through their pockets.

How far this contempt of public corporations for the public can be carried without causing the meek and patient public to rise in effective rebellion nobody knows.

LAKE COUNTY POLITICS

Assuming an Interesting Stage. Candidates for Office Many.

Both Republicans and Democrats are Preparing for a Hot Battle.

Politicians of Lake county—Republicans, democrats, prohibitionists and Independents—have taken the field to prepare for what some of the leaders predict will prove the warmest fight ever waged in this section. This is an "off year"—that is there is no national candidates to be voted for and little personal differences may be fought to a finish without endangering the national ticket.

The republican county convention is called for August 23. It will be one to the liking of political workers. It won't be a cut and dried affair. There will be "doins" from the moment that Chairman Wynn calls to order until the grand transformation scene when the leaders arise and in unison shout "let us have peace!"

A man cannot travel over any portion of beautiful Lake county (except Cuba township) without running up against a candidate for a county office. And every one of 'em has a secure grip on the nomination. That the nomination by the republican convention is equivalent to an election is true, but there have been democrats elected to office in Lake county and greatly to the surprise of the other fellows as well as themselves. There is, however, little danger of the dems getting a position at the Lake county pie counter this year.

Although the democrats have no earthly show to elect a county ticket, true to their principles they propose to await the action of the republicans at Grayslake, then Mr. Grady will call the faithful together and a full ticket placed in the field. That is the program.

From the metropolis of the county comes the word that no matter what the republicans and democrats may do there will be independent candidates for the prominent offices; that certain gentlemen are going about with knives concealed in their fighting clothes, and "will rip things all to pieces." How pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity.

We predict that when the smoke of battle has cleared away there will be hosts of dead and wounded aspirants for political honors and—the republicans be in control of every county office. Why? Because the united opposition can't get the votes and votes count.

Around The Circle.

David A. Holmes, cashier of the Highland Park bank, has announced himself as a candidate for treasurer of Lake county. He will go into the convention with the support of some Lake Shore towns.

Thomas Strang, general merchant, secretary of the Wadsworth Creamery company and postmaster at Wadsworth, is "in the hands of his friends" as a candidate for county clerk of Lake county.

The Harvard Herald says: "A. K. Stearns of Waukegan will be an independent candidate for the legislature from this district in the interests of Wm. E. Mason for United States senator. Mr. Stearns will make a fatal mistake if he permits himself to be a candidate. Independent candidates in this district have always met defeat in the past and Mr. Stearns, if he runs, will find this out to his sorrow. If he is wise he will give up such a foolish notion and wait until such time as he receives the indorsement of the regularly constituted republican party in convention. There is no occasion at this time for his candidacy."

Next Thursday, August 7, the democratic senatorial convention for the eighth district will be held in the opera house at Harvard. The candidates, so far as known, are Peter McDermott of Waukegan, Lake county; Wm. Desmond of Hartland, McHenry county, and C. V. O'Connor of Belvidere, Boone county. There is good reason to believe that the McHenry county delegation has another candidate in the person of that "great leader of the democracy of Mr. Hoy's piece of earth," Johnnie Donnelly. Mr. O'Connor represented the district in the last session of the legislature, and his record received the approval of the legislative critics, and there seems no good reason why he should not be returned. There will be 50 delegates in the convention divided as follows: Lake 22; McHenry 21; Boone 7. Twenty-six votes are necessary to nominate. Lake has instructed its delegates to stand solid and vote as a unit; Boone has done the same. The contest promises to be an exciting one and a combination formed to nominate a McHenry county man. Just how this is to be accomplished is known only to the McHenry county leaders. Lake has a popular man as a candidate, but the Boone county delegates have a strong affection for the McHenry county contingent. Lake county democrats have an opportunity to name the nominee "if a trade can be arranged with four delegates from Boone." Mr. McDermott has, it is said, received assurances from friends in Boone county that they will be for him if there is not a show to return their candidate. Lake deserves the honor and should have it.

Richmond Gazette: "We notice in our exchanges that A. K. Stearns of Waukegan is circulating petitions preparatory to running for the legislature as an independent candidate. Stearns was a candidate for the regular republican nomination, but was defeated in the Lake county convention by the present representative Geo. R. Lyon. It is reported that Mr. Stearns will make the race as a supporter of Senator Mason. Judging by the past Mr. Stearns' candidacy will not sweep the district like a whirlwind. Independent republican candidates have had a rough road to travel in this senatorial district and Mr. Stearns—well, he will know more after the votes have been counted."

THE EVIL OF THE TONGUE

Lives Through All Years—Its Havoc Greater Than That of Gatling Gun.

The second most deadly instrument of destruction is the dynamite gun—the first is the human tongue. The gun merely kills bodies; the tongue kills reputations and oftentimes ruins character. Each gun works alone; each loaded tongue has a hundred accomplices. The havoc of the gun is visible at once. The evil of the tongue lives through all years; even the eye of Omniscience might grow tired in tracing it to its finality, says William George Jordan.

The crimes of the tongue are words of unkindness, of anger, of malice of envy, of bitterness, of harsh criticism, gossip, lying and scandal. Theft and murder are awful crimes, yet in a single year the aggregate sorrow, pain and suffering they cause in a community is microscopic when compared with sorrows that come from the crimes of the tongue. Place in one of the scale-pans of justice the evils resulting from the acts of criminals and the other, the grief and tears and suffering resulting from the crimes of respectability, and you will start back in amazement as you see the scale you thought the heavier shoot high in the air.

At the hand of thief or murderer few of us suffer, even indirectly. But from the careless tongue of friend, the cruel tongue of enemy, who is free? No human being can live a life so true, so fair, so pure as to be beyond the reach of malice, or immune from the poisonous emanations of envy. The insidious attacks against one's reputation, the loathsome innuendoes, slurs, half lies by which jealous mediocrity seeks to ruin its superiors are like those insect parasites that kill the heart and life of a mighty oak. So cowardly is the method, so stealthy the shooting of the poisoned thorns, so insignificant the separate acts in their seeming, that one is not on guard against them. It is easier to dodge an elephant than a microbe.

Col. G. W. Hall's Shows.

As we are able to visit only a limited number of the most important cities of our grand tour of the entire country, we have entered into an agreement with the various railroads diverging from the points at which we exhibit, whereby those living at a distance can visit us at greatly reduced rates. A vast number of special agents are employed by Col. Hall to perfect, complete and systemize arrangements so there can be no hitch or unpleasant delay of any nature in the special excursions, and excursionists are assured every possible advantage. The rates quoted usually include an admission ticket to show, and excursionists thus supplied will, if on the show grounds previous to the regular opening of the ticket office, be admitted first. For full particulars enquire of your nearest railway station agent. Remember the day and date, Barrington, Wednesday, August 13.

EARTHQUAKES IN SEVERAL STATES

Severe Tremors Felt in Nebraska, Western Iowa and South Dakota.

FRIGHTENS THE INHABITANTS

Parts of California Also Shaken by Disturbance and Some Damage Is Done to Oil Wells in the Lompoc Valley.

An earthquake shock so severe as to cause consternation in many places is reported from towns in Nebraska, western Iowa and South Dakota. The disturbance occurred shortly before 1 o'clock p. m. July 28 and lasted for ten to fifteen seconds.

This was the first earthquake shock ever felt in Nebraska. The wave swept over a stretch about 200 miles square. The center of the disturbance was near Norfolk, Neb., but Tilden, Neb., reports the hardest shock. At that place dishes were thrown down, brick walls were cracked, wells dried up and other damage resulted. Three distinct shocks were felt at Tilden.

At the Santee Indian agency several shocks were felt. They were accompanied by deep rumblings.

Breaks Up Indian Dances. On the Omaha and Winnebago reservation the earthquake terrorized the Indians, who had never experienced anything of the kind. The Indians were holding festivities in honor of visitors from the Indian Territory. Hundreds were gathered in the big tent when the shocks came. Fright seized the gathering and the dances were broken up. These agencies are not far from Mount Ioula, Nebraska's volcano, and the Indians immediately gave that mountain the credit for the disturbances.

Two hundred towns felt the disturbances. Among those reporting the hardest shocks are Tilden, Onell, Petersburg, Elgin, Oakdale, Battle Creek, Norfolk, Ewing, Neligh, Randolph and Clearwater.

Terror at Battle Creek.

At Battle Creek there was almost a panic. Houses shook perceptibly and rumbling noises resembling thunder added to the terror of the inhabitants. Many rushed into the streets and for some time would not go near structures that were likely to cause injury in case of a possible collapse. The vibrations were so pronounced as to knock down insecurely fastened ornaments and rattle dishes. The tremor was continued for about fifteen seconds and was felt at many near by towns.

Yankton, S. D., felt a shock of twelve seconds' duration. The disturbance seems to have been more clearly felt along the boundary line between Nebraska and South Dakota, although a number of places in both states were affected.

IN CALIFORNIA.

Shock Lasting Thirty Seconds Is Felt in Lompoc Valley.

A severe earthquake shock was felt in Lompoc valley at 10:55 p. m. July 27. The shock lasted fully thirty seconds and was so severe that dishes, clocks, house plants, etc., were thrown from shelves and furniture and other articles were upset.

The people were stricken with terror and ran from their houses, some fearing to return, as other lighter shocks continued for several hours afterward. Another heavy shock was felt at 5 a. m. and one at 11 a. m., July 28. A large water tank was knocked over; the earth cracked in many places. The Santa Ynez river bed is slightly changed at places.

Meager advices from Los Alamos, near Santa Barbara, report that a severe shock was felt at about 11 o'clock p. m., July 27, doing $15,000 damage to the property of the Western Union Oil company at the Garreaga wells. At Harris Station a fissure is reported to have opened, and from it a stream of water two feet deep and eighteen feet wide is flowing. A slight shock was felt in Santa Barbara, but no damage was done.

At Santa Maria the vibrations, which were from east to west, lasted forty-five seconds. Old-timers say it was the heaviest shock ever felt there. Near San Francisco a formerly dry creek was turned into a rushing stream.

Two distinct shocks were felt at San Luis Obispo. The first and heaviest lasted three seconds.

CARBOLIC ACID ENDS ROMANCE

Etta Cook Swallows Poison When Her Young Lover Proves Fickle.

FACTORY GIRL DIES FOR LOVE

When Informed that Her Wealthy Sweetheart Intended to Take an Automobile Trip and Never Return She Takes Her Life.

