Crop Bulletin.

The general condition of the corn crop is very promising; it is tasseling in the Northern district, earing well in the central, and has reached the roasting ear stage in the southern. In those localities where there was little or no rain it is beginning to fire. Worms are injuring the roots in some parts of the northern district, and some damage has resulted from flooding on low lands in the southern district.

Oats threshing continued during the week and, except from a few localities in the southern district, where they are damaged in shock, good yield of fine quality is reported.

Wheat threshing continued with but little interruption, and is now nearing completion. The damage resulting from the heavy rains while the crop was in shock is not so great as was anticipated, and reports as a rule indicate a fair yield of good quality. Rye and barley are yielding well. Pastures are greatly improved where rain fell, but are getting very short elsewhere. The second crop of clover is in blossom and very promising. The crop of early potatoes was poor, but better results are expected from the late planted, as conditions have been more favorable. Melons are ripening in the southern counties, and a good crop is indicated. The outlook for grapes is exceptionally good, but apples continue to drop and will be a very short crop.

Peculiar Disappearance.

J. D. Runyan, of Butlerfield, O., laid the peculiar disappearance of his painful symptoms of indigestion and biliousness to Dr. King's New Life Pills. He says: "They are a perfect remedy for dizziness, sour stomach, headache, constipation, etc." Guaranteed at Barrington Pharmacy; price 25 cents.

Orlial Shan the Porus Plaster.

According to the American pretty society young lady of Chicago is suing the manufacturers of a porous plaster for $5,000 damages, because the plaster burned her so badly that she is no longer able to wear low-necked gowns. It was impossible for her to attend social functions greatly to her disappointment. When the wound gradually healed the color changed from a vivid red to an unpleasant olive green, which was most repellant to the eye and made it impossible for her to wear the pretty peck-a-bow waists.

Girls, if you must use porous-plasters wear 'em where they will not interfere with the charms displayed by a peck-a-bow waist. But to be frank in the matter, there are some wearing peck-a-bow waists who really should put something of a drawing nature underneath them. It need not be a porous-plaster—but it is estimated that the potato crop will be large this year.

VOTED TO DISBAND

Barrington Social and Athletic Club Held Last Meeting Monday Night.

It is to be regretted that there is not more enterprise, more of a disposition to do something toward making residence in Barrington more inviting, especially to the young men, exhibited by our people. It is not a wonder that our young men spend their evenings at other villages, tributary and that many go to Chicago.

There is not an advantage in the way of amusement offered; not a place where young, middle aged or old can pass a pleasant hour in the companionship of good literature—not a public reading room or library to which our people may go and feel that they are welcome.

The reason for this is easily explained. An attempt of pronounced sectarianism is in control and look with suspicion upon any public organization not affiliating with a religious body. This is radically wrong.

There is much good accomplished by lodges, clubs and societies having for their object the entertainment of the members whose religious tendencies are not questioned. A place where current events are discussed; where the best magazines and newspapers are to be found; rooms inviting and comfortable, is an advantage to any town, no matter under whose auspices it is conducted.

Last Monday evening the Barrington Social and Athletic club, an organization occupying nicely equipped rooms, and maintaining an excellent reading table, held its semi-annual meeting and voted to disband. The reason assigned for the action is a lack of interest manifested and withdrawal of several members. The action of the club is regretted by many who while not members, recognized the benefit of the organization to the village.

The club was organized December 18, 1897, the following being charter members: Carl Ernst, Fred Beinhoff, F. E. Grebe, Geo. Ols, A. L. Horn, G. R. Hawley, Sam Snyder, Al Hawley, M. J. Lamey, Chas. Beinhoff, Chas. Hutchinson, J. D. Lamey, Ray Cannon, Richard Barker, Chas. Dill, Ed. Peters, Frank Robertson, Carl F. Meyer, D. F. Lamey, Max Lines, Roy Meiers, Henry Killen, Henry Meyer.

The following were the first officers: President—Frank Robertson. Vice president—C. F. Meyer. Secretary—Charles Beinhoff. Asst. Secy.—Carl Ernst. Treasurer—Miles T. Lamey.

The organization has enjoyed many pleasant outings and banquets, has had upon its membership roll the leading young men of the village, and a source of great pleasure to those who have shared the comforts of its cozy home. Several years ago the organization took a hand in village politics and assisted several young men to positions on the village board.

The influence of the U. S. & A. C. has been for the welfare and social interests of the young men of the village by maintaining club rooms which would reflect credit upon a village five times the size of Barrington.

THE VILLAGE BOARD

Holds Regular Monthly Session and Transacts Routine Business.

The village board of trustees met in regular session Monday evening, all members being present except Trustee Peters. Minutes of previous meeting and treasurer's report for month of July were read and approved.

Current bills for past month amounting to $339.17, were allowed on motion of Trustee Donica.

The Volunteer Fire Department recommended that James McKay be appointed chief of that department and the appointment was made.

The Chicago & Northwestern Ry. company asked permission to build toilet rooms east of the depot. The request was granted.

The annual tax levy ordinance was passed which provides for a levy of $4.00 being the same amount levied last year.

The street committee was empowered to get the necessary material for the repair of the crosswalks.

There being no further business the board adjourned.

Barrington Local Happenings Told in Short Paragraphs

Samuel Lipsky, of Nunda, visited here Tuesday.

Lake county's big fair opens at Libertyville September 8th.

Ben. Schroeder is employed as assistant to A. T. Ullrich at the depot this week.

Miss Rose Volker, cashier in A. W. Meyer's store is enjoying a two week's vacation.

Miss Gladys Lines, of Chicago has been the guest of Miss Florence Peck this week.

Raymond & Co. has succeeded J. H. Forbes in the proprietorship of "The Suburban."

Mrs. R. H. Scott is at Milwaukee with her sister, Mrs. Lowe, who is critically ill.

J. T. Jones, of Chicago, was here on business connected with his properties, Tuesday.

Will Voss is back at the Northwestern station attending to his duties as day operator.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rohoff, of Lake street, last night, Aug. 10.

A. W. Meyer and family returned Sunday from an extended visit with relatives in Iowa.

Miss Clara and George Wilmer left Sunday for Oak Park, where they will visit with friends.

Miss Jennie Fletcher returned home Tuesday, after a pleasant ten days' visit in Milwaukee.

Miss Elsie Costello had the misfortune to scald three fingers of right hand last Saturday.

Mrs. Will Lamphere and Mrs. Vincent Davlin, of Wauconda, visited relatives here Monday.

Mrs. Geo. J. Schoppe, of Chicago, is visiting with friends in Denver, Colo. for a few weeks.

The Methodist Sunday school will picnic on the Robertson grounds at Lake Zurich tomorrow.

The Salem Sunday school expects to hold its annual picnic at the camp grounds, Thursday, August 23.

Employees of Barnhart Bros. & Spence, of Chicago, held their annual picnic at Fox River Grove, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Heimerding and children, from Oak Park, spent a few days visiting Barrington friends.

Mrs. M. J. Colekin, who has been visiting friends in Chicago for the past three weeks, is expected home soon.

The Friday Pleasure club are playing cards this afternoon on the lawn of Emil Ficke's home at Lake Zurich.

Paul Miller and G. W. Foreman attended a meeting of the Liquor Dealers' association at Waukegan, Monday.

Mrs. Ray Frabritz is at home after a month's treatment at a Chicago hospital. She is greatly improved in health.

Lynan Powers has been enjoying the week with his family, who have been in camp at Lake Zurich for two weeks past.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wiseman and daughters, Malinda and Irene, spent Tuesday visiting Mrs. Albert Schultz, at Dundee.

Frank Foreman and Samuel Peters, who have been in the wilds of Wyoming for some weeks, are expected home Sunday.

The funeral of Mrs. Johanna Reese was held Sunday afternoon, and large lay attended. Interment was in the German cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Brockway, and Mrs. John Collen and family are at home after a two week's camp on the bank of Fox river.

