Senatorial Preliminaries.

It is given out by Chicago papers that Senator Cullom has established his headquarters in some of the federal offices in that city whence he will direct his campaign in the state. It is further announced that William Lorimer will have charge of the territory included in Cook county. If the last statement is correct it is a bad move on the part of Senator Cullom, for, however William Lorimer may stand in Chicago and Cook county the republicans of other sections of the state have little confidence in his political connection with the senatorship.

Many who are not partial to Yates may balk at Lorimer's leadership and through prejudice go into the camp of the ex-governor.

WHY NOT WAKE UP?

Sister Villages are Putting Forth Inducement to Attract Residents.
Why Not Follow Suit?

A majority of the suburban villages tributary to Chicago are using most strenuous efforts to increase their importances as places of residence, and some of them offer tempting inducements to manufacturing industries to locate within their boundaries. It is time that Barrington joined the procession and awakened from the Rip Van Winkle sleep into which it seems to have fallen as regards adding to its population and industrial growth.

There is not a village on the line of the North-Western Railway, not a village tributary to Chicago that can offer more natural advantages for those seeking suburban homes than Barrington. Located 30 miles from the great city, in the garden spot of the state, its people may enjoy all the advantages of metropolitan life without being subjected to much that is detrimental to home life.

Transportation facilities are the very best, while commutation tickets placed at reasonable rates, allow the wage worker to reach his place of employment in the city without cutting deeply into his earnings. Here are churches of different denominations, and educational advantages equal to those found anywhere. The village is well governed, free from disturbing element, the right of personal liberty recognized. Rents and living expenses are low compared with some suburban towns. We have electric light, well graded streets, a bountiful supply of pure water pumped from artesian well to every portion of the village. The mercantile houses are numerous and well fitted with the necessities of life. The people are of the well-to-do class and poverty is unknown. All the advantages that one needs to render the home pleasant and comfortable are to be found here.

The great barrier to the advancement of Barrington is the fact that no inducements in the way of dwellings or building lots, at prices within reach of the wage earner, are held out to the home seeker. The vacant property is here; the capital here to put on improvements, but for some reason it is buried by its owners and they are shy about putting it to work.

In other villages owners of vacant property are offering it at figures attractive to those in search of suburban homes. Cottages are being erected and offered at reasonable rental to those who desire to leave the stuffy, microbe infested flats in the city and bring their families to the health giving surroundings of the country.

Every piece of property improved in this village adds to the value of all other property. It is time that our citizens awakened to the fact that to advance the interests of this village they must offer inducements to the homeseeker and manufacturer.

FOURTH OF JULY VICTIM

Fred D. Sturm of Elm Township Dies From Effects of Pistol Wound.

Fred D. Sturm died at the home of his uncle, in Long Grove, July 21st, from the effects of gun shot wounds accidentally inflicted on July 4th. He was born near Long Grove, September 8th, 1869, and was left an orphan while quite young. Jacob Sturm, Sr., his uncle, gave the boy a home and educated him in the public schools. On July 4th, while celebrating the day, in company with his playmates, he was accidentally shot in the hand by a small pistol. The wound was not painful, but little attention was paid to it. After a day or two a physician was called, symptoms of lockjaw having developed. The wound was dressed and every attention possible given. He continued to grow worse and gradually failed until last Friday when he breathed his last.

The funeral was held from his late home Sunday, and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. Six of his playmates acted as pall bearers, and his remains were interred in the cemetery adjoining the church, where his loved parents were laid some time ago.

Eggs will keep better if laid in a cool place. Show this to your hens.

Early last April Mrs. Promites made an effort to save the life of her child whose clothing caught fire while playing near the kitchen stove. The child died and Mrs. Promites was so severely burned it was found necessary to remove her to a hospital for treatment.

Father Fox, of St. Carmel Mission, Chicago, conducted the services at St. Ann's church last Sunday. Father Fox was sent here by the Archbishop of the diocese to look over the parish and report as to the advisability of placing a priest here permanently. It is to be hoped that the report rendered will be favorable and that Father Fox may be chosen as representative of the church here. He is a talented man, young and energetic, and would no doubt add much to the prosperity of the faith in this section. Services will be held regularly each Sunday, at 9 a. m., until further notice.

GUARD THE TREES

Should be Protected From the Pest Without Delay.

Hundreds of maple trees in this section are dying—victims of the cottony maple scale. Unless they are protected, and at once, the beauty of the suburbs of this village will be ruined. Unless the trees are relieved of the parasite that is sucking their juices many of them will be dead before another summer.

J. W. Folsom, an experienced entomologist of the University of Illinois, has closely investigated the ravages of the cottony scale and advises the use of the following remedy:

Dissolve two pounds of soft soap in two gallons of soft water and then pour in two gallons of kerosene. Churn with a force pump or agitate with a paddle until a white, creamy mass forms on the top. This is the soap with the kerosene held in suspension. Then dilute, allowing two parts of soap to twenty of water, and apply with a spray pump, reaching every twig and leaf possible.

Save the trees which are of untold value to the beauty and comfort of our homes.

Don't think for a minute that the world owes you a living, young man. It was here long before your time, and is in a position to have you pinched for not keeping off the grass.

BARRINGTON HIGH SCHOOL

The Course Has Been Extended to Four Years—Great Addition to Our Educational Advantages.

The long-looked for and anxiously awaited improvement in the educational advantages of this village and vicinity is now a reality. The high school course has been extended to four years which places the school on a plane with the best in the northern tier of counties which rank in the highest grade. The eighth grade will hereafter be taught in connection with the high school, and will include one high school study. The high school department will, therefore, have the charge of five years school work. The eighth grade and three years high school will be offered during the coming school year in charge of two teachers, and thereafter this grade and four years high school in charge of three teachers.

The course recommended by the Illinois College for High Schools employing three teachers has been adopted, and enough alternation of branches arranged to reduce the total number of daily recitations to nineteen, 8th to 12th years inclusive.

The Barrington Cornet band furnished musical selections, the young and old tried their luck at the fish pond and everybody ate ice cream and cake.

The proceeds were for the monument fund, which is growing, thanks to the earnest efforts of the W. R. C.

WINE WAS "ON THE HOUSE."

Eugene Field Drank After Settling His Bar Bill.

While Eugene Field, the doing newspaper writer, was, as always, apocynous. Two friends from St. Joe dropped in on him one day, and "Gene," being penniless and hospitable, tried to borrow money enough from a fellow-member of the News staff to treat them in proper style, but was able to raise only 30 cents. Taking his friends to a well known saloon, where he had an account of long standing, he ordered a bottle of champagne.

The proprietor took him aside and remonstrated: "Don't make your order so expensive, Gene," he said. "You owe me already $44.60, and, while I don't expect ever to get the money, you're a good fellow, and bring us a good deal of trade, so I'll make small additions to the bill, but I can't stand champagne."

"You'll get your money all right," Field told him, rather indignantly. "Pshaw! I'd take care for the bill any time," responded the proprietor, whereupon Field took him at his word and made him produce a receipt statement of the account, and accept a quarter in return, the proprietor rather relishing the joke.

"Now," said Field, "when a gentleman settles an account of this size, $44.60, it's customary for the house to set them out. We'll take champagne."

The champagne was forthcoming.

DEMAND FACTS

About What You Eat.

When it comes to food, demand to know the facts about what goes into your stomach.

Not only is it pure, but that you are not deceived in the description of its contents and condition. Some faked breakfast foods that have thus far failed are now being advertised in close imitation of the Grape-Nuts advertising, thinking in that way to finally make a success of the failure.

But false statements of the merits of human food will never on earth build up a business. The faked foods are not pre-digested. They are not fully cooked and the starch in them is starch still, and has not been turned to sugar in the digestive tract.

Chemical analysis tells the truth and the analysis of the famous chemists of the world show Grape-Nuts the only prepared breakfast food in which the starch is fully digested and barley has been transformed into sugar and therefore ready for immediate digestion. Why is this true? All the starch in the faked foods are made by soaking the grain in water, then rolling, drying and packing. These operations do not cook or pre-digest the starch.

CORN CONDITION IS SATISFACTORY

Favorable Weather Tends to Cause Rapid Growth of Plants.

SPRING WHEAT FILLING WELL

Early Sown is Maturing in South Dakota and Wisconsin, While the Crop is Nearly Ready to Cut in Iowa—Little Damage From Rust.

