Professional vermin destroyers from Chicago are at work on the Grace farm to rid the barns and farm buildings of rats. Their methods are simple but very effective. Mice's eye lanterns are flashed into the eyes of the rodents after they are scared from their haunts, this blinds them and they are then stabbed with long tongs. After the disappearance of 81 young turkeys and several chickens, presumably by rats, these men were hired to stop the plague.

NEWS FROM PANAMA

Interesting Letter Received from Walter Lageschulte.

We publish herewith a letter from the isthmus of Panama, received by Mrs. H. C. Lamey from her son Walter, who was transferred, several weeks ago, from a government position in Washington to one in the office of the Isthmian Canal Commission, Panama. Mr. Lageschulte writes in part from the town of Canal Zone, dated July 2:

"We have rain every night, and sometimes during the day. The rainy season has just started and will last six months. The city of Panama has a population of about 30,000, composed of natives, Spaniards, Jamaica negroes, and Americans. The natives are rather small being about 5 feet 4 inches and are very thin, the heat keeping them from getting fleshy; but what they lack in height they make up in dirt, being about as dirty as you can imagine. Nearly all the laborers go barefooted, and even the women out in the country. They are very lazy, a foreman having to stand right over them. The Spaniards and Chinese own all the stores, saloons, etc.; there is no liquor license required.

"The streets are very narrow, not over two and one half rods wide; the only paving is a layer of cobble stones. All the teaming is done with little one-horse carts. It looks rather odd to see a cart come along with about 40 boards on the boards sticking out 4 or 5 feet ahead of the pony. In passing they turn to the left, the same rule applies on the sidewalk, which is only from 2 to 3 feet wide and built right against the buildings. The walks are from one to four feet higher than the streets and full of steps. [Reminding one of Barrington a few years ago.—Ed.]

"None of the houses are over two stories high, and the business buildings but three. Most of the buildings are from 50 to 100 years old, but some new ones are now being built, as the U. S. is doing a lot of business in the city. I was in a cathedral that was built in 1799 and is in fairly good shape yet. Most of the buildings are made of cement, as it is too damp for wood, and none of them have cellars. They are very dark inside.

"The U. S. has put in a waterworks system in Panama, piping the water from the hills at a distance of 15 miles. The water was turned on Friday and it certainly astonished the natives by the force it had, most of them declaring it would not work 'as water would not flow up hill.' This will drive the water wagons out of business as formerly the only way to get water was to buy it. They consider it a God-send that they are able to get water free.

"I thought before I left the States that everything would be higher here but everything is the same, such as food, fruit, etc., and clothing is even cheaper, although shoes are higher. All garments have to be put away for a day or two they get mouldy, as it is so damp; in fact when you get up in the morning your clothes are as damp as if dew had fallen on them.

"You hear so much about it being so hot down here, but it isn't as bad as you would think, for it is not much warmer than at home, only it is the same all the year around. The nights are so cool that you need a blanket for covering. Night and day are about the same length, as it is dark at 6:30, and not light until 5. We have no twilight, for as soon as the sun sets it is dark.

"On the whole I like it all right, and hardly expect to be home for some time. Enclosed you will find some photographs of the hotel where I stay and of the vicinity: some Panamanian coins, 20 cents worth 10 cents in U. S. money; 10 cents worth 5 cents, and 5 cents worth 25 cents. Also an invitation I received to attend a reception given by the Governor Magowan, governor of the Canal Zone, in honor of President of the Republic of Panama and wife, Senora Amador, at the Central hotel, Panama, on the evening of July 4th."

Supervisor Miller, chairman of the board of review, was one of the first to catch sight of the worm in the county patch, eating up and killing off the oats.

Mr. Miller notes that the worm is getting in some destructive touches on wheat, oats, timothy and other crops. The pest is a frequent one but this is the first noted of it here. Its ravages are fierce and the farmers use all means to fight it.

CORN OUTLOOK IS PROMISING

Splendid Progress Is Reported From Most Parts of the Belt.

