The village caucus last Saturday was a hot contest for place on the ticket to be voted April 14th. The old board members were nominated over the new ticket by narrow margins. A. S. Olms for president defeated J. H. Schurding by 28 votes and W. H. H. Schurding on the ticket defeated G. H. Arps for clerk by 5 votes, the only man on the new ticket to win out. J. G. Horstman defeated G. C. Schmitt for member of the board by four votes. I. M. Kuebler was the other member nominated.

The election last Tuesday for township officers drew out 409 votes in the two precincts. The Palatine Orchestra added materially to the success of the entertainment. There was a well rendered and we are proud that our little city can produce such entertainers.

TOWNSHIP ELECTIONS

No Excitement and But Little Opposition Affects the Vote.

The township elections held Tuesday were devoid of interest as but very little opposition was in the field. The vote was not large, but in both Cuba and Barrington townships satisfactory vote was polled.

In Cuba there was but one ticket and the vote fell below the average. The following is the result in that township:

Assessor, Fred Kirschner, 78.

Road Commissioner, George J. Harker, 78.
Justices of the Peace, Edson Harneden, 74, Frank J. Alverson, 76.
Constables, John Welch, 78, Frank Beth, 74.
Thistle Commissioner, E. W. Riley, 78.

In the town of Barrington there was opposition to A. H. Boehmer for Supervisor and Henry Brinker for commissioner of highways, but it did not develop strength to endanger those nominees.

For justice of the peace I. B. Fox was substituted on the ballot for A. H. Boehmer, who declined to run, and Mr. Fox met with a hearty reception at the hands of the voters. The proposition to bond the county for a new court house was defeated by almost three to one.

Following is the result of the ballot: Supervisor, A. H. Boehmer, 240, I. B. Williams, 230.
Town Clerk, Leroy Powers, 235.

THIRTY-FOUR DIE IN LEITER MINE

Fire Damp Explodes While Men Are Being Lowered Into the Shaft.

DEATH LIST MAY BE LARGER

Only One Workman Out of Forty Is Known to Have Escaped Destruction, He Being Blown Sixty Feet From Air Shaft.

Zeiler, Ill. dispatch. Two explosions, one following instantly upon the other so that they appeared to have been simultaneous, killed thirty-four men and injured eight in Joseph Leiter's mine here Monday morning. The first explosion was in the air shaft, followed by the greater upheaval in the main shaft.

Fifteen bodies were recovered at 10 o'clock Monday night.

Forty men of the day shift, ten on each of four cages, had come to the bottom. They were there when the explosion took place. Super Hurd declared the dead numbered thirty-four and may number thirty-nine. The majority of the dead are Greeks. Lithuanians who went by numbers. Besides the thirty-four dead, three taken out have fatal injuries and may swell the death list.

Tipple Man Is Killed.
Among the dead is a workman who had been employed in the tipple for five years. Three men near him received probably fatal injuries.

In the effort to recover the men, five bodies were recovered by the tipple men after the explosion. All the searchers were let down by hand. In two instances the men above were nearly overcome by gas.

The explosion was heard twelve miles away and crowds rushed to the mine mouth, but rescue work was prevented then by the flames, smoke and suffocating gases arising from the mine.

Women and children, relatives of the entombed men, crowded about the mine mouth, but not until night were the rescuers able to secure any of the bodies.

Due to Fire Damp.
The belief is that the gas, which accumulated over Sunday, owing, it is alleged by W. D. Ryan, secretary of the United Mine Workers of America, to the fact that the miners did not know how to deal with fire damp, and that the mine was full of it.

A cage was resting at the mouth of the shaft to allow a force of men to enter the mine. J. L. Wood of Cleveland, O., was stepping on the cage when the explosion occurred. He was killed outright. The flames, leaping out of the shaft, burned and struck Monday for an increase in wages of 5 cents an hour. Bricklayers are now getting 50 and 55 cents and plasterers 50 cents an hour.

Man Is Carried Sixty Feet.
A miraculous escape from death was experienced by a workman who fell sixty feet into the air and he fell inside the stockade, seventy-five yards away. Besides a few slight bruises he was not hurt.

The rescue party finds it difficult to work owing to the absence of a proper fan to purify the mine air. All the bodies found, except two, show no marks of injury, indicating death by asphyxiation. All but four of those found worked in the shaft by numbers. The rescue work will continue all night.

Bodies Are Blackened.
The bodies of the dead are so blackened that they cannot at once be identified. Holly Campbell, the injured miner brought out of the shaft, cannot live, he is conscious, but unable to give any explanation of the accident.

The authorities exercise strict precaution to prevent union men from entering the mine. Mounted guards patrol the outskirts of the town and accompany all parties to the principal minehouse. None but the employees of the company, in the work of rescuing the bodies, are permitted within the stockade.

Declines Aid of Unionists.
The various unions of Dupont and adjoining cities offered their assistance in rescuing the dead and wounded, but received a reply that, in view of the feeling between Joseph Leiter and the unions, it would not be accepted.

Both the main and air shafts are badly wrecked. All bodies are being brought out by way of the air shaft. It is impossible to learn to what extent the mine is wrecked below. Employees at Zeiler say that the larger fan, upon which the circulation of air mainly depends, had not been in operation since Friday, and this permitted the accumulation of gases.

METHODISTS ARE NOT GROWING

Conference Hears That There Are Fewer Churches and Societies.