Mrs. Banks, who has suffered of a tumor for some time, is at Passavant hospital, Chicago. Today physicians performed an operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. T. Martin go to Michigan City tomorrow where they will visit over Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Albricht.

Robert Purcell, who has been taking a lay-off for two weeks, has resumed his duties as engineer on the Pond du Lac passenger.

The Girls' Concert band of this village have engaged to furnish music at the McHenry County Fair, at Woodstock, Thursday, Aug. 31.

Miss Julia Lamey is enjoying her annual summer vacation. She is now at Niagara Falls, and will visit other points of interest in the east.

L. H. Bennett has leased Mrs. Glendon's cottage on South Hawley street and moved his household goods from the Bennett cottage on Hough street.

Mr. Earl Housholder, who has been visiting at the home of Mr. Fred Housholder the past two weeks, departed for his home in Bentonport, Iowa, Wednesday.

A cement walk has been laid in front of Abbott's drug store. It would be a great improvement if other property owners in that block would follow Mr. Abbott's idea.

We are in receipt of another interesting letter from William Dawson, who is now in the mining country on the Pacific coast. The letter will appear in next issue.

Mr. Minor Richards, of New York, and Charles Alston, of Alabama; also Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Johnson, of Chicago, were guests at the home of H. H. Hubbard during the past week.

J. W. Bennett and family, for the past year residents at Danvers, where Mr. Bennett superintended the county farm, return to Barrington and their home on Hough street tomorrow.

Richard Lytle, of Libertyville, has disposed of his property in that village, and will remove to this village. Mr. Lytle is well known to our people and will be royally welcomed as a citizen of Barrington.

A marriage license in the Chicago papers reads as follows: Edith Schroeder, 23, Barrington; Richard Delaney, 30, Downer's Grove. Miss Schroeder is a daughter of Mrs. Schroeder residing at Chicago Highlands.

A party of 15 Fresh Air Fund children from Chicago are enjoying country life on a section of the syndicate property. A matron from Chicago assisted by Mrs. Harry Porter are caring for the happy little folks.

Messrs. J. F. and Samuel Gleske visited at Lawrence and Hartford, Michigan last Saturday and Sunday, returning home Sunday. At Hartford they met Wm. Burkitt, a former resident, who is located in a pretty section, and doing well.

Mrs. Luella Austin and son Edwin, of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Robertson and family, Miss Georgia Topping, Grace Ols, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Ols, Messrs. Will Cannon, Geo. Ols, and Walter Cannon go into camp Monday at Busch's grove, Fox river.

It is reported that the union picnic of Woodmen, Court of Honor and Odd Fellows, of which there was so much talk, has been given up. Too much committee work with not enough interest taken in the proposed outing caused the abandonment of the pleasure.

Silas Robertson will visit his plantation at Carlisle, Ark., next week. Alderman Robertson says that yellow jack has no terrors for him, and that he is uncommonly healthy in that region. In order to start a cemetery in that country they borrow a corpse from a northern state.

In the early fall Hyland Hawley will remove from his present residence in Cook county to property lately acquired in Lake county. By his removal the office of county constable will become vacant. It is said that George Wagner will seek the place. Mr. Wagner would make a good officer.

The Metropolitan Business College of Chicago is very prosperous, and the fall term, which opens September 8th, promises to be more largely attended than any previous year. This is not surprising when it is remembered that the Metropolitan has a well established reputation as a thorough school.

For fifty years there has been a passenger depot at this station, but no toilet room in connection. At last the railway company has listened to the voice of necessity and will build toilet rooms somewhere on its right-of-way near the depot. The patrons are thankful for small favors, large ones in proportion. Improvements come slow but they come. Now if it takes fifty years time to build two 3 by 4 feet matched lumber toilet rooms, how long will it take to build a modern brick depot building to care for the passenger traffic here?

A woman's idea of a dutiful husband is one who will stay at home and look after the baby while she spends the afternoon playing ginch for a 10 cent place.—L. H. Bennett.

CAUGHT JOHN SCOTT.

He Had Stolen Goods in His Possession From Stores Robbed.

A young man giving the name of John Scott, age 22, residence Denver, Colo., was apprehended near Des Moines last Saturday, found to have a portion of the goods stolen from the stores of W. F. Meyer and L. F. Schroeder, the previous Sunday night, in his possession.

He was brought to this village on the noon train by Marshal Donah and locked up. At 8 o'clock he was arraigned before Justice Alverson and the hearing continued until Monday at one o'clock.

The prisoner did not plead guilty at the preliminary hearing, nor was any evidence introduced to show that he had committed the burglary. Goods taken from the stores entered were found in his possession. He was unable to give a clear account of himself and the court held him in bonds to the grand jury. Unable to secure the bonds he was committed to the Lake County jail at Waukegan Tuesday.

Scott says that Sunday night, July 30, when the burglary was committed, he ate supper in Madison, Wis., and if he had means could prove an alibi. He went to Chicago during the week, fell in with a gang on the West Side. The gang made some arrangement to unearth some booty located out near Des Moines; he assisted in the job and was unfortunate enough to get caught with the goods.

Ed. Rhodes, proprietor of the Barrington restaurant, says that Scott ate supper at his place last Saturday night. No one else remembers seeing Scott or any other stranger in or about the village the night in question, and no suspicious characters were about Sunday. However, the circumstances seem to fasten on the young man arrested.

The grand jury convenes the first week in October when Scott's case will be considered.

When it comes to struggling against the inevitable, the bald-headed man is a class all by himself.—Lyman A. Powers.

Another Remedy.

A local lawyer and observer of trees and the dangers that beset them has been paying great attention to the cotton maple scale that is now sapling the life of the soft maple. He notices among other things that the hard maple is untouched.

But the most significant fact is that where there are electric wires among the branches of the soft maple there are no scales. The tree may be covered with the downy appearing pest in other places, but in the neighborhood of the wires this man asserts the scale is lacking.

In view of this observation he suggests that an electric current properly applied to the afflicted soft maples might exterminate the pest and suggest apparatus of two poles with wires running their length and dampened sponges on the ends to give a gentle current.

Shurtleff Not to Run.

Friends of Edw. D. Shurtleff, of Marengo, speaker of the last legislature, deny that he will be a candidate for state treasurer. Mr. Shurtleff's friends assert that he made an excellent record in the last general assembly, and will boom him for speaker in 1907.

Postmaster M. F. Walsh, of Harvard, says Mr. Shurtleff doubtless could get the support of most Northern Illinois counties for state treasurer but predicts he will be nominated for the legislature. Inasmuch as Senator Tiffany of Lake county is a hold-over there will be no objection to Shurtleff going back to the house.—Chronicle.

The Wauconda Leader of today says that Henry Hughes of that place is critically ill and no hopes are given for his recovery.

Fleishish Suffering

is often caused by sores, ulcers and cankers, that eat away your skin. W. H. Fick of Rock, Mich., says: "I have used Buckle's Arnica Salve for ulcers, sores and cankers. It is the best healer I ever found." Soothers and heals cuts, burns and scalds. 25c. at Barrington Pharmacy; guaranteed.

WAUCONDA MENTION.

Succinctly Told by Our Regular Correspondent.

Elmer Duers was a Chicago visitor last Friday.

T. H. Graham transacted business in the city Monday.

Claude M. Marvin, of Waukegan, was a Sunday caller.

Mrs. D. H. Murphy visited relatives at Highland, Tuesday.

Mrs. C. L. Pratt is spending the week with Chicago relatives.

E. L. Harrison spent Sunday and Monday with Chicago friends.

Mr. Himes, of Chicago, was the guest of Lee Brown last week.

Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Graham visited with Barrington relatives Sunday.

Geo. Block and Dr. Diederich, of Chicago, spent Sunday with friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Duham and family are entertaining company from the city this week.

Miss Florence Kiew, of Nunda, was the guest of Miss Elsie Duers the first of the week.

Dr. and Mrs. Chas. McCauley, of Aberdeen, S. Dak., are the guests of Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Sowles at present writing.

