VOL. 22. NO. 22.

BARRINGTON, ILLINOIS, FRIDAY, JULY 27, 1906

HAS ROMANCE IN REAL LIFE

Ray Loco, a Former Barrington Boy, Meets His Fate in Indiana.

The following taken from the Independent of Bellefontaine, Ohio, explains itself:

The splutter and glare of the gas-line torch and the general excitement and free life which is peculiar to the circus appeals strangely to some and to Bessie Acres, aged 18, the charming daughter of Contractor and Mrs. Douglass Acres, of Lebanon, Ind., it had a fascination.

Bessie Acres was a belle in the Indiana town where her parents are prominent in both business and social life. When the Carnival Company came along about a month ago and the tents were pitched in Lebanon, Miss Bessie was among a party of young folks who visited the shows and were particularly entertained by the "Rube" actor, who sang a song, gave a monologue, and generally made himself useful.

The comedian's name was Ray Loco and after an introduction to Miss Bessie, it was a case of love at first sight. The parents of Miss Acres said nothing for they didn't know, and if they had it wouldn't have made the slightest difference.

There were long walks, delightful people behind the scenes where show life and its wonderful mysteries were revealed.

Mr. Loco was the principal "splicer" or announcer for the "Escaped From Sing Sing" attraction. When he talked from the platform he talked mostly to Miss Bessie; who was generally in the assembly.

Three weeks passed. A part of the Carnival Company came to Bellefontaine the other day and tents were pitched on south Main. There was also a merry-go-round. Miss Bessie evidently missed her admirer, for when a message came to her she just packed up and came to this city, too.

On Friday Miss Acres and Mr. Loco, the man who is paid to make people laugh, repaired to the home of Rev. Jess Swank, where they were made man and wife. Friends of Mr. Loco who were connected with the shows went along and acted as witnesses. "Isn't she a peach?" said Mr. Loco last evening, when in paint and powder he found time to talk to the reporter.

"It was a case of love at first sight and we would never have been happy apart. We will remain with the Carnival show and expect to tour the south this winter. My wife will go into the show business with me."

Then he stepped out in front and surpassed himself in entertaining, for he was happy.

The merry-go-round "lovers" tub and all were well patronized last evening and with difficulty was Mrs. Loco found. She was enjoying the merry-go-round seated on a painted horse. She has a wealth of golden hair and blue eyes.

"We sent word to my folks today," said she, "that she had been married." Then she shook her head and laughed, for her husband in his "rube" costume had climbed onto the merry-go-round followed by an army of small boys, just to see how she liked to ride.

And no one in all that big crowd but the newspaper man knew that the attraction was. The showmen, however, understand and sympathized, for Loco was not supposed to leave the "Escaped From Sing Sing" show just when business was rushing.

Attend the Woodmen picnic at Barrington on Aug. 1.

HE IS A MANAGER NOW

Charles Beinhoff Takes Charge of Cleveland Branch of Big Packing Plant.

Charles Beinhoff of Cleveland, Ohio, made a short visit to his parents here Tuesday. "Charley" on Monday takes charge of Nelson Morris' Cleveland branch as manager. It is quite an honor for a young man to be elevated over a large number of employees, some of them having been in the employ of the firm for over thirty years, but it only goes to show that true grit, honesty and hustle will win out every time. There is no question but what Mr. Beinhoff will "make good," and his many Barrington friends feel proud of his achievements.

Olympic Club Entertainments.

On Saturday evening the Olympic Club gave the first of its series of Saturday evening entertainments. It is proposed to have something done at the new Club house every Saturday evening.

The program of the last entertainment received such applause as will indicate that the fifteen cents admission charged, and which includes the cost of the meal, was satisfactory.

We would suggest that the clubhouse be screened in before the next ice cream entertainment, as the combination of shade and ice cream is not altogether pleasing. On Saturday evening, July 28, a gentlemen's evening will be the feature. Some refreshments will be served, and each club member is invited to bring a guest.

He Knows Whence He Speaks.

Jefferson City, Mo., Aug. 18.—Governor Joseph W. Folk, in addressing the retail merchants of Missouri at their convention here yesterday, spoke against the mail order business and favored advertising in the town papers.

We are proud of our splendid cities, and we want them to increase in wealth and population, but we also want our country towns to grow. We wish the city merchants to build up, but we also desire the country merchants to prosper. I do not believe in the mail order citizen. If a place is good enough for a man to live in and to make his money in, it is good enough for him to spend his money.

No merchant can succeed without advertising in one way or another. Patronize your town papers, build them up, and they will build the town up and build you up increased trade and greater opportunities. Do not be afraid that business is going to be hurt by the recent exposures of wrongdoing in the commercial world. No man who is doing an honest business can be injured by the light. All business will be better for the cleansing process it is going through and for stamping out of evil."

Was Well Played.

Wauconda and Barrington broke even in a tennis tournament on the latter's court last Friday afternoon. Play was started at 3:12 and brought together E. L. Harrison and Rev. F. N. Lapham for Singles, and Mrs. Simons and Shearer vs D. L. Brown and L. E. Mainan for doubles. Harrison, the Wauconda champion, won over his Barrington opponent, the opening game going to deuce just 12 times before Wauconda's representative finally tied it down. The Doubles were also very interesting and brought out fine teams of work on both sides. The "Dacs" captured the first set 6-2, lost the second 6-4, took the third 6-4, lost the fourth 6-4, and finally won the event by walking off with the last 6-2. A return match is to be arranged soon.

BARRINGTON LOCALS.

Mrs. E. M. Fletcher visited at Sharon, Wis., this week.

Miss Ida Seeger of Chicago spent Sunday with her sister Mrs. Geo. M. Wagner.

Reese Moore and Mrs. Jukes and daughter, Miss Jukes, are camping at Fox river.

Mrs. W. W. Iverson returned to her home in Milwaukee, Wis., after a visit with her mother, Mrs. E. M. Fletcher.

The young people of the Baptist Sunday school have changed the place of their ice cream social to Mrs. Sizer's lawn instead of W. Wilmer's. It will take place Monday evening, July 30th.

The Corner Band will be attendance.

If weather is inclement it will be given in the church parlors.

The Zion church Sunday school picnic, given in Comstock's grove, Tuesday, was one of the most enjoyable affairs of its kind and was patronized by a large number of friends of the church. Games, music, etc., furnished amusement, and, of course, the usual "goodies" were distributed in abundance.

Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Willmarth entertained the following friends and relatives at their home over Sunday.

Miss Margaret McHugh and Mr.

and Mrs. W. Elmslie, of Chicago, and

J. Flynn, brother of Mrs. Willmarth, of St. Louis. Mrs. Flynn, who has been making her home with her daughter here, will return to St. Louis with her son Sunday, while Mrs. Elmslie will remain a guest at the Willmarth home for an indefinite period.

Everyone is most cordially invited to attend the Woodmen picnic to be given in the grove at Barrington on Wednesday, Aug. 1st. Good music, raffles and athletic sports of every description; in fact, so many prizes will be no lack of inducements for prospective contestants. Prizes will be in abundance for pretty girls, handsome fellows, and the most attractive looking bum, etc. Come one and all to Barrington on August 1st and enjoy a pleasant day's outing with the Woodmen boys. They'll make you feel at home.

ADVERTISED LETTERS.

The following letters remain unclaimed in the Barrington Post Office for week ending July 27, 1906:

H. Butler.

Mr. Clarkson.

Mrs. Fred Grady.

Mr. H. Manzow.

ED PETERS SELLS LIVERY

Nick Baker and Max Naggetz Took

Charge of the Business

Tuesday.