Washington dispatch: A general summary of the weekly crop report of the weather bureau follows:

Although it was excessively hot and dry in part of the middle Atlantic states and Kentucky and Tennessee during the early part of the week ended July 24, and these conditions also prevailed in the northern plateau region and on the North Pacific coast, as a rule temperatures were favorable. Showers delayed work and caused some damage to crops in Virginia, West Virginia, portions of the lower Ohio, Central and lower Mississippi valleys, Oklahoma and Texas, while rain is needed in New England, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Kansas, and generally throughout the plateau district.

Corn in Fine Condition. Favorable weather has caused rapid growth of corn, and with few exceptions the crop is in excellent condition. Corn is beginning to need rain in Kansas and Alabama, the late needs cultivation in Arkansas and Kentucky, and some was damaged by high winds in Louisiana.

Winter wheat harvesting is nearly completed in the principal wheat states, and thrashing, which is well advanced, shows grain of good yield and quality in Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and Nebraska, with fair yield and good quality in Kansas. Rains have delayed thrashing in Virginia and Maryland and caused further damage to grain in shock or stack in Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas. On the North Pacific coast winter wheat is ripening rapidly in full progress, and harvesting is general in Oregon, with good yields indicated.

Little Damage From Rust. Spring wheat has continued to advance favorably in the spring wheat regions. The early sown is headed and filling well and the late-sown is heading in North Dakota; the early is heading in South Dakota and Wisconsin, and the crop is nearly ready to cut in Iowa. Although black rust is reported from scattered localities in Minnesota and the Dakotas, no material damage is shown, and with favorable weather conditions serious injury is not expected. Complaints of smut are received from South Dakota, Colorado and some of the northwestern states of North Dakota and Minnesota, while in Washington devastating winds have been injurious to the crop in the filling stage and have caused shriveling.

In the principal oat-producing states harvesting of this crop is well advanced, while in the more northerly districts oats are heading. The early sown are maturing rapidly and harvesting will be general during the coming week. The crop generally is in promising condition, although badly lodged in Ohio, and some complaints of smut are received from Minnesota and the Dakotas, no material damage is shown, and with favorable weather conditions serious injury is not expected. Complaints of smut are received from South Dakota, Colorado and some of the northwestern states of North Dakota and Minnesota, while in Washington devastating winds have been injurious to the crop in the filling stage and have caused shriveling.

BOILER BURSTS ON BENNINGTON

Thirty-Nine of Crew of United States Gunboat Are Instantly Killed.

NEARLY ONE HUNDRED HURT

Explosion, Coming Without Warning, Relentlessly Deals Death to Men on Vessel, Which Was About to Sail From San Diego.

San Diego, Cal., special: One of the main boilers in the United States gunboat Bennington, lying in San Diego harbor, exploded shortly before noon Friday, July 24, killing and maiming 114 among the 181 on board.

Thirty-six men and Ensign Newman K. Perry are known to be dead, seventy-eight wounded, and twenty-one missing. The total deaths as the result of the accident eventually will not be less than sixty.

The gunboat was badly shattered, a great hole being torn in the stern. It was beached to prevent sinking. The explosion was due to a weak boiler, the precarious condition of which has been well known for months, although an inspection a year ago resulted in a favorable report.

Commander Lucien Young had received orders from Washington to sail for Port Harford. He was on shore making final preparations for departure.

No Warning of Disaster. Steam was up, most of the men were on deck, and everything was in readiness for immediate sailing, when a deafening roar shook the earth for miles around.

The outbreak was accompanied by a roar as of thunder and a shock that rocked vessels nearby. In an instant the air was filled with shrieks and howls of pain, and the wreckage of flying fragments of human beings and pieces of the ship's superstructure.

The most moment bleeding sailors were fighting crippled, in the water, against death in only a less sudden form than that from which they had escaped, while rowboats, sailboats, launches and life rafts were hurled to the rescue as fast as arms, wind and steam could carry them.

Wounded Men on Deck. Most of the men on board were assembled below decks, about the boiler, when the explosion occurred. Here is where the most frightful slaughter took place. No one living has been able to describe what happened there, but the vivid memory of it is in the blood smeared walls. It is from between decks that most of the dead bodies have been taken.

A dozen or fifteen were blown overboard by the force of the terrific explosion. Capt. Wentworth, who was looking at the Bennington when the disaster occurred, says he saw human bodies hurled over a hundred feet upward.

The air was black with the smoke which enveloped the ship. When it cleared away only a few men could be seen on the decks while a number were drowning in the water. A boat was lowered from the vessel's side and most of them were picked up and taken on board.

Great Hole in Vessel. On board the ship, a terrible scene. The force of the explosion had torn a great hole in the starboard side of the ship and the vessel was already commencing to list. A section of the upper deck was carried away from stem to stern.

Blood and wreckage was distributed over the entire ship, the after cabin and the vicinity of the ship adjacent to the exploded boiler resembling a charnel house. Over it all hung the great cloud of white smoke, which drifted slowly toward the Coronado shore.

The shock of the explosion penetrated every section of the ship, wood and ashes being found as far as the stern of the captain's cabin. Portions of the upper deck were carried away and great damage was done in all sections.

Both officers and men who were not seriously injured acted heroically and promptly. Pumps were manned to keep the water from the upper compartments, the magazine flooded, and men fought their way through the steam into the darkened hold to rescue the trapped crew. In the worst danger, and when it was feared the ship would sink before it could be beached, the young officers and men stuck manfully to their posts.

Hundreds of small craft which dotted the bay hurried to the rescue. The ferryboat Ramona was coming across to San Diego, Capt. Bertelsen immediately gave orders to change the course of the boat, and instead of contacting his trip hurried to the aid of the stricken warship.

To Probe Fitter Plant. Philadelphia, Pa., dispatch: Mayor Weaver has appointed Maj. Cassius E. Giltie, corps of engineers, United States army, as a member of the commission to investigate cause of the explosion and to have them constructed.

Wabash Train Is Derailed. Buffalo, N. Y., dispatch: A Wabash passenger train was derailed three miles west of Buffalo Friday morning. Seven passengers were injured, none of them seriously.

PAPER MANUFACTURERS EMPLOY OLD TACTICS

Witnesses in Government Inquiry Make No Reply to Questions Bearing on Combination.

St. Paul, Minn., dispatch: Investigation of the business of the General Paper company was begun here Monday morning by Robert S. Taylor, special examiner appointed by the United States district court.

The tactics of the corporation were the same here as those adopted in the hearing at Milwaukee. J. G. Flinders, attorney for the paper company, instructed witnesses to refuse replies to all questions bearing on the existence of a combination or a conspiracy to equalize prices and fix prices.

Mr. Nelson of the General Paper company was the first witness called. He admitted that E. A. Edmunds, a partner in the Milwaukee mill, was a director of the General Paper company, but refused to answer as to Edmunds' activities. To every question asked that could by any possibility have borne on the issue under investigation, Mr. Nelson refused to reply.

MAKES BEST DOCTOR

MR. RAYSON PUBLISHES RESULTS OF VALUABLE EXPERIENCE.

A Former Prostrated Dyspeptic Has Now Relieved in Perfect Freedom From Miserie of Indigestion.

Thousands of sufferers know that the reason why they are irritable and depressed and nervous and sleepless is because their food does not digest, but how to get rid of this difficulty is the puzzling question.

Good digestion calls for strong digestive organs, and strength comes from a supply of good rich blood. For this reason Mr. Rayson took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for the cure of indigestion.

"They have been my best doctor," he says. "I was suffering from dyspepsia. The pains in my stomach after meals were almost unbearable. My sleep was very restless, my complexion was sallow. As the result of using eight boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, about the merits of which I learned from friends in France, I have escaped all these troubles, and am able again to take pleasure in eating."

A very simple story, but if it had not been for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills it might have been a sad one. When discomfort begins with eating, bills up the intervals between meals with pain, and prevents sleep at night, there certainly cannot be much pleasure in living. A final general breaking down must be merely a question of time.

Mr. Joseph Rayson, a native of Alsace-Lorraine, France, but now resides at No. 1024 Lehigh Street, San Francisco, Cal. He is one of a great number who can testify to the remarkable efficacy of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the treatment of chronic indigestion.