Enough money has been subscribed to purchase the bell for the Catholic church, and we expect to hear it ring in a short time.

Miss Hattie Lamphere has returned to her home at McHenry, after a few days' visit at the home of her brother Will, and family.

The base ball game last Sunday afternoon—Married Men vs. Single Men—was a hotly contested affair and, owing to Fred Basley's good pitching, was won by the latter. Score was 11 to 7.

Just Like Other Cows.

The bawling of cows at midnight and the unusual awning of thousands of flies during the day have caused residents of Lake Forest to rise in angry protest against the "society" dairymen of Mrs. Scott Durand, who recently launched into the dairy business "for the pleasure of it."

All Name is placed on the cows of Mrs. Durand, and so offensive have they become of late that a petition signed by seven property owners, and said to be backed by the wealthiest people of the suburb, was presented to the city council of Lake Forest Monday night at the weekly meeting, asking that she be forced to desist from her new venture.

The people of Lake Forest are very, very asthetic.

Away From Home.

While the well-conducted newspaper is published in the vicinity where it is appreciated, the full extent of such appreciation is felt by those who leave behind. The distance lends enchantment is proved by the many words of praise found in the letters renewing subscriptions.

When a man pulls up stakes and shakes the dust from his shoes from the old home to seek pastures new, he naturally has a hankering to know what is going on at the place he has left behind, who is getting married, the business changes, the improvements and the many other items of local interest which the paper furnishes.

The home paper forms an important connecting link between the home left behind and the present abode, and when the time comes for a visit home the persons who have kept posted on the old home lake been enjoyment in looking up the changes of which they have been kept informed.

LAKE ZURICH NEWS.

Quite a number of tents are pitched in Bruce's Oak camp.

Mrs. E. A. Ficke entertained a few Chicago friends this week.

Mrs. Mary Larsen, from Chicago, is visiting at Mr. J. Dickson.

Mrs. Wm. C. Bickman and son were visiting in Chicago, this week.

The farmers report a good crop of oats this year, and lots of straw.

The Cinch club, of Barrington, will play at Mrs. E. A. Ficke's, Friday.

E. Frank is helping his brother in the harvest fields this week, and he has no card.

The Lake Zurich church choir will give a social at the Oak Park pavilion Wednesday evening, commencing at 8 o'clock.

Russia's Big Man, Witte.

Sergius Witte, ex-ambassador of Russia and head of the peace embassy, is one of the few influential men of the empire who has risen from the people. Originally a railway clerk, he has worked his way up and is a practical man of affairs, wielding great moral and intellectual force in Russian officialdom.

Witte's role in Russia is unique. He is a Russian of Dutch descent and has had the manliness to quarrel with the czar and with the clique which is all powerful in the palace. While affiliating with the autocrats, he has not failed to keep a skilled hand upon the pulse of the masses from which he springs. He knows the temper of the people and long ago arrived at the conclusion that absolutism is doomed.

The climax in Witte's career came when he stubbornly opposed the czar's far eastern policy. He opposed the Russian plans of conquest in Korea and Manchuria, the seizure of Port Arthur and in general every act tending to provoke Japan. Instead of making an enemy of the Japanese he advised the czar to cultivate their friendship. He received humiliation and a loss of position for his pains.

Witte has always been a sturdy foe to reaction. He denounced the Kishineff massacres, defeated for a time the Russification of the Finnish army and saved the universities from persecution. He believes in the people and, what is more, stands for the moral rights of the people as derived from a higher law than that of the backward empire. If Russia is to be trusted because of the possibilities in her people, Sergius Witte is a representative to listen to and to look to as her guide. He has been pronounced the "living bridge between autocracy and constitutionalism, possibly the only bridge autocracy can cross safely."

The "Lid" in Canada.

Readers who are curious to know what goes to the making of a "wild political revel" among our northern neighbors are referred to the menu here quoted, which was recently enjoyed at a picnic given by a Liberal member of parliament to his constituents in London, Ont. The edibles, potatoes, etc., disposed of, by, say, 5,000 voters and their families, were as follows:

2,000 sandwiches.
400 layer cakes.
100 angel cakes.
50 jelly rolls.
20 gallons vanilla ice cream.
500 frozen bananas.
100 frozen lemons.
100 frozen ginger ale.
20 dozen lemon sour.
20 dozen alfalfa beer.
20 dozen raspberry for the blood.
20 dozen soda water.
1,000 cigars.
5,000 boxes of candies.

The spread looks very innocent to outsiders, but the opposition party press of the district took a different view and denounced the excursion in such terms as "restauranteau" and "wild political revel." The sports indulged in were in keeping with the menu, and, with the exception of the cigars, the whole affair suggests a Sunday school outing. Evidently party feeling is very bitter or the "lid" is down very tight in the province of Ontario.

An American who has been abroad for some years is struck with the rage for putting handles to names which is now prevalent in this country. He observes that in his lifetime Daniel Webster was simply Mr. Webster and not "Senator" Webster. Not content with giving high political titles, many now have the custom of tacking on the name of the simplest offices and callings—as "counsellor," "selectman," "forecaster," and even "conductor." The highest official titles, both civil and military, titles are reserved for formal occasions, when they mean something.

Collier's Weekly lands hard upon the much used proverb, "Exceptions prove the rule," declaring it to be nonsense. The origin of the saying is traced to a maxim in Scottish law to the effect that exceptio probat regulam, in which "probat" does not mean "proves," but "tests," and "regulam" does not mean "rule," but "ruling." When the ruling of a judge is questioned by filing an exception, the ruling is tested by a decision on the exception; hence "The exception tests the ruling" would be the proper rendering and one having little application in everyday affairs.

Closely following the death of an American who fell from a flying machine while making a trial trip came the report of two successful trips in Europe. The fact that the same principle was the feature of each machine may mean that the secret of the bird may have been found, and if properly applied, the problem of aerial navigation will be solved.

Capitelle Flammarion, the French astronomer, would probably find it much easier to get the world to accept with alacrity that new calendar of his if he would only insert two or three October days in every week of the summer months.

Yes, John Paul Jones at one time was in the Russian navy, but as that was over 100 years ago it cannot reflect upon his fame as an able fighter.

Anglo-Saxons, etc., etc.

Some recent changes in Great Britain's defensive policy, by which she leaves her Atlantic and northern Pacific seaboard practically undefended, are considered by Sir Charles Dilke, the reform leader, in the London Standard. Sir Charles is not a steadfast advocate of disarmament on the part of England, but he thinks that his country and ours will never again wage war upon each other. To quote:

It would be an exaggeration to pretend that we have entirely disarmed toward the United States any more than we have toward any other country. The United States is a power which has become vulnerable by setting up colonies across the seas. No one suggests, however, either that we covet these colonies or that the lines of them would weigh heavily in the terms of peace that might follow any possible war. Canada as a self respecting state has an excellent military college and is slowly improving her militia without, however, either setting up a regular force or buying arms on a scale which can for a moment compare with the establishment of the great British empire. Substantially, the fact remains that the British government has shown its profound belief in the stability of the present friendly and, indeed, excellent relations which exist between ourselves and the United States and in the community of interests between the two great English speaking powers.

In the opinion of Sir Charles the present understanding between France, England and America will last and eventually lead to a disarmament in the Pacific.

We could name one prominent gentleman who would not doubt be glad to help Ida M. Tarbell fit up a north pole expedition, provided she agreed to go at the head of it.

With a peace conference and a Panama canal on hand the president has less than the average vacationist's leisure for swinging in a hammock.

7:30 o'clock. The Lake Zurich song will be sung for the first time. Refreshments served. Everybody is invited.

The dance given at the pavilion in Oak Park last evening was attended by fifty couple. Music was furnished by Eversoll's orchestra of Joliet with Mr. Hertel, of Half Day, as accompanist. A pleasant evening was passed by all present. Barrington was well represented.

