BOWMAN CO. TO BUILD

Negotiations Are Complete For Erection of Condensing Factory.

Construction of Buildings Will be Underway Next Week.

Some weeks ago the Bowman Dairy company purchased a site and let the contracts for material and construction of a bottling and condensing plant at this point. The construction of a sidetrack to the site of the proposed factory was begun, but suddenly work ceased and report had it that the Bowman people were unable to secure a clear title to the piece of ground purchased.

It looked as though the much-desired plant would not locate here after all. However, reports proved incorrect. The title was cleared and the only thing that blocked the intentions of the company was the question of legality of certain papers relative to the matter of drainage to be accepted by the village authorities. The agreement between the Bowman company and a number of citizens who had subscribed to a fund to attract the plant to this place was not understood by all concerned.

Tuesday representatives of the Bowman company perfected the agreement and Wednesday evening signers to the fund met in the village hall and discussed the matter. The misunderstanding, if it may be termed that, was adjusted and the early resumption of building assured.

It is stated that the company will proceed to erection of the plant next week and have the same completed and ready for operation in the early spring. This will be pleasant news for our people.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT

Of Mrs. O'Leary's Cow and Cause of Chicago's Great Fire.

On the celebration of the first day of Chicago's centennial anniversary the city vindicated the name of Mrs. O'Leary, but her cow still stands charged with the burning of the city some sixty-eight years after the first white man settled in Chicago, says the New York World. Witnesses have appeared who testify that Mrs. O'Leary was sound asleep in bed when the famous fire began. Six boys and girls were dancing in an adjoining cottage. Early in the evening a lunch was spread, but there was no milk for the tea. Denny Connors said he would milk Mrs. O'Leary's cow. Accompanied by Alice Reilly and Nellie Callahan, with a lamp, he entered the cow shed. The lamp was placed on a stool beside the cow. The cow was noted as an amiable creature, but this attempt to take her milk out of hours angered her.

"Besides," says Mrs. Callahan, "Connors was not an expert. He was clumsy. He got on the wrong side of the cow and had scarcely begun to milk when bossy kicked him, the stool and the lamp across the shed. We all ran into Mrs. McLaughlin's, where we were dancing. Connors said, 'The fire will be put out in a minute,' but it wasn't. It spread and destroyed the city."

It may be stated that Jim O'Leary, the millionaire bookmaker, is a grandson of the owner of the cow, and he married Annie McLaughlin, one of the girls who were dancing that fateful night.

AN EXAMPLE OF UNIONISM

Exhibition of Cussedness by Union Musicians of Chicago.

The height of trades union absurdity has been reached by the union musicians of Chicago. They refused to join the centennial parade last night because the parade committee refused to cancel its contract with the United States Marine band, which it had engaged for the concert and public demonstration Thursday night.

The union musicians of Chicago object to the Marine band because it has not been "unionized." They would not blow a blast or toot a toot in celebration of Chicago's centennial because a nonunion band had been engaged to play the last day of the celebration.

The Marine band is not "unionized" for the very good reason that it is a band in the military service of the United States and is composed of enlisted men—enlisted musicians. Strike societies have no place in the military or naval service of the United States, because a strike by men sworn into this service is simply mutiny.

People have a right to make spectacles of themselves in a variety of ways, but it is not always expedient for them to do so. It is generally advisable for organizations as well as for individuals to maintain a reputation for sanity and a reasonable measure of public spirit.

The Marine band is fine body of musicians. It is a credit to the government and the people of the United States. It is not a body of lepers to be shunned because it is not and cannot be "unionized." It is a body of which the people of all parts of the country and of all walks in life can be proud.

A member of the Barrington Cornet band takes exception to the questions asked last week by this paper relative to the attitude of members of the Musicians' Protective union. We doubt if any member of the band ever belonged to a union before—especially the kind that affiliates with the American Federation of Trades unions.

Saying, "the paper don't know what it is talking about" does not prove the assertion. All that is necessary to clinch our statement of what is expected of union members is to refer to the action of the Musicians' union relative to appearing in the Centennial industrial parade at Chicago Tuesday evening.

The company may start construction this fall, if not they wish to have the franchise extended so they may begin work early next spring. We believe that if more time is granted it should be but for a very few months.

BAGGAGE REFORM

Railway Managers Will Make an Effort to Protect Baggage.

It is announced that there is a movement on foot for promoting so called "baggage reform." The Association of General Passenger Agents has promised to "make an effort" to frame and enforce "more stringent rules regarding the handling of baggage." Thus a long suffering public will have to suffer no longer, always provided the association aforementioned can enforce its regulations. But, as an eminent poet who has since condescended to devote his brilliant intellect to diplomacy once wrote, "You may resolve till the cows come home," but if you don't follow up the resolutions with something like enforcement what's the use?

There was once a man who used the sharp end of a pitchfork on an irate dog with such effect that the dog bit no more. Its owner expostulated with the man and asked him why he didn't use the other end of the pitchfork, and the man replied, "Why didn't that dog come at me t'other end fust?" The appositeness of this is that the cause of baggage reform seems to have gone into business "t'other end fust." It is a far cry from the passenger agent to the baggage smasher, so called, and by the time the resolutions reach the latter individual he may be too far gone for resuscitation.

It is the man behind the trunk that the travelling public wants to get at, and if moral suasion won't alter his views as to the eternal fitness of things then something stronger must be tried. The public has stood the smashing of one's cherished belongings long enough; too long, in fact. Trunks have been made stronger and stronger, with armor plate sides and bottoms and harveyized ends, but all to no purpose. The genius of the baggage smasher has been more than equal to every invention, and no trunk goes unsmashed except by inadvertence. Instead, then, of trying to reform the regulations the General Passenger association should exert its energies toward the reform of the baggage smasher. It is the man behind the trunk and not the man who takes the tickets who is responsible in this matter, and if several specimens of him should be made an example of there would be general rejoicing throughout the land. Every man, woman and child in this country is a potential traveler and as such interested in the enforcement of laws for the protection of baggage.

Lake County Directory.

F. K. Bumstead, who is finishing the work of compiling his Waukegan and Lake County directory, has been here the past week canvassing this village both sections of which will be included in the directory. He reports quite an increase of names over the list of two years ago when he issued the last directory. The book will be ready for distribution in a few weeks.

In order to be cured of the morphine habit, according to the man who has made the discovery, one has only to take treatment and consent to be locked up in a cage, as the corrective incites to temporary madness. It might make anybody mad to wake up and find himself in a cage. But being caged, why fore the treatment? It would seem superfluous.

INDICTMENT FOR REFORM MAYOR

Executive of Mattoon Faces Trial on Charge of Malfeasance in Office

CITIZENS AID IN PROSECUTION

Allegation is Made That He Soon Broke His Pledges and Permitted Gaming and Other Vices to Flourish in Wide-Open Fashion.

Mattoon, Ill., dispatch: Mattoon's reform mayor, Frances M. Menke, has been indicted upon twenty-nine counts charging him with malfeasance and misfeasance in office. At the same time the grand jury returned nineteen true bills against saloonkeepers, gamblers and keepers of houses of ill repute. The action came after a three weeks' session, during which evidence was presented by citizens who had become incensed over the immoral state of conditions existing in the city.

Mayor Menke was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Pullen and taken before Judge Henley, who placed his bond at $5,000. His attorney, B. H. Tivnen, protested against the amount of bail and it was reduced to $2,500. The mayor succeeded in giving bond.

Is Elected by Reformers.
A citizens' committee has employed Emory Andrews, ex-state's attorney of Cook county, and James Vause, Jr., to assist State's Attorney Voigt in the prosecution, and the contest promises to be a vigorous one.

For he's got to keep warm this winter.

Mayor Menke is accused of entering into contracts with gaming houses, immoral places and Sunday saloons. The indictment is a result.

Menke was nominated by the Republicans and elected to office on his pledges made to the churches and the reform element that he would close up the gaming houses, make the twenty-four saloons in the city obey the Sunday and early closing laws, and drive out the houses of ill fame. The latter evil has appropriated that portion of the city in proximity to the Presbyterian, Catholic, Baptist and Universalist churches and the Mattoon high school.

Ousts Police Chief.
For two weeks after Mayor Menke took his seat the city was run almost on a blue-law plan, even the cigar wheels of the city being closed up. The second Sunday he changed his policy and allowed the saloons to open.

Chief of Police Dennis Lyons refused to carry out the instructions of the mayor and let the town be "wide open." The mayor removed him from office. A public mass meeting was held and the mayor was forced to place Mr. Lyons back at the head of the department. The chief then resigned. He was succeeded by Elmer Ramsey, a Big Four passenger brakeman, and a brother-in-law to Alderman Haskell, a Democrat, yet one of the chief supporters of Mayor Menke. Lee Henry, an attaché of a gambling house, was appointed assistant chief of police. The churches and citizens then started a crusade, which resulted in the indictment.

CITIZENS SCORE CORRUPTION

Mass Meeting is Held in Milwaukee to Urge Better Conditions.

