

THE BARRINGTON REVIEW.

VOL. 22. NO. 33.

BARRINGTON, ILLINOIS, FRIDAY, OCT. 19, 1906

A. L. HENDEE IS THE NOMINEE

No Question About Who Is the Choice of the Lake County Republicans for County Clerk.

Tuesday, November 6th, is election day.

In Lake county, interest is manifested in the election of a county clerk. Albert L. Hendee, the present incumbent, is the nominee of the Lake County Republican party. Wm. E. Miller of Libertyville was nominated for this office by the Democratic party. J. L. Swayer of Warren was a candidate for the Republican nomination at a convention recently held at Libertyville and was defeated.

Mr. Swayer, at the solicitation of his friends (who have decided to have his name appear upon the official ballot and has filed with the county clerk a nomination paper under the head of "Direct Primary Republican Ticket," and asks the Republicans of Lake county to support him as a Republican candidate for the office of county clerk, claiming that he received more votes in the county than did Mr. Hendee.

Heretofore, the question of who were the regular nominees of the Republican party in convention has never been questioned. It was supposed that the delegates to the convention held at Libertyville were intelligent enough to determine under their instructions who should be the nominees of their party. Other defeated candidates thought so and although their "friends" tried to use influence to have them become independent candidates they would not consent to it.

Mr. Swayer certainly has a right to be an independent candidate for any office he desires, but we do not believe that he should go into a Republican convention asking the support of Republicans unless he was willing to abide by the result of such convention. Had he been successful in the late convention there is no doubt that he would have expected Mr. Hendee to accept defeat in a graceful manner and drop out of the race.

The only objection this opposition have to Mr. Hendee is, it is said, that he has held the office for a number of years. This is one of the best recommendations Mr. Hendee could be given.

There is not a citizen of Lake county who has had business with the county clerk's office while Mr. Hendee was the incumbent, but will make affidavit that he or she received courteous treatment and that their business was transacted in a prompt and efficient manner. Every one admits Mr. Hendee's fitness, then why make a change and override the wishes of the convention.

Every Republican in Lake County should cast his vote for Albert L. Hendee, the regular Republican nominee for county clerk.

ABSTRACTS WILL COST LESS

Cook County Takes a Step in the Right Direction to Benefit the People of the County.

The report of the committee appointed by the county board in 1904 to procure new and improved abstract books for Cook county reported Monday. The report was accepted and now the county is ready to sell abstracts of title at half the cost charged by private companies.

The purchaser of an abstract of title from the county is insured against any inaccuracies by a law passed by the legislature. The law provides that a certain amount be set aside from the money received for abstracts of title, this fund to be kept as a guaranty fund. The books were completed Sept. 24 at a cost of $124,000. They were prepared under the direction of A. R. Marriott, vice president of the Chicago Title and Trust Company; Robert M. Simon and John D. Hunt.

WAS HE RIGHT OR WRONG?

Do Two Wrongs Make a Right? These Questions Are Being Asked by Many.

The Waukegan Sun contained the following last week:

It is right to detect sin by causing another to sin in the discovery? That is the question that the grand jury and many of their friends in whom they are alleged to have confided are asking. There is an old saying that two wrongs do not make a right and the jury men are wondering if it does not apply in the cases of the indictments against many of the Lake county liquor dealers. They do not defend those indicted, but they do say that the evidence against them was collected in a way that makes it almost as bad as the offense of those indicted. Their stand comes from the investigations of the jury when examining several student detectives of Northwestern University, who, it is claimed, stated that Rev. Thomas Quayle, of the North Shore Law and Order League, had paid them to drink in saloons that evidence might be secured against them. Of course it was in order to supply evidence that would stop the sale, but is it right, many are saying, to have boys under age actually drink liquor that they may supply evidence?

During the session of the grand jury the following questions are said on good authority to have been asked one of the student detectives by a grand jurymen:

"Did you do this work and collect this evidence?"

"Yes," the young man replied, "I did."

"Well, is this all you do?"

"No, I am a student at Northwestern Military Academy."

"Why did you do this?"

"I was paid for it."

"Who paid you?"

"Why, Mr. Quayle paid me: I suppose it was his money."

"Did you drink in all these places, actually receive liquor and drink it?"

"Yes."

"Who paid for the drinks?"

"Mr. Quayle gave me the money."

"Well," said the jurymen, "all I can say is you must have been drunk."

"Well, I could carry it," said the young man.

The conversation leaked out after the jury had disbanded and has caused much talk. A great many people have been dumfounded by the facts that have been brought to light and many of them condemn severely the way the evidence was gathered.

They say it is wrong to send young men into saloons and even pay them to drink, perhaps instilling the taste in them, and having drunk so much that they remark, "Well, I could carry it." They are asking, "Is it not sinful to get the evidence in this way as it is to sell the liquor?"

WHOSE FOOT IS IT?

Two Different Parties Claim a Foot in Barrington, and the Ownership Cannot Be Solved.

Who owns the foot?

Two different parties claim it and each has two feet already. However, it is not a human foot, but a foot of real estate located on South Railroad street near Main.

Some time ago Fred Frey sold a lot on Railroad street to Ed. Groff, and the latter made preparations to put up as big a brick building as the lot would allow.

Sam Lipofsky owns the building and lot adjoining on the east, and apparently that gentleman's building was supposed to have encroached upon Mr. Groff's land about a foot, and Sam forthwith got contractors at work sawing off a foot of his building, and Mr. Groff began digging his foundation. When the saw had reached the foundation from the roof, Mr. Groff's foundation had reached five feet and a surveyor's stake was discovered which apparently gave Mr. Lipofsky all the land he now occupies.

The shed-off portion of his building was nailed back at once, and as the matter now stands, the question is, whose foot is it?

It is said the stake discovered by Mr. Groff five feet below ground is not recorded, and County Surveyor Graff of Cook county surveyed the land October 1905 and held that Mr. Groff was entitled to the foot.

But—whose foot is it, anyway?

GUILTY OF REBATING

NEW YORK CENTRAL GAVE RE-FUNDS TO SHIPPER.

VERDICT AGAINST AGENT

Traffic Manager Pomeroy arranged for a Reduction of Five Cents Per Hundred on Shipments of Sugar From Detroit.

New York.—A verdict of guilty of granting rebates was returned by a jury in the United States court here Wednesday against the New York Central Railway company and Frederick L. Pomeroy, the company's general traffic manager. Sentence was deferred until Friday to permit the attorneys for the defense to file motions with the court.

In discussing the jury's verdict, Austin G. Fox, counsel for the defendants, placed the responsibility for the conviction of his clients upon public opinion. "You can't defend rebate cases in the present state of public opinion," he said.

In submitting the case to the jury, Judge Holt reviewed the Interstate Commerce act and the amendatory act in 1905, known as the Kilgus act. This statute provided for the punishment of the corporation, as well as its agents and officers for a violation of acts regulating commerce. Referring to the joint traffic arrangements between the New York Central and the Michigan Central, he said that the indictment charged that Mr. Pomeroy, as agent of the sugar companies and Edgar & Son, in Detroit, had agreed for a lower rate for sugar shipped between the parties than that of the regular tariff rates. The government alleges that the traffic manager arranged for a reduction of five cents per hundred pounds from the established tariff rate of 23 cents.