More has come to light about Alfred Austell, the Yale law school senior, who was the companion of Miss Etta Cook of New Haven, Conn., the girl who killed herself by taking carbollic acid in the Double Beach house because Austell told her he was to leave for good in a few days.

Coroner Eli Mix, who investigated the case and who examined Austell, stated that there would be no arrests made. Austell told the story to the coroner of what happened between himself and Miss Cook before she committed suicide. They went to the Double Beach house, where they had often been before for a lark and he said that Miss Cook was apparently in high spirits. Miss Cook had told some of her girl friends that she expected to marry Austell, but Austell will not admit that he gave any such impression to the girl.

Had Lived Together.

Austell belongs to a rich and famous old family of Atlanta, Ga., and Miss Cook had been employed in a firearms factory until six weeks ago. She gave up work at the request of Austell, with whom she had been intimate for a year. Since that time she had been much of the time at the Double Beach house with Austell, and for the past month they had lived there together.

Austell lavished money on the girl, gave her clothes and luncheons and dinners. All went well until Austell who had received his degree from the Yale law school in June, began to think of going home to Atlanta, to settle down to the practice of law.

Prepares to Go Home.

Austell made arrangements to start for home. He owns one of the biggest and fastest automobiles in the city and he had decided to make the 1,600-mile journey to Atlanta in his machine, traveling in easy stages and taking six weeks. When he told her that he planned to leave town and that he would probably not return to New Haven, Miss Cook was very much upset over the news. She quickly found out that his plan practically cut her off from Austell's life for the future.

After a day of unusual gayety she and Austell went to their room about 8 in the evening. Austell threw himself across the bed and Miss Cook stepped into the dressing room, which opens out of the bedroom.

Hears a Groan.

In an instant Austell heard a groan. He rushed to the room just in time to catch the girl, who fell dying into his arms. He recognized the fumes of carbollic acid. Hatless and coatless, he rushed downstairs and sprang into his auto. With full power on he dashed through the winding roads to Branford, obtained a physician and hurried back to the Double Beach house to find the girl dead.

Austell was frantic with grief. He implored Dr. Evans to bring the girl to life and then, suddenly remembering the scandal of it all, told Dr. Evans and Proprietor Clark of the Double Beach house not to spare any amount of money to hush the affair up. This was done for a time, but the coroner made the facts public.

DR. CHARLES K. ADAMS IS DEAD

University of Wisconsin Educator Succumbs to Bright's Disease.

Dr. Charles Kendall Adams, aged 67 years, formerly president of the University of Wisconsin, died from Bright's disease, after a lingering illness at Redlands, Cal. Mrs. Adams, who was exhausted by her long vigil at his bedside, is prostrated by his death. Dr. Adams had been ailing for several years. While president of the University of Wisconsin he was granted a long leave of absence, going to Europe, where he seemed to recuperate. Shortly after returning to his work at the University of Wisconsin, about a year ago, his health again broke, and at the end of a few months he resigned and came to California. For the greater part of several days before his death Dr. Adams was in a semi-conscious condition.

JUDGE JACKSON STANDS BY RULING

West Virginia Jurist Says Decision Is Just and According to Law.

IMPEACHMENT HAS NO TERROR

Contents if Miners' Claims Are True He Has Only Committed an Error of Judgment, From Which an Appeal May Be Taken.

Wheeling, W. Va., dispatch: Judge John Jay Jackson of the federal court consented to make a statement relative to the reported movement to impeach him and remove him from the bench. He thinks its object is to intimidate him and frighten him into changing his position with reference to the mine workers and to prevent any further punishment of violators of his injunction for contempt of court.

"I do not know whether the report is true or not, nor do I care," said Judge Jackson. "I do not fear any proceedings of that nature, and I regard the entire matter as perfectly absurd."

"Impeach me? What for? If all their claims be true I have made an error of judgment, nothing more. A judge cannot be impeached for that. But there has been no error of judgment. My opinion speaks for itself. It is an honest opinion, backed up by forty-one years of experience on the bench, and I think it will stand."

Appeal Is Only Remedy.

"A judge can be impeached only for incompetency, corruption or something of that nature. Their only remedy is an appeal to a higher court, and they are welcome to that course if they think my opinions are unjust or illegal."

Judge Jackson showed some impatience in talking of the matter. To his close friends he is reported to have said that he rendered opinions during the civil war, when backbone was required, and that he did not propose to be diverted from his plain duty in this instance by "threats of the mine workers." He was threatened in a similar manner before, he said, when his injunctions drove Eugene Debs out of West Virginia. The talk at that time resulted in nothing, and he thinks no action will be taken now.

MONEY COMING IN.

Checks and Drafts for Assessments Are Arriving Daily.

Indianapolis dispatch: The United Mine Workers' officials received many checks and drafts representing assessments paid by locals throughout the country during the week. Secretary-Treasurer Wilson reported that the entire membership is responding cheerfully to the assessment, and that the members of the organization seem to think that the convention acted wisely when it was decided upon the plan in preference to a strike. Even the anthracite miners, who at first favored a strike, conceded the assessment plan to be better.

"We have not taken any further steps in the matter of Judge Jackson's impeachment," said Mr. Wilson. "Nor shall we do so till the docket is cleared of the present cases. We want it understood that there is no question of politics in our proposed action, and that we are moving in the matter only that we may preserve our rights."

EXPRESS FEAR FOR EDWARD VII.

Rumors Regarding the King's Condition Spread Anxiety Over London.

TO FACE SECOND OPERATION

Report That Great Britain's Sovereign Must Submit to the Surgeon's Knife Again Appears to Be Well Founded.

London cable: London has been startled by several rumors concerning the king's condition. Where these reports originated cannot be traced, but they spread rapidly, especially in the West End. The first was to the effect that the king was about to undergo a second operation; the second that the coronation had been indefinitely postponed, and the third, which received no credence whatever, was that the king had had a relapse and was sinking rapidly.

It was learned on excellent authority that there was no truth in the second and third rumors. Instead of a relapse having occurred, the king passed a very encouraging day, and his convalescence continued without any interruption. It was said in official circles that up to the present time there had been no thought of changing the date of the coronation, nor has there been any reason for any discussion upon this point.

King Improves.

King Edward's improvement has kept pace with if not exceeded the rate which his physicians anticipated, and unless some turn absolutely unforeseen occurs the king will be crowned Aug. 9.

The fixing of this early date was not done at the initiative of the physicians, but rather against their will. The king displayed such great impatience and was so insistent that the date selected be as early as possible that the physicians yielded. They feared that there would be greater danger to their royal patient by reason of worry if they persisted in advising his majesty against an early day being fixed than through the fatigue the ceremony would entail.

People in Doubt.

But notwithstanding the invariably favorable bulletins issued from the royal yacht people are still asking: "Will the king be fit for the ceremony?" and a great deal is heard that in a way goes toward confirming the first rumor which was aloft.

While it cannot be said as a positive fact there is good reason for believing that when the coronation is over a second operation will be performed upon the king. It is believed that in such an event the appendix itself will be removed. This supposition is strengthened by the arrangements which are being made to carry the king into Westminster abbey. A sort of Sedan chair has been constructed. Whether it will be used or not depends upon his majesty's condition. At all events everything will be prepared and in readiness should the king be unable to walk.

Noblemen to Carry Chair.

Further weight is given to this opinion by the fact that all suggestions that the journey from the door of the abbey to the coronation chair be shortened are met with a statement that it will not be necessary.

It was also said that if the sedan chair be used it will not be carried into the abbey by servants or soldiers but by four noblemen, who, it may be imagined, will be selected as much for their strength as for their rank.

It has been a subject of much comment that no police regulations or directions have yet been issued for Aug. 9. This, taken in connection with the rumors about the king's health, has kept the public from buying seats in quantities along the route of the procession.

Postpone Rehearsals.

There are to be rehearsals in Westminster abbey on Thursday and Friday preceding the day of the ceremony, but the putting off of this very important preliminary work until just before the day fixed has tended to increase the doubt that is extremely prevalent in the public mind.

Even personal friends of the king have said that they do not see how his majesty can be ready for the ordeal by Aug. 9, even though the ceremony is curtailed to an hour or an hour and a quarter.

BRITISH WHEAT CROP IS HURT

Wind and Rain Threaten Serious Damage Over Large Area.

London cablegram: The Mark Lane Express in its review of crop conditions says that wind and rain threaten serious damage over a considerable portion of the wheat area of the United Kingdom. Barley has benefited by the weather and oats have not suffered.

The French wheat yield is above the average in the most important provinces, the total crop being estimated at 42,000,000 quarters. Rye is not above the average, but oats are from 5 to 10 per cent above.

LITTLE MISS MILLIONS

That was only to be expected, and scores of others did the same thing, some for tidy amounts.

No one deigned to notice him as yet, but Jones was not seeking notoriety—he would in good time have all that he cared for, and more, too.

Like other great men, he could be patient, knowing that everything comes to him who waits.

Jones won again. He never touched his stake, but cast his eyes down to the white cuff of his shirt-sleeve, upon which a few apparently hieroglyphic figures had been marked.

Merrick swept a glance around. As usual there were numerous spectators back of the players, though no great crowd was in attendance.

He quickly discovered the one he sought, and bowed across the table to Constance Dare.

The count sat close to Jones, and followed his play with a much smaller stake.

Evidently he believed a half a loaf was better than no bread, and intended sharing the coming glory and vindication of Darragh's system.

Little Jones cared.

It was not so much the money he desired as the demoralization of the gaming facility, which was yearly sending its deadly blight all over Europe, and even reaching out its tentacles across the sea to the young republic of the west.

As time passed and Jones' little pile upon the table grew in quantity, some of those near by began to show an interest in his work, being forever on the lookout for a phenomenon.

Still he won, with only an occasional setback.

The dealer condescended to shoot him a glance of curiosity as he shoved a glittering mass in his quarter, though at the same time a cynical smile momentarily flitted over his sallow features.

He had seen them before, lots of them—like the old sexton, it was only a question of time with him ere he gathered them in.

Of course, the keen eyes of the dealer had ere now detected that Jones was proceeding upon a regular routine of play—possibly he had discovered the marks upon the cuff, as it was an old dodge.

When Jones won again he became interested enough to make some little remark across the board as he pushed a goodly heap of gold alither.

For the limit had been reached.