Washington dispatch. At the session of the Baltimore Methodist Episcopal conference, the committee on the state of the church reported that the condition of the church in this conference was less encouraging than it was five years ago. There were fewer churches, fewer Sunday schools and fewer Epworth leagues, and the offerings, except in the case of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society, much less. It was stated, however, that there was growth of the church was encouraging.

BIG IRON MERGER IS ASSURED

Southern Combine Is Declared to Be Practically Certain.

Chattanooga, Tenn., dispatch. The Southern Iron merger, which has been for several months in its formative period, is now a practical certainty, was the statement given out by Col. T. G. Bush, president of the Alabama Consolidated Coal and Iron company. It will unite the following companies: Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company, the Sloss-Sheffield Iron and Foundry company, the Alabama Consolidated Coal and Iron company and the Alabama properties of the Republic Iron and Steel company.

Eight Set of Twins.
Charlton, Iowa, dispatch. The appearance of their eighth pair of twins gladdened the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Bradley of this town. One is a boy of eight pounds and the other a girl of seven. The mother, who is 37 years of age, is but hale and hearty. The mother is 32.

Wisconsin Financier Missing.
Alcona, Wis. dispatch. Edward Becker, Jr. disappeared while en route from Ludington to Manitowish on the Milwaukee and Northern Pacific. He was last seen at right banked houses, two newspapers, and several manufacturing concerns.

Mormons Buy Land.
Butte, Mont., special. President Joseph Smith, head of the Mormon church, has bought 67,000 acres of land in Alberta, and proposes to establish a colony of Mormons. The price paid was about $100,000.

Preacher Falls in Pulpit.
Lexington, Ky. dispatch. The Rev. James Cochran, a student of the Kentucky college of the Kentucky university, died in the pulpit of the Standing Ground Christian church ten miles from Lexington.

JAPANESE MOVING NORTHWARD

Reports at Harbin Indicate That Oyama's Flying Column Is Marching Through Manchuria in the Direction of Tsitsihar.

Reports are received at Harbin of the movement of a Japanese flying column northward through Manchuria in the direction of Tsitsihar.

The loss and destruction of commissariat stores at Mukden, Hsingtai, Tie Pass, Kaiyuan and Changfua has been a heavy deprivation to the Russian army. As a result the price of food and provisions has considerably increased.

Affairs at the front generally are quiet, except for skirmishing by Mitchenko's Cossacks.

There is no truth in the report that the explosion of a bomb on Monday in the artillery depot at Harbin killed seventy-five men.

Peace Now Far Distant.

The announcement that President Roosevelt has left Washington on a vacation trip is accepted at St. Petersburg as evidence that the efforts to draw Russia and Japan into peace negotiations have come to grief for the moment. The reports indicate that exactly what happened is forthcoming, but the general impression is that Japan either declined to treat upon the Russian basis or demanded a direct assault that there was a pacific disposition.

At any rate the advocates of a continuation of the war seem secure of their position, and the reports indicate that the hope of an immediate change of fortune is staked on Vice Admiral Rojestvensky, whose squadron, according to the best information, is now actually on the coast of the Japanese. The admiralty is greatly encouraged by the prospects that Rojestvensky will be able to defeat Admiral Togo owing to the splendid reports which have just arrived here from Rojestvensky, dated from the island of Madagascar, recounting in detail the condition of the ships and personnel, and the results of the tactical practice of the squadron and of the maneuvers in which the warships have been drilling for three months.

Distances on the Trans-Siberian Railway in the Far East.

(As according to late dispatches Harbin and Vladivostok are about to become the scenes of conflict between the Russian and Japanese military forces noncombatants are leaving those places. The map shows the railway as far as Lake Baikal, distant from Harbin approximately 1,100 miles. Vladivostok is 600 miles farther east and Mukden 600 miles to the southwest from Harbin. These are the distances which the Russian army as well as refugees will have to travel in order to reach the transfer station at Lake Baikal.

Russia countermanding orders for war material abroad are baselined and now for the first time of late for sign offers with which the war office and admiralty have been swamped. He insists that there has been no relaxation in the preparations to continue the war, but says there will be no mobilization at present, explaining that 100,000 troops of the last mobilization already have started for the front, and that instead of mobilizing a large proportion of the army reserve men will be followed by a portion of this year's conscripts.

Gen. Sakoroff denied emphatically that he ever intrigued against Gen. Kouropatkin, affirming that he gave no support to the latter in the early stages of the war. He said that he was not in the front of the battle of Mukden. Sakoroff declared the men and material of the Russian army were equal to those of the Japanese, forcing the reluctant conclusion that the Japanese generalship was superior to the Russian.

The winds proving unfavorable, it was not until an evening in early July that the "Black Peter," anchored in the harbor of Bordeaux.

Knowing the location of Greloire's house, Laffite lost no time in reaching it, and was admitted by a sleepy-eyed servant, who led the way through a spacious hall to a closed door at the farther end; this he opened noiselessly, and announced Laffite's presence. At the sound of the servant's voice Greloire started hastily, with a joyful exclamation he jumped to his feet with untutored hands.

"Jean, Jean, lad! it is truly thy very self! And thou hast at last broken away and come back to the old fold!"

Laffite grasped the welcoming hands and shook them cordially. But his eyes, still searching Greloire's face, saw beneath its look of momentary gladness, one of keen anguish; and the younger man wondered what trouble had come to his friend. "I cannot say as to that, old comrade," he was guarded reply, "I have certainly broken away, for a time, at least; but for how long, and to what purpose, the near future must decide—not I."

Greloire's face clouded again, but only for an instant, and placing a chair for his guest, he pressed him to take breakfast.