LAKE ZURICH, IND., BY S. HENRICH. Not so far from Chicago, miles about thirty-three. Is a nice little village like a wonder to see. There are beautiful girls, many boys, babies too. Married couples are happy, not divorced, they are true.

Chorus: O sweet little village, my heart is in thee, My love there is bound, so I never am free! There are houses with comfort so cozy and quiet, In the garden with flowers and shrubs on the side. They are smelling so sweet in the flowering days, When the butterfly jingles in the sun-shiny rays.

Let us go to the lake like a heavenly eye, I will show you the waters waving restless and shy; On the face there is dancing the fisherman's boat, And the summer geese bathing and swim in the float.

And a park there is too and so many good things And a school and a church where the choir-singer sings, A hotel and a stage and some stores and a hall And a golf club, a railroad, fresh water for all. You are asking the name of the village so sweet Where the weeks so fast go and the months to fast feet, Thirty miles from Chicago, northwest in the bent— Lake Zurich is the name; and my song has an end.

Northern Tilters in Panama. A trained nurse who recently returned from a trial in Panama declared that she was done forever with the isthmus. She said that stories of the evils there had been exaggerated, for the country has no charge for her. Many people who were densely ignorant of the conditions of life near the equator have sought employment in connection with the great canal, expecting an easy time and a rich reward. A few weeks dispel the illusions.

The work of getting laborers for the canal will be solved in some way, for there are tollers in the tropics to be had at liberal pay. But men of mechanical skill and intellect to direct the details of the great enterprise is another matter. The activities of the tropics do not furnish them, and hundreds of Americans—thousands before the canal is finished—will be needed in different capacities. The truth should be told to all natives who wish to engage, and with proper warning many will be saved and needless sinners dissipated.

The isthmus of Panama cannot be converted into a health resort. It is an isthmus and not comparable to the island of Cuba, which is naturally salubrious. The work of sanitation will be pushed, but the region can never be suitable for Americans to work in at hand labor. Men of adventurous spirit have gone from the north to the tropics and succeeded. Perhaps if the appeal is laid before the right kind of men new recruits will come forward and the work go through within a reasonable time.

The North-Western Line. One of the most interesting series of articles on the subject of the great railways of the country that has appeared recently, is that from the pen of Frank H. Spearman, recently published in the Saturday Evening Post, and since printed in book form by Scribner's. The chapter descriptive of the Chicago & Northwestern Ry. has been published by the passenger department of that line in pamphlet form for general distribution, and will be sent to any address on receipt of 2 cents in postage.

W. R. KINSKERN, P. T. M.

Strenuous Literature. Jack London's new book, "The Game," is said to be replete with the "brute incident" which proves so attractive in literature. Commenting upon this, the critic of the London Telegraph, W. L. Courtney, says:

I cannot do better than quote the many words of Tom Hughes: "It is no good for quakers or any other body of men to uplift their voices against fate." Human nature is too strong for them, and they do not follow their own precepts. Every soul of them is doing his own piece of fighting somehow or somewhere. The world might be a better world without fighting, for anything I know, but I'd a deal sooner see them doing that than that they should have no fight in them. And so I say that "The Game," by Jack London, is a good book and well worth reading, even though it here be a prize fighter and its theme often considered below the dignity of literature.

The question may be raised whether the adventures of this class of book are not the very ones who have no fight in them and take it out in reading about it. Soldiers take delight in the domestic romance where they find life the very opposite of what it is with them in the field. If lovers of realism in books are of the spiritless kind, who never muster up courage to face it in life, the reading of strenuous literature is not for them an inspiration, but a mental dissipation.

London's Ancient Wall.

Doubt is sometimes expressed whether the foundations of modern structures built at enormous cost will endure long enough to justify the investment. If properly built they will last for thousands of years, judging from the discoveries made in the excavations for the renovation in London. A portion of the wall which was built around old London by the Romans is now being destroyed. The part which has been laid bare is seven feet in height and has a thickness of eight and a half feet, and about fifty feet of its length has been exposed. The Roman wall is founded on gray slit, and at the bottom is a course of flints and clay. Upon these are built up two layers of stout burned tiles of the common Roman pattern, and then comes rough dressed masonry. The tiles and the masonry alternate. In the seven feet of the wall's height there are three courses of each, held together by cement, which is so firm that it blunts the tools of the workmen who are endeavoring to destroy it. Throughout the neighborhood this wall serves as the foundation for modern buildings. The offices adjoining the excavations now complicated by the wall's presence are in part supported on it.

The Pacific Northwest.

A complete and interesting presentation of the scenic beauty and the rich natural resources and rapid growth of the Pacific Northwest are set forth in a beautifully illustrated booklet recently issued by the Chicago & North-Western Ry., which will be sent to any address on receipt of 4 cents in stamps.

The Lewis and Clark Exposition, with the very low excursion rates and personally conducted tours in connection therewith over the North-Western Line from Chicago and the east, have created an interest in this subject never before equalled. For full particulars address W. B. Kinsker, P. T. M., 215 Jackson Boulevard, Chicago.

There is but one real goodness in mankind—the perfectly square deal or the "live and let live" policy.

There are all too many men who when they get mad will take it out of their wives, their horses or hired help.

The dual purpose sheep is far more of a success than the sheep whose cow. In fact, no sheep will pay to keep unless it is a mutton as well as a wool producer.

There never was a better time than now to buy some good stock. The day of fancy prices for thoroughbred animals is over, and there is less excuse for having the farm stocked with scrubs than ever before.

If the game preserves and deer parks of Great Britain could only be used by the common people to produce food it would greatly relieve the poverty of that country. It takes a lot of paupers to support one lord.

Many people have to study simplicity in the matter of living because of poverty. It is simply because they have to and not because they want to. Some people seem to think that the chief use of money is to make a splash with it.

The new method of smoothing and working the dirt roads has awakened an unlooked for amount of enthusiasm. Hundreds of men who heretofore have hated to do road work now cheerfully doing a lot of volunteer work to improve the highways along their farms.

The principal and best result which will accrue from the seed corn campaign of last winter will undoubtedly be that corn growers will be induced to gather their supply of seed corn this fall before the frost hits it and by giving it proper care by the fall sowing of seed of perfect germinating power.

For one day in the year the American people make a great fuss over the American eagle—"pride bird" and all that—and then turn around and kill every one they see the balance of the year. This shooting of these birds is a piece of barbarism anyway. So rare that they attract attention whenever seen, why should they be killed?

From an artistic standpoint there is no beauty of form or expression in a camel or an elephant, a donkey or a llama, while the best types of the domestic animals of civilized peoples are just the reverse. It would be hard to find anything more beautiful or expressive than the head of a thoroughbred horse, a Jersey cow or a well bred dog.

Just as this is written it is a very early and aggravating time for securing the hay crop. Not one-half of a very large crop will be secured as good forage. When a man gets a silo he is entirely exempt from this trouble, for no matter how much rain may fall while he is filling the silo it never does more harm than simply to hinder the work; the silage is always good, whether put in wet or dry.

We know of hundreds of farmers who would be rid of debt, make more money and enjoy life a hundred per cent more if they would just sell half the land they nominally own. There is an immense satisfaction in getting up in the morning and looking over the farm and crops and feeling that it is all your own and that you own no man a dollar. Some men never enjoy this pleasure in all their lives.

The attention of railway companies is called to the great use of sweet clover as a binder for the earth on all cuts and fills. It fills the ground with a network of fibrous roots and will grow most luxuriantly on steep and most barren slopes. It is also self-perpetuating, and once introduced spreads rapidly and permanently. Where it grows no washing of the soil is possible. It is by all odds the best of any of our grasses for this purpose.

A prominent electrical expert makes the assertion that the windmill with a steel tower is safer than lightning. In this he is mistaken, for we know of one which provoked a great display of electrical fireworks two years ago. It is by the pump rod was of wood, as many of the legs of the tower were fastened to wooden posts set in the ground, as is usually the case, there would be no good earth connection, and the steel tower would make a good mark for the lightning.