Ed Peters, for years one of the leading livery men of Barrington, on Tuesday sold the business to Max Naggetz and Nick Baker. Mr. Peters intends to take a long rest before deciding what to do. He retains the building, and together with a Review reporter: "I desire to give to the public the 'boys' of Barrington for the liberal patronage and courtesies extended to me during my long years of business life in their midst. I have been particularly fortunate in holding my trade, and while I have always tried to give value received, I realize that I am under deep obligations to the citizens of Barrington, and all I can ask for is for them to give the new boys the same kind of encouragement that I have received in the past. Messrs. Naggetz and Baker are gentlemen who will give value received for any favor shown them."

PALATINE LOCAL NEWS

Aug. Grever had the misfortune to lose his large barn last Thursday.

It had just been filled with new hay. The animals and tools were taken out but all of the hay, and a large amount of grain was lost. The loss was estimated to be about $3,000.

SALEM CHURCH NOTES.

Where is Salem Park? has frequently been asked. It is in the rear of the Salem church. It is the park to be and not so much the park that is. Trees are planted, a few being already of fair size. Driveways kept clean and the grass kept mowed.

Services in Salem Park on last Sunday evening were attended by 200 persons. The song service was good and the boys' orchestra helped to swell the chorus.

We aim to begin services at 7:30 and close at 8:30. Seats will be provided for about 100 more this coming Sunday evening. In case of storm the church will be used. Come one, come all.

The W. M. S. of the Salem church had their annual outing in Lord's Park, Elgin. About 70 attended. Dinner was served in the basement of Lord's Pavilion. It was a merry crowd and all enjoyed the ride and the social time.

The children who were present enjoyed seeing the animals in the park. The keeper took a grand daughter of Mrs. Grabenbort, into the "den of bears" and placed her on the back of one, and her picture was taken.

Many visited friends while there and a few took a view of the Elgin Hospital for weak-minded persons. Supper was served from 5 to 6 p. m., and by 9 o'clock were again safely landed in Barrington. Our older ladies know how to have a good time and they had it.

WILL BE CLOSED.

The business houses of Barrington will be closed from 10 to 12 o'clock on next Wednesday, Aug. 1st, to give their clerks a chance to enjoy the Woodmen picnic. Everybody turn out and help the Woodmen boys make the day a memorable one.

E. W. RILEY,
Thistle Commissioner.

"Hustle" is a word that has come into very general use of late, and it means to express vigorous earnest effort to accomplish a definite purpose. It is not a very elegant word, but it is very expressive. It means, according to Webster, "to force one's way." This seems to be the spirit and demand of this age of fierce competition in business and the professions. If you want business, a desire to attain success in any of the learned professions, you must push for it, or you will be left far in the rear. You cannot sit still and expect wealth and reputation to seek you out. Some apparently hug the delusion that "the world owes them a living," and because they think they are meritorious, they are sure to succeed without any great effort on their part. Who are the men and women who have acquired wealth and fame? asks the New York Weekly. Think over their careers, and you will come to the conclusion that in 99 cases out of 100 they were "the architects of their own fortunes." In other words they had to hustle. So has it been with all those who are known as self-made men. They had not the advantages that come from wealth, education, or social position. But they had an inspiring ambition that knew "no such word as fail," and whether seeking success in business, or reputation in a profession, or distinction in statesmanship, they labored unceasingly with that end in view. They rested not until their ambition was gratified. So in all the ordinary walks of life, if you expect success, you must hustle for it with hand and brain. Don't expect others to supply you wants. Supply them yourself. The world is before you, and you have the same opportunity as others have had. Only improve it.

Gladstone's Books.

Gladstone's activity as a book collector is interestingly discussed in an article on his library in the Nineteenth Century. He took to reading at a very early age, and, like many another boy, was enthralled by "Pilgrim's Progress" and the "Arabian Nights." In his school days, and indeed through his whole career, he was an eager student of Homer. Late in life he confessed an enormous debt to Aristotle, Augustine, Dante and Butler. When he was 50 years old his reading library necessitated the addition of a new wing to the castle at Hawarden. Yet he was "by no means a rabid book-buyer." For rare books, first editions and elaborate bindings he had no special passion, though he was glad enough to get them. "Second-hand catalogues" rained in by every post, and were always carefully scanned and marked for immediate purchase." Mr. Gladstone's tastes ran strongly to religion, theology, and such kindred topics as history and philosophy. He was, in fact, something of a theologian than statesman. Whenever he saw a book on witchcraft, strange religious sects and the ethics of marriage, he invariably bought it; but, as everyone is aware, he was an omnivorous reader; he enjoyed Shakespeare and Scott, and he liked to run over the last new novel.

English vs. American Railways.

The upshot of a comparison between English and American railways is that each country has provided itself with the system that, broadly considered, answers its own needs the best, and that, when all circumstances are taken into account, neither has much to learn from the other. Certain great defects stand out in each; English railway financing and American railway carelessness are both deserving of censure. Yet these defects, says Ray Morris, in Atlantic Monthly, are quite explainable in their outgrowth from the physical conditions at hand, and they are not amenable to any off-hand remedy. Likewise, certain points of especial attractiveness, such as the English baggage system and the punctuality of trains, and the American luxury of through travel, have arisen from a complicated set of local circumstances, and could not be transplanted unless all the circumstances were transplanted as well. Most fortunate of all is the impression gained by such a study that the essential belief, the very creed and doctrine of one country, as regards the economics of its railway working, may not be so much as discussed in another, where the same ultimate problem is gotten at in a wholly different way.

The city of Canton possesses the strangest street in the world. It is roofed in with glazed paper fastened on bamboo, and contains more signboards to the square foot than any street in any other country. It contains no other shops but those of apothecaries and dentists. Appropriately enough, it is called Physic street.

All traditions to the contrary notwithstanding, the graduate, in a vast majority of cases, is a shy and modest young person.

WATCHING THE SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

DEATH OF RUSSELL SAGE, NOTED GOTHAM FINANCIER

FAMOUS WALL STREET CHARACTER SUCUMBS TO HEART DISEASE—ESTIMATES OF HIS WEALTH VARY.

New York—Russell Sage died suddenly Sunday at his country home, "Cedarcroft," at Lawrence, L. I. The immediate cause of death was heart failure, resulting from a complication of diseases incident to old age.

The veteran financier would have celebrated his ninetieth birthday on August 4. Mr. Sage had been in exceptionally good health since his arrival at his summer home, about six months ago.

At noon Sunday he was seized with a sinking spell and collapsed, falling into unconsciousness two hours before his death, which occurred at 4:30 o'clock.

There were present at the end Mrs. Sage, her brother, Col. J. J. Slocum, the Rev. Dr. Robert Leetich, Dr. Theodore S. Janeway, of New York, Dr. J. Carl Schmuck, a local physician, and Dr. John P. Munn, for many years Mr. Sage's family physician, who was summoned from New York when the first alarming symptoms were manifested.

ESTATE WORTH OVER $100,000,000.

Col. J. J. Slocum and Charles W. Osborne, brother-in-law and confidential man respectively of the late Russell Sage, and co-executors of his estate, were present, as well as the legal and financial representatives of Mr. Sage's estate Monday. Mr. Sage's will will probably be probated shortly after the funeral. A former business associate of Mr. Sage expressed the opinion that the estate will aggregate beyond $100,000,000, and that the will would contain many surprises. Counsel for the estate of Russell Sage have applied to Supreme Court for permission to carry out Mr. Sage's business pending the admission of the will to probate.

DEATHS CANNOT AFFECT HOLDINGS.

It is generally believed that Mr. Sage's vast interests will not be seriously affected by his death. Several times within the last few years, moreover, have been set afoot of Mr. Sage's death. On one such occasion, in June, 1899, Mr. Sage said: "I am not afraid of death, but I am afraid of the man who affects stock values, and they buy on this old trick." Asked if stocks had been much affected, he answered: "I understand not. The properties in which I am interested cannot be seriously affected by my death."

NESTOR OF AMERICAN FINANCERS.