Should Jones be lucky enough to win again, he must begin to stow his gains away.

Of course, this might happen, but the dealer, in his superior wisdom, rested under the belief that it was about time a decided change took place.

He would smile in his usual ironical way when the collapse came, and that was all.

To him it was an old story.

Another rake off for Jones.

He calmly drew out a formidable buckskin bag, and rattled the thousands of francs into it as nonchalantly as the dealer passed them over.

Indeed, his very action seemed to say that he certainly expected more to follow, for the mouth of the capacious bag yawned hungrily between his knees.

The whisper had gone around, and all interest was now centered at this point.

Keen eyes watched the action of Jones as he changed to red after winning a certain number of times on black.

Red won, of course—his system had worked beautifully thus far, and if it kept up the ruin of Monte Carlo was assured.

More intense grew the excitement—all old failures were forgotten and one more hope revived in hearts that had grown sick with waiting.

The worst of it was when Jones won every one raked in with him, since none dared to go contrary to such extraordinary luck.

So that the bank was losing heavily. There was a chance that it might recoup when the turn came, if it ever did.

Jones played on without a tremor. The crowd, pressed five deep around the table, now took such amazing interest in Jones and his fortunes that each time he won a buzz of excitement and covetous sympathy burst out, while an occasional loss excited deepest commiseration.

Jones looked like a winner.

He was a trifle flushed and his eyes glowed with righteous fires, but his hand showed no sign of trembling as he calmly added each healthy contribution to his stores.

Although the hour had grown late, the crowd had apparently doubled rather than dwindled away, as was its wont.

Old gamblers rubbed their palms together and chuckled—some of them shook hands with one another after each glorious success with as much vim as though they had a personal share in the victory.

For the bank was the enemy of them all—its insatiable maw had swallowed their filthy lucre, and they gloated over the fact that its day of doom had apparently come at last.

The dealer now began to cast anxious glances up at the clock as though in hopes the hour for closing operations was close at hand.

But this was folly and he knew it. The game must be played to its conclusion.

Seldom did a single cog slip in Jones' wheel, and the conviction at last seized upon those who looked on that a wonder had arrived with a system that must revolutionize all games of hazard from this time on.

The end was in sight.

Jones never let up. His buckskin bag had a duplicate, and both were well loaded, a fortune in each.

He felt that he could keep up this business as long as the bank was able to stand it; but the losses of that hitherto impregnable institution were simply enormous.

Finally the croupier threw up the sponge, and as he shoved more gold across the table in the direction whence all the rest had gone, he remarked in that metallic voice of his, now tinged with real alarm:

"There can be no further play here to-night, ladies and gentlemen—for the second time in its existence the bank is broken!"

The most tremendous excitement followed this dramatic announcement on the part of the veteran croupier, when circumstances entirely beyond his control compelled him to announce the bursting of the bank of Monte Carlo.

Jones was the cynosure of all eyes.

He could not complain of any lack of attention now—this wonderful feat made him for the time being almost a god.

The old gamblers crowded about him and wrung his hand with all manner of congratulatory phrases, which he could of course accept at their true value. The man who succeeds has no lack of friends. Jones was human, and rejoiced at the triumphant vindication of his work.

The count and his Russian ally had no reason to complain, since they were in for a goodly pile; but what they had won was a mere bagatelle to what the future held for the possessor of that magical chart.

And well they knew it.

Jones had made all preparations for just such an emergency, even as he had supplied the buckskin reservoirs for sacking the bank.

For an amateur bank burglar he had covered himself with considerable glory.

True, there was Merrick, sturdy enough to stagger under one of the sacks, but to reach Nice in safety might be a problem.

Mark was engaged just then, having found an opportunity to address Constance, and this in his mind was far more to be desired than the task of guarding a treasure trove.

Little Miss Millions had never gambled a cent in her life, and yet she had been dreadfully interested in Jones' daring raid—she who had hunted springbok and hartbeast, perhaps even the Cape buffalo in his native wild, knew what danger and excitement meant, and her little hands had done their best in applauding the bold plunger when victory came.

The little chat Mark had with the girl gave him some pleasure, and he was glad to know she was now in the care of the English colonel who had been a friend during her girlhood days under the far distant skies of the Transvaal.

It was time they made a move if desirous of getting back to Nice that night, as the last train would presently be going.

So Merrick said good-night and turned to assist his comrade.

So strange a spectacle had rarely been seen in the last ten years, and a great crowd of enthusiastic people formed a body guard to conduct the successful raider to the train.

Really it was a triumphal march.

Merrick could not but secretly laugh at the absurdity of it all—at the same time he would hardly have been human had he failed to enjoy the peculiar sensation that comes with such wonderful success.

On the following night it would be his turn to play the system, while attention was directed to Jones, who would win and lose alternately.

Hard lines had fallen upon Monte Carlo, and if this thing continued long the glory of the great gaming resort would have departed.

A feverish unrest possessed the town, and on every corner knots of people could be seen eagerly discussing the tremendous catastrophe.

And what would become of the prince's famous deep-sea investigations if the pride of Monte Carlo was humbled in the dust?

The station was reached in safety, with the men carrying the spoils, and our two friends ensconced themselves in a carriage, giving the guard a douceur with instructions to keep others out unless there was a positive necessity for an intrusion on account of lack of space.

"It's worth all it cost to see such a thing as that affair to-night," said Mark, reflectively. "I never shall forget it, never. Talk about human nature at its wildest, why, there were men in that crowd around the table, yes, and women, too, crazed by the gaming habit, who glared at you, Jones, like so many mad wolves. The stack of Napoleons appealed to their cupidity as raw meat would to a starving beast. Ugh! It will haunt me always, that fearful insight I had to the depraved human heart."

Jones chuckled as he watched the eager glances cast into their compartment by the passersby.

"Very good, my dear boy, every word of what you say is true, and only emphasizes my determination to kill this beastly dragon by fair means or foul, ere he utterly demoralizes the world. But I am of the opinion that what you saw to-night will not hold a candle to the show to-morrow evening, when we once again tackle the tiger in his lair."

"H'm! perhaps not; but I shall be too busy then to see much of it, thank heaven!"

"The news will travel far and wide, and hundreds flock to Monte Carlo to see for themselves if at last a system has been discovered to beat the bank. One defeat will not do the business—they may even survive a second, but if we keep on Monte Carlo will close shop before a week is out."

If they hoped to hold undisputed possession of their little fort they were doomed to disappointment. Just before starting time Merrick heard the guard in conversation with some one, and at sound of the voice he knew they were undone, for even humble railway employees bowed the knee under the magical spell of the Russian princess' dulcet voice.

And, sure enough, with abject apologies the charmed guard opened the door and ushered in a radiant collection of silks and jewels and beauty that at once illumined the hitherto rather dingy carriage.

CHAPTER X.

The Enchanted Knight.

Merrick was provoked.

With her entry came the peculiar Oriental perfume she always patronized. Merrick had once thought it the most fragrant in the world, but somehow he had grown to detest the same, since it represented one he had no reason to love, or who would if possible wreak injury upon Constance because, forsooth, she stood between the adventures and success.

The princess was very gay.

Merrick had settled himself back in a corner, where he could look on and keep from being dragged into the conversation.

By appearing to be very drowsy he was able to thus keep pretty much to himself, and if a question were fired at him he answered in the slow, studied manner of one who battled with the demons of slumber.

Thus he was able to observe out of the corners of his eyes the maneuvers by means of which the witch of Monte Carlo lured her victims on.

Would Jones succumb?

He was a confirmed bachelor, who had doubtless stood successfully many a siege.

What of that?

He had never met such an enemy as the charming Oglavitch before.

More than one confirmed woman-hater in Paris had succumbed to her enchantment.

Besides, Jones was unfortunate in that he had no amulet to ward off the evil influence.

So Merrick, while listening to the merry rattle of her tongue and watching the peculiar influence her flashing orbs seemed to exert over the poor victim upon whom her batteries were turned, fell to speculating as to what she expected to accomplish.

Merrick remembered that she appeared to be in league with Count Leon and the blond Cossack. She had certainly been instrumental in inveigling Constance to the dinner on board her English cousin's steam yacht.

Did that unholy alliance still exist?

If so, what desperate game was now being played?

Was the princess able to mesmerize the two comrades by the brilliancy of her conversation or the wonderful influence of the mystic perfume that accompanied her debut upon the scene, which, having been successfully performed, would allow the allies to enter the carriage and secure the plunder?

Speaking Italics.

A piece of parliamentary repartee quite as good as the famous retorts in the house of commons and our Congress comes from a New England university. Two students, ranged against each other in debate, grew very warm and took to commenting on each other's oratorical manner. One of them spoke with much emphasis, letting the stress of his voice fall explosively on certain passages.

His opponent opened his speech by saying: "My friend on the negative thinks to win this debate by speaking exclamation marks and italics."

The other could do nothing at the moment to turn the laugh which this speech raised, but when his turn came he "got back" at his opponent with this retort:

"My friend on the affirmative says I speak italics. I should say that he uses italics in the way they are used in the English Bible, not to emphasize, but to mark what is not original and inspired."—Youth's Companion.

How Lightning Affects Watches.

An electrical storm seems to have a peculiar effect on some timepieces," remarked the junior partner of a big downtown jewelry firm. "Every time lightning and thunder get active in this vicinity one of the results is that our watch-repairing department is overworked for several days thereafter. The damage wrought chiefly consists of broken mainsprings.

"When business gets dull with us," added the jeweler jokingly, "we require all our employees to pray for a thunder storm. Failure to comply with this order is considered sufficient cause for the discharge. I am unable to make clear the whys and wherefores, but it is an established fact that after the lightning has frolicked awhile in come the mainsprings wrecked."—Washington Star.

FIREMAN REGAINS HIS HEARING

Had Become Deaf at a Fire Over a Year Ago.

A remarkable case of restoration of hearing is well authenticated in the Alton fire department. One year ago Assistant Fire Chief Frank Miller was overcome by heat while working at a fire. He was ill long after being overcome and his hearing was destroyed. During the entire year following Miller was almost totally deaf. A singular feature of the ear trouble was that he could hear perfectly anything said to him by telephone. On the anniversary of the fire Mr. Miller noticed that his hearing was much better and within two weeks since that date his ears have almost recovered their former usefulness. Miller is one of the most efficient members of the fire department, but his condition had become so bad that it was feared he would be compelled to resign.

