VOL. 20. NO. 47.

BARRINGTON, ILLINOIS, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1905.

$1.50 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.

ARE MARRIED 25 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Plagge Are Pleasantly Reminded of the Fact.

Alderman and Mrs. John C. Plagge were the recipients of a very agreeable surprise Friday evening of last week. That day being the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of the popular couple, about forty-two relatives and friends decided to help them remember the occasion by giving them a surprise party.

The party gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Gieske, and when the time seemed propitious they stole a march on the house. Mrs. Plagge received the brunt of the onslaught, Mr. Plagge having been to Chicago that day, and being a very busy man in the business and official world, as well as being often asked for advice in private affairs, he found a lot of business awaiting him at his store. It was late when he finally started for home, eating an apple. He intended to get shaved on his way home, but feeling somewhat tired from his day's labor decided to postpone the ordeal until the next day.

He was very much surprised when he neared his home to see the profile of his brother-in-law at a window. He had met the gentleman at the depot in Chicago on his arrival that day and the relative seemed very anxious to have J. C. convey his compliments to J. C.'s family. No intimation had been given of a visit in the near future.

Tiptoeing around to a window he peeped in, and his heart began to quake as his hand went up and came in contact with the short stubble on his cheeks and chin, for he espied many friends and relatives, among them many of the fair sex. But he captured his helmet twenty-five years ago he took courage and immediately entered the house and joined the family circle and the happy congregation assembled. Her. Haele, of the Salem church, stepping forward and making a few complimentary and appropriate remarks to the two central figures of the assemblage, to which Mr. Plagge, on behalf of himself and Mrs. Plagge, replied, thanking those present for their friendship and presence.

Within a few minutes the interior of the spacious and comfortable home had been transferred into a veritable hot-house, yellow chrysanthemums and white carnations predominating. Instrumental and vocal music were enjoyed, especially so the selections of the orchestra composed entirely of Plagge children. During the evening a second wedding banquet was served which consisted of an elaborate menu, daintily served and highly appreciated.

Mr. and Mrs. Plagge were remembered with some pretty and useful silver tokens in honor of the occasion by admiring friends and relatives.

It was a late hour when the guests departed for home, all hoping that they may be able to enjoy the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Plagge, to which THE REVIEW, on behalf of the citizens of this community, wishes to add the hope that their happy life and usefulness may extend many years beyond that period.

TREATED HIS FRIENDS.

Attorney McIntosh Gives Evidence That He Can Shoot.

Attorney M. C. McIntosh returned from his hunting trip to Wisconsin Thursday of last week. He brought with him a liberal supply of venison, which he distributed among his friends. The editor of THE REVIEW acknowledges the receipt of a "good-sized hunk."

What They Think of It

The Waukegan Gazette says: "Trustees of Barrington in southwestern Lake county, believe that charivari on the newly married tend to create bachelors and outcasts. Acting thereon, the trustees at a meeting last night adopted a resolution condemning the practice and instructing the marshal to make arrests where necessary to abate the nuisance."

Stricken With Heart Failure.

Joseph P. Brown, 82 years old, while watching the working men who are repairing Geo. Jack's house, was suddenly stricken with heart failure on Tuesday afternoon. He fell to the floor and was unconscious for some time. His life was thought to be almost extinct. After a few hours he began to rally and although very weak and unable to move his bed, he bids fair to be out again. Dr. Richardson is in attendance.

TO CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

Rev. and Mrs. Nate Have Enjoyed Fifty Years of Happy Married Life.

Rev. and Mrs. John Nate, of Chicago, will celebrate the golden anniversary of their marriage on Dec. 6th. Mr. Nate was pastor of the Barrington M. E. church a number of years ago, and did much toward building up the church work here at that time. He has been in active ministerial work for over fifty years; and has served many churches in Chicago. Rev. and Mrs. Nate will receive a large number of old friends at their home, 1819 North Ave., Chicago, on Dec. 6, from 3 till 6 p.m. from 7 till 9 o'clock. They will be assisted in receiving by their five children, Mrs. M. C. McIntosh, of Barrington is their daughter.

Wisconsin Deer Are Plenty.

According to reports from the deputy game wardens now in the woods in the northern part of Wisconsin deer are plentiful this season and will be comparatively easy to get because of recent rains and snows. The open season will close at sundown November 30th. Deer carcasses may be shipped up to Dec. 31st, inclusive, providing they are properly couped and the hunter holds the corresponding coupon accompanying them.

Have Grown Some.

According to Humstead's directory recently issued Lake County towns Lake Zurich is given a population of 35, Lake Zurich, according to this directory, has increased in population during the past two years 25 persons, while Waukegan has made a gain of 13.

Wore Colonial Costumes.

A "Colonial Day" program was given by the Woman's Club Thursday at the home of Mrs. E. W. Olcott. A number of the ladies were dressed in colonial costumes and a fine program was given. Mrs. S. Benton read a paper on "The Quakers," and vocal and instrumental music was furnished by Misses Padlock and Bergman of Palatine. Several choruses were given by the entire club. A large number of ladies were present and at the conclusion of the program light refreshments were served by the hostess. At the next meeting, Dec. 7th, a Kipling program will be given by the Art and Literature department.

Cook County Corn Growing Contest.

The boys' corn growing contest in Cook county will be held at Chicago Heights Dec. 7th and 8th, and at Des Plaines Dec. 8th and 9th. Boys living in the north half of the county will send their exhibit of ten ears to W. D. Smith, Des Plaines, and those living in the south half to F. M. Richardson, Chicago Heights. Express charges must be prepaid. The corn should be sent three or four days before the contest. All boys contesting must send to County Superintendent Nightingale, 153 La Salle street, Chicago, an essay telling about how the corn was raised. These essays will be graded and the grades considered in awarding the prizes. Dr. Nightingale asks country teachers to do everything possible in making this important movement a success.

Beware of the New Law.

Few merchants are aware of a new law which went into effect July 1, one merchant in a near by city is already giving on account of ignorance of the law to the extent of a heavy fine that was imposed on him. Heretofore it has been customary to scratch the stamp of a cigar box and if he so desired give it away or do with it as he should see fit so long as the stamp was destroyed. But it is no longer the case. The merchant or dealer must destroy the box immediately after the cigars are gone. He must at once remove the box from the case and break it up. The law may sound queer, but be sure that it is heeded or you will get caught before you know it.

Thanksgiving Service at St. Paul's Church.

In observance of Thanksgiving day appropriate services will be held at the Evangelical St. Paul's church, Thursday, Nov. 24, at 10:30 o'clock a.m.

IT WILL BE A BUSY WEEK

An Attraction for Practically Every Evening of the Coming Week.

Dr. W. J. Libberton will lecture in the Methodist church on next Monday evening on "Beyond the Seas with God and Man." This will be the first of the series of Popular Monday evening lectures. Everybody welcome.

The first of the series of the entertainment course of the Barrington High School for the benefit of the Public School, will take place next Friday evening, December 1st. A stereoscopic lecture, "The Dignity of Labor," by Prof. Chas. W. Farr, will be given. This interesting lecture sets forth the problem of the South—the negro question—in a manner both entertaining and instructive. It will be a treat, so secure your tickets early. They can be had from the high school pupils.