The jury could find, he said, that either or none of the defendants were guilty as alleged, or that they had paid one or all of the sums specified as rebates. He said it was necessary in criminal convictions to show the intent from the act itself. The jury was out an hour and returned with a verdict of guilty against both the defendants.

EXPLOSION KILLS FIVE PERSONS

Gasoline Blow-Up at Fort Recovery,
O., Starts Bad Fire.

Celina, O.—Five persons were killed and about a hundred injured by a gasoline explosion in the Melnerding dry goods and hardware store at Fort Recovery, in the county, at noon Wednesday. The dead:

Joseph Lammner, aged 13 years.
Henry Roemer, aged 45 years.
Charles Wagner, aged 10 years, all employees of Melnerding's.

Unknown man, traveling salesman, missing.

The explosion occurred in the rear of the Melnerding store, where Charles Wagner was supposed to have been at the time. What caused the explosion is not known. Fire followed and the entire town on the west side was soon ablaze.

All the window glass in Fort Recovery was broken. The loss cannot be estimated, but it will reach into thousands of dollars.

RULER OF ANNAM IS MONSTER

Cooks Body of One of His Wives and Has It Eaten.

Marseilles, France.—The mail advices which reached here Wednesday from Indo-China brought another and more revolting story of the doings of King Thanh That of Annam, showing that he went to the extent of cannibalism. After killing one of his wives he caused the body to be cooked and served up for dinner, forcing his subjects to eat under pain of death. Some of the king's wives were bound and burned with burning oil and subjected to other cruelty while naked women were thrown into the cages of wild beasts, where they were devoured before the eyes of the king. Finally the French authorities stepped in and made a prisoner of Thanh That who has been adjudged insane by Dr. Dumas, of the French colonial staff.

Burton Mandate Is Issued.

Washington.—The mandate of the supreme court of the United States in the case of former United States Senator Burton, under conviction and sentence for a violation of his oath as a senator, was issued Wednesday by the clerk of the court. The document is directed to the United States circuit court for the Eastern district of Missouri and merely notifies that court of affirmance of its judgment by the supreme court. This is the usual method of procedure in such cases and is a notice to the trial court that it is at liberty to execute its sentence.

Kept Tax Receipts Long.
Charles King, of East Liberty, a suburb of Pittsburgh, who might be termed a careful man. He has been a voter in the East Liberty district since 1857 and when asked on the last registration day if he had a tax receipt he pulled from a pocket tax receipts for the last 41 years. When asked by the registrar if he had any more he replied that if he went down deep into his "treasury" he might be able to possibly find a few dating long back before the oldest member of the board was born. Mr. King is now 78 years old, having been born in Baltimore in 1825, removing to East Liberty in 1857. His first presidential vote was cast for John C. Fremont and his last for Theodore Roosevelt. He is a staunch Republican and a contractor and brick manufacturer for half a century has contributed much to the up-building and growth of East Liberty.

Industrious French Workmen.

Nearly all the workmen employed in the naval arsenal at Toulon, France, add to their salaries by exercising another trade. Some are leather dress makers, hotel carpet beaters, others distribute prospectuses and handbills, or act as parcel carriers for local shopkeepers. One man complained recently in all seriousness that he was so overworked at the arsenal that he had no time to exercise his profession of mason. A number of arsenal hands actually carry on their supplementary trades in the yards. There are amateur shoemakers, watchmakers and barbers, who carry on a thriving and lucrative business among their comrades.

Adopt American Ideas.

The Russian military authorities are considering the adoption of khaki uniforms, the czar having been especially interested in one recently worn by an American army representative at St. Petersburg. The military authorities are also considering American accoutrements, including web cartridge belts and cavalry saddles, with a view to their adoption.

INTERESTING CONTEST.

Heavy Cost of Unpaid Postage.

One of the most curious contests ever before the public was conducted by many thousand persons under the offer of the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., of Battle Creek, Mich., for prizes of 21 boxes of gold and 200 greenbacks to those making the most words out of the letters Y-I-O-G-R-A-P-E-N-U-T-S.

The contest was started in February, 1906, and it was arranged to have the prizes awarded on Apr. 30, 1906.

When the public announcement appeared many persons began to form the words from these letters, sometimes the whole family being occupied erewhile, a contest of amusement and education.

After a while the lists began to come in to the Postum office and before long the volume grew until it filled wagon to carry the mail. Many of the contestants were thoughtless enough to send their lists with insufficient postage and for a period of two weeks the company was forced to pay fifty-cent and sixty-cent a day to pay the unpaid postage.

Young ladies, generally those who had graduated from the high school, employed to examine these lists and count the correct words. Webster's Dictionary was the standard and each list was very carefully corrected except those which fell below $500 for it soon became clear that nothing below that could win. Some of the lists required the work of a young lady for a solid week on each individual list. The work was done very carefully and accurately but the company had no idea, at the time the offer was made, that the people would respond so generally and they were compelled to fill every available space in the offices with these young ladies, and notwithstanding they worked steadily, it was impossible to complete the examination until Sept. 29, over six months after the prizes should have been awarded.

This delay caused a great many inquiries and naturally created some dissatisfaction. It has been thought best to make the report in practically all of the newspapers in the United States and many of the magazines in order to make clear to the people the conditions of the contest.

Many lists contained enormous numbers of words which, under the rules, had to be eliminated "Peggers" would count "Peggers" would not count. Lists contained over 50,000 words, the great majority of which were cut out. The largest lists were checked over two and in some cases three times to insure accuracy.

The $100,000 gold prize was won by L. D. Reese, 1227-15th St., Denver, Colo., with 5941 correct words. The highest $10,000 gold prize went to S. K. Fraser, Lincoln, Pa., with 5921 correct words.

A complete list of the 331 winners with their home addresses will be sent to any contestant enquiring on a postal card.

Be sure and give name and address clearly.

This contest has cost the Co. many thousands of dollars, and probably has not been a profitable advertisement, nevertheless perhaps some who had never before tried Grape-Nuts food have been interested in the contest, and from trial of the food have shown its wonderful rebuilding powers.

It teaches in a practicable manner that scientifically gathered food elements can be selected from the elements, which nature will use for rebuilding the nerve centres and brain in a way that is unmistakable to users of Grape-Nuts.

A TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE.

How a Veteran Was Saved the 'Amputation of a Limb.

B. Frank Dornum, veteran, of Roosevelt Ave., Indianapolis, Ind., says: "I had been showing symptoms of kidney trouble from the time I was mustered out of the army, but in all my life I never suffered as in 1897. Head-aches, dizziness and sleeplessness, first, and then dropsy. I was weak and helpless, having run down from 180 to 125 pounds. I was having terrible pain in the kidneys, and the secretions passed almost involuntarily. My left leg swelled until it was 34 inches around, and the doctor tapped it night and morning until I could no longer stand it, and then he advised amputation. I refused, and began using Doan's Kidney Pills. The swelling subsided gradually, the urine became natural, and all my pains and aches disappeared. I have been well now for nine years since using Doan's Kidney Pills. For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y."

Animals Do with Little Water.

There are some animals which rarely drink; for instance, the llama of Patagonia, and certain gazelles of the far east. A number of snakes, lizards and other reptiles live in places devoid of water. A bat of western America inhabits arid plains. In parts of Lozere, France, there are herds of cows and goats which hardly ever drink and yet produce the milk for Roquefort cheese.