This, however, Laffite declined, explaining that he had already partaken of the meal aboard ship.

"I feel greatly flattered, Jean, that you should be so much haste to see me," said Greloire, as he began to eat, doing it in a perfunctory fashion that indicated the performance of a duty.

"You are very welcome, but—wait a keen glance at why have you come?"

"To ask you to take me to the emperor, and, if it may be, help me to find some way of serving him."

Greloire's face fell upon his plate. "The emperor?" he repeated, a

There was a short silence, after which Greloire, who appeared to have been turning something in his mind, exclaimed, "Alas! I believe I can see a very clear way for ourselves."

"Yes—what is it?"

"Do you remember Murier?" It was as though he pointed to Bonaparte, that morning after the storming of Toulon. Do you remember? A grave look had been deepening in Laffite's face, and his voice had a softer tone as he answered, "Yes, yes, old friend, I remember Murier. But what can he possibly have to do with our project?"

"Such as you will see when I explain. Murier and I were much together, and much to one another—close comrades. He lost an arm at Wagram, was decorated, and pensioned, and then went to Elba, where he has since lived with his married sister, Madame Teche, whose husband is a farmer. We will go first to Murier; he is close to the emperor—perhaps in his service, and I doubt not that he will be able to arrange for an interview. But of this I am certain, that he will welcome us, and do all in his power to serve us."

"Good!" exclaimed Laffite, from whose face the remembrance look had vanished. "And now, Greloire, let us consult as to the details. How soon can we depart?"

"The day after tomorrow, the two perfected their plans."

Laffite and Greloire set out on horseback that same evening, making no pretense of going until Toulon was reached. They arrived there early one afternoon, and rested until the following morning; and the two Laffite more especially—felt like ghosts re-appearing to haunt the slightly changed streets.

They left their horses at Toulon, and pushed on by hired conveyance to Cannes. Then, in order to avoid suspicion, they crossed over to England.

commissaire, who happened to be absent for a day from Porto Ferrajo. This was the first time that Laffite and Greloire, as the commissioner was supposed to keep a watchful eye upon the emperor, and report his observations to the English cabinet.

Still—as Greloire had said—it was no uncommon thing for travelers to visit Elba with the object of paying their respects to Napoleon; and Murier, after Laffite's request, he would be before him, was to ascertain if he would consent to receive his former soldier and the American captain that same evening.

That had it been settled when Murier and Greloire came out of the house and joined the two who were chatting on the shaded veranda.

When their horses took her departure, Laffite turned to her and asked abruptly, "How does your emperor bear his exile? Seems he happy at all, or even content?"

"Such as you will see when I explain. Murier and I were much together, and much to one another—close comrades. He lost an arm at Wagram, was decorated, and pensioned, and then went to Elba, where he has since lived with his married sister, Madame Teche, whose husband is a farmer. ## Illinois Legislature

SESSION MAY BE LONG.

Disruption between the senate and house organizations of the forty-seventh general assembly may prolong the legislative session into June or July. Usually there is some sort of working agreement between house and senate, but just now the two bodies are so far apart that they represent different states. Except for a modus vivendi on appropriation bills the houses are working along separate lines, and well-informed members say they do not expect the session lasts all summer. Under the constitution, however, the governor may prorogue the assembly upon certification to him by the house first moving to adjourn the fact of disagreement.

Up to date neither house has adopted an adjournment sine die resolution, although at this stage in legislative sessions there usually is an understanding between the bodies as to the date of adjournment. The senate appears to be well organized, but the house organization has gone to pieces, and members are disposed to report out every bill that comes before them for committee action. At present the republican house steering committee is working at cross purposes, and one of the leaders apparently is able to insure action on any measure.

Two years ago the house on April 29 moved to adjourn sine die May 7; four years ago both houses adopted on May 4 a joint resolution to adjourn on that date. Meantime senate bills are being slaughtered by the house and house bills by the senate.

To Consider Gas Bills.

Chairman Chester Church of the house committee on municipal corporations stated that he would call a meeting of the committee to pass on the eight bills now before the committee affecting gas and electric light franchises. Some sort of a bill providing for municipal regulation of gas and electric lighting changes will be reported out. This may be one of McGorty's bills with amendments. It may be a committee bill, embodying what are considered the best features of all the measures before the committee. Great interest has been stirred up over gas legislation because of the charge that some of the bills now on file are of the "old-fashioned" order. Chairman Church is gathering some information along this line, and the meeting of the committee is likely to be highly exciting.

Final Hearing on Local Option.

The fate of the local option bill will be decided by the house committee on public safety next Wednesday. Chairman Castle of that committee has notified every one of the forty-two members of the committee that on next Wednesday afternoon a final public hearing will be had on the bill. State Superintendent W. H. Anderson, who is a member of the league will be given fifteen minutes to present "evidence in rebuttal" following the attacks on the bill by the saloon interests. Then the committee will take up the bill. The session may be an executive one. Several members of the committee, stung by criticisms, and believing, no matter what action the committee will take, that their constituents would follow that committee action on the measure being taken behind closed doors, and the idea has found some favor.

Child Actors.

Child actors are restricted from playing on the stage by a bill introduced in the house by Representative Beebe. The bill provides that children under the age of 16 years shall not appear on the stage or in any entertainment hall without the consent of the state factory inspector or, in his absence, without the consent of the mayor or of the city. No child shall be allowed to appear on the stage or in any entertainment hall, or as a walker, wrestler, contortionist or acrobat, or at any indecent or immoral exhibition, or where liquor is sold or smoking allowed. Any theatrical agent allowing a violation of the act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and be fined from $5 to $100.