An Entertainment and Social will be given at the Methodist church on Friday evening, November 24th by the Mercy and Help Department of the Epworth League. Everybody is most cordially invited to attend. The admission will be free, but a collection will be taken to assist in the work of the Mercy and Help Department.

The plays to be presented by Rebekah Lodge 626 in Old Fellow's hall next Wednesday evening, promises to eclipse anything of its character heretofore given. Great preparations are being made by the ladies and gentlemen in the cast, and from the interest awakened among the citizens of this vicinity, a large audience is assured. Everyone who can possibly find it convenient, should make an effort to attend. It will be a continuous laugh from the moment the curtain rises. The plays are titled "Scenes in the Union Depot," and "Thirty Minutes for Refreshments." Tickets will be secured at once in order to secure choice seats. Tickets are now on sale at the Barrington Pharmacy.

A Masquerade dance will be given at the Lake Zurich House, at Lake Zurich next Wednesday evening. Good Chicago music will be in attendance, and Mr. Young, the manager, is sparing neither pains or expense to make this one of the most enjoyable affairs of the season.

Barrington Woman Honored.

At the recent meeting of the Illinois Federation of Woman's Clubs at the West End Club, Chicago, for the election of committees, Mrs. M. C. McIntosh of Barrington was elected to serve on the Library Extension committee. Mrs. E. S. Walker of Springfield is chairman. The Barrington Woman's Club feel honored to be represented on so important a committee.

They Purchased a "Barrington." Teckmeyer & Senn of Palatine have just purchased a 14 horse power gasoline engine mounted on wheels. It is one of the famous "Barrington" manufactured by Arnold Schauble of this city. These engines give such universal satisfaction wherever installed, that Mr. Schauble has no trouble to dispose of all he can make. We would not be surprised to see the maker increase his plant in the near future.

INSPECTED OUR SCHOOLS.

Delegation of Visiting Teachers

Were in Barrington Last Friday.

A teachers' meeting was held at the new public school building Friday afternoon of last week. A large number of visiting teachers were in attendance. They arrived in the morning, headed by Prof. Nightingale, county superintendent, and observed the work accomplished by the various rooms. In the afternoon Prof. Farr addressed the teachers on "Educative Handwork," followed by Prof. Nightingale. Samples of the work done by the schools of the county were placed on exhibition, and altogether, the meeting was pronounced one of the most profitable ever held in the county. Prof. Banta and the local teachers, as well as the pupils, were the recipients of many complimentary remarks on the progress they are making, and on the amount of work accomplished. Those from out-of-town were:

Barrington Township—Misses Morrison, Penfield, Tremblitz, Potter; Mrs. Trepitz and Mr. Wright.

OLD PIONEER PASSES AWAY

Death Relieves Nancy Goff Kelsey of Long Years of Suffering and Pain.

Mrs. Nancy Goff Kelsey died at her home near Langenheim Thursday of last week, after a long episode of suffering which she patiently endured without complaining.

The deceased was born in Cape County, Illinois, June 2, 1841, and at the time of her death was 64 years 2 months and 11 days of age. She was married to DeForest Kelsey on January 1, 1862, at Genoa, Wis., and shortly thereafter settled on their present home near Langenheim, where they have since resided.

Six children were born to this union, four of whom survive to mourn her loss and comfort their father in this his saddest hour of bereavement. She also leaves seventeen grandchildren, three brothers and one sister.

She was a dutiful and loving wife and a devoted and indulgent mother, ever patient in illness and sorrow.

The funeral was held Saturday, and interment was in the White cemetery, Rev. Ephraim of the Barrington M. E. church officiating.

One daughter residing in South Dakota was unable to attend the funeral. The two sons reside near Langenheim and the other daughter, Amy Rowson, lives at Cary.

MALE CHOIR ENTERTAINED

Miss Lombard Tenders Pretty Reception to Baptist Friends

Last Friday.

A reception was tendered the members of the Baptist Male Choir, and a few friends, by their directress, Miss Nellie Lombard, on Friday evening Nov. 17th. Those present were: Miss Maud Gieske of Mineapolis, Rev. R. L. Kelley, Mrs. Clara A. Kelley, Mr. and Mrs. Shaver, Mr. and Mrs. Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Bennett, A. C. Livers, Miss Anna Dix, Miss Beulah Otis, Miss Beatrice Bennett and Uncle Hank.

The evening was spent in pastimes, most interesting, among the many being a Musical Romance. This most enjoyable affair closed with a delicate repast, intended to make the inner man glad. And it did. The tables were laid for fourteen, and decorated with cut flowers and ferns. At each place was found a beautiful souvenir, delicately done in water colors by Miss Grace Otis, and representing the person who was to occupy the seat by characteristic notes. The prevailing color effects were in crimson.

A Confused Thanksgiving

The week before Thanksgiving, Mr. and Mrs. Bennett were obliged to leave home suddenly on business. The last thing Mrs. Bennett said to Janet was:

"Invite some girls to take dinner with you on Thanksgiving day. Any mother will spare her daughter under the circumstances." And poor Janet, under her headache, took comfort.

Then there was brother Jack, aged 10. Janet had him to consider; somehow they must have a happy day in spite of all. So Janet set to work to choose her guests.

Now in Janet's heart there was a wrong ranking. Her best friend had accepted an invitation some time before—an invitation that had not been extended to her! Janet had hoped her friend would decline because of loyalty to her, but no, she had gone to the party, had a good time and Janet resented it.

"I will leave Helen out," thought Janet with a hardening of her heart, "and I'll invite some fashionable girls, just to show her that I can form a circle outside our own. It may teach her a lesson."

It was odd how heavily hearted Janet was at this decision, but with a grim setting of the lips she went to work at the desk.

Jack sat by the window munching candy. He was going to play football later on; he had an appointment with his chum and he held his big silver watch in his hand.

"All done," cried Janet, suddenly, "but not a stamp. Here, Jack, mail these for me at the corner. There's a quarter; you may keep the change for soda. I've invited the three nicest girls in town to dinner on Thanksgiving day and will ask Ted for you. How's that?"

Jack's eyes glinted. He snatched the shiny white notes and the money, then rushed from the room, shouting, "Thanks, Janet; you're all right."

At the corner door store Jack came in violent contact with a sturdy body that nearly knocked him down. It proved to be his chum, Ted, red in the face and panting with anger and exertion.

"Game's off," he screamed in Jack's face. "Moguls are gutters. Wouldn't it be you?"

Something had jarred Jack—he sat down on the store step to consider. "They're scared," he said, gloomily, "scared to death. They're meanies."

With that Jack arose slowly, went to the letter box on the lamp post and dropped in the invitations; then he resumed his seat by Ted and began more observations regarding the Moguls, while he flipped the shining quarter deftly. Suddenly a look of horror spread over his freckled face. "Great guns," he exclaimed.

"What's up?" asked Ted, sympathetically.

"I've got those letters in without stamps!"

"Gee!" whistled Ted. Then Jack thought of Janet's generosity and faith in him, and a great wave of remorse swept over his soul. "They were invitations to dinner," he sighed.