Russell Sage, multimillionaire and nestor of American financiers, was born on August 4, 1816, in Verona, Oneida County, N. Y., where his parents, Elihu and Penelope Sage, members of a little company of pioneers from Connecticut had halted while on their westward march in quest of a homestead. At the age of 12 years Russell began his career as an errand boy in the grocery store of his brother, Henry, of Troy. At the age of 22 he established a wholesale grocery of his own at that place.

In 1832, the young merchant had acquired a fortune estimated at almost half a million dollars, a vast amount for those days, and determined to retire from active business life. He had, however, already become interested in railroads, his first transaction of this character being a loan to the La Crosse Railroad company, which led to further success, and resulting in his acquiring large interests in the road now forming the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul system, of which he became vice president. This determined Mr. Sage to devote his future energies to operating in Wall street and in 1862 he opened his first office in New York.

MEMBER OF STOCK EXCHANGE.

About this time he formed an association with Jay Gould which continued for many years. About 1872 Mr. Sage organized the system of trading in "stocks," "calls" and "options" in which he continued to deal thereafter on a colossal scale. While he purchased a seat on the New York stock exchange in 1874 it is believed that he never appeared on the floor of the exchange.

Only once, it is said, did Mr. Sage experience a tremendous reverse, which would have been fatal, but from which he emerged with courage and confidence unshaken. This was on the memorable day in 1884 when the great failure of Grant & Ward was announced, resulting in the loss to Mr. Sage of about $5,000,000 on a long line of "puts."

Mr. Sage was married twice, first in 1841 to Miss Mayna Winne, daughter of Maynard Winne, of Troy, who died in New York city in 1867, and two years later he married Margaret Olivia, daughter of Joseph Slocum of Syracuse, N. Y.

FUNERAL OF SAGE.

New York.—The funeral services over the body of the late Russell Sage were held in the First Presbyterian church at Far Rockaway, Long Island, Tuesday afternoon.

A number of prominent persons were among those who came to pay their respects to the memory of the aged financier.

The service was conducted by Rev. Andrew Haseman, D. D., assistant pastor of the Collegiate Reformed church of New York, assisted by Rev. Robert Leetich, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Far Rockaway, and Rev. Lyman D. Calkins, a former pastor of the church.

PEOPLE CHEER THE DELEGATES

First Session of Pan-American Congress Held in Rio de Janeiro.

Rio Janeiro.—The Pan-American congress held its first session in St. Louis pavilion beginning at eight o'clock Monday evening. The delegates were enthusiastically cheered by great crowds of people. Joaquin Nabuco, ambassador of Brazil to the United States, was chosen permanent president of the congress.

NEW YORK'S MANAGER DIES SUDDENLY.

Alman Barrett, of Alman Barrett & Co., Chicago, manager of theatrical and musical stars, who was to manage the concert tour of Miss Nordica this year, died of apoplexy and dementia. Appropriately enough, it is called Physic street.

Horrible Method of Suicide.

Paragould, Ark.—Mrs. Azalia Thompson, 70 years of age, died near Lorada, from having herself driven two ten-penny nails into her head. She was blind and partially deaf.

Philadelphia.—Twenty slaughterhouses condemned as unsanitary have closed permanently. Sixteen others were in operation, and the owner of one who refused to obey the mandate to improve his plant will be prosecuted.

Paper-Making Strike.

Buffalo, N. Y.—The International Paper company in the United States and Canada have given notice that they will go on strike on August 6 unless their working hours are reduced.

TERRORISM IN CAUCASUS PARALYZES THE OFFICIALS

Bandits Roam About Tiflis and Its Suburbs at Will in the Daytime, Extracting Tribute from the Peasants.

Tiflis.—In consequence of revolutionary terrorism the administration of the viceroyalty of the Caucasus has been completely paralyzed and officials are absent from their posts.

Bandits, who act at will, even in the daytime, in Tiflis and its suburbs, exacting tribute. One band has made a systematic collection of $2.50 from peasants.

In the government of Tiflis the country paths are in complete ruin owing to the suspension of industry and agriculture.

Nowhere received here of an outbreak of troubles between Armenians and Tartars in Erivan and Shusha.

In Erivan order was restored after a large number of Tartars and Armenians had been killed or wounded. In Shusha the infantry were unable to subdue the Tartars, who killed Armenians to present to their constituents account of their activities in parliament.

VILLAGE ENTIRELY DESTROYED.

Saravon.—The village of Etikal, which was the district seat of disorders, has been entirely consumed.

COSSACKS MAKE THREATS.

Paris.—The correspondent at Odessa reports that the governor has ordered the population to give up their arms. Panic reigns in the city owing to the threats of the Cossacks to recommence massacres and that train loads of people are leaving. Twenty-five battalions are mobilized in the streets. There have been 600 arrests.

PREPARED FOR WAR.

St. Petersburg.—War to the knife, with revolution, and the knife to the hilt, was proclaimed by Premier Stolypin in a telegram addressed to Water front at Viborg, Finl and, where parliament met.

menians in the vicinity of the governor's residence and fired on the governor's quarters.

The artillery is now in action. Two soldiers were killed.

ASSASSIN FRUSTRATED.

Warsaw.—A plan to kill Gov. Gen. Krzywicki was frustrated Wednesday. The would-be assassin, who was heavily armed, resorted to bribery and then to force in order to remove the guard from the route by which the governor general was to pass, but failed. He was arrested.

WILL NOT ALLOW MEETING.

Moscow.—Prince Paul Dolgorukoff, president of the executive committee of the late lower house of par-the governor general, governors and prefects throughout Russia and to the viceroy of the Caucasus, who are ordered to strike and spare not in efforts to preserve order and crush "the enemies of society."

Included in this category, as shown by the list of the day, are not only revolutionaries and socialists, but also the educated liberal and landed classes represented in the constitutional democratic party, whose clubs everywhere have been closed, and all the progressive newspapers, which are not permitted to lift their voices anywhere throughout the entire land.

ARMED OUTBREAK.

Both the government and the revolutionists expect the outbreak to begin in the south, and that it will roll northward to the two capitals. This may induce the proletarian organizations to postpone the declaration of a general strike from St. Petersburg until contagion is borne up from the south.

The railroadmen, however, are anxious to have this strike declared at once. Members of the railway employees union with whom the press correspondents here and in Moscow have talked declared that they were ready to walk out at the first call from the League of Leagues, with whom the strikers are identified.

Russian disorders have broken out in the vicinity of St. Petersburg. The estate of Gen. Baron Frederick, adjutant to the emperor, 40 miles from the capital, has been plundered by peasants. Gen. Frederick asked for troops from Gatchina, but was informed that the situation was too serious to permit of the calling out of the regular military dispositions.

Another shake issued by the czar relieved M. Goryeykin of the premiership and appointed M. Stolypin his successor.

LAST ACT OF DRAMA.

Viborg, Finl and.—The curtain dropped Monday afternoon on the final act of the drama of Russian parliament, when the czar, at the spur of the threat of Gov. Richibach, sent his forces to end the session and with troops already converging on the Hotel Belvedere, where the meeting was held, the assembled members of the lower house, 186 in number, hurriedly adopted and signed an address to the people, in which they declared a revolution. In its closing speech a resolution to prohibit the czar from calling out the army was passed.

In view of the decision of the Moscow constitutionalists to summon a national congress, the governor general announced that the meeting would not be allowed, and that deputies to the late parliament will not be permitted to participate in meetings

TERRIBLE TO RECALL.

Five Weeks in Bed with Intensely Painful Kidney Trouble.

Mrs. Mary Wagner of 1357 Kosuth Ave., Bridgeport, Conn., was so weakened and generally run down with kidney disease that for a long time I could not do my work and was five weeks in bed. There was constant burning and aching down pain, terrible headaches and at times dizzy spells when everything was a blur before me. The passages of the kidney were irregular and painful, and there was considerable sweat and odor. I don't know what I have done but for Doan's Kidney Pills, I could see an improvement from the first box, and five boxes brought a final cure."