THE WINNING STROKE

If more than ordinary skill in playing brings the honors of the game to the winning player, so exceptional merit in a remedy ensures the commendation of the well informed, and as a reasonable amount of outdoor life and recreation is conducive to the health and strength, so does a perfect laxative tend to one's improvement in cases of constipation, biliousness, headaches, etc. It is all important, however, in selecting a laxative, to choose one of known quality and excellence, like the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., a laxative which sweetens and cleanses the system effectually, when a laxative is needed, without any unpleasant after effects, as it acts naturally and gently on the internal organs, simply assisting nature when nature needs assistance, without griping, irritating or debilitating the internal organs in any way, as it contains nothing of an objectionable or injurious nature. As the plants which are combined with the figs in the manufacture of Syrup of Figs are known to physicians to act most beneficially upon the system, the remedy has met with their general approval as a family laxative, a fact well worth considering in making purchases.

It is because of the fact that SYRUP OF FIGS is a remedy of known quality and excellence, and approved by physicians that has led to its use by so many millions of well informed people, who would not use any remedy of uncertain quality or inferior reputation. Every family should have a bottle of the genuine on hand at all times, to use when a laxative remedy is required. Please to remember that this genuine Syrup of Figs is for sale in bottles of one size only, by all reputable druggists, and that full name of the company—California Fig Syrup Co., is plainly printed on the front of every package. Regular price, 50c per bottle.

Anyone wishing to receive injuries from a defective old board walk had better attend to the matter at once, for the old sidewalks are disappearing fast in Barrington and another summer they will be a rarity here. The Wauconda Lender of last week says: "The gold mining story of a find by Mulligan on a like the oil report badly stretched, but we suppose that was just to stir things up. Wm. Hager's sale of lots was well attended, the city officials attending in a body. Many lots were disposed of, several purchases to be made on the erection of homes within a few days. The annual game dinner given by Otto Murek of Fox Lake yesterday was not as well attended as usual, only about six guests responding to invitations. The inclement weather had much to do with the small attendance. However, a bountiful repast was served which was much enjoyed by those present.

The Village of Barrington in soliciting bids for the Main Street water pipe extension opens a field of business operation which ought to be taken advantage of by some of our young men. Growing rapidly as our village is, such a contract is a small step in an extremely pecuniary business. Municipal contracts have been the foundation of many great fortunes. A contractor who does honest work at a reasonable price deserves to be successful. The city and as such a public benefactor as the man who with a bare of his own money, has secured the right that if a local party takes the Main Street contract that he will receive local contracts aggregating $50,000 in the next two years. Think of it, young men, and act. M. C.

A Great Gun

By GRETCHEN GRAYDON

Copyright, 1906, by Homer Sprague

"Oh, yes! Billy has it again, and this time very bad," Mrs. Wheat said, nodding across at her son. "But you won't wonder at it when you hear the new sweetheart's name—Sarah-Susan—Miss Sarah-Susan Gunn."

Billy turned all colors. Connor, his chum, laughed approvingly and said as soon as he could speak: "Billy, I call that positively immoral! You had better be courting twins. How ever will you fix it? You may propose to Susan and be rejected or accepted by Sally. You may even be married wrong. Think, too, of being always a mere gunner's mate."

"Shut up!" Billy interjected, his face scarlet, but grinning in spite of himself. "Wait till you've seen her at least. Mother makes fun of her names because she can't find fault with her any way else. And Sue isn't to blame. She didn't name herself or choose the family she had to be born in."

"No, but you do choose the family you marry into," Mrs. Wheat cooed. She was less than twenty years older than Billy and still a very pretty and very lively woman.

Connor thought her stunning. So did his Uncle Tim. Harking back and, in his mind to something a year old, he whistled aloud and asked abruptly: "Say, Mammy Wheat, is it the same way with Tim? Did you turn him down because you wouldn't be Mrs. O'Toole?"

It was mammy's turn to blush. The blush made her younger and prettier than ever. "Who says I had the chance to be Mrs. O'Toole?" she began, but stopped as both the youngsters growled derisively and unbelief.

"Tim was the worst ever," Connor said decidedly. "couldn't eat or sleep, used to hang out of the windows all 'prom' week just to stare up the street toward where you were staying; in the greatest dazed, too, to get his place fixed up new. And then, after he'd walked about you one cent half hour, he quit—out everything except his allowance and scooted across the pond with just half a steamer kit. But say you don't know why, mammy! It won't do any good—not with us two. We know. He wanted—because you sent him. Poor old Tim! You have a heap more conscience, mammy! How could you do it?"

"Don't you understand, Larry, dear?" mammy said, still blushing. "It was all on your account. I couldn't bear to 'upbraid you.' Her eyes laughed, but Larry Connor saw under the laughter. "If that was your game you went blind," he said. "Don't you see, Tim is a poor case of indigestion—they begin at forty-five—he'll sure fall victim somewhere. You ought to have taken him, mammy. Then, indeed, my future would have been secure."

"Where is he? Have you heard from him lately?" mammy asked, her eyes suddenly downcast.

Larry shook his head. "He was tearing around toward the midnight sun—thought maybe the iceberg would remind him of you," he said. "But that was six months back—long enough for him to be buried or married."

"He always talked of Ireland—mammy began, sighing faintly.

"But he didn't care for it unless you were there, so see it with him," Larry interrupted. "I think I'll sail him to come back right away. Maybe he'll be ready to sacrifice himself for your white—carry off the adorable Gunn and so save Billy."

"I had rather—almost—see him Billy," mammy said inconsequently. "Tim is a dear, but—Hon. Mrs. Timothy O'Toole! Dear me, I could cry when I think of it! Why wasn't he born something else?"

"Smith, Jones, Brown or Robinson," Larry commented.

Mrs. Wheat got up and walked quickly away.

Billy went to the window. Larry, staring after the vanishing lady, was amazed to see her head drop and her bosom swell. Clearly she was on the point of sobbing. He followed her softly and said as she flung herself on a couch: "Tell me, mammy! You're playing a game. What is it?"

"How did you guess?" mammy said, speaking very low, with her finger on her lip. "You mustn't ever let Billy guess it," she said. "He doesn't know about our money. It came to me from my uncle, the dearest, straitened soul. He thought second marriages sinful—spiritual legacy, he called them. So I kept my fortune, which will be Billy's fortune, on condition of remaining always a widow. Now you see why I had to send Tim away."

"As if he cared for your money! And he'd never let Billy know," Larry said excitedly. But he bent his head reverently to kiss mammy's hand as he added: "But oh, you are a brick! You made up all this about the name to blind the blessed boy?"

"I had to—there wasn't anything else. Tim was such a gentleman," Mrs. Wheat said, smothering a sob. "You won't tell him, Larry, but all this teasing over his sweetheart's name is just to keep him from suspecting. I don't really oppose him, although I think he is making a mistake. He has promised to wait a year—long enough to find it out for himself."