"Who to?" questioned Ted, a gleam of hope rising.

"I'm blessed if I know—but they're the three nicest girls. Mother said Janet could invite them, and she's going to ask you, too."

At this Ted's interest heightened, and he gave Jack a look that said, "If you know their names," he sighed, "we could go and ask them and let them not to tell, but we'll just have to guess."

"Guess!" faltered Jack. "I didn't know there were three nice girls in town. I only know two. Most of them are—well, you know! There's Janet and—Barbara Dale; do you know any others?" This was a problem, and the conspirators on the store step looked despairing.

"Helen's pretty good," mused Jack, "and of course Janet will have her."

"Course!" agreed Ted, "but she's awful stuck up."

"And there's Barbara Dale, sure. I heard Janet tell mother once that Barbara was one of the best girls in school, only she was unfashionable and poor, and the girls dare not take her up."

"Still," snapped Ted, "I told you that Barbara was nice. Now the third one. Then we can begin."

The third one was a poser until at last Jack had an inspiration.

"I know!" he cried, "it's Margaret Dow. Her mother's dead, and her father travels, and she lives in a horrid boarding house, and once mother asked Jane why she didn't do something for Margaret, and Janet laughed and said that Margaret was nice, but queer, but when she had a chance she would invite her to a good square meal. I'll bet it's Margaret all right."

"Sure!" agreed Ted. "Now let's hurry."

So away they went with kindness in their hearts, and never a doubt that Janet's idea of nice and their might differ.

They went to Margaret's first. A freckled maid opened the door and let them stand on the stoop while she called Margaret.

Poor little Margaret, pale and dressed in black, soon appeared.

"Won't you come in?" she smiled. "No, thank you!" blurted Jack, "my sister sent me—last she wants to invite you to—"

"A good sign," Ted broke in wild. "By gosh, dinner!" groaned Jack, trying to save the day, and glaring at hapless Ted. "It's for Thanksgiving, and she wants you very much, and please when you answer—" here Jack pleaded awkwardly.

"Please don't mention us—just answer as if you had got a note!"

Margaret laughed, promised merrily, and the boys went gratefully on their way.

Next came Helen. She opened the door herself.

"He ho, Jackie and Ted," she said, familiarly, "glad to see you."

"Janet wants you to come to Thanksgiving dinner," began Jack, seating himself in the hall on the edge chair Ted had chosen.

"Wants me?" cried Helen, dimpling. "I thought she was angry. This was a surprise to Jack and he paused, but Ted shyly plucked her arm.

"She was," he said, promptly, "but she's ashamed of herself. She wants to make up, and it's lovely—and it's Thanksgiving—and she hopes you'll say yes."

"And please," here Jack cleared his throat; "when you answer, just make believe you got a stunning note and not mention us."

Helen burst into laughter. "I'll beg mother to let me go," she gasped, "and Jackie, here's some fudge for your pockets. Oh! dear, but this joke is delicious!"

"Joke!" glared Jack. "Fudge!" laughed Helen, excuse me, boys."

So that was settled. Now there was only Barbara. She lived in an unfashionable part of the town and was slighted by the girls of the school every place. She was being educated by a rich relative, but found it no easy task to wear shabby clothes and mingle with others who were far better arrayed. "But it will pay by and by!" was brave Barbara's motto, "education now, and easier time ahead." The boys found her on the sunny porch studying algebra.

"Hello!" they greeted. Barbara looked up surprised. She had few callers. "Why, it's Janet's brother!" she smiled, "come in." So they went in.

"We've come to invite you to Thanksgiving dinner," Jack began the formula, "mother and father are away."

"So are mine," Barbara interrupted, "grandmother is sick."

"Well, Janet wants you, she's asked some others. We're going to have fun," Barbara was dimpling prettily as Helen had done.

"It's odd that Janet thought of me," she mused.

"She's going to take you up," began Ted, determined to do his share of the business. He got so far when Jack turned a stern stare upon him.

"He means," Jack continued to Barbara, "that Janet's sorry she hasn't invited you before. She's asking you to something special now, to make up."

"Oh!" smiled Barbara, "she's a dear."

"She was in an awful hurry," Jack went on, "and so when you answer just do it as if—"

"We were a note!" nodded Ted, rising above Jack's snub.

Barbara was laughing helplessly. "All right," she gasped.

"Well, I tell you!" groaned Jack, he and Ted scamped away. "I'm glad that's over! Now we can have an ice cream soda."

The next day Jack sat in his sister's room reading the last Henty book and Janet was sewing by the further window, when the maid brought in three letters. Janet took them, opened them one by one, and as she read her face grew strange to see.

Jack, innocent and happy, read his book. At last he was roused by Janet's cry:

"What—does—this—mean?" He looked up.

"What?" he asked.

"Just read them, Janet had to confide in some one, and Jack was near at hand.

The three notes were happy acceptances, and not one word about the story came.

"Well," sighed Jack with relief, "what's the matter? Didn't you want them to come?"

"Wait them!" sobbed Janet. "I never asked them. This—this is an impediment!"

DISRESS AFTER MEALS

Bare Sign That Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Are Needed to Tone Up the Digestive Organs.

Loss of appetite, distress after eating, shortness of breath, a feeling of utter weakness—these are symptoms that are familiar to most sufferers from stomach trouble. Too often the ordinary doctor's treatment serves but to weaken the diseased organs.

The new tonic method of treating disorders of this kind does not aim to do the work of the stomach, does not demand that the food be pre-digested, but builds up the weakened organs, so that they can do the work that nature intended.

Mrs. L. O. Law, of No. 823 North Street, Horton, Kansas, says: "In 1897, while we were living on a farm or rather homestead, I became generally debilitated as the result of overwork. I had serious indigestion, lost my appetite, suffered from a sense of suffocation and from obstruction of the circulation, so that artificial means had to be used to restore it. After suffering for months without finding any relief, I tried a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills of which I had read in a newspaper. The first few boxes made me feel better, and after using the third box I felt entirely well.

"I am now in excellent health and am able not only to take care of my house but also to assist my husband in a store which he has lately started. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured me and I can recommend them. They are so simple, so easily taken and so prompt in their action."

Remember Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do not act on the bowels. They make new blood and restore shattered nerves. In this way they carry health and vigor to every organ and fiber of the body. They are sold by all druggists or will be sent by postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50. By the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

MAKING HOUSEWORK MORE EASY

Better If Woman Would Sit More at Their Daily Tasks.

"Women don't sit enough to their kitchen work," declared the elderly housewife. "There's a heap of ills and ailments that could be avoided by using just a little common sense. Now, so woman would think of sewing or darning while standing up, yet they do equally foolish things in the kitchen."

"Take peeling potatoes, for instance. The majority of women stand near the sink for such work, whereas they could do it equally well by sitting down. How many do you see beating eggs while sitting down? Precious few, I'll warrant.

"They stand when mixing food for the baby; after the dishes are washed they stand up to dry them when it's just as easy to sit down. There's a hundred little things to be done while preparing meals and which are just as easy to do while sitting as standing. Then, when the day's work is done, they flop into an easy chair and wait about how tired they are."

