The building will be put in shape, and new fixtures take the place of those so long in service here. It is the improvement was made, as we are helped other towns of like population in the equipment of a post office.

An Enjoyable Lawn Fete.

The ladies of St. Ann's Sewing society gave an ice cream social on the lawn of the Lamey homestead, Wednesday evening. The weather was a trifle cool but pleasant for outdoor entertainment. The lawn was prettily illuminated by Japanese lanterns and gasoline torches; bustling entwined among the trees, tables profusely decorated with choice flowers, but that which added and attracted most to the scene was the handsome, prettily gowned young ladies who served.

FROM THE PACIFIC COAST

CASTLE ROCK, WASH., July 29, 1905.

EDITOR REVIEW:—

I write you a few lines relating my wanderings in this, the Great Northwest. Leaving Barrington last March 1 I visited for several days with my son in Chicago and then started for the Pacific Northwest via C. & N. W., U. P., O. S. L. and O. R. & N. Rys.

The trip was a most delightful one; my companions on the tourist compartment coach very agreeable, and I was sorry when the trip came to an end. Arriving at Portland April 15, I took passage for Chehalis, Washington, where I had some business interests to look after. I remained there some days and then went to Olympia, the capital of Washington, and, though not large, a beautiful city, located on Puget Sound. Many places of interest are to be found there, a number of which I visited.

Leaving there by steamer I went to Seattle, a bustling, bustling city of many industries and manufacturers. It is like a city of old-built on seven hills and maybe more as I did not count them.) A young man residing in that city, whose acquaintance I formed, acted as my guide one night when I went out "to see the city by artificial light—not as some men I have heard of go out to see cities at night—but for higher purposes. We would board a street car and go to the summit of a hill, view the surrounding country, then go to another hill and take a view from there. The last hill we visited was the highest and the view afforded is certainly grand.

Here is located a monster standpipe which furnishes pressure for the water system. A spiral stairway leads to the top where an iron platform affords visitors a place from which to view miles of coast line, miles of streets with their hundreds of electric lights glimmering like huge stars; the beautiful waters of the sound, on one side of which lies numberless steamers the waterway shipping facilities between Seattle, the Orient and gold fields of Alaska. This is the main shipping point to the Klondyke.

Not many miles from Seattle the government has a large navy yard, an interesting place for the traveler. I did not visit the yard but I went up the sound about nine miles and saw some works the government has erected there to protect the yard in case of an attack. In addition to Puget Sound on one side of the city, one can take a street car, ride out a few miles, and visit some of the finest fresh water lakes to be found in the country bordered by natural groves and hills, making the most beautiful parks imaginable.

I remained in Seattle a week and then went by steamer to Tacoma. A spirited competition exists for passenger traffic between Tacoma and Seattle there being the N. P. R. R., Interoceanic R. R. and lines of steamers. Tacoma is a thriving city and its inhabitants energetic and enthusiastic regarding the prosperity of the city. They are great advertisers, huge posters being placed everywhere, on boats and cars, and especially at Portland. On the exposition grounds is a huge tower from which flashes the words (made of electric lights) same as on the posters. "Watch Tacoma Grow."

I have visited Portland three times, but have visited the exposition only once. The exhibits there are very good, though not on an extensive scale. One can view all in three days. The attendance is much larger than the management expected. There is one building which visitors admire greatly. It is the Forestry building, constructed of logs of mammoth size, and of handsome architectural design.

There is a great tide of travel from all parts of the United States to this section. The people are taking advantage of cheap railroad rates and traveling, not to see the exposition only but the great growing Pacific states as well.

We had some quite torrid weather here but the nights have been cool, covers required most every night.

Yours truly,
WM. DAWSON.

JUST SUPPOSING

That the Home Paper Should Tell the Truth About Certain Things.

Occasionally we meet a man who insists that an editor could always tell the whole truth in his paper if he wanted to. He can't do it and continue in the business, remarks an exchange. A Missouri editor tried it and was visited to leave town, and the request was put so forcibly that he "got." Here are some of the items that put him out of business:

"John Bonin, the laziest merchant in town, made a trip to Belleville yesterday."

