CICADA NUMEROUS

Seventeen-Year Grasshopper Begins Work in This Section.

Inhabitants about here term the visitor "Seventeen-Year Locust" but scientists know the insect as "Cicada." It is not a locust of the grain devouring kind but a harmless insect which, entomologists say, live without eating anything, and exist but six or seven weeks, but their descendants will call here 17 years from this date.

The cicada is a yellowish-white grub-like insect, about an inch long. It emerges from the ground, crawls hurriedly to the nearest tree or shrub, where, within an hour or so, it bursts its transparent, skin-like covering and comes forth as a large winged harvest fly. The female gets busy after three weeks, boring numerous holes or slits in the smaller twigs of the trees they inhabit. In each of these holes many eggs are laid, and about a month later are hatched small white grubs, each about the sixteenth of an inch in length. These drop lightly to the ground, into which they hastily burrow, each one constructing a cell or tube near the roots of some tree. In the spring of the 17th year they emerge.

It is declared that the only damage caused by these insects comes from the punctures made by the females in small twigs and branches. In the case of shrubs these may disfigure or even work serious injury. The insect is not poisonous. It is not capable of biting or stinging and may be handled with entire safety, even by a child. The insects first appeared here in the spring of 1888.

Rev. Tuttle Charns Crowder
Rev. W. H. Tuttle, former pastor of the M. E. church here, now pastor at Dundee, delivered the oration in that little city Memorial Day and was listened to by a large crowd of people. An Elgin paper, in speaking of the oration says: "It was one of the best I have ever heard of, and was most highly appreciated by the veterans and large assembly who gave the speaker close attention and pronounced compliments."

New Priest in Charge
Rev. Father Quinn, for six years in charge of St. Mary's church at Woodstock, and this Catholic parish, including Crystal Lake and Barrington, has been transferred to New Deering church, Chicago. He is succeeded by Father Gilmarin of Holy Angels church, Chicago, and able priest and strenuous worker in church circles. Father Gilmarin conducted service at St. Ann's here Sunday morning and greatly pleased all who heard him.

The Month of Roses

Now is the gladdest season of the year when, as the poet Lowell sings, there is
"Summer on field and hill, in heart and brain,
And life was waving clean in this high tide of June."

The unseen spirit of nature is abroad and the garden of earth has bedecked itself for the festival wherein every flower and herb, every shrub and tree, too few mean or low to honor the coming of summer.

The very sunshine of the June morning seems "sublimed to pure ecstasy," the air fragrant with the scents from opening flowers and budding vines. Along the wooded ways which spot this lovely section the foliage is resplendent in its robe of perfect green, wild pen flowers, vetches and blue-eyed grasses are assembled, and a late violet may be found here and there, crane's-bill, a vagrant, consorts with unfavored weeds, hobnob with bracken, nestles close to maidenhair and does not scorn the company of the daisy.

We welcome this the loveliest month of the year and we, who have an abiding place in this garden of beauty, but lightly appreciate our surroundings. There is nothing lovelier than a day in June; no spot more favored by the hand of nature than Fox river valley, and our home town—Barrington.

Half Rates to Milwaukee, Wis., Via the North-Western Line: Excursion tickets will be sold at one fare for the round trip, June 21, 22 and 23, limited to return until June 24, inclusive, on account of biennial meeting of Modern Woodmen. Apply to agents Chicago & North-Western Ry. June 23.

The closing concerts of Sears' School of Music will be given Tuesday, June 20th.

CHICAGO HIGHLANDS

Will Soon be the Scene of Activity and Bustle.

The Flagler interests Out Control of Factory Building.

There is no doubt about it. The big plant equipped for foundry purposes, the numerous cottages ready for occupancy, property of the Chicago Highlands association and located on the limit line of our village, has been acquired by the Flagler syndicate and it will be but a short time until that locality will present a busy scene.

Negotiations for lease or purchase of the property by the Flagler interest has been going on for some time, and now there is to be something doing. This new industry located on our threshold means much for the business and property interests of Barrington. It means a revival in trade circles and demand for residence property. Barrington has the advantages and those advantages are in demand.

The first product of the industry which has taken over the old American Malleable Iron company plant will be steel tubing, but before this can be turned out massive machinery must be installed and considerable improvement made in the present facilities.