Democrats to Reorganize.

Democratic members of the house are preparing to reorganize the party in Illinois. A committee was appointed to arrange for a banquet to which will be invited leading Democrats of the state. The committee is organizing all factions. The committee consists of Representatives Tiptott, Campbell, Farley, Crute McGorty, Mann, Dougherty, McKinley, Finnegan and Crangle.

Loan Shark Bill.

Senator Dixon's anti-loan shark bill, providing that no assignment of wages or salary by a married person shall be valid unless executed and acknowledged in writing.

Municipal Service Corporations.

Mr. Parker offered a bill providing for the creation of municipal service corporations, prescribing the manner in which such corporations may be organized, and the powers, privileges and limitations. Undertakings which may be carried on for public and private uses are: Electric lighting gas lighting, electric railways, street railways, waterworks, sewerage, dock works, meat supplying works, power supplying works, telephone and combined heat, light and power works.

No Quorum in House.

There was no question of a quorum in the house Friday morning. It simply was not there, and the house settled down to the advancement of bills on the calendar, no attempt being made to pass measures. Appropriation bills, including $25,000 for the ordinary contingent expenses of the Illinois national guard and $20,000 for a monument to Col. "Dan" McCook's brigade at Kennesaw mountain were advanced to third reading. So was joint bill 248, providing for the free transportation of children to country schools.

Contest Goes Over.

The Putnam-Sueher election contest from Peoria county came up in the senate as a special order. On motion of Senator Chase, chairman of the committee on elections, consideration of the majority report of the committee, which Greloire's Potnam, the contestant, entitled to his seat by a plurality of sixteen votes, and as shown by a recount of ballots, and the minority report, showing Sueher elected by a plurality of 111 votes, was postponed for two weeks.

Civil Service Is Delayed.

The Burdick-Cutler civil and military district civil service bill, which was on the calendar as a special order of business Friday, was again postponed until Wednesday, April 12. Judge Lindley, who asked for further postponement, explained that it was done at the request of Dr. Norden, chairman of the civil service committee, who was unable to be present.

Oppose Corporations.

The judiciary committee reported out, Monday's resolution to investigate the Illinois Central railroad company, and the tip is out that other railroads will be investigated before the session ends. Gossip about the house lobby is strongly anti-corporation and many members say they are willing to stay all summer if necessary to force an agreement with the senate.

School Consolidation.

The senate passed senate bill No. 214, providing that in school districts formed by the consolidation of two or more districts it shall be lawful and the districts are authorized to provide for the transportation of children to school from the schools, out of the public school funds, if authorized by a majority of the voters at any regular election.

Drainage Districts.

The house committee on drainage and water ways reported favorable senate bill 316, which authorizes drainage districts to acquire and operate ditches, and house bill 162, authorizing drainage commissioners to build pumping plant. The bills particularly affect Tazewell county. The senate bill exempts the Chicago sanitary district.

Capital Stock Taxation.

Senate bill No. 216, exempting from taxation the capital stock of companies organized for purely manufacturing purposes, mining and sale of coal, printing of newspapers, or improvement and breeding of stock, which passed the senate, was reported to the house and read for the first time.

Interstate Interurban Roads.

The senate passed senate bill No. 113, providing that any company authorized by the laws of an adjoining state to open a street or interurban railway may cross a line and operate in the state of Illinois on the same terms and conditions granted to companies in the state.

Railroad Labor.

Mr. Walker offered a bill making it unlawful for railroads to permit an employee who has worked sixteen consecutive hours again to go on duty until he has had at least eight hours sleep, except in cases of emergency.

Shot-firers' Bill.

After considerable debate the "shot-firers' bill" passed the senate, was ordered to first reading.

Interchangeable Phone Service.

The Shoen bill requiring interchangeable telephone service went to second reading.

Pullman Bills.

Representative Hearns's Pullman bills were advanced to second reading in the house. Representative Shanahan objected to their advancement, but Mr. Hearns moved to suspend the rules and his motion was adopted with a whoop. One of these bills practically cuts the Pullman rates in two. The other bills compel sleeping car companies to provide their stock with iron safes for the deposit of valuables of passengers and holds the company liable for loss.

THE STRAIN OF WORK.

Best of Backs Olive Out Under the Burden of Daily Toil.

Lieutenant George D. Warren, of No. 3 Chemical, Washington, D. C., says: "It's an honest fact that Doan's Kidney Pills did me a great lot of good, and if it were not true I would not recommend them. It was the strain of lifting that brought on my kidney trouble, and weakened my back, but since using Doan's Kidney Pills I have lifted 500 pounds and felt no bad effects. I have felt all the trouble come back since, although I had suffered for five or six years, and other remedies had not helped me at all."

How a Mine Was Named.

Senator Kilbridge of South Dakota says the greatest mine in the country, properties in the Black Hills country, was named after the wife of the prospector. He and his wife had been digging together for some time, when, one morning, he discovered a large boulder, and beneath it he discovered "pay dirt," which led to quartz. When the claim was entered, although the name had discovered the mine, his wife's name was the one that came for her, and that is how it happened that the great mine was named "The Holy Teror."