"John Doyle, our groceryman, is doing a poor business. His store is dirty, dusty, and noxious odoriferous. Besides he spends a good part of the time loafing around town. How can he expect to do much?"

"Rev. Styr preached Sunday on charity. The theme was a good one but the sermon was rot."

"Dave Shuckey died at his home in this place, the doctor gave his cause as heart failure. The facts are that Dave was drunk, that whiskey killed him and everybody knows it, and that the doctor lied when he said it was heart failure."

"Paddy Smith's 'blind pig' is running wide open seven days in a week and nobody knows it better than the village dads."

"Married, Miss Sylvia Rhodes and Jas. Canahan last Saturday evening at the Baptist church. The bride is a very ordinary girl who doesn't know any more about cooking than a rabbit and never helped her mother three days in her lifetime. She is no beauty and has a gait like a fat duck. The groom is well known and up-to-date loafer. He's been living off the folks all his life and don't amount to shucks. They will have a hard life."

"Arch Abercome thrashed his wife again Sunday."

Doctors Disagree.

The New York Medical Journal offered a prize for the best short essay on "The Treatment of Erysipelas of the Face." Dr. P. W. Moore of St. Louis, Ill.; Dr. John Douglas of New York City and Dr. George A. Graham of Kansas City competed. Their essays were printed in a recent number of the Medical Journal. They are interesting mainly in that they confirm the common belief that doctors disagree and that when they differ they differ radically.

Dr. Moore, for instance, prefers the use of cold poultices, wet dressings of solutions of aluminum acetate, bichloride of mercury, ichthyol and salicylic acid on the infected area, with superimposed lead poultices. The applications of cold poultices he regards as the most important feature of the treatment.

Dr. Douglas says that he has found nothing that will certainly stop the spread of the area of infection, but that with a tincture of iodine painted on liberally in a broad band about the border of the lesion he has had the greatest success. He regards iodine as more effective than nitrate of silver. With collodion, recommended by many text books, he has had the poorest results. He recommends that wet dressings should be applied to the affected area, preferring ichthyol painted on practically pure. Apparently he places no importance on cold poultices, advising only the use of an lead bag to the head for restlessness or delirium.

Dr. Graham states positively that for many years past he has found that carbonyl of lead in the form of ordinary white lead used by painters is a specific for the disease when applied thickly to the parts affected. He says he has used the popular and highly recommended applications, such as ichthyol, etc., with little or no benefit. He says further that after using, with little or no benefit, popular and highly recommended applications recourse to the white lead treatment has invariably effected a speedy cure, and application in most cases entirely checking the disease and no case ever requiring more than two applications. Painting with iodine, nitrate of silver and the like he declares to be obsolete and useless.

Thus do our doctors disagree. One secures excellent results with a method which another declares to be obsolete and useless. Another claims to have effected cures with a simple method of which the others have no knowledge or which they deliberately ignore.

Good health and the preservation of life are essential to the community at large and the welfare of the nation as good crops, good money or interstate commerce. The government has already taken a hand in investigating the food and alcohol products placed before the public with reference to their purity and wholesomeness. It could consider-ably enlarge on experiments upon the treatment of disease, especially any which baffles the skill of medical practitioners.

The "Graft" Exposure.

Graft in public affairs is no new thing. It has affected about every country of the world and about every period of civilization. The current wholesale exposures are of an unusual character and are astounding, although much that has come to the surface has long been believed to exist.

It is unwise and unjust to human nature to argue that old fashioned honesty is wanting among public men or in high places. In spite of past evidences of corruption society is startled over the developments of today and, moreover, is moved to wrath, proof that there is virtue left to scorn dishonesty and success gained by crooked methods. So long as there is a healthy public contempt for wickedness the situation is encouraging rather than discouraging.