If you would get rid of nausea, pain or burning in the stomach, vertigo, nervousness, insomnia, or any of the other miseries of a dyspeptic, get rid of the weakness of the digestive organs by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They are sold by druggists everywhere.

Proper diet is, of course, a great aid in forwarding recovery, and a little book, "What to Eat and How to Eat," may be obtained by anyone who makes a request for it by writing to the Dr. Williams Medical Co., Schenectady, N. Y. This valuable little book contains an important chapter on the simplest means for the cure of constipation.

Husband's Serious Mistake. Gov. McLean of New Hampshire was talking about Henry James' criticism of American speech.

"I don't know how far James wants us to use the broad 'A,'" he said, "and to talk in every way like Oxford graduates. The broad 'A' is all very well and good, but Oxford graduates talk more musically, so much more than the native Point Rock. At the same time it was through the cultivation of this English way of speaking that my best friend and I have been able to get on so well, through divorce, not through death."

"She had made one day some biscuits and at dinner that night she said in her cultivated way: 'I made a big batch of these biscuits.'"

"You did, indeed, dear," said my friend, her husband.

"How do you know how big a batch I made?" she asked, surprised.

"I thought," he murmured, "that you said 'batch'."

LID IS ON TIGHT AT BREESE

Balloon-keepers and Horsemen Arrested for Violating Sunday Law.

The lid is on at Brees, and there is much excitement in town. The population is almost entirely German and it will take time for the citizens to become reconciled.

The agitation was caused by the arrest of Benjamin Brees, a saloon-keeper, for selling intoxicants on Sunday. He was convicted and fined. This incensed him and he attacked the Brees Driving association which, it is alleged, has permitted liquor to be sold on its premises on Sunday.

Brees telegraphed Governor Deussen that the races were to take place Sunday and he wanted him to instruct Sheriff Hagen to enforce the statutes as to betting and selling intoxicants on Sunday. A telegram was accordingly sent by Governor Deussen to the sheriff who declined to do so. He will receive it in time to take action. He was kept busy today serving summonses.

The secretary of the park association was arrested. He pleaded guilty and agreed to obey the law. Brees next proceeded to file complaints against several saloon-keepers for selling liquor on Sunday. The saloon-keepers pleaded guilty before a justice of the peace and were fined one cent and costs.

Bloomington's First Building Was Associated With Lincoln and Others.

Bloomington's most interesting building, the first house built and the oldest court house in the state, was burned at daybreak July 22. The fire was probably due to followers of a street car who had been sleeping in the building. The structure was erected in 1821 by James Allis, and served as a courthouse for ten years or more. Lincoln, Street, Davis and many of the most famous lawyers of the pioneer era practiced there, and the structure was rich in historical associations. It had been deserted for the past fifteen years and was in a state of decay. It was a memorial and museum in Miller park had been agitated of late.

State's Attorney Tecklenburg gave the St. Clair county board, in session at Belleville, his opinion on assessing property with a local capital stock of corporations, which the township assessors failed to assess. Certain corporations, it is claimed, which are declared to be exempt from taxation on their capital stock by a recent enactment of the legislature, were overlooked by the assessors. Mr. Tecklenburg holds it is the duty of the board to assess these, as the law under which they would have been exempt was not effective until July 1, and that the work of the local assessors should have been completed and returns made prior to June 1.

There are three centers above Canal street and one in Algiers, all traceable to the French market district.

These regulations provide that vessels from foreign American ports shall remain six days at sea, and be fumigated at the port of departure and on arrival here after the discharge of the cargo.

Kills and Lampreys.

Among the very best things that Ireland sends to help towards the feeding of the five million inhabitants in London is the greatly appreciated silver eel. An old London dish is an eel pie, and the thought of it carries one back to the English history of how King Henry I. died because he ate too many lampreys. For some reason, perhaps for fear of a similar temptation, the lamprey eel seems to have vanished from the market, and the memory of it is only occasionally revived by a newspaper paragraph stating that Gloucester has sent a River Severn lamprey pie to the King. The lamprey is a river eel. It makes its breeding beds of gravel in the center of the stream; but the silver eel breeds in the sea, and goes up to the big lakes to grow and feed. It is when this silver-coated creature is running in shoals down Irish rivers during the dark nights of October and November to the sea that it is caught and preserved in perforated wooden tanks in order to be sent in continuation to the English market.

The rivers where these fish thrive are those which flow in great lakes; and Ireland is rich in great lakes; and rapid rivers, which rush like torrents to the sea, before reaching the parts only for salmon, trout, and eels.

Especially for Women.

Champion, Mich., July 24th.—(Special)—A case of special interest to women is that of Mrs. A. Wellet, wife of a well known photographer here. It is best given in her own words.

"I had not since my feet were cold and my limbs cramped," Mrs. Wellet states. "I had an awful hard pain across my kidneys. I had to get up three or four times in the night. I was very nervous and fearfully despondent."

"I had been troubled in this way for five years when I commenced to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I had been told that they would cure me, and I felt better than I have in years."

Women's ills are caused by Diseased Kidneys; that's why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills always cure them.

In Toy's Predicament.

Jo Toy, in the expressive language of the streets, is "up against it." Despite his name he is an American-born citizen, as he has proved. Unfortunately, however, he traveled in China and on his return was excluded by the immigration official on the ground of being a Chinese. He was held in a Chinese prison for several days, and after appeals to the courts have availed him nothing. He went to China, and therefore he is a Chinese. Shades of the fourteenth amendment! It is possible that a colored gentleman born in America who had already sailed for this port before the quarantine was declared. These regulations provide that vessels from foreign American ports shall remain six days at sea, and be fumigated at the port of departure and on arrival here after the discharge of the cargo.

Dr. Souchon after the conference decided to put the regulations into immediate effect, and so instructed the quarantine officers.

CHANGED HUSBAND.

Wife Made Wise Change in Food.

Change of diet is the only way to really cure stomach and bowel trouble. A woman says:

"My husband had dyspepsia when we were married and had suffered from it for several years. It was almost impossible to find anything he could eat without bad results. I thought he was largely due to the use of coffee and persuaded him to discontinue it. He did so, and began to drink Postum Food Coffee. The change did him good from the beginning, his digestion improved; he suffered much less from his nervousness, and when he added Grape-Nuts food to his diet he soon entirely overcame his trouble. My friend, Mrs. Chickburg (my former home) had become a nervous wreck also from dyspepsia. Medicines had no effect, neither did I ever help her. On my last visit home some months ago, I persuaded her to use Grape-Nuts food. She was in despair, and consented. She stuck to it until it restored her health so completely that she is now the most enthusiastic friend of Grape-Nuts that I ever knew. She eats it with cream or dry, takes her coffee with the packages, keeps it in her room and eats it whenever she feels like it."

"I began eating Grape-Nuts food, myself, when my baby was two months old, and I don't know what should have done without it. My appetite was gone, I was weak and nervous and afforded but very little room for the child. When I added Grape-Nuts food, which I soon grew very fond of, and the baby grew healthy, rosy and beautiful as a mother could wish. It is two years old now and eats Grape-Nuts food himself. I wish every tired young mother knew of the good that Grape-Nuts would do her."

RICH FARMER ATTACKS BOY

Plunges Times of Pitchfork Into Abdomen of Guest of His Son.

OVERDOVE FAVORITE TEAM

Youths Had Abused Span of Horses, Which He Enraged the Elder Man That He Bought to Inflict Punishment.

Chicago, July 27.—Enraged because his son and a young chum overdove one of his teams, Henry Chester, the wealthiest farmer of Lake county, Indiana, plunged a pitchfork into the abdomen of Thomas H. McCain, the friend of his son, Charles, throwing the youth to the ground mortally wounded.

The wealthy old man is in jail at Crown Point.

McCain, who is nineteen years old, was hired at Seventh street and Jackson Park boulevard, Chicago, is dying.

The elderly farmer, in his fury, after the boys had brought him his favorite driving span cruelly overdriven, seized the pitchfork and lunged at them frantically.

Angry Man Uses Pitchfork.

The time of the pitchfork went through McCain's wrist, and a second thrust buried the fork in his abdomen.

Charles Chester was the only witness to the fight. With his father in jail and his chum dying, he must decide for sire or friend in his sworn testimony on the tragic affair.

The attack occurred on the great Chester farm, famed through northern Illinois, which lies but a few miles from Hammond, Ind.