Milwaukee special: Several thousand people attended a mass meeting at the West Side Turner hall to protest against corruption in city and county affairs. The meeting was stimulated by the arrest of an alderman for boodling on saloon licenses and the deplorable state of county affairs uncovered by the investigating committee. The Merchants and Manufacturers' association and ward improvement organizations joined forces, but the socialists refused to attend on the ground that the movement was a scarcely concealed boom for someone for mayor and that the list of 300 vice presidents for the meeting contained the names of many men prominent in politics who had actually encouraged the corruption they were going to speak against. Judge Emil Wallber presided and speeches were made by General F. C. Winckler, Captain I. M. Bean, Thomas G. Boggs and Robert Wild in English, and by Otto Dörner in German.

SIXTEEN DIE IN MAIL WRECK

Train Jumps Trestle and Is Demolished in the Ravine.

ALL OF CREW SUFFER INJURY

Engineman is Green on That Section of the Road and Permits His Train to Strike Curve at Too High a Rate of Speed.

Danville, Va., dispatch: From a trestle seventy-five feet high, a fast mail train on the Southern railway leaped into a ravine half a mile north of this town. The cars were literally demolished. Of the crew of sixteen men, including mail carriers, nine were killed, and the other seven severely injured.

The dead are:

John Broady, engineer, Saltsville, Va.

A. G. Clapp, fireman, Greensboro, N. C.

J. T. Blair, conductor, Danville.

J. L. Thompson, mail clerk, Washington, D. C.

W. T. Chambers, mail clerk, Midland, Va.

D. T. Flory, mail clerk, Nokesville, Va.

P. N. Ardanwright, mail clerk, Mount Clinton, Va.

S. J. Moody, flagman, Raleigh, S. C.

Twelve-year-old son of Mail Clerk J. L. Thompson.

The injured, all mail clerks:

Louis W. Spiers, Manassas, Va.

Frank E. Brooks, Charlottesville, Va.

Percival Indenmayer, Washington, D. C.

Charles E. Reames, Culpeper, Va.

Jennings J. Dunlap, Washington, D. C.

M. C. Maupin, Charlottesville, Va.

J. Harrison Thompson, St. Luke, Va.

Suffer Mortal Injuries.

All of the injured men are seriously hurt, and have been taken to the hospital in Danville. The recovery of Mail Clerk Spiers is not expected, and other clerks are thought to have received mortal injuries.

The trestle where the accident occurred is 500 feet long, and is on a sharp curve. Engineer Brodie was a new man on that division of the Southern, and it is said he came to the curve at a very high rate of speed.

The engine had gone only about fifty feet on the trestle when it sprang from the track, carrying with it four mail cars and an express car. The trestle, a wooden structure, also gave way for a space of fifty feet.

At the foot of the trestle is a shallow stream, with a rocky bottom. Striking this, the engine and the cars were reduced to a mass of twisted steel and iron and pieces of splintered wood.

As the cars went down they touched the sides of the Riverside cotton mill, which is close to the trestle.

Several thousand people were soon at the scene of the wreck. No one on any of the cars had made an effort to jump, and the bodies of all those killed were found in the wreckage of the cars.

Women who drove to the wreck from Danville fainted at the sight of the bodies, some of which were crushed to a ghastly degree. It seemed miraculous that anyone should have escaped, for each car completely collapsed after striking the rocks at the foot of the trestle.

Wreck Takes Fire.

All the express matter in the express car was practically destroyed, except six crates full of canary birds. None of the birds was hurt, though the crates were in the thickest of the debris.

Fire which appeared in the wreckage was quickly extinguished by the Danville fire department.

In loss of life this is one of the most serious wrecks, and it is the third time that the fast mail has been almost entirely demolished.

REJECTED SUITOR MURDERS SWEETHEART

Mechanical Engineer Notifies Police of His Intention to Take the Life of a Young Woman.

Omaha, Neb., special: Because his sweetheart, Glenna Hynes, refused to marry him, James J. Reed, a mechanical engineer, formerly of Buffalo, coolly murdered the girl and attempted suicide after having first written letters to the police officials telling them of the contemplated crime.

The letters reached the police station after the murder was committed. Reed had been infatuated with Miss Hynes for a year, and during that time has pleaded with her to marry him. This she has refused to do, but has accepted his presents, and he says has also encouraged his suit without positively agreeing to marry him.

Reed purchased a revolver with the intention, he says, of killing the girl. He called at her residence, and while sitting near her suddenly jerked the revolver from his pocket and began firing at her from a distance of only a few feet.

Two bullets passed through the girl's lung, a third passed through the shoulder, another tore off a finger, and a fifth went wide of the mark.

Miss Hynes staggered away and fell unconscious in the next room. The police arrived on the scene a few minutes later, entering just as Reed raised his revolver to commit suicide.

The gun had become jammed, which prevented unloading rapidly. Before he could fire he was seized and handcuffed.

Reed was not drinking and expressed the grim determination to die.

Crystal's face cleared a little and he smoked thoughtfully and in silence. Pope eyed him askant, somewhat darkly, but on meeting his gaze his face lighted up with one of his fine cordial, Irish smiles. It was clear from this and further discourse they held that they had as yet formed no plans after they had obtained as much plunder as would satisfy them.

The crew made merry in the dog-watches that evening, wearied as they well might be after the labors of the night. Just before sundown the boatswain Grindal lurched through the yellow sheen to the quarter-deck.

"Captain Pope," said he, "the men ha'n't seen their flag yet. Is there any objection to its being hoisted, that all hands may make sure of the colors they sail under?"

"Certainly," says Pope with great heartiness. "Pipe all hands aft and let them salute the flag with a glass of grog apiece."

Grindal chirruped somewhat tipsily, and the crew came tumbling on to the main deck. A bucket of gin was drawn and the hands were ordered not to drink till the flag floated over them.

Pope went to the flag-locker just abaft the wheel and took out a little bale of stuff that was like a pall rolled up. He bent this weird flag to the main-royal signal halyards. Then took a turn round his hand and shouted to his man to bring him and Crystal a glass of grog. He then addressed a few words to the pirates, and, tweaking the line he held, the flag at the masthead broke and blew out large, glossy, and black at the raven's wing along the fading scarlet overhead.

The whole ship's company roared out three cheers, and then drank, the captain and his mate drinking with them.

The flag was a black ground. It lacked the melodramatic ghastly de-

The little vessel was hove-to right athwart the course of the approaching craft, which might now be some two or three miles off. The sails of the stranger were remarkably white.

"A gent's pleasure boat," said Grindal. "A proper craft for our flag, I guess."

"I've been thinking that," says Crystal, looking at Pope, who made no answer.

The stranger came rippling along toward the brig with pathetic unsuspiciousness. And she was now within half a mile, perhaps within reach of a trumpet, when all of a sudden, as though the Gypsy's true character had been discovered, her length of broadside with its high sheer of bow, like a smack's of these days, drew out, and she was off!

"Fill on your fore-topsail, Mr. Crystal," roared Pope. "Grindal, jump forward and send a shot from the Long Tom after her, as the brig brings her to bear. Fire wide."

The boatswain rushed forward. This sort of orders made his blood run fast. They swung the fore-topsail yard, and the brig, close hauled, stood in chase.

Pope, examining the schooner carefully, now clearly made her out to be a pleasure vessel. She was steered by a tiller, and abreast of that long arm of brass-ended timber, stood a tall and martial figure, an elderly gentleman, in a long military cloak, and a soft black hat with a wide brim. Her few men stood with their heads above the line of her bulwarks, straining their vision in evident alarm and amazement at their pursuer.

The boatswain had leveled the long piece fair at the stranger, when Pope saw that she had put her helm down and was slowly rounding, with a faint tremor of canvas, as though fear shook her, into the wind's eye. Instantly the captain began to roar out orders. A boat was lowered, twelve shall have, if you will suffer me to proceed."

Pope cocked his ear at the word ransom; it gave him an idea wholly new to him. He reflected, staring into the eager gaze of my lord kept fastened upon him. Then his face lengthened, he glanced at his men who stood near, and said to the nobleman:

"We're not brigands, we can't talk of ransoms. You and your crew must go aboard my ship, my lord. Gypsy ahoy!" roared Captain Pope, giving no heed to his lordship, who, with alarmed, yet commanding gestures of his arm, was endeavoring to make himself heard.

"Hallo!" answered Captain Crystal. "Send a boat for the crew of this schooner!" sung out Pope. "Get the longboat over. Come aboard, Mr. Crystal."

The square man flourished his hand.

"In God's name, sir," exclaimed his lordship, "suffer us to proceed on our way. Name a sum that will satisfy you and you shall have my draft."

Pope smiled.

"On my word as a British nobleman," continued the fine old man, all tremor and dignity, "that draft shall be Bank of England money to you, and not a question asked."

"I would trust you but not your crew," said Pope. "My lads," cried he, turning upon his men, "this schooner would be making Portsmouth in a few days—"

"On my honor, sir!" vehemently interrupted Lord Fitzgibbon.

Pope shook his head. The nobleman flushed, started and stared a little wildly at him. But now the crew of dastards were coming up out of the fore-castle; they were eleven men and one was a clean valet with a white cloth, and another was a cook in a white cap. As they came to the gangway guarded by the pirates with their naked cutlasses, the boat steered by Crystal dashed along side, and that captain came aboard, others of the crew following him, and in a few minutes later the longboat arrived. There was still plenty of daylight left in the air, and in it the crew of the schooner, including the cook and the valet, made a mean and melancholy procession as they came to the gangway.

They entered the boat, all with very white faces and terrified looks.

"Now, my lord," says Pope, with an imperious wave of his sword toward the gangway.