RAINS CHECK WORK IN EAST

Spring Wheat in the Dakotas In Better Shape, Owing to the Rust Fungus, and to Spr. J.—Apple Crop Is Reported Poor.

Washington, July 19.—Favorable temperatures prevailed throughout the country during the week ended July 17, says the weather bureau's weekly crop summary.

Heavy rains interfered with work in the Ohio Valley and over a large part of the South Atlantic and east gulf states, but a general absence of rain in the west gulf districts, with only light showers over much of the Missouri and upper Mississippi valleys, afforded favorable opportunity for much needed cultivation.

Some Injury to Corn.

Corn has made splendid progress throughout nearly the whole of the corn belt, and is decidedly improved in the Missouri valley. While a general outlook for this crop is promising, it has sustained some injury on low land in Missouri and portions of the south Atlantic and east gulf states and is not in a good state of cultivation in portions of the Ohio valley.

Harvesting where not finished in the more northerly districts is well advanced.

Favorable for Spring Wheat.

Spring wheat has experienced a week of favorable weather. Rust, still prevalent in the Dakotas, is not increasing. There is very little in Minnesota.

In the central Mississippi and Ohio valleys and portions of the middle Atlantic states the oats harvest has been interrupted, and considerable damage has resulted from wet weather.

While too rapid growth of cotton and light fruiting are generally reported in the cotton belt, an improvement is indicated in many districts.

Tobacco injured by Rain.

Too much rain caused injury to tobacco in Kentucky, Virginia and Maryland, but notwithstanding these conditions, the outlook in Kentucky is promising. A marked improvement is noted in Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York, and the crop is doing well in New England, Indiana and Wisconsin.

Much hay has been damaged in the central Mississippi and Ohio valleys and middle Atlantic states, but in New England, the Missouri and upper Mississippi valleys haying has progressed favorably.

Nearly all reports indicate an inferior apple crop.

MAIL ORDER BANK WINS CASE

St. Louis dispatch: On motion of the attorneys for the People's United States Bank, the mail order concern, Judge McMillen of the St. Louis County Circuit Court dissolved the receivership for that institution and discharged the receiver appointed by him on the request of Secretary of State Bryan. STATE OF KANSAS LACKS PROTECTION FOR MONEY

Funds in Hands of Treasurer Thomas T. Kelly Are Held by Him Under Bond That Is Worthless.

Topeka, Kan., dispatch: Governor Hoch announces that nothing can be done to get State Treasurer Thomas T. Kelly out of office. The governor demanded that the treasurer give a bond of $500,000 to repair the old bond, which was made invalid by the Kelly failure, and which would protect the $500,000 of the state's money on deposit in the defunct First National bank. Kelly refused to give the bond and the governor, after numerous conferences with his legal advisers, decided that nothing could be done to enforce the demand.

As the matter now stands, there is absolutely no protection for the state funds. C. J. Devlin's name on Kelly's bond is, of course, worthless, and several months may pass before the filing of the new bond.

Most of the money owned by the state now is on deposit in various banks outside of Topeka, as provided by the state depository measure. Attorney General Coleman has sent notices to these banks that they are not to send any of this money in to the state treasury until further orders from him. This will obviate the necessity of the treasurer handling any of the money and will probably last until the new bond is filed by Mr. Kelly in accordance with the state depository law.

On account of late developments in the Devlin failure and the efforts on the part of the governor to get the state treasurer out of office, it is difficult for him to procure the bond of $750,000 as provided by law. Mr. Kelly announces the bond will be filed and is making every effort to secure it from eastern bonding companies.

Paris, Ill., July 19.—Interest in the Edgar county bank-wrecking mystery revived yesterday when W. W. Junten, the bookkeeper who was injured so seriously at the time of the explosion, was arrested on a federal warrant charging him with embezzlement.

Following the arrest Junten gave bond in the sum of $10,000 for his appearance at 4 o'clock p. m. today. The complaint, which is joined in by J. H. Parish and R. H. Kille, president and cashier of the Edgar county bank, charges the absconding funds to the amount of $7,500 by means of false entries.