"But it's mostly used for standing on to get things from the shelves. Sit down more, I tell you, and you won't have that tired feeling so much."

CONVINCING EVIDENCE.

Winthrop, Cal. Nov. 20th (Special).—A plain and straightforward story told by the court yesterday. And that is what has impressed us most in reading the testimonial in regard to Dodd's Kidney Pills. The experience told by Davis Lewis of this place bears the ring and stamp of truth upon it. He says:

"I was troubled for six months with dull heavy pains in the small of my back, sometimes it passed into my stomach, at other times up between my shoulders. When it was in my stomach I was doubled up, and hardly knew what to do for the pain. I was advised to try all kinds of remedies, and did so but without getting any relief. Then some one told me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I got a box and in a few days I was better. The first few doses gave me relief, by the time I had finished them all the pain was gone and I have been well ever since."

BOURKE COCKMAN LOOSING POPULARITY.

There are indications that Bourke Cockman is no longer a name to reckon with in New York. The appearances for Tammany in the campaign just closed have not by any means been so successful as in the past. His audiences at times even showing doubts as to his sincerity.—Chicago Chronicle.

Not only is the magazine, "Impressions Quarterly," published by Paul Elder & Co., San Francisco, one of the most artistic extant, but its new catalogue for the season of 1906-7, just from the press, shows such a high standard as to compilation, embellishment and all detail of their work. It is worthy of more than passing inspection and can be had upon request.

PERFECTION.

(Quoted in "Success Magazine.") I hold this in a fixed truth—for me! Only those things exist that I declare! All else is a false seeming. Let me, then, declare what is clean and good and fair.

So shall I stand before my fellow men. A lot of the new race that yet shall be.

SENSIBLE HOUSEKEEPERS.

COURT DECIDES FOR RAILROADS

Reduced Rates to Packers May Be Made by the Carriers.

BOARD CANNOT COMPEL A CUT

Interstate Commerce Commission Is Powerless When It Comes to Equalizing Charges Between Similar Commodities—Government May Appeal.

Chicago dispatch: Judge Betha Monday announced a decision in the live stock and packing house products rate case, which admittedly is an added argument in favor of increasing the powers of the interstate commerce commission, although in this one case it is a victory for the railroads.

The court declares that under the Elkins law the commerce commission is bound by such limitations that it cannot order a reduction of rates on one commodity to correspond with the rates of another commodity which have been reduced by competition.

The third section of the Elkins law specifically provides that the interstate commerce commission shall do nothing to hamper competition, and the court finds that it was the competition for the business of the packers, "under almost one control," which caused the railroads to reduce the rates on packing house products, whereas the business of the cattle shippers was in many hands and therefore there was not the same sharp competition for it.

The case is held to have been watched closely in Washington on account of its bearing on the whole rate situation, and it is probable that it will be appealed, although Attorney L. A. Shaver, representing the commission, said he would have to consult Attorney General Moody before reaching a decision.

From their point of view, the decision, declare that they are satisfied that the highest courts will sustain it.

The suit was started last February by the government at the instigation of the commerce commission because the railroads had refused to obey the commission's order to reduce the rate on live stock between the Missouri river and Chicago.

Packers Get Cut Rates. It was shown that the rate on packing house products had been reduced several years ago after the Great Western had entered into a seven-year contract with the packers for a certain percentage of its tonnage at a rate lower than the former rate. There was equal to that on live stock. There was no corresponding increase in the cattle rates.

Seventeen railroads were defendants in the case, the principal ones being the Great Western, the Northwest, the P. D. L., the Burlington, the Rock Island, and the Alton. The decision of Judge Betha was exhaustive, occupying twenty-nine typewritten pages. The case is singular in that it was brought in a little over six months from the time the interstate commission made its order.

REVENGING HUSBAND IS GUILTY

Jurors Convict Daniel Wilkins of Slaying Wife's Adulterer.

Shelbyville, Ind., dispatch: After a three-day trial with sensational evidence the jury in the case of Daniel Wilkins, accused of killing Harvey Babb, his wife's adulterer, returned a verdict of manslaughter. Wilkins will be sent to the state prison at Jeffersonville for from two to twenty-one years. During the trial Mrs. Wilkins, the prisoner's wife, confessed to accepting attentions from Babb and to being caught with him in a corn field one Sunday morning last September. She said that before Babb could secure a revolver which he had with him her husband fired.

EXPLOSION KILLS FIFTEEN MEN

Disaster in Powder Magazine Reported from Marion, N. C.

Spencer, N. C., dispatch: From a private telephone message received here from Marion, N. C. by way of Asheville, it is reported that fifteen people were killed near there by the explosion of a powder magazine located just outside of town. The shock of the explosion was so great that it was felt at Morgantown, twenty-one miles away. The report has not been confirmed. The scene of the explosion is remote from the telegraph.

CIGARETTE FIEND IS INSANE.

Cleveland, O., dispatch: Lewis Koff, 25 years old, who, according to his father, Morris Koffman, a cigarette maker, smoked 100 cigarettes daily for a year, was adjudged insane and sent to the state hospital. The father says his son ate and slept little, but smoked and read continually.

RAISES DEGREE OF CRIME.

Norfolk, Va., dispatch: Brian Atkinson, victim in the alleged criminal operation case which resulted in the arrest of Dr. L. R. Chiles, is dead. The charge against Dr. Chiles has been changed to second degree murder.

VATICAN AND CAIR AGREES.

Rome dispatch: The Vatican circle in Rome declares that the pope and czar of Russia have made an agreement by which the pope will send an apostolic nuncio to St. Petersburg.

THE CHURCH AND DEMOCRACY.

The act of the argument set forth in "Religion and Politics," a recent volume from the study of the Rev. A. S. Crapney, is that the modern church stands outside the current of influences that make for the world's progress. The author speaks of the "divorce of what is called religion from life, which is the characteristic of the modern world," and declares in specific terms that in the present state of democracy, revolution, that occupied with the conflict between capital and labor, the church is not on the side of those "in whose supremacy the democratic revolution will reach its goal." To quote further:

It is with this phase of the revolution that the world is now occupied, and in this world, the organized church is not, for the most part, with the rising power, but are either indifferent or are with the dominant class. The church stands for privilege; the bishops in the Episcopal churches are a privileged class among the clergy; the clergy are a privileged class among the people; the wealthy are a privileged class in society; but privilege of any and every kind is becoming every day more and more odious. Equality, political, social and industrial, is a constantly growing demand, and all institutions that stand simply upon privilege are passing away. The democratic revolution is the working out into the life of the world of the life and teaching of Jesus. The only privilege which he claimed for himself or allowed to others was the privilege of service and sacrifice, and that is the only privilege that can endure in the day of the social revolution that is at hand.

Mr. Crapney, who is a minister of the Episcopal church, maintains, moreover, that the churches fail to keep pace with the scientific spirit of the times and to give heed to the spirit of social evolution. His indictment is not aimed at religion, which is not dying out, but changing its mode of operation, but at the churches and denominations which "claim to represent the religious interests of mankind." These he places in the rear instead of in the van of the forces "that make for religious progress."

Diplomatic Secrets.