The new company has come into possession of fifteen acres of land on the south of the present plant, on which will be erected a building 150 by 60 feet, and heavy machinery placed to meet the requirements.

The cottages on the north division of the association property have been leased and additional cottages will be erected on the south division.

Representatives of the company are now in charge of the present buildings, and it will be but a short time until a large number of mechanics will be at work on the grounds so long idle.

A. W. A. Memorial Service.

Sunday, Barrington Camp, No. 808, M. W. A., held services in memory of departed neighbors, as is their usual custom each year,—a custom inaugurated by this camp a number of years ago, and adopted by the order generally.

In the morning a large delegation attended service at the Baptist church where Robert L. Kelly delivered a discourse which is highly spoken of by all who attended. In the afternoon about 100 Woodmen of Barrington Camp and visiting neighbors from Algonquin assembled at their hall and escorted by the Forester team and Harrington band, and proceeded to Evergreen cemetery, where a eloquent tribute was delivered by R. L. Peck, of Palatine, and the graves of departed neighbors profusely strewn with floral offerings.

The attendance of citizens was very large, showing the respect manifested by Woodmen and all in the community which is growing more popular each year. Societies which care for members while living and offer tokens of love after they have passed away, do much to cultivate the spirit of brotherly love, and exemplify Christianity in its true sense.

Memorial Service Notice

All members of Barrington Lodge No. 856, I. O. O. F., are requested to assemble at the hall Sunday morning, June 11th, at 10 o'clock, to attend service at the Baptist church.

A report on "What business men are doing for international arbitration" was presented by Charles Richardson of Philadelphia, chairman of a special committee of the conference on that subject. ## SAY SURRENDER WAS DISGRACE

Negotiating Ships Were in Good Condition When He Gave Up Control.

SHOWED NO TRACE OF DAMAGE

Japanese Shells Had Not Disabled the Vessels and His Magazines Contained Plenty of Ammunition to Make a Defense.

London cable: The Tokio correspondent of the Daily Telegraph sends interesting details of the naval battle, received from Maj. Sasebo, and other points.

It is stated that when Rear Admiral Nebogoff surrendered the Russians pointed red flags on their torpedoes, with Russian flags below them. The crews were drawn up in parade order on the decks, and some of the sailors were waving white flags. The whole affair, the dispatch says, was a "complete success."

The correspondent who witnessed the battle says that toward sunset, when the fighting was most fierce, there were some sickening sights.

The Sasebo correspondent saw exhausted, fugitive sailors striking on places beneath high cliffs in remote and deserted parts where there were no roads. All of them were thirsty, hungry and overworked.

Two Japanese cruisers alone saved 600 Russians.

Rejoice in Hiding. The same correspondent says that when the Japanese boarded the torpedo boat destroyer Bedovi, after completely disabling her, Admiral Rojensky was the last man to be discovered. He was hiding at the bottom of the destroyer and was bleeding freely from many wounds.

The correspondent goes on to say: "It is understood that Admiral Nebogoff, who is grateful for the kind treatment given him by order of the Japanese, will be allowed to proceed home within a few days. His surrender was disgraceful and unaccountable. An examination of his ships shows that, though the guns were rusty and the bottoms of the vessels were covered with seaweed, there was no lack of fighting resources. There were heaps of ammunition, and no trace of damage by the Japanese shells."

Another correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says that the captain of the armored cruiser Dmitri Donkoff, when interviewed, admitted the foolishness of trying to force the Tor Strait. He said:

"The Japanese navy is the fleet in the world. The crews were so cool and brave as to appear almost like demons."

The crew of the cruiser Ural describes how three successive twelve-inch shells completely disabled the vessel and sent her to bottom inside of forty minutes. All stories the Telegraph's correspondents say, contrast the accuracy of the Japanese gunnery with the wild firing of the Russians, who were outfought and outmaneuvered at all points. It stated that Admiral Togo on the night before the battle, when he knew from his scouts that the Russians would be off Tau Island the following morning, and that the Russian preparations were complete, slept soundly.