"Is it possible," cried the Earl, not offering to move, "that I cannot prevail upon you to accept my draft for a considerable sum of money in lieu of my persons and this vessel? Of what use will this schooner be to you? She is without cargo. There is less than a hundred pounds in money on board."

Crystal, who stood hard by while some of the first gang of pirates hung about the companion-way, says without reverence to Pope, "What does the old chap offer?"

"Two thousand pounds," cried the Earl.

Pope flourished his sword toward the gangway.

Crystal sent a swift look over the little ship, and said, "Who's going to take up the money? Besides as a vessel she's worth more than two thousand pounds, not to mention the value of the old gentleman's liberty."

"Do you suppose," cried Pope in a rage, uttering one or two oaths, "that for all my lord here could sign his name to, I should be for letting him sail away in a swift keel to report our doings? What do you think I value my neck at?"

"Isn't his draft worth considering?" says Crystal. "Two thousand! By thunder, though I value my neck as highly as yours, I'm willing to take my chances of presenting that man's draft when we return home."

"No," answered Pope, in a low but hot tone of determination, and without another word he went into the cabin, followed by half a score of his men.

History Repeating Itself.

It was the merry month of June, 1924. A bent and weary old man walked slowly down the gang plank of the Cupidella, of the Perkins-Morgan electrical line of marine greyhounds, as the stately leviathan was made fast to their pier at the foot of Two Hundred and Thirtieth street. A Herald reporter, who immediately recognized the visitor by reason of many years' acquaintance, hastily approached and saluted him.

"Ah, my dear boy, here you are again," the aged traveler exclaimed. "Come down to meet me for the twentieth time, eh?"

"Yes, Sir Thomas. Has Shamrock XXIII. left Queenstown yet for American waters?"

"Yes. And I may say confidentially that this time I have come to lift the—"

He gasped before he finished the sentence, fell backward on the pier, and appeared as one dead.

He's only fainted," said Dr. Valentine Mott XV., as he made a hasty examination. "It's merely exhaustion caused by old age. Meantime, suppose we go down to the club and lift a few cups together."

The Herald reporter assisted Sir Thommy to a cab and then accompanied Dr. Mott to the Bones club. From the New York Herald of June 25, 1924.

WOULD ABANDON BIG PARADE.

Leader Favors Use Labor Day Funds for Defense of Unions.

To abandon Labor Day parade in Chicago and use the money expended each year for uniforms and decorations as a defense fund is a suggestion of George Hodge, treasurer of the committee having charge of the demonstration this year, which is now under consideration by the Chicago Federation of Labor.

"The Labor Day committee has held its final meeting. The probable number of marchers in the event of a parade next year was discussed, and in the opinion of the majority of the members of the committee the number would be so great as to render the handling of the parade an almost superhuman task. The question of other means of celebrating labor's holiday was discussed, and I am going to recommend to the Federation that instead of the parade an inexpensive means of celebrating be adopted, such as a mass-meeting in a public park. Good speakers could be had, and more good done the cause of labor than by any parade."

"From a financial point of view, labor could thus be benefited. The celebration of Labor Day just past cost the union members of the city approximately $250,000. If this sum of money, instead of being expended for show, was contributed annually to a fund for the assistance of unions on strike or for provision against legal action brought by employers, the position of labor would be well-nigh impregnable."

Gasoline Explosion.

E. J. Matlack, business manager of the East St. Louis Republican, had a narrow escape from being seriously burned at his home. By mistake, a servant in his house filled a large coal oil lamp with gasoline, which was lighted by a member of the family. Mr. Matlack went into the room soon after, and as he entered the room the lamp exploded. Gasoline was scattered all over the room, and some of the fluid fell upon his clothing. He had sufficient presence of mind, however, to throw a blanket about himself and smother the flame, but was severely burned about the face and hands.

MINERS DEMAND WASHHOUSES

Neglect of Operators to Comply With Law May Cause Strike.

Information coming from the state officers of the United Mine Workers of Illinois is to the effect that the miners of the state may be called out on strike if the operators do not comply with the state law recently enacted calling upon the operators to erect and maintain washhouses for the miners.

The miners hold that the washhouses are a necessity, owing to the fact that they are compelled to go from the mines to their homes in their working clothes, which causes them much discomfort. In street cars they are compelled to stand, as ordinary passengers have a horror of coming in contact with the dirty garb which miners wear. In this district but two of the mines have thus far arranged to build the houses.

The child labor law will also cut a figure in mining circles in the coming month. In many of the mines of the state boys between the ages of 11 and 16 years are allowed to work, which, it is alleged, is in direct violation of the law. When a boy is injured in a mine and brings suit for damages the child labor law is brought into question. Of late several complaints have been made regarding youths in mines, and the miners have decided to have the matter settled in the courts.

Liquor Dealers' Election.

The Illinois state liquor dealers' protective association closed its work at Quincy and adjourned, to meet in Belleville next September. Save an old coat, there was not a stitch of clothing on him. He had but one hand. He was removed to the hospital, but is too weak to give his name. His recovery is doubtful.

The Woman's Relief corps of Belleville will furnish the banquet for the occasion. The Bethel glee club and young ladies from Edwardsville will furnish music. Mayor Fred J. Kern of Belleville will deliver the address of welcome.

Woman Is Injured In Runaway.

Mrs. Antone Lueker, wife of a farmer living in Godfrey township, was seriously, perhaps fatally, injured while driving home from Alton. When about a mile from her home her horse ran away with the buggy and threw her out on her face. She was cut in a dozen places. The skin and flesh were torn from the bones of the face and she was otherwise badly injured.

Was Lincoln's Roommate.

Daniel Green Burner, Lincoln's boyhood friend, died at Galesburg Sept. 24, in his 90th year. Burner's people lived in New Salem from 1828 to 1834, and for four years of that time Lincoln boarded at Burner's log cabin, and the two boys roomed together, forming a friendship that never waned. Burner died rich, having amassed wealth farming.

vices of skull and raw bones. It was not a flag, however, that a man would continue flying. After it had floated aloft five minutes, it was hauled down, rolled up and stowed away. The men went forward, and one produced a fiddle, and many of the sailors turned out and danced in the beautiful fading light.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Earl.

The night passed quietly: and the day came along draped in sober gray, with a long lead-colored swell freckled by some sea-fowl within gun-shot of the quarter. In the afternoon of this day, the sky being gray and dry and the sea-line clear, a sail sprang up right ahead. The two captains were at dinner when the boatswain put his ugly face into the skylight and reported her. Both came up leisurely, knowing the wind to be a little more than a small draught, Pope with his radiant spyglass under his arm. He leveled it at the sail; Crystal peered at her through the brig's telescope.

"Shall we attack her or pass her with a civil salute?" said Pope.

"Speak, Crystal."

The square man considered. When he spoke his speech was slow, his delivery solemn, and he looked fierce with his scar.

"I'm for passing on," said he. "For more, I'm for putting the brig's helm over, and giving yonder vessel a wide berth."

"What d'ye say, Grindal?" said Pope, rounding upon his boatswain.

"This is a clear sea," answered the boatswain, "and a first-class opportunity. I'm for boarding her, taking all she's got that's worth having, removing her people, then sinking of her, afterwards transferring her crew to the first thing we can pick up bound west or south."

"I'm of Grindal's mind," said Pope. "Right, if you sink the vessel," interjected crystal.

So the order was given for the guns to be loaded, and the small arms served out. They loaded the carronades, and ran them out. The two long guns were also loaded; the boats were seen to, all was made clear for action. "Hoist the ensign," said Pope. "Haul up your courses, and back the fore-topsail. Down hellum."

men armed with cutlasses and pistols tumbled into her. Pope took charge with a sword at his side and a pistol in his bosom; and Crystal with folded arms and a stern black face, stood at the quarter-deck railing looking on.

The boat swept alongside. Pope and eleven men sprang aboard with flourished cutlasses, but so far from meeting with any resistance they found a clear deck. One figure alone remained. He was the tall man in the cloak and black soft hat.

He was a noble-looking old gentleman, perhaps seventy years of age, wonderfully erect, a martial figure. He threw his head back when Pope approached and exclaimed in a calm deep voice:

"Why have you boarded me, sir?"

Pope answered, "We are gentlemen of fortune. We are sailing the high seas in search of an estate and you'll help us in that quest."

He could not but be deferential to the fine old fellow. He was a gentleman by birth, an Irishman, the son of a clergyman, and no fierce and bloody pirate as yet.

Pope's men, breathing short, looking restless and wild, bloodshot, hairy and rugged, every man with a cutlass in his hand, stood about the companion-way waiting, while the following conversation took place between Pope and the tall, lofty and commanding old gentleman.

"I am Earl Fitzgibbon," said the tall old gentleman, "and am proceeding from the Azores to England. I beg that you suffer me to depart. You will discover nothing in this vessel worth your attention. Examine the cabin by all means. You will find everything plain, and such money as I have in the ship you are welcome to, about ninety guineas."

"Thanks, my lord. It is our custom to make ourselves welcome without invitation," says Pope. "We cannot let you depart for ninety or nine hundred guineas. We must transfer you and your crew to that brig."