Young McCain was enjoying farm life as the father of his chum. The boys went driving with the two fast trotters of the elder Chester. It is said they took the horses without permission.

Boys Mistreat Horses.

The animals were ready to drop with fatigue and were covered with lather when the boys drove into the farmyard last Saturday afternoon after a day of wild speed.

The elderly Chester rushed to the carriage in horror. He accused McCain of leading his son into overdriving the team. Young Chester defended his friend and said the blame was all his own.

The boys are said to have tried to drive the horses away while they were unattended, but he stood by denouncing them, and then followed them to the barn.

There was a violent quarrel at the barn door. Without warning, the old man grabbed a large pitchfork and lunged at the boys. They jumped aside, but the blades pierced Mr. McCain's hand, tearing the flesh and holding him from flight. The second thrust in the abdomen sent him to the ground writhing.

State's Attorney Bremer of Lake County was notified by telephone and hurried to the Chester ranch. The elder Chester was in his house, and quietly submitted to arrest by the officers.

Young Chester stayed by the side of his dying friend, trying to staunch the flow of blood from the wound on his body. Physicians were summoned, but they gave McCain small chance to live.

However, the wealthy farmer, who is one of the most widely known men of that section, will be held in jail at Crown Point until the fate of McCain is known.

Poetry That Turned to Gold.

Lord Rosseter has a knack of saying things political and otherwise which are out of the ordinary and recently launched a couple of discussions on the subject of earnings of poets. He pointed out that Tom Moore received 15,000 guineas or about $70,000 for "Lalla Rookh" ninety years ago. The common idea of the typical poet is that he lives in an attic and dines off a crust. Moore could have maintained a regiment of his fellow rhymers in luxury and lived like a prince himself, for he was paid $75,000 for his "Irish Melodies," which was a good deal of money for anybody to get hold of in one lump at the beginning of the nineteenth century.

Byron received $15,000 for "Don Juan" and $20,000 for "Childe Harold," and he was a poet who didn't "need the money," for he was a poet of fortune anyway. But poor Milton took $25 down and the promise of $75 for the second and third editions of "Paradise Lost," and Gray gave away his "Elegy" because he thought a gentleman could not take money for verse. As the rewards for poetry go, it would seem that Scott was well paid when he received $5,000 for "Marmion" and $10,000 for "The Lady of the Lake," but "The Pleasures of Memory" brought its author $20,000. In those days poets of fame often received from $5,000 to $15,000 for poems before they were written.

Evidently the name behind the poem counted for as much in the days of Moore, Byron and Scott as in more modern times. Tennyson received $25,000 a year for the privilege of one publication of his poems. Before fame caught him up, Longfellow sold poems for $15 and $20 each and never made as high as $3,000 in any one year from his verse. Ordinarily a poet is lucky in having verses printed at all, but when a publisher wants a star production fancy prices rise, as was the case when a magazine paid $150 for 108 lines to a poet now living. The same magazine paid Kipling $7.50 a word for a short poem.

Higher Education and Crime.

To whom it may concern: "Fifty years ago schools were supposed to free us from crime and all forms of unwholesomeness and evil. We do not indulge in any such sanguine hopes at present, for the schools and colleges merely aggravate the evils instead of curing them. It is true that higher education has freed us from the more brutal forms of crime, but the very education itself has put even meaner crimes in our way."

So speaks Professor William James of Harvard.

It is difficult to believe that Professor James is merely springing a sensation or really advises a "holdup" on higher education. With the opportunities for cheap education the person of degenerate tendencies has a chance to add to his tools of mischief. He would have to be a criminal anyway, and is perhaps a little more dangerous when educated than he would have been if left ignorant. But honest youths must have education, and the influence of good homes can be trusted to keep them from taking harm out of their promiscuous association at college or putting their knowledge into schemes that are crooked.

The Dogs and the Bones.

It was assumed months ago that one of the prizes which must fall to Japan if she kept up her victories and dictated terms of peace would be Sakhalin Island, off the east coast of Siberia and owned by Russia since 1875. Japan having seized the island, it can no longer figure as a Russian asset when settlement is made. Sakhalin belongs geographically and geologically to the Japanese archipelago, and the Japs were forced out by the usual Russian methods.

China has declared that she will insist that Manchuria be returned to her by the joint action of Russia and Japan, so that Russia will have no grievance to hark back to in that quarter. Korea remains to Japan, but she already had rights there, and with Manchuria in the hands of China it is of little consequence to Russia who controls the Hermit Kingdom. Unless she gets a money indemnity or the cession of original Russian territory Japan will have little to show as the trophies of her costly victories. If the Japs are satisfied to take their pay in mere glory they may well call the fight off before the under dog is quite dead.

It is said that General Horace Porter, the finder of the body of Paul Jones, is going to take up the hunt for the long lost Republican majority in the municipal politics of New York. The city hasn't had a strictly Republican mayor in over thirty years.

However widely the teachers of the country disagreed at the recent national convention regarding the problems of lessons, the rod and so on, they were practically of one mind on the propriety of Teachers should have a fairer of salary.

Among other modern institutions scrapers are barred out of Russian cities for the time being. Building laws for cities limit the height of buildings to the width of the street upon which they are erected.

The North-Western Line.

One of the most interesting series of articles on the subject of the great railroads of the country that has appeared recently, is that from the pen of Frank H. Spearman, recently published in the Saturday Evening Post, and since printed in book form by Scribner's. The chapter descriptive of the Chicago & Northwestern Ry. has been published by the passenger department of that line in pamphlet form for general distribution, and will be sent to any address on receipt of 2 cents in postage.

Preventions of Suffocation.

Two devices recently tested in Europe and found practical for preventing suffocation by poisonous gases are likely to come into general use. One of the new inventions regenerates the exhaled air and enables a man to work in poisonous air. Two types of this invention are made, one of which is so simple that a miner may carry it with him into a mine.

The second device is based on the well known principle of the apparent variation in weight of a body when it is plunged into ordinary air and into gases of different density. This invention sets a bell ringing in the room or at a distance if necessary and also by means of an electric spring opens a window.

when John Hay was minister to England were offered by the doorkeeper with the remark, "I can't say it's in air; it's in and out so quiet-like." This was a trait known to Lincoln. Hay's chief of early days. Officials in the departments would often look up casually from their work to find the president looking quietly on, he having slipped in without the slightest warning. And he would disappear in the same informal way.

The pointed crown of the statue of Liberty in New York harbor interferes with the transmission of wireless messages across the bay. Now let the irrefragable inventor contrive some way out of the difficulty without telling the Liberty lady to "move on."

An ungallant act—that of P. Marlon Crawford putting out a new book at this time. It was Marie Corelli's turn to get that sort of free advertisement.

Land Grabbing in America. Foreign landholders is reaching out its tentacles in the direction of the United States. An English syndicate owns a vast tract in Wisconsin, a London lord it over 25,000 acres in Kansas and an English land company owns 50,000 acres in Arkansas. In West Virginia one proprietor from Halifax controls 90,000 acres. Recently a Scotch syndicate bought 50,000 acres in Florida. Throughout the cat grazing region 7,000,000 acres are owned by two foreign syndicates located in Holland and Germany. Altogether it is said there are 20,000,000 acres of American land owned by foreign landholders.

It has always been the boast of America that it was a land of small proprietors, but things are changing. After the French revolution the land went into the hands of the people, but the small holding of the peasant farmers under the first and second empires have passed to a great extent into the hands of capitalists, and feudalism practically exists there as it did before 1789. It has been shown recently by a student of French society that the great mass of the peasantry of the country are tenants or hired laborers. Although they live in the most primitive homes and exercise the greatest economy, they are practically chained to a condition of serfdom and are tied to the land as much as their ancestors were.

In this country we have cheap land and high industrial wages. The people abandon the land for the attraction of industrial centers. This is to be regretted if it results in turning the land over to absentee landholders, who have no interest in the welfare of the country beyond squeezing out a revenue, as was the case before our own revolution.

Inventing as a Business. The struggling inventor who toils in obscurity and poverty and with rare exceptions dies miserably is not the creative genius of this age, according to Frederic Strother, who writes in the World's Work on the profession of inventing. Says this writer:

The great majority of practical inventions are made by a group of men of whom the public never hears. These men are members of one of the most complicated and highly organized of the modern professions. Every great manufacturing concern maintains, under one name or another, an "inventions department," employing men who are paid various salaries simply to develop inventions. They are supplied with every mechanical appliance to facilitate their work, the bills are paid by the company and every invention they make is assigned to the company "in consideration of salary and fee."