The Panama route from ocean to ocean has a competitor in the "new world's highway" across the isthmus of Tehuantepec. This route runs from Salina Cruz, on the Pacific, to Coahuila, on the Atlantic, a distance of 190 miles. A railway has been constructed at an expense of nearly $40,000,000. The line is 1,200 miles south of Panama and 800 miles south of New Orleans.

The "poor, benighted heathens" of Korea know a thing or two. The king has gone down into his own pocket for money to pay the expenses of two commissioners to the peace conference in the interest of Korea, which nation seems to consider itself between the upper and nether millstones.

It is something of a revelation in this country that the Americans in Chinese ports are asking this government to save them from the social ostracism of their Chinese neighbors.

Experts are still figuring on the population of China, and the estimates vary from about 200,000,000 to 400,000,000.

000. The missionaries lean toward the larger figures.

If Senator Tom Platt is really convinced that he might have done better, he can "save face" by telling other travelers over the same road how to avoid pitfalls.

Bible Institute.

The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago is a full-time school that remains open all the year around. In addition to regular courses, the summer schedule is enriched by special courses by well known bible teachers. President W. G. Moorehead, of Xenia, O., theological seminary, is a special lecturer during August. Among these who have already given courses are Prof. John R. Sampey of the Southern Baptist theological seminary, Louisville, Ky., Dr. John Robertson of Glasgow, and Dr. John Urquhart of Edinburgh. The summer enrollment of students is 130 and of women, including about 30 pastors and others who come for short periods of study and training. The call for trained workers is far beyond the Institute's capacity to supply them.

JONES AND HIS TELEPHONE.

Strange Mishaps of Unfortunate Man - Telephone Saves Him Much Trouble.

To please his wife, Samuel Jones contracted for a telephone. Here is his diary of events:

Monday - Had terrible stomach pains. My wife telephoned and within four minutes the doctor was here.

Tuesday - My son George became lost. By telephone we located him at the police station. Saved me time and money to hunt for him.

Wednesday - Our neighbor's house caught fire and I telephoned the fire department. Apparatus arrived in time to protect our home, and to save part of neighbors. Fire box is five blocks away.

Thursday - Uncle George, worth $50,000, visited me just before noon today. Nothing to eat in the house. Wife telephoned the grocer. It probably saved me a cool $100,000 in his will.

Friday - Two crazy men surrounded the house and tried to shoot me. Telephoned police and they took the fellows away. Saved all our lives.

Saturday - Spent much of the day wondering why I have been such a fool to refuse to put in a telephone when it costs only five cents per day, and saves ten times as much. I thought it a luxury, but it is a necessity. There are 130,000 people at my call over the Chicago Telephone Company's lines.

Very Low Rates to Kansas City, Mo.

Health Habits For Summer Days.

A physician writing for the London Mail on the subject of outings to improve health points out certain hygienic rules which are often overlooked by the average person when he loses in "all outdoors." He says there is danger for the novice in overdoing things, especially in the matter of strenuous exercise, such as walking and climbing hills. Undue strain upon the heart will neutralize the benefit derived from fresh air and sunshine. He says:

Your sleep and your appetite are the best means of judging whether you are doing well or ill. Holidays should be good sleeping times, and accordingly the most common cause of insomnia in our day is worry. The sort of air worth breathing is that which several other people have not had a go at already. It helps one to sleep and is an under-estimated tonic. I do not care whether the air be sea or mountain, so long as it is pure. There is no exercise better than swimming, and a bath does a wonder-ful amount of good. A constant mistake is to stay in too long. The value of a cold bath in reverse proportion to its length. Ten minutes should be a maximum, especially if you do not swim.

It is all right to be greedy after sunshine, which is life to man and death to his most deadly foe, adds this authority. Sunstroke may be avoided by protecting the eyes and head, and the back of the neck particularly. Microbes cannot exist in sunshine, and the sun bath is at once a luxury and a curative agent to be had for nothing.

A Shakeup in Our Consular Service.