"But why, sir? But why?" cried his lordship, suddenly exhibiting signs of agitation. "What would you do with me? What would you do with my vessel and the men? Name the price of a ransom, sir?" He stretched forth his hand, which trembled exceedingly. "Any sum in reason you

An Isthmian Republic.
If Panama were to secede from Colombia, carrying out the threat which has been implied if not actually expressed, what would be her strength and resources? The question of secession has already been discussed at Bogota, as well as in Panama, and cannot be said to be in its incipient stage. A glance at a map of South and Central America suggests the inquiry, "Why should Panama belong to Colombia?" If convenience and contiguity amounted to anything, Panama would belong to the Central American confederation, but chance willed that it should join itself to Colombia.

Lying between Costa Rica and Colombia, it embraces the narrowest part of Central America and for centuries has been deemed the most available region to be pierced by an Atlantic-Pacific canal. The question which now is uppermost in the minds of Panama residents is how to slough off from Colombia and set up as a little republic on its own account.

Geographically it is comparatively isolated from the greater portion of the republic to which it is joined, and if it were to secede would not greatly embarrass Colombia, which would still have ports on the Caribbean sea as well as on the Pacific ocean. It is more a matter of pride and sentiment than convenience with the Colombians, who also recognize the very desirable acquisition they have in Panama, with its potential millions in the matter of the canal rights alone.

But Panama has, as it thinks, almost a "casus belli," or at least good cause for a grievance, in the fact that it is not treated by Colombia with the respect due a state of its commanding situation and international importance. If it decisively separates it will probably base its contention, first of all, upon the statement that there has been no really republican government in Colombia for nearly seventeen years, when the sovereignty of its constituent states was practically abolished and they were converted into "provinces." The departments of Panama, Cauca and Bolivar joined in a declaration some time ago that inasmuch as the so called constitution had not been submitted to the people it was not legal and therefore was not binding on the several protesting states, and this attitude has been consistently maintained. If the isthmian republic were to be set up it would probably be composed of the three states of Panama, Cauca and Bolivar, with an area of about 32,000 square miles and a population of perhaps 300,000. It would be rich in native resources, such as gold, iron, coal, copper, pearls, precious woods, rubber, coffee and all tropical products, and a vast trade could be greatly developed. The continent of Central America has been likened to a cornucopia, and though Panama constitutes the small tip of this horn of plenty it will not necessarily "come out at the little end of the horn." With its world famous canal site and the short but important transcontinental railway crossing the isthmus it will always be an object of importance to the world at large.

Historically it is one of the famous regions of the world, having been conspicuous ever since Balboa, from Darien, just south, discovered the Pacific in 1513. It holds within its confines the site of one of the oldest cities in America, old Panama, founded in 1518. In view of what has recently transpired in Colombia and of the manner in which Panama has been treated by that republic in the recent past the secessionists claim that not only their own interests, but those of the civilized world in general, would be served by the establishment of an independent republic at the isthmus. As to the complications that might arise, with the United States pledged to maintain open transit across the isthmus and at the same time have an eye to the integrity of Colombia, neither the secessionists nor the diplomats have publicly announced their conclusions.

At last a treasure laden ship has been discovered—off the Florida coast—and a libel has been filed against its cargo of silver ore from the mines of Mexico. This particular ship with its cargo of silver is supposed to have been sunk in 1835, hence has lain in its watery grave nearly seventy years and yet was found in only five feet of water off the shore at Miami. It is said that Captain Jennings, with his wrecking schooner, the Osceola, has been hunting for this wreck for years. At last he is rewarded for his persistence, and the exception in his case to the general rule of treasure seeker luck will go to prove the rule that there is more in the sea than has ever been taken out of it.

"Labor day in America," said a satirical British tourist, "is the day in America when no one labors." Having delivered this facetious utterance, he promptly conked it and mailed it to his deceased friend. Isthmians do not appeal to John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and he gives a more satisfactory definition of the day in a letter to the New York World. "Labor day in America corresponds to May day in Europe," he says. "On that day the hosts of labor join in parade and assemble in mass meeting for the purpose of reviewing the progress of the past, discussing the problems of the present and preparing to meet the exigencies of the future. The year just closed has been eventful in many respects. Labor has won numerous victories, both by strikes and by negotiations; but, better still, labor and capital learned many lessons, chiefly to respect the rights, the obligations and the duties of each to the other and of both to society. The future holds out bright promise for American labor, whose relations with capital are being reconciled through conciliation, arbitration, joint conferences and trade agreements."

The following, from a Missouri paper, should be pasted in every fisherman's scrapbook: "Sam Kiplinger caught a forty pound catfish, and he knows who borrowed it without his consent. This friend is requested to settle for the fish and save himself serious trouble." No fisherman need go home empty handed now without a good excuse, and it is also unnecessary to visit the fish market.

Turkey's Press Agent.
Now we shall know all about what is going on in Macedonia. The sultan of Turkey has hired a press agent; the sublime porte is to have a sublime reporter. "It is learned here," says a Washington dispatch, "that the sultan feels the need of having his government and its difficulties set before the world in a proper light, and for that reason he has hired an American, who is to be the press agent for the Turkish government."

The sultan has long been accused of being an unprogressive tyrant who utterly lacked the up-to-dateness of the infidel occident and who was slower than the proverbial snail in introducing needed reforms. Let slander still her tongue and base calumny hide its hated head. The sultan has hired a hustling American press agent well gifted with imagination, and we shall soon have official notice that every reform has been carried out and that Abdul Hamid II. is the kindest, most considerate, most humane ruler the world has ever known.

It has long been suspected that the Macedonian committee, who are making trouble for the sultan, have in their employ a very talented press agent, and when he and the sublime reporter begin giving out rival massacre figures Macedonia, Salonika and other Turkish districts will speedily be depopulated. One day the murderous Turks will kill all the Macedonians and Bulgarians, and the next the same Macedonians and Bulgarians will massacre every Turk within a hundred miles of the seat of war.

The Turk is not so slow, after all. He is well aware of the value of a good press agent, and just now he seems to need one very much, for Cheikh Bey, the Turkish minister in Washington, says that there are more liars in Constantinople writing what purports to be the facts with regard to the troubles of Turkey than he imagined could ever be got together in so small a part of the earth's territory.

The Root of All Evil.
Paul the apostle in his charge to Timothy upon the latter's going over into Macedonia said, "For the love of money is the root of all evil, which, while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith and pierced themselves through with many sorrows."

According to Colonel Henry Watterston, the religion of Paul receives little support from the Christian civilization of twentieth century America. In an Eight cents a pound is what a young woman paid for twelve pounds of flesh.

She was thin and weak and paid one dollar for a bottle of Scott's Emulsion, and by taking regular doses had gained twelve pounds in weight before the bottle was finished.

Eight cents a pound is cheap for such valuable material. Some pay more, some less, some get nothing for their money. You get your money's worth when you buy Scott's Emulsion.

address before the graduates of a business college at Hoboken the other evening the veteran Kentucky editor said: "Each country has its crowns of glory and crowns of thorns. Find out a nation's sins and you find therein its dangers. What is the matter with America? Is it the race problem of the south? I know so much about that that I can say it is not. I have an unshaken belief in the powers above that makes me think that it will furnish its own solution."

"Is it the labor question? That, too, will settle itself. No. The real danger has its roots in human nature, is fostered by our peculiar conditions and lies in the effect of money upon the national moral sense. The brains of the country are all engaged in money making and money making alone."

Bones of Cortes in Mexico.
For centuries past doubts have existed as to the final burial place of the remains of the two men most conspicuous in the discovery and conquest of America, Christopher Columbus and Hernando Cortes.

It has never been definitely decided where the ashes of Columbus repose, for they are claimed today by both Spain and Santo Domingo. The Dominicans show the "veritable remains of Don Cristobal Colon," and even the bullet which was fired into his body when he was pirating on the coast of Africa, also inscriptions proving that these are the "only legitimate remains" of the late discoverer of America. On the other hand, the Spaniards claim that they took these same remains to Havana in 1795 and more than a century later, or on the evacuation of Cuba by the Spanish forces and government, took them to Spain.

Like Columbus, Cortes died in Spain, and his bones were transported from Seville to the new world, where, according to the terms of his last will and testament, he desired them interred in a convent he had founded at Cuoyacan, a suburb of the City of Mexico. In 1629 his bones were removed to a chapel of the Church of St. Francis, in the City of Mexico. They were again removed in 1794 to the Hospital of Jesus, which Cortes had founded. When the Mexican revolution broke out the Indian and half caste revolutionists dug up Cortes' bones and after burning them in the public square cast the ashes to the four winds. His descendants, however, did not relish the idea of this summary cremation and in the dead of night removed them to a secret place of interment. That was, say, eighty years ago, and as those who performed this act have been dead for many years all knowledge of their resting place seemed to have been lost. But, now that Mexico is at peace and about building a national pantheon for its great men, Hernando Cortes' last and only descendant, Senor Sebastian Aleman, reveals the fact that the sacred dust is in his possession, a fact that has been confirmed by the investigations of Senor de Agreda, librarian of the National library in Mexico; hence this report of Cortes resurrected and the prospect that at last his remains will have sepulture in the national pantheon.