Shelter Tents.

There is a probability of the Australian military authorities encouraging the manufacture or importation of shelter tents, as used in Japan during the Russo-Japan war. The tent consists of a waterproof sheet with hooks and eyelets, the weight being trifling. Each Japanese soldier carries one of these sheets in his kit, and any number of them can be lashed together, the custom being for four men to form a bivouac. Arms are piled in the center, and the sheets are spread over the pile, affording shelter from both heat and rain. They can be utilized in many ways for sheltering the soldiers.

THE VIRTUE OF ABBREVIATION.

A man in the Evening Standard, complaining of the London habit of abbreviations, says he would like to hang the "fond who christened the Baker street and Waterloo railway the 'Bakerloo Tube'." We think he should canonize him. This column speaks with a certain anxiety—for it at least gave currency to both those abbreviations. On the opposite day Mr. Sherwood and Mannie House line a forgotten omnibus driver fired the gibe. "It ain't nothing but a twopenny tube," at the people who turned from his omnibus and took to the bowels of the earth. The officials who could build a railway could not name it. The driver's gibe fixed the word. In the same way the London public, though quite ready to travel by Baker street and Waterloo railway, wanted to save its breath, and for the economy of hurried speech the suggestion was made—Bakerloo. The two words have been taken to the heart of travelers, and received official sanction; for at Trafalgar square you are directed to the Bakerloo tube. This is plain English, soft, convenient, as a matter of speech, and has just as much relation to literary language as a bill of lading—London Chronicle.

BACK TO PULPIT.

WHAT FOOD DID FOR A CLERGYMAN.

A minister of Elizabethtown tells how Grape-Nuts food brought him back to his pectoral: "Some 5 years ago I had an attack of what seemed to be La Grippe, which left me in a complete state of collapse and I suffered for some time with nervous prostration. My appetite failed, I lost flesh till I was a mere skeleton. Life was a burden to me, and interest in everything was almost in everybody save my precious wife."

"Then on the recommendation of some friends I began to use Grape-Nuts food. At that time I was a miserable skeleton, without appetite and hardly able to walk across the room; had ugly dreams at night, no disposition to entertain, and became almost a hermit. After I had been using the Grape-Nuts food for a short time I discovered that I was taking on new life and my appetite was improving; I began to eat better and my weight increased steadily; I had lost some 50 pounds, but under the new food regime I have regained all my former weight and have greatly improved in every way."

"I feel that I owe much to Grape-Nuts and can truly recommend the food to all who require a powerful rebuilding and delicious to taste and always welcome."

Given name of Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. A true natural road to regain health, or hold it, is by use of a dish of Grape-Nuts and cream morning and night. Have the food made into some of the many delicious dishes given in the little recipe book found in page 11.

LOCATION OF VIBORG, FINLAND, WHERE DOUMA HELD ONE SESSION.

Viborg, Finl and.—The curtain dropped Monday afternoon on the final act of the drama of Russian parliament, when the czar, at the spur of the threat of Gov. Richibach, sent his forces to end the session and with troops already converging on the Hotel Belvedere, where the meeting was held, the assembled members of the lower house, 186 in number, hurriedly adopted and signed an address to the people, in which they declared a revolution. In its closing speech a resolution to prohibit the czar from calling out the army was passed.

In view of the decision of the Moscow constitutionalists to summon a national congress, the governor general announced that the meeting would not be allowed, and that deputies to the late parliament will not be permitted to participate in meetings

FOUR WORKMEN KILLED.

South Framingham, Mass.—The front of a partially constructed three-story brick and cement building collapsed Monday. Only nine men were taken out alive, and four bodies were recovered.

EXPLORATION KILLS FOUR MEN.

Mount Union, Pa.—Four men were killed and five injured Monday in an explosion in the powder and dynamite house belonging to Jessie O. McClain, near Robertsdale, Huntington county.

NEW TRIAL FOR ALLEGED SLAYER.

Detroit, Mich.—The state supreme court at Lansing has granted a new trial to Floyd Harper, convicted some months ago of the murder of Patrolman Daley in this city.

BITS ABOUT BAD BOYS.

Friendly Little Johnnie Platt
Used to torture brother's cat,
Used to make that feline cross
And then he'd say, "I'm sorry!"
Later on a girl named Hannah
Came and bounced Johnnie Platt;
Name of the place was Hill.
Once Hill was always bad;
When he was a little lad
Used to murder pollywogs
So they never could be frogs.
Now he's a man, he's still bad;
David Hill of Wolfert's Roost;
When the pollywogs gave out
David Hill began to pout.
Getting bad is what that,
He became a Democrat.

Tommy Lawson played at keeps
With his chums and won great heaps
Of their money, one by one;
"I'll be a bad boy, I'll be a bad boy!"
Then some older, wiser boys
Played with him and got his toy.
Little Tommy said, "I'm a bad boy
There's no nice way to do
Me to go and tell on you!"
Since he told it, north and south,
It's in everybody's mouth.

Little Johnnie Wolfert
Lived in a little wooden cellar;
To repay him for his ill
Johnnie went and sold the cell.
Sold it for a dollar cool.
For a dollar he bought a new school,
Dropped two pennies in the plate,
Leaving Johnnie ninety-eight.

Oldaker, wincing and turning to Miss Biss for sympathy, heard her say:

"Yes, do, Mr. Highbee! I do love those ragtime songs—and then have them play 'Tell Me, Pretty Maiden,' and the 'Intermezzo'."

He groaned in anguish.

The talk ran mostly on practical affairs: the current values of the great staple commodities; why the corn crop had been light; what wheat promised to bring; how young men in the Cripple Creek trade had been pinched in his own wheat corner for four millions—"put up" by his mining father; what beef on the hoof command; how the Federal Oil company would presently own the state of Texas.

Almost every Barbarian at the table had made his own fortune. Hardly one but could recall early days when he toiled on farm or in shop, herded cattle, prospected, sought adventure, and so on. "Tain't much like them old days, eh?" queried the crown prince of Cripple Creek—"when you and me had to walk from Chicago to Green Bay, Wisconsin, because we didn't have enough shillings for stage fare?" He gazed about him suggestively.

"Corn beef and cabbage was pretty good, then," and with sure, vigorous strokes fell to demolishing his first dish of dindo a la Perigueux, while a butler refilled his glass with Chateau Malescot, 1873.

"Well, it does heat the two rooms madam and me started to keep house in when we was married," admitted the host. "That was on the banks of the Chicago river, and now we got the Hudson flowing' right through the front yard, you might say, right past our own yard landing."

From old days of work and hardship they came to discuss the present and their immediate surroundings, social and financial.

Their daughters, it appeared, were being sought in marriage by the sons of those among whom they sojourned.

"Oh, they're a nice band of handshakers, all right, all right!" asserted the gentleman from Kansas City. "One of 'em tried to get me to marry his Caroline, but I wouldn't stand for it. He was a cracklin' good shiny player, and he could lead them cotton dances blowin' a whistle and callin' 'All right, Up!' or something like a car starter—but, Tell me something good about him! I say to an old friend of his family. Well, he hemmed and hawed—he was a New York gentleman, and says he: 'I don't know who he is, I could make you understand or not,' he says. 'Well, he's a good boy, but he's been bearin' down hard on 'Family'—and you're not money,' he says, 'and Money and Family need each other badly in this town,' he says. 'Yes,' I says, 'I met up with a number of people here.' I says, 'but I ain't met none yet that you'd have to blindfold and back into a lot of money,' I says, 'family or no family,' I says. 'And that young man,' he says, 'he's a pleasant chaiman, fell low, by,' he says, 'he's the best-coated man in New York.' Well, I looked at him and I says: 'Well,' says I, 'he may be the best-coated man in New York, but he'll be the best-hosted man in New York, too.' I says, 'If he comes around trying to spark Caroline any more—would be if I had my way.' His chin's pushed too far back under his face, I say, and I say, 'I know it.' I says, 'Caroline's being a stickler for you, a hardware drummer, a good steady young fellow travelling out of little old K. C.,' I says, 'and while he ain't much for family,' I says, 'he'll have one of his own before he gets through,' I says; 'we start families where I come from,' I says."

