VOL. 22. NO. 7.

BARRINGTON ILLINOIS, FRIDAY, APRIL 13, 1906.

$1.50 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.

IT IS WORTH TRYING FOR

A Free Scholarship in University of Illinois Offered by Representative Pearson.

To the Young Men and Women of the 7th Senatorial District:

President James has requested the members of the General Assembly to nominate candidates for free scholarships in the State University of Illinois, at an early date, I shall be pleased to nominate some young person, who must be over sixteen years of age, for a free scholarship from the Seventh District. The certificate of nomination must be filed with the president of the university on or before the first Saturday in June, on which day, beginning at 8 a. m., an examination of candidates will be held by the County Superintendent of Schools for Cook county, at 26 Van Buren street, Chicago.

I have a few copies of the regulations for the examination and of the list of subjects to be covered by the examination, which may be had at my office in Chicago, or they may be had by letter to Dr. W. B. Pillsbury, the registrar of the university, at Urbana, Illinois.

Each of the four members of the legislature from this district has the right to nominate one candidate.

If more than one requests the nomination from any member, he may elect to require them to compete in the examination and award the scholarship to the one passing the best examination.

This is an opportunity to acquire an education which I hope will be accepted by at least four students from this district.

Louis J. Pearson.

OLD SETTLER PASSES AWAY.

Mrs. Jane Spriggs Passes Away Sunday After Years of Suffering.

Mrs. Jane Spriggs, wife of William Spriggs, an old settler here, died last Sunday afternoon after years of suffering. The funeral took place Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Lapham of the M. E. church officiating. Interment was in Evergreen cemetery.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Jane Spriggs was born in Peterborough, England, April 13th, 1824. On September 22nd, 1844, she was married to William Spriggs.

Three children were born to them. Henry died when three years of age. Mary and William are still living.

Mrs. Spriggs early in life joined the Episcopal church, and has been a devout and faithful Christian.

For years she has been a great sufferer, yet her faith in God's love has never faltered. This has been the great secret of her joyous Christian life.

Mrs. Spriggs has always been a great lover of her home. Her home was her joy and it was ever her delight to look out after the interests of her husband and children. Throughout her life she preferred the quiet of the home life and she will ever be remembered as a faithful wife and a loving mother.

Mrs. Spriggs, cheerful disposition was one of her remarkable characteristics. Even in the hours of great suffering, her cheerfulness was a surprise to many. She most heartily appreciated even the smallest attention or kindness of neighbors and friends. Even during her severest illness, she seemed ever to breathe out a cheerful and a thoughtful spirit. She often spoke of the great goodness and mercy of God and said that she realized something of the truth of the words of Paul, "For one light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory; while we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen; for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal."

Mrs. Spriggs' great faith in God's love and in His care for her for time and eternity will ever be an inspiration and a comfort to her relatives and loved ones.

At the close of such a life how appropriate are the words of the hymn:

ASLEEP IN JESUS.

A deep in Jesus' blessed sleep,
From which none ever woke to weep;
A calm and undisturbed repose,
Unbroken by the last of tos.
Asleep in Jesus! O how sweet

To be for such a slumber meet!
With holy confidence to king,
That death hath lost its venomous sting.

Asleep in Jesus! peaceful rest,
Whose waking is supremely blest!
No fear, no woe, shall dim that hour
That manifests the Saviour's power.

Asleep in Jesus! O for me!
May such a blissful refuge be!
Securely shall my ashes lie.

Waiting the summons from on high,
Asleep in Jesus! far from thee,
Thy kindred and their graves may be;
But there is still a blessed sleep.

From which none ever wakes to weep.
FATHER O'NEILL IS DEAD.

Noted Divine Passed Away Tuesday from Heart Disease.

Rev. Patrick M. O'Neill, pastor of St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church at McHenry, Ill., died suddenly Tuesday night from heart failure. On account of the cerebriform incident to holy week, it was arranged that requiem mass be had Wednesday, which accordingly was celebrated. Among the priests in attendance were: Revs. P. M. Flannigan, M. J. Dorney, E. A. Kelly, J. F. Callaghan, J. J. Jennings, H. J. Dunlap, S. J.; J. F. Green, O. S. A., and also Right Rev. A. J. McGavigick and Rev. J. E. McGivney, both of whom were altar boys of the deceased in former years. Father O'Neill was one of the oldest priests of the archdiocese and was a priest of over forty years' service. He was continuously pastor of McHenry since 1879. Burial took place Thursday.