Deer Are Dear in Maine.
Deer come high in the Maine woods, but they come at the call of the official guides, who have located their favorite feeding grounds and are now ready to deliver "the goods." According to the latest information, deer are almost as numerous both in the Maine woods and in the Adirondacks as cows in the barnyards of the farmers. In fact, if the people in the deer section don't look out they will be in the predicament predicted by Artemus Ward (a native of Maine, by the way), who said that if a certain railroad didn't increase the speed of its trains he was afraid the cows would bite the passengers on the rear cars. The deer are already taking toll from the farms, and the only recourse of the farmers seems to be in turning guides. There has been talk recently of the guides forming a union and demanding $4 per day for their services, besides which the fee for shooting a deer in Maine has been raised to $15 a head. By feeding up the deer in the summer season and spotting their haunts after they are turned loose the farmer-guides need not fear a long and dreary winter. It is a "dead sure thing" that almost anybody can get a deer this year who will take the trip to the woods and is ready to pay the bills. And the average sportsman will not enter a protest so long as he gets the animal, which he knows he can do while the supply holds out and his pocketbook contains the wherewithal.

As a result of the most painstaking study by trained nurses and physicians the invention of a sanitary napkin, which meets with approval wherever introduced, has at last been successful. "Miss Koch, nurse, Milwaukee, Wis., writes: The sanitary contrivance, known as 'Dainty,' is all that the inventors claim of it, and every neat woman should be the owner of one. I would not be without mine for $50.00 were I unable to obtain another." The appliance is water-proof, fits snugly, prevents chafing, makes ladies feel at ease and enables them to dress with their expensive wearing apparel at all times regardless of the periods natural to their sex. Price, $1.25. Agents wanted. The Sanitary Mfg. Co., 518 Germania Bldg., Milwaukee, Wis. 36-4t

It is at last officially recognized that we have a national anthem, the navy department having issued an order to that effect. It is "The Star Spangled Banner," and whenever that piece is played by the band "all officers and men shall stand at attention unless they are engaged in duty that will not permit them to do so."

Some cynic has said that Commander Peary has from now till next July to make arrangements with the magazines.

SIZE OF THE APPLE CROP

Heavy Yield In New York and Other States.

GREAT SUPPLY ALSO IN CANADA.

Government Estimate of Yield For 1903 is 55,000,000 Barrels — Light Crop in New England and the Middle West — Immense Shipments Abroad From New York City and Other Ports.

The apple crop this year, it is agreed by New York wholesale dealers, is exceptionally large and fine, says the New York Post. Most of them believe that it will exceed the crop of last year, which was very heavy. The government estimate of this year's yield is 55,000,000 barrels, which considerably surpasses the figures for 1902.

There is a heavy crop in New York state, which maintains its record as the chief apple producing state in the Union. There is not only a larger supply there than in any other state, but there are more desirable varieties. As usual, the greatest yield is in Wayne, Orleans and Monroe counties, but there are plenty of apples in other sections. In the Hudson river valley there is a heavy production from Ossining north, while below that point the crop is probably somewhat less than last year. The principal varieties of apples grown in New York state are the Baldwins, Kings, Rhode Island Greenings, Northern Spies and Russets, with, to some extent, Spitzenbergs and Tolman Sweeties. The Ben Davis, which is the leading variety in the west, is not grown extensively in New York state. It is said that in that state the apple so called is a different fruit from the western kind, having a woody fiber and not being very palatable.

Last season the yield was distributed throughout the country much more evenly than usual, but this year is not an exception to the rule of marked inequality in different apple sections. The crop is reported to be very heavy in the apple belt, including Virginia and West Virginia, where it was light last year; southern Pennsylvania and western Maryland. It is also exceptionally large in the states west of the Rocky mountains. On the other hand, it is said to be light in the middle west, including Missouri, which is usually a great producer. In New England, too, it is estimated that there will probably be less than half a full crop. This is explained by the facts that there was a good crop there last year and that this season the blossoms were injured by spring frosts, which were followed by drought. From Canada and Nova Scotia come reports of a great supply, especially in the latter province, where the yield last year was light.

The wholesale price of apples in the country, from the growers' hands, free on board the cars, is said to average about $2 per barrel, which means about $2.50 per barrel in New York city, wholesale. These rates are a little higher than last season's.

This is said to be the record year in the export trade in apples, which first gained considerable consequence about 1880, and has since been steadily growing until it has reached immense proportions. The apples sent abroad are of many kinds, but a special favorite in England is the Newtown Pippin, which is raised to some extent in Orange county, N. Y., and in Virginia, but is mainly supplied by California. It is reported that there is a big crop of these apples in the latter state this season, but it is yet too early for them to come upon the market.

Large shipments of apples abroad began this year much earlier than usual on account of the conditions on the other side. There is said to be practically "no crop at all" of apples in the British islands and only about half a crop in Germany and Austria. Moreover, all other fruit crops have been a failure in Great Britain and on the continent. Consequently there has been a great demand for American apples at high prices. From the end of June to Sept. 19 the total exports of apples from New York were 144,356 barrels, of which 30,961 were shipped in the week ending Sept. 19, as against 22,221 barrels in the week ending Sept. 20, 1902. From Boston, between June and the 19th of September, 18,729 barrels were exported. It is said that adding to the United States shipments those from Montreal and Halifax more than 100,000 barrels of apples were exported a few days ago and that as many were shipped in the week ending Sept. 26.

About one-half of the apple exports go to Liverpool, the other half being divided between London, Glasgow and Hamburg. The prices obtained by the exporters show a little average advance, perhaps, over those of last year, when they were very high. The rates are said to range from $2 to $4 per barrel, at an average of $3, "net, back to New York on the dock, ocean freight and expenses out."

Novel Fire Test For a Theater. Constant Conquelin, the French actor, is about to embark upon a career as an inventor, says the Paris correspondent of the New York World. At a recent dinner party he explained that he had discovered a method of constructing a fireproof theater and is building a small theater, with scenery and all other accessories, in which he will be locked up with the architect, who is the coinventor, and will have the building fired. This test, he claims, should satisfy any skeptic.

Of Galveston, Texas.

"Wine of Cardui is indeed a blessing to tired women. Having suffered for seven years with weakness and bearing-down pains, and having tried several doctors and different remedies with no success, your Wine of Cardui was the only thing which helped me, and eventually cured me. It seemed to build up the weak parts, strengthen the system and correct irregularities."

By "tired women" Mrs. Adams means nervous women who have disordered menses, falling of the womb, ovarian troubles or any of these ailments that women have. You can cure yourself at home with this great women's remedy, Wine of Cardui. Wine of Cardui has cured thousands of cases which doctors have failed to benefit. Why not begin to get well today? All druggists have $1.00 bottles. For any stomach, liver or bowel disorder Theodor's Black-Draught should be used.

WINE OF CARDUI

THE EMERALD ISLE.

BY JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER.

(The first poem of Whittier's ever printed was "The Exile's Departure," which appeared in Garrison's Free Press June 8, 1836. The next was "The Deity," published June 22 of the same year, and both these are collected. The third, "The Emerald Isle," appeared in the Free Press Aug. 3, 1836, and was never collected. He was eighteen years old when these lines were written and had not yet the advantage of the academy or of any library except that of the "wise old doctor" whom he mentions in "Snow Bound." Dr. Elias Wold.—S. T. Pickard.)

Brightly figure thy shores upon history's pages
Where names dear to fame and to science long known,
Like unsetting stars through the lapse of long ages,
From the sea girded isle of Hibernia have shone.
Fair island, thy vales are embalmed in the story
Which history telleth of ages gone by,
When Ossian's proud heroes strode onward to glory
And ocean's wave answered their loud battle cry.
The wild vine is creeping; the shamrock is closing
Its foliage o'er many a dimly seen pile,
Where entombed on the fields of their fame are reposing
The proud, peerless chiefs of the Emerald Isle.

And in far later years, with the purest devotion,
To the high cause of freedom full many a son
Of the green shores of Erin, the Gem of the Ocean,
Fair evergreen laurels of glory has won.
The martyred O'Neil and the gallant Fitzgerald
On the bright list of glory forever shall stand,
And fame circle Emmet, the eloquent herald,
Who awakened the spirit and pride of his land.
They are gone, they are gone, but their memories that linger
On the shores where they perish no wretch shall revile,
No slave of a tyrant shall dare point the finger
Of scorn at those sons of the Emerald Isle.

Hibernia, though tyrants may seek to degrade thee,
Yet proud sons of science acknowledge their birth
On thy sea girded shores, whose high genius has made thee
The Gem of the Ocean, the wonder of earth.
Long, long has the halo of glory surrounded
The memory of Brian, the pride of thy shore,
And o'er thy dim lakes and wide valleys have sounded
The heart touching strains of Corolan and Moore.
Oh, soon may the banners of freedom wave o'er thee,
Green island of Erin, may liberty's smile
To the luster of primitive ages restore thee.
The Gem of the Ocean, the Emerald Isle!

IDAHO'S GIRL SUICIDE CLUB

Three Members Have Killed Themselves Within a Month.

Boise, Ida., has a fully organized suicide club, says the New York World. That it is ready for business and has already transacted business is shown by the fact that at least three of its members have "passed off" by the suicide route within a period of as many months.

The fact of the existence of the organization became known to the police in an investigation into the death of Grace Ashton, its latest victim. She died from morphine on a third attempt, both of the previous attempts having been frustrated through the seasonable discovery of friends.

Another young woman friend of Miss Ashton attempted suicide by taking poison, but recovered, and it was through her that the existence of the club was made known. The club is regularly organized, with a strong membership, all young women, and holds meetings at regular intervals. It transpires that at each meeting a new victim is chosen by lot, who is to "pass off" before the time for the next meeting by one of the usual methods adopted in such cases, the particular mode being optional with the candidate.