In publishing to the world the terms of their new treaty of alliance England and Japan yesterday had good grounds for breaking the usual custom of secrecy in cases of the kind. The most important treaties among European powers of late years have been kept secret. Recently the Kaiser had to ask for the text of the Anglo-French agreement, which he believed affected the interests of Germany.

The Austro-German treaty of alliance made in 1879 was communicated to Czar Alexander II. of Russia because of the close personal relations between the czar and the German emperor, but this step was taken against the wishes of the German chancellor, Bismarck, and the text was not published to the world until nine years after the event. Later the Russo-German agreement was kept secret all the time it was in force, and the terms of the dual alliance of Russia and Austria and of the triple alliance of Germany, Austria and Italy remain unbroken. If one party to a treaty, with the consent of the other or others, takes an outside power into its confidence for some special reason, it is a matter of its own choosing and not called for by diplomatic courtesy.

A volunteer in the Spanish war had his uniform riddled with Mauser bullets which never "touched him," then was one of the few who escaped from the General Slocum steamer. Next he rescued a woman from a burning hotel, getting his clothes burned half off, and now has survived the explosion of a gasoline tank on a motor boat which he was running. Naturally, being a man and not a cat, he is wondering just what kind of a finish is coming to him.

Automobilists who dare the farmers of the country to patrol the public highways with firemen should take warning from the days when settlers used their staghorns on redskins and panthers. The farmers now own the country, and the existence of these "vandrils" is only a tradition.

Canada finds that men teachers are not rushing after positions which pay only $300 or $400 a year. With the United States so close, men who are good for anything can earn double that or more and walk home to pass their vacations.

International Live Stock Exposition Dec. 2 to 9, 1905.

Prof. Jas. W. Wilson, of the South Dakota Agricultural College, says: "The International Live Stock Exposition held annually in Chicago is probably the greatest institution of its kind in the world. It is great on account of its educational value, not only to the enterprising student of the West, but the packer, the speculator and the exporter of fancy stock in the East. Here is the place they come to a common center and observe with their own eyes the best in the land. The careful admirer of good stock receives at this time enough information to keep him thinking for an entire year."

"It is impossible for one to describe in detail the numerous classes of stock or the number that has been on exhibition in the past, but it is safe to predict that on account of the prosperous condition of the country at large, the show this fall will be greater than ever."

"Every farmer can well afford to attend this show, to make comparisons for himself."

PALATINE LOCAL NEWS

Hunting is very good around here this year. Ten out of ten hunters succeeded in getting three ducks Sunday. Very few ducks have been dying in any direction.

Mrs. Swick, of Marshalltown, Iowa, was called here by the death of her sister, Mrs. Fickett, Sunday. She returned here home Tuesday. Her father Timothy had accompanied her, where he will make his home.

The M. W. A. made quite a hit in the big parade Saturday night, their suits being attractive, they received a hearty greeting all along the line. Palatine had three candidates, J. D. Perry, Garret Dovernan and Ed. Fleute. About forty were present from here. All report it one of the grandest affairs they ever witnessed. The order received 1662 new members, and 5255 new attendees at the meeting. It will be a gathering, indeed, to be remembered by all who attended.

The last football game of the season will be played Thanksgiving day. It is hoped that a large crowd will be present. The boys regret the have not been able to have games every week, but it seems Palatine's record has gone ahead and many are afraid to meet the boys it is hoped that there will be a game alright Thanksgiving day. Help the boys by being present. "He true to Palatine."

"SAVED MY LIFE"

—That's what a prominent druggist said of Scott's Emulsion a short time ago. As a rule we don't use or refer to testimonials in addressing the public, but the above remark and similar expressions are made so often in connection with Scott's Emulsion that they are worthy of occasional note. From infancy to old age Scott's Emulsion offers a reliable means of remedying improper and weak development, restoring lost flesh and vitality, and repairing waste. The action of Scott's Emulsion is no more of a secret than the composition of the Emulsion itself. What it does it does through nourishment—the kind of nourishment that cannot be obtained in ordinary food. No system is too weak or delicate to retain Scott's Emulsion and gather good from it.

We will send you a sample free. Be sure that this picture is the form of a label on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

An orchestra, has been formed here in Palatine to play for dances and small parties, a thing that has been needed for sometime. They will make their first appearance at the dance given by them Thanksgiving eve, at the Palatine opera house. The members have worked hard and are planning to make this one of the best parties of the season. Help them by attending, show that their efforts have not been in vain. They hope to appear many times during the winter.

OBITUARY.

Lura May Dean was born at Palatine, Ill., Sept. 22, 1871, moved to Chicago with her parents in 1888, where they lived one year, then returned to Palatine, where she spent the remainder of her life. July 29, 1899, she was united in marriage to Milton Finkel. She was a very conscientious woman and always tried to do her duty in every line of life. While residing in Chicago, she united with the Belden Ave Baptist church. She was a loving wife, an affectionate daughter and kind neighbor. To know her was to love her. She passed from this earthly home to a more spiritual world, Nov. 17, 1905. She leaves a husband, Milton Finkel, father, Timothy Dean, brother Charles Dean, all of Palatine and a sister, Mrs. Herbert Swick, of Marshalltown, Iowa, to mourn her departure. Funeral services were held at the home, Monday morning, Rev. Young officiating. The body was taken for burial to Fenbue, where many of her friends had come to pay their last respects to their beloved friend.

Son Lost Mother.

"Consumption runs in our family, and through it I lost my Mother," writes E. R. Reid, of Harmon, Mo. "She passed five years, however, on the slightest sign of a cough or cold, I have taken Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which has saved me from serious lung trouble. My mother's death was a sad loss for me, but I learned that lung trouble, the most of her neglected, and how to cure it. Quick relief and cure for coughs and colds. "It doesn't look so far to land," said Nettie idly.

"That's not relevant," objected Victor Turner. "I ask you if you will do me the honor of marrying me, and you comment on the apparent nearness of the shore."

"Cannot you see," she cried passionately, "that I do not want to answer that question?"

"I don't see why. If it isn't 'No,' why not say 'Yes'?" he pleaded earnestly. "We've been friends, companions, for a long time, Nettie."

The girl looked at him squarely, then dropped her eyes. "Can't you see that it hurts me to refuse? Perhaps—I'm not sure that it's 'Yes' yet, but 'No' does not seem to fit either."

"We've gone all over this ground before," he said impatiently. "Please, if there's no use as this—"

"You must remember, Victor, that all my life I have been very, very happy with father, and it is not easy to give my happiness into the keeping of any one else, even you."

"Even me," he said resignedly. "All right. I'll wait until you're sure, girlie. I'll work hard and—ah!—forget you just a little bit for awhile."

Nettie closed her eyes. Her face was full of tenderness. "I am sorry, but somehow I cannot bring myself to say 'Yes.' I'm glad—yes, really glad—you don't urge me, and perhaps it will work out all right in the end."

"It will, sweetheart," he said tenderly, and he skillfully turned the conversation.

They were sitting in the window, off the shore from the resort where they were stopping, and Turner had thought this a good opportunity to speak the words that were in his heart. It was a shock to realize that he must wait longer. He had felt of late that she cared for him.