One of the matters which Secretary of State Root may be expected to take in hand when he has made himself familiar with the state department machinery is the consular service, which has long been in need of reform. Things happened when Mr. Root was secretary of war, and there is room for his aggressive and thoroughgoing methods in his new department. The late secretary was a model of patience and a paragon of formality in dealing with other departments of government and in managing his own, and it would be strange if there are not some dry bones stung enough to cry for reform.

Our consular service is much better than it used to be and has been recently pronounced by English authorities as the very best in the world. But there is room for improvement in the system if not in the personnel. The system is always in touch with the world, and the only view foreigners can take is that it represents the United States' way of doing business. Administrations and policies come and go, but the consular system stands fast. There is a consular reform bill now in the congressional bag of congress. Mr. Root may unweary that or even draft one of his own. He will do something in the premises if his reforming hand has not lost its cunning.

One of the most interesting series of articles on the subject of the great highways of the country has appeared recently, is that from the pen of Frank H. The high school of commerce is a move in the right direction if it only advertises the fact that commerce is not child's play. A certain number of business men are able to interest and train their sons to continue business at the old stand, but as a rule, the recruits for the vast army of commerce drift into business expecting quick success and easy work. A stool and a desk look attractive from the distant hayfield or corn lot. There is of course good business timber in the fields, but it needs a deal of trimming and paring in "the mill." And many a candidate finds that same mill "harder work than farming."

Japan has been fighting for the integrity of China, but she will take good care that the latter shall not have anything to say about the manner in which it is to be maintained. China is hardly worth consideration in the premises, but it does look queer, to say the least, for a champion to entirely disregard the desires of those whose cause he has espoused.

Dr. Journal of the Paris Academy of Medicine recently treated twenty-four tuberculous patients with a sea water serum, which possesses the property of increasing the blood pressure. In all cases improvement was noticeable in the local as well as the general condition.

There are practically no illiterates in Norway. The men are perhaps the finest in the world physically. Army service is universal. Only 23 per cent of youths are rejected for physical defects.

Secretary Shaw discovered an unexpected stringency in the circulating medium the other day when a haughty hotel cashier refused to cash his check, and he hadn't even a nickel for car fare.

FARM ORCHARD AND GARDEN

A lightning rod will not prevent a barn from burning up if the mow is filled with half-cured clover hay.

There is a good deal of lamb served at our hotels and restaurants which reminds one of the old maid of forty who passed her life off as a sweet young thing of nineteen.

The heavy draft horse is just as much in demand today as though there was not a steam engine or an automobile in use. We do not believe the horse will ever be displaced by any machine.

As a general thing the trolley roads are showing up well so far as returning a fair interest on the money invested. The cheaper the fare, the more people ride.

If business men would collect what is due them with the same degree of promptness which marks the boy who mows your lawn, there would be fewer business failures. The boy is always Johnny on the spot for his pay.

Wherever sheep and hogs are kept rape is one of the most valuable forage plants which can be raised on the farm, and yet not one man in ten raises it. The very best use to make of last season's hog yard is to sow it to rape.

A lawyer whose mind became unsettled took the queer notion of going out into the country and hired out as a farmhand. If this thing should spread it might help solve the problem of help on the farm and would not hurt the cities any, either.

If a pasture is to be kept in good heart and free from weeds, growth there should always seem to be room for more stock in it, a surplus of grass. Just as soon as a pasture is fed bare the grass roots are weakened, and every chance is given for the weeds to get a good start.

If you have a farm and wish to keep it as an investment and not work it yourself the most possible way in which to handle it is to rent it out from year to year to Tom, Dick and Harry to skin. The very best use to make of better treatment than this. Make a long lease with a good man.

We are asked how large a silo should be built to meet the needs of an average eighty-acre farm. We would try one about twenty feet high and sixteen feet in diameter to start with. This will hold the product of about ten acres of corn, which converted into silage will make an immense amount of most valuable and palatable food.

A scientific writer, referring to zinc, makes the assertion that milk set in zinc vessels will produce 32 per cent more cream than it will set in tin vessels. While we cannot say that this is not so, we can say that we do not believe it. Unless some chemical action was set up between the zinc and the milk the kind of metal used could make no difference, and if there is such action it would surely be to the injury of the milk.