A friend asks us to tell him whether there is any place for the college graduate on the farm. The answer is, of course, there is. It never hurts an educated man to come in contact with the soil, though at first it may hurt the soil. The college bred man will be quick to see and avail himself of every help possible and will take more readily because of his training to new and improved methods of doing farm work. The earth has a rich reward for the very best intelligent effort man can apply to it.

Dragging Down Pains

are a symptom of the most serious trouble which can attack a woman, viz: falling of the womb. With this, generally, comes irregular and painful periods, weakening drains, backache, headache, nervousness, dizziness, irritability, tired feeling, etc. The cure is that wonderful, curative, vegetable extract, which exerts such a marvelous, strengthening influence, on all female organs. Cardui relieves pain and regulates the menses. It is a sure and permanent cure for all female complaints, and does not suffer as it is the best medicine I ever took.

WINE OF Cardui

The Female Regulator

"I SUFFERED AWFUL PAIN in my womb and ovaries," writes Mrs. M. C. Hale, of Webster Grove, Mo. "Also in my right and left sides, and my menses were very painful and irregular. Since taking Cardui I feel like a new woman and do not suffer as I did. It is the best medicine I ever took."

Our very worst pains are nearly all improved ones. So with our kind, instant and certain relief, the human body is well.

We note that one make of farm equipment is advertised as low as $25. Cheap as this seems to be, it is probably not the best kind to invest in after all.

A friend of ours makes a plea for the dandelion on the ground of its earliness, reliability and artistic beauty. Art is a great thing, but the truth about the dandelion is an unmitigated nuisance.

A little work with the mower in the pasture just now will greatly discourage the weeds and improve the fall feed. Not even the worst and toughest weeds like to be cut down just as they get ready to bloom.

It is better for the pasture, improves feed and is better for the stock to divide the pasture and let one half rest while the other half is being fed. Not even the worst and toughest weeds like to be cut down just as they get ready to bloom.

Ensilage is much less costly to put up for a steaming winter forage than feed of any kind, and it is much costlier preserved well fed out, and it is equally as palatable and nutritious. An acre of corn prepared as ensilage is almost doubled in feeding value.

Some one has figured out that the bees have to visit 1,000,000 clover blossoms in order to extract a single pound of honey. Still we know of fields of wild clover in the far west of July that would furnish a thousand pounds of honey if it was all gathered.

The Angus cattle lead all others in price obtained at the auction sales. In the number of prizes awarded at shows and in the ability to command the top of the market as beef animals. These are a pure beef breed and have nothing to commend them as dairy animals.

The earliest possible crop with a favorable season is sixty bushels of corn to the acre. Still not one man in twenty attains this. What with poor seed, poorly prepared soil, insufficient cultivation, poor planting, the average crop of the whole growing states is less than half the possible crop.

There are altogether too many people who are satisfied if they can at the end of the year just get out and make both ends meet. While this is in a way better than running behind, a man should have ambition to do something better than the average. He should be connected with saving even so small an amount as $50 a year.

The average man has no conception of the vastness of the possible wheat fields of the far northwest. There is an empire in western Canada where wheat for the whole world could be easily produced. Land which will produce an average crop of twenty bushels per acre of No. 1 hard wheat for ten years in succession is there in area as large as all the New England states put together.

Cotton, which seemed to be over-produced last winter and much of which was not picked, is up again to 11 cents a pound, which is the same as far as profit to the producer is concerned, as would be 70 cents for corn or $7 per hundredweight for pork. Every effort would be to restrict the acreage planted to cotton this year, and now the men who did this wish they had not done so.

We saw some real skin milk calves the other day. We doubt if they had ever tasted whole milk. They looked just like the poor little orphans at the English workhouse so well described by Dickens. It is all a mistake to try to raise a calf on nothing but milk. The most skin milk from the start. They might have been the best bred animals in the country, yet the want of proper food makes scrubs of them.

The great trouble with the American people today is that they all want to get rich in a hurry, can't be content with slow and safe gains. Nine-tenths of them commence speculating and gambling as soon as they can reach up to drop a nickel in a slot machine and keep the thing up as long as they live and die poor. The old fashioned way of being content with moderate profits in the doing of a legitimate business is almost out of date.

Two hundred miles to a creamery is getting to be a common thing as the cream is being shipped to a central creamery plant, which converts it into butter. The cost of shipment is about a cent a pound for the butter it will make, which is as small a sum as it can be gathered for and delivered to a home creamery. This plan is opening up great possibilities for the dairy farmer in healthful climates where cows have never heretofore been kept.

The bicycle, which for a few years formed the center of the world of the sporting events of the country, has completely fallen from its high position and is valued today solely as a utility machine. It is being regarded as the most valuable vehicle we have not heard of a scratcher for nearly two years, and, if anything, the machines are more popular out in the country districts than in the cities. The auto now monopolizes public attention as a sporting craze. This in time will follow the bicycle; it will become cheaper in price for the country horse, get used to it, and it will take its place as one of the most valuable means of locomotion ever devised.

GETTING AHEAD.

We are asked by a young man how is the best way for him to get ahead in the world. He says he does not want to become a very rich man, but would like to accumulate enough property so as to be able to enjoy life. The recipe has been often given and as seldom followed, otherwise there would not be so many poor people in the world. Commencing poor, it is, first, self-denial, often of the ancient martyr type; then saving a little at a time; then a right valuation of one's credit; always keeping it as a well protected reserve asset; then everlasting industry, day and night, too, when one is young and tough; after a little getting money in work for a while and being a lender rather than a borrower; coupled with all this an honesty in business which is indispensable. There must also be good sense used in the matter of getting married, the choice of a business, investments and the like, for it is not always that men are both honest and sensible. Then there should be contentment with small gains and small savings, for the most enduring fortunes are built up a little at a time. But money alone will not make the really successful man.

FEEDING CROPS OFF.

Aside from feeding off the grass in the pasture and the stalks in the field no attempt is made in this country to feed crops off on the land where they were produced. More might be done in this line to great advantage. The clover, the turnip crop, the vetch crop, the rape crop, are all fed in the field in England by the hindle system, which is the enclosing of a part of the field with hurdles or a light movable fence, sheep proof, to the manifest saving in the harvesting of the crop and the great benefit accruing from the thorough fertilization of the soil. Two years ago a man in South Feis, Iowa, with eighty acres of corn turned in 12,000 sheep along in September and let them harvest the crop, which was done with very great success and economy. He got a good price for his corn, got rid of the weeds and so cleaned up and fertilized the land that it was in the best possible condition for another crop. There was scarcely any waste in the doing of it either, the fall being dry. Had it been wet, it would have been different.

PIONEER DAYS.

Whatever the future may bring, it will never bring back the old pioneer days—the days of the prairie fires, the logging bees, the sugar making, the going to mill and market, when a man did his family's necessities as well, calculating to sleep under a wagon for a week; when the meat supply was obtained by the gun and the fish supply; when prairie chickens, mallard and canvasback duck wild geese and brant were everyday fare and a barrel of fish the reward of a night's fishing; when folk went visiting, took their bedding with them and stayed for two days; when all were poor alike and all farm tools, books, even food, common property; when a box of clothing from some eastern friends was a godsend and the trade of the pioneer community was mostly barter with furs as a cash producing commodity; when the houses were of logs or of sod and a were honest and healthy. With the attempt to hard ship, there are far worse times than these old pioneer days.

THE LITTLE GIRL'S GARDEN.

She was a little girl only twelve years old and small for her age at that, but she was full of enterprise and snap, and, tiring of dolls and the like, she persuaded her father to let her have a garden of her own. She had the pleasure of seeing this garden in early July. There was not a single weed to be found in it, and there was a fine assortment of vegetables of the most thrifty sort, peas, beans, pots, atoes, tomatoes, cucumbers, radish lettuce, cabbage, all nicely cared for and our little friend was just as proud of her success as would be the owner of a fine half section farm. And this work for the little girl was in every way beneficial and helpful to her. She has become greatly interested in a more staid and intends to enlarge her work next year to include flowers and poultry. She might have practiced on a piano or done some sort of fancy needlework when she was working in her garden, but we doubt if she would have done as well.