FOOT WEAR FOR AUTUMN.

Variations on Summer Styles in Shoes For Women.

The last season has been notable in the fashionable world for the attention bestowed upon the feet, and the coming one will be marked by the same characteristics. It will be impossible, of course, to display the fantastic foot wear which adorned the summer promenades upon the winter streets, but in the house, both by day and night, my lady will find ample opportunity for the elaborate clothing of her pedal extremities.

In evening slippers, says the Illustrated Footwear Fashion, there is a deluge of patterns and ideas which defy classification. Straps and open laced designs are conspicuous, and some colonial are seen, but with small tongues and grosgrain silk bows instead of large tongues and buckles.

No radical change is observable in the fall foot wear fashions, the only novelties being variations on the summer styles. It is impossible for heels to grow any higher, for they have reached their limit, and it is unlikely that they will grow lower at present, although some dealers anticipate such a change from the fact that a good many heels have been returned to them to be lowered. The extra high Cuban heel seems to be gaining on the Louis Quinze and is all the rage, for many women will wear the former who would not tolerate the latter, thinking, quite without reason, that because the Cuban heel is not concave it is all right. The order of the day seems to be high heels; narrow toes and close edges.

With improved methods in the making of bright leathers they will be worn more than ever. They are all liable to crack. It is true, but the new varieties, being softer than the old patent leather, are less likely to do so, and they look well quite as long as or even longer than kid and calf. Button boots for women are gaining ground, and one of the reasons advanced for the higher prices of some of the new shoes is an increase in the price of shoe buttons.

Splendid Cameo For the Pope.

Mgr. Massarenti, who sold his beautiful collection of paintings and bric-a-brac to an American collector for a large sum and who subsequently made a present of $200,000 each to the congregation of propaganda and to the late pope, was received recently in audience with Pius X. and presented to him a magnificent pastoral ring, the enormous value of which has aroused much interest, says the Rome correspondent of the New York World. The stone of this ring is a splendid antique cameo surrounded by large and valuable diamonds. The pope appreciates the gift highly and was exceedingly courteous to the generous prelate.

NEW CUP ASPIRANT.

Australian Yachtsman's Plan to Lift the Yachting Trophy.

The New York Herald publishes the following from its London correspondent:

Captain Wales of Sydney, Australia, is in England with a view to arranging for a yacht to be built for the purpose of contesting for the America's cup next year.

Captain Wales is well known in Australia as a yachtsman of great experience and also as the inventor of twin circular keels. He claims that if the Shamrock III. had been built according to his invention she would have beaten the Reliance so much in windward work that the Reliance would never have overhauled her at a run or reach.

Captain Wales intends to demonstrate his invention for the first time in England at an international exhibition of inventions which is to be held at Brighton in November.

Patti's Jewel Hoax.

Will the Baroness Cederstrom, otherwise Adeline Patti, bring her jewels to America? She says she will, but...

is doubtful, says the New York Press. The great soprano owns gems worth $400,000. If she wore all these she would outshine our own queens of fashion, and this might prove disastrous. Patti always has had a passion for precious stones, and most of her fortune is represented in her jewel boxes. It would almost be too great a risk to carry so much wealth across the sea. On Patti's last visit here she appeared with her bosom glistening and her hair ablaze with gems. Women raved about the splendor of Patti's "diamond crown" and the beauty of her "rope of pearls." After Patti had finished her tour she announced that the "jewels" she had worn were imitations of the real gems that were lying in safety in a London bank. Will Patti repeat this hoax?

Same Old Story.

According to government crop reports, our farmers have raised collectively crops of a greater aggregate value than everybody else in the country combined. Five billion dollars seems to be the grand total, or more than a billion in corn, half a billion in wheat, a quarter billion in oats, another half billion in cotton, as also in hay; potatoes and rye together, $150,000,000; buckwheat and barley, $70,000,000; honey, $15,000,000; fruits of orchard and berries, $200,000,000; dairy products, $450,000,000, etc.; total aggregate, $5,000,000,000—a good, fat row of figures, and all piled up by the "horny handed sons of toil," who have paid out wages to the amount of $380,000,000.

It is true that factories of all kinds have an output for the same period of $13,000,000,000, and, while the 5,400,000 workmen in them earned about $2,340,000,000, the 10,200,000 farm hands received only $380,400,000. But, then, the farm hand got his "keep."

As usual, all the forces of nature and all the bugs in creation have united to war against the farmer, entailing a loss of some $250,000,000. But what's that? A mere drop in the bucket, a bucket that holds a cool $5,000,000,000. No wonder the farmer feels pretty well, thank you. He ought to.

Now it is King Menelek who has contracted the "hello fever," and soon, it is said, all Abyssinia will be covered with a network of telephone and telegraph lines connecting even the most distant points on the frontier with the capital. Abyssinia has had both telegraphs and telephones between the towns of Harar and Addis Abeba for several years, but it is only lately that the king has awakened to the fact that he wants to talk, and every day at that, with the commanders of his troops and garrisons on the frontier. Recently an Italian company was granted a concession to connect the capital with Massowa on condition that it pass by Ankober, where he keeps his political prisoners incarcerated. He said he wanted to know now and then how they liked their quarters and whether they wouldn't do better if he let them out.

Now that the sultan of Sulu has removed himself from the jurisdiction of the Americans in the Philippines and gone to Singapore, bag and baggage, slaves and harem, the question pertinent to the occasion is, What made him do it? Because, if we could find out, perhaps it might not be a bad thing to try it on another and more famous potentate of the species, one Abdul Hamid, now in the Yildiz kiosk or thereabout.

BEN-HUR FLOUR

Buy a sack of Ben Hur Flour and see how much longer it lasts than the flour you have been using. Then figure out how many sacks less Ben Hur would be required to supply your family for a year and you will see what Ben Hur can do for you as a money saver.

Economy is only one of the good things which Ben Hur Flour will bring to your home.

Light Bread which keeps fresh and moist for a long period, Dainty Rolls that you never saw the equal of before, and the Choicest Cake and Pies are the results of its use. A poor cook does better with Ben Hur than with any other flour. A good cook who has worked hard to make light Bread and tempting dainties from flour which did not have the goodness in it, will be delighted with the magical results obtained by Ben Hur.

When we buy wheat to make Ben Hur Flour we select the choicest grain grown in the great Northwest. Before this wheat is crushed it is thoroughly washed by special machinery. After it is made into flour it is handled and packed in inspected cars by intelligent men of life-long experience, and every barrel is tested before it leaves our mills. All this because we want every pound of Ben Hur Flour to increase our reputation for quality and economy. Ben Hur Flour costs you no more than the inferior kind. If it isn't better you need not buy it again.

YOUNG GIRL IS MAYOR OF CITY

Fills the Position Held by Father When He Is Stricken by Yellow Fever.

WILL BE HONORED BY NATION

Mexican Congress to Award a Medal to Brave Lass Who Displays Her Statesmanship Under the Most Trying Condition at Linares.

Linares, Mex., special: Heroic action of Miss Manuela Flores Gomez, the beautiful 18-year-old daughter of Col. Mariano Gomez, mayor of this city, has attracted the attention of President Diaz and the Mexican congress will vote her a medal.

The high honor is to be conferred upon Miss Gomez in recognition of her brave and untiring services for the people of the city during the yellow fever epidemic. For several weeks the young woman has been acting as mayor and all the other city officers and city employees for Linares.

These positions include those of city treasurer, city secretary, city attorney, clerk and stenographer. One clerk, who had had no previous experience in city hall work, has been the only assistant to Miss Gomez in her difficult position.

Shows Her Capability.

When the yellow fever made its appearance at Linares Miss Gomez was holding the position of secretary to her father. The latter was among the first stricken.

The governor of the state instructed Miss Gomez to take charge of the office pending the selection of some one to fill the vacancy temporarily. It soon developed that the young woman was the most capable person for the place and then came authority from the governor giving her full power.

Surrounded by dying victims of the dreaded disease, her father being stricken down with the malady, and even when death entered her own home the plucky girl stuck to her post and has directed affairs in a masterly manner.

Improves Sewer System.

When her young women associates were fleeing to the mountains they tried to induce Miss Gomez to accompany them, but she refused, insisting that she had a duty to perform and that she would do all possible to save life.

When the plague began its work, the city had a population of more than 15,000 and now through death and panic to avoid the disease the number of residents has been reduced to fewer than 3,000.

Special attention has been given by Miss Gomez to the sanitary condition of the city, she realizing that in it was the greatest source of danger. Through her efforts much improvement has been made and the sewer system was never in as good order as at present.

Girl Smoker Ignites Her Clothing and Burns to Death.

Syracuse, N. Y., dispatch: Carrie Schrader rushed through the corridors of the Clover hotel with her garments afire shrieking for help. E. C. Whitaker of Watertown went to her aid and tore off the flaming clothes, and was badly burned in the effort. Miss Schrader was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, where she died a few hours later. The woman was employed as a chambermaid, and it was said that she was a great cigarette smoker. It is thought that her garments caught fire from a cigarette.

DISOBEYS ORDERS, BUT SAVES TRAIN

Enginemen Risks Lives of Passengers to Outwit Gang of Robbers.