Every Housekeeper should know that if they will buy DeFiance Cold Water Starch for laundry use they will save not only time, because it never sticks to the iron, but because each package contains 16 oz.—one full pound—while all other Cold Water Starches are put up in 8-pound packages, and the price is the same, 19 cents. Then again because DeFiance Starch is free from all injurious chemicals. If your grocer tries to sell you a 16-oz. package, it is because he has a stock on hand which he wishes to dispose of before he puts in DeFiance. He knows that DeFiance Starch has printed on every package in large letters and in bold type, "Demand DeFiance and save much time and money and the annoyance of the iron sticking. DeFiance never sticks."

GET MEASUREMENTS OF EARTH.

Elaborate Methods Used by Scientists in Getting a Base Line.

Ever since the epoch, Almagest, in 811 A. D., set his astronomers to measure a degree on the earth's surface with wooden rods, there has been a craving for greater accuracy in this supremely important starting point of science.

Science and ingenuity have been employed to devise some measuring rod which shall be absolutely reliable and not subject to variation. The American inventor has some interesting remarks upon the subject:

The science of geodesy is making rapid strides along the line of accuracy, and there is not much left to be perfected in the way of method. The all important problem of modern, as well as ancient geodesy, of course, is the measurement of the dimensions of the earth, which enters into all practical work of surveying, navigating and terrestrial physics.

The International Scientific association several years ago undertook the problem, the present nations having agreed to contribute their share toward an accurate determination.

The determination was undertaken in Ecuador in 1901, and extended from the Colombian border to the Peruvian border, and every possible refinement to attain the maximum degree of accuracy was adopted.

CHILDREN AFFECTED.

By Mother's Food and Drink.

Many babies have been launched into life with their mother's milk. Many mothers cannot be too careful as to the food they use while nursing their babies. The experience of a Kansas City mother is a case in point.

"I was a great coffee drinker from a child, and thought I could not eat a meal without it. But I found at last it was doing me harm. For years I had been troubled with dizziness, spots before my eyes and pain in my heart, to which was added two years ago, a chronic stomach ache. The baby was born 2 months ago, and almost from the beginning, it too, suffered from sour stomach. She was taking it from me!"

"My distress I consulted a friend of more experience than mine, and she told me to quit coffee, that coffee did not make good milk. I have since ascertained that it really drives up the milk."

"So, I quit coffee, and tried tea and at last cocoa. But they did not agree with me. Then I turned to Postum Coffee, with the happiest results. It proved to be the very thing I needed."

"It not only agreed perfectly with baby and myself, but it increased the flow of my milk. My husband then quit coffee and drank Postum, which he got well of the dyspepsia with which he had been troubled. I no longer suffer from the dizziness, blind spots, pain in my heart, or sour stomach. Postum has cured them."

"Now we all drink Postum from my husband to my seven months' old baby. It has proved to be the best food drinkable in any form. We would not give up Postum for the best coffee we ever drank." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There is a reason.

Get a little of "The Road to Wellville" in each cup.

"Jean! Jean, lad! it is truly thy very self!"

cloud of anguish sweeping all the brightness from his face. "Know you not what has happened—what is no longer emperor of France?"

"What?" cried Laffite, starting from his chair. Then he added lightly, "You are jesting, or trying to surprise me. Perhaps you will tell me that he is now ruler of all Europe."

"I can explain everything in a few words," replied Greloire, evidently trying to repress his feelings, and assume a calmness of manner. "The Russian campaign was most disastrous, and the emperor returned, beaten. The allies followed him to Paris, where he defeated their three armies, one after the other, although he was outnumbered five to one. But he lost many more of his most trusted marshals, trusted craters, and he was forced finally to abdicate. Then the allies—who had been proud of his friendship, and sought his aid in former years—sent him to Elba as his ruler."

Laffite, who had listened with wide-open eyes, seemed scarcely able to comprehend all that he had heard. "What is this you tell me?" he muttered slowly, amazement and rage coloring a new look to his face. "Do you say that the emperor is on Elba?"

"He is, and exiled there. I am telling you what all Europe has known for weeks," cried Greloire passionately, the tears streaming from his eyes.

"And I am hoping that he could find use for my services here in France."

Laffite spoke desperately; for again, as three years before, had Greloire uttered words that he uttered with the depth of his nature.

"Tell me, old friend—do you think it would be possible for me to see him?"

"Why not? He receives many people who visit Elba in order to pay him homage."

"Then surely I should be able to see him. But how can I be arranged? Cannot you think of some plan?" demanded Laffite, a mingling of pleasure and impudence showing in his face as he again vented himself.

"How soon do you wish to start?"

"At once, for I am afraid to lose no time. It must be now," was the impatient reply.

and, chartering a large fishing smack, sailed for Porto Ferrajo, the principal port of Elba, where the emperor resided.

The Teche farm was about a mile inland; and one of the younger men offering his services as guide, he led the way from the beach, across a grassy field, until, having passed through a piece of woods, they came out upon an eminence overlooking a fertile valley, planted with vines, as were also the opposite hillside.

Below lay a spacious wooden dwelling, and near it a man, coatless, and with one arm sleeve swinging empty of the shirt that should have filled it, was walking slowly about, a large dog following at his heels.

"Murier himself, by all that is fortunate!" muttered Greloire, raising a hand to better shade his eyes from the glare of sunshine after which he took a deep breath and sent his voice abroad in a vigorous and prolonged shout.

They were close enough to see Murier's perplexed face as he turned quickly and looked toward them. But the perplexity was but momentary, and he clasped Greloire, as he came forward, and grasped Laffite, to the arm while the latter's hands caught the careless shoulders and shook them vigorously.

"Alas, old comrade," Greloire cried languidly, "I refuse to see that the Elba son has made those checks of it, and that when I last saw him in the hospital, they were well."