SILAGE.

There have been many changes of opinion touching the proper time to cut up field corn with which to fill the silo. When the silo first appeared as a winter forage factor it was supposed that the corn must be very juicy and green, and so varieties of corn giving a great growth of stalks were used. This used to fill the silo in a very limited quantity. This made a silage of a sticky character, which gave rise to nearly all the objections which have been urged against ensilage as a ration. Later it was found out that there was nothing better out of which to make ensilage than just common field corn, and that this should be allowed to remain in the field until almost ripe before being used, even to the point of having the leaves and husks overripe. This sort of ensilage being dry and carrying a larger per cent of nutritive value than when made of immature corn.

RAILWAY RATE PROBLEM

Why Trainmen Oppose Control by Government Commission.

P. H. MORRISSEY'S EXPLANATION.

No Necessary Stand, Says Grand Master of Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, For Wage Cutting Would Not Follow Rate Reduction. Disorganization and Alleged Reckless, He Says, Come From Trusts.

P. H. Morrissey, grand master of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, discussing at Cleveland, O., with a representative of the New York Globe what he considers the most important matter now before railroad employees, the proposition to regulate railroad rates by a government commission, said:

"The strength of unions has developed in the United States, and particularly that of railroad unions, because of their ability to demonstrate to the railroad officials the soundness of any proposition it may be necessary to present. By care selection of members and by presenting only proper claims the unions have arrived at a position where the railroad officials then the more because they have shown that there is a mutual interest between the railroad management and the unions. It is this mutuality of interest that leads me to depart from our usual custom and discuss this railroad rate regulation, although as a rule I am averse to newspaper controversy.

"Road employees cannot expect high wages and reasonable hours unless the railroads are making money. It has been stated that if rates were reduced, and rate regulation means nothing else, the first reduction in expense would be a cut in wages. This is not so, and proper consideration of the situation will prove it. The railroads realize the necessity of employing intelligent, experienced men and of having them satisfied both with their work and with their wages. The result of a cut in wages would be to nearly all the objections which have been urged against ensilage as a ration. Later it was found out that there was nothing better out of which to make ensilage than just common field corn, and that this should be allowed to remain in the field until almost ripe before being used, even to the point of having the leaves and husks overripe. This sort of ensilage being dry and carrying a larger per cent of nutritive value than when made of immature corn.

"The railroads would never do this, if for no other reason than because they appreciate that the pecuniary disadvantages which would result from the employment of incompetent men would more than offset the difference between the wages now paid and those which would be paid if a cut were made. So it is not from the viewpoint of immediate personal injury that we are earnest in discussing this matter, but from the viewpoint of the greatest good to the greatest number.

"Those of us who have been in the service ten or twenty years remember the hard times of the railroad wars and the cut rate periods. We perhaps better than the shipper, were impressed with the disadvantages resulting therefrom. We had to handle defective cars and attempt to move trains with locomotives which needed repairs. At times and on some railroads we wait for months with but part of our pay, and we know how disastrous and disorganizing such a situation is.

In the past ten years we have seen the railroads rebuilt and re-equipped. We have assisted, in fact, I do not think it is too strong to say we have forced better wages for the men and the employment of a better class of men, and during this time the public has not suffered, because rates have not been increased.

"Because railroads have been able to do the money with which to rebuild tracks and buy new cars and locomotives without raising the rate is no argument that if the rates be reduced they will be able to continue to do so. We are in constant touch with and know all the patrons of the railroads. We know the shippers and the travelers, and we know the patrons of the railroads which we serve are satisfied with the present passenger and freight rates. The discriminations which we hear about, the alleged relates and things of that kind, come principally from the greedy trusts, and we are not overanxious to assist them."

CHAPTER VII

The Forged Check.
Lang, after leaving Regan, wended his way to the residence of Jim Denver.

Being admitted, not a word was spoken until the twins were safe from eavesdroppers in the detective's private sleeping apartment.

"Well," queried Denver, taking a seat upon the edge of the bed, preparing himself to listen to Lang's story.

"I have made my boast," said Louis, flushed with excitement now that the time for real action had arrived, "that I could rob a bank in the morning. How am I to do it?"

"Forgery! my boy, forgery!" cried the detective, slapping Lang on the back. "You have the nerve to pass a forged check—a forged check that is not forged!"

"I am at a loss to understand you as yet."

"It is easy enough," said Denver's reply, setting himself at his writing desk and filling out a check from his book. "You arrive at my office in the morning, timing yourself so that you are there while Regan is in my room. I will then fill out a check for you in this manner," showing his protégé a check for ten dollars, made out in his usual open, sprawling style.

"An expert penman could easily 'raise' this check if he wanted to," continued Denver, writing another check, "and make it look like this new one," showing Jim a check for ten thousand dollars. "What is to hinder you from keeping this check for the ten thousand dollars? Nothing! I have the money in the bank, and the bank people will cash it if presented. In the morning after receiving your check for ten dollars, you show it to Jack and make some remark about 'raising' it. Then you go to your room."

"I shall remain here until I receive either one thing or the other," said Lang firmly. He seated himself very coolly in the chair he had vacated upon the arrival of the cashier with the money.

The president cast an inquiring glance toward the cashier; the cashier returned his superior's look, and then both gazed intently at Lang. The young man had stored their test and ably; they were convinced of the genuineness of the note, yet were loath to cash it. While the officers were debating as to the policy of turning over the money, a rap was given upon the door, and the "janitor" entered.

"Detective Regan on the outside, sir. Shall I admit him?"

DEBUT OF TINY HEIRESS.
She Was Flower Girl at a Fashionable Church Wedding.

Little Katherine Mackay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay, arrayed in a dainty frock composed of lace which was said by the women present to be worth $10 a yard, and carrying a big basket of pink sweet peas, made what may be ascribed as her first appearance in public recently by acting as flower girl, along with the equally diminutive and similarly attired Kate Haven, at the wedding of Miss Marian Haven to Forsyth Wickes at St. Bartholomew's, says the New York American.

Miss Mackay's dress was of cream chiffon, with a finely cut yoke. On the shoulders were small capes of rose point, falling over short, puff sleeves, finished with a ruffle of lace. The belt was of lace, and the skirt made with groups of five tucks and had a ruffle of lace.

A large bow of white embroidered and lace-trimmed sash ribbon was fastened at the back of the belt; small white sandals were worn with white silk stockings. Instead of gloves, she wore white silk mittens.

Whiskey as is Whiskey.
A man in Cincinnati bought a barrel of whiskey thirty-five years ago and kept it in a third-story dry room, well ventilated, and in all the intervening years used only one pint for testing. There remain today only one and four-fifths gallon of the original thirty-five-year-old brandy, which is said to be the best in the world, and is being sold for $1,000 a gallon.

A violent windstorm which traveled over Herks county some time back saw fit to take with it an old shed wherein a certain blacksmith was wont to ply his trade. The blacksmith's determination to continue business in the open, pending the construction of a new building, caused not a little amusement among the neighboring farmers. One of these, driving along a day or two later, saw him limping toward him a horse, led by a disconsolate-looking individual, who, on drawing near, explained:

"My horse has lost a shoe. Can you tell me where I can find a blacksmith shop?"

"You are in the shop now," replied the other, facetiously, "but the devil is about two miles down the road." Philadelphia Ledger.

Philly became the calmer of the two. The cashier returned, holding in his hands a stack of greenbacks. Louis rose up to receive it from him.

"You have concluded to cash the check?" he asked with a sigh of relief.

"The president intercepted the package. 'I have decided not to cash it,' he said rather blantly.

"Why?" demanded Lang, resolved to force the issue.

"The check is a forgery!"

"All is lost!" thought Lang, but he did not flinch from the ordeal. "What makes you think so?" he asked while he tried to smile.

The banker hesitated; Lang noticed it. "You are oversteering your boat," he exclaimed. "And I shall sue you for any damage that may result from my not getting this money when I need it!"