Errors in Foreign Accounts.

Junten was in charge of the foreign correspondence ledger and this book was the only one damaged in the explosion. A large part of it was blown away and the remainder mutilated and burned. It has required several weeks of patient work to supply the missing accounts, but this was accomplished by the slips of original entry which were on file in the bank's temporary quarters and were not in the vault at the time of the explosion.

By comparison of the accounts thus made up with the foreign accounts discrepancies to the amount named in the complaint have been ascertained. All other individual books in the bank have been included in the investigation and have been found in perfect condition.

Claims Proof Is Positive.

Partial statement of the federal authorities was solicited by the bank officials in order to remove as case so far as possible from any local influence.

He does not make public the details of the shortage, saying it is not desirable to expose the hand of the prosecution any further than necessary.

He says, however, the proof of Junten's guilt is absolute and that action would have been taken sooner but that the district attorney was not entirely satisfied with the evidence and jurisdiction and desired to investigate.

Bank Cashier Is Arrested.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 18.—Gustav Conman, until recently cashier of the Vigo County National bank, which closed its doors a few days ago, was arrested and charged with embezzlement. The specific charge is taking $1,000 of the bank's funds. Conman is confined to his home by illness. He gave bond in the sum of $5,000.

WILL NONUNIONIZE THE MILLS

Steel Trust to Adopt This Plan With Its Tin Plants.

Sharon, Pa., special: That the steel trust will make the present year to nonunionize several of its tin mills in this district is authoritatively stated. It is learned that this was to be done had not the Amalgamated Association and the United Tin Workers' union, which are in a hard war, signed the scale for the ensuing year. Realizing that this plan was to be carried out the officials lost no time in agreeing to the proposed settlement.

The matter will have to hold over for another year and the trust will hold the scheme over the heads of the workmen like a club. If they do not agree to the scale they will have to work the plan will be carried into effect immediately.

The matter will have to hold over for another year and the trust will hold the scheme over the heads of the workmen like a club. If they do not agree to the scale they will have to work the plan will be carried into effect immediately.

It is feared they have wandered from the trails and become lost or accidentally killed. A searching party has been organized.

NAMES RECEIVER FOR MARQUETTE COAL MINE

Concern in Which Charles J. Devlin Is Interested Is Said to Lack Funds to Pay Its Liabilities.

Princeton, Ill., dispatch: Walter A. Rosenfield, president of the Moline Wagon company, has been appointed receiver of the Marquette Third Vein Coal company by Judge R. M. Skinner.

The company owns 6,000 acres of land in Bureau, Putnam and Marshall counties, and has mined at Marquette and Spessard. Charles J. Devlin of Topeka, is interested, and the present action is attributed to his recent financial difficulties.

The bill of complaint alleges that the company owes nearly $500,000 and is without funds to pay its liabilities. John Mitchell Losses Savings.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., dispatch: It is reported here that President John Mitchell of the mine workers' union has lost $2,000 by the failure of the bank in his home town, Spring Valley, Ill. This sum represented his entire savings. The bank's failure was the result of the financial troubles of C. J. Devlin of Kansas City.

To Represent Illinois Creditors.

Topeka, Kan., dispatch: From information received here by Cyrus Lealand, receiver in bankruptcy for C. J. Devlin, it is understood Walter Reeves of Streator, Ill., will be appointed by the court as the receiver of the Illinois creditors. Under this arrangement the payroll of the miners in Illinois will be taken care of by Chicago banks. This two weeks' payroll, falling due on Saturday, amounts to $15,000.

BOAT-ROCKER BEATEN BY ANGRY SPECTATORS

Mob Attacks Young Man Who Deliberately Upsets Craft in Which Three Women Are Rowing.

New York dispatch: Prompt retribution was meted out Monday night to Samuel Brooks, a hater of Audubon beach, whose criminal mischievousness imperilled the lives of three young women. Brooks was rescued by a terrible beating at the hands of hundreds of men who had seen him rock a boat until it was capsized and its occupants thrown into the water.

