WORK FOR HEALTH

Exercise Absolutely Necessary to Keep the Body in Proper Physical Condition

The sedentary man is like a stag-hant pool, while the active man is like the mountain stream. In the stag-nant pool reptiles of many descrip-tions crawl and croak, and from it moison; odors rise. The mountain stream is pure and sweet and crysfal clear.

clear.

The body is a form through which a stream of matter flows. Exercise is the means by which the movement of the stream is accelerated so that the blood is lept pure and the tissues clean. The Bibble says that he that will not work shall not eat, and Nature says the same. A man who instruction was a stream of the says that he that will not work shall not eat, and Nature says the same. A man who instruction was a stream of the clean policy of the policy of the clean policy of the policy less weight can be thrown upon the arms.

By raising upon the heels and bending the knees, the body may be alternately raised and lowered through a distance of about two feet. The execution of such a movement requires nearly four seconds, or fitteen to the minute. The body would thus be lifted thirty times a minute, and an hour and a half would be required to do the day's work. By placing weights upon the shoulders the rate at which they work is done would be increased, and ilms shortened. But, on the whole, there is no method of accomplishing the work so good as waithing, and particularly ilmbins a hill with a motivately steep grant of the control of the control of the steep in the st tighiarly climbing a bill with a moderately steep grade.

Bicycle riding, if not overdone, is excellent exercise. To accomplish the same amount of work riding a bicycle, one must cover about four times the distance required for walking.

Most city people, outside the laboring 'classes, take far too little exercise, As a result the deficient oxidation'ng the body wastes and the accumulation of uric acid and other tissue poisons after a time result in rheumatism, neurasthenia, apoplexy, premature old age and a great variety of disorders which may be traced more or less directly to uricacid accumulation.

Vital Statistics.

Everyone who is troubled with "symptoms" will be interested in the statistics prepared by a leading life hisurance company showing at what ages different diseases may be expected to stop homan machinery. The figures deal with a period of first three years—1845-1885—during which yitime 46.25 coaths passed under review. They, of course, tell nothing of individual cases, but of the average or typical cases they reveal much Saliful physicians are connected with the large life insurance offices, to examine into the physical condition of applicants for insurance, and to make a careful investigation of the causes of death in cases of policy holders.

The records of the company in ques-tion show that the chances are about six to four that consumption will carry off its victims before the age of forty-dive. Fifty-line per cent of sufferers from this disease die before they reach this age. Above sixty, the per cent of cases is only twelve.

In general diseases, such as smalpoon diphalteria, measies, etc., the poon diphalteria, measies, etc., the poor cent of cases is only twelve.

In general diseases, such as smalpoon diphalteria, measies, etc., the poor cent of the deaths from these diseases occur under the age of forty-dive; 35 per cent, between forty-dive; 35 per cent, between forty-dive, and sixty; 35 per cent, above sixty. Apoplexy, roftening of the brain and paralysis chiefly affict dedetly people, 55 per cent of the deaths from these causes occurring above sixty, and only 12 per cent below forty-dive. The probabilities are that sufferer from other nervous diseases will not reach the age of sixty, only 27 per cent of deaths from these causes occurring after that age.

Although pneumonia has been called "the old man's disease," the chances are sisty-four to thirty-sit against one dying of this disease after the age of sisty. Twenty-nine per cent of the deaths from pneumonia occur under five and sixty, and but 25 per cent above sixty. Other respiratory diseases, such as bronchitis, pleurisy, etc., grant a little longer lease of lite.

Derangements of the digestive systems do not glean from the aged a very large-number of victims, the chances being more than two to one against those so afflicted reaching the age of sixty. Thirty per cent of the deaths from this class of diseases occur under the age of forty-sixe; 23 per cent, above sixty.

Victims of Bright's disease have a fair chance of reaching sixty, only 16 in 100 dying of this disease before forty-live.

Complaints classified as "feetlo-urinary" are old-nee diseases, 77 per-cent of the deaths from such cases oc-curring at ages above sixty.
Fifty per cent of the deaths from violent causes occur under forty-five.
Fully 68 per cent of the typhoid fe-ver deaths occur under forty-five, and only 9 per cent at ages higher than sixty.

A Preventive Measure.

A practical plan for checking the spread of tuberculosis in public conveyances has just been proposed. The Anti-Tuberculosis league of Cleveland, says the Leader, has received the suggestion that the conductors be supplied with small cards on which is a last from spitting on the floor, together with a cupy of the law on the subject. When the conductor notices a passenger stolating the rule he is expected to hand the offender one of the cards. He avoids all dispute with the passenger, the other passengers note what has been done, and it is thought that the expectorator will either become embarrassed and leave the car, or take the suggestion in good faith and abstain from repeating the offense.

The Anti-Tuberculosis Jeague, which was organized recently, is having a great deal of literature printed to distribute among the schools, the work-shops, the tenement districts and in all places where the seed of education along hygienic and sanitary lines tending to prevent the spread of tuberculosis would show promise of growth.

Appellate Court Renders Decision of Importance to Premium Payera. There was an interesting decision by the third district appellate court regarding the lapting of life insurance policies through failure to pay the premiums. The case was that of Nellie D. Brooker, administrator of the enterties of the court of the court of the court of the circuit court of Admars county decided in favor of the plaintiff. The evidence showed that the payment on the policy was due July 1, 1903, but that Brooker failed to send the money to the company until July 17, and the company then refused to accept the money. Brooker died before he had an opportunity to correspond further in the matter. The contention of his attorneys, on which the lower court found for the administrativit, was that the company had here-tofore allowed Brooker to pay after payments had become due, and that by doing so it had waived its rights to demaind payment on the date the premium on the date the premium on the date on which the payment as coording to the terms of the policy, became due.

Luther Burbank's Bellefs All Against Materialism.

I asked Mr. Burbank this question:
'Has anything developed in your life work, and in your study of the great elemental forms of nature, to imperil true faith or render dead a belief in God or the immortality of the soul?'

He answered: "My theory of the laws and underlying principles of plant creation is, in many respects, diametrically opposed to the beliefs of the materials. I am a sincere believer in a higher power than that of man. All my investigations have led me away from the blee of a dead, material universe, tossed about, by various forces, that we have the many from the led of a dead, material universe, tossed about, by various forces, that we have the many from the led of the dead whatever name we may choose to call it. Every atom, molecule, plant, animal, or planet is only an aggregation of organized unit forces held in place by stronger forces, thus holding them for a time latent, though teeming with inconceivable power. All life an our planet is, so to speak, just on the outer fringe of this infalte ocean of force. The universe is not half dead, but all alive.—William S. Harwood, in. Century.