Mr. Strother names an electric company which employs a corps of 800 experts to develop new ideas and expend annually $2,500,000 in this department. The inventions belong to the company, and the inventor gets nothing beyond his salary.

There is still room for the free lance inventor, and fortune awaits the discoverer of a trolley that will not jump from the wire. In a simpler field there are needed a perfect solder and cuff button, a music leaf turner and a simple lock for the nut on a bolt.

The Kaiser's Old Fashioned Army. A military expert who has made a careful study of the armies of Germany and France as they are today is inclined to the opinion that France can contemplate a war with Germany without falling into a panic. He says that Germany's military power has increased since she drubbed the French in 1870, yet her system has changed but little. The German troops carry a good rifle, but their field gun is inferior to that of the French. The strength of the two armies is about the same numerically, and Germany has the most robust elements of the nation with the colors.

Germany's source of real weakness, this authority holds, lies in her officers' corps. The officers belong to a special class and are very exclusive. The men are intelligent and trained to take their own initiative, but during a battle the gaps in the ranks of officers cannot readily be filled. On the other hand, the French soldiers who came to the field in 1870 made a most heroic fight after the imperial army had been shattered. France is a republic, and Democratic ideas pervade the army, but in Germany the autocratic will of the Kaiser dominates the establishment, and the military ideals are those of the past.

Just about the time that the remains of Paul Jones were delivered to the American fleet there was a naval mutiny with other strange doings in the Black sea. It is interesting to recall that Russia's only real naval victory was won in the Black sea when Paul Jones, at the head of the fleet of Alexander I., smashed the power of the Turk in those waters.

I was all run down from nervousness and overwork and had to resign my position and take a rest. I found that I was not gaining my strength and health as fast as I could wish, and as your Wine of Cardui was recommended as such a good medicine for the ill of our kind, I bought a bottle and began to use it. I was satisfied with the results from the use of the first bottle, and I bought a second and then found I was restored to good health and strength and able to take up my work with renewed vigor. I consider it a tonic and excellent for worn-out, nervous condition, and an all-around tonic.

WINE OF CARDUI

WINE FROM NEAR THE POLE

Bottle Still Contains Liqueur That Greely Left—Pearly to Drink It. Perhaps the most remarkable bottle of liquor in the world in many respects was exhibited at a general meeting of the Peary Arctic Club in New York the other night. It was left in the snow at Fort Conger by the ill-fated Greely expedition, and it was unexpectedly produced by Herbert L. Bridgman, secretary of the club, says the New York Times.

Commander Robert E. Peary, who will again try to find the north pole, found the bottle, which is uncracked and full of ancient white Chartreuse, in 1908, where the Greely expedition had left it with other supplies that had to be forsaken. One year later he reached Grinnell Land and left it in a cask addressed "Herbert L. Bridgman." He tied a tendon of a walrus around the middle of the bottle and placed a letter inside the band. This is the letter as preserved by Mr. Bridgman:

Grinnell Land, Nov. 1908. My Dear Bridgman—Don't think I have found a bar of soap, but a couple of bottles of spirits includes such delicious liqueurs and the wherewithal for mixed drinks. When I reached Fort Conger last June I found one bottle of Chartreuse. The contents may be good, bad or indifferent, but they have lain within 50 miles of the pole for eighteen years and for eighteen times have been colder than I hope you ever see in DEAR.

The bottle was exhibited at a family party at the Hamilton club, Brooklyn. Among those present were Mrs. Bridgman, who has been a worldwide traveler, as well as Mrs. Peary and Mr. Bonnell, one of the survivors of the Greely expedition.

Mr. Bridgman said he would open the bottle when Peary returned from his search for the pole.

Education Was the Jack Pot.

On a warm and sultry day two troops were playing a game of poker behind a haystack. One of them dealt.

"What are you going to bet?" he asked the other.

"I've got a pretty good hand, so I'll open the jack pot for a hundred dollars."

"All right. I'll see that and raise you a thousand."

"Good! I'll just make it a million dollars."

"I'll see your million and, just to make it interesting, I'll raise you a trillion dollars."

"What?" You must have a good hand, but I'll stay and go just a quadrillion better."

The other tramp hesitated and looked at his cards intently. Finally he said:

"The pot is yours. You win on education."

you have gobbled up every one of that last batch."

The brute was staggered, but only for a moment. "Yes, my dear," he answered, calmly, "but why? I know that I can't eat them, but our poor little baby would insist on having some. And, rather than have the child poisoned, I took the awful risk of inviting you to devour them myself. You evidently do not understand, my dear, that I am a self-sacrificing parent!"

The silence that ensued was only broken by a crashing sound as of an empty doughnut dish breaking upon a human head—Cleveland Leader.

Not Cross His Memorial.

At Bromley-by-Bow, Eng., is a public house with the sign of The Widow's Son, and there a curious old custom is maintained. Once the tavern was kept by a widow with an only son. He started on a sea voyage on a Good Friday, and promised that he would be home by that day in the following year. He did not come, but for years the mother kept her promise to prepare the mother cross bun for his return. Each year she lived the anxious mother observed the custom, which has been maintained by successive hosts and hostesses of the inn ever since. Now, as for long time past, "within the chamber which may be seen old cotten rafters with buns hung up between."

That is a fine brand of Camembert cheese can be made in the United States as that sent here from France, which heretofore has been the only country to successfully make the famous edible, will come as joyful tidings to lovers of the creamy dish. It will also be great news to farmers and dairymen for they will have a new market for their surplus milk supply. For many months experiments in making the Camembert have been going on in the agricultural experiment station at Storrs, Conn., and it was announced recently that success had crowned the efforts.

Together they were put into the same hospital room. UNITED STATES SENATORSHIP

The Springfield Evening News of July 5, contains the following editorial in the interest of Senator Cullom.

It contains the reasons why the News advocates his return to the Senate:

It has not often happened in Illinois that a man has been elected or re-elected to the United States senate without contest. So exalted a honor will ever be eagerly sought so long as men are ambitious for political distinction. Illinois has never been lacking in ambitious men. Several times the state has been a great political battle-ground, some of its senatorial and gubernatorial contests have become historic.

The term of Senator Cullom expires March 4, 1907. It is assumed that Mr. Cullom will be a candidate for re-election. The senator himself has not said so publicly. It ought not to be necessary for him to say so. It may be taken for granted that he cherishes an ambition to remain in the senate and thus to round out a career that already has made his fame secure.

It is said that other men think the senior senator has held the office long enough, and that he ought to give a chance. Quite likely. Several gentlemen, all more or less distinguished in public life, are reputed to have an intention of becoming candidates against him. That is their unquestioned privilege. They violate neither the constitution of the United States nor the ethics of politics. From the personal view point this paper has no criticism to offer. Indeed, we shall hope, at some future time, to be able to chronicle the election of one or more of those gentlemen to the senate of the United States.

But the issue in the impending senatorial contest is not a personal one. It is the real question is, Can the state of Illinois afford to dispense with the services of Senator Cullom so long as he remains able and willing to serve the state? Not many other states command the attention and adherence of the national capital that are accorded Illinois. No other state is so successful a factor in shaping the legislation and the destinies of the nation. Even the enemies of Senator Cullom must acknowledge that the prestige of Illinois at Washington is due in large part to the distinguished position he occupies in the senate and the influence he exerts in that body and at the White House.

Years must pass before a new man can attain and considerable degree of influence in the senate. It was so with Senator Cullom himself when he first entered that body rich upon a quarter of a century ago. It must be so with any man who does not inherit the force of a senator. Why, then, should Illinois at this time send to Washington a new senator to founder through a half-dozen years little more than a mere spectator?

Never before has this nation held so conspicuous a place on the world stage. The chairmanship of the committee on foreign relations is the most important position in the senate, and that is held by Senator Cullom. There are some mighty good men in Illinois—brilliant, resourceful, able men. But look the state over—search the cities and the broad prairies—and where do you find a man who, if senator, would be placed in the next decade at the head of its most important committee, and whose personal influence would equal or surpass that of any other senator?