It was with a heavy heart that he rowed across the three mile stretch of two small boats were about down by the hotel, but no signal she could make was effective, and with a sinking heart she prepared to spend the night on the reef.

The growing dusk reminded her of the light, and, running through the room, she sped up the circular stairway of the tower. The lamps were trimmed and filled, and the keeper had shown her how they were lighted. There was the glow of a match, and the broad beams shot through the dusk.

For a while she stood there, hungry, tired and afraid. Then suddenly an idea came to her, and she sprang to her feet.

On the hotel piazza they were commenting on the oddness of the light. The beacon was a fixed light, yet it was flickering in the most unexpected fashion. They were still talking about it when Victor, roaming the piazzas in the hope of having his last evening with Nettie, drew near one of the groups.

"Looks like Morse," he said as he watched the flashing light for a moment. "Wonder if the old man is in trouble."

"Can you read it?" asked some one eagerly.

"Sure," he laughed. "That was a 'T,' then a 'Y.'"

There was a pause, then he began slowly to spell, "V-I-C"—a stop—"H." "Must mean you," laughed one of the men.

"It does," he said quietly. "Miss Osgood is in some sort of trouble over there and is calling for help."

Five minutes later he was on the beach, a light in his hand and a message burning at his feet. The guests stood about him, and he ran and fell on one side and then on the other, until, with a "Thank God, she's safe," he flung the spluttering light into the surf and sprang into the waiting boat.

The flickering had stopped now, and the crowd, straining its eyes to follow the progress of the boat, speculated upon the cause of the trouble and wondered how Nettie had thought to use Morse.

To Victor in the boat there was only the thought that the woman he loved had called him, and he was the first to spring ashore and dash up the stairway.

The others had gone no farther than the dead man when he reappeared with the moonbeams from his arms.

"None of you ever see her," he said, "while the rest stay here until relief comes. We will send right back."

And he led the way to the boat.

They were nearly home before Nettie opened her eyes. "You did see," she whispered. "I knew you would. I remembered you once told me that you could run a telegraph office. I studied it, too, just for fun in school, but it saved me from going crazy tonight."

"I wish I could always be near when you call," he whispered, and he had to lean closer to catch the whisper. "You may if you still want to. I'm sure now."

INTELLIGENT AND LOYAL

Remarkable feat accomplished by Chicago & North-Western Railroad Employees.

The well known writer on railroad subjects, Mr. Frank H. Spearman, in his book entitled "The Strategy of Great Railroads," describes the surprise of the general manager of one of the eastern trunk lines, on a hunting trip in the North woods, who suddenly found himself on the right of way of a splendid, well-built railway line apparently of a construction and equipment similar to the New York Central or Pennsylvania, along which thundered in quick succession heavy trains of iron ore, splendid passenger equipment and general freight service of surprising proportions.

This was the Peninsula Division of the Chicago & North-Western Railway, which covers the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, including the hardwood district and Lake Superior iron and copper regions, a surprising and efficient network of lines that connect the mines and forests with important lake ports, and with through rail service to and from the outer world.

Along this busy ore-carrying line a splendid exhibition of the loyalty, intelligence and general good train work that can be expected of the average railroad man and the efficiency of the rails laid down for his guidance in an emergency, was given a few days ago, which so greatly pleased the superintendent and other officials that the story has finally crept into public print, and it is well worth repetition in these columns.

It was all occasioned by a very heavy steel storm that fell in Upper Peninsula a few days ago, which threw down practically every telegraph line in the region in a few hours, and left the 464 miles of the division absolutely without telegraphic service for no less than forty-eight hours.

The ore movement has been especially heavy this year, more Lake Superior ore has been transported on the Great Lakes than ever before in the history of the iron industry, and in this emergency every mine would have to shut down on account of the shortage of railway cars to move their produce unless the road was kept open in spite of the storm.

There was nothing that could be done by the Chief Train Dispatcher; both he and the Division Superintendent were temporarily out of the game. It was one of these emergencies where the man behind the gun must make good, or the mine was a hopeless one. And make good he did, in true blue loyal style, with that splendid initiative that makes the average train crew typical of the qualities we admire in our American troops.

There was no way in which to get orders for train movements, no means by which division headquarters could be kept advised of where their trains were, and to the onlooker, no means existed by which the train crew could keep track of the whereabouts of trains in the opposite direction. It was an emergency of the gravest character, and was met with a splendid exhibition of good judgment and intelligent grasp of the science of railroad operation that is perhaps without an equal.

They managed, on a single track line, without telegraph lines, for two whole days and nights, to keep every iron and copper mine in the district supplied with equipment and moved all trains practically on time.

431 cars were moved over the division Friday and Saturday, October 20 and 21, and one hundred and twenty-five freight trains and no less than thirty-four passenger trains were taken care of upon the division, all handled on time on a single track, without accident, mishap or delay and without the help of a train dispatcher.

Can anyone bent that record of loyalty to employers, hard work and intelligent grasp of conditions? Any man who has ever handled the train movement of a busy railway division will appreciate how very much is involved in the work these trainmen did, hurrying to and for ever and covered cars keeping cool, and ready to meet every emergency by application of the operating rules provided for their guidance.

Industrial Opportunities.

A new town, offering complete information regarding industrial openings along the Chicago & North-Western Railway, with particulars as to factory buildings and desirable sites available for immediate use and other information of much value to manufacturers seeking new locations. There are hundreds of splendid openings for manufacturers, jobbers and dealers in territory reached by the North-Western Line. The folder contains a full description of several important extensions of the North-Western Line that open some of the best territory in the West. Free on application to agents, North-Western Line.

One should never take a serious step while measuring life by standards set up in the darkness of an unhappy mood. The estimate one makes at such a time of the world and of the people in it is false.

Volcanoes and Earthquakes.

A remarkable example of the close connection of volcanoes and earthquakes was observed by the early Spanish settlers in San Salvador. When the water in the crater lake of Ilopango rose above a certain level, earthquakes shook the whole country. They were followed, so they say, by a channel to allow of the escape of the water and prevent its rising in the crater, and for a hundred years there was no earthquake in that district. Then the precaution was neglected, the water rose in the crater and presently a violent earthquake shook the country. At the same time the lake was blown out by a volcanic eruption.

The International Live Stock Exposition to be held in Chicago Dec. 2 to 9.

"The International Live Stock Exposition is an index of the progress of animal breeding in this country. Here are annually exhibited the best products of the mind and genius of the American breeder, concepts which have been developing for a hundred years in some cases 200 or 400 years. What a privilege it is to come in contact with these men; what an inspiration to study the results of their consistent and united effort. It is no wonder that students of the agricultural arts, and those who wish to become instructors, flock to Chicago during the live stock exposition. Where else could they hope to find a school exemplifying as this does, all the principles of animal breeding and nutrition. Yes, the International Live Stock Exposition is indeed a great school. Think of what it means to the hundreds of thousands of farmers who live in this section, who see what their brother farmers and stockmen have actually accomplished. Many a man has gotten his first true conception of what animal breeding and production means through a visit to the Exposition. It has thus become an excellent inspiring force to the live stock men of the whole country."