Carrie Batten, Nellie Hatten and Agnes McLaughlin, each aged about 18 years, were rowing in the vicinity of many bathers when Brooks and a companion, who were in the water, approached, and, heedless of the protest of the young women, climbed into the boat. Taking positions at either end of the craft, the men began to rock the boat until it had become so thoroughly terrified girls begged the intruders to desist, continued until the boat upset.

Meanwhile Brooks and his companion swam away and the latter escaped. Brooks was less fortunate, and when he reached the shore an infuriated mob set upon him with umbrellas and stones and he had to flee for his life for the intervention of the police. He was arrested.

SUSTAINS MACCABEES' RATES

Court Dismissed Bill of Knight Protesting Against Increase.

Port Haron, Mich., dispatch: Judge Law in the circuit court handed down his opinion in the case of Dan St. Clair Wineland of Pittsburg, Pa., against the Knights of Maccabees of the World, in which Wineland protested against the rates in raised adopted by the supreme test at its biennial meeting in Detroit a year ago. Judge Law dismissed the bill of complaint with the costs to the defendant. The decision was based on the fact that the laws of the supreme test governing applications for membership, which reads as follows: "This application and the constitution and laws of the supreme test now in force or that may hereafter be adopted are made the sole basis of the contract between myself and the supreme test."

THE TEACHER'S FOE

A LIFE ALREADY THREATENED BY NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

One Who Breaks Down From His Years of Overwork Tells How He Escaped Misery of Enforced Idleness.

"I had been teaching in the city school steadily for thirty years," said James Williams, a man whose recent return to the work from which he was driven by nervous collapse has attracted attention. "They were greatly overcrowded, especially in the primary department of which I had charge, and I had been doing the work of two teachers. The strain was too much for my nerves and two years ago the crisis came."

"I was mentally and physically exhausted, and never expected to be able to resume work. It seemed to me then that I was the most miserable human on earth. I was tormented by nervous headaches, worn out by inability to sleep, and had so little blood that I was as white as chalk."

"After my condition, it was hard to bear idleness, and terribly discouraging to keep paying out the savings of years for medicines which did me no good."

"How did you get back to your health?"

"I was cured by a lot of faith and a cure. After I had suffered for many months, and when I was on the very verge of despair, I happened to read in the Chicago Record of a cure effected by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The statements were so convincing that I somehow felt assured that these pills would help me. Most of all, I think, by only one bit for a trial, but I purchased a box at once, and when I had used them up, I was indeed well and had no need of more medicine."

"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills enriched my thin blood, gave me back my sleep, restored my appetite, gave me strength to walk long distances without fatigue, in fact freed me from every ailment. In a few months I have already taught for several months, and I cannot say enough in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Miss Margaret M. James is now living No. 123 Clay street, Dayton, Ohio. Many of her fellow teachers have also used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and are enthusiastic about their merits. Sound digestion, strength, ambition, and cheerfulness spirit quickly follow their use. They are sold in every drug store in the world.

Business in the Home. The adoption of business principles in the home is not only one of the ways to happiness. It is the only way, says Good Housekeeping. We are speaking now of the average household composed of an average man and an average woman. And here is the first step toward happiness: First, the husband must have the absolute right to refuse money to the wife; second, the wife must have the absolute right to demand money from the husband. It doesn't look like affection, it doesn't seem consensual. But analyze it.

DISFIGURING ULCER

People Looked at Her in Amazement—Pronounced Incurable—Face Now Clear as Ever—Thanks God for Cuticura.

Mrs. P. Hackett, of 400 Van Buren St., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I wish to give you the most marvelous cure of my mother by Cuticura. She had a severe ulcer, which physicians had pronounced incurable. It was a terrible disfigurement, and people would stand in amazement and look after her. After there was no hope from doctors she began using Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills, and now, thank God, she is completely cured, and her face is as smooth and clear as ever."

Loubet Insists on Retiring.

President Loubet has finished his sixth year in the French presidency and declares he will not seek reelection. He prefers to pass his time in agriculture, and in the country or in retirement in Paris, where his son, Paul, is already looking for an apartment for him. The presidential election takes place next January.