It is said that buff-colored eggs will keep longer than white eggs, the reason given being that they have a thicker shell. The Brahmas, Cochins and their kind lay the dark eggs, while the Leghorns, Houdans and Spanish fowls lay the white ones. The flavor of an egg is almost wholly dependent upon the food of the fowls. The finest lot of eggs we ever saw, and the largest as well, were the product of a lot of Buff Cochins here.

The west has come to what may be called a three and four horse use of agriculture. The raising of all the farm work just as far as possible with a large type of machinery, which requires three or four horses to operate. The gang plow, the twenty-foot mowing machine, the six foot mower, the three row cultivator, the potato digger and many other appliances represent how the machine has displaced the hired man, the horse being more dependable than the man.

Fly time is here and with it almost untold misery for the dairy cow unless some steps are taken to protect her. Some dairymen are following the plan of keeping their cows in a darkened basement barn from about 9:30 a. m. until sundown, and then giving them the run of the pasture during the night and early morning. While in the barn they are fed liberally with some green soiling crop, such as clover, alfalfa, sweet corn, with the result that so cared for there is no shrinkage in the milk yield. The common way is to turn them into a pasture, good or bad, as the case may be, and let them stand bunched over some knoll or in some pond half submerged all through the heat of the day, and no sensible cow will run a dividend paying milk factory under such conditions.

BILIOUSNESS AND CONSTIPATION CURED BY THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

Because the liver is neglected people suffer with constipation, biliousness, headaches and fevers. Cold attacks take hold of the system. It is safe to say that if the liver were always kept in proper working order, diseases would be almost unknown.

Thedford's Black-Draught is so successful in curing such sickness because it is without a rival as a liver regulator. This great family medicine is not a strong and drastic drug, but a mild and healthful laxative that cures constipation and may be taken by a mere child without possible harm.

The healthful action on the liver cures biliousness. It has an invigorating effect on the kidneys. Because the liver and kidneys do not work regularly, the poisonous waste along with the waste from the bowels get back into the blood and violent contagion results.

Timely treatment with Thedford's Black-Draught removes the dangers which lurk in constipation, liver and kidney troubles, and will cure the most formidable invasions of bright's disease, for which disease in advanced stages there is no cure. Ask your dealer for a 25c. package of Thedford's Black-Draught.

Canada possesses almost unlimited water power, which is bound to prove a most important factor in the future development of that country.

Almost every community has some dear, good woman who will feed every tramp that comes along for the privilege of giving him a lecture on morality.

The cheapest pork can be made from corn and alfalfa, and lucky the man whose farm produces these two crops, for he will not only make cheap pork, but will have healthy hogs.

The hired man on the farm has to be treated and fed right, but there is no reason why he should be taken into the bosom of the family. While treated as an equal, he should be made to keep his place.

We believe that there are more men who would like to find out some easy way to get rich, than there are of any other form of assistance. The best way to get rich is it is never to let it get a foothold if possible.

Occasionally a wet place on the farm can be drained by the boring of a hole into the earth at the lowest point. The success of this method all depends upon the depth of the right sort of soil strata can be found.

We are asked how much honey will a good strong hive of bees secure in a day when the bees are in it at its best. We do not know, but we have a friend whose bees have made three pounds a day when the white clover was in bloom.

It is telling a very old story, but there is nothing which is worth so much in August for the dairy cow as a batch of sweet corn which she can draw liberally during the dry dog days. So fed, she will hold up her bow of milk instead of shrinking.

Some one fond of statistics has figured out that if the Chinese consumed as much meat per capita as do the Americans there would have to be a set of king-birds, 400,000,000 cattle, 415,000,000 hogs and 400,000,000 sheep, but the celestial has rats and dogs, which we do not use.

The black currant is seldom grown in this country. In England it is considered the best of all the currants and the jam made from it is considered a standard delicacy. We do not know of any reason why it cannot be raised just as well as the other varieties, though it is a somewhat shy bearer.