"GOOD BOY, GOOD FOR YOU," cheered the self-made Barbarians, and drank success to the absent disseminator of half-truths.

With much loud talk of this undying character the dinner progressed to an end; through scrolls d'agneau, doated in '84 champagne, terrapin conveyed by a special Madero of 1865, and canapé duck with Romanes Conti, 1865, to a triumphant finale of Turkish coffee and 1811 brandy.

After the meal, the ladies composed of New York society, while the males smoked their big oily cigars and handled reminiscences. Highs showed them through every one of the apartment's 22 rooms, from reception hall to laundry, manipulating the electric lights with the skill of a stage manager.

The evening ended with a cake walk for the musical amateur, by rare chance born with a taste for the amateur, into a mood of rag-time abandon. And if Monsieur the Baron with his ceremonious grace was less exuberant than the crown prince of Cripple Creek, who sang as he stepped the sensuous measure, his pleasure was not less. He enjoyed to observe that these men of incredible millions had no hair.

"I do not," wrote the baron to his noble father, the marquis, that night, "yet understand their joke; why should I be droll to think that the man whose coat is of the best should also wear boots of the best? but, as for what they call use promenade de gâteau, I find it very enjoyable. I have met a Miss Bines, to whom I shall at once pay my addresses. Unlike Miss Highbee, she is not the daughter from Chicago nor elsewhere. Quel diable d'homme!"

CHAPTER X.

THE PATRICIANS ENTERTAIN.

To reward the enduring who read politely through the garish revel of the preceding chapter, covers for 14 are now laid with correct and tasteful illustrations, depicting the scenes of that new old New York family, the Milbreyes. Shaded candle-jalts all but the gloaming table in a gloom discreetly pleasant. One need not look so high as the old-fashioned stuccoed ceiling.

The family portraits tone agreeably into the half-light of the walls; the huge old-fashioned walnut sideboard, soberly ornate with its mirrors, white marble top and its wood-carved fruit, towers majestically, almost in grandeur, of the frivolous Chippeau fad.

Jarvis, the accomplished and incomparable butler, would be subdued and scholarly looking but for the flagrant scandal of his portwine nose. He gives finishing little flings to the white chrysanthemums massed in the central sperone on the long silver plate.

He sits at the table with the over-the-glass and silver radiating over the dull white damask. Finding the table and its appointments faultless, he assures himself once more that the sherry will come on irreproachably at a temperature of 60 degrees; that the Burgundy will not fall below 65 nor mount above 70; for Jarvis, with a palate acutely sensitive to that it never fails to record a variation of so much as one degree from the approved standard of temperature.

How restful this quiet and reserve after the color and line tumult of

As the contrast to the oppressively Western matron from Kansas City, here is Miss Fidella Oldaker on the armchair, all attention, son. She would be very old for her size, in stance that one began early in life to be a belle, and age cannot stale such women. Brought up with board at her back, books on her head, to guard her complexion as if it were her fair name, to be diligent at harp practice and conscientious with the dancing master, she almost the last of a school that nursed but did not train the young. And now, instead of the rude commercial hordes that laughed loudly and acted uncouthly at the board of the barbershop, she is the belle of the people, born to the only manner生 to be worth possessing—if we except, indeed, the visiting tribe of Bines, who may be relied upon, however, to have at least unobtrusively.

As a contrast to the oppressively

Something of this air, too, may be noticed in the surviving tenants of these austere relics. Yet it would be hard to observe this in this house, for only the survivors—host and hostess beat high with a new hope. For the fair and sometimes uncertain daughter of the house of Milbrey, after many ominous mutterings, delays, and frank rebellions, has declared at last her readiness to be a bride to the young man conferring her family's prestige, distinction of manner and charm of person upon one equipped for their suitable maintenance.

Already her imaginative father is ravishing in fancy the mouldiest wine cellar of continental Europe. Already the fond mother has idealized a house in "Millionaire's Row," east of the city, where she shall be surrounded with the best of all the world. There shall cease that gnawing worry lest the treacherous north setting current sweep them west of the Park into one of those hideously new apartment houses, where the halls are done in marble that seems to have been sliced from a huge Roquefort cheese, and where one must sit, perhaps, with a sheepish smile for the lack of irreverence.

The young woman herself entertains privately a state of mind which has no intention of making public. It is enough, she reasons, that her action should outwardly accord with the best traditions of her class; and, indeed, her family would never dream of demanding more.

Her gown-to-night is of orchard green, trimmings of white lace, a single pink spray of them sprouting in her hair. The rounding, satin grace of her slender arms, stooping to open her perfumed fingers, the exquisite line from ear to shoulder strap, the melting ripeness of her chin and throat, the tender pink and white of her fine skin, the capricious, incisive tilt of her small head, the dainty lift of her short nose, the slender, graceful fingers, all combined with a calculating and amorous eye. She is glad to believe that there is every reason why it will soon be over.

And, since the whole loaf is notoriously better than a half, here is the engaging son of the house, also firmly based upon the high empire of matrimony; handsome with the chin, it may be noted, though not exceeding; but an unexcelled master of cutlery, a skillful chess-player, clever, winning, and dressed with an effect that has long made him remarked in polite circles, which no mere money can achieve. Money, indeed, if certain ill-grossed gossips of tradesmen be true, has been an inconsiderable factor in the encompassing of this sartorial distinction. He waits on the Strand "because she needs the money."

"Lots of 'em takin' to trade nowadays: 'I'm a smart sayin' there now that all the peers are marryin'—actress and all the peers go into the same," says Miss Fidella. "Mrs. Gwilt-Athlestan is just as good as any of them. She's a fine woman, and I think she's a good girl. She's a good girl, and I think she's a good girl."

"Only trouble is, it's such rotten work collectin' bills from their intimate friends; they simply won't pay."

Nor at the barbershop Highbee's should we be surprised to meet a trim young woman whose charms, even to our own eyes, are not to be denied. She is a belle, and age cannot stale such women. Brought up with board at her back, books on her head, to guard her complexion as if it were her fair name, to be the best of the day, we are told.

It is to suppose that Cupid's artillery is limited to bows and arrows.

in a vast cloak, and accompanied by her two nephews, whom Percival Bines recognizes for the solemn and taciturn young men he had met in Sheperd's shop. The Gwilt-Athlestan, albeit a decorative personality, is constructed on the same broad and generously graceful lines as her own victory. The fair-minded observer would accept as sufficient promise of a good third. Yet hardly could a slighter person display to advantage the famous Gwilt-Athlestan jewels. The rope of pierced diamonds, a picture of the sun, hangs between them, which she wears around her corselet, would assuredly overweight the frail Fidella Oldaker; the car of emeralds and diamonds was never meant for a boy less majestic; nor would the stomacher of lustrous gray pearls and glinting diamonds ever have clasped becomingly a figure that was swelle—or "skinny," as the great H. H. H. Holmes would frank to term all persons even remotely inclined to be swete.

But let us sit and enliven a proper dinner with talk upon topics of legitimate interest and genuine propriety. Here will be no discussion of the vulgar master of markets, staples, and prices such as we perform endures through the overwined and too-absent men of the world. Instead of learning what beef on the hoof brings per hundred weight, f. o. b. at Chester, we shall here glean at once the invaluable fact that good society in London is limited to him who has been presented to the court, the presentations have now become so numerous that the limitation has lost its significance. Mrs. Gwilt-Athlestan thus discourses on the Strand "because she needs the money."