Dog Pound Burns.

An old building on the city lots at Centralia, which was being used as a dog pound, was discovered to be in flames. There were twenty-six unclaimed dogs in the building at the time and all but three were burned. The fire is thought to have been of incendiary origin. The building was almost worthless, but the fire communicated to another building and damaged the city tools belonging to the street department before the department arrived.

Municipal Plants.

A statement has been prepared by Alderman Junker showing the operating expenses and receipts of the waterworks and electric light plants in Carlyle. Both are operated by the municipality. According to the statement presented to the council, it cost for one year to operate the waterworks the sum of $2,264—receipts, $1,318; deficit, $946. The cost of operating the electric light plant was $1,914—receipts, $1,086; deficit, $828.

Appointed Indian Nurse.

Miss Etha Butcher, daughter of the Congregational minister at Chandler, has been appointed by the Women's Union Missionary society to act as superintendent of nurses at Jhads, India. Teachers Examination.

State superintendent Alfred Baylis has announced the regular annual examination for state certificates to be held at the state normal university in Carbondale for August 5 to 8. Prof. Frank H. Colyer will conduct the examination.

Gets a Sword.

The Gatling gun section of the 5th Illinois infantry has given a sword to Capt. Frank S. Wood of Quincy, who is the adjutant of the regiment.

TO ENTERTAIN THE PRESIDENT.

Elaborate Preparations Being Made at Carbondale for the Event.

The presence of President Roosevelt at the annual reunion of the soldiers and sailors of southern Illinois, to be held at Carbondale, is considered quite certain. Information comes from Secretary Cortelyou that the invitation has been received and intimating that when his itinerary is complete he may accept. Gov. Yates and Congressman Hopkins have both promised to use their influence to secure his presence. He will be taken to Carbondale from St. Louis on a special train, making no stops en route, whatever, owing to his limited time, and will return by special train making the entire trip in six hours. Elaborate preparations for the reunion are being made.

BOY FALLS FROM A LADDER.

Has Bones Broken and is Badly Bruised and Torn.

James Harris, a boy employed to carry water to workmen who are building a large steel gas holder at the Alton gasworks, stumbled on a ladder and fell to the ground, a distance of 35 feet. The boy struck on his chin on the hard ground and when picked up he was unconscious. The flesh on his chin had been torn completely from the bone down to the throat, and in addition to this injury he sustained two fractures of his right arm, dislocation of the right wrist and internal injuries. The same boy was severely injured on the Fourth of July by the premature discharge of a toy cannon and his face was badly powder-burned.

MORTUARY.

Walter W. Rogers.

Walter W. Rogers, a wealthy farmer and stockman of Bloomington township, who was prominent in social circles, died suddenly from apoplexy while visiting in New York. The deceased was widely known and his death was a shock to many friends. He was aged 61, and leaves a wife, but no children.

Christian County Farms.

The 1902 census bulletin gives the number of farms in Christian county as 3,137. Three thousand of the farms have buildings on them. The total number of acres represented is 425,942, of which 409,057 acres are improved. The farms and improvements, except buildings, are valued at $21,634,330. The buildings are valued at $2,887,190. The implements and machinery are valued at $488,890; live stock, $2,669,545. Value of products, $3,132,578. Expended for labor, $275,900.

Thrashers Are Scarce.

The oats harvest is in full blast in the central Illinois belt and a good crop is being harvested despite the hard rains and the high winds which blew down the grain shortly before ripening time. It is estimated that the yield will average nearly forty bushels. Some fields have yielded fifty and even sixty bushels to the acre. The farmers are complaining of a scarcity of thrashing outfits.

Going Around the World.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Elliot Smith and Misses Eunice and Ellen Smith have left Alton on a trip around the world. They will be gone one year and will visit many interesting places. They will travel westward to San Francisco and from there will sail for Hawaii and thence to China. Mr. Smith is president of the Illinois Glass company and of the Citizens' National bank of Alton.

Apple Crop Satisfactory.

The development of the apple crop is proving satisfactory to the apple growers in and about Flora. The black rot, which made its appearance recently has succumbed to treatment and no further danger is apprehended from that source. The fruit is growing nicely and is apparently free from the usual defects.

Flour Mills Are Busy.

The coming of the new wheat has caused much activity at the Nashville flour mills. Double shifts are employed and the mills are operated eighteen hours daily at full capacity. The wheat is pronounced to be of excellent quality, and is turning out a good grade of flour.

Drowns While Bathing.

Richard Clark, 20 years of age, was drowned while bathing near the railroad bridge east of Charleston.

Judge Tuley's Antistrike Plan.

Judge Murray Tuley, president of the Illinois State Bar association, in a recent address before that body suggests a plan for the settlement of industrial disputes which in view of the prominence of its author is at least worthy of consideration. It is briefly outlined in these words:

All corporations in all cases of industrial disputes shall submit the same to the state board of arbitration, the other party consenting thereto, or to such other arbitration as shall be or shall have been agreed upon between the parties under penalty of the forfeiture of their charters for refusing so to do.

Judge Tuley declares that he is not a believer in compulsory arbitration between individuals, but in compulsory arbitration between corporations. He would compel labor unions to become incorporated and thus be punishable by the forfeiture of their charters in the event of a refusal to submit a disagreement to arbitration.

Corporations, whether of labor or capital, are creatures of the state and, according to Judge Tuley's view, could be compelled by the processes of law to submit their differences to arbitration and be made to abide by the findings. There is no question as to the right of a commonwealth to require of all corporations hereafter organized submission to the arbitration of disputes with employees, though it may be open to argument whether corporations already in existence could be compelled to do this. Then, too, there may be a question as to whether labor organizations could be forced to become incorporated if they did not elect to do so. However, these are questions for the courts to decide.

The interest of the public, which is very materially affected by great strikes and lockouts, is in industrial peace and harmony, and the public has a right to insist that this interest be conserved. If the obligation to the public both of organized labor and corporate capital is not acknowledged voluntarily in such cases, the time must come when it will be acknowledged under legal pressure.

The published statement that American firms are securing most of the contracts for the building of bridges in South Africa awakens no surprise in the minds of those who know the advanced position this country holds in work of that kind. A writer in the Century Magazine refers to the interesting facts that all existing railroad spans of more than 500 feet have been built since 1870, and probably more in America than in all the rest of the world together, and certainly these are much better and cheaper and have been more rapidly and safely constructed than those of any other country. In a word, American engineers have built most of the greatest and most difficult bridges in the world, and in less than half a century, largely within the last quarter century, have developed the art of bridge building to a perfection that no other sort of construction has reached in hundreds of years. They have brought it to practical limits that cannot be greatly extended until some radically new material is provided that is notably stronger, cheaper or lighter than steel.

A dispatch from the Johannesburg correspondent of the London Times mentions a scheme for attracting unskilled white labor to South Africa. The immediate need of labor is in the mines, and it is thought that the high wages will attract a considerable amount of British immigration. This, if successful, would have more important results than appear on the surface, as it would in all probability point the way toward complete displacement of black labor in an industry great enough to attract many thousands of white immigrants. These would promote British race dominance while insuring a relatively greater number of the whole white population in comparison with the blacks. For some time the mine owners have been comparing the efficiency of white as compared with black labor, and in many cases the result is such that the higher price of the former is more than offset by the greater economic efficiency of the whites.

In his latest and what he insists is his last book Herbert Spencer in speaking of the evidences that go to show that the world is undergoing a process of "rebarbarization" says, "If there needs a striking illustration of the result, we have it in the dictum of the people's laureate that the lordliest life on earth is one spent in seeking to 'bag' certain of our fellow men." If Mr. Spencer persists in this sort of talk, he will get himself disliked in certain dominant quarters in Great Britain.

William Faversham, the actor whose wife recently secured a divorce, denies that he is going to marry Julie Opp, an actress who has just emerged from the divorce mill. Mr. Faversham should have been courteous enough to have permitted the lady to first deny the horrid story.

ENGLISHMAN AND TURK.

How the Former Obtained Some Cash Owed by the Latter.

An Englishman has just had a very curious experience, says the London Telegraph. He had lent a Turk some money, but the man was unable to pay and on his deathbed laid a particular charge on his wife and children to meet the debt. The eldest son was making arrangements accordingly, but also died, and he, too, begged his family to pay the money as soon as they could.

One day the Englishman received a visit from a member of the family, who said that there were now four members of it left, and they were ready to pay, but one of the daughters refused to subscribe her share, declaring that the money was never really lent. The others, however, wished to settle the matter, and if the Englishman would come to the house it would be arranged. "But," the Turk added, "if you see there is any difficulty just say that you leave it to be settled in the next world."

Accordingly the Englishman went to the house at the appointed time and met the family in the presence of a mollah, the ladies being behind a screen. The mollah began by asking if he had truly lent the money, how much it was and if he would take any less. One of the women behind kept saying it was all a fraud. The Englishman then declared that he had lent the money, that he had not asked for it, that they had told him to come and get it and if they did not want to pay it he would leave the matter to be settled in the next world.

There was dead silence for a few moments, and then the women called their brother, and each paid her share without a word. It seems the prospect of meeting the father in the other world without having carried out his wishes was too serious a thing to face.

THE COOKBOOK.

In baking bread it is better to overdo rather than underdo the work.

To make a good digestible pie crust use cream instead of lard, and it will be light and healthful.

If there is not batter enough to fill the gem pan, put cold water in the empty space before setting the pan in the oven.

The rich cheeses, which have the largest percentage of fat, are those which blend well with bread in sandwiches or with macaroni or rice.

For a quick cake beat until thick four eggs. Add four tablespoonsful of sugar, half a cup of flour, a little cinnamon and lemon rind. Beat well and spread on a baking pan. Bake in quick oven and cut at once.

Sweet potatoes are much richer twice cooked. Baked or boiled merely, this vegetable is good, but when the baking or boiling is followed by a subsequent cooking in the pan or in the oven they are far better.

A fine cheese pudding is made by grating five ounces of bread and three of cheese. Warm two ounces of butter in a quarter of a pint of fresh milk and mix thoroughly. Add two well beaten eggs, salt and bake half an hour.

Death in Their Work.