"What's wrong with her?" Larry asked. "Everything, but mostly that Mrs. Wheat's too old and wise and hard," Mrs. Wheat said comprehensively. "I mean that she was born too old; actually they are but a month apart. She is much too clever to care really for my dear, big, blundering, pretty boy, but she cares a whole lot for what he can give her. You ought to see her crying my pearls. I could forgive her a little if she had no pearls of her own. To be rich and grasping is so much worse than to yearn for what one never has had. I could break up the match tomorrow by letting her know I hold the purse strings, but that would lose me my boy, and he's everything."

"She shan't have him, and you shan't lose him, listen! I've got an idea," Larry said. Mammy bent toward him, her brimming eyes shining. They talked in whispers for two minutes, then Larry rushed away, headed for the telegraph office.

Exactly three weeks later Mammy Wheat, with Larry in attendance, went up to the city upon a steamer day. The pair got back late to Fernbrook and slipped into the bed by the side of the entrance wholly unseen. But soon there was scribbled upon the register in Larry's most sprawling hand, "Mr. and Mrs. F. T. O'Toole-Merrion, Mount Merrion, County Meath, Ireland." And underneath, in Greek letters, "They've found it."

What's all that about?" Billy said, coming up and leaning over Larry's shoulder. Larry laid hold on him, saying, "Get your Gunn and come see." As he dragged Billy toward the main stairway he added: "Don't you get heart failure. You'll come out all right, if you only live through it."

Sarah-Susan, in wait for Billy, was easily carried along. As the three entered mammy's private parlor they saw her standing beside a tall, handsome fellow, balding and grayish, but be sure, but rudely and with the happiest merry eyes. Stammering he put his arm around mammy, not even giving Billy a finger until he had said: "I had to have her, even if it meant changing my name and nation, son. Sure, my life was no life without her. Wish me joy, lad, of my new home and a wife in it."

"I do," Billy said heartily, detaching the fairly hand. Mammy withdrew herself from Tim and dragged herself upon Billy's breast, half sobbing half laughing out: "Wait, son, until you know! Are you willing to be poor to make me happy?"

"Sure," Billy said, giving her a hug. Sarah-Susan beamed. Larry in his most innocent fashion began to explain. Before he had said fifty words he wheeled upon mammy: "As you have beggared your son, mammy, for your whim, understand I refuse to countenance your duplicity. I agree with your late uncle. Such conduct is positively immoral!"

As she spoke she had been stripping herself of Billy's ring, a simple affair of thread gold with a diamond spark on it. But she quite forgot the diamond on the finger she thrust herself upon Billy's breast, half sobbing half laughing out: "Wait, son, until you know! Are you willing to be poor to make me happy?"

But when Mrs. O'Toole-Merrion drew his head to her breast and patted it as she had done when he was three years old, he lifted it bravely and smiled up at her, saying: "It hurts, mammy, but I'm not going to cry. And I'm not going to starve either. Tim will see to that."

"Sure," Tim said, hugging his new son. Mammy and Larry considerably looked away.

Berlin's Economy Plan. In a good part of Berlin—that is, in one of the most desirable locations—one can get a flat for anything from $20 to $50 a month that could be bought for New York for less than $150 if it could be found at all. I have such an apartment in mind, and it is only one among thousands in Berlin. It is on the third floor, and German flat-houses are sold more than four or six stories high. It does not lie in a straight, unbroken line along a narrow, dark hallway, but is built around a big square entrance that might be used for a reception room if it were needed. The rooms are enormous and each has outside windows.

The bathroom is as large as an ordinary "inside" bathroom, as we know it here, and it is fitted up with every modern luxury conceivable, including a splendid shower. The kitchen is too nice to be true, says a writer in Leslie's Weekly. It is lined halfway up with beautiful blue and white tiles. It has a white tile floor, and its gas range is made of blue and white tile to match the walls. It has a blue and white tile floor, and its gas range is made of blue and white tile to match the walls. Evolution of the Sword. During the first twelve centuries of the Christian era the sword varied little in the essential features from the lines of the broadsword. The blade was lengthened, it is true, and less curved, but the proportions of the hilt were usually straight, and the simple, workmanlike look was preserved. The change to the elaborate hilts of several centuries later was made gradually. There were slight changes in the hilt, and the lines of the blade, the stiff straight lines little by little began to curve gently toward the blade. The knob at the end of the hilt, the scabbard, the disk or ball of metal, was varied into a trefoil, a fluting or a small Maltese cross. Blades and scabbards were engraved with inscriptions, a practice which had in the past been confined to the narrow bearing unimpeachable Runic characters cut in the bronze blades. The cross bladed sword the crusaders carried on their pious errands to the Holy Land was not infrequently displayed the sacred monogram either carved or inlaid.

Dame Boston was 276 years old September 18, and is not ashamed to tell her age.

Down east a new play has made a hit because it is written in the simplified spelling.

A St. Louis man is to marry a woman he met in jail. It seems that even Cupid gets into the lock-up once in awhile.

Mrs. Sage was as sage as her late husband in the content of his will by doubling the amounts of his bequests.

It was recently said of a prominent actor that he did well in two roles. Possibly this was because he was a well-bred player.

A news dispatch says that the sultan of Turkey is doomed. But then he has been doomed so long that he is used to it now.

An enterprising Kentucky colonel is going to import Jordan river water for "baptismal and other purposes." No need to specify "external."

Snake stories are regarded as a joke in some countries, but not so in India, where the deaths from reptile bites numbered 21,880 in a single year.

Pittsburg is now teaching its school girls how to trim hats, doubtless anticipating that in the course of time its population of millionaires will inevitably be run out.

If some poor devils of authors were alive now, how much they might realize on copies of first editions of their work. Poor might be able to buy fuel to warm his dying wife.

Shakespeare wrote that "the man that hath no music in himself is fit for treasons, stratagems and spoils." Nevertheless a thief in St. Louis has stolen a blind man's organ.

Girls in a factory in New Jersey have struck because they were permitted to sing. Maybe they were making some melodious reflection on father.

The boneless young man who died recently in Brooklyn had one consolation in the fact that he left no skeleton to be articulated for scientific purposes.

A New Jersey man became conclusion-stricken after accumulating a fortune and paid for a soda. A conclusion that sufficient convenience is a mighty handy thing.

Four thousand eight hundred and sixty-five people were killed while walking on the tracks of the American railroads in 1905. It must have been an exceptionally bad year in the theatrical business.

Bankers in New York city have warned clerks to watch one another and report any suspicious circumstances. If directors and other officials in charge of funds can be required to do likewise other people's money will be comparatively safe.

Wilhelm Friedrich Franz Josef Christian Olat is the name of the new German royal baby, son of the crown prince. His grandfather doubtless would rather have him known in the history of the future as Wilhelm III, than as Friedrich the Great.

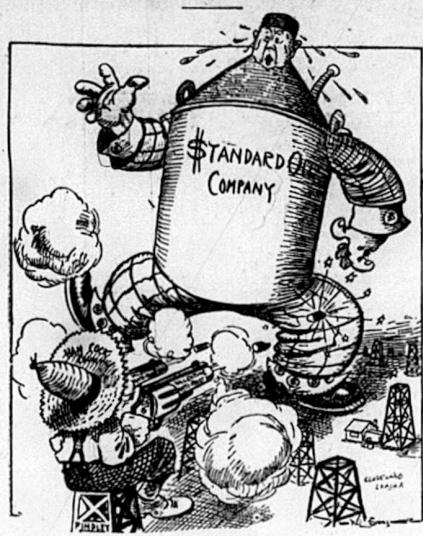

Under the grant of liberties lately made to Finland, the right of suffrage was conferred on all. A few weeks later the legislative council of Victoria, Australia, rejected for the fourteenth time a proposition to permit women to vote. This is one of the differences between autocratic Russia and a democratic British colony.