"Quite well, my dear Felix, I assure you," was the more quiet reply. "But what happy fortune has brought thee to this part of the world, to gladden me?"

"You shall know all about it later, old Greloire. But let me present you, Murier, to Captain Laffite, of Louisiana, who is here on a mission."

Murier extended his hand to Laffite, with a few courteous words, clasped it warmly.

"I am glad to meet thee, Laffite," he should be known to Murier as Captain Laffite, from America, who desired to do himself the honor of paying his respects to the exiled emperor."

The only person now waiting surveillance upon Elba was the English

CAUGHT IN CLEVER TRAP.

Answering of Familiar Cry Provoked Undoing of Criminal.

"Come!" is the curious cry that was one of the signals of the native blacks of Australia. The cry was speedily adopted by the invading whites. The final "Come!" is a very high note, a sort of prolonged scream that resounds for long distances through the bush, and thus enables separated persons to ascertain their relative positions. On one notable occasion this peculiar cry was heard in London. A daring bush-ranger made his appearance one morning in front of a bank in that harbor, and easily posted a notice on the door to the effect that the place would be closed for an hour.

Five-time, he terrorized the officials with his revolver, and not clear away with $50,000. Some time afterward the authorities received information that the man had been seen in London. One day a detective thought he had spotted the man in the Strand, but not being quite sure he hit upon an excuse. He offered a perching place.

Thereby stood fixed in astonishment, but the Australian, acting on the spur of the moment, and recognizing the familiar sound, hastened to the spot, and seized the man, who was arrested and was taken back to Australia.

VIEWS ON ACCEPTING ROCKEFELLER'S GIFT

Prominent Men Discuss Protest of Congregational Pastors.

WHAT J. P. MORGAN'S LAWYERS SAY

Francis Lynde Stetson believes the World should not lose the benefit of the Old King's $100,000 for Foreign Missions—Why Bishop Tuttle Favours Acceptance—Goldwin Smith Would Not Scintillate.

One of the most profound moral issues growing out of the present conditions of life on this continent has been raised by the protest of Congregational ministers against the acceptance of John D. Rockefeller's gift of $100,000 for foreign missions on the ground that Mr. Rockefeller obtained his money by means "morally injurious and socially destructive," says James Creighton of the New York World. It is recognized that if such a gift is refused on the ground that it carries with it the taint of the business which produced it, hundreds of millions of dollars would soon be cut off from the religious, charitable and educational institutions of the country. The ethical problem presented in this protest, made at a time when the owners of vast and rapidly accumulating fortunes are increasingly interested themselves in philanthropic enterprises, inspired the World to seek the opinions of men competent to speak on the subject.

Bishop Potter of New York, the head of the largest and richest Protestant diocese in America, was asked:

"What are the ethics that should govern a church or charitable institution in accepting gifts of money from a source on which there may be the suspicion of taint?"

"The means by which money has been made" replied the bishop slowly, "is a legitimate consideration for the institution of any religious or charitable organization to which it may be given. Scruples of conscience as to the source of such donations are natural and proper, but in considering the propriety of accepting or declining a gift it would be wise to be guided by known facts and not by mere rumor."

"I know that such charges have been made against the Standard Oil company, for instance, but I am not aware that any of them have been fully proved. But, as I have said, it would be legitimate to investigate the methods by which it has made its fortune before consenting to accept any share in it. This is not a new problem; it has come up before in the case of several colleges, and, if my memory serves me rightly, several gifts of this character have been declined in the past."

That is the opinion of a bishop familiar with the great American centers of money making, a churchman who knows where and how millions are made and how millions are spent, and he is not alone in his opinion.

Francis Lynde Stetson was also asked to utter his opinion. Mr. Stetson is J. Pierpont Morgan's lawyer. He is also a distinguished emulated expert and is a lay member of the house of deputies of the Protestant Episcopal church. This is Mr. Stetson's reply: "I deem it no duty of mine to pass judgment on either those who would accept or those who would reject Mr. Rockefeller's munificent gift, to the worthy cause of foreign missions. But were such my duty I could not act without further knowledge of the facts."

Suspicion and rumor constitute sufficient basis for insult to one offering to benefit mankind. Personally I would cheerfully and gratefully vote as that the world should not lose the benefit of this latest gift of the munificence of Mr. Rockefeller, whom I have never seen and with whom I have never had any relations; but, considering the magnitude and persistence of his efforts for the benefit of mankind and also the personal conduct of the real man as attested by those who do know him, I cannot help him severely and I am inclined to reply in the objections published with out supporting evidence."

Bishop D. S. Tuttle, the venerable presiding bishop of the Episcopal house of bishops, is a veteran of the western missionary fields. There is no more virile and earnest figure in the religious life of the country. Testifying from St. Louis, Bishop Tuttle said:

"It seems to me that not individuals, but the courts of the land, are the proper authorities to determine that money is dishonestly acquired. Till so determined and rejected if the owner of money desires to give it for God's cause and good work the gift should be thankfully received."

Against those who refuse the following telegram from the Rev. Dr. Thomas of Boston, one of the Congregational clergymen who protested against the acceptance of Mr. Rockefeller's $100,000.

"The Boston clergymen have protested to satisfy their own consciences. Mr. Rockefeller stands before the whole country as the representative of an Christian, aggressive, enterprising methods. Clergymen cannot consistently endorse monopoly, tyranny, heartlessness. The effect of appointed success of this kind before young men who where in morally distressed. We do not undertake to dictate to others what they ought to do. As far as possible we want our own hands clean."