It is one thing to raise a big crop of clover and another and much harder one to secure it in good shape. Where the writer lives one of the biggest crops of clover ever raised has been damaged 50 per cent by the almost daily rains and by the rotting of the clover before cutting by its forming a mat on the ground.

A pair of registered draft mares could be made a very profitable investment in almost any farm, where horses are kept. There is no reason on earth why nearly all the high priced sires should be imported from Europe. We no longer import many bulls, having just as fine animals here as there are to be found in any country. We might just as well raise our own horses.

On general principles it is always unsafe to hire a tramp for a farm hand. In the first place, they will not work if they can help it; then they are almost sure to give you just what you need them the worst and are quite likely to make off with some of your property at that. Then it is an imposition on the wife to take one of the dirty brutes into the house. No tramp labor for us at any price.

ABOUT SHEEP.
We have several inquiries as to the sheep business, how to get started, best breed to get and where to buy it. It is not a good time now to get into the business on anything like a large scale, for the sheep and its products are high priced, and, then, any man not used to keeping sheep should go slow in starting with a big flock. No one animal on the farm varies more in price than sheep. One year they may be worth $5 a head and the next a dollar and a half. The time to buy them is when every man who has them wants to get rid of them. Again, not all farms are adapted to sheep. Level and wet farms are not suited to them. They like the hills and the rolling land. They must be specially fenced against or be herded under a shepherd, and they cannot be successfully pastured with other stock. For a large part of the prairie country there is no better way than for three or four farmers to operate and keep a flock of sheep and keep them under the care of a shepherd all through the grazing season. In this way each man gets the benefit derived from the sheep as a weed exterminator and land fertilizer, and they can be run anywhere where there is a good feed for them. This plan saves all bother about fencing and prevents many losses which occur when they are not under the constant eye of a shepherd. Thousands of sheep could be kept all over the northwest and kept very largely on grass roughage and weeds which without them would be an entirely waste product.

THAT FIELD OF ALFALFA.
The following suggestion with reference to securing a field of alfalfa for the territory of Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin may be of value: Take a piece of land from which a crop of hay, oats or winter wheat has been removed, fertilize it with about ten to twelve tons of horse loads of manure, plow, disk and harrow thoroughly to get as fine a seed bed as possible and then sow during the first ten days of August twenty pounds of alfalfa seed to the acre. With favorable weather the alfalfa will make a growth this fall of nearly one foot, which should be allowed to remain on the ground during the winter. Next year it will give three crops. By this method two things are secured—the alfalfa has no right to the weeds, and there is no loss of a year in the use of the land. This plan is well worth trying by any one desiring to get a field of this most valuable legume. Try two acres for a hog pasture if for nothing else.

EAT MORE CORN.
It would be well for their pocket books and better for their general health if the American people would use more corn. We are slaves to ellipses made of refined flour of wheat. That more corn is not used is not so much that the people do not like the many delicate and savory dishes which may be prepared from it as that so few cooks know anything about the preparation of corn foods. There are immense possibilities in a well-cooked Johnny-cake, in a loaf of injun bread, in corn cakes, in corn mush eaten with milk and cream, 'alf and 'alf, in corn chowder and soups, in an abundance of things stuffed with fat raising, in fried mush, camp and hominy. Better diet, better teeth, more vim and energy would come with more of a corn diet, and then, what, it is ever so much cheaper. Then, if one must smoke, it is said that there is nothing better than an old corn-cob pipe.

SCREENINGS.
A few years ago the grain buyers of the northwest used to make a great roar and dockage in grain bought because of the small material which it contained. While they do not just as heavily as formerly, they do not kick, for they are able to sell the mustard seed for a good deal more than the wheat, oats and rye. The mustard is appearing at 40 cents a pound on the table of the man who raised it. The screenings and weed seed which are furnished by the mills of the northwest to feed and fatten hundreds of thousands of sheep every winter are a pure gift to the farmer for this purpose, the dockage demanded by the mill making it cost them nothing. The moral of this is that it does not pay the farmer to raise weeds and mustard, though lots of them do, and doing it, it would pay them to clean their grain and feed the screenings to sheep at home.