Low rates via The North-Western Ry. from all points will be announced later.

inlet. He had hoped that they would come back engaged. Instead, she sat in the stern, listless and downcast, while he put all of his strength into his rowing in the vain hope of wearing down the dull ache at his shoulder.

He tried not to show his disappointment when they met in the evening, but something had come between them, and, try as they would, neither could re-establish the friendship on the old familiar footing. Victor had made his cast and lost.

At the end of the second day the situation had become so unpleasant that Nettie was talking of cutting short her stay and finishing the summer at the mountains. Victor knew her fondness for the shore, and before she fully determined upon the step he announced that he was unexpectedly called back to town the following day.

It was with mingled relief and dismay that Nettie heard the announcement, and, filled with a desire to be alone, she went down to the beach and put out in the little skiff she handled as expertly as any of the fishermen.

Almost before she knew it she was under the shadow of Window light, and a sudden impulse led her to stop at the little landing and visit again the familiar spot.

Oddly enough, the keeper did not come to greet her, and she made her way cautiously to the open door. The little dog which kept the solitary man company ran whining to meet her, and she followed him into the combined kitchen and living room.

There in his comfortable chair sat the keeper, apparently asleep, but he did not awake even when the dog barked, and with a chill at her heart Nettie went forward.

Before she reached him she knew that his body felt was cold and that death had called him away. She made sure that he was dead, then turned and sped toward the dock to summon assistance.

With a cry, she saw her skiff floating on the waters beyond the inlet, carried out by the ebbing tide, and realized that she was alone on the reef with a dead man.

The dusk was falling, and she sat on the steps, not daring to enter, and vainly scanned the inlet for the sight of a boat.

HUNDRED LOST IN SUNKEN SHIP

Channel Steamer Is Wrecked
Off the Northern Coast of France.

ONLY SIX PERSONS ARE SAVED
Rescuers Find Survivors Clinging to the Mast, Which Was Still Above Water, and Five Others Are Reported to Have Escaped.

London cablegram: Between ninety and a hundred lives were lost by the wrecking of the St. Hilda, a cross channel steamer, near Jardin light-house, off the north coast of France, in a snow storm early Sunday morning.

The St. Hilda, which was owned by the London and Southwestern Railroad company, sailed from Southampton for St. Malo Friday night with more than 120 on board, including passengers and crew.

French reports of the disaster declare 123 lives were lost. At the office of the railroad company here it is estimated ninety-four persons were drowned.

More than sixty of the passengers of the St. Hilda were Breton peasants who were on their way home with the proceeds of the sale in England of their own harvest, on which their families depend for their living through winter. All but five of these perished.

Twenty names were on the first cabin passenger list of the steamer. These included several English people. Among them were the Hon. Mrs. Butler, sister-in-law of Lord Lansdowne, and Col. Follet.

English Officers Are Lost.—Though it is not certain that these were actually on board, they were expected to travel by the Hilda, and it is known that all the first class passengers were drowned. These passengers were English officers and others who were coming to join their families or to spend the season at St. Malo and Dinard, opposite St. Malo.

Of all who left Southampton on the wrecked steamer only six persons definitely are known to have been saved. It is reported that five others landed on a boat on the coast of France, but this report has not been confirmed.

The wreck of the St. Hilda was discovered by the steamer Ada of the same line on leaving St. Malo for Southampton Sunday. To the mast of the sunken vessel, which was still above water, six survivors were clinging. They were rescued by the Ada's boats. They proved to be five Breton farmers and a sailor.

Survivors say that the St. Hilda left Southampton on a heavy fog and, in rendering assistance to a steamer, it was compelled to anchor. Saturday morning the steamer again started. In the meantime the weather had become rough, a gale, accompanied by snowstorms blowing.

Jardin light was sighted late Saturday night through the thick snow then falling. The passengers and part of the crew were asleep and never knew what happened. Apparently the St. Hilda, after making the light, lay to, for it did not strike until early Sunday morning.

Broken Amidships.—The rock which tore the bottom out of it, is within a hundred yards of the lighthouse. Presumably the pilot, who accompanied the steamer from Southampton, was killed.

WANT TAX ON BURNED WHISKY.—Revenue Officials Claim $742,500 From Overholt Distillery.

Connelville, Pa., special: An unusual question confronts the internal revenue department as a result of the destruction of $648,000 worth of whisky in the warehouse of the Overholt distillery. If the tax of $1.10 a gallon is collected, and revenue officials say it will be, the government will get $742,500. If the contention of the distillery company is upheld the government will get nothing.

FARMER IS SLAIN BY HELPER

Quarrel Over Price for Corn Picking Results Fatally.

Sterling, Ill., dispatch: Burton Mapes, a wealthy and influential farmer, residing in the southern part of White side county and twenty miles from this city, was slain Monday morning at 9 o'clock by Arthur Hanley, his quarrelsome and quarrelsome son, at Prophetstown, where he gave himself up to Constable Lewis, confessing his crime. He is held to the next session of the grand jury. The murder is the result of a quarrel over the price of corn picking. Hanley demanding 4 cents a bushel and his employer refusing to give him over 3 cents. On Saturday Hanley stopped working for Mapes and went to the farm of Hiram Winkler. Monday morning Mapes started for Prophetstown and on the road met Hanley. The men began to quarrel and Hanley pulled a revolver from his pocket and fired, the bullet taking effect in the region of the heart. Mapes falling dead from the wound.

ROOSEVELT TRANSLATES IRISH.—President May Soon Publish Book of Old Gaelic Poems.

Washington, Nov. 22.—President Roosevelt will in the near future publish for private circulation a book of old Irish poems, which he has translated from the Gaelic. Dr. Douglas Hyde, the Gaelic scholar, the founder and president of the Gaelic league, who is delivering lectures in the United States, will be the guest of the president at dinner at the white house Saturday. The president, who was taught Gaelic by James Jeffrey Reche, wants Hyde's opinion of the translation he has made before he gives the order to print.

Indict Officers of Building.—Albany, N. Y., dispatch: The grand jury has found indictments against John Ryer, Jr., and Clark L. Daggett, charging them with manslaughter in their alleged responsibility for the collapse of a department store building in which thirteen were killed or fatally injured and thirty hurt.

Explosion in Stone Quarry.—St. Louis, Mo., dispatch: The premature explosion of a blast in the Homan quarry at St. Louis county caused the death of Peter White and John Foley and serious injury of the foreman, John Birmingham, and William Brennan.

Names of Prominent Radicals Connected with Rumored Plot.—Havana, Cuba: Rumors of anti-government plots have been renewed and the names of more or less prominent radicals are being connected with them. The officials of the government display no apprehension, but minor precautionary measures have been taken. An additional company of troops has been ordered to Santiago owing to the prevalence of minor disorders there.

Storm Is Gathering in Cuba.—Names of prominent radicals connected with rumored plot.

RESIST BY ORGANIZING Operators in the Bituminous Field Organize National Association.

SAYS WORKERS ARE TOO STRONG

Illinois Man Contends That Diggers of Soft Coal Hold Absolute Sway Over Employers, Forcing Concessions by Strikes.