MISS GODDARD TO MOTHERS

Gives Some Excellent Advice in An Able Paper Delivered at Mother's Meeting.

At the Mother's Meeting at the School last week Miss Goddard said: It is a good thing for mothers and teachers to meet and converse in a friendly manner during the first month of school. The children, not intentionally, however, often ignore parents and teachers to form wrong ideas of each other. Knowing the parent, most likely, gives the teacher an insight into the child's life which he could in no otherwise get. On the other hand, the parents having some knowledge of the teacher helps them to understand the motive of the teacher in dealing with their child. So, as teachers, most heartily welcome the parents to come into the school, visit with us when we have leisure moments, perhaps at the close of the session, thus helping in our efforts to teach and understand your children.

Punishment is not a matter of getting even. Its purpose is of a two-fold nature—first, reformatory, to reform the child who has committed the deed; second, preventive, to prevent others from committing the same deed.

Do not put a price on misdeeds, saying, "whoever commits a certain deed will receive a certain reward or punishment." Mete out the punishment when you know what pupil is to receive it. The same punishment, by no means, do for every child. Each child must have his respective punishment.

Offering prizes may, as it has, lead the child to commit some crime in order to win the coveted reward. It is a good plan to leave the promised prize out of the question. Sometimes, over severity at home on account of low grades may cause the child to be dishonest at school.

So many children show a lack of respect for churches, older people, and those around them. They should be taught to be still when attending a sermon or an address out of pure respect for others.

I believe in corporal punishment. It has its limitations but sometimes it is necessary. If a whipping must be given it should be given with force.

The Chicago schools show the fallacy of taking from the school the authority to use corporal punishment. In those schools the pupils talk and act in a way beyond toleration simply because they knew the school authorities dare not touch them.

It takes more than brains to make a good disciplinarian. It takes heart—we must love the child to get his best conduct. It has been wisely said, "Children should be punished with one hand and caressed with the other."

BE CAREFUL IN VOTING

Do Not Vote for More Than Three Candidates for Trustee.

The village election will be held next Tuesday for the purpose of electing one clerk and three trustees. Sample ballots appear in another column of this issue. The polls are open from 7 a. m. to 5 p. m. It is the duty of every citizen to go and cast his vote for the men of his choice and then abide by the result.

Stay at home have no business complaining after it is over.

The best instruction we know of for marking of the ballot is as follows:

If you desire to vote either of the tickets straight simply place a mark in the circle at the head of the ticket of your choice.

Should you wish to vote a mixed ticket do not mark in either of the circles but mark in the squares to the left of the candidate of your choice.

There are only three trustees to be elected and care should be taken to indicate the three of your choice.

If these instructions are followed you may be sure that your ballot will be counted as intended.

SHOULD COMPLY WITH LAW.

Township Officers Should Publish Reports in Full.

The time is here when the township officers should publish their annual reports.

No law on the statute book is more specific as to official duty than the one requiring these reports to be published. There are few laws that have been so completely ignored.

The enforcement of this law would have saved Peoria thousands of dollars. Its enforcement may save other cities, towns and townships thousands of dollars.

Many reports that are published might as well not be printed. When a treasurer says he has received a certain amount of money, and paid out a certain amount to school districts, he might as well not have published any report. If he says he has received certain amounts, and states when and from whom he received them, then he has done right; if he says he has paid to a certain person a certain sum for teaching in a certain district, a certain number of months, then he has furnished a report which will enable the tax-payers to ascertain whether or not he has been padding the pay rolls. A mere statement of an aggregate amount received and expended gives no information of any value to the public, and can be utilized to cover up just such crimes as started the people of Peoria and have been found elsewhere.

THE GREAT K. & A. TRAIN ROBBERY

"If they were worth so much to you, I suppose they can't be worth any less to the G. S.," I replied.