These are the opinions of clergymen representing the three phases of thought aroused by the controversy. From Toronto comes a telegram respecting secular scholarship and moral

CURES STOMACH TROUBLES

THE body gets its life from food properly digested. Healthy digestion means pure blood for the body, but stomach troubles arise from carelessness in eating and stomach disorders upset the entire system. Improperly matched food acts on the stomach, causing distressing pains, belching and nausea.

When the eating is done in the stomach becomes weakened and worn out and dyspepsia claims the victim. Theford's Black-Draught cures dyspepsia. It frees the stomach and bowels of congested matter and gives the stomach new life. The stomach is quickly invigorated and the natural stimulus results in a good appetite, with the power to thoroughly digest food. You can build up your stomach with this mild and natural remedy. Try Theford's Black-Draught today. You can get a package from your dealer for 25c. If he does not keep it, send the money to The Chicago Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., and a package will be mailed you.

philosophy. Professor Goldwin Smith was invited to give his views and replied as follows:

"It is certain and notorious that the money has been criminally made, so that public scandal would be given by its acceptance. I am not sure, but I should not think it necessary to say this. Good is being done, though it may possibly be coming out of evil."

Robert C. Ogden, the partner of J. D. Watson in New York, president of the southern educational conference, a trustee in many religious and philanthropic institutions and a leader in the cause of education. Being a merchant of national reputation, an active money maker as well as a philanthropist, his judgment in the matter is especially interesting.

"I would take without hesitation any money that John D. Rockefeller would offer me for any good purpose," said Mr. Ogden. "Now would I consider it dishonorable or the reflection of my religious, charitable or educational institution to pass upon Mr. Rockefeller's life or his business habits. In my opinion this discussion raises an issue that is not practical. It would not feed myself qualified to judge another man's career."

Father Thomas Huey, pastor of St. Louis church in New York, expressed his views thus:

"You ask me to say a few words bearing on the refusal of some representative ministers of Boston to accept a donation of $100,000. The refusal of these gentlemen is an expression of the recognition of this gift for missionary and religious purposes is based upon the fact that there is certain doubt as to the propriety of the money in moral terms. In the business methods of certain persons. They declare the donor's methods are 'un-Christian' and that they the reverend gentlemen are morally certain that the system the donor has built up is based on dishonesty, is illegal and violates the laws of the country. I fall to see how any men believing such conditions to exist could do other than declare the proffered gift should not be accepted or received. The ministers of the Protestant church, presiding over wealthy congregations and in connection with men of wealth are frequently accused of being in the employ of the powerful and are forced to dissent their teachings so as to be powerful in the interests of the powerful and careless for the rights of the multitude. Hence I see why in the present iniquity they are sensitive and wish to show their dissent and intend to be regarded as suspects in the eyes and judgment of the vast struggling millions, for they know full well that their profession must and will fall if this impression grows, and they know full well that Christ has informed them that they cannot serve God and Mammon."

"We Catholics protest the world over are the laborers in the vineyard of the Lord with the struggling toilers the world over. Should the donor of $100,000 to the Congregational body spend such a sum I would before accept it and using the same say to him in living words or in writing: 'Sir, I will accept your gift as a little evidence of practical restitution. I shall hold my self free to judge and think as I wish and, if needs be, to express myself freely about you, I deem unjust and dishonorable if this view is not agreeable to you, you must keep your gift, for I cannot accept it.'"

Robert Hunter, chairman of the New York state labor committee and writer on sociological subjects, expressed this opinion:

"I believe the Boston clergymen were right in their action. In my opinion, corruption took root in the church at the moment it began to accept tainted money. Corruption will not be rooted out of the church until the church professes poverty and abstinence to wealth and luxury. 'Good cannot come out of a church which subsists on the patronage of the rapacious.'"

A SAFETY THEATER.

H. H. Marshall, Architect of Theatres, Invents Novel Stage Roof.

Benjamin H. Marshall, architect of the Iroquois and Illinois theaters in Chicago, will shortly announce plans for a theater in that city, the main feature of which will be a cubical, cylindrical roof over the stage, capable of being opened in case of fire by pressing a button, says a Berlin special cable dispatch to the Chicago News. He proposes to set the theater on fire in order to demonstrate publicly that the blaze can be confined to the stage.

"Berlin's royal theater," said Mr. Marshall the other morning, "which was required to be reconstructed after being a year and costing $400,000, is far less safe than my theater in Chicago. I made a private inspection of the theater and the conditions of it. Poorly, the theatrical venture, and I am able to say that, although the Kaiser reconstructed the theater in consequence of the Iroquois disaster, the safety arrangements will be completely equal to our new arrangements."

"It has fewer exits than the Iroquois theater had before the fire. Chicago demands four exits. This house has none but all except at the ends of the rows. All the theaters in Berlin, including the remodelled opera, are similarly deficient."

The Case as One Man Saw Him.

Little secret, fabled, this is the case, writes Percival Gibson in McClure's Magazine for May, 1910. It is the story of a Russian emigre. When a cast of his head, made for the purpose of a new collection, was submitted to a great criminalologist authority in Paris, who was not told whose it was, the expert after a careful examination pronounced solemnly: "This is the head of a melancholy maniac. But that is not true. The real case is better illustrated by another story, which was given to me as true. An official approached him with papers to be signed and found him lying dead in his room."

"Your majesty," began the official. "I am not your majesty," replied the king. "I am tired."