IGNORES THE DANGER SIGNAL

Awkward Swing of the Lantern Puts Railroad Man on His Guard and He Runs by Spot With Throttle Wide Open.

Woonsocket, R. I., special: Breaking ironclad rules of a railroad Engineer G. W. Bross ran a train load of excursionists by a danger signal set dead against him and is believed to have frustrated a gang of hold-up men.

The decision to risk the lives of his human freight was made in the fraction of a second because the trained eye of the railroad man recognized in the awkward swing of a lantern the work of a novice. Almost before the engineer had reached his conclusion the throttle was pulled wide open and the train sped by Plumber's ledge, in lonely spot a mile north of Whitins Station on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad.

Disobeys Orders.

Four cars full of passengers unconscious of peril met and avoided were landed safely in Providence, and the engineer, who had assumed an awful responsibility, repaired to the office of Superintendent A. R. Whaley to report that he had matched his judgment against the orders of the road, and won.

That there was a deliberate attempt by ten men to hold up the train, there is little doubt. The matter was suppressed until midnight, when Deputy Sheriff Bacon was called into the case by Superintendent Whaley, and, fully armed, took his place by the side of the engineer and accompanied the train from Worcester to Providence. Meantime the police officials are scouring this section of the state in an effort to locate the gang described by the engineer.

Engineman Scents Danger.

The boat train drew out of Worcester at 6:10 o'clock p. m., and was due in Providence at 7:25 o'clock. It had reached a point within an eighth of a mile of Plumber's ledge, where Engineer Boss saw a green signal light, indicating a clear track. Suddenly the light changed to red and the engineer closed the throttle and set the air brakes. As he did so a lantern was swung across the track, but not in the easy manner acquired by experienced trainmen, and it flashed across Boss' mind that the man who gave the signal was not stopping the train for any good purpose. For a second he hesitated, balancing in his mind the chances of wrecking his train if he went on and the probability of its passengers being robbed and perhaps killed if he brought it to a standstill. As far as he could see an unobstructed track lay before him.

Rushes by Robbers.

Another second and his mind was made up and he rushed the train past the danger signal. Leaning out of his cab, Engineer Boss saw the man with the lantern jump from the ladder holding the stationary light and tampering with the signal, while seven other men were lined up along the road bed.

Immediately on reaching Providence he reported the matter to Superintendent Whaley, who at once started an investigation of all the circumstances, and later gave Deputy Sheriff Bacon charge of the case.

The boat train is followed a few minutes later by an express and mail train, and it is thought that the attempt was perhaps directed at the latter, which was confused with the boat train.

The recent lawlessness in this section, including the recent successful holdup of the paymaster of the Saranac mills, is believed to have incited dangerous characters to this attempt.

Boy Bandits Are Held for Trial.

Waukegan, Ill., special: The three Chicago boys, Andrew Reid, Archie Long and Roy Therin, who are said to have held up and robbed John Abula here, were held in $2,000 bonds each to await a hearing. Their victim was so badly used up he was unable to appear.

TRIED BY TIME.

Eugene E. Lario, of 751 Twentieth Avenue, ticket seller in the Union Station, Denver, Col., says: "You are at liberty to repeat what I first stated through our Denver papers about Doan's Kidney Pills in the summer of 1899, for I have had no reason in the interim to change my opinion of the remedy. I said when first interviewed that if I had a friend and acquaintance suffering from backache or kidney trouble I would unhesitatingly advise them to take Doan's Kidney Pills. I was subject to severe attacks of backache, always aggravated if I sat long at a desk. It struck me that if Doan's Kidney Pills performed half what they promised they might at least help. This induced me to try the remedy. It absolutely stopped the backache. I have never had a pain or a twinge since."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Lario will be mailed to any part of the United States on application. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists. Price 50 cents per box.

Francis Wilson's Way.

Once upon a time, when Francis Wilson didn't have as comfortable living quarters as he now has, he went room-hunting where rates were reasonable. In one place which he inspected he found a red-headed landlady who was extremely persistent, although the room she had to offer was about the last one Wilson would have chosen to live in. He didn't want to say so, however, and was departing without stating definitely what he would do, notwithstanding the fact that the eager landlady did not want him to escape in that manner.

"Will you take the room?" she asked, pinning him down to a positive answer.

"Um—er," hesitated Wilson, crawling toward the door. "Thank you very much, madam, thank you, no, I won't take it now; can't you perhaps send it to me?"—Collier's Weekly.

PANIC STRIKES RUSSIAN JEWS.

Believe Kishenev Murderers Led Mob Against Hebrews in Gomel.

Sensational rumors are being circulated throughout Europe concerning the recent anti-Jewish disturbance in Gomel, Russia. The authorities have shut off all private telegrams and letters. Prominent Jews, however, who have secret means of information, state that the riots prevailed at intervals throughout a period of two weeks. A large number of houses have been destroyed and many persons killed. As yet no reliable estimate of the loss of life and property has been obtained.

It is alleged that among the leaders of the mob that attacked the Jewish quarters were some of the men who participated in the murders at Kishenev. Fear has fallen on the whole

EMMANUEL'S VISIT TO PARIS.

Elaborate Preparation for Reception in the French Capital.

Victor Emmanuel will pay his postponed visit to Paris between Oct. 12 and 16 next. Great preparations are being made for his coming. As he is well known to be an enthusiast in numismatics, fifty-nine medals will be presented to him. Some of these are of great historic value, ranging from the days of Richelieu to those of Carnot, Faure and Loubet. A few of them commemorate happenings in Italy, such as the restoration of Venice. A special medal will be struck in his honor.

Jewels Lost at Newport.

Another diamond-stealing mystery has developed in Newport, a society woman (name withheld) having reported the loss of a jewel while going from her cottage to a dinner party. During the summer jewels have been lost by the ladies of the cottage colony aggregating $35,000, and only one ornament has been found, that belonging to Mrs. Pembroke Jones, valued at $18,000. Mrs. John R. Drexel, so far as known, is the largest loser, her diamond pearl pendant being valued at $15,000.

BEAUTY AND HEALTH ALLIED.

French Physician Advises Patients to This Effect.

Dr. Paul Richter, the recently appointed professor of anatomy in the Paris Ecole des Beaux-Arts, was formerly an assistant of the eminent specialist in nervous disorders, Prof. Charcot, at the Saltpetriere. For him he made a number of sketches demonstrating hysterical symptoms. While doing this work he was led to adopt the maxim that there can be no perfect beauty without perfect health. He noted pathological features in many well-known works of art and concluded that faulty models were responsible. He accordingly advises his pupils to avoid the usual atelier models and seek for the lines of human beauty among the acrobats in the circus, the blacksmiths and the partially nude laborers at the docks and in the fields. "Beauty in action" is his motto.

MAKING EXCUSE FOR ERRORS.

New Form Now Used by Leading Business Firms.

Since business correspondence has come to be conducted almost entirely through the medium of the stenographer and typewriter grave errors are occasionally bound to happen—errors not only of composition and rhetoric, but of figures as well. The line "Dictated" at the top of a typewritten letter no longer seems sufficient to relieve the writer of responsibility for mistakes. A Philadelphia firm has gone this form one better by the use of a rubber stamp with the following announcement: "Notice—This letter was written and mailed in the absence of the writer. Stenographic mistakes are possible. If there are evidences of such errors advise us promptly."

Peter Veregin, leader of the Doukhobors in Manitoba, is trusted by his followers with large sums of money, a good deal of which he carries about with him in cash. A reporter who visited him in Winnipeg a few days ago found the leader in a poorly furnished room with thousands upon thousands of bank bills scattered around. Veregin has purchased 300 teams of horses and great quantities of farm machinery for use by his followers in their settlements. Over 800 stoves, five complete flouring mills and dry goods of all kinds are also among his investments.

Right of "Shirtwaist Man."

The right or otherwise of a shirtwaist man to enter the dining room of a hotel is about to be settled in a Philadelphia court. One hot day last July De Wolf Norman, a quaker city man of social note entered a dining room minus coat and waistcoat, but wearing a neat shirtwaist and belt. He was informed that gentlemen so attired would not be served there, and despite his protests he was ejected. Mr. Norman consulted his lawyer, who has begun a suit for damages against the hotel man.

BRITISH AMBASSADOR AT WASHINGTON DEAD

Sir Michael Herbert Passes Away at Davos Platz, Switzerland, the Victim of Quick Consumption—His Career.

Sir Michael Herbert, the British ambassador to the United States, died Sept. 30 at Davos Platz, Switzerland, of quick consumption.

With the hope of restoring her husband, Lady Herbert was lingering at Davos Platz, though the resort was deserted at this time of the year. Lady Herbert was formerly Miss Lella Wilson, daughter of Richard T. Wilson, the New York banker, and is related to the Vanderbilt, Ogden, Goelet and Astor families.

It was known the ambassador had rapid consumption from the time of his appointment to Washington.

Michael Henry Herbert was a typical Englishman of advanced ideas in diplomacy and government affairs. He was a chum of President Roosevelt, and was extremely fond of horseback riding. When Mr. Roosevelt was civil service commissioner and Mr. Herbert was secretary of the British embassy in Washington both took daily exercise galloping around Washington on horseback, and nearly every day played baseball, boxed, fenced and took long walks together over the Maryland hills.