"Fortunately, there is no way that he can learn where they are," said Mr. Cullen.

"Don't let's stand still," cried Miss Cullen. "Mr. Gordon, I'll run you a race to the east of the city. The G. S. said this only after getting a big lead, and she got there about eight inches ahead of me, which pleased her mightily. 'It takes men so long to get started,' was the way she explained her victory. Then she walked me beyond the end of the boarding to explain the working of a switch to her. That it was only a pretext she proved to me the moment I had reached the bar, by saying:

"Mr. Gordon, may I ask you a question?"

"Certainly," I answered.

"It is one I should ask you or Fred, but I am afraid they might not tell me the truth. You will, won't you?" she begged very earnestly.

"I will," I promised.

"Supposing," she continued, "that it became known that you have those letters? Would it do our side any harm?"

I thought for a moment, and then shook my head. "No new proxies could arrive here in time for the election," I said, "and the ones I have will not be voted."

She still looked doubtful, and asked, "Then why did papa say just now, 'Fortunately'?"

"It merely meant that it was safer than it shouldn't know."

"I suppose I have to keep it a secret!" she asked anxiously.

"I suppose so," I said, and then added, "Why should you be afraid of asking your father?"

"Because he might—well, if he knew, I'm sure he would sacrifice himself; and I couldn't run the risk."

"I am afraid I don't understand," I questioned.

"I would rather not explain," she said, "and of course that ended the subject."

Our exercises taken, we went back to the Cullen's car, and Madge left us to write some letters. A moment later Lord Ralles remembered he had not written home recently, and he too went forward to the dining room. That made me call myself—something, for not having offered Miss Cullen's the use of my car in '97. Owing to this the two missed out of the big game we were to have; for hardly had they gone when one of the servants brought a card to Mr. Cullen, who looked at it and exclaimed, "Mr. Camp!" Then, after a speaking pause, in which we all exchanged glances, he said, "Bring him in."

On Mr. Camp's entrance he looked as much surprised as we had all done a moment before. "I beg your pardon for intruding, Mr. Cullen," he said. "I am afraid this was Mr. Gordon's car, and I wish to see him."

"I am Mr. Gordon."

"You are traveling with Mr. Cullen," he inquired, with a touch of suspicion in his manner.

"No," I answered. "My special is good temper, and when he told me that I couldn't help retorting:

"That's quite on a par with most G. S. methods."

"I'm not speaking for the G. S. young man," roared Mr. Camp, "I speak as a director of the Kansas & Arizona. What is more I will have those letters inside of twenty-four hours."

He made an angry exit, and I said to myself, "I must get him to stand still and spy out the proceedings of the enemy's camp. He may telegraph to Washington, and if there's any chance of the Postmaster-General receiving his order I must go back to Flanagan on No. 4 this afternoon."

"He shan't do anything that I don't know about till he goes to bed," Fred promised. "But how the deuce did he know that you had those letters?"

That was just what we were all puzzled about, for only the members of 218 and myself so far as I knew, were in a position to let Mr. Camp hear of that fact.

As Fred made his exit he said, "Don't tell Madge that there is a new complication, for the dear girl has had worries enough already."

Miss Cullen not rejoicing us, and Lord Ralles presently doing so, I went to my own car, for he and I were not good furniture for the same room. Before I had been there long, Fred came rushing in.

"Camp and Baldwin have been in consultation with a lawyer," he said, "and now the three have just boarded those cars," pointing out the window at the branch-line train that was to leave for Phoenix in two minutes.

"You must go with them," I urged.

"And keep us informed as to what they do, for they evidently are going to set the law on us, and the G. S. has always owned the Territorial Judges, as you'll stretch a point to oblige them."

"I have time to fill a bag?"

"Plenty," I assured him, and, going out, I ordered the train held till I should give the word.

"What does it all mean?" asked Miss Cullen, joining me.

I laughed, and replied, "I'm doing a braver thing even than your party did; I'm holding up a train all by myself."

"But my brother came dashing in just now and said he was starting for Phoenix."

"Let her go," I called to the conductor, as Fred jumped aboard; and the train pulled out.

"I hope there's nothing wrong?" Madge questioned, anxiously.