"You can go any time you want to," added the president harshly. "I am not detaining you, and you should thank your lucky stars that I am so lenient with you."

"Very well," said Lang, a heavy feeling at his heart, realizing that he had lost his game. "You mean that you are not willing to run the risk of arresting me? However, well let that go. Give me the check."

"We cannot do that," said the banker decidedly.

"By what right do you presume to keep both the draft and the money? You go too far. If you retain the draft, what evidence have I that you will not swear that I have received the money? You have no right to expect me to trust you. If you do not trust me, and you must either arrest me as a forger or pay me the money."

"You are recognized as responsible agents," responded the banker, attempting to appease Lang. "And have a right to protect ourselves as well as Mr. Denver."

"I shall remain here until I receive either one thing or the other," said Lang firmly. He seated himself very coolly in the chair he had vacated upon the arrival of the cashier with the money.

HOW TO MAKE FRUITS ON THE FARM

It has been my observation that the farm that has on it a complete array of fruit-bearing trees, shrubs and vines is the farm that sells at a fancy price in the market. The ordinary farmer, if he has the money with which to purchase a farm, will pay a good deal more for one on which are the different kinds of fruits growing in considerable quantities than he will pay for a few farm buildings and barns.

The money value of a well-ordered farm is out of all proportion to the money that has been put into it. As an illustration of this I have in mind a little place on the edge of a neighboring village. A man had bought a lot for $200 and put on it a 1400 house. Then he spent a few August in trees of various kinds and set them out. He did not spend more, except live on the place for a few years and incidentally take care of the trees and shrubs. He told me that he thought he could get $500 or $700 for the place if he wanted to.

But in the meantime the little place had grown into a thing of beauty, and anyone passing would say that it had the best arranged yard on the street and that the shade trees were artistically arranged. A man living on the street was looking at the place and admiring it and asked the owner what he would take for it. "Oh, a thousand dollars," he replied, thinking this was a good price to ask for the place. But the other man quietly said, "I'll take the place," and he did.

The few years of growth in the trees and shrubs had made the place so attractive that the owner was growing into money while the owner was sleeping.

Fruits on the farm are no less enticing to the buyer, but on the other hand, the farmer who grows fruit crops that they seldom want to let go of it. If you wish to wear your family from the old place, don't plant fruit trees, fruit shrubs or vines—Milton Knight, Cherry Co., Neb., in Farmers Review.

Good Foliage, Good Fruit.
There is a saying among some orchardists that good foliage means good fruit. While this is not true in every respect, yet it is true that good foliage is necessary if we are to have a large amount of fruit. The growing apple cannot use food material that has come up through the tree directly from the roots. It must pass up through the tree and into the limbs and leaves, in which latter place it is combined with the carbon from the air, and is then ready to be carried back to the fruit into which it passes and is used in the development of the tender cells that form the flesh of the apple as well as every other part of it.

It is obvious, therefore, that the amount of fruit the tree can produce will be regulated largely by the amount of material that can be prepared in the leaves. Therefore, the more the leaves, the more the fruit. The leaves, in turn, are destroyed by the insects, and the preparation of food is stopped, and no more fruit can be developed. Many a farmer has seen his trees defoliated when the fruit was half grown, and has seen that fruit ripen without increasing in size. This was because of this same pest of the leaves. Therefore, the protection of the foliage becomes one of the most important objects of the intelligent orchardist. Therefore he sprays his trees with insecticides, and he uses the best insecticides that he can get, and he uses them during the entire growing season.

The Blight Spore.
Professor Craig, of Cornell University, has for several years been studying the cause of blight on fruit trees, shrubs and vines, and other fruits. No greater result has been obtained, and none more necessary to the understanding of blight, than the discovery of the character of the spore itself. It has always been supposed that blight spores were blown by the wind, and that certain warm winds, in moist weather, carried the spores to numerous trees, where they germinated quickly. But he has discovered that the spore is glutinous, that is, sticky, and is transported only by action of some moving object. The object most commonly used as a vehicle of adhesion for the spore is the honey bee. Hence the problem reduces to good beekeeping and keeping bees near the trees. The most popular sort of permittens have rings or grooves near the stems, which give them the appearance of having had strings tied around them when small and of having grown around the strings. The varieties in the southern and central portions of China are smooth, large and very good, and the permittens are picked green by the natives and ripened in lime. Thus ripened they have a firmness of flesh that is much esteemed. Various states, such as Anderson at Hangchow, China.

Opening of the Great Uintah Indian Reservation

President Roosevelt on July 15 signed the proclamation providing for the opening to homesteaders and low-price entry of the unallotted lands in the great Uintah Indian Reservation in Utah.

The Reservation contains 2,445,000 acres, but the Military and Forestry Reserves and such Mineral lands as have to be withdrawn under existing (144 acres) by written application to be made only on a blank form provided by the Commissioner of the General Land Office. Registration cannot be effected through the mails or by an agent, except in the case of homesteaders, discharged soldiers, or sailors, who may present their applications and due proofs of their qualifications through an agent of their laws will leave 1,059,000 acres available for entry.

Registration for the land will commence August 1st and close August 15th. Registration may be made at Grand Junction, Colo., and Vernal, Colo., and at the local land office. Price and Provo, Utah. Prospective settlers may register at any one of these places from 9:00 a. m. Tuesday, August 1st, until 6:00 p. m. Saturday, August 15th.

To obtain registration, each applicant must appear at one of the registration places and show himself duly qualified to make homestead entry.

own selection, having a duly executed power of attorney, on a blank for that purpose provided by the Commissioner. No person will be permitted to act as agent for more than one soldier or sailor, and no one will be allowed to register more than once or in any other than his true name.

The procedure necessary to secure lands in this great government reservation is outlined in detail in a pamphlet just issued by the Passenger Department, Bureau of Rio Grande Railroad. Write to S. K. Hooper, Gen'l P. & A., Denver, Colo.

Robert L. Gerry to Have Statue.
Another millionaire's son, Robert L. Gerry, son of Commodore Elbridge T. Gerry of New York, is the latest patron of the work of kings. He is the proud owner of a statue of King Joe. Gerry had contemplated such a move for a long time, but as his father was opposed to it he put it off from time to time. The delay only increased the desire to follow the lead of Harry Payne Whitney, Clarence H. Mackay and other rich young men in connection with Gerry's advent on the turf the report was spread that Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt would become his partner. Gerry and Vanderbilt are close friends. At the latter's wedding the former acted as best man.

Every housekeeper should know that if they will buy Defiance Cold Water Starch for laundry use they will save a great deal of time, because it never sticks to the iron, but because each package contains 16 oz.—one full pound—while all other Cold Water Starches are sold in 8-oz. packages, and the price is the same, 10 cents. Then again because Defiance Starch is free from all injurious chemicals. If your grocer tries to sell you a 16-oz. package it is because he has a stock on hand which he wishes to dispose of before he puts in Defiance. He knows that Defiance Starch has printed on every package in large letters and figures "16 oz." Demand Defiance and save much time and money and the annoyance of the iron sticking. Defiance never sticks.

Farming Made Pleasant.
In the Palouse wheat region they tell you such stories as these: One farmer on his sulky plow came to the end of his row just in time to meet his neighbor on his sulky plow who had come to the end of his row. "Have a cigar, John," he offered him a twenty-five cent perfect. Or this: A farmer came into town to ask at the bank for the address of a neighboring farmer who was traveling with his family for pleasure. The banker took down a series of telegrams and replied: "Yesterday he left Atlantic City for Newport. He will be there a week—August—World's Work."

Russians Seek American Aid.
The Russian government has sent to the California University College of Agriculture specimens of the famous "black earth" of European Russia, which is showing signs of deterioration. The Russians want the advice of the Berkeley scientists as to reviving it.

