SWEET 16 CAUSE OF IT ALL

Court Over Choice of a District Precentor-Two Cirls the Cause.

The Chicago Sunday Tribune contained the following account of the school mixup in the Libertyville district, which is both interesting and a puzzle to salve:

A rivalry between two school girls, beginning in the primary grades and continuing through their childhood, has engaged a fued among the farmers of the Libortyville district which has culminated in a suit in the Lake County Circuit court at Wankegan.

The action was begun by Thomas Kelley, the father of one of the girls, to oust Adeline Miller-his daughter Winifred's successful rival, from her position as teacher of the Madden school. Adeline is but 16 years old, and it is charged that she is incompetent to teach the school.

The suit took the form of a request for an injunction to prevent the trustees from continuing to employ and pay the teacher. Judge Donnelly refused to grant the injunction yesterday afternoon. He agreed to hear arguments on an amended bill on a data to be fixed after it is filed. Kelley announced that he would immediately file another bill. Llyes Began with Friendship.

Mr. Kelley would reply that Winifred was picking up some, too. In the upper grades a shade of bif-ceroess crept into the rivalry. The girls stapped wearing their braids alikey and their fathers no longer drew reinforce the friendly chats. First Adeline and then Winifred would win the merit prize at the end of the month. When finally Adeline won a debate from Winifred at the lyceum and Winifred was crowned queen at Webster's barn raising, the breach was past healing.

The rural free delivery man was charged with old shading his route to go to one farm first and then the other.

Then Adeline went to Tabertyville to high school, and Winifred to the sister's school at Waukegan, the trouble subsibed for awhile, but was renewed at intervals with reports of honors won by the girls.

Last summer Adeline surprised her father by telling him she had passed, the county teacher's examination and intended applying for the position in the old achoolhouse. Like a flash from a clear sky came the news that Winfred's father was going to law to have the school taken away from her. She sought vindication from her pupils. They responded with the following indorsement, written in a fat copy book hand and bearing forty laboriously written signatures:

Dear Miss Miller: We like you and we want you to teach its. We can learn lots from you, and you don't get mad at us.

"There are perhaps afteen or twenty achers in Lake county less than 17 cars old," he said. "In schools of his kind the teacher often does better work If extremely young. Insofar as the girl's qualifications are concerned, no objections can be made. Her preparation is all that could be asked, and from what I have been able to learn no fault can be found with her teaching or her management of the school. I find that after Kelley's petition was sifted down only two families were left among the signers. It contained the name of one man thought to be dead and another who has long since moved out of the district. Several of the names were written in the same hand."

TELLS UNVARNISHED TRUTH

ans and Church Members Must Get Right With God If They Would Expect Others to Turn to God,

The Rev. Guy Phelps of Portland, Oregon, the Evangelist, was greeted by a very large audience on Sunday evening. He outlined his work in his evening. He outlined his work in his introductory sermon and told the audience of the straight Bible course he intended to pursue. He proved he intended to pursue. He proved himself an able and eloquent speaker and made the impression of being a man of God, seeking to do the Master's will man of God, seeking to do the Master's will.

Monday evening was not so largely attended but the audience fleesed many-pungent truths.

He said, "Christians and church members must 'get right with God' if they would expect others to turn to God." The higher experience of the Christian was urged as the privi-leve and dut of every one professing. lege and duty of every one professing to know Christ. No one is excusable for making crooked paths. He advised all to "Get the 'upper chamber' experi-

By Thursday evening the interest had increased largely. The Evange-list took for his text Proverbs 28:13. "He that covereth his transgressions shall not proper but whose confessed hand forsaketh them shall obtain merey." "The best people," said the speaker, "see the most good in others." It is the mean, limpure fellow who is always seeing the great Inulis others have. He lays have the sins of others and put the covering torn from them, over himself. For over an hour he poured red hot shell into his audience with an earnestness that was convincing. Such a sight as followed the sermon Salem church and Barrington have not witnessed in many years. Seekers after a pure life and seekers of salvation lind the altar end to end. Tears of joy and songs of gladness lol. By Thursday evening the interest of salvation lined the altar end to end. Tears of joy and songs of gladness fol-lowed. Some who for years had been church members confessed they now had the assurance of being saved they never had before. The members of the different churches take an active part in these meetings and enjoy the blesin these meetings and enjoy the blessings God is pouring out as though all were one family. We look for greater things to follow.

Large, Modern One Will Replace It. Other News.

A new feed mill for Wauconda now seems assured. The citizens held a meeting Monday evening and considerable interest was manifested. Fred Deinlein and son August, are the prime movers and are earnestly supported by the entire community. It is proposed to purchase the corner lot now occupied by Joseph N. Freund's barn and convert that building into a mill of sufficient capacity to meet the requirements until next spring, when a new building will be erected and equipped with the latest and best machinery. A 50-horse power engine will furnish power. Put your shoulder to the wheel and help make the enterprise a success.