"Nothing to worry over," I laughed. "Only a little more fun for our money. By the way, Miss Cullen, I went out to avoid her questions, but have your letters ready, and will let you have them at once. I can get them on No. 4, so that they'll go East to night."

Miss Cullen blushed as if I had said something I ought not to have, and stammered, "I—I changed my mind, and—that is—I didn't write them, after all."

"I beg your pardon—I ought to have known it. I mean, it's very natural," I faltered and stammered, thinking what a dunc I had been not to understand that Lord Ralles' letter to Madge's letter had been only a pretext to get away from the rest of us.

My blundering apology and evident embarrassment deepened. Miss Cullen's blue flushed, and she explained, hurriedly, "I found I was tired, and so instead of writing, I went to my room and rested."

I suppose any girl would have invented the same yarn, yet it hurt me more than the biggest one I had ever told on plain paper. Still as the president was, it made me very blue, and led me to shut myself up in my own car for the rest of that afternoon and evening. Indeed, I couldn't sleep, but sat up working, quite forgetful of the passing hours, till a glance at my watch startled me with the fact that it was a quarter of two.

The night agent was sitting in the station, nodding over his book, when I was off an hour I went in to ask him if the train to Phoenix had arrived on time. Just as I opened the door, the telegraph instrument began ringing, and called Ash Forks. The man, with the curious ability that operators get of recognizing their own call, even in sleep, waked up instantly and responded, and, not wishing to interrupt him, I delayed asking my question till he should be free. I stood there thinking of Madge, and listening to the ticks of the cipher signature of the sending operator, and the "Twenty-four paid." But as I heard the clicks which meant ph, I suddenly became attentive, and when it completed "Phoenix," I concluded Fred was wiring me, and listened for what followed the date. This is what the instrument ticked:

Fingers in Wild Gyration.
"Gee, are those fellows crazy?"
"What's wrong?"
"Look at their fingers gyrating."
Gosh, they'll snap 'em off!"
"No; it's all right. They're a couple of deaf mute students giving their class yell."

The poorest education that teaches self-control is better than the best that neglects it.—Sterling.

That may not look particularly intelligible, but if the Phoenix operator had been talking over the phone to me he couldn't have said any plainer.

"Sheriff Yavapai county ash forks arizona be at rail road station three forty five today to meet train arriving from phoenix prepared to immediately serve peremptory mandamus issued to night by Judge Wilson sig pretty please."

My question being pretty thoroughly answered, I went back and continued my walk; but before five minutes had passed, the operator came out, and handed me a message. It was from Fred, and read thus:

"Camp Baldwin, and lawyer went at once to house of Judge Wilson, where they stayed an hour. Wilson, after dispatching a telegram have taken seats in train for Ash Forks, leaving here at three twenty-five. I shall return with them."

A bigger blot than I could have understood the more. I was to be handled before Judge Wilson by means of mandamus proceedings, and, as he was notoriously a G. S. Judge, and was coming to Ash Forks solely to obtain a writ of habeas corpus, he would unquestionably declare the letters the property of Mr. Camp and order their delivery.

Apparently I had my choice of being a traitor to Madge, of going to

Gourdain, lottery promoter and "banker" that accompanied Dowie's return Tuesday:

The extent to which communication was carried on between Dowie and Gourdain Tuesday while supporters, opponents and representatives of the press besieged Dowie's quarters is not known.

Sufficient it is, however, that Gourdain is the "banker" who threw his all at Dowie's feet several days ago in a telegram that brought great comfort to the first pot.

Gourdain is known to have sent emissaries to meet Dowie while the latter was speeding to Chicago, but they failed to make connections. He hurried men to St. Louis for the same purpose, but was unsuccessful.

Several of the dead were crushed and mangled beyond recognition. The scenes in the vicinity of the ruins were agonizing, relatives of the victims clinging to the walls of the building to be pulled to safety.

Barrington Locals.

Mrs. Ada Nata McIntosh, reader and impersonator, of Barrington, has been secured by the Epworth League of the Dundee M. E. church, to give one of her popular readings here, the evening of April 18th. The program will be interspersed with vocal and instrumental music, and a first class entertainment is thus assured.—Dundee Hawkeye.