Gilders, photographers and those who handle the hydric and potassic cyanides are liable to suffer from chronic poisoning by hydrocyanic acid. They have headache, giddiness, noises in the ear, difficult respiration, pain over the heart, loss of appetite—in short, show all the evidences of mild poisoning. Zinc workers, too, suffer. Zinc is used as a pigment in calico printing, in coloring glass, in polishing optical glasses and in making artificial meerschau pipes.

So men die in harness in these and a hundred other occupations, killed by the very air they breathe, and other men step into their shoes.—New York World.

The European Plan.

Some queer customers are seen at New York hotels. An old farmer from the country tells how he got ahead of one of the clerks. "I walked in," he says, "asked the young man at the desk, 'What are your prices?' 'American or European?' he asked me. Now I wasn't going to tell where I was from until I had seen the lay of the land. 'What difference does that make?' says I. 'If American,' he answered, 'it's $4 per day; if European, $1.50.' I thought a moment, and then an idea struck me how to get ahead of him. I walked up boldly and registered from London."—New York Press.

The Standing Army.

Old Lady—Poor fellow! And so you are a soldier?

Corporal Cannon—Yes, ma'am.

Old Lady—I'm awfully sorry for you. My, my, to think they never allow you to rest down!

Corporal Cannon—Ma'am?

Old Lady—I said I was sorry for you, and it is heartless and cruel for the government to keep a standing army all the time.

Corporal Cannon—Ma'am? Oh, yes, ma'am, thank you.—London Chums.

Discovery of Iron.

Teacher—Johnny, can you tell me how iron was first discovered?

Johnny—Yes, sir.

"Well, just tell the class what your information is on that point."

"I heard pa say yesterday that they smelt it."—Spare Moments.

Oh, So Polite!

"Politest people I ever knew down in that fever and ague country," remarked the traveler. "In other places they shake hands when they greet you, but down there they shake all over."—Chicago Post.

Denied Even a Poor Consolation.

The victims of the recent serious storm in Indiana, which destroyed much property, are denied the poor consolation of calling it either a tornado or a cyclone, but are asked to admit that it was merely a severe wind-storm, with mild electrical accompaniments.

Weather Observer Blythe at Indianapolis insists that it wasn't a tornado because two of the four conditions requisite for the formation of tempests of that particular variety were missing. The four are, he says, first, a cyclone or area of low pressure, the center of which is to the north or northwest, with a barometric pressure not necessarily much below the normal; second, a temperature of almost 70 degrees on the morning weather maps; third, great humidity, and, fourth, that the time of the year be April 1 to July 1. "These conditions," he adds, "may and often do exist separately. Two or three of them may be found coexisting, but so long as one of the four be absent tornadoic formation is not likely to occur. Of these four conditions the first and fourth existed at times during the storm, but the second and third did not. The temperature was 65 degrees, and the relative humidity was 66 per cent of the possible at that temperature."

This attempt to belittle the storm is bitterly resented by those who were in its path, and there is certainly nothing "mild" about their descriptions of it. According to the reports of eyewitnesses, the approach of the storm was watched while it speeded for three miles and more, and all the time its funnel shaped formation was distinct, the funnel swooping down and ricocheting as it struck the earth. The clouds were of all colors save red, with yellow and blue black predominating, and the way it tossed barns and houses and uprooted forests and played havoc generally was proof positive to the observers that no essentials of a full fledged tornado were lacking.

This Indianapolis weather sharp, with all his vaunting scientific accomplishments, probably wouldn't know a real tornado if he saw one, but if he got in its way he would speedily realize that there was something doing more strenuous than gentle summer zephyrs.

A learned scientist of Coopwood, Miss., gives warning that the reassuring reports concerning the ultimate results of the recent volcanic disturbances must not be taken as final. He has calculated that the Mississippi river and its numerous tributaries have for a vast period of time been engaged in carrying the material of the land from countries far in the north to the gulf of Mexico. This process of transportation has resulted in shifting an enormous mass and weight through nearly 30 degrees of latitude from the north to the south, and this transfer of weight may so disturb the center of gravity of our planet that finally it will lose its poise and assume a new position of adjustment to the new center of weight. If this should happen, there would be a corresponding vast flow of water to the side turned down and a disappearance of water from regions now covered. Moreover, the piling up of so vast a weight on the floor of the gulf of Mexico may break through it and let the water of the sea upon the vast interior fires supposed to be there. In such a case there would be an enormous forming of steam, which might produce terrific explosions and consequent disturbances of land and sea. Just when or where all this is going to happen the Coopwood scientist does not predict.

The project of building a macadam boulevard between New York and Chicago is in line with the work of good roads promoters, though of considerably more extensive proportions than anything hitherto undertaken in this direction. Men of means and enterprise are behind the project, for the carrying out of which the New York and Chicago Road association was organized in the former city a few days ago. The road proposed would, it is said, reduce the distance by highway between New York and Chicago from 987 to 850 miles. It is estimated that it can be built for about $5,000 a mile. This is a big undertaking, but by no means impossible or improbable of consummation.

Kansas farmers are dragging tramps from freight cars and compelling them to work in the wheat harvest fields. And yet the Fourth of July orators have been telling us again that this is a free country.

Now that the American women who can afford to go to the seashore or mountains are in transit, each with from two to a dozen trunks, the baggage smasher is naturally in a cheerful mood.

Uncle Russell Sage must feel the ground slipping from under him. He has just lost 30,000 acres of northern Minnesota land by an adverse decision in the supreme court of the state.

The American people had at least one good reason for celebrating the Fourth of July with especial zest—congress had adjourned.

The excursion given by the conductors of the E. J. & E. arrived in Zurich on time Sunday. There were seventeen coaches filled with jolly excursionists and Lake Zurich was the destination of three-fourths of them, as there was a good program provided for them by the management of the park. The people of the village made preparations to give them all the accommodations possible and treat them in royal style, but the weather seemed against carrying out the program, for when the train arrived the rain was the hardest and there was nothing to do but stay in the cars. They spent the day at Waukegan and Fort Sheridan.

Most every day brings some railroad promoters here, either looking up the right-of-way or trying to get property owners to sign frontage. The latest one is a trolley line running direct from Chicago to Fox Lake. They claim they will come out of Chicago over the Lake street elevated to the terminal at Oak Park and then come across the country to Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Lake Zurich and Wauconda. Now, if all the railroads come out way that has been been promised, Zurich will be quite a railroad center, at any rate, let us hope that something in the shape of railroad comes so that we can reach Chicago without driving five miles to catch a train, even if it is only an auto-bus line.

Car Dispatching by Telephone.

The Massachusetts railroad commission has been investigating the cause of several serious accidents on the single track street car lines of the state, and its findings are not only of interest to street railroad men elsewhere, but to the public generally.

It was found that one of the most common causes of head on collisions on single track lines was the misunderstanding or inaccuracy of the dispatcher's orders, which are generally transmitted by telephone. An instance is cited in the case of a collision on the Brockton and Plymouth Street railway at Hanson, Mass., where the fact was revealed that the orders which were sent over the telephone to the respective motormen were not identical, or at least that one motorman's understanding of them was entirely different from that of the other. The dispatcher insisted that the two orders sent by him were alike, but as no record of them was kept it was impossible to determine the truth of the matter. It is not unlikely that neither the motormen nor the dispatcher was really at fault, but that the accident resulted from the indistinct pronunciation of the telephone.

With the view of minimizing the number of accidents from this and other causes the Massachusetts railroad commissioners are co-operating with the officers of various traction companies of the state in devising a new and improved system of signaling cars. It is said that one of the first steps to be taken will involve either the total abandonment of the telephone for transmitting orders on such lines or a radical change in the present method of telephonic dispatching.

The Direct Nomination Plan.

The Wisconsin Republican state convention, which renominated Robert La Follette for governor, embodied the following plank in its platform:

We demand that the caucuses and conventions for the nomination of candidates for office be abolished by legislative enactment and that all candidates for state, legislative, congressional and county offices be nominated at a primary election upon the same date and by direct vote under the Australian ballot.

It will be recalled that the platform of the Wisconsin Republican convention in 1900, at which Mr. La Follette was nominated for governor, contained a similar plank. In his message to the legislature the governor strongly urged the passage of an act carrying out the pledge of the convention. For some reason or other the legislature failed to enact such a law. The renomination of Governor La Follette and the reinsertion of the primary election clause in the platform would seem to indicate that the Republicans of Wisconsin have firmly decided to adopt the direct system of nominating officers which has apparently worked satisfactorily in the neighboring state of Minnesota.

The incident is mentioned as showing the increasing popular sentiment in favor of a change in the generally prevailing system of nominating candidates for offices. The subject is being studied in various states, and it seems to be a growing reform. There are several other systems of direct nominating, but what is known as the "Minnesota plan" appears to appeal most strongly to the public. It is less cumbersome than the caucus and convention system and places the selection of candidates directly in the hands of the people.

According to the last issue of the Crop Reporter, published by the authority of the secretary of agriculture, eleven states of the Union are interested in the beet sugar industry, and in these states there is a total of about 260,000 acres sown to sugar beets. This is about the same acreage that is devoted to corn in the single state of New Jersey, and New Jersey would hardly be called a great corn growing state. Michigan has the largest acreage of sugar beets, with California second and Colorado third. These three states represent over 208,000 acres of the total acreage of less than 260,000. The figures run as follows: Michigan, 98,000; California, 71,234; Colorado, 39,449. The fourth state is Utah, with 18,600; the fifth Nebraska, with 9,980, and the sixth New York, with 6,500. No other state has an acreage of over 5,000.

Dr. Browning of Philadelphia, who sued the estate of the late Chris Magee of Pittsburg for $317,000 for one year's medical services, recovered judgment for only $29,098. Naturally the doctor is indignant. The estate is worth many millions, and it isn't fair that the lawyers should get it all.

Insomnia Remedies.

However, hopeless you may consider your case, be slow to fly to drugs for relief from insomnia. A rubber bag full of broken ice applied to the back of the neck and a hot water bag at the feet are highly recommended as a remedy for insomnia even in obstinate cases. The circulation is equalized by this treatment.

The secret of hot milk cure also recommended for sufferers from insomnia lies in sipping the beverage. The act of slowly swallowing the liquid is soothing in its effect and generally produces the much desired drowsy feeling which leads to the coveted sleep.

MINERS' AGENT PLEADS GUILTY

Organizer Gehr Admits Violating Injunction by Federal Judge.

OTHER CASES ARE DROPPED

Promises by Men to Keep Within the Law Lead to an Order From the Court For Their Discharge From Custody.

