With the law behind them, the steady fight which the passenger men are making against the ticket brokers, it is believed, is bearing fruit.

At the same time, an enormous number of sheap tickets are sjed to perform the same time, and the same or the same time, and enough or returning from the Fair.

In many instances the conductor does not discover the fraud until the purchaser of the ticket is far out on she line from St. Louis, and the passenger is unable to pay his fare.

In a shall to pay his fare, the conductor to put the purchaser off the train.

As a result the passenger offices are fooded with complaints made by persons who have suffered this treatmen, and who have made their way back to still be suffered to be provered to put the purchaser of the train.