Over one million acres of land in the Uintah Indian reservation will be made available for homestead entry beginning August 1st, at Grand Junction, Colo., and Vernal, Colo., and at the local land office. Prospective settlers may register at any one of these places from 9:00 a. m. Tuesday, August 1st, until 6:00 p. m. Saturday, August 15th. To obtain registration, each applicant must appear at one of the registration places and show himself duly qualified to make homestead entry.

Every person thinking of visiting the Uintah Indian reservation in eastern Utah, should have a Homeowners Guide and map of the reservation. It is available for sale at the local land office. Write to S. K. Hooper, Gen'l P. & A., Denver, Colo.

Appleton physicians have declared war on carp, the foulest thing in the fish family, and declare that, inasmuch as they feed on sewage and refuse, they are responsible for the spread of typhoid fever. It has been definitely ascertained that many of the fever victims in that city had been in the habit of eating carp, which are very abundant in the lakes around Appleton and are crowding out for the more desirable fish. It may be that there is something in the theory, but for our part we fail to understand how the typhoid fever, or any other disease, could affect a person who had a stomach strong enough to tackle carp.

TOLD BY HADKNEY

Oh, the happy, happy farmer doesn't have to pay a cent
To a landlord who is heartless when he comes to claim his land.
He doesn't have to hurry out to catch the train, and then
Work as collector all the day the slave of other men;
And he doesn't when he's weary from the duties of the day,
Hurry to the city street station, dodging footpads on the way.

I have noticed that the women who wear patent leather oxfords and pretty open work lace shoes tread the bottom of their gowns soiled.

An attorney in this village was arguing a case before a local magistrate not long ago. He was very earnest in summing up his case and in a burst of eloquence said: "If this argument is not clear, your honor, I have another that is equally conclusive."

A police justice, who resides not so very far from this village, wears on his waistcoat a huge nickel star announcing in large letters his title and place of residence. The custom of large inscriptions of the police in the small villages is a new one. Of course such prominent representatives of the people are apt to get lost in such crowds as assemble on the street corners each evening. A 50 cent star is a mighty pretty ornament.

There has been no such excitement in this hall since Governor Yates stopped off here while swinging around the circle four years ago, as was noticeable Monday when a snake, which was arranged before Justice Alverson charged with having entered two business places and taken certain goods. Many citizens rested from their labors and flocked to see the unfortunate fellow—not to play the Good Samaritan, but just rubber. Mordid curiosity is one accomplishment the American people can lay claim to.

A great, big husky looking pilgrim rambled into the village Saturday, having come from Waukegan via the road-backed right of way of the "J" route. He stopped at a third party and asked "if that big policeman was a fat like the hammer to a pile driver was here yet. He was informed that John was still here and his fat had not dwindled in the least. "Well," he said, "a couple of years ago I was here admiring the country and carrying a little too long, when that big fellow gave me a bit on the left beech which straightened me out and then he supplied his wakenfasts where my surface was the most prominent. I'm a harness maker by trade but ain't been able to sit down to work at the trade since that time. Yes, this is a nice, hospitable place if you go through it on a fast train."

A Chicago man was summoned into a justice court here some days ago. He appeared, greatly to the surprise of the plaintiff's agent, and not liking the appearance of things took a change of venue. The plaintiff's representative did not wish to try the case, so he took a non-suit. The defendant, leaving the court, congratulating himself on getting out of a net easily, when he was again summoned to appear in the same action. "What kind of justice do they parcel out to people when they summon out here?" he asked. "The other kind" replied a bystander. "I was ready for trial and the plaintiff was ready to go, but as soon as I showed up the plaintiff discovered he had no case against me. Then he changed his tactics and pulled me again ten minutes afterward," said the defendant. In justice court practice that mode of procedure is known as "skrimishing for a default judgment."

Many of our people remember that prince of goodfellows, John Nicholson who used to live 628 for Will Thorp, the engineer knows far and wide for his luxurious growth of hair and ability to converse in 12 foreign languages. John used to live here but the North-Western recognized his ability and elevated him to a good position in the master mechanic's office. While there he attracted the attention of the American Engineering company and now John is taking his contracts to Europe, but in the spectacle there is a menace. If a young nation by taking thought and getting busy can rise to such heights in a day all nations must be ready. Preparedness will now be the universal watchword. Germany is of course alert. Recently Lord Roberts of Great Britain of her weakness and pleaded that she get ready. France has never ceased to remember the fall down she made in 1870 and has been training, equipping and remodeling. Now that the ally she counted upon is crippled, she will be the more alert. Everywhere there are indications that big armaments will be bigger and that the military spirit will be fostered so that men behind the guns will not be wanting when the hour strikes.

A reported movement against the battle as an implement of war and beauty for the Indian is not likely to have much effect. It has been said that physicians do not approve the battle because it greatest coal strike in history is expected and serious developments may be looked for before the end of the winter. The unions are forcing this strike, and operators declare they will close up their mines before giving in.

The French Live Out of Doors.

Moralists admit that we may go to France for the arts and fashions, but generally draw the line on social customs. Now, the French are a happy lot of beings and possibly can teach Americans something besides how to paint and what to wear. At least this is the opinion of Berkeley Smith, author of "Parisians Outdoors." He says:

The French are instinctively an out of doors people. Life in the open air meant to them nine-tenths of the joy of living. Every spare hour is by the majority of Parisians spent out of doors. The country is their cherished Mecca for a holiday and the safe return is a universal refuge. Parisians proverbially never sleep with their windows open, yet still will sit out dining at the little tables in front of the restaurants during the day and nights blustering and chilly enough to make us Anglo-Americans turn our collars up and hurry home to a crackling fire.

France has its resorts for rich idlers, but the common people cannot afford to visit them, and most Parisians take their outings near home. To quote further:

In the Bois de Boulogne, long after night has fallen, you will often pass whole families seated in mossy grassy park, plinking, with perhaps a single candle burning in the midst of the jolly party, to distinguish by the flickering flame the chicken from the sausage and the bottle of grease from the Burgundy. And what a great and in all day romp they have had, with no policeman to bother them and no signs to warn them to keep off the grass! The feast itself (and you may be sure it was an excellent one) is purchased that very morning out of the pushbuts in their quarter after considerable bargaining on the part of the mamma and the wise discretion and good sense of the papa. The father of the family, a young man in whose honor this long, jolly day in the Bois has been given.

The wood of Boulogne is the great picnic ground. It is guarded from vandalism and ill usage by the good sense and restraint of the people themselves. There are intelligent policemen within call, and malicious wrongdoers get no mercy.

A Touching Story

is the saving from death, of the baby girl of Geo. A. Eyer, Cumberland, Md. He writes: "At the age of 11 months our little girl was in declining health with serious throat trouble, and two physicians gave her up. We were almost in despair, when we resolved to try Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds. The first bottle gave relief; after taking four bottles she was cured, and is now in perfect health." Never fails to relieve and cure a cough or cold. At Barrington Pharmacy: 50c and $1.00, guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

Disarmament Not in Sight.

A decrease in the military or naval establishment of the world powers is not to be expected now that a great war has developed new forces. We judge the future by the past. After the Franco-Prussian war there was a general overhauling by all the nations, and Europe became an armed camp. France had been humbled and wanted revenge, while her conqueror was determined not to be caught napping.

Japan's readiness to make peace, to relax, but in the spectacle there is a menace. If a young nation by taking thought and getting busy can rise to such heights in a day all nations must be ready. Preparedness will now be the universal watchword. Germany is of course alert. Recently Lord Roberts of Great Britain of her weakness and pleaded that she get ready. helps to produce seedlings. This objection carries no weight. The use of the harpin in process of adjustment is one of the very best means of conserving attention on a well turned head and bewitching hair, not to mention the hat.

Lord Roberts told the American team of marksmen at their farewell dinner in London that West was the finest military officer in the world. As Lord Roberts' reputation for veracity never has been impeached, we must conclude that he is right.

For the thousandth time the health authorities are announcing the discovery that mosquitoes are responsible for yellow fever. What's the use of talking so much? Why don't they get out and "swat" the mosquitoes?