Parkersburg, W. Va., special: John L. Gehr of Colorado, an organizer of the United Mine Workers of America, pleaded guilty to contempt of court after his case had been on hearing all day and many witnesses had testified regarding his speeches. He admitted using various expressions against the issuance of the injunction by Federal Judge Jackson.

Judge Jackson released eleven miners charged with contempt and agreed to rescind the warrant issued for the arrest of Secretary Wilson of the United Mine workers.

Consents to Release.

District Attorney Blizzard stated there were eleven more cases pending, but if the accused would agree to refrain from further violations he would consent to their release on their own recognizance. The court agreed to this and they were released.

"Mother" Jones says she will not stop her work among West Virginia miners, but will try to observe the law.

TO EVICT MINERS.

Men Notified to Return to Work or Quit Premises.

Charleston, W. Va., dispatch: Charleston is crowded with strikers from Loup creek, who are here to attend the trial of President Richards and others charged with having violated the injunctions issued by Federal Judge Keller.

The eviction of strikers occupying company houses is to commence Monday. This notice was posted at all mines in the Kanawha and New river fields:

"All persons desiring to work in the mines at the same prices and under the conditions prevailing on June 7, 1902, must report to the mine boss ready for work Monday morning, July 28. All persons who refuse to work on that day must call at the office, settle their accounts, get their pay, if anything is due them, and quit the respective companies' premises."

MITCHELL IN CHARGE.

Returns to Wilkesbarre and Consults With Leaders.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., dispatch: President Mitchell returned to this city, was met by local leaders, and spent considerable time in consultation with them, getting reports of the conditions in different parts of the region.

Regarding the distribution of the relief funds he had nothing to say except that the plans were in the hands of the local and the district officers. The plan of the union is to give aid only to those strikers who are in direct need of food or clothing. The locals that have money are to be allowed to exhaust their treasuries before they get a portion of the fund.

There is bitter complaint. Many strikers want the money to be distributed share and share alike, but as $500,000 weekly would not suffice to keep the families of all the union officers cannot do it.

The first installment of the strike fund was received by the three anthracite districts. It is supposed to be the division of the $50,000 first received by Secretary Treasurer Wilson, of which the amounts to be divided are as follows: District No. 1, $26,500; district No. 7, $6,000; district No. 9, $17,500.

Reject Michigan Compromise.

Bay City, Mich., dispatch: At a meeting of the Michigan mine operators in this city the proposition prepared by President Williams of the Michigan mine workers was unanimously rejected. The terms of the proposition were not made public by either side. The indications are that the strike will be indefinitely prolonged.

RECORD IN QUICK PUNISHMENT

Minneapolis Man Convicted and in Cell an Hour After Crime.

Minneapolis dispatch: Justice records were broken Friday when a man was arrested, tried, convicted and lodged in his place of imprisonment in exactly fifty minutes after committing a theft. Frank Dickinson stole a coat. Patrolman John O'Connor arrested him and hurried the prisoner with the stolen garment into the municipal court. Ten minutes later Dickinson was on his way to the workhouse under sentence to serve three months, and in less than an hour after the theft was committed he had been enrolled and assigned to a prison squad.

GREAT FARMERS' TRUST BUDDING IN INDIANA

Gigantic Combine to Hold Product for Agriculturists Until Prices Are Right.

La Grange, Ind., dispatch: Indiana farmers have started a movement to effect an organization to control the wheat and corn crop. The organization is designed to take in every farmer in the country. It will be of such gigantic proportions that the gain of all American farmers will be annually $500,000,000. The idea is to make effective the now ineffective tariff on wheat by holding the crop until the price is higher.

The plan was started by Clarence Miller of Frankfort, a young school superintendent. The farmers claim that while the protective tariff has raised prices for other producers it has not raised prices for the producers of wheat. It is proposed to make an organization in every township and any member in need of money will be given it from the farmers' trust bank, which is to be a part of the organization, his crop to be given as security for the loan to enable him to avoid selling while the price is low.

BRAVE GIRL DROWNS TO SAVE PLAYMATE

Josephine Kastner Could Not Swim and Her Heroic Effort Proves Futile.

St. Paul, Minn., special: Josephine Kastner lost her life in trying to save her playmate, Mary Siler, from drowning. They were 12 and 15 years old, respectively, and with a younger brother of the Kastner girl had gone bathing in Long lake at New Brighton. The trio got aboard a raft near the shore and gradually floated into deep water. Here the Siler girl became frightened and fell into the water. As she sank a second time, Josephine Kastner, forgetting that she could not swim, jumped overboard and grabbed her little playmate. The girls struggled in each other's arms for a few seconds and sank. Willie Kastner, the brother, was rescued by the villagers. The bodies of the girls were recovered.

CORN CROP IS A BUMPER ONE

Kansas, Nebraska, and Oklahoma Will Yield 500,000,000 Bushels.

Topeka, Kan., special: Heavy rains are falling over Kansas, and grain men, farmers, and the railroads look forward to a crop of 200,000,000 bushels of corn. This is an enormous crop for one state to raise, but when coupled with Nebraska and Oklahoma the total yield seems incredible. Representatives of the Chicago board of trade who have traversed these three states say that the total yield of corn in the territory mentioned will exceed 500,000,000 bushels.

DRASTIC ORDER AGAINST MINERS

Injunction by Judge Keller Forbids Supply Camps Near Certain Mines.

WILL STOP FOOD DISTRIBUTION

Stringent Step is Condemned by Labor Leaders and Others, Who Declare Such Radical Action is Beyond All Reason.

Charleston, W. Va., special: An injunction that will prevent the distribution of food supplies to striking miners in West Virginia was issued by Judge B. F. Keller in the United States district court in Charleston. It is denounced by the coal miners as the most drastic of the rulings that have brought the American people under the domination of "government by injunction." It is regarded also as an attempt by the operators to prevent the great strike fund now being raised by the United Mineworkers of America from being distributed expeditiously or at all in West Virginia.

Terms of the Order.

In precise terms the injunction restrains W. B. Wilson, national secretary of the mineworkers, "Mother" Jones and other nonresidents of the state from locating supply camps near the property of the Guley Mountain Coal Company.

Many of the striking coal miners of the state, especially those who formerly worked in this company's mines, live on or near this property. Although the exact distance from the company's land at which the camps may be pitched is not established in the injunction the miners assert that the writ will seriously interfere with the distribution of supplies of food and the necessities of life to those who are able to earn nothing while on strike.

Penalties for Violation.

Violation of the injunction is punishable by jail sentences and by heavy fines for contempt of court.

That Judge Keller's injunction is intended as the beginning of an attempt to cut off from the miners all outside assistance during the strike, even food from those who might be starving, is proved, the miners assert, by the evidence offered to induce the court to grant the injunction.

There was no evidence or argument to prove that the defendants in the suit were threatening either the lives of the company's employees or its property. It was simply urged by the company's representatives that Secretary Wilson and his aids were supplying strikers with food, and they were selected as defendants for this very reason.

Fear Its Effects.

If Judge Keller's action is carried to the end to which it points, the miners declare, the federal courts, boldly and with sweeping injunctions against supplying food at all to the strikers will render them helpless and put them at the mercy of the operators in Pennsylvania as well as West Virginia. They add that the great anthracite strike, where, as here, the miners are waging a battle for higher wages, must collapse for very fear of starvation.

Judge Keller's injunction comes as the culmination of numerous similar writs against labor in West Virginia.

VOLCANIC ERUPTIONS CAUSE WATER TO RECEDE

Scientist Reports an Elevation of From Three to Ten Feet Along the Atlantic.

Pittsburg dispatch: Prof. Oscar P. Heinzel, a scientist of California who is in Pittsburg, declares that the recent eruptions of Mont Pelee have caused a noticeable elevation throughout the eastern section of the United States. He claims to have discovered places along the seacoast and in the interior for a distance of several hundred miles where the ground has risen from three to ten feet. These results have become noticeable within the last month, and scientists in the employ of the government are making a technical study to determine to what extent the United States has been affected by the upheavals in the West Indies.

Prof. Heinzel says that along the Atlantic coast it is noticeable that the tide does not reach the height it formerly did by from three to ten feet and that as far inland as Harrisburg elevations of four feet have been noticed. This is accounted for by the softness of the ground along the east coast and the hardness inland, where iron ore and other metallic formations were less liable to disturbances.

FORM GIGANTIC COMBINE IN OIL

Three Great Magnates Agree on Control of Markets of the World.

MOST POWERFUL TRUST OF ALL

Rockefeller, Rothschild and Nobel Join Hands and Organize the Greatest Selling Pool in the History of International Trade.

A combine more gigantic than any ever yet conceived has been effected, uniting into one trust all the great oil interests in the world. The three monster oil interests of Rockefeller, Rothschild and Nobel, it is said, have entered into a working agreement. The London Daily Mail says:

"Thus, without any publicity, the greatest trust the world has ever seen has sprung into being.

"This combination has been hinted at in messages from Batoum and Moscow, and it has been more clearly shown in the offers made to Russian oil exporters by representatives of the Nobel and Rothschild interests for the absorption of the whole of their output.

Russian Exporters Fight.

"The exporters have been forbidden to sell through the agencies of these interests at a price arranged by them, or to fight the combined forces of the three oil giants. This offer was made openly and with the idea of maintaining prices, and it has been refused, the Russian exporters preferring to fight.

"It was doubtless this combine which induced the Russian government to issue invitations to an anti-trust conference. The spokesmen of combines declare it means a fight to the death, and the independent exporters cannot hope to win."

Control the Output.

Rockefeller, Nobel and Rothschild control the artificial light used by 80 per cent of the world's civilized people. Of the petroleum production of the world John D. Rockefeller controls 73 per cent of the refined article. Of the remaining 27 per cent 20 per cent is in the hands of the two European oil kings, who are now reported to have combined with him.

The total value of the annual production of oil from the wells controlled by Rockefeller, Nobel and Rothschild is estimated at $125,000,000. The total capitalization of the companies in which they are the principal stockholders is about $150,000,000, of which $100,000,000 is the capital of the Standard Oil company.

The wells of the Standard company are located in the United States; the wells of the Nobels in Russia, and those of the Rothschilds in Russia, China and other parts of Asia.

The value of the properties of the three oil kings is estimated at $1,000,000,000.

Russia Depends on Oil.