And while we learned at that distressingly new table that one should keep one's heifers and sell off one's steer calves, we never should have been informed that Dinard had just enjoyed the gayest season of its history under the patronage of its American master, nor that Louis Murzy had opened a room in Grosvenor street, and Cynthia, Marchioness of Angleberry, a beauty-improvement parlor on the Strand "because she needs the money."

And while we learned at that distressingly new table that one should keep one's heifers and sell off one's steer calves, we never should have been informed that Dinard had just enjoyed the gayest season of its history under the patronage of its American master, nor that Louis Murzy had opened a room in Grosvenor street, and Cynthia, Marchioness of Angleberry, a beauty-improvement parlor on the Strand "because she needs the money."

Braekman Hurt in Explosion.

Newman—T. J. Newman, a brakeman on the C. & D. railroad, was badly hurt by the explosion of a large oil tank car which was being used for transportation of water to another point. The car had contained gasoline, and Newman attempted to remove the car from the tank while he was considering the explosion. In the tank, a bomb exploded, tearing the car into small pieces and throwing the brakeman out of the tank. The brakeman was badly injured, and the explosion killed him. The bomb was found in the tank, and the explosion was caused by the accident.

Wounded by Target Gun.

Cowden—The 15-year-old son of Chester Middleworth, living one and a half miles east of Cowden, was seriously and probably fatally wounded through the overwined and too-absent mind of his mother, Mrs. Fidella Oldaker, in learning what he had been informed by the accidental discharge of a target gun in the hands of his companion.

The boy was shot in the head, the bullet passing through his brain, and he died before he could be removed from the scene of the accident. The boy's mother, Mrs. Fidella Oldaker, was a widow, and the boy was the only child.

Guard Against Mother-in-Law.

Pana—While returning from this city to Pana, Illinois, the young man was met by his mother, who was a widow, and he was told that she had been presented to the court, and that he was to be the best of the day.

He succeeded in keeping him down and trampling him. The doctors could find no broken bones, and his skin was not even lacerated.

Second Mortgage on Country Club.

Waukegan—A second mortgage for $30,000, given by the Exmoor County club on its grounds at Highland Park, has been filed for record here. It is given to the Union Trust company, of Chicago, to pay off the first mortgage for $75,000 that was filed. The total, $105,000, goes to purchase and improve club grounds.

ILLINOIS' NEW PRIMARY LAW

First Election Under Its Provisions Will Be Held August 4.

POWERS OF ELECTION OFFICERS

New Feature Provides for "Expression of Sentiment" on United States Senator.

Each Party Entitled to Challenger and Voters May Be Forced to Prove Party Affiliations Before Ballot is Accepted.

The new primary election law enacted by the last session of the legislature will have its first practical application throughout the state in the primaries to be held Aug. 4. The measure is so radically different from the method heretofore in operation for the selection of candidates, that a digest or resume of the law at this time will be found a desirable aid to a correct understanding of its provisions.

Each sheet shall be an affidavit certifying that the names on the sheets were signed in the presence of the affiant. Petitions to be filed with the secretary of state shall contain the names of the same political party for the same or different offices.

Twenty-five days before the primaries the secretary of state shall certify to the county clerk or election commissioners of each county all documents entitled to a place on the ticket for United States senator, state offices, county offices, members of the general assembly, and members of the state board of equalization.

Two forms of ballots shall be used at the primaries. One, the "official primary ballot," shall be printed and distributed at public expense under the direction of the county clerk or board of election commissioners. The other, the "delegate ballot," shall be furnished at private expense.

It is made the duty of county clerks or election commissioners to place on primary ballots of each political party names of all candidates who have filed petitions.

The official primary ballot of each political party is to be printed separately on paper of the same quality and size, but of different colors, for each party. Delegates' ballots must be ten and one-half inches long and seven inches wide. The county clerk shall announce color of ballots for different parties thirty days before primaries.

Primaries shall be held in regular election precincts, the polls open Saturday in August at 6 a. m. Close this year and on 4 p. m. the last Saturday in April thereafter, polls being open during the same hours as are observed for regular elections. Any person entitled to vote may absent himself from his two hours, provided he gives his employer notice before primary day.

At least thirty-three days before the primaries shall be filed for the state, congressional, senatorial, county, sanitary district and municipal court conventions. The call for the county convention shall be filed at least thirty days before the primaries. In cases of existing contests where more than one committee claims to be the central committee of a county or congressional or senatorial district, the committee whose candidates were placed on the official ballot is authorized to issue the call in 1906.

Five days before the primaries the county clerk or election commissioners shall prepare notices, two of which shall be posted in every election precinct at least three days before the primaries.

Primaries and clerks of general elections shall be judges and clerks of all primary elections in their respective precincts. They shall be chosen of officers of the county court, and shall be liable to punishment by said court in contempt proceedings for any misbehavior.

Each different ticket of delegates shall be entitled to be represented by a challenger, who shall have the same power as challengers at general elections.

A sufficient number of booths shall be provided, not less than one to every seventy-five voters who voted in the precinct at the last preceding election.

The county clerk or election commission shall prepare and deliver to the judges of each precinct or election district the necessary ballot boxes, tally sheets, poll books, affidavits, etc., the specifications as to the form of registration and ballot box to be clearly set out in the law.

Any member of a political party who desires to become a candidate for United States senator shall have his name printed on the primary ballot by filing with the secretary of state thirty days beforehand, a request in writing. The vote on the petition shall be taken in the same manner as the following offices:

The specification as to the form of registration and ballot box to be clearly set out in the law.

Victor Carr sprained his right ankle while jumping off a ladder Monday afternoon. Dr. Fuller cared for the injured member, and the patient is progressing nicely.

Chas. Wicke of Des Plaines visited at the home of H. M. Malman to spend the first of the week.

Jos. Basely of Woodstock is enjoying a vacation at his home here.

Mrs. E. L. Harrison has returned from a two weeks visit at the home of her parents in the city.

We learn from N. Dakota that Miss

Lillian Tidmarsh has secured the opening of a school in her shack and will commence teaching August 1st at a salary of $45 per month.

The Illinois Comedy Co. is attracting large crowds every evening. Remember, they close Saturday evening, July 29th.

The Misses Butterfield and Young and the two Misses Treptow of Libertyville, are enjoying a week's outing at the McCormick Cottage.

Mrs. Vickery of Chicago is spending the week with local relatives and friends.

The Lake County Telephone Co. is building a Farmers' line west from our village to McHenry County, and it is expected lines will be run in other directions as soon as this first is completed.

A considerable amount of excitement was stirred up about midnight Sunday when the heavy wind fanned the smouldering pile of coal at the Mill and sent sparks flying over the town. Our fire-fighters worked for about an hour and succeeded in checking the danger.

While repairing the engine a few days ago, Fire Chief E. A. Golding disengaged a pipe and struck it on his right thumb, it being caught in the brake.

All petitions shall be of a prescribed uniform size, and at the bottom of the chairman of the central committee of the respective political parties. The result of the vote for United States senator in each county and the total vote polled shall be sent by the secretary of state to the secretary of the following state convention of the respective parties.

Upon the completion of the canvass of the returns it appears that any candidate of any party for nomination for any state, congressional or senatorial office has received a plurality of all the votes cast for candidates for nomination for such offices in any delegate district, such candidate shall have cast for him the votes of all the delegates from such delegate district to the convention before which he is a candidate, for at least the first ballot. Nominations shall be made by a majority vote of all the delegates elected to such convention.

The expense of holding primaries is to be paid in the same manner and by the same officials as the expense of the general elections.

All county conventions shall be held on the Thursday immediately following the primaries. All senatorial conventions shall be held on the Tuesday except that where a county, congressional or senatorial district, the senatorial convention for such district shall be held on the same day as the county convention, and the delegates elected to the county convention shall be ex-officio delegates to the senatorial convention, and the county committee of such county shall be ex-officio the senatorial convention for such senatorial district; all congressional conventions on the second Thursday, and all state conventions on the third Wednesday after the primaries.