At a ten-minute meeting of the Lake County Republican central committee held in Waukegan Tuesday, it was decided to defer the selection of delegates to the judicial convention and rescind the call of the committee for a county convention. A new primary law will have to be enacted before a call for the county convention will be made.

The postmaster general has issued a notice that all rural mail carriers take the shortest way to all roads and that other carriers or conveyances must surrender the right of way to the rural carriers. This order was issued as a result of numerous complaints of certain parties to carriers who were unable to deliver their mail in the specified time because carriages and conveyances which they met refused to give them the right of way and often made it necessary to drive slower or wait until the road was clear before they could proceed.

Weak Postal Routes.

Commenting upon the plan of the postoffice department to discontinue many of the rural free delivery routes where the number of mail parcels do not average up to the standard required by the government, the Atlanta Constitution says:

Speaking for these weak little rural routes of Georgia, one of the other editors says: "The Constitution urges the very point of their remoteness from populous centers and the smallness of the number of parcels to be delivered that they deserve to be fostered and encouraged in every possible way by the post office department. The rural free delivery route is almost the sole link of public communication between these sequestered places and the great world without. Many of the people who live on these routes are road station and have not access to the interurban trolley line and party line telephone. They are in the most remote rural districts of the east. Many of the farmers living along these rural postal routes do not find time in the busy season to go to the nearest town to get their mail more than once in a fortnight, or even once in a month, and their isolation could not be greater. The rural free delivery service has been a great factor of sociality, as well as a positive convenience of communication in their little world. It keeps them to some extent in touch with the outside world. It is one of the refining influences of civilization."

Nobody undertakes to deny the happy influence of rural free delivery. Many of those routes that make such a poor showing when it comes to counting their mail pieces have made a marked improvement in social and material respects since the route was established, and left to progress at the same ratio of improvement they will one day make their routes self supporting. They ought to be left free to do this and not compelled to relapse into their former nonprogressive isolation through the loss of this life infusing postal service. Friends of rural free delivery should rally to its aid in this crisis.

Newspapers in China.

It is rather interesting to note just at this time that China at present seems to be passing through much the same process with its newspapers and other publications that many parts of the United States have passed through. Rev. E. D. Hall, who has charge of the industrial farm for boys between Cary and Crystal Lake, presented his work at last Sunday afternoon's meeting of the most excellent work the industrial church was doing among the poor boys of the large cities, and of the better work which he expected to be able to do by taking the city boy out into the country, away from the vice and temptations of city life.

G. H. Neimier, who is a most enthusiastic member of the West Side Y. M. C. A. of New York city, gave a pleasing talk on the work being done by his association which boasts a membership of about 3,600, and he congratulated the Barrington Y. M. C. A. on the progress it had made during the past year. The Barrington association wished it might have the benefit of Gus push and energy in its work here.

The speaker for next Sunday afternoon will be T. T. Phelps, the younger of the Baptist pastors. Mr. Phelps is a very energetic young man and is deserving of a good-sized audience. His subject will be the "Patriotism of Peace." All men are invited to come out and get acquainted with the young man.

The committee promises a radical departure from its usual run of speakers for April 23 in a physical director in Y. M. C. A. work, who will talk on the relation of exercise to the physical development of man, and urges all men and boys to bear this date and subject in mind.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The Young Men's Christian Association is rejoicing over the fact that its membership has passed the century mark; with the acceptance of the application of Robert L. Cole the one hundredth member was added to the roll and the predictions of the most enthusiastic members were surpassed, nor did the increase cease at that figure, but has calmly proceeded to 101 last Monday night, Glenn C. Webster and John Kampert being among the latest acquisitions.

The ball team has selected a site for its field, having rented a piece of property from B. H. Landner for that purpose. Steps will be taken at once to get it in shape for early practice games. Many new recruits are coming in and there will in all probability be two teams formed, which insures plenty of home games.

The manager and captain, Messrs. Simmons and Sodt, are busier than two hens mothering a brood of ducklings.

Walter Lageschulte, Walter Hohmann and Roy Collier have been added to the social committee, and Wm. Grunau, Jr., will help out the advertising end of the business.