M. Delcasse Is Husky.

M. Delcasse, former French minister of foreign affairs, is now in his 53d year, and is described as being wiry and tough, with a round head, closely cropped, a bristly mustache and a hooked nose. He is a fighter, his appearance indicates a man capable of much toil.

Gold Mining in Japan.

Since the beginning of the war the Japanese government has encouraged gold mining. The result has been over $5,000,000 worth of gold in Japan and nearly as much in Formosa.

The czar's New Man in Washington.
Russia's new minister to the United States and one of the peace negotiators, Baron Rosen, is believed by European diplomats to have been an antiwar man in the far eastern crisis from the very beginning. At least, he has identified himself with that element of the Russian government which favored conciliatory rather than aggressive methods in dealing with Japan. He was Russian minister to Japan when the war broke out, and one reason why he argued with the czar for peace was the knowledge that Japan was ready for war and Russia was not.

Baron Rosen's personality is described in the London World as follows: "He is not in the least impressive or imposing in appearance, and his presence would hardly suggest the unyielding spirit of the indomitable will which actually dominates all who come in contact with him. He is about fifty years of age, of middle height, equal rather than above average in build, with a face of a very massive brow, and eyes slightly and has a cold, somewhat flat, expression which causes one to appear somewhat higher than the other. Like most Ministers of Baron Rosen is fair-skinned and blond with a heavy fringe of white hair, and a head of hair which is slightly tinged with white. His eyes are light blue, and his nose is straight and of average height. He is a somewhat stouter appearance is imparted to the face by the heavy, dark, bushy eyebrows which the minister continually wears and which are only maintained in their place by means of a contortion of the eye and cheek at once unimposing and ludicrous."

It is the opinion in foreign circles that had Baron Rosen been the czar's representative in Japan when the Anglo-Japanese alliance was under consideration in 1901 he would have been man enough to defeat that measure. Had the alliance failed Japan would not have felt strong enough to attack her big northern neighbor. In principle the baron is a follower of the assassinated minister, Von Plehve, and, like him, believes in eastern expansion. So his antiwar attitude is wholly a matter of policy and not due to deep conviction.

Baron Rosen is a man of great education and refinement. Apart from his native coldness and hauteur he is a brilliant conversationalist and therefore can be an amusing companion. He speaks English fluently, but with a slight American accent, doubtless acquired during his several years' residence in this country as consul general at New York.

Too Many Houses.

The collapse of the mutiny of the Russian sailors in the Black sea seems to be another instance of the folly of having too many houses at one job. The mutineers had everything their own way at the start. Two battle-ships—the best in the fleet—went on a strike, and the admiral decided to disarm the other ships instead of dealing with the mutineers. To add the mutineers there was a little rebellion on hand in the port of Odessa, and for a moment it looked as though the day of settling had arrived for the Russian autocracy.

Suddenly the bottom dropped out of the mutiny. One battleship was returned to the fleet by its crew, and the crew of the other deserted. There was no plan of action and no discipline on the striking ships, and that is what may be expected in an uprising of this kind. Organization is the key to success in any class of forces. Among rebellious submarines one man holds that he is just as good as any other man. That is why he rebels. He refuses to take orders from an equal, and the game is up. In order to be successful a rebellion must have able leaders, the equals in capacity and in power of the opposition. Officers who had served under the king led the armies in the American Revolution, and the same of the French revolution. When the Russian mass moves as one mind and one fist, there will be some lively ripping of things autocratic, but not until then.

The Italian ambassador at Washington has introduced a new wrinkle to solve the immigration muddle. After a trip through the south he notified his government that Italian laborers would be well received in that region—in fact, were heartily desired—and would get on in that environment. If the immigrants take him at his word, he will have to "make good" his prediction, and in that case this country will get an object lesson in the matter of steering immigrants to points where they are wanted.

Fresh "revelations" are promised in a sensational book dealing with the private life of Charles D. Brown. It is alleged by this new chronicler that the gifted author of "Jane Eyre" had some personal experiences unusual for a young woman and that herein is the key to the strong delineation of love and passion in her novels.

