From Fleeting Fancies

I saw her today, she was crossing the street.
 And she grabbed
 At her skirts behind;
 She walked on the heels of her dear little feet.
 And she grabbed
 At her skirts behind.
 She took little steps of four inches or so,
 So was careful her new patent leathers to show—
 And just so they wouldn't get muddy, you know.
 She grabbed
 At her skirts behind.
 I saw her one Sunday, she stood in the aisle,
 And she grabbed
 At her skirts behind;
 The church aisle was crowded, she stood quite a while,
 And she grabbed
 At her skirts behind;
 She was gowned in a fashion becoming and new—
 I watched while the usher showed her to a pew;
 And the last thing I saw as she vanished from view
 She grabbed
 At her skirts behind.

What Might Be Done.

The never-ending question—"Why Don't the C. & N. W. officials improve depot here, and their property adjoining it?" might be nearer solution if our own citizens would show the interested spirit in such improvements as was shown in Arlington Heights. There the people are the ones most directly responsible for the neat and pretty little park surrounding the depot, for they gave the railroad company practical proof of their wants, and their desire to assist. A fund was raised by subscription to hire labor to establish such a park, and the officials provided all material, shrubbery, etc. Mr. Kiern, the horticulturist, was then hired by contract to do the work, with the result that the station park is excelled by none on the division.
 Village improvements come when all are willing to contribute, even a mite, and act, so long as a few try to encourage such undertakings and are scuffed at by those who complain, but do not act. The natural beauty of this village is admirable, and a little more civic pride would make the place an exemplary town.
 Can any one work alone, whether it be the village council or a child's Sunday school class? No, money is the thing needed to make the work a reality, and the money would be best raised by subscriptions from the people.

The Review "Butted In"

There are those among our people who delight in throwing cold water on every move for the improvement or advancement of the village. They are content to plod along in the same old groove. They are so given to waiting and delay that when Uncle Gabe blows his trumpet they will refuse to respond lest they might run up against some improvement in the way of doing things. This claim is petty.
 Forty years ago this locality was an undeveloped section. We have those amongst us who wish for the days of '60 when tallow dips served for lighting purposes, water was secured from an old curbed well; when the little red school house with its pine desks was considered an extravagance if constructed of dressed lumber.

 A representative of this paper ran against a quartette of this class at the new school building the other day. They were "supervising" the construction of an improvement they oppose because they did not have such blessings parcelled out to them.
 One of them remarked that "the newspaper didn't pay any taxes but was willin' others should be squeaked to put up a great big buildin' jest to ornament the town."

Another said "newspapers are to tell of fections, deaths and weddings, but not to influence the people to vote for more taxes."
 The Review pleads guilty to having "butted in" (to use a new expression) to village affairs and "butted" hard enough to count, and it has no apology to offer. Five years ago Main street from Hough to Cook street was a mud hole—an eyecore to the public; the so-called "public square" was in the same condition and ornamented by an old wooden pump surmounting a decayed wooden platform which covered a wooden curbed well.

The Review suggested the filling of the street and "square" and the placing of a public drinking fountain for man and beast. The change was made. The village old awakened and the majority of citizens have been well graveled; brick catch basins have replaced old plank boxes; cement and asphalt crossings have been put down and hundreds of feet of cement sidewalks laid. The Review "butted in" for all these conveniences. It is the mission of a newspaper to do just such work.

If the faultfinders wish to return to the old state of affairs there are localities where lands may be purchased cheaply, and transportation facilities are good. But don't locate where there is a newspaper that has the habit of "butting in," because you will not be satisfied.

Enjoyable Club Event.

The Arlington Heights Woman's club on Saturday afternoon, June 3, entertained at their annual "Guests' club" luncheon from the various women's clubs in the Seventh Congressional district. Invitations were extended to the Barrington Woman's club, and the Thursday club, which were accepted and representatives sent.
 The guests were received at the Methodist church of the village, and were present in such a throng that the church was filled with beautiful floral decorations, an inspiring address, music and pleasant associations made the afternoon a source of delightful pleasure to the hostesses and their guests.
 Mrs. Emily Draper, the venerable and loved president of the Arlington club, presided over the meeting, and by her gentle and motherly manner of encouraging and advising, further won the affection of the ladies of the district.
 Prof. J. L. Sears, of Barrington, gave a short recital in which he played numbers especially requested by the Arlington club, and they proved to be highly instructive and entertaining to the entire gathering.
 Dr. J. A. Boudthaler, pastor of the Normal Park Presbyterian church, lectured on club life, and so emphatically presented the worth of women's clubs that his popularity was immeasurable. He said in part that the women's clubs of the country during the past ten years have become a recognized factor in the American civic life where she demands "good house-keeping even as men demand good housekeeping in the homes." Many of the reforms in school, child labor, and child judgment laws, she cited as a credit to the influence of women's clubs, and also innumerable philanthropic works of many lines. "God has created woman that she may cry out to those who cry." The doctor also strongly advocated the right of intelligent women to vote on all questions of life.
 Mrs. H. Falkenstein, the well-known settlement house worker of the north-west side, Chicago, was present, and laid particular stress on the needs of the poor and unfortunate among them who labor.

Mrs. Falkenstein is to her vicinity what Miss Jane Adams is to Hull house, a minister to the needy, sent from God.
 A reception followed in the church parlor, where a luncheon was served and new friendships formed.

Those attending from Barrington were: Woman's Club; Mesdames Reid, E. Lamey, Welch, Purcell and Mrs. Arps of Palatine. Thursday club; Mesdames Howarth, Ryan, Dolan, J. Powers, E. Hawley, Fred Hawley, Kendall, Shipman, Seebert, Sears, J. Robertson, Peck, Higley and Dye.

Thursday Club.

The ladies of the Thursday club most royally entertained by Mrs. Florence B. Meyer, at her pretty home on Main street. The early part of the afternoon was spent in reading clippings from Japan, from "The World Today." An old fashioned spelling match was then enjoyed. After searching several books for words to get the contestants down on some of them became so enthusiastic that they went out last. A little game entitled "A Penny for Your Thoughts" was presented by the hostess. Mrs. Jennie Powers secured all the pennies for her thoughts. The ladies then adjourned to the dining-room and were seated at two large tables. The room and tables were beautifully decorated with the most fragrant blossoms of summer. Mrs. Meyer, assisted by her daughter Maude, and Misses Bitterton, Goddard and Harber, served the ladies a most delicious, appetizing lunch. A social hour, interspersed by music, was then spent, after which the ladies reluctantly departed, thanking the hostess for the pleasant afternoon they had spent.

No Secret About It.

It is no secret that for cuts, burns, ulcers, fever sores, sore eyes, boils, etc., nothing is so effective as Bucklin's Arnica salve. "It didn't take long to cure a bad sore I had, and it is all O.K. for sore eyes," writes D. L. Gregory, of Hope, Tex. 25c, at the Barrington Pharmacy.