Scores of things are to be said to the credit of Senator Cullom. Other men may rightfully claim to be more "efficient," but few can show proof of having in so large a measure those qualities of great statesmanship—sound common sense, astute diplomacy, safe judgment, boundless industry and unquenchable energy—that have made him a long public career, has made few mistakes; and he has never felt the breath of official scandal.

Ably yet Illinois is not lacking in good and able men. You have but to wait the brush and they come trooping out. But great senators—men who are able to have a potent voice in the affairs of the greatest nation of the earth—are scarce. That is why Senator Cullom ought to be re-elected. It is a conclusive reason why no other man should be seriously considered for United States senator from Illinois for the term beginning March 4, 1907.

CHAPTER IV.

An Important Clue.
For about a year Lang served his apprenticeship under the instruction of Denver. He became known as a suspicious character, and his past was raked up in great shape, not to his credit to be sure. Through the process of appearing "fishy" of the money one day and on "his uppers" the next he got the reputation of being "crooked," or at least "sporty," which in some circles are considered synonymous.

Lang one evening was strolling down Clark street rather aimlessly, swaggering as if under the influence of strong drink, when he was approached by a rather freshly dressed man who demanded rather abruptly: "If your name is Lang, I want to speak with you."

Louis did not start nor hesitate, his year of schooling had prepared him to be too ready to admit to a man against surprise of this kind. There was no known reason why he should not admit that LANG was his true name, but "insistent" warned him not to be too ready to admit to a man who followed Denver's advice and traveled under the alias of "Smith," though there had never been any attempt at dropping his real identity, for that character was absolutely necessary to the case in hand. "My name is Smith—George Smith," he answered, composedly.

The man shrugged his shoulders incredulously. "You are acquainted with Denver?" he asked.

Louis now recognized the questioner as Regan, the detective, against whom he had been especially warned by Denver. "Denver," queried Lang, as if trying to refresh his memory, and his speech was varied now and then by a half-suppressed blinch. "Seems to me I've heard the name before," he said.

"Well, Lang," continued Regan in a positive tone, "Denver wants to see you."

"S-say, wot're you lookin' fer?"

"If your name is Lang, I want to speak to you." Louis stared up as if angry at Regan's persistence. "Didn't I just tell you my name was Smith?" He stopped walking, and with a derisive gesture he threw off the detective's hand, which had been resting rather familiarly on his arm, staggering backward as he did so as if losing his balance. "Dye want to insult me? It was a very good example of drunken and off-ended dignity.

"You're a good one," exclaimed the detective in evident admiration. "But it won't work, I know you are a Larry and you may as well own up to it. Jim is lying at the point of death and wants to see you."

The mistake would have been costly had Louis acknowledged that he and Denver were on friendly terms. Lang thought deeply, while apparently attempting to straighten himself up from the position his drunken actions had placed him. "If Jim really wants me, I will see him later. But I must not give myself away to this man under any circumstances—leastwise my secret bond." Baffled, the Regan knew him in his double role of himself and Smith, and also that he had been recognized as a visitor in Denver's office at least, he essayed to work a dodge on him to throw him from the scent. "Let the d—d scoundrel die! What do I care?"

"So you admit you know him? You are Lang, then?"

"I may be Lang, and I may be Smith, but it is as George Smith I owe Jim Denver a grudge—and George Smith never forgets a wrong! With all his shrewdness, all his cunning, Denver has never penetrated my disguise. D—him! I'll be even with him yet, if he don't die too soon!" Then as if recollecting himself, he suddenly asked, "Who are you?"

"My name is Regan, and I am a detective," the man admitted without hesitation.

"And who is Regan?" asked Lang, puzzling his brain to connect some story of a plausible man to tell him in reference to the "great wrong" done himself by Denver.

"Then Denver's side partner."

"What do you want of me? You can see that Denver don't want to see me!"

struggle that he managed to keep from going to sleep.

"Why should I be?" asked Lang. "You admit that Denver is not a friend of yours. Being only a private detective, you can only send me into your private sweatbox, where your enemy would release me."

"Who said anything about my being an enemy of Jim's?"

"You just said so! You would rattle him if you could."

"So I would, the d—d police!" "Ough!" said Louis, to himself, "this police officer talks against his kind—he speaks like a thief! This man is either playing me for a fool to trap me, or he is an honest fellow. I am glad that Denver is here to hear the declaration." Aloud he said, "Why don't you ruin him?"

"I'd do it quick enough if I got the chance! But he is too d—d honest to give me an opening."

This admission was a relief to Louis. If Denver was an honest man, then everything was all right for him. The young man blurted out, "You are smarter than I am, yet I have found—"

"Louis was dangling the tempting bait before the hungry fish's eye, and when about to give a sibilant the tempting morsel was withdrawn. "Have found what?" Regan brightened up from his half-drunken lethargy.

Louis saw the opening and was not hot shot; he was himself astonished at the mere thought of it. "Nothing," he said exasperatingly. "But I have come to the conclusion, Regan, that you wouldn't arrest a thief even if you caught him in the act with the swag in his hands! It was a bold insinuation."

Regan flushed up as if ashamed of the insinuation. "I get the 'swag' whether I get the man or not!" That was a sufficient excuse for him.

"You are smarter than I can believe!" said Lang highly elated at the coup.

The intoxicated detective smiled with an idiotic smirk. "Yes," he said, "I have nearly enough to leave the business on. One more haul and I am off!"

"Or where?" and Louis bit his tongue to keep from seeming expectant. "Not the C. C. T."

"The C. C. T.," straightening up again. "But who are you that gives the sign of the society?"

"Oh, I'm one of the boys," replied Lang. "Here, waiter," he cried to hide his agitation. "Two glasses of beer."

Denver had evidently heard enough. He realized that Louis was the master of Regan in the pumping art, so rather than jeopardize his position now by having the treacherous detective discover that he was being overheard by his rival he quietly arose from his seat, going to the rear of the saloon, where he was accustomed to hang out.

Louis continued to converse for a moment even after drinking that which had been ordered.

"You are one of the boys, eh?" queried Regan. "Then you are a game man I'm looking for. I have a game on hand that I need assistance in; are you with me?"

"Am I with you? Well, you can bet your sweet existence that I am! But don't you think that we will be overheard here. Hadn't we better get a room where we can have privacy?"

And then he extended himself for a moment to retire to the rear ostensibly to make arrangements for a room, but in reality to meet Denver.

"Is Regan playing me or is he really on the 'cougar,'" asked Lang. "Not he, in earnest! Work him for all he is worth! This is certainly a masterpiece! We play the game of our lives today to win or lose a fortune. At last, he has the real clue as to the existence of the country!"

THE WEDDING AS HE SAW IT.

Half Faded Recollections Revived in Brain of Widow's Eldest Boy.

It was the youngest widow's wedding day, and the sun and moon were shining brightly in the brain of her oldest, a bright chap of eight. He had wondered much at the sewing that had been in progress for weeks past.

His mother had kissed him tearfully and then retired into seclusion. Then, after he had been dressed—a mere incidental matter—he was told to be good and keep quiet and not give any trouble.

The appearance of his grandmothers and aunts was also suggestive. Of course, there were a good many other people, and he recognised therein a large number of the most past experiences, but he looked out of the window and chanced to see the clergyman arrive, carrying a small black leather valise.

Then he heard the word passed around that the "doctor" had come—the clergyman was a D. D.—and then he was sure that he was on the right track.

He at once sidled up to one of the youngest and prettiest of his aunts, and remarked to her in that style of whisper which always concentrates attention:

"Do you, dear?" said the pretty aunt. "What do you know?"

"I know what is going to happen. I'm going to have a new brother or sister before he or she comes in with his big bag that he carries there in. You can't fool me."

His memory had been going back to the birth of his youngest sister, except about a year and a half before, and the explanations that had been made him at that time.

FREE LAND FOR SETTLERS

Western Canada To-Day the Country of Opportunity for Millions

He would have been called a dreamer of the most imaginative class who, thirty-five years ago, when the Northwest country became a possession of Canada, provided the present prosperity in the lapse of so short a period of time. Three transcontinental railways have been financed through the ample assurance there is business in the west to warrant the construction, and resources to liquidate the consequent indebtedness.

Manitoba in the eastern portion of the country was created a province a year after the purchase from the Hudson Bay Company in 1870. In 1882, the western country was tapped by the extended main line of the C. P. R. That year also territorial government was established, the remaining outlying country being converted into four territories—Alberta, Assiniboia, Saskatchewan and Athabasca—while the north-western portion of the country was reserved for all at Regina. The few thousand people of the early days have grown into the half million of today.