CUTS DOWN RECEIVER'S SALARY Indiana Judge Limits Compensation in Bank Case to $250 a Day. Governor and special Judge Plummer of the Wabash Circuit Court, has set a new figure in fixing the compensation of receivers for banks that have failed and his decision will be a great attraction for general attention. Judge Plummer allowed Lewis Siggs, receiver of the Bank of North Manchester, $250 a day for 100 days' official service. He also limited the attorney's fees to $150.

The Sasebo correspondent saw exhausted, fugitive sailors striking on places beneath high cliffs in remote and deserted parts where there were no roads. All of them were thirsty, hungry and overworked.

Two Japanese cruisers alone saved 600 Russians.

Rejoice in Hiding. The same correspondent says that when the Japanese boarded the torpedo boat destroyer Bedovi, after completely disabling her, Admiral Rojensky was the last man to be discovered. He was hiding at the bottom of the destroyer and was bleeding freely from many wounds.

The correspondent goes on to say: "It is understood that Admiral Nebogoff, who is grateful for the kind treatment given him by order of the Japanese, will be allowed to proceed home within a few days. His surrender was disgraceful and unaccountable. An examination of his ships shows that, though the guns were rusty and the bottoms of the vessels were covered with seaweed, there was no lack of fighting resources. There were heaps of ammunition, and no trace of damage by the Japanese shells."

Another correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says that the captain of the armored cruiser Dmitri Donkoff, when interviewed, admitted the foolishness of trying to force the Tor Strait. He said:

"The Japanese navy is the fleet in the world. The crews were so cool and brave as to appear almost like demons."

The crew of the cruiser Ural describes how three successive twelve-inch shells completely disabled the vessel and sent her to bottom inside of forty minutes. All stories the Telegraph's correspondents say, contrast the accuracy of the Japanese gunnery with the wild firing of the Russians, who were outfought and outmaneuvered at all points. It stated that Admiral Togo on the night before the battle, when he knew from his scouts that the Russians would be off Tau Island the following morning, and that the Russian preparations were complete, slept soundly.

CUTS DOWN RECEIVER'S SALARY Indiana Judge Limits Compensation in Bank Case to $250 a Day. Governor and special Judge Plummer of the Wabash Circuit Court, has set a new figure in fixing the compensation of receivers for banks that have failed and his decision will be a great attraction for general attention. Judge Plummer allowed Lewis Siggs, receiver of the Bank of North Manchester, $250 a day for 100 days' official service. He also limited the attorney's fees to $150.

TO PROSECUTE BEEF PACKERS

Steps Are Taken to Secure Indictments by Grand Jury at Chicago.

THINKS EVIDENCE IS STRONG

District Attorney Morrison Believes Proof of Violations of Law Are Sufficient to Secure Conviction When Cases Are Tried.

Washington special: Important developments in the prosecution of the Chicago packers for forming the alleged "beef combine" are looked for within the next few days. It is said that Attorney-General Moody has decided to go ahead with the prosecution, and that his assistant, O. H. Pagan, and District Attorney Morrison are now engaged in drawing up the indictments.

The policy is believed to have been decided on in spite of the fact that strong pressure was brought to bear on the administration not to press the prosecution.

Charles M. Dawes, former comptroller of the currency, John S. Miller, chief counsel for the packers at Chicago, and others friendly to the packers were in the city Monday looking after the packers' interests.

Mr. Dawes left for Chicago with Postmaster General Cortelyou, who is on his way to Urbana, Ill., to deliver the commencement address at the University of Illinois.

There have been a number of reports that the packers would protest against the manner in which District Attorney Morrison had employed secret service men to bound witnesses and their families. It was emphatically denied that such a protest had been made. What representations were made to the president and Attorney-General Moody against prosecuting the packers were not along these lines, it is said.

It is believed that the mission of Mr. Dawes and the other friends of the packers has been in vain. Assistant Attorney-General Pagan, who is counsel for the Interstate commerce commission began the first prosecution of the Chicago packers and secured an injunction against them forming a trust to control the same of the National Packing company, has been called into the present case. This is regarded as significant. All the officials connected with the case maintain the strictest secrecy as to their plans.

Hold Evidence Sufficient. One report here is to the effect that District Attorney Morrison was confident that enough evidence had been secured to sustain an indictment in court that might be brought, but that Mr. Pagan was in doubt about securing convictions. When asked about this both refused to discuss the case in any way whatsoever.