During the past month 110,000,000 postal cards were shipped to headquarters from the government factory. This means a few more of letters for the readers of other people's mail.

Teaching the Young Hand to Work.

A strong plea for the "three R's" in public school education was made before the recent national assembly of teachers by George B. McClellan, mayor of New York. Mr. McClellan urged that the elementary branches be given precedence in importance over everything else. His position aroused much discussion, and, while no one disagreed with him, there were many to declare that he pressed the point too far when he exclaimed, "And yet how little are they taught!"

It is evident from the proceedings of the convention that the educators of the country aim to train the hand as well as the brain of the boy and girl, and that the so-called "frills" are not to banish from the course branches which will put tools into the possession of the students. For instance, the committee on industrial education laid before the teachers a plan for making country school education fit the actual needs of the people. In its report the committee says:

"This committee does not hesitate to say that in its judgment the rural schools, which train nearly one-half of the population of this country, so far as country training goes, should definitely recognize the fact that the major portion of those being trained will continue to live upon the farm and that there should be specific, definite, technical training fitting them for the activities of farm life. Such schools will make farmers or housekeepers, but they will interest boys and girls in farming and housekeeping and the problems connected with these two important vocations."

It is a well known fact that young people take interest in anything which is done with a crowd. An immense task becomes a pleasure when shared by others. Half the drudgery from hard work lies in not knowing how, and if this discouraging stage can be tided over in school, with companionship to lighten the toll, the beginner will make light of the task when it is taken up seriously and alone. Grown folks "hunt best" in company, and their youngsters are built on the same line.

Extending Free Postal Delivery.

Rural free delivery is a luxury, but one which the country seems willing to pay for. A completed service, so called, will not, however, give to every dweller in the remote woods a delivery at his door daily. In 1902 the postal department estimated that the territory available for free delivery embraced about 1,000,000 square miles, or one-third of the country's area. Today there are in operation 31,700 rural free routes, covering approximately 700,000 square miles.

It is estimated that 15,000 additional carriers will be required to cover the 200,000 square miles yet remaining of the available area. Year by year the available area is widening, chiefly by the growth of population and also from the readiness of the department to cover the sparsely settled districts. When the service is complete as planned there will be approximately 60,000 routes in operation. A show of opposition to further outlay for rural delivery is made by city congressmen on the plea that earlier service in the great centers is inadequate. As a matter of fact, the great bulk of city mail is devoted to money making and has not the same importance as the country mail, which is largely of a social and educational nature. City people visit and do not exchange social letters, and their papers and periodical literature are delivered free at the door by dealers or picked up at the corner news stand. Besides, branch postoffices in cities do part of the work of rural free deliveries.

Losses in the Crop Reports.

The discovery of a serious if not a criminal breach of confidence in what was popularly supposed to be a particularly honest and efficient bureau is not exactly a strong argument in favor of paternal government. Crop reporting was undertaken, as it was alleged, in the interest of the producer. The speculator has certainly profited by the government's inability.

Were the government out of the business of crop reporting it would be carried on by private agencies or semi-private, probably by responsible agricultural associations. In any event, the price of wheat, cotton or corn cannot be changed to the profit of the grower by more reports, and the farmer is capable of judging for himself the figure at which he must sell.

We talk a great deal about our republican simplicity and the lesson we are giving to the world, but our foreign ambassadors who have to pay out a great deal more than their salaries to sustain their position at court are not happy examples of that simplicity.

Landlubbers and the Navy.