New Jersey judges, or one of them at least, has won a new claim to distinction besides that of dealing out "Jersey justice." He went fishing the other day, and in an effort to make a long fly-cast, entangled his line in the branches of a tree, and hooked a blue jay that was resting on a limb. It is not every judge who can catch a bird when he goes fishing.

America has so much undeveloped land that natural and unexploited parks can be found all through the country. But in time this may be a thickly populated country, and then our posterity will feel the wisdom of their fathers in setting aside forever extensive preserves in the interests of patriotic memory, of beauty and of recreation. Two sacred preserves of recent establishment are the Platt National park in Oklahoma and the Macdonough National park in Lake Champlain, on the Isle St. Michael. In the Lake Champlain park lie buried the Americans and British who fell in the battle of September 11, 1814.

Men who wear silk or "stovepipe" hats know that the temperature inside the hat is much higher than outside; but it has remained for a French physician to measure the difference. He has discovered that when the thermometer registers 90 degrees in the shade in the outer air it stands at 108 degrees in his silk hat, and that when it is 65 outside it is 88 inside. From these differences he concludes that the unnatural heat causes many nervous diseases. Other persons have supposed that the heat of the hat made men bald.

GRAIN INVESTIGATION IS ON AT CHICAGO

Witnesses Testify to Discrimination on Part of Alleged Elevator Trust and Railroad—Tell Stories of Financial Ruin—Fixing the Price of Grain.

Chicago.—"Millionaire grain dealers in the elevator trust, aided by the railroads, robbed me and now I am a ruined man," declared an interstate commerce witness Tuesday.

The witness, A. T. Aygarn, of Post-ville, Ill., while on the stand broke into tears, and it was necessary to excuse him from the stand.

He declared that he arose, tears streaming from his eyes, his voice broken by his grief, that he had been ruined because he dared to deal with the farmers and truck shovellers and quit the Illinois association.

He declared the discrimination against him was doubtless by the refusal of railroads to give him cars. The story of the death struggle between the farmer and organized commission men in Iowa and Illinois was told by J. E. Brennan and E. G. Dunn, grain solicitors for Eschenberg & Dalton, grain dealers of Chicago. This firm has been boycotted and blacklisted because it purchased grain from former elevator companies.

A letter was read from the secretary of the Illinois Grain Dealers' association to Lowell, Holt & Co., of St. Louis, who were also witnesses. He said he had been ruined by the grain trust and discrimination by the railroads.

Others had the same story to tell. "Can you give us a few instances of where this discrimination has caused ruin?" asked Commissioner Prouty.

"I can give you one, sir, that I know of for sure. I am ruined by it—by the boycotting, blacklisting and discrimination."

"I will tell you one instance of discrimination on the Burlington & Missouri road in Iowa, an extension of the C, B. & Q. road. They refused one man cars after he ordered, and finding one on a siding he put his grain in it. It stood there 40 days and the railroad company finally threw it out on the ground. That man is Robert Waite."

James Pettit, president of the Peavey Elevator company, told of a pool between the elevator companies regulating storage charges.

He declared that he was not sure the plan was illegal, but since the new rate law had gone into effect his firm had discontinued its connection.

The commission is investigating the complaint that the railroads and the elevator owners have combined to restrain trade and kill competition.

Gambrell, who said he was a broker for John C. Shaffer, an elevator owner that testified Monday, was the first witness Tuesday.

"So long as your august body is investigating these conditions, I would like to tell of a rule that I think is killing Chicago as a grain center and has already placed the city in the position of a one-horse village so far as the grain trade is concerned."

"Every afternoon before the closing of the board of trade a call is put out giving the price that is to be bid to the country for grain."

"Every broker who bids must bid within that price."

"For that reason I quit doing business. I couldn't make any money. I thought the rule unfair and illegal and in restraint of trade."

Commissioner Lane—Was that rule passed by the board of trade?

"Yes."

"Was it not contested?"

"It was contested bitterly. For example, I have orders every day from the east to buy grain and at a price two or three cents above the Chicago limit, as made by the board of trade. Yet I couldn't—didn't dare to—offer more, so I quit that branch."

"Can you give us a there, or is there attached to violation of that rule?"

"Expulsion from the board of trade."

Must Show Agent's Connection.

The local witness, Willis B. Uiah, a local grocer, was proceeding to tell the jury that when he first went into business several years ago he purchased oil from the National Refining company, a local independent concern, but that two or three years ago he was visited by an agent of the Standard oil company, who had bought oil of that company. He had no means of knowing that the supposed agent of the Standard was such agent, and while Attorney Phelps stated that he wished to show that this agent had offered and paid a secret rebate to the witness since his visit, and that the witness had bought all his oil of the Standard since that time, he said the state could not prove that the Standard had given the agent authority to offer the rebate, and all the evidence was thereby cut out of the case.

It was understood to have been the intention of the prosecution to place before the jury considerable testimony that the Standard oil company had been buying oil from the National Refining company, a local independent concern, but that two or three years ago he was visited by an agent of the Standard oil company, who had bought oil of that company. He had no means of knowing that the supposed agent of the Standard was such agent, and while Attorney Phelps stated that he wished to show that this agent had offered and paid a secret rebate to the witness since his visit, and that the witness had bought all his oil of the Standard since that time, he said the state could not prove that the Standard had given the agent authority to offer the rebate, and all the evidence was thereby cut out of the case.

STANDARD OIL TRIAL

IT COMES TO AN END IN FINDLAY, OHIO.

THE STATE LOSES POINT

Decidedly Important Evidence Regarding Rebates Ruled Out by Court—Other Testimony of Like Nature Not Offered.

Findlay, O.—The end of the trial of the Standard Oil company of Ohio, for alleged conspiracy against trade, came suddenly in sight at the conclusion of the session of the court Monday.

Prosecutor David began his argument at ten o'clock Tuesday morning. Two witnesses had testified for the state and the defense had closed its case with the submission as evidence of a single document, the decision of the supreme court of the state declaring the defendant company "Not guilty," in the contempt proceedings of 1900.

The prosecution told the jury that there never had been an actual cessation of the Standard Oil trust of 1882, as shown by the evidence, although the form of the organization had been changed.

The defense made its main point that while the evidence showed all the so-called subsidiary companies to be owned by the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, not one syllable of evidence had been adduced to show that the defendant company was so owned.

Weakness of Prosecution.

Mr. Phelps for the prosecution admitted that the state had no means of showing that the Standard Oil company authorized its agents to offer or give rebates. The court said that it was a fundamental rule of evidence that the burden of proof of the agent must be established.

"Then the state will close its case in ten minutes to-morrow," remarked Attorney Phelps, and the jury, which had been excused for this argument of counsel, was called in and court adjourned.

A few witnesses for the defense will be called, but it is stated that the testimony will be all in on both sides before the court adjourns Tuesday; that the argument of counsel to the jury can be completed Wednesday, perhaps in an afternoon. Judge Phelps has charged the jury and placed the case in its hands.