Let us now note some of the evidences of advancement. The first making winter feed as inexpensive as summer pasturage. As $2,335,516 worth of live stock was marketed in the Northwest in the months of last year an idea may be formed of the proportions it may be led to attain when the country becomes fully settled up.

Dairying is the third leading business of the Northwest farmer, and may, like the others be developed while the farmer is sleeping. It is found that on account of the cost of farm help, and to avert the expense of erecting suitable buildings for the purpose, the co-operative system is decidedly the best. Under it the entire management is in the hands of the government under expert operators, though control of sales, etc., rests with the patrons. The farmers simply deliver their milk or cream, usually the latter, at the dairies, receive monthly advances, and balance of proceeds of sales at the close of the year.

The schools are free and non-denominational-national. There is no tax for attendance, the government defrays the greater part of the cost of support of a highly certificated staff of teachers. There are schools in all country districts where there are a dozen pupils to attend them and the tax is rarely more than $4 a year on every quarter section. As each province—Alberta and Saskatchewan—under the new provincial autonomy will receive at the start from the Federal government $1,100,000 a year, there will be but very inconsiderable taxation for any and all provincial purposes.

Fuel is the bugbear of many of the prairie countries. In Western Canada, however, there are but few districts without an ample supply of timber, and as coal of the best quality is everywhere present no farmer being more than 200 miles distant from a mine, and the price never more than $4.50 per ton to him at his door. It is different story. In the northern Peace River country, 900 miles north of the International boundary, wheat is grown every year 43 to 45 bushels from 100 to 150 bushels to the acre, and matures in 107 days from sowing. The length of day and therefore the greater amount of summer heat in the 24 hours fully compensate for the disadvantages of latitude. As there are already thirty settlements, with their grist mills, large fields of grain, numerous acres of live stock in that north country, it only requires the extension of the railways now pushing readily seen the fuel problem is already solved. As shown above the railways are everywhere tapping new districts where free land is offered to all regardless of religion or nationality. Even in some of the older parts there is yet plenty of free land, Manitoba having 1,500,000 acres of it.

The land is there for the asking, and the next ten years will see a large area of it everywhere dotted with improved farms, grain elevators and rich, prosperous and pre-eminently contented population.

The August "Arena" will be an issue of exceptional interest and invaluable to friends of democratic institutions. Among its strong and thought-compelling features we mention the following: The Parolea Post of Rororo, The Economic Struggle in Colorado, J. D. Roddick, Jr., A Study in Character, Motive and Influence, and A Vast Educational Scheme.

His Unpardonable Offense. Women never get over the sense of dislike they feel for a man who once laughs at them.

AIDS NATURE'S WORK

EFFECT OF ACETYLENE RAYS ON GROWTH OF PLANTS.

Grow to Twice Actual Weight of Those Exposed to Sunlight Only—Latest Victory for This New and Beautiful Illuminant.

The experiments recently made at Cornell University prove that the beautiful rays from the gas, acetylene, are as effective as sunlight on the growth of plants, and this may soon become a matter of serious consideration by all progressive cultivators of the soil.

The results of the experiments are astonishing, inasmuch as they show conclusively the great increase of growth attained by supplementing "The Light of Nature" with "The Light of Acetylene" during the hours in which the plants would otherwise be in darkness. For instance, a certain number of radish plants subjected to acetylene light during the night, grew to twice the actual weight of the same number of radishes given daylight only. The plants were in good condition every spring. The native grasses are highly nutritious and retain their qualities the whole winter through.

Acetylene is already taking its place as an illuminant for towns from a central plant, for lighting houses, churches, schools and isolated buildings of all kinds, and it is being used successfully for many other purposes. A striking and important feature of acetylene is the ease and small expense with which it can be made available compared with the great advantages derived from its use. The machine in which the gas is generated is easily installed.

THE WHITE RIVER DIVISION.

A New Scenic Line Through a Rich Agricultural and Mineral Country, Offering New Fields for Sportsmen.

St. Louis, July 14th.—The approaching completion of the White River Division of the Iron Mountain Route, between Galena, Mo., and Newport, Ark., marks a new stage in the development of a strategically neglected portion of the Great Southwest.

A thorough inspection of the new line, recently made by representatives of the Passenger Department indicates that through trains will be running within sixty days. Mr. H. C. Townsend, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, who has long been a firm believer in the possibilities of the White River country, in speaking of the new road, said: "The new line is one of the most important links in the western railroad systems than might appear at first glance. It opens up a direct route between the Northwest and the South, and what this means to the people of both sections will be understood by all railroad men and students of industrial and agricultural conditions. It will mean new and better markets for each, and consequently, a greater share of general prosperity."

"Investors, tourists and home seekers have cast their eyes on this section, and now that the way is open for travel, the drawing power of the section is becoming daily more apparent. The lead and zinc fields in particular, and the White River line, are coming to the front, and developing rich deposits which promise to rival the older section at the western terminus of the White River line."

"One of the finest agricultural countries west of the Mississippi is opened up and heavy immigration justifies the enterprise of the promoters. The section is rapidly becoming so well known that a number of club houses on the James River are now completed, and are taken to their capacity by the summer months. It was hauled over forty fishing parties from Carthage, who desired to make the five day float from Galena to Branson, and return by train in fifty minutes."

"Several thousand tourists have already made the trip from each end of the completed line, and all indications point to a tourist travel unprecedented over any line in this part of the country."

"A one night's run over the Missouri from St. Louis, or Kansas City, enables the visitor to take the early morning train at Carthage for a complete run over the line; or with a one night's run from St. Louis or Memphis over the Iron Mountain Route to Newport, the visitor can make the day light run over the White River line."

"It is fair to say that a panorama of unexcelled beauty—river scenery; verdant valleys; rolling mountains; slow rippling and quaint little towns nestled in the valleys—await the newcomer to the beautiful White River region."

The notable features of the new line are naturally the ones to attract the most general attention, but, as stated, the agricultural (fruit raising in particular) and mineral possibilities of this new region are remarkable.

"The road itself is one of the modern wonders of engineering; built to last, for a heavy load with fifty-ton, round rail, rock ballast, and a grade in curvature admitting of speed, safety and comfort."

Footpad Tackled Wrong Man. Ralph H. Evans of Potomac, Pa., a couple of years ago was a crack football player. At a late hour the night before last, Evans was honored when a footpad attempted to hold him up. Evans "tackled" the fellow in old college style and in about a minute the highwayman was lying in a senseless heap. Then the athlete called an officer and the marauder now awaits trial.

Slence covers a lot of ignorance.

Get Cuticura Soap and applying Cuticura Ointment for three days, my head was as clear as ever, and to my surprise and joy, one ointment and one box of ointment made a complete cure in one week. THE BEST ADVICE IS FREE

Of all the diseases known, with which the female organism is afflicted, kidney disease is the most fatal, and statistics show that this disease is on the increase among women.

Unless early and correct treatment is applied the patient seldom survives when once the disease is fastened upon her. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most efficient treatment for kidney troubles of women, and is the only medicine especially prepared for this purpose.

When a woman is troubled with pain or weight in loins, backache, frequent, painful or smearing urination, swelling of limbs or feet, swelling under the eyes, an uneasy, tired feeling in the region of the kidneys or notices a brick-dust sediment in their urine, she should lose no time in commencing treatment with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it may be the means of saving her life.

For proof, read what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Sawyer.

COL. LAMONT DIES SUDDENLY.
Heart Failure Causes Death of Ex-Secretary of War.

Daniel Scott Lamont, once private secretary to Grover Cleveland and later secretary of war during the second Cleveland administration, died of heart failure at the "Altamont," his home near Millbrook, N. Y., July 22.

Daniel Scott Lamont was born in Cortlandville, Cortland county, N. Y., Feb. 7, 1852. His father was John B. Lamont, and his mother Elizabeth Scott.

At 20 the boy was sent as a delegate to the state convention in Rochester, in 1871, where he gallantly supported Samuel J. Tilden in his fight against the Tilden. The friendship between Mr. Tilden and Mr. Lamont was established at that time.

After this Lamont narrowly escaped election as county clerk of Cortland county and again as member of the assembly. In 1874 Mr. Tilden appointed him deputy clerk of the assembly and later he became chief clerk for the secretary of state.