This difference of opinion among the attorneys handling the case at Chicago is said to have made it necessary to submit the matter to the attorney general. Since they have been here the evidence has been sifted and the decision reached by the attorney general to proceed with the investigation with a view to bringing indictments.

Matter Lies With Grand Jury. The matter, however, lies with the Chicago grand jury. As a usual thing the grand jury is guided largely by the advice of the district attorney presenting the evidence, and if Mr. Morrison is in favor of finding indictments, as he is reported to be, he will probably be brought. As to the report that thirty or more would be included in the prosecution, it was said by one of the attorneys in the case that no such number would be included in any event. This statement was immediately qualified, however, that it had not yet been decided to bring any indictments, as that was a question for the grand jury to decide.

NEGRO MURDERER IS LYNCHED One of Party of Five Who Killed Planter Strung Up to Tree. New Orleans, La., dispatch: One of a party of five negroes who related account of a postoffice shooting Ernest Lacour, a young planter of Batchelor, was quickly strung up to a tree. The other four submitted quietly and were lodged in jail. One of the negroes confessed that they "jer" shot at that white man for fun" as Lacour was driving by. The negroes fled after the shooting and were captured in the woods five miles away.

Spotts, cashier of the First National bank of El Paso, Tex., who in 1901 pleaded guilty to a charge of embezzling the funds of the bank. Spotts has served one year and has made full restitution to the bank. Other mitigating circumstances have been taken into consideration by the president.

Economy

Only one heaping teaspoonful is needed for one quart of flour.

Every housekeeper should know that if they will buy Defiance Cold Water Starch for laundry use they will save not only time, because it never sticks to the iron, but because each package contains 16 oz.—one full pound—while all other Cold Water Starches are put up in 4-ounce packages, and the price is the same, 10 cents. Then again because Defiance Starch is free from all injurious chemicals. If your grocer tries to sell you a 12-oz. package it is because he has a stock on hand which he wishes to dispose of before he puts in Defiance. He knows that Defiance Starch has printed on every package in large letters and figures "16 oz." Demand Defiance and save much time and money and the annoyance of the iron sticking. Defiance never sticks.

Just Discrimination in Railway Rates. All railroad men qualified to speak on the subject in a responsible way are likely to agree with President Samuel Spencer of the Southern Railway when he says: "There is no division of opinion as to the desirability of stopping all secret or unjustly discriminatory devices and practices of whatsoever character."

Mr. Spencer, in speaking of "unjustly discriminatory" rates and devices, makes a distinction which is at once apparent to common sense. There may be discrimination in freight rates which is just, reasonable and imperatively required by the complex commercial and geographical conditions with which our rate makers have to deal. To abolish such open and honest discrimination might paralyze the industries of cities, states and whole sections of our national territory.

This distinction between just and unjust discrimination is clearly recognized in the conclusions of the International Railway Congress, published yesterday.

"Traffic should be based on commercial principles, taking into account the special conditions which bear upon the commercial value of the services rendered. Any discrimination in rates shall be charged without arbitrary discrimination, and the making of rates should be based on the principle of equality necessary to permit the development of the trade and in proportion to the benefit to the public and to the railroads themselves."

The present proposal is, as Mr. Walker D. Hines of Louisville showed in his remarkable testimony the other day before the Senate Committee at Washington, to crystallize feasible and just discriminatory rates into fixed government rates which cannot be changed except by the intervention of some government tribunal, and by this very process to increase "the temptation to depart from the published rate and the lawful rate in order to meet some overpowering and urgent commercial condition."—New York Sun.

"The Flower of Destiny," by William Dana Orcutt, is the love story of Napoleon III. and Eugenie, here woven into a dramatic romance. Interest in this absorbing novel will be added by the fact that the author is a most fascinating heroine and the love affair leading up to the crown of violets has many idyllic qualities. The book is written in a most charming manner, and is an artistic masterpiece. The illustrations and marginal decorations make it a work of high artistic merit. (A. C. McClurg & Co.)

The July issue of World's Work will be their annual "Uplift" number. Their readers will remember that once a year they turn from all the depressing things which are not with daily in the regular course of life to the side which is most encouraging. The number will tell of the really big things which are being done in the way of spiritual and moral uplift throughout the whole country.