Time to Face About.

The recent scathing exposures of graft in high places has been a good thing. It has cleared the air of get-rich-quick miasma. But there is danger of going too far. It is useless to bombard with 100 pound shells what rifle balls will rout the enemy.

There is a big chunk of honesty left in this country, and the graft exposures only serve to bring out that comforting fact. If the mass of men were not honest there would have been no vehement public expressions of horror at the revelations of crookedness. There is honesty left, and honest ways abound of getting good money which the getter may hold under titles no investigation can snuff.

The increase in the number of horses in the United States during the past five years has been something over 3,000,000, while the increase in value totals up to the neighborhood of $222,000,000. This showing hardly presages the extinction of the equine breed in the near future.

Ten cities claim great Homer, dead, through which he, living, begged his bread." So it may be a spirit of retaliation that induces General Kuroki to refuse to belong to a lot of other nations now putting in to claim him and begs to remain simply a true blue Jap.

America, it is said, spends $3,500,000 more annually for chewing gum than for foreign missions. And the figures would be even more startling but for the fact that most girls can make one "gum" last a whole week.

After the students have mastered the monkey language they might put in some time trying to make out what train drivers and street car conductors say.

A LIVING DEATH.

Vividly Described by One of Sioux Falls, South Dakota.

Andrew Johnson, 111 West Twelfth St., Sioux Falls, S. D., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills" saved my life. I suffered from a careful analysis of the urine and a diagnosis of my case, had told me I could not live six weeks. I was struck down in the street with kidney trouble, and for a whole year could not leave the house. I lost flesh, my eyes failed me. I bled at times, my back hurt and I suffered a living death. There seemed no hope until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. Then I began to improve. The pain left gradually, the swellings subsided, I gained appetite and weight, and to make a long story short, I got well.

TIPS FOR THE TABLE.

Bending the head to drink is inelegant.

The arms should not be allowed to rest on the table.

A straight back does not urge a guest to eat more.

A gesture of dissent is sufficient to say one does not take wine.

It is impolite to assure him that there is an abundant supply.

A hostess does not apologize. A guest does not say anything amiss.

Lifting a small plate from the table while eating from it is provincial and common.

The Best Guaranty of Merit.

Open Publicly.

Every bottle of Dr. Pierce's world-famed medicines leaving the great laboratory at Buffalo, N. Y., has printed upon it the name of all the ingredients entering into its composition. This fact alone places Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines in a class all by themselves. The patient or physician can see at a glance what they are, and know that they are composed of, and that the ingredients are selected by the most eminent medical authorities.

The further fact that neither Dr. Pierce's Golden Seal, Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines, Dr. Pierce's Liver Tonic, Dr. Pierce's Heart and Liver Tonic, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription nor Dr. Pierce's nerve tonic, contain any alcohol, also entitles them to a place all by themselves.

Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Pierce discovered that chemically pure glycerine of proper strength, is a better solvent and preservative for all the ingredients in their medicine than any, native, or medicinal plants that is alcohol; and, furthermore, that it is a better solvent for the properties of its own, being demulcent, nutritive, antiseptic, and a most efficient antiflammatory.

The properties of the above medicines contain no alcohol, or any harmful, habit-forming drug, as will be seen from the ordinary patent, or secret medicines. Every ingredient entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's medicine is the greatest kind of an endorsement from leading medical writers of the several schools of practice. No other medicine in the market like it, or any other, has such professional endorsement.

Many so-called physicians prescribe the above non-secret medicines largely, but the most intelligent people employ the ordinary patent, or secret medicines. Every ingredient entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's medicine is the greatest kind of an endorsement from leading medical writers of the several schools of practice. No other medicine in the market like it, or any other, has such professional endorsement.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation, diarrhea, dysentery, and many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. One "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two may be used as a cathartic. All these, and nothing is "just as good." Easy to take as candy.

CURES INDIGESTION

When what you eat makes you uncomfortable it is doing you very little good beyond keeping you alive. It is doing you worse than useless, for they will in time deprive the stomach of all power to digest food. The stomach must be toned up—strengthened. The herb tonic-laxative, Lane's Family Medicine

A Diamond Well.