The Standard Oil company controls 95 per cent of the oil business in all its branches in the United States, the 5 per cent being represented by the Texas, California and other fields not altogether in the control of the Standard company.

The Nobel Oil company supplies Russia with practically its only illuminant, gas and electricity being the illuminant of but 5 per cent of its people and with the Standard Oil and the Rothschild companies controls the oil markets of Europe and Asia.

The Nobel oil fields are located near Baku, Russia. They are managed by the son of Ludwig Nobel, who founded the business in 1879. He was a brother of Alfred Nobel, the discoverer of dynamite, whose will instituted a series of prizes to be awarded annually to men who make the greatest achievements of the year in science and literature.

KILLED IN A MINE EXPLOSION

Two Men Die and Two Seriously Hurt in Indian Territory.

McCurrahn, I. T., special: Two men were killed and two others seriously burned by an explosion of gas in one of the Sans Bois Coal Company's mines, one mile west of here.

The dead: James Brown, Andrew Dazell.

The four men were in the mine, 900 feet from the opening, when the explosion occurred. It was followed a moment later by another of less force. It is presumed the gas was ignited by one of their lamps.

Brown was the son of Bennett Brown of Huntington, Ark., the southern manager of the Central Coal and Coke Company and was also a nephew of Superintendent Brown of the Sans Bois mine.

The men were engaged in placing timbers to support the roof of the mine at the time.

Three Round Trips to the Moon in a Locomotive.

Engineer Frank Sisco, of Clinton, Ia., who has just been placed on the pension list of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway Company, has one of the most remarkable records of any locomotive engineer in the world. For forty-two consecutive years he was employed as an engineer on the Northwestern road.

Engineer Sisco has kept an accurate account of the miles he has traveled. The total figures up to 1,402,297 miles. Had he covered 25,403 more miles, he would have traveled far enough in his cab to have made three round trips to the moon. Had his engine always headed in the same direction he would have circumnavigated the globe fifty-six and a half times. If 206,725,445 men of the height of Mr. Sisco were to stand, one on top of each other, they would tower 1,252,354,670 feet in the air, representing the distance covered by him in an engine.

Taking thirty-four feet as an estimated length of a freight car, he would have pulled a train of 217,768,476 cars, and estimating the average at thirty tons for each car, he would have pulled 6,533,054,280 pounds of freight. At the rate of four cents a mile, he has drawn from The Northwestern Railway Company $56,091.88. During all these years Engineer Sisco has not had an accident of any consequence.

Pride That Had a Fall.

A New Yorker who had recently detached himself from $2.38 for a "genuine Panama" last week visited the country, where he imagined the two-thirty-eight kind that grew in New York could be favorably compared to those for which residents of the rural district paid $35. Accordingly, when the New Yorker entered the office of W. C. Peebles of Elmira he felt that J. Pierpont Morgan looked like a ragged street urchin beside him. The New Yorker approached Mr. Peebles with a dignified swing that clearly showed the Standard Oil Company was the smallest thing he owned. Mr. Peebles' eyes at once rested upon the "Pride of the Panamas," and Mr. New Yorker's chest almost broke every button from his vest. There was an immediate contraction, however, when Editor Peebles remarked:

"I say, Jones, do you like that thing better than a Panama?"

AUDITORIUM STOCK CONTEST.

Number of Tickets Sold and Interest in It Increasing Every Day.

Interest in the Auditorium Stock Contest, which was opened in Omaha July 1, has increased steadily every day since that time and the project promises to be a great success in every way. The plan adopted for disposing of a sufficient amount of the common stock of the Omaha Auditorium Company to complete and furnish what will be the largest and handsomest building of its kind in the northwest, is very simple. The common stock has been divided into shares of twenty-five cents each, and with each share the purchaser is given two guesses, one on a special prize and one on a list of 1,001 prizes.

The capital prize of $5,000 in gold, contributed by the Defiance Starch Co. of Omaha, Neb., and 1,000 other prizes, ranging value from $2.50 up to $3,500, contributed by the business men of Omaha, will be awarded immediately after the election next November, but the contest for them has already opened and will close October 28 or as much sooner as the shares of stock are sold. The capital prize will be awarded to the person guessing closest to the total vote which will be cast for governor of New York, November 4, 1902, and the other prizes to the 1,000 persons making the next closest guesses. The total vote at the last five elections was: 1891, 1,165,085; 1894, 1,275,671; 1896, 1,434,046; 1898, 1,359,190; 1900, 1,556,520.

There will be seven more special prizes, to be awarded the first and fifteenth of each month until November, and persons buying tickets now have one guess with each share of stock on them as well as on the other prizes. Each special prize will be in cash, and not less than $50 nor more than $500. The prize, divided into small bills and "change" will be divided and put into two sacks without being counted, and the person guessing nearest the amount in the larger sack will be given the contents of both sacks. The contest is not confined to residents of Omaha, or limited to any number of tickets. Anyone desiring further information or tickets should address Omaha Auditorium Company, Omaha, Nebraska.

Misdirected Admiration.

Pacific coast newspapers comment with astonishment on the number of law-abiding citizens who speak with sympathy and admiration of Tracy, the fugitive murderer. One paper says that these misguided persons seem to classify the escaped convict "with Fustion, Wainwright, Hobson and Dewey, and are incapable of distinguishing between a bold act of warfare and a deed of murderous daring."

PLEDGE HAD NO POWER.

Could Not Keep Liquor Drinker from His Bad Habit.

Very few of the old timers are now alive to boast of having taken the pledge from Father Mathew—"the real pledge," as it used to be called, on account of its long formula and its stringent wording. Nowadays the form is simple and brief, and perhaps to some it does not mean as much.

The clergy regard the pledge as but an earnest of serious good intention, with no inherent or sacramental grace attached thereto. Its value comes from the individual's own self-reliant force of character, or from what Roman Catholic theologians designate as opere operantis.

Whether the rank and file of pledge-takers coincide with such a view may indeed be questioned. Instances recur frequently enough to show that many who take the pledge seem to regard it as possessed of special inherent efficacy and think that it gets in its good work irrespective of effort upon the part of the individual.

A priest who was recently conversing upon this subject narrates that not long ago a man living in his parish came to the priest's house to take the pledge. The next day the clergyman, walking downtown, met his parishioner staggering woefully along the street.

"Why, Thomas, what does this mean?" he exclaimed. "Weren't you up at my house yesterday to take the pledge?"

"I was, your reverence."

"And why are you to-day in this condition?"

"I don't know, unless it be that when you gave me the pledge you forgot to put the power in it."

Mr. Meek's Cat Was a Tom.

Everybody could see he was peculiar the moment he sat down for his first meal at a boarding-house near Herald square the other day, and no one made any attempt to converse with him. The little man looked uncomfortable and glanced about furtively, until, getting a little bolder, he suddenly broke out with "My name's Meek." Then he looked about expectantly, and, seeing that ice was not yet broken, started out bravely to tell about a pet cat he once owned.

But the conversation ball would not roll and two young women began to giggle greatly, when the matronly woman who taught a mission school became merciful. She smiled upon the crestfallen Mr. Meek, and just to say something, asked: "Was your cat an Angora, Mr. Meek?"

Mr. Meek thought a moment and then replied bravely: "No, it was a tom."

The lover of cats has sought a new boarding house.—New York Telegram.

The new society reporter had just returned from the first wedding ceremony she had attended in a professional capacity.

"Did you get all the facts?" asked the editor.

"All that are of any importance," replied the young woman. "I have a description of the bridal gown, and the trousseau, and the flowers, and the wedding presents, and the objective point of the wedding tour, and the names of the bridesmaids and the officiating clergyman, and the reception days."

"Who is the bridegroom?" interrupted the editor. "His name has been printed four different ways in the preliminary announcements."

"The groom!" faltered the young woman. "Why—why, I forgot to ask him, and nobody else appeared to think of him. But they had all the important details ready for me."

Interest Rates Decreasing.

Leroy Beaulieu, a well-known economist of Paris, has declared that the leisure class of men will have to work for their living in 1952. He made this interesting statement in a lecture on the conversion of the French 3½ per cent debt into 3 per cent bonds. He said that the rate of interest is constantly decreasing, and predicted that in the next twenty-five years capital will be glad to get 2 per cent, and that fifty years hence such first-class securities as government bonds and railway securities will bear 1 per cent interest, "which," said the lecturer, "will compel all except the very largest capitalists to work for a living, and the leisure of the class of people now called well off will be abolished."

Brewer Had to Pay.

On the eve of his leaving office, Water Commissioner Dougherty of New York has won an important victory in court. A certain brewer had been detected in abstracting city water without paying therefor. Mr. Dougherty presented a bill for $991, and when the brewer refused to pay he threatened to turn off the water. The brewer brought suit to prevent this, but the appellate court has decided against him, holding that under the circumstances the water department has the right to cut off the water.

WHEAT YIELD AVERAGE GOOD

Illinois Bulletin Shows That Central District of State Is Ahead.

CORN CONTINUES TO DO WELL

Cereal is Generally in Tassel and in Many Localities Ears Have Formed—Hay in Prime Condition—Prospect for Small Fruits Is Fair.

The Illinois weather bureau's bulletin on crops and climate in the state for the week ending July 28 says:

"The weather during the last week has generally been moderately warm, and except for occasional local showers dry and favorable for farm work. In the southern part of the state crops are beginning to suffer on account of the continued dry weather, though showers in some localities relieved the drought somewhat. In the northern and central districts the absence of rain has not been injurious to growing crops. Wheat harvesting is completed and the thrashing is well advanced. The average yield is good, but it is generally better in the central district than elsewhere. Rye is generally a good crop. Oats Harvest Ended.

"Oats harvest is practically completed in the central and southern districts and is generally well advanced in the northern district. There has been considerable loss of oats by lodging in the northern and central districts, but notwithstanding this loss the yield will be fair to good. In the southern district the yield is somewhat less than in the northern and central districts.

"Corn continues to do well in the northern and central districts. Over a large part of the southern district, however, the need of rain begins to be felt. In a few localities the crop appears to have been injured considerably by the drought. The average condition of the crop throughout the state, however, is good. It is generally in tassel and in many localities ears have formed.

"Broom corn continues promising. Hay Crop Is Fair.

"Haying is practically completed in the central and southern districts and is well advanced in the northern district. The crop is generally fair to very good, and that which was put up under favorable weather of the last week is generally in better condition than that put up previously.