Mr. Herbert was born in London, June 25, 1857. He was educated at Oxford. Early in life he showed a fondness for political and diplomatic daughter of Richard Wilson of New York, and sister of Mrs. Ogden Goelet and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., whom he had met in Paris several years before and whom he married Nov. 27, 1888.

In the fall of 1893 Mr. Herbert was transferred to The Hague, where he remained until Jan. 8, 1894, when he was promoted to the position of first secretary and transferred to the British embassy at Constantinople, where he remained until the end of 1896, under Lord Currie, British minister to Turkey. Sept. 29, 1896, he was made a Companion of the Bath, an honor he prized very highly. In January, 1897, Mr. Herbert was transferred to Rome, serving under Sir Augustus Paget until July, 1898.

Later Sir Michael was appointed British agent to attend the tribunal of arbitration on the Venezuelan boundary question, and so well did he acquit himself that in the latter part of 1899 he was appointed secretary and minister plenipotentiary in Paris. The rank of minister plenipotentiary is conferred only upon secretaries attached to what are termed "first-class posts" in the British diplomatic service.

A year ago Mr. Herbert was sent to

Legend Says Bashi-Bazouk Drove Out Adam and Eve.

"Present occurrences in Macedonia remind me of a story contained in a small volume published in Arabic," said Cope Whitehouse. "It concerns the Bashi-Bazouk."

"After Allah had ordered Adam and Eve out of Eden he went back to Paradise. A short time afterward a Seraph, passing that way, saw them still in the Garden. He came back to heaven and, having reported their disobedience, was directed to return to tell them to leave at once. So he went. Thereupon Eve said: "We are going, but we have to pack up."

"A little later a Cherub had a similar experience and Allah told Gabriel to take the matter in hand.

"Then Eve wept and said:

"Can't you see we're going; we're getting ready as fast as we can. You have no right to hurry a woman."

"So Gabriel reported the state of affairs to Allah, who sent for Bashi-Bazouk. Then the Bashi-Bazouk descended, and entering Eden, said: "Adam, Eve, get."

"And they got."—New York Times.

"I Found It So."

McCormick, Ill., Sept. 28.—Miss Ethel Bradshaw of this place has written a letter, which is remarkable for the character of the statements it contains. As her letter will be read with interest, and probably with profit by many women, it has been thought advisable to publish it in part. Among other things Miss Bradshaw says:—

"I had kidney trouble with the various unpleasant symptoms which always come with that disease, and I have found a cure. I would strongly advise all who may be suffering with any form of kidney complaint to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, a remedy which I have found to be entirely satisfactory.

"This remedy is within the reach of all, and it is all that is recommended to be. I found it so, and therefore feel it my duty to tell others about it."

Dr. Dunaway of Benton, Ill., uses Dodd's Kidney Pills in his regular practice, and says they are the best medicine for kidney troubles. He claims they will cure Diabetes in the last stages.

Notable Russian Statesman.

Prince Khilkoff, the czar's minister of railroads, is perhaps the least Russian looking man in Russia. He is the greatest railway builder in the world, and during the eight years he has held his present position almost 13,000 miles have been constructed—more than one-third the railway mileage of the Russian empire. To him is due the Siberian railway construction and the fact that Russia is far more formidable in the far east than ever before. A privy councillor, a member of the ministry, and a strong man, Prince Khilkoff has great weight in the councils at St. Petersburg.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

WORN OUT, DRAGGED OUT,

Are Most Women in Summer.

—Peruna is a Tonic of Efficiency.

JOSEPHINE MORRIS, 236 Carroll St., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"Peruna is a fine medicine to take any time of the year, but I have found it especially helpful to withstand the wear and tear of the hot weather. I have taken it now for two summers and feel that it has kept my system free from malaria, and also kept me from having that worn-out, dragged out look which so many women have."

"I therefore have no hesitancy in saying that I think it is the finest tonic in the world."—Josephine Morris.

Peruna is frequently used as a mitigation of the effects of hot weather. What a bath is to the skin, Peruna is to the mucous membranes. Bathing keeps the skin healthy, Peruna makes the mucous membranes clean and healthy. With the skin and mucous membranes in good working order, hot weather can be withstood with very little suffering.

Frequent bathing with an occasional use of Peruna is sure to mitigate the horrors of Mrs. Tressie Nelson, 422 Broad St., Nashville, Tenn., writes:

"As Peruna has done me a world of good, I feel in duty bound to tell of it, in hopes that it may meet the eye of some woman who has suffered as I have."

"For five years I really did not know what a perfectly well day was, and if I did not have headache, I had backache or a pain somewhere and really life was not worth the effort I made to keep going."

"A good friend advised me to use Peruna and I was glad to try anything, and I am very pleased to say that six bottles made a new woman of me and I have no more pains and life looks bright again."—Mrs. Tressie Nelson.

hot weather. Many ladies have discovered that the depression of hot weather and the rigors they have been in the habit of attributing to malaria, quickly disappear when they use Peruna. This is why Peruna is so popular with them. Peruna provides clean mucous membranes, and the clean mucous membranes do the rest.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

subjects, and was one of the brightest students in Oxford along lines of government, political economy, law and statecraft. Finishing his course at Oxford, he began studying for the British diplomatic service, and passing a successful examination Nov. 7, 1877, was appointed attaché to the British embassy in Paris, Feb. 1, 1879.

He passed an examination in public law Feb. 2, 1880, and Nov. 1, 1883, was appointed second secretary to the Paris embassy, where he remained until Aug. 31, 1888, when he was transferred to Washington, serving as British charge d'affaires under Lord Sackville-West, and being in charge of the legation after the minister was recalled.

It was shortly after he came to this country that Mr. Herbert renewed his acquaintance with Miss Lella Wilson, Washington as ambassador to succeed Lord Pauncefote.

Mr. Herbert leaves, besides the widow, two sons—Sydney, born in 1890, and Michael, born in 1893.

Mr. Herbert, like the other children of Lord and Lady Herbert of Lea, was handsome. Lady Herbert was a famous beauty in her youth. Both Gladstone and his political rival, Lord Beaconsfield, united in lauding Lord Herbert of Lea—better known as Sydney Herbert—as the most handsome and fascinating man they had ever known.

Sydney Herbert figures in several of the Beaconsfield novels, notably in "Endymion," as Sydney Wilton, and every American tourist who has visited London will recall the statue of Sydney Herbert, Michael Henry Herbert's father, which stands in front of the war office in Pall Mall.

DRESS OF FILIPINO WOMEN.

Little Difference in Costumes of Rich and Poor.

It is the general belief that the women of the Orient are clothed in flowing robes of gorgeous colors. The dress of the Filipino women does not flow. Nowhere in the world, either in the Orient or Occident, do women array themselves more simply than in the Philippines, and nowhere is there less difference in dress between poor and rich.

A light chemisette of maguay cloth or pina, the sleeves of which are but a few inches long, and a simple skirt of cotton or silk, gracefully folded about the waist almost like a turban, constitutes the Filipino woman's wardrobe. On going to mass she adds to this a peculiar water-proof shawl, black outside and royal purple inside, one corner of which comes over the head like a monk's cowl. All classes alike wear heelless slippers without backs, called chinelas, that give the Filipino women's walk a peculiar shuffle known in no other country.

Autumn Days.

The autumn days again have come, as is their style each year. When days of summer time round out their term and disappear, and in accordance with the change the seasons thus have made. We regulate our modes of life and in new togs parade.

The young man in the brief top coat struts proudly into view. And stylish wrap the maiden dons instead of peek-a-boo. Wise sires again incase their forms in woolen underwear. And matrons turn to heavy gowns devised with greatest care.

We bid farewell to melon feasts, although 'tis with a sigh. And find a pleasing substitute in oyster stew or fry. From drinks we're cutting out tea that used to reach the spot. And find more satisfaction in the coffee strong and hot.

We tell the ice man that no more his frigid goods we need. And chuckle when we think at last from that expense we're freed. But suddenly we recollect the costs that grieve the soul. For soon 'twill keep us on the jump to pay for gas and coal.

We put away the screens that kept the flies and skeeters out. And hunt up weather strips to shield from winds that romp about. Still other tasks remind us that the winter's coming on. That soon, alas, the autumn days, like summer's, will be gone.

I will not be responsible for any debts contracted in my name. Sept. 15, 1903. Mrs. SHUFFELDT.

Nine years, the Italians say, Pope Pius X. was in the seminary, nine years a parish priest, nine years archbishop, nine years a canon of Treviso, nine years bishop of Mantua and nine years cardinal and patriarch of Venice. While nine years as pontiff occurs naturally to those who are impressed with coincidences, it should be remembered that Pius is but sixty-eight years old and that only nine years in the papacy would mean his death at seventy-seven. The fact that Leo exceeded that age by sixteen years does not indicate that life in the Vatican is at war with longevity. It is not pleasant to think of the loss that the Catholic church would have suffered had Leo XIII. been carried off at the untimely age of seventy-eight. One reason why people do not live longer than they do, and remain fresh and active as long as they do live is that so many of them are bound to call themselves and rate themselves old long before nature intended them to do so.

The sublime porte has the sublime cheek to lay the burning of Macedonian villages and the mutilating of the Christians upon the Macedonians themselves because they have a grudge against the poor Turk and wish to give him a bad name.

A certain man of medicine recently admitted that he had married four or five women, but "couldn't tell exactly," and now there is a question as to his status.