Delay for Rockefeller.

An agreement was reached between Prosecutor David and the attorneys for the Standard Oil company, whereby the case against John D. Rockefeller will not be set for trial until after the present case has been finally disposed of, whether this is in the probate court, or in the supreme court, or before the supreme court of the state after all appeals have been taken. Until this agreement the Rockefeller case had simply been postponed until after the present trial of the company in the probate court.

John O'Brien, superintendent of the Buckeye Pipe Line company, and R. C. Curtiss, superintendent of the Muscatine Oil company, took the "immunity bath" before testifying in the case Monday.

With the exception of the last witness, the evidence put in by the state was the same as that of the alleged constituent companies of the Standard, including the Buckeye Pipe Line, the Manhattan Oil company, the Ohio Pipe Line company, and the Standard oil company. It was testified to by officers of the Buckeye Pipe Line and Oil company that the Standard Oil company of New Jersey owned practically all of the stock of these companies.

MRS. JEFFERSON DAVIS DEAD

WIDOW OF CONFEDERATE CHIEF EXPIRES IN NEW YORK.

Death Due to Severe Cold, Contracted in Adirondack Mountains, Developing into Pneumonia.

Although grave fears were felt from the first, Mrs. Davis' wonderful vitality which brought her safely through a similar attack a year ago, gave hope of ultimate recovery until Monday night, when a decided change for the worse was evident and the attending physicians announced that the end was near.

It was then believed that Mrs. Davis could not survive the night, but she rallied slightly during the early hours of Tuesday. Shortly after seven o'clock Tuesday morning she had a similar spell and Rev. Nathan A. The clergyman remained some time and an hour later it was announced that Mrs. Davis had lapsed into a state of coma. The period of unconsciousness continued to the end.

RUN DOWN FROM GRIP

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Have Cured This Form of Debility in Hundreds of Cases.

"Four years ago," says Mrs. F. Morrison, of No. 1922 Carson street, South Side, Pittsburgh, Pa., "I took a cold which turned into the grip. This trouble left me all run down. I was thin, had backache much of the time, had no appetite, my stomach was out of order and I felt nervous and unstrung."

"While I had this trouble a doctor, but I really suffered more from the condition than I did from the disease itself. I felt generally prostrated and miserable and the least exposure to cold would make me worse. I couldn't seem to get any better until I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I very quickly noticed a benefit after I began taking them and they restored me to good health and strength. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a wonderful good medicine. Thanks to them I am now in fine health and have had no return of my former trouble. I recommend the pills to everyone who is ailing and lacks every opportunity to let people know how good they are."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured Mrs. Morrison because they actually make good, red blood. When the blood is red and healthy there can be no debility. The relation between the blood and nervous system is such that the pills have a very decided action upon the nerves as they have cured many nervous disorders, such as partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia and St. Vitus' dance, that have not yielded to ordinary treatment. Their double action, on the blood and on the nerves, makes them an ideal tonic.

The druggists sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, or they will be sent by mail post-paid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y.

Legally Her Husband's Boss.

Boston has one woman who is legally her husband's boss. She is Mrs. Elmer Carlisle Ripley, one of the assistant superintendents of the public schools of the city and the wife of Principal Fred H. Ripley, of the Longfellow school of Roslindale. Mrs. Ripley draws some $55 a week of the husband's salary, about $1,500 more per annum than her husband's salary. An assistant superintendent is virtually a supervisor and Mrs. Ripley is in reality her husband's superior and could "flea" him in a minute if she saw fit. Mrs. Ripley is a young woman of pleasing personality.

Latest Fad in "Society."

The latest fad in certain eastern society circles is to be blum and cross. One phase of this more than usually absurd affectation takes the form of ignoring letters of introduction and this lack of consideration has roused family feuds in several cases. One wealthy young Italian, who is a member of one of the best Roman families, went to Newport this summer with many letters from prominent persons. But he has found it impossible to present them. "It is not proper to expect anything from social leaders these days and the stranger who asks to be received by letter has a hard time of it," said a young man whose letter to a society matron was ignored.

Microbe of Gray Hair.

They have discovered a new microbe in New York and it is quite popular among actors and society women. It is called the chromophore, its special function being to turn the hair gray at an amazingly early age. The handsome actor who has those white hairs on his temple that the women admire so is full of the chromophores. Baldheaded men are immune from the microbe. He only attacks the hair, and a man without hair need not worry about the chromophore. For years it was thought that a process of the blood killed the hair, but the curing matter of the hair cells, but scalpologists in New York combat that theory. They say it is the chromophore. The microbe does not like heat and for that reason the women who use the curling tong is less likely to have gray hair than the one who puts her hair up in papers.

NO DAWDLING.

A Man of 70 After Finding Coffee Hurt Him, Stopped Short.

When a man has lived to be 70 years old with a 40-year-old habit grown to him like a knot on a tree, chances are he'll stick to the habit till he dies.

But occasionally the spirit of youth and determination remains in some men to the last day of their lives. When such men do find any habit of the past that is doing them harm, they surprise the Olerites by a degree of will power that is supposed to belong to men under 40 only.

"I had been a user of coffee until three or four years ago, for 40 years—and am now 70," writes a N. Dak. man. "I was extremely nervous and debilitated, and saw plainly that I must quit coffee at once."

"I am thankful to say I had the nerve to quit coffee at once and take on Postum without any dawdling, and experienced no ill effects. On the contrary, I began to gain weight, my nervousness within two months, also gaining strength and health otherwise."

"For a man of my age, I am very well and hearty. I sometimes meet persons who have not made their Postum right and don't like it. But I tell them to bolt it long enough, and call their attention to my looks now, and before I used it, that seems convincing."

"Now, when I have writing to do, or long columns of figures to cast up, I feel equal to it and can get through my work without the fagged out feeling that used to grip me when I wrote in coffee."

IN SUNNY OLD SPAIN.

You may talk of skyscrapers that tower,
And reach their heads high to the sky
You of mansions may praise and stories relate
Of their wonders that dazzle the eye;
But there's something I sing of that's grander,
Whose beauties are hard to explain—
In a far away land I have reared with a wand
A castle in sunny old Spain.
Your mansions may gleam with their splendors—
But what are their splendors to me?
Your columns of white may stand in their might
Attending to man's wither.
Four halls of pure marble may glitter,
And gems flash from over the main—
But there's naught can compare with my castle in air—
My castle in sunny old Spain.
How covered, vine laden, it stands there,
With halls all a-glitter with gold—
There's a fountain of wine—'t is a sight
That is sweeter than nectar of old.
You may hear, if you wish, tinkling music
That is blam for sorrow and pain—
There are voices that sing with a silvery ring
In my castle in sunny old Spain.
"Is true that my castle is flimsy—
And far, far away is the land?
The truth may fade, as may the tale
That is written on the uncertain sand,
But when crumbled to dust are its pillars,
And all scattered, the wind-blown rain,
I have only to dream, and lo! there will gleam
Another in sunny old Spain

CHAPTER XIII.—CONTINUED.