"Pastures are becoming poor in parts of the southern district as a result of the dry weather, but over the rest of the state they are generally in good condition.

"Stock peas are promising. Gardens are generally in good condition, but in parts of the southern district they need rain.

"Potatoes promise a large crop, but in many localities they are rotting badly.

"The apple crop prospects have changed but little, varying from very poor in some localities to good in others. In a few localities the peach crop is good, but it is generally very poor. Peas are a good crop in some localities. The average prospects for small fruits is fair."

OBEYED ORDERS AND WON.

War Incident That Shows the Value of Unquestioning Discipline.

As an illustration of the idea of obedience and discipline inculcated in the West Point cadets James Barnes tells a story full of significance. During the civil war of the '60's a young officer once reported to a volunteer brigadier commander that he had orders from division headquarters to take a battery that held the top of a sweeping slope on the front of the confederate line, the shells from which were playing havoc with the union infantry that were deploying through a wooded ravine.

"What!" exclaimed the volunteer brigadier; "are you going to try to take those guns with cavalry? Impossible! You can't do it."

"Oh, yes I can, sir," was the reply; "I've got the orders in my pocket."

This West Pointer did not doubt in the least what he was going to do, nor his capacity, and, strange to say, he did it, for, advancing at a charge suddenly from the wood across the open ground he took the battery in the flank before they could change effectually the position of the guns and he brought them back with him.

A Foolish Lift.

Stratford, Wis., July 28th.—William Junemann was working with a farmer near this place last summer and one day they got stuck with a load of grain. Mr. Junemann says: "We had to lift like fools and my back cracked and started to hurt me so that I couldn't stand it any longer. The man I was working with took me home and I went to bed. I saw an advertisement of Dodd's Kidney Pills in the paper and I sent and got one fifty cent box. Before I had this box used up I began to feel better and I kept on and very soon my back was well again."

"I can't say enough for Dodd's Kidney Pills and I cannot understand why anyone should continue to suffer with backache when Dodd's Kidney pills will cure it so quickly."

Want Red Butter.

Every pound of butter that goes to the West Indies is colored a brilliant red. The natives there won't have any other color. They like red butter just as they adore red shirts and red ties, or the red label on a tomato tin. Grocers say that if a black and white label should be placed on canned tomatoes there would be no sale at all.

Since the awarding on July 16, of the first special semi-monthly prize in the Auditorium stock contest at Omaha, interest in it has been increasing rapidly. The prize, which was contributed by the employing printers of Omaha, was $160.50 cash and was won by Ed. J. Hamilton of Wilsonville, Neb. The money forming the special semi-monthly prizes is made up of gold, silver, nickel, copper and paper money, and then divided and put into two sacks without being counted. Mr. Hamilton's guess was $133.33, which was the closest to the amount $132.54—in the larger of the two sacks.

August 1 the Commercial prize, contributed by members of the Omaha Commercial club, will be awarded to the person guessing the closest to the amount in the larger of the two sacks into which it has been divided. Each special prize is not less than $50, nor more than $500, and under the plan adopted there is absolutely no one who can tell what amount is in the larger sack until after it is unsealed.

Aside from the special semi-monthly prizes, however, there is a great deal of interest being taken in the Auditorium stock contest. This could hardly fail to be the case when there are 1,001 prizes hung up, headed with the $5,000 cash prize given by the Defiance Starch Co. of Omaha, and the stock tickets are only twenty-five cents. Of course only one person will win the $5,000, and only one person will win a $3,500 house and lot in Omaha, but 999 other persons will also win prizes, every one of which will be worth many times the price of a guess. Persons securing tickets now also have, free, an extra guess on the next special semi-monthly prize.

The regular prizes will be awarded immediately after the election next November, in the order of their value, to the 1,001 persons guessing closest to the total votes cast for all candidates at the last five elections for governor, from which estimates of the 1902 vote can be made, were: In 1891, 1,165,085; 1894, 1,275,671; 1896, 1,434,046; 1898, 1,359,190; 1900, 1,556,520. Stock tickets, entitling the holder to one share of common stock in the Omaha Auditorium company, with two guessing blanks, may be obtained at twenty-five cents each by addressing the Omaha Auditorium company, Omaha, Neb. In towns in Nebraska and adjoining states arrangements may be made by responsible persons to represent the Auditorium company.

Thistle Commissioner Runyan says that Canada thistles which he supposed was effectively destroyed for this season at least, have taken on a new lease of life and are budding for the second time. What to do with the pest is a question now agitating the mind of the commissioner. He has made one round of the township and property owners have obeyed the law. Will the work have to be repeated? That is a question for the township officers to decide. If the thistles blossom, and it is said there is reason to believe they will, the work of destroying them will have to be repeated.

This is indeed news. The Algonquin correspondent of the Nunda Herald says: "Messrs. and Mesdames E. F. Wichman and Carl Ernst of Barrington were here Sunday at the Morton House." If Ed and Carl have forsaken bachelorhood it is a surprise to their many friends here.

A. W. Meyer returned from a trip to Texas Saturday evening, where he has been looking after the interests of the oil company of which he is president. He reports investments in that country, especially in the territory he visited, to be as represented.

It is now predicted that Libertyville and Lake Bluff will be connected by an electric line September 1. It is predicted also, that Wauconda, Lake Zurich and Barrington will be connected by an electric railway when Mr. Edward Warren Stees, who controls options on a portion of the right of way, can secure capital to finance the road. Barrington has aided Mr. Stees' scheme to the extent of presenting him with a franchise to run over the streets of the village and paid $28 to properly inform the public of the gift. That is more than any other town has done or will offer to do.

The right of the pedestrian on an established street crossing over any vehicle whatsoever, except fire apparatus or police ambulance or patrol, is absolute. Every day we see this established rule violated by fast drivers and by others who are not driving fast. Perhaps you are not aware of the fact, but you have no right if you are driving, to force any pedestrian to stop and wait until you go over the crossing. You are the one who is supposed to stop. If injury occurs to a pedestrian on account of your failure to stop, you are personally liable for damages. Of late it has appeared as if the ordinary pedestrian has no rights that drivers of horses are bound to respect. Another fact is that Main and Cook streets in this village were not intended as a speedway. If you wish to "show off" your horses go and lease a race course.

Short But Interesting.

The board of trustees of the village of Barrington held a special session Monday evening to consider the Meyer damage case. The trustees were at sea as to what they should do in the matter. Acting Village Attorney Redmond was called to advise the village solons. He did so and his review of the case brought out the following resolution:

Be it resolved that the village attorney be and is hereby directed to appeal to the supreme court the Meyer-Parker case provided he can not secure from the parties interested a reasonable compromise.

Moved by Trustee Robertson and seconded by Trustee Peters that the resolution be passed as read. The vote was unanimous for the resolution.

The case will now go to the supreme court, providing the village attorney can secure the signatures of three of the judges to a petition to take it before that body. The defendants will not entertain any proposition tending to a compromise. The judgment is drawing 5 per cent interest and Meyer-Parker people are satisfied. Several wagers have been made as to the outcome of the next act. The opinion seems to prevail that the case will fail to reach the supreme court.

Death of John H. Sommerfeld.

John Henry Sommerfeld, who was thrown or fell from his wagon while driving from Fox river to his home, the evening of July 5, died from the effects of his injuries Saturday morning. John H. Sommerfeld was well known to the residents of the town of Cuba and vicinity of Dundee. He had been a tenant on several farms about here, at the time of his death being located on the Samuel Clark farm near Honey Lake.

He was a native of Postern, Germany; born October 3, 1829, and was, therefore, 73 years of age. He came to America in 1873 and with his wife located in this vicinity. His wife died a number of years ago and he remarried her sister, Lizzie Schenning, who with a grown son residing near Dundee survive him.

The funeral was held from St. Paul's church Monday forenoon, Rev. Alfred Menzel conducting the service. Interment was in the cemetery at Dundee.

Watermelon Party.

Mrs. D. F. Lamey gave a watermelon party to a number of her friends on Wednesday evening at their home on Grove avenue. The evening was most pleasantly spent in games and story telling. The stories were from actual experience and were very interesting. The one telling the biggest story received the largest piece of melon.

The affair closed with a marsh-mel low toast and at late hour the guests departed for their home, much enjoyed by the evening's entertainment.

THE RATE SITUATION

Causing Considerable Trouble Among Modern Woodmen of America.

Head Consul Nortcott advocates the adoption of the "step rate" plan, and shows how much more is paid out than is paid in by men at a given age. The adjustment of assessments has caused trouble for benefit societies in the past and will continue to do so in the future. It is just now a serious problem with M. W. A., one of the largest and greatest benefit associations in the country.

The Rock Island Union publishes the opinion of Head Consul Nortcott, who says that this reform of the rates is necessary for the welfare of the order. Mr. Nortcott called attention to the fact that the men who died last year at the age of 45 years cost $510,000 more than the men over 45 years of age paid in, and demonstrated that if the men over 45 years of age had been in a class by themselves over 18 assessments would have been necessary to pay the claim.

Woodcraft is confronted by the same proposition which the Knights of Honor and the American Legion of Honor had to confront, and in their failure to readjust until the double headers caused the disintegration of those societies, the Legion being reduced to 5,000 members, while the membership of the Knights of Honor has been reduced from 120,000 to 50,000, this phenomena being the natural result of the refusal of the younger members to pay so much more than they could get insurance for in the younger and cheaper societies. Mr.

Nortcott showed that with the thousands of Woodmen who are passing into the old man's column, double headers are absolutely unavoidable, and with double headers would come a wholesale desertion of the younger blood of the society.

"The Woodmen society," said Mr. Nortcott, "profited from the failure of the Knights of Honor to readjust their rates on an equitable basis, for a large proportion of the young men in the latter society joined the Woodmen when the assessments became too numerous, and the question now is what society will profit if the Woodmen fail to meet the existing conditions squarely. The proposed plan was submitted to the membership in the most business like and clearest manner in which a proposition was ever submitted to a society. The members are the stockholders in the Woodmen, and it is for them to act wisely if they would maintain their society on a stable and prosperous basis."

For County Superintendent.

If I have any political friends left in the county since the invasion of opposing candidates, they are hereby informed that I am still a candidate for renomination for county superintendent of schools, subject to the action of the forthcoming Republican county convention. I have no time to canvass.