ALCOHOL FOR POWER.
The certainty that the gas engine is to become more and more an important factor in the transportation methods of the future as well as in furnishing a cheap and safe power for all purposes suggests the need of providing a cheap gas making material. This can be found in alcohol, which can be produced in this country for 10 cents a gallon, but which is now barred from use by the revenue laws of the country. Some congressmen can render the country at large a lasting service by making an effort to secure such legislation will permit of the use of alcohol for light, heat and power purposes, for it grinds the average citizen to have to pay 15 cents for gasoline when oil is selling at 37 cents for fifty-two gallons. Nothing would break down the power of the worst monopoly which the country fosters like substituting alcohol for coal oil products.

This man thought a great deal of his wife, and she got a fit to keep poultry, so the hens were bought, the yard fixed up and great care taken in feeding the fowls. Still being in the winter season, no eggs. Wife feeling very bad. Man goes up stairs to operate and find out slugs at first one or two eggs in the nests. Wife, oh-oh-oh-oh! he's begun to nest. Wife brings on her hen to neighbors; great lot of hens, and commences to give her intimate friends some of the eggs. One day overhears a drawer where her hubby's clothes are kept and finds a sack of eggs, the sack with the local grocer's name on it. Commences to smell a rat. No more bragging on her poultry.

We have discovered two leaks which explain some of the economic poverty of the masses in our cities. Twelve hundred and fifty dollars was dropped into the slot machines of a western city on one Saturday night. A druggist in the same city told us on the following Monday that his sales of cigars, pop, ice cream and this sort of stuff were $50 on the Saturday. No wonder some people have holes in their stockings and have to pawn their overcoats. This, mind you, is respectable folk, not the slum and gambling crowd besides. Poverty comes as the most natural thing in the world under such conditions.

Mourning doves, meadow larks and robins, which are protected by law at all seasons in the northern states where they breed, are common game birds for the southern states where they winter. This is unfair, if it is right to slaughter these birds for food in the south, the north, which raises them, should have the same right. As a matter of fact, it is all wrong to kill them at all, as each variety does most valuable work as either weed seed or insect destroyers.

Concise Lecture on Panama Canal.
A good example of conciseness in a lecture is the discourse on the Panama canal delivered recently in a Vermont town, says the Boston Record. The lecturer was a drummer, and he had been holding forth at the hotel on Panama and the tropics to such an extent that the managers of a church festival hit on the brilliant idea of asking him to tell the church about the canal. The drummer accepted—he could not help it—and this is his lecture on the Panama canal:
"As I came into this church I noticed a ditch in the street, evidently for water pipes or something. Just imagine that ditch 200 times as wide, 200 times as deep and forty-seven miles long. And there you are. Good night."

STORIES OF JULES VERNE.

An instance of the French Novelist's Love For Boys.
An interesting story has been passed around in French literary circles with regard to the contract by which the late Jules Verne, the famous French novelist, issued two books a year, says the New York Times. It is said that this contract was made forty years ago and called for two stories a year for a remuneration of 20,000 francs per annum, or about $4,000. It is said that, despite the enormous circulation of his works, which have been translated into Persian and Japanese, Jules Verne never received a penny more than his stipulated salary. His publisher, however, gave the author valuable presents from time to time. One of the peculiar traits of Jules Verne was his love for the boys for whom he wrote. On one occasion he walked into a school reading club in Hantsgate, England, and, laying a letter written in a boyish hand on the table, he said in his quaint French-English:
"Boys, I am Jules Verne. I thank you for your invitation. Let us try put some more coal on the fire and read."

Faster Time to Denver.

Fast-bound No. 12 leaves Denver 4:30 p. m. instead of 4:20 p. m. fifteen minutes later than heretofore.

There will be no change in the leaving time of these trains, nor of trains Nos. 3 and 6 on the line of the Chicago & North-Western Ry.