"And if you want to, you can be the same with me. I ain't ever held anything against you, and maybe now I can do you a favor."
"It's right good of you to say so."
"Now, look here, ma'am, let's you and me get right down to cases about this society game here in New York."
"Mrs. Wybert laughed charmingly and relaxed in manner."
"I'm with you, Mr. Bines. What about it, now?"
"Now don't get suspicious, and tell me to mind my own business when I ask you questions."
"I couldn't be suspicious of you—really I feel as if I'd have to tell you everything you asked me, some way."
"Well, there's been some talk of your marrying that young Milbrey. Now tell me the inside of it."
"She looked at the old man closely. Her intuition confirmed his own pro- tections of friendliness."
"I don't mind telling you in strict confidence, there was talk of marriage, and his people, all but the sister, en- couraged it. Then after she was en- gaged to Shepherd they talked him out."

"You think it over."
"Now that's the whole God's truth, if it does you any good."
"If you had married him you'd 'a' had a position, like they say here, right away."
"Oh, dear, yes! awfully swaggy people—dead swell, every one of them. There's no doubt about that."
"Exactly, and there ain't really any reason why you can't be somebody here."
"Well, between you and I, Mr. Bines, I can say the part as well as a whole lot of these women here. I don't want to talk of course, but well—"
"Exactly, you can give half of 'em cards and spades and both casinos, Mrs. Wybert."
"And I'll do it yet. I'm not through by any means. They're not the only perfectly elegant people in this town!"
"Of course you'll do it, and you could do it better if you had three or four times the stake you've got."
"Dollars are worth more apiece in New York than any town I've ever been in."
"Mrs. Wybert, I can put you right square into a good thing, and I'm going to do it. Hear to anything about Consolidated Copper?"
"I've heard something big was doing in it, but nobody seems to know for certain. My broker is afraid of it."

"Very well. Now you do as I tell you, and you can clean up a big lot inside of the next two months. If you do as I tell you, mind, so matter what you hear, and if you don't talk—"
"Mrs. Wybert meditated.
"Mr. Bines, I'm—it's natural that I'm a little uneasy. Why should you tell me to do it, after our little affair? Now, what's that? What are you trying to do with me? What do you expect me to do for you? Get down to cases yourself, Mr. Bines!"

"I'll, ma'am, in a few words. My grandchild, you may have heard, is engaged to an Englishman. He's next thing to broke, but he's got a title coming. Naturally he's looking for money. Naturally he can't care for the girl, but he's afraid she's infatuated with him. Now then, if he had a chance at some one with more money than she's got, why, naturally, he'd jump at it."

"Not a little bit. He saw you at Newport last summer, and he's seen you here. He was tearing the ad- jectives up telling me about you the other night, not naming you by name, but that I'd ever heard tell of you before. You could marry him in a jiffy if you follow my directions."

"But your grandchild has a fortune."
"You'll have as much if you play this the way I tell you. And you never can tell in these times—she might lose a good bit of her."

"I see, this Mauburn isn't good enough for your family, but you reckon he's good enough for me? Is that it, now?"
"Come, Mrs. Wybert, let's be broad. That's the game you like, and I don't criticize you for it. It's a good game if that's the kind of a game you're hant' for. And you can play it better than any grandchilder. She wa'n't meant for it—and I'd rather have her marry an American, anyhow. Now you like it, and you got beauty—only you need more money. I'll put you in the way of it, and you can cut out my grandchilder."

"I must think about it. Suppose I plunge in copper, and your tip isn't straight. I've seen hard times, Mr. Bines, in my life. I haven't always been so lucky."
"Mrs. Wybert, you was in Montana long enough to know how I stand there."

"I know you're A. I, and your word's as good as another man's money. I don't question your good intentions."
"It's my judgment, hey? Now, look here, I won't tell you what I know and how I know it, and you can take my word that I know, do know. You plunge in copper right off, without saying a word to anybody or makin' any spurge, and here—"

"From the little table at his elbow he picked up the card that had announced him, and put it in his pocket. "You said my word was as good as another man's money. Now I'm going to write on this card just what you have to do, and you're clear for two directions, no matter what you hear about other people doing. There'll be all sorts of reports about that stock, but you follow my directions."

"He wrote on the back of the card with his pencil.
"Consolidated Copper, remember—and now I'm agoin' to write something else under them directions."
"Do this up to the limit of your capital and I will make good anything you lose." There, Mrs. Wybert, I've signed that "Peter Bines." That card wouldn't be worth a red apple in a court of law, but you know me, and you know it's good for every penny you lose."

"Really, Mr. Bines, you half-way persuade me. I'll certainly try the copper play—and about the other—well—we'll see; I don't promise, mind you."
"You think over it. I'm sure you'll like the idea—think of beln' in that great nobility, and beln' around them palaces with their dukes and counts. Think how these same New York women will meach to you then!"
The old man rose.

"And mind, follow them directions and you other—makes no difference no how they come. You'll be responsible. And I'll rely on you, ma'am, never to let any know about my visit, and to send me back that little document after you've cashed in."
He left her studying the card with a curious little frown of surprise.

CHAPTER XXIII.

THE AMATEUR NAPOLEON OF WALL STREET.

At the beginning of April, the situation in the three stocks Percival had bought so heavily grew undeniably tense. Consolidated Copper went from 100 to 105 in a week in the enthusiasm suffered little abatement from the drop.
"You see," he reminded Uncle Peter, "it isn't exactly what I expected, but it's right in line with it. So it doesn't alarm me. I take these fellows inside were bound to hammer it down if they could. It wouldn't phase me a bit if it sagged to 95."

"My! My!" Uncle Peter exclaimed, when he saw the way the way you master this business certainly does win me. I tell you, it's a mighty good thing you got your brains to depend on. I'm all right the other side of Council Bluffs, but I'm a tenderfoot."

here, sure, where everybody's tryin' to get the best of you. You see, out there everybody tries to make the best of it. I told that to one of the smarties last night. But you'll pull them in their place all right. You know both ends of the game and the middle. We certainly got a right to be proud of you, don't we? I liked his propo- sitions himself—but, well, I'd just like to have him see the nerve you've showed, that's all."

Uncle Peter's professions of confidence were unfeigned, and Percival took them at face value in his judgment from them daily.
Nevertheless, as the weeks passed, and the mysterious insiders succeeded in their design of keeping the stock from rising, he began to feel a touch of anxiety. More, indeed, than he was to communicate to Uncle Peter, without confessing outright that he had lost faith in himself. That he was unable to do, even if it were true, which he doubted. The Bines fortune was now hanging, as to all but some of the western properties, on the turning of the three stocks. Yet the old man's confidence in the young man's acumen was invulnerable. No shaft that Percival was able to fashion had point enough to pierce it. And he had not to batter it down, for he still had the gambler's luck in his lock.

"You got your father's head in business matters," was Uncle Peter's in- variable response to any suggestion of failure. "I know that much—spite of what all these gossips say—and that's the only way I want to know. And of course you can't ever be no-Shepherd 'less you take your share of chances. Only don't ask my advice. You're master of the game, and we're all layin' right much down our own ones—that's all right. And for several weeks had bought only on margins."

"There was one rule in poker your pa had," said Uncle Peter. "If a hand is worth calling on, it's worth raising on. He just never would call. If he didn't think a hand was worth raisin' he'd punch it in with the discards, and wait for another deal. I don't know much about the game, but he said it was a sound rule, and if it is sound in poker, why it's got to be sound in this game. That's all I can tell you. You know what you hold, and if 'tain't a hand to lay down, it must be a hand to raise on. Of course, if you'd been bragging and ignorant in your first call—well, you'd made a fool of yourself at the start—but shuck! you're the son of Daniel J. Bines, ain't you?"