Commander Hood recently spoke before the Naval Institute on the subject of desertions from our warships. He frankly avows that the principal cause of desertion is the enlistment for the lower grades of the service of men who are green hands on shipboard. They find the work and discipline irksome and get ashore at the first chance, never to return. The authorities seek to man the ships with native crews, but, according to the Marine Review, the "sea habit" is dying out in America, and there is a dearth of sailors to meet the demand. To get men for the warships we should have a merchant marine to train them, says the Review, and it adds:

"The United States has not even a grade for its navy. Its total merchant marine for the foreign trade is included in the small compass of 52,000 tons. That is not a mouthful for Britain. The situation is one which must make the patriotic men of this country pause. American merchant ships are needed to obtain American crews for American naval ships. There is no other way to get an efficient fighting force. Means should be devised to make the life of the merchant marine attractive to American boys. As early as eight follows day, the country will have had need of them. That is the time to do it. To face the condition squarely is to recognize the fact that a maritime country such as this has need of a merchant marine of its own as much for protection as for commerce and that if economic conditions make it impossible under our fiscal policy to win a profit from the sea, to remedy by artificial means a state which artifice has created. If the American boy finds that he can do better on shore than he can aboard ship, let the nation make up the difference and make a national fund of naval reserves in consideration thereof. We can buy cheaply now that which, if neglected, will some day have to be bought dear."

The American boy is fond of adventure on the water. If he hasn't a boat, he'll build a raft and, in a pinch, pole a log, canoe fashion. The spirit is there, but the modern ship is so complicated that a course of technical training, as suggested, is necessary to make it more than he can aboard ship. It is said that every sailor in the Japanese navy is drafted from the merchant service. Russian ships, on the contrary, are manned almost entirely by landlubbers—peasants who never stood on a ship's deck until dragged there in the conscript squad.

Uncle Sam Counsels With Experts.

In the business world it has long since been the day of the expert. In public affairs the day of the expert is also dawning. The need for special training and for technical advice is felt in every branch of the government service, and it is one of the most hopeful signs of the times that those who direct the great work of the government's civil bureaus are seeking to do it by the light of the latest scientific beacon. It was in harmony with this general spirit that a meeting was recently called in Washington by the secretary of the interior, his invitation being induced by the secretary of agriculture. This meeting was a conference of prominent engineers and officials of the geological survey and of the bureau of forestry with certain gentlemen high in railroad and engineering circles. Problems connected with the testing of structural materials, such as stone, cement, coal and timber, were discussed. Both the geological survey and the bureau of forestry are maturing plans for extensive work in testing the character, durability and strength of these materials. With the desire of securing the cooperation of those who make practical use of the materials and who best understand the requirements which they have to meet this meeting was called.

It is hoped that the result of this conference will be the establishment of a continuous advisory board of experts who will assist the geological survey and the bureau of forestry in the conduct of these tests. No such co-operation between the government and the body of experts has ever before been effected in the United States.

Now some wisecracks bout up with the theory that the transcontinental railroads are playing the mischief with the Panama canal business, such as discouraging laborers, seducing engineers and other important officials to desert their posts, and so on, but this should surprise nobody. The roads have fought the canal for a quarter of a century, and it would just suit them to have the finish delayed another quarter of a century even if they have to put up money continually to obstruct the work.

The postmaster was very prompt to arise and remark, for the benefit of Mr. Root, that Secretary Webster, Secretary Blaine, Secretary Seward and Secretary Sherman found that the state department is not a sure stepping stone to the White House. Very well, but it is not so long ago that a great many people thought that a presidential candidate is shored by accepting the vice presidency.

It appears that there are benevolent as well as malevolent microbes, and the destruction of one kind is as fatal to health as the ravages of the other. Perhaps the men of science will concoct a double acting specific warranted to exterminate or to bolster up the "mikes" according to their deserts.

A smoke consumer which minimizes the smoke and saves from 10 to 20 per cent on coal has been successfully tested in Bavaria.

The keynote of the humorous Marshall P. Wilder's new book is cheerfulness. "No exhortation he gives this advice: 'This is the best year, the best month, the best day, the world has ever known. Make the best of it.' The secret of happiness lies in being satisfied as things are."

Forced to Starve.

H. F. Leck, of Concord, Ky., says:
"For 20 years I suffered agonies, with a sore on my upper lip, so painful sometimes that I could not eat. After vainly trying everything else, I cured it with Ficklen's Arnica Salve."
It's great for burns, cuts and wounds.