Chicago, Nov. 22.—The union miner in the bituminous coal fields of the central, western and southwestern states, who, with the backing of the powerful United Mineworkers' organization, has been enabled to force his point in times of strikes and wage disagreements, is to find an organized opponent of employers in the National Association of Bituminous Coal Mine Operators organized for the announced purpose of resisting the encroachments of the union miner and combating unreasonable demands.

Mine owners from ten states were represented at the convention, which appointed a committee of its members to carry through the preliminary work of forming the new organization. This will be done within a few weeks and the first test of the strength of the proposed combination will be made in January, when the employers meet the miners at Indianapolis to revise the wage agreement that expires April 1.

Purposes Are Outlined.—The organization of the mine owners, brought about by reason of the great strength of the United Mineworkers, plans:

To resist unreasonable wage demands and working conditions.
To enforce the fulfillment of contracts with the unions.
To deal directly with the national executive body of the miners rather than with local bodies.

To mutually protect each other by trade agreements, whom no member of the association is victim of a strike.
To enforce lockouts where the mine workers cannot be handled in any other way.

No attempt will be made, it was asserted, to alter the price of coal to deal as an organization with the railroads. The whole expression of opinion was to the effect that the labor situation was fast becoming more acute, and that the miners had built up a much too powerful organization and that for self-protection the employer was forced into an association that could cope with the miners' union.

"We are in the position now where we can not deal with the miners through our state associations," declared Herman Justi, Illinois mine operator, "and we want to have a national body, with a national executive committee, that will deal on at least equal terms of strength with the national executive committee of the miners."

Miners Are Too Strong.—"Strikes are all too frequent," said Secretary C. L. Seroggs of the Illinois commission. The miners are too strong and they know it. If they are not like a mine boss or a weigh boss or are dissatisfied with anything they simply say: 'We will not work until you fix this up or that or until you discharge this man.' As a result strike follows strike, one mine after another shutting down until the miners are exhausted. What we plan is to have a national body working in such harmonious strength that we can fight when a fight is necessary."

Unreasonable demands, unfeeling for strikes and generally unsatisfactory conditions for coal mine operators are declared to exist because of the inability of the state organizations to successfully resist the organized miners. Once the new association is on its feet the operators are to be prepared to lock horns with the United Mineworkers and struggle with them against violations of working contracts.

More than 50 per cent of the bituminous coal product is in the hands of the owners who placed themselves on record as favoring a combination of owners and aggressive trustees with labor unions. Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas, Indiana, Kentucky and Texas were included in the association. Western Pennsylvania has so far kept out of the new move and the West Virginia operators remained away because their workers have never been organized.

The mine workers are now planning to demand a revised wage schedule. A considerable increase is to be asked both for the bituminous and anthracite miners, the scale to go into effect when the present agreement expires in the spring. The new association of bituminous men will refuse to grant their men an increase at this time.

Ask Roosevelt to Aid Jews.—Boston, Mass., special: The Boston board of aldermen has adopted resolutions condemning the recent outrages upon Jews in Russia. The board voted to ask President Roosevelt to take some action in the matter.

Illinois Man Succeeds Salmon.—Washington dispatch: Secretary Wilson has appointed Dr. A. D. Melvin of Illinois as chief of the bureau of animal industry to succeed Dr. Salmon, who resigned some time ago.

Calumet Baking Powder

The only high grade Baking Powder sold at a moderate price. Complies with the pure food laws of all states.

Trust Baking Powder sold for 40 or 50 cents per pound and may be identified by the trademark. Price. There is a reason to public health, as food prepared from them contains large quantities of Rochelle salts, a dangerous cathartic drug.

Gen. Chaffee Soon to Retire.—Lieut. Gen. A. R. Chaffee, chief of staff of the army, contemplates going upon the retired list in advance of the date when he would be so transferred by operation of law. The latter event would occur on April 1, 1906, and it is under consideration by Gen. Chaffee that he shall anticipate such retirement by several months. It is probable he will ask to be retired about the first of the year and that he will then be succeeded by Major General Bates, now the assistant chief of staff.

Bates would serve until the 1st of April and be succeeded in turn by Gen. H. C. Corbin. It was remarked by Gen. Chaffee at a luncheon given in his honor while in England not long ago that he and his host, Sir Thomas Lipton, were mutually notable in respect of the fact that both rose from the ranks.

Fashionable Women to Make Lace.—Lace making has covered a diversity of fashionable women in Washington this winter. Mrs. Roosevelt may be called the pioneer of this movement, though the wife of the French ambassador, Mme. Jules, and several other women in the diplomatic corps have added to its popularity. When Mrs. Roosevelt receives the women of the cabinet circle for the weekly board conference she works on a piece of flimsy lace while important affairs of the next social season are discussed. Whenever the President's wife receives an intimate friend in the sunny western alcove of the second corridor of the White House, which is her special preserve, she makes her lace, chats long enough to take a cup of tea and begins at her lace again.

Saw Waterloo Victory Signal.—The death has occurred at Hants of a woman named Mrs. Timpon, age one hundred and two. She was born in 1804, and remembers seeing, as a girl of eleven, the signals that proclaimed the victory of Waterloo. She had a good memory and, almost to the end, her intellect was strong.

PASSING OF PORRIDGE.—Makes Way for the Better Food of a Better Day.

"Porridge is no longer used for breakfast in my house," writes a lady from Hantsville, Ohio. "This was an admission of no small significance to one 'brought up' on the time-honored staple."

"One month ago," she continues, "I bought a package of Grape-Nuts food for my husband, who had been invalid for over a year. He had passed through a severe attack of pneumonia and is gripped combined, and was left in a very bad condition when they passed away."

"I tried everything for his benefit, but nothing seemed to do him any good. Month followed month and he still remained as weak as ever. I was almost discouraged about him when I got the Grape-Nuts, but the result has compensated me for my anxiety."

"In the one month that he has eaten Grape-Nuts he has gained 15 pounds in weight. His strength is rapidly returning to him, and he feels like a new man. Now we all eat Grape-Nuts food, and are the better for it. Our little 5 year old boy, who used to suffer from pains in the stomach after eating the old-fashioned porridge, has no more trouble since he began to use Grape-Nuts, and I have no more doctor's bills to pay for him."

"We use Grape-Nuts with only sweet cream, and find it the most tasty dish in our bill of fare."

"Last Monday I ate 4 teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts and cream for breakfast, nothing else, then set to work and got my moving work done by 9 o'clock, and felt less tired, much stronger, than if I had made my breakfast on meat, potatoes, etc., as I used to. I wouldn't be without Grape-Nuts in the house for any money."

Names given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. There's a reason. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in place.

After taking Electric Bitters she was perfectly cured, and can now perform all her household duties." Guaranteed by Barrington Pharmacy, price 50c.

Man's Unreasonableness is often as great as woman's. But Thos. S. Austin, Mgr. of the "Republican," of Leavenworth, of unreasonableness when he refused to allow the doctors to operate on his wife for female trouble. "Instead," he says, "we concluded to try Electric Bitters. My wife was then so sick she could hardly leave her bed, and five (5) physicians had failed to relieve her. After taking Electric Bitters she was perfectly cured, and can now perform all her household duties." Guaranteed by Barrington Pharmacy, price 50c.