When a county convention is held on the same day as the senatorial convention, the delegates elected to the county convention shall be ex-officio delegates to the senatorial convention, and the county committee of such county shall be ex-officio delegates to the senatorial convention, which is to be held on the same day as the county convention.

The nominations of all candidates for all elective state and county offices, clerks of apprentices, representatives in congress, members of the state board of equivalency, members of the general assembly, sanitary district trustees and such municipal officers as are to be elected in the November election by all political parties shall be made by the petitions of the candidates for the party with which he does not affiliate when such candidate is to be voted for at the primary election. And no person shall have the right to nominate a candidate for any office for which candidates are to be voted for at said election, or if he shall have voted at the primary election of another political party within the period of one year next preceding such primary election.

Any person desiring to vote at a primary election shall state his name, residence, and party affiliation to the primary judges, one of whom shall announce the same loud enough to be heard by those present in the polling place, and the person so voting shall receive an official ballot of the political party with which he declares himself affiliated. If the person so voting is to be challenged, he shall not receive an official ballot until he has established his right to vote. No person who refuses to state his party affiliation shall be allowed to vote at a primary election.

Whenever a voter so challenges an affidavit, he shall and subscribe an affidavit in a form which will be furnished by the election judges, and in addition to such affidavit shall produce the affidavit of one holder of the election precinct or district. The form required for the affidavit by the householder will also be furnished by the election judges.

On receiving from the judges an official ballot of his party, and having a delegate voter of his party, he shall forthwith, and without leaving the polling place, vote alone to one of the voting booths and prepare such ballot by making a cross (X) in the square opposite the name of each candidate of his choice for each office to be filled.

Before leaving the booth the voter shall fold his ballot in such manner as to prevent its being identified. The delegate voter shall also be folded in the same manner, but separately. The ballot so folded shall be given to one of the primary judges, who will mark his initials on the back and deposit in the official ballot box, and the delegate voter shall then enter upon the registry poll books the name of the voter, his residence and party affiliation.

Any voter who may declare upon oath that he cannot read the English language, or that by reason of any physical disability is unable to mark his ballot, shall be assisted in marking his ballot in the same manner as provided by the general election laws of the state.

The law prescribes specifically the manner of receiving, counting, and canvassing the primary votes. The returns are to be canvassed in the same manner and by the same persons as in a general election, both of vote and of office, for the different states to conventions. Certificates of election shall be issued to convention delegates by the election authorities. Certificates showing the vote cast for each delegate district shall be sent by the election authorities—county clerk or election board, as the case may be—to

History of One of World's Greatest Wrongs Righted After Twelve Years

How the "Syndicate of Treason," Which Condemned an Innocent Man to Devil's Island and All but Wrecked the French Republic, Was Foiled at Last by Men Who Sacrificed Themselves to the Cause of Justice

THREE conditions prevailing in France in 1894 led to the accusing and condemning of Captain Dreyfus for treason. In the alleged selling of military secrets to the German government, says the New York World.

The first and underlying cause was a violent agitation against Jews.

The second was the discovery that somebody was furnishing information about army plans to Colonel Schwarzkoppen, the German military attaché.

The third was the unpopularity of Captain Dreyfus among his associates of the general staff.

These things, combined with a ready unscrupulousness on the part of certain officers to manufacture evidence to bear out their prejudiced theories, led to a concentration on the brilliant Jewish officer, his accusation, his quick trial and his deportation to a horrid imprisonment.

The trials of these grinds slowly, but they grinds sure. They have taken twelve years to formally establish an innocence in which the world at large long has believed. If it is any satisfaction to the suffering man he can look back upon the wreck of administrations and aspiring politicians, the convolution of the whole French nation in violent disturbance, the disgrace of army officers of high rank and even city of Paris. Between a file of men Dreyfus, in uniform and carrying a sword, was marched before General Mercier, minister of war, and the verdict was read. An adjutant seized the captain's sword and broke it across his knee. Then the insignia of rank were stripped from the condemned man's uniform, and the general pronounced the words of degradation.

"Vive la France!" cried Dreyfus in a loud voice. "You have degraded an innocent man. I swear I am innocent."

Around the square they marched him to parade his ignominy. His last cry was:

"Tell the whole of France that I am innocent."

For more than four years Dreyfus was buried from the world—a prisoner on Devil's Island, where he managed to survive horrible hardships, solitary confinement, chains, fever and his worst fear of all, insanity.

His Life on Devil's Island.
In later years Dreyfus himself furnished the following description of his prison: "The stone hut destined for my use measured about thirteen yards square. The windows were grated. The door was of lattice-work, with simple iron bars. This door led to a little hallway, six feet square, entrance to which was closed by a solid wooden possible for me to go out. I cannot work at my English all day long—my brain will not stand it—and I have English to learn."

"These sleepless nights are fearful. I manage to get through the days because I am occupied with the thousand and one details of material life."

In 1896 the steadily working forces of truth and justice began to establish his innocence.

In all European countries, especially in little Berlin, France and Germany, it was the custom for the diplomatic embassies to spy out as many military secrets as could be by birds, stealing and lying. Each military attaché had a retinue of sneaking henchmen to obtain plans of fortresses, new arm and mobilization. In 1894 the German attaché in Paris was Colonel Schwarzkoppen. He was buying information, although ambassadors were mutually pledged to do nothing of this kind. The intelligence office of the French army was keeping watch on the German embassy to discover its sources of information.

Famous "Borderer."

Mme. Bastien, a scrubwoman in the embassy, was under pay of the intelligence office to do all she could for Major Henry. One day in the summer of 1894 she turned in a piece of paper which afterward became known as the famous "borderer." It was the handwriting of Colonel Schwarzkoppen. He was buying information, although ambassadors were mutually pledged to do nothing of this kind. The intelligence office of the French army was keeping watch on the German embassy to discover its sources of information.

"Tell the whole of France that I am innocent."

"Being without information as to whether you desire to see me, I send you nevertheless, monsieur, some interesting information, viz:

"A copy of the copy of the handwritten of the ED and the way the gun is managed. A note upon the troupe de cavalerie; some modifications will be carried out according to the new plan. A note concerning a modification in the formations of artillery. A note relative to Madagascar. The proposed manuel de tir of the field artillery.

"This document is exceedingly difficult to get hold of, and I can only have it at my disposal for a few days. The minister of war has given me a certain number of copies among the troops, and the corps are held responsible for them. Each officer holding a copy is required to return it after the maneuvers.

"Therefore if you will glean from it whatever interests you and let me have it again as soon as possible I will manage to obtain possession of it, unless you would prefer that I have it copied in extenso and send you the copy. I am just starting for the maneuvers."

Searching For Author of Letter.

General Mercier, minister of war, General Bonsuerte, chief of the general staff, and Steiner, chief of the intelligence department; Major Henry, his assistant, and other high officers began a search to discover the author of this treasonable letter. They compared many handwritings and finally suspicion pointed to Dreyfus, merely because some of the writing resembled his style.

Dreyfus was not a dazzling army officer, but he was the type of the student. He was a Jew. He spoke with a German accent. He had a hasty demeanor and associated little with his military companions. He was keen, studious, exceedingly retentive in memory, a tremendous worker and exceedingly precise. More than this, he was wealthy and rather too self confident.

There was absolutely nothing to distinguish Dreyfus than this similarity in handwriting; but, blinded by prejudice, all the chiefs, from Mercier down, were ready to pronounce him guilty immediately. More than this, the unscrupulous Henry was ready to secretly forge additional documents whenever needed in emergency, and his associate with the come name of Major Du Paty de Clam joined in schemes to implicate Dreyfus.

It was Paty de Clam who arrested Dreyfus after getting him to write sample letters through a subterfuge. It was Paty de Clam who conducted the search of papers and formulated the evidence for the trial. He secured the noted criminologist and expert Berthillon to make comparisons of handwriting and decided that Dreyfus wrote the letter. He also secured the scientific knowledge of the great Berthillon and his handwriting tests in this case are now thrown into the dust by the revelations of simple truth.