Flag Day Proclaimed.
Governor Deneen has issued a proclamation designating Wednesday, June 14, as Illinois Flag day. The proclamation requests municipal officers of all towns, villages and cities to cause all municipal buildings to be appropriately decorated, and that our citizens generally display from their dwellings or business houses the flag of our country.

Huge Task.
It was a huge task to undertake the cure of such a bad case of kidney disease as that of C. F. Collier, of Chicago, Ill., but Electric Bitters did it. He writes: "My kidneys were so far gone I could not sit on a chair without a cushion, and suffered from dreadful backache, headache and depression. In Electric Bitters, however, I found a cure, and by them was restored to perfect health. I recommend this great tonic medicine to all with weak kidneys, liver, or stomach. ## How Mukden Was Won.

of the Russians, and there they lay sleepless from cold, with the thermometer 15 or 20 degrees below freezing at night.

Next to Nodzu was Kuroki. To him was assigned a task requiring the utmost versatility which has distinguished his career from the time of crossing of the Yalu to the present. He has had to exhibit the qualities of a good pedestrian, of the builder and the fox. At Layington he fought his way through the mountains and on to the plain, so at the Shikoku and so at Mukden. But never once has he been allowed to relax on the plain after he had reached it.

Kuroki again faced steep slopes with narrow valleys between them. Kuroki, who had been so often fooled by the old fox's work in the hills, was determined to hold him this time. Turning to Nogi, we find him making no advance at all on the 4th and 5th. On the 6th he swung a little farther north. By this time the expected had happened. The reserves sent to the east early in the battle were marched back. They no more waited till they were really then the two divisions which had such short shifts. On the 7th they threw themselves precipitately on Nogi's line. But all the spirit of fight was out of their tired legs. Nogi shook them off and was still able to make a little ground. Three separate assaults he had now beaten in detail.

Now, the 7th was a real little day for Kuroki's army. For one week it had laid on the frozen ground, making no progress. On the morning of that day the commander of the left division sent in word that the enemy was moving a little. The headquarters staff had already observed that the Russian shell fire was decreasing. In the valley of Kowallishan a small force was seen retreating. General Kuroki was waiting the order to attack when the field were struck of the news that the left division had entered the enemy's works and found him gone. "Attack" was crossed out and "Pursue" substituted. Then Kuroki asked Nodzu if he had noticed any weakening on his front. Nodzu said he would investigate, and he did, with the result that soon his soldiers were in the trenches. Which they had faced all winter. Maybe the First and Fourth armies were not happy by this time. From general's down to transporters' limbs numbed by cold night at last stretch themselves in action. When you had not made a mile for four months and the road is suddenly cleared soldiers need no urging to the pursuit.

Kuroki's Last Chance.

But the battle was scarcely won yet. Nogi was not out of danger. As hard and harder fighting was to come as had passed. The First army did not catch up with the Russian rear guard until they were ten miles beyond the Shikoku on the 8th. Thus far they had marched their columns away from Kuroki and Nodzu as unimpeded as if they were coming home to barracks after many years. The pursuers had yet to cross the Hun river. That was the natural seat of defense for the Russian left. A part of the First army reached the Hun on the 9th. It was still frozen on the 9th, when both Nodzu and Kuroki were altogether up with it, and Kuroki had a portion of his command across. The Russians did not make a strong stand here.

The release of all the reserves on the Russian left meant more troops to press the Japanese left. On the 9th the Hun found himself in the face of a trench position which he could not budge. At this point, now so clearly critical, the Russians poured out blood as if it were water. Farther north they attacked Nodzu in masses with furious desperation. He had one brigade annihilated. In one regiment of that brigade, I am told, but a single officer was alive and unmounted. Still, on the whole, Nodzu did not give ground. But could he stand so he could not on the 10th? Certainly he could not at variance in face of one.

That night of the 9th was the crisis of the battle. Fortunately, Oyama's communications with his corps had not been interrupted. He knew precisely what was going on over the hundred miles length of his line. The corps of the Japanese right and Japanese left were now interchanged. Nogi had to resist the enemy's hammering while Kuroki swung to the northwest. The time had come when the right must break through and threaten the railroad on its own account. With the Imperial guards to protect his flank, Nodzu on the night of the 9th died and was dead and dead forward. Morning found him well to the north of Mukden. There was hard, grim fighting in the dark. Kuroki's other two divisions also kept on. The guards were supported by several fine trains at daylight. That did the business.