BE YOUR OWN DOCTOR

Regulate Habits by a Chart. Advises Boston Physician.

PILLS AND POWDER WILL THEN GO

Dr. R. C. Cabot, who is collecting statistics of habits of Americans, tells Chicagoans needs of such the doctor's help in order to prevent disease by working out his own Method of Keeping Well.

Always with doctors. Just ask a chart and keep well. The chart says how to live so that pills and powders never will be needed again. And a doctor himself is boosting this plan, says the Chicago Record-Herald.

He is Dr. Richard C. Cabot of Boston. He is compiling statistics on the habits of 50,000 healthy Americans, and when he finishes he will make up a chart that will teach every one to be his own physician in the matter of hygiene, at least. Dr. Cabot announced his plans before the Chicago Medical society the other night and asked the help of local physicians in gathering his statistics.

The reading of this paper, the subject of which was "The Individual Factor in Hygiene," was the occasion for a vehement protest against certain facts from which it was charged Americans are getting their ideas of hygiene.

"I agree with Dr. Cabot," said a physician who shouted out his sentiments and then hurried away without giving his name. There is too much quackery being disseminated over the country. Some men would make us believe that it is good for us to fill our stomachs full of hay and pretend to tell what is full and not good for people merely to make millions out of the promoters of the stuff. Quacks prepare a lot of medicines and advise the people how to treat diseases and how to regulate their habits irrespective of the physical conditions of those who read the formulae. This system of fake hygiene is getting to be so widespread that it constitutes a positive menace to the country."

The speech was received with loud applause. The doctor took to Dr. Cabot was that the habits of a person must be regulated by the needs of the individual and that there was no set of rules of hygiene that will apply to all. "Men must choose what is good for them by instinct and experiment," he said. "There must be hygiene for the Caucasian, the Mongolian and the Malay. There must be hygiene for San Franciscans and for New Yorkers. The text books of hygiene sound ludicrously of the towns that produce them. We recognize what the school books do not, that young children need a large amount of running about, climbing, yelling and other exercises for the larger groups of muscles rather than the forced activities that 'wag the tongue and wag the pen,' as Stanley Hall says."

"The true is coming when the layman must prevent disease by working out for himself his own method of keeping well. While a majority of persons eat three meals a day, there is a percentage of them that does without breakfast. Others skip lunch and eat some do without the evening meal. In each case the habit must conform to the needs of the person. Coffee may injure some people and the farmer, and it is wrong to lay down a general rule that coffee is injurious to every one. It will soon come to be more or less prescriptions for us to prescribe the way in which the educated layman is to live."

"When I have compiled the statistics of the actual habits of 50,000 healthy American people, to which work I intend to give my life, I expect to make a chart that will aid people materially in settling on their habits. It will show what has been found to be good for the banker and the farmer, the carpenter and the person who takes little exercise and does little work."

Improving Race Canal. Extensive plans for the improvement of the Race canal are now well under way. The waterway is to be widened so that the largest ships can pass each other at almost any point between Port Raid and Race, and by constant dredging the depth of the canal is kept at about twenty eight feet.

Dismore of Harvey, Illinois, Saturday afternoon, 2:30 p. m., children's mass meeting led by Cos. Hayne; Sunday evening sermon by J. C. Garth; Sunday morning sermon by Rev. W. E. Hopkins, a returned missionary from Samaritan, India; Sunday school led by Cos. Hayne; in which the Harrington Y. M. C. A. units will be led by W. H. McLeod of Elkhorn, Wisconsin; Young Peoples' meeting 6:30 p. m. led by E. S. N. Schwaner; evening service 7:30 p. m. Sermon by W. H. McLeod, Mr. Dimp a prominent architect and business man of Hammond, Indiana, will join the band Saturday evening. He has assisted the band on all of its trips this spring. Mr. Sherman a prominent business man of Lake Geneva, Wisconsin will also arrive Saturday evening and will assist in the meetings.

The Evangelistic band is composed of men from the University who band themselves together each spring for special evangelistic work. In this work they give their services and time without money compensation, their expenses alone being paid by the churches which they serve. This year they have had three appointments previous to their coming to Barrington, at Hammond, Indiana, Elgin and Lake Geneva, Wisconsin. Everywhere they have been well received and their work has been most satisfactory in its results. Requests for their services have come from many places which had to be refused. One of these requests has just come from a prominent church in Minneapolis. The local church is fortunate to have secured the band for this week's meetings. This was made possible through Mr. J. C. Garth who is the business manager of the band.

The evening services will begin promptly at 7:30 p. m. with song service. There will be special music at each of the meetings.

Billage Ordinance Passed Relative to Better Sidewalks

The village board held an adjourned meeting at the village hall last evening. The sidewalk ordinance which has been under consideration some time past came up and was adopted by a unanimous vote.

The ordinance provides that hereafter all walks shall be constructed of cement, tar composition, stone or paving brick. The board walk is composed of concrete. Walks in the residence district are to be of a uniform width of five feet. A ten foot walk is provided for the business district.

As an encouragement to our citizens to build substantial walks the ordinance provides that if the owner constructs the walk he or she will be entitled to 12 cents for each running foot to be paid out of the village treasury. If the walk has to be built by special assessment the property owner will receive no assistance from the village but will have to pay the cost.

People to buy. Why? Because our team ticket, dinner ticket and refunded car fare offers (customers who come by train buy round trip tickets), also because comparison proves our values and our prices are better than can be obtained elsewhere. What other store do you know of which draws trade from 30 miles in every direction?