It cannot be said that there was a preconceived conspiracy to entrap and convict Dreyfus. But when the suspicion against him arose the men in the army staff who disliked him were only too ready to condemn him. The suffering of an innocent man in such circumstances can scarcely be imagined, and is reflected in these passages from his diary:

"Until now I have worshipped reason. I have believed there was logic in things and events. I have believed in human justice. Anything that was irrational and extravagant found difficult entrance into my brain. Oh, what a breaking down of all my beliefs!"

"Since I landed a month ago I have remained locked in my pen, with closed blinds. Several times I all but went crazy. I had congestion of the brain."

"And then I have never any news of my wife and children. Yet I know that since the 29th of March, nearly three weeks ago, there have been letters for me at Cayenne. I have had them telegraph to Cayenne and to France for news of my dear ones. There is nothing."

"My days are interminable, every minute of every hour being drawn out by tedium. I am incapable of any considerable physical exertion. My fever, from 10 in the morning until 3 in the evening, the heat makes it impossible for me to go out. I cannot work at my English all day long—my brain will not stand it—and I have English to learn."

The Dreyfus family began systematic work in establishing the captain's innocence. His brother, Mathew Dreyfus, spared neither time nor money in the great undertaking. It was slow and disappointing at first. Everything was hidden in the secret archives of the war department. The campaign began with the rousing of public opinion, and within a year France began to believe that the evidence had emboldened the government itself.

In 1896 a new man was at the head of the intelligence office in the person of Lieutenant Colonel Picquart, one of the youngest and most brilliant men in the army. One day the same Mme. Bastien, scrubwoman at the German embassy, sent in some scraps of paper which pleased out, proved to be a letter addressed to Major Esterhazy. It was in the handwriting of Colonel Schwarzkoppen, but evidently had been torn up and another sent in its stead.

New Traitor Revealed.

Instantly there was revealed a new traitor in the French army camp. Esterhazy was a dissolute officer, spending most of his time in Paris instead of at his post in Rouen. The captured letter became known as the "petit bleu," being written on the blue stamped paper of the post office for immediate delivery. At first Picquart did not connect Esterhazy with the Dreyfus case, but, after securing some of the major's handwriting, he was sure. Esterhazy was in communication with Dreyfus, but evidently had been torn up and another sent in its stead.

Everyone is most cordially invited to attend the Woodmen picnic to be given in the grove at Barrington on Wednesday, Aug. 1st. Good music, races and athletic sports of every description; in fact, so many prizes have already been assured that there will be no lack of inducements for contestants. Prizes will be in abundance for pretty girls, homely fellows, and the meanest looking bum, etc. Come one and all to Barrington on Aug. 1st and enjoy a pleasant day's outing with the Woodmen boys. They'll make you feel at home.

To the Republicans of the Eighth Senatorial District.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for re-election to the General Assembly, subject to the action of the Senatorial Convention of this District.

Inasmuch as it was the intention of the Legislature that each voter should vote for one candidate for Representative, so that in Districts like the Eighth, each County should have a member in the General Assembly, Lake County at present having the Senator.

I therefore ask the votes of the Republicans of Lake and Boone Counties to support me in the primaries to be held August 4, 1906, and request that those who wish to vote for me mark a cross in the square opposite my name on the official ballot. Respectfully,

FRANK R. COREY.

The Things We Eat.
Too much meat is absolutely hurtful to the body. Sailors on board of ships get scurvy when their supply of vegetable food is exhausted. The digestive organs of the human body demand vegetable food, and if we don't eat enough vegetables we pay for it dearly.

Nature gave us wheat, and in every kernel of wheat nature has distributed iron, starch, phosphorus, lime, sugar, salt and other elements necessary to make bone, blood and muscle.

EGG-O-SEE is wheat scientifically prepared. Cooked, and made into crisp flakes, EGG-O-SEE goes into the stomach ready for the digestive organs to convert it into life-giving substance. Every mouthful is a joy to the taste and direct benefit to your health. A 10-cent package of EGG-O-SEE contains ten liberal breakfasts. Our friends advertise us. They eat EGG-O-SEE for the same. They grow stronger, are well and happy and they pass the good word along.

Next time you send to the grocer's tell your boy or girl to bring home a package of EGG-O-SEE. Have your children eat EGG-O-SEE. It is their friend. They'll eat EGG-O-SEE when nothing else will taste good.

You try EGG-O-SEE and you can deduce the cost from your doctor's bill.

We send our book, "Back to Nature," free. It's a good bookful of plain, good, common sense. If you want a copy, address EGG-O-SEE Company, 10 First St., Quincy, Ill.

A Balloon Incline Railroad.

Conrad William Hardel, 21, from Bremen, Germany, a balloonist, of whom, has invented a balloon railroad, experiments with which are now being made in the mountains in the neighborhood of that German city. It consists of a stationary balloon, which is fastened to a slide running along a single steel rail. The rail is fastened to the side of a steep mountain, which ordinary railroads could not climb, except through deep gorges and tunnels. The balloon is to float about 55 feet over the ground, and a heavy steel cable connects it with the rail. The conductor can, at will, make the balloon slide up and down the side of the mountain. For going up the motive power is furnished by hydrogen gas, while the descent is caused by pressure of water, which is poured into a large tank at the upper end of the road, and which acts as ballast. Suspended from the balloon is a small car with room for ten passengers. The cable goes from the bottom of the balloon through the center of the car to a regulator of speed, which is controlled by the conductor. The inventor of this railroad claims that his patent will force all incline cable roads out of existence.

The triumvirate of alleged outlaws, who were all armed, are thought to be the men who burglarized the post office at Crooksville, the post office at New Concord and the office of a brick plant at South Zanesville, in each instance a safe being blown.

Mrs. Sartivel was so badly burned that her recovery is doubtful.

SLAPS DREYFUS' FACE

COWARDLY ATTACK ON MAJOR AT MILITARY CLUB.

DID NOT RESENT INSULT

Rehabilitated Officer Stunned by Treatment Accorded Him on First Visit to Exclusive Organization Since Reinstate

Paris.—Maj. Dreyfus was the victim of a cowardly attack in the Military Club Wednesday night, where all the officers were assembled to give a reception to the Thirteenth regiment artillery, to which Dreyfus and Commandant Targa, one of his staunchest defenders, are attached.

The moment Dreyfus and his friend Targa presented themselves in the salons of the Cercle Militaire, a commandant, whose name is still unknown, approached Dreyfus and slapped him twice in the face.

Dreyfus was stunned at the treatment accorded him on his first visit to the club, which is the most exclusive in France, since he was restored to the army, but he did not resent the insult.

The club immediately became divided into two hostile camps, however, one favoring and the other opposing Dreyfus, and a general brawl resulted in the melee. It is said, many of those engaged were painfully injured. The doors of the club instantly were closed.

The assault is regarded as part of a conspiracy to reopen the Dreyfus affair. The commandant who insulted Dreyfus will, it is said, refuse to meet Dreyfus in a duel in the hope Dreyfus will tire of the humiliations his associates appear determined to heap upon him and quit the army.

"You are a fine weather prophet," said I, as we hurried homeward through the downpour. "You ought to be ashamed of yourself."

"O, well," said the commandant, "the frog lied. It's to blame, not me. Am I responsible for the morals of that particular frog?"

London.—The conference of the interparliamentary union, after a prolonged debate Wednesday, adopted the following resolution:

"The interparliamentary union, now in session in London, expresses the view that the second Hague conference should:

"1. By treaty define contraband of war as being restricted to arms, munitions of war and explosives.

"2. Reassess and confirm the principle that neither a ship carrying contraband of war nor other goods aboard such ship not being contraband of war may be destroyed.

"3. Affirm that even between beligerent private property should be as immune at sea as it is on land."