But first another word about the First army. Two of the divisions were

Ayer's

Why is it that Ayer's Hair Vigor does so many remarkable things? Because it is a hair food. It feeds the hair, puts new life into it. The hair cannot keep from growing. And gradually all the dark, rich color of early life comes back to gray hair.

Hair Vigor

"When I first used Ayer's Hair Vigor my hair was falling out, and I was balding. Now it is growing again, and as thick as I could wish it to be." —Mrs. J. W. Ayer, Lowell, Mass.

It is a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor for Gray Hair.

Not yet across the Hun on the morning of the 10th. They were hotly engaged. At the same time a sand storm had cut all divisional communications. The division attached to Nodzu was well separated from the main army. A staff officer was hurried forward to it. Without knowing the situation of the other two, he brought up all the available reserves to the assistance of the isolated division, which was able to dash about and catch the thick of the retreat under its guns.

With victory in the air the other two divisions were not to be denied. They made their crossing good. From that time onward no critic could have spoken of the Japanese pursuit as slow. Kawanuma's Yalu army was too far to the east to be brought to bear on the line of Russian retreat. Kuroki's corps, heavily equipped, kept on for sixty miles with scarcely any sleep.

The plan of concentration for a dash had succeeded so far, so often for the Japanese. Could Kuroki have kept Kuroki and Nodzu back another twenty-four hours, gradually drawing in his center while he held Nogi on his right, his army might have got away without anything approaching the loss in prisoners that he sustained. With Nodzu north of Mukden his center was in the thick of a battle. The Russians fled north in columns along the railroad as fast as they could, with transportation blocking the way. There was no safety for them until they should get past Tieling. Without waiting on a stubbed-up road one of Kuroki's divisions took the pass at the cost of a thousand casualties. That was not in the plan as a part of Kuroki's work. But the war, and his commanders, was down a step for the first time. He could not wait on prisoners. He saw the thing to do was to take the pass, and he took it.

The Trap Closed

But before the remnants of Kuroki and Nodzu could take the last dovetailed in crossing the railroad. Thousands of Russians were still in Mukden. Dozens of troops fled from Kuroki's left wing. All plan and order ceased with the killing of the army on the other side of the pass. Some 25,000 prisoners were taken like fish in a net.

One of Nogi's officers picked up on the field a little mounted by Kuroki himself for the information of his army about Japanese methods of warfare. In this the general says: "In order to conceal the main of their attack the Japanese try a demonstration at another part of the line with fewer troops and more guns. Sometimes this demonstration continues for days and nights, but that of the Yalu army did, and then they come up to their objective with their main force" (as Nogi did).

By committing that very error which he warned his officers against, Kuroki lost the battle of Mukden.

Jap-a-Lac

Lamey & Co. have added to their stock of paints a complete line of Jap-a-Lac. It is made in the following colors: oak, walnut, mahogany, cherry, mahogany green, cyano blue, brilliant black, dead black, natural ground, grass white, and white, empire blue. It is sold in any quantity from one-half pint to a gallon.

Jap-a-Lac stains and varnishes by one application, and is the most durable floor finish on the market; also the best possible finish for all kinds of interior wood-work, where extreme durability is required.

It is a great saver of old wood, work, as it covers up all marks, scratches or disfigurements, producing a brilliant and beautiful finish, and can be successfully applied by an inexperienced person. It is not affected by hot or cold water, nor by soap and water, and does not mar white nor show heel marks when used in the house.

IT WEARS LIKE IRON.

Prehistoric Wind in Idaho.
A geological find of bones of prehistoric animals has been made near Minidoka, Ida., where the government is building a dam across the Snake river, says a dispatch from Boise, Ida., to the Kansas City Star. In excavating a channel the engineers cut through twelve feet of lava. Below this was a bed of sand six feet thick and below that another lava flow. The bones were found in the sand. The skull of a bison was found, the horns spreading six feet from tip to tip. While being removed the skull crumbled, but the horns are perfect and weighable those of a milk ox. A tank three feet long, resembling an elephant's tusk, was also found, and a lower jaw resembling a horse's jaw. The engineer in charge sent some of the specimens to Washington. He was informed that it was impossible to identify them.