A diamond well! Yes, I have one, a real, genuine, pure, sparkling diamond well. Not of sparkling stones, but of pure sparkling water. I have seen articles from time to time for quite a number of years past in foreign papers treating of the diamond well, and the article in last week's Review is responsible for this one, and the following is how I came to have my diamond well. About ten years ago I found it necessary to dig a well for family water supply. The ground surface is about level for say one-eighth mile all around, then slopes eight feet to the east and west, and to the north and south. I dug a hole about four feet in diameter through six feet of yellow clay, then six feet through blue clay, when I struck a blue shale or slate rock, some call it soapstone rock, the grain of which lies flat or horizontal. Some streaks are very hard and strong, and others soft and thin. About the rock, about one-half inch, I got a small supply of water, say about a gallon every five minutes. At that I stopped digging, and in a few days I felt proud of my well of clear, cold, pure sparkling water.

It kept rising in the well until it came within about six feet of the top, then I had ten feet of water, but in about two weeks the water began to get warmer and warmer.

Then I stopped digging, and it was again all right until it again came near the top of the well, then got warm, insipid and virtually stagnant.

If I could have used the water as it came into the well it would have been all right, but as it rose so high in the well and stood so long exposed to the air became unfit for house or well use.

Well, after digging it, it became necessary for me to move onto another piece of land, but only just over the lot line, not more than one hundred feet, so that I would have to dig another well. But the problem arose, "How could I fit it so that the water would always be good?" I would have to put a lid on, or cover the top of the well, so that the top and the lid would have to be water tight. Well, after studying on the matter a year, I got all material at hand and then went to digging. Of course the conditions were same as first well—yellow clay, blue clay and blue rock. When I got to water I arched over at top of blue rock with a thin-bladed pick and dug a hole to a three-inch hole through the center, and over this hole I placed a glazed three-inch sewer pipe. Then I began filling in the clay ground around the pipe and rammed it hard every five or six inches until I had the well filled to the top, putting of course one length of the pipe on top of the soil, and did not care to join it, so that no water could get in nor out at the joints of pipe, then I put a 1½-inch galvanized pump pipe down inside the sewer pipe, then packed inside sewer and outside pump pipe with clean cloths and presto! I had it a pure diamond well, always "cold, always clear, always pure." I would not talk about water, but for it to have a common open well again, for there can never be any horses, cows, hogs, sheep, dogs, cats, rats, mice, frogs, toads, beetles, bugs, worms nor microbes get into it; no drainage nor seepage from any source whatever, without first going through ten feet of solidly packed clay. I believe I am justified in naming it my "Diamond Well."—A. A. Fradenburg, Cuyahoga Co., Ohio.

Watery

We hope that none of our readers will have to take the seat for a seat.

The seat is increasing in nearly all the oat growing region, and it is a trouble that is easily checked.

When smut takes a head of oats it entirely destroys every grain. It does not skip any. The loss is much greater than most farmers suppose, because the smut heads do not stand out as do the good heads. They stand up at right angles to the entire plant.

It is not absurd that this loss should be permitted to go on and nothing be done about it!

One way to treat the seed is to dip it in hot water, letting it remain for only 15 minutes.

The water should be at a temperature of from 130 to 135 degrees.

On account of the difficulty of keeping the water just at the right temperature, the following dip is preferred.

This consists of half a pound of formalin to 20 gallons of water.

The seed may be dipped in this or the solution may be sprinkled over the pile of seed oats spread out on the floor.

The oats should be thoroughly wet and then shovelled together and covered with sand or earth, and left so for from two to twelve hours.

It will require thirty gallons of the solution for 100 to 150 bushels of the grain.

The formalin is sold under the form of formaldehyde, being composed of 40 per cent pure formalin and 60 per cent water.

Dours of Poultry Houses.

It is better to have one door in a poultry house unless the second door fits tightly and can be closely fastened.

This is to prevent drafts.

The door in use should be as large as the ordinary house door so that it may be comfortably used by the owner of the poultry.

The little door only half high enough for a human being to enter soon becomes a nuisance.