Two of the Salem church Sunday School classes took a hay-ride to the Fox river Tuesday. The day was passed in fishing, and boating, together with the usual pastimes incident to a picnicking party.

The Diamond Cure.

The latest news from Paris is that they have discovered a diamond cure for consumption. If you fear consumption or pneumonia it will, however, be best for you to take that great remedy mentioned by W. T. Mc-Gee of Vancouver, Tenn. "I had a cough for fourteen years. Nothing helped me until I took Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds, which gave instant relief, and effected a permanent cure." Unequaled quick cure for throats and lung troubles at Geo. C. Roberts & Co.'s drug store; price 50c and $1.00, guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

Best Her Double.

"I know no one for four weeks when I was sick with typhoid and kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Anna Hunter, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and when I got better, although I had one of the best of doctors I could get, I was bent double and had to rest my hands on my knees when I walked. From this United States affliction I was rescued by Electric bitters, which restored my health and strength, and now I can walk as straight as ever. They are simply wonderful. Guaranteed to cure stomach, liver and kidney disorders; at Geo.
C. Roberts & Co.'s drug store; price 50 cents.

fines that had accumulated for a year.

Wauconda Leader: The surveys of the Illinois & Wisconsin Construction Co. are here taking levels and there is talk that the company contemplated building the road sooner than was promised. Let us hope that such may be the case, and give any encouragement we may be able to give to the company to hasten the work.

Woodstock Sentinel: The county treasurer of Boone county, J. W.
Hardy, is holding down a job as street car conductor on one of the city lines of the Rockford & Interurban company in Belvidere. Mr. Hardy has not resigned his office, but has a deputy who looks after that business, and in the meantime is making a dol-

The Lake County Board of Review

According to the report of the Good Roads Commission the people of Illinois have spent approximately $75, 000,000 on their wagon roads during the last twenty-five years and yet these roads are in little better condition now than they were twenty-five years ago. Obviously there has been a great waste, which is ascribed to the make-shift methods and a neglect of a scientific study of the road problem. The old Romans knew how to make roads "for keeps," and some of those constructed by them two thousand years ago, are still in good condition.

one application, and is the most durable floor finish on the market; also the best possible finish for all kinds of interior wood work, where extreme durability is required.

hundred pages of historic matter concerning the various roads forming

Demand for Free Delivery.
The demand for rural free delivery keeps up continually. Petitions for new service to the number of 4,708 were filed in the first week in June and new routes are being established at the rate of 600 a month. Thus far the service has reached about one-third of the rural population of the country at a cost of $20,000,000 a year.
When it reaches substantially every farm house, as it will before long, it will cost at least $60,000,000 and the deficit will amount to unheard of figures unless the rules be changed.
The reorganization of the service on business principles, permitting carriers to handle express matter regardless of origin or destination, would probably make both ends meet.

Very Low Rates to San Francisco,
Los Angeles, Portland, Tacoma, Seattle, Etc.

land limited" electric lighted throughout, less than three days en route.

ist sleeping cars. The best of everything. For rates, tickets, etc., apply

Jeannette Glider's Cat on Verbe.
Jeannette L. Glider, editor of the Critic, was at Cleveland, O., a few hours recently on the way to Duluth.
In an interview she started the reporter by dropping as many verbs as possible, says a Cleveland dispatch to the Chicago Tribune. She said:
"Queer thing about Cleveland. Must be rich city. More automobiles than in New York. So many women drive them, the big ones. Cleveland women of more rugged type than New York women. New York women content to amble about in little electric runabouts. Cleveland, no go. Great difference here. By the bye, what about the poor horse? One this morning hit with a dirt wagon. Only one I saw. Poor, bony animal. Sorry for him, honestly."

Japanese on Texas Rice.
Baron Masano Masudaira, a Japanese nobleman, has been traveling in Texas, which he declares to be a great country for rice. He regards Texas rice as almost on a par with the product of his native country and feels sure that it can be raised more with profit.
The baron is of opinion that in a reasonably short time many Japanese of wealth and standing will become residents of the Lone Star State.

portation to the markets of England.