Novel Holiday.

One division was concentrated and sent right around the right of the other two divisions of Kuroki. They advanced ten miles on the 21st without opposition, but by the 27th the new army and the First army began to appreciate how strongly Kuropatkin had prepared for the expected flanking movement on his left. With stubborn positions in front of them one division of Kuroki's army had the assistance of a brigade and a concentrated artillery fire. The division which had wheeled on the 20th attacked Wsawalla. They found the Russians in greater numbers of all his brothers Oku was not only able to hold his own, but to make some advances on the 5th and 6th, when Nagi did nothing except to stiffen his line. The first of Oku's two divisions on the center, it was not expected that he would make any headway. Behind them were the Company back of the howitzers and the Company back of the machine guns. The heels of the defenders of Two Hundred and Three Meter Hill at Post Arthur. They could not storm intrenchments which the Russians had been months in making. The first general order was to lung the enemy so close that he was always under threat of a decisive charge; that he dared not spare any men for other vital points. In some places the Oku men got to within thirty or four yards

From Fleeting Fancies

I saw her today, she was crossing the street.
 And she grabbed
 At her skirts behind;
 She walked on the heels of her dear little feet.
 And she grabbed
 At her skirts behind.
 She took little steps of four inches or so.
 So was careful her new patent leathers to show.
 And just so they wouldn't get muddy, you know,
 She grabbed
 At her skirts behind.
 I saw her one Sunday, she stood in the aisle,
 And she grabbed
 At her skirts behind;
 The church aisle was crowded, she stood quite a while,
 And she grabbed
 At her skirts behind;
 She was gowned in a fashion becoming and new—
 I watched while the usher showed her to a pew;
 And the last thing I saw as she vanished from view
 She grabbed
 At her skirts behind.

What Might Be Done

The never-ending question—"Why don't the U. S. N. W. officials improve depot here, and their property adjoining it?" might be better southerly if our own citizens would show the interested spirit in such improvements as was shown in Arlington Heights. There the people are the ones most directly responsible for the neat and pretty little park surrounding the depot, for they gave the railroad company practical proof of their wants, and their desire to assist. A fund was raised by subscription to hire labor to establish such a park, and the officials provided all material, shiruberry, etc. Mr. Kiern, the horticulturist, was then hired by contract to do the work, with the result that the station park is excelled by none on the division. Village improvements come when all are willing to contribute, even a mite, and act, so long as a few try to encourage such undertakings and are scoffed at by those who complain, but do not act. The natural beauty of this village is admirable, and a little more civic pride would make the place an exemplary town. Can any one work alone, whether it be the village council or a child's Sunday school class? No, money is the thing needed to make the work a reality, and the money would be best raised by subscriptions from the people.

The Review "Butted In"

There are those among our people who delight in throwing cold water on every move for the improvement or advancement of the village. They are content to plod along in the same old groove. They are so given to waiting and delay that when Uncle Gabe blows his trumpet they will refuse to respond lest they might run up against some improvement in the way of doing things. This class deserves pity. Forty years ago this locality was an undeveloped section. We have those amongst us who wish for the days of '60 when tallow dips served for lighting purposes, water was secured from an old curbed well, when the little red school house with its pine desks was considered an extravagance if constructed of dressed lumber. A representative of this paper ran against a quartette of this class at the new school building the other day. They were "supervising" the construction of an improvement they oppose because they did not have such business parceled out to them. One of them remarked that "the newspaper didn't pay any taxes but was willin' others should be squeezed to put up a great big buildin' jest to ornament the town."

Another said "newspapers are to tell of deaths, deaths and weddings, but not to influence the people to vote for more taxes." The Review replied to this by having "butted in" (to use a new expression) to village affairs and "butted" hard enough to count, and it has no apology to offer. Five years ago Main street from Hough to Cook street was a mud-caked highway to the public; the so-called "public square" was in the same condition and ornamented by an old wooden pump surmounting a decayed wooden platform which covered a wooden curbed well.