He was secretary of the state committee in the campaign of 1875. Two years later he went to work as reporter in the legislature for Daniel Manning's Albany Argus. He became managing editor of the paper, kept up an active interest in politics, and worked energetically for Cleveland's nomination for the presidency. It was not until after his election that the two ever had a personal acquaintance.

Mr. Cleveland took a strong liking to Mr. Lamont from the first time he saw him and the friendship had been constant and intimate since Mr. Cleveland formed his acquaintance first when he sent for him to talk about state politics and the preparation of his first message. He offered Mr. Lamont the post of military secretary, which carried with it the title of colonel, and after the inauguration made him private secretary.

When Mr. Cleveland became president Mr. Lamont remained with him as secretary. At Washington he was popular, and a bill was passed for his benefit raising the salary of the private secretary from $2,500 to $5,000 a year. However, he declined to accept the offer of back pay which the law authorized. In the national capital, Mr. Lamont steadily increased his circle of acquaintances among men of importance in politics and finance.

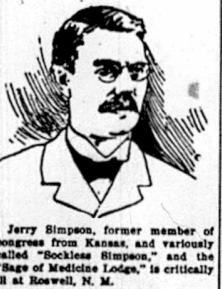

In 1893, when Mr. Cleveland retired, Mr. Lamont went into private business, in which he has since been engaged.

ANCESTRY OF NEW SECRETARY.

Charles J. Bonaparte is Not of French Descent.

Numerous references have been made of late to the alleged French ancestry of the new secretary of the navy and comment is made on his famous name, the Gallic quality of his wit, the shrug of his shoulders and the abundance of his gestures. As a matter of fact, there is not a drop of French blood in Charles J. Bonaparte's veins. His grandfather, Jerome Bonaparte, who married and deserted Elizabeth Patterson before he became king of Westphalia, was a Corsican of Italian descent, while the Pattersons were Scotch-Irish. The new secretary's mother was a down-east Yankee, a woman of great force of character. During the civil war she was aggressively for the union, in the midst of southern sympathizers, and her influence was doubtless more effective in molding this rigid moralist's character and guiding his political preferences than the quarter strain of foreign kings in his blood.

Jerry Simpson, former member of Congress from Kansas, and variously called "Rockless Simpson," and the "Sage of Medicine Lodge," is critically ill at Roswell, N. M.

AN OLD MAN'S TRIBUTE.
An Ohio Fruit Raiser, 78 Years Old, Cured of a Terrible Disease After Ten Years of Suffering.

Sidney Justice, fruit dealer of Mentor, Ohio, says: "I was cured of a terrible disease after ten years of suffering. I had a severe case of kidney trouble, of eight or ten years' standing. I suffered the most severe backache and other pains in the region of the kidneys. These were especially severe when stooping to lift anything and often I could hardly straighten my back. The aching was bad in the day time, but just as bad at night, and I was always lame in the morning. I was bothered with rheumatic pains and the swelling of the feet. The urinary passages were painful and the secretions were discolored and so free that I often had to rise at night. I felt tired all day. Half a box served to relieve me, and three boxes effected a permanent cure."

Hot Weather Dangers

CONSTIPATION

STOMACH AND BOWEL TROUBLE

No one with regular bowels and healthy stomach can contract disease. A person with Constipation and Stomach Trouble is always the first to succumb to Sun Stroke, Heat Debility and Prostration. Cholera, Colic and Diarrhea are more fatal in Hot Weather because vitality is low—they are the direct result of Constipation. It is a mistake to suddenly check diarrhea, the danger in Blood Poison. A chronic is also dangerous as it weakens the patient and reduces vitality. Treat the cause with Mull's Grape Tonic. Constipation and its attending ills are caused by decaying or dying bowels and intestines—Mull's Grape Tonic revives and strengthens the bowels so that they are enabled to act naturally and eject the poison from the system, everybody should take it during hot weather. It wards off disease, builds up the system and purifies the blood. Typhoid Fever and Appendicitis are unknown in families where Mull's

Grape Tonic is employed. As a Stomach Tonic it is unequalled.

SUFFERED ALL HIS LIFE.

The endorsement of F. B. McCurdy of Troy, Ohio, proves that the severe forms of Constipation are promptly cured by Mull's Grape Tonic—He says:

"I gave your Tonic a thorough trial. It is the only remedy that will cure constipation. I do not believe anyone suffered more thoroughly than I, as I had been afflicted with it all my life. For days my bowels would not act and then only the use of strong cathartics that were fast becoming my habit. Mr. Sumner and I were depressed and I suffered with inward pain, the pain of which would at times cause me to cry. I spent much money with various doctors and medicines, but all to no avail."

"Soon after I started Mull's Grape Tonic my bowels began to act and the pain left me and my general health built up rapidly. I am now as strong as an athlete and in which I am a living witness."

Until Mull's Grape Tonic was put on the American market, there was no cure for Constipation. Let us send you a bottle free to-day to show you that it will do for all we claim.

What to Do.

When you're up again it, An' times are pretty rough, An' yer close are gettin' ragged, An' of food there ain't enough, Don't set down an' grumble, Growl an' moan an' mumble, Jest git up an' let 'em know you're comin'!

Life ain't all in eatin', Ef yer close ain't fit fer meetin', Don't think the Lord's forgotten where ye live, Ef yer friend don't know yer face 'Cause ye can't keep up the pace, Don't set down an' pout, But thank yer stars ye found 'em out, Jest git up an' let 'em know you're comin'!

A confirmed bachelor who lives on the south side and who is very popular with the fair sex, was heard to remark in Abbott's the other evening, "An old maid never calls for help when a man attempts to kiss her. It is the man who needs the help." He has learned from practical experience.

George Hodgins, the gentleman who is the double of the Sultan of Turkey and to keep his blood in circulation conducts train No. 523, arriving here at noon, has been presented with a pair of Mexican parrots. George is going to train the birds himself, and as he speaks seven different languages and a vocalist who has enraptured the denizens of Mt. Prospect and other metropolitan centers the birds will receive training extraordinary. Ezra Cannon is forming a stock company in anticipation of promoting Hodgins' parrot show.

The experience of those who have published papers for years is that they may print the grandest sermon that ever fell from inspired lips, and not 20 per cent even of the professionally pious will read it. Print a detailed account of some female bunco game or sensational divorce in high life, or a choice, juicy scandal, and 90 per cent of the very elect will make a dive for the paper before breakfast, swoop down upon it like a negro upon a bowl of crab soup, devour every word, then curl their eyes heavenward like a calf with the colic and wonder what this wicked world is coming to. The daily papers have got to print sensational news or see their circulation take an astonishing drop. The people like it and lots of it.

The man who invented Duke's Mixture is dead. Many of those who rolled it into cigarettes, beat him to the happy hunting grounds by several years.

An exchange teller of an editor in this state who started about twenty years ago with 15 cents, and who now is worth $100,000. His accumulation of wealth is owing to his sobriety, frugality, strict attention to business, and to the fact that an uncle had died and left him $99,999.95.

There are "knockers" in every village—we have them here. This individual complains that the town is ugly, yet he has an unsightly plank laid in front of his house, a broken fence around the premises and a miscellaneous collection of tin cans and kindling wood at the back door. He kicks like a Missouri mule because the health officer has overlooked a nuisance in a remote corner of the village; because his family is liable to some contagion, yet he allows that slope be emptied in his own dooryard and rank weeds to grow up all around his premises loading up enough microbes to start a lively plague in the entire neighborhood. Don't be a "knocker." Be a "booster."

It is said that men who haven't the patience to cut their nails properly usually come to grief. Most of them either commit suicide or get married.

Burglars at Carry.

On Monday evening burglars entered the store of E. Kerns & Son, in Carry, gaining access through Gus Genereux's meat market. Entrance was made through a window left open for ventilation purposes. Nothing was missed from the market but the cash register in Kerns store was broken open and about $4 in change absconded. They also entered Fred Abbott's barber shop and turned everything upside down carrying off half a dozen razors and a quantity of cigars. They gained entrance by prying open a window.

the driver of an auto must stop his machine on approaching a horse or team. The fine for not complying with this ruling is not less than $5 and not more than $200 or three months imprisonment in jail. From this terrible affliction I was rescued by Electric Bitters, which restored my health and strength, and now I can walk as straight as ever. They are simply wonderful.