The Review suggested the filling of the street and "square" and the placing of a public drinking fountain for man and beast. The change was made. The village board awakened and the majority of our streets have been well graveled; brick-cast basins have replaced old plank boxes; cement and asphalt crossings have been put down and hundreds of feet of cement sidewalks laid. The Review "butted in" for all these improvements. It is the mission of a newspaper to do just such work.

If the faultfinders wish to return to the old state of affairs there are localities where lands may be purchased cheaply, and transportation facilities are good. But don't locate where there is a newspaper that has the habit of "butting in," because you will not be satisfied.

Enjoyable Club Event.

The Arlington Heights Woman's club on Saturday afternoon, June 3, entertained at their annual "Guest Day" club ladies from the various women's clubs in the Seventh Congressional district. Invitations were extended to the Harrington Woman's club, and the Thursday club, which were accepted and representatives sent.

The guests were received at the Methodist church of the village, and were present in such a throng that the church was filled. Beautiful floral decorations, an inspiring address, music and pleasant associations made the afternoon a source of delightful pleasure to the hostesses and their guests.

Mrs. Emily Draper, the venerable and loved president of the Arlington club, presided over the meeting, and by her gentle and motherly manner of encouraging and advising, further won the affection of the ladies of the district.

Prof. J. I. Sears, of Barrington, gave a short recital in which he played numbers especially requested by the Arlington club, and they proved to be highly instructive and entertaining to the entire gathering.

Dr. J. A. Bondhaber, pastor of the Normal Park Presbyterian church, lectured on club life, and so sympathetically presented the worth of women's clubs that his popularity was immeasurable. He said in part that the women's clubs of the country during the past ten years have become a recognized factor in the American civil life where she demands "good housekeeping even as men demand good housekeeping in the homes." Many of the reforms in school, child labor, and child judgment laws, she cited as a credit to the influence of women's clubs, and also innumerable philanthropic works in many lines. "God has created woman that she may cry out to those who cry." The doctor also strongly advocated the right of intelligent women to vote on all questions of life.

Mrs. H. Falkenstein, the well-known settlement house worker of the north-west side, Chicago, was present, and told pathetically the needs of the poor unfortunate among whom she labors. Mrs. Falkenstein is to her vicinity what Miss Jane Adams is to Hull house, a minister to the needy, sent from heaven.

A reception followed in the church parlor, where a luncheon was served and new friendships formed. Those attending from Barrington were—Woman's Club: Mesdames Reid, L. Lamey, Welch, Purcell and Mrs. Arps of Palatine. Thursday club: Mesdames Howarth, Ryan, Dolan, J. M. Moore and E. Hawley. Fred Hawley, Kendall, Shipman, Seibert, Sears, J. Robertson, Peck, Higley and Dye.

A petition from the Woman's club requesting the board to use its influence with the Chicago & North-Western Railway company to place a needed convenience at its station, was presented and read. The matter was left with President Lamey to submit to that company.

An ordinance asked by the Northwestern Gas Light & Coke company was read and discussed, and referred to the village attorney.

The board will meet in adjourned session this evening.

No Secret About It.

It is no secret that for cuts, burns, ulcers, fever sores, sore eyes, boils, etc., nothing is so effective as Bucklin's Arnica salve. "It didn't take long to cure bad sore throat, and it is all O.K. for sore eyes," writes D. L. Gregory, of Hope, Tex. 25c, at the Harrington Pharmacy.

Thursday Club.

The ladies of the Thursday club most royally entertained by Mrs. Flora B. Meyer, at her pretty home on Main street. The early part of the afternoon was spent in reading clippings on Japan, from "The World To-day." An old fashioned spelling match was then enjoyed. After searching several books for words to get the contestants down on some of them became so enthusiastic that they went down. Mrs. Emily Hawley held out last. A little game entitled "A Penny for your Thoughts" was presented by the hostess. Mrs. Jennie Powers secured all the pennies for her thoughts. The ladies then adjourned to the dining-room and were seated at two large tables. The room and tables were beautifully decorated with the most fragrant blossoms of summer. Mrs. Meyer, assisted by her daughter Maude, and Misses Batten, Goddard and Barber, served the ladies a most delicious, appetizing lunch. A social hour, interspersed by music, was then spent, after which the ladies reluctantly departed, thanking the hostess for the pleasant afternoon they had spent.