The rule and the clever provocation had taken effect.
"I'll raise as long as I have a chip left, Uncle Peter. Why, only to-day I had a tip that came straight from Shepherd, though he never dreamed it would reach me. That Piffle Cable bill is going to be rushed through at this session of congress, sure, and that means even increased demand to send Consolidated back where it was. And then, when it comes out that the public credit reorganizing Con- solidated began to conflict very sharply. Percival heard them all hungrily, disregarding those that did not con- firm his own opinions. He called them irresponsible newspaper gossip, or believed them to be inspired by the clique for its own ends."

He studied the history of copper until he knew all its ups and downs since the great electrical development began in 1887. When Peter, the bro- ker he traded most heavily with, suggested that the Consolidated company was skating on thin ice, that it might, indeed, be going through the same ex- perience that shattered the famous Secretary corner a dozen years before, Percival pointed out unerringly the vital differences in the circumstances. The Consolidated had reduced the pro- duction of its controlled mines, and the price was bound to be maintained. When his adviser suggested that the companies not in the combine might out the price, he brought up the very lively rumors of a "gentlemen's agree- ment" with the "non-combine" pro- ducers.

"Of course, there's Calumet and Hecla. I know that couldn't be gunned into the combination. They could pay dividends with copper ore, and a pound. But the other independents know which side of their stock is spread with dividends, all right."

When it was further suggested that the Rio Tinto mines had sold ahead for a year with the result that Euro- pean imports from the United States had fallen off, and that the Consoli- dated could not go on forever holding up the price, Percival said nothing.

The answer to that was the secret negoti- ing for control of the Euro- pean import, which would make the Consolidated master of the copper world. Instead of disclosing this, he pretended craftily to be discouraged by the lack of a generally hopeful outlook in all lines. Western Trolley, to might be overcapitalized, and Union Cordage might also be in the hands of a practical clique; but the demand for trolley cars was increasing every day, and cordage products were not going out of fashion by any means.

"You see," he said to his adviser, "even what the most conservative man in the stock says in this after- noon's paper. That copper must neces- sarily break badly, and the whole boom collapse I do not believe. There is enough propensity to maintain a strong demand for the metal through another year at least. As to Western Trolley and Union Cordage, the two other stocks about which doubt is now being so widely expressed in the market, I am persuaded that they both do to rise, not seasonally, but at a healthy upward rate that makes them sound investments!"

"There," said Percival, "there's the judgment of a man that knows the market. I am persuaded that they both do to rise, not seasonally, but at a healthy upward rate that makes them sound investments!"

"Well, I know some one who has a sleeve with something up it, that's all." By the third week in April, it was believed that his holdings of Consoli- dated were the largest in the street, excepting those of the Federal Oil people. Uncle Peter was delighted by the magnitude of his operations, and by his newly formed habits of indus- try.

"I'll be the makings of the boy," he said to Mrs. Bines in her son's presence. "Not that I care so much my- self about all the millions he'll pile up, but it gives him a business training, and takes him out of the pinhead class. I bet Shepherd himself will be takin' off his silk hat to your son, just as soon as he's made this turn in copper—he has carried off Dan J.'s lot to hang on—and I think he has."

"They needn't wait another day for me," Percival told him later. "The family treasury is about all in now, except some smothered savings and the hair watch chain Grandpa Cummings had. Of course I'm holding what I promised for Burman. But that rise can't hold off much longer, and the only way to get out of it is to sell. I've got a few blocks of the stock I bought outright, and buy on margins, so's to get bigger action."

"My! My! you just do fairly dazle me," exclaimed the old man, deli- ciously. "Oh, I guess your pa wouldn't be at all proud of you if he could see it. I tell you, this family's all right while you keep busy."

"Well, I'm not hearty," my chest out. "I said the young man with be- coming modesty, "but I don't mind telling you it will be the biggest thing ever pulled off down there by any one man."

"That's the true western spirit," de- clared Uncle Peter, beside himself with enthusiasm. "We do things big when we bother 'em at all. We ain't afraid of no pokers like Shepherd, with his little end and five dollar bets. Oh, I'd just bet you'd 'em callin' you hard names down at that Wall Street—Napoleon of Finance and Copper King and all like that—in about 30 days!"

He accepted Percival's invitation to go down to the street with him. They stopped for a moment in the visitors' gallery of the stock exchange and looked down into the mob of writhing, disheveled, about- faced men, and out the street, where swirled upon itself, while above his muddy depths surged a froth of hands in frenzied excitement. The frantic movement and din of shrieks disturbed Uncle Peter.

"Faro is such a lot quieter game," was his comment "no much more calm and restful. What a pity, now, 'tain't a Christian!"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Blackman's Drill Story.

The late Gen. Wilmon W. Black- man once told how he had overheard a corporal drilling his squad in this fashion:
"Now, then, No. 7, the corporal said, 'we'll make another start, that is, if you've quite finished feeling if your back hair happens to be on standing in the morning.' He was talking to—third man from the left on front rank. I haven't the pleasure of knowin' your name, but I expect to be writin' it down for an hour's extra work pretty soon. Now, then, look out to your front. Squad, 'tuck! Left dress! Turn your eyes to the left—without squintin' like Chinese dummies, if you can. Stand up to the rank and file, the soldiers, not like a measly row of lop-sided, spindleshanked, cockney shopboys! Stick your chests out and put your stummocks somewhere out of sight altogether. There's 'arf of you with 'fingers like bags of potatoes. Strike me crimson if I ever saw such a mob! Hi! you, in the center—the ginger-headed man, I mean—don't grin like that, for 'tain't no perishing beauty in that grin, not by no manner of means."

The Will to Die.

Two or three years ago, in a Lan- cashire town, a lady was in pro- gress, to the proprietor of a steam roundabout there came a shopkeeper whose life was lying supinely at the point of death. "Thou shalt stop stop on the road," he said. "Thou shalt stop, I tell thee, my misseus can't dee," was the reply—a dialogue for which the writer can vouch. A clergyman had placed the lady on a stretcher in the street. Visiting a sick parishioner, he was told by the doctor that the sickroom was full of mourners, assuring the woman that she was about to die. And the doctor, though organically there was not the least reason why she should. The clergyman entered the room and cleared out the doleful noise. "You're mistaken, my dear," he said. "What! Am I not dying, parson? Then, thank God, I won't. That woman was well in next to no time, and round at the vicarage thanking its master for hav- ing saved her life.—St. James's Gazette.

MIGHT WELL TAKE WARNING

Person or Persons Defacing Signs Put up by Municipalities Subject to Heavy Penalties.

Perhaps the person, youth or adult, who marred one of the sign posts recently placed at the village limits on all highways by the village council, did not know that such an act is an offense punishable by law. These notices regulating the speed for automobiles are necessary for public safety and are seen in all communities and were not put up for hitching posts or targets. They may prevent accidents even if faced incorrectly. They should face an incoming vehicle whereas now they face the road and might not be noticed by passerby. The law reads:

"For destroying or defacing any guide-board, post or mile-stone, or any notice or direction put up on any bridge or otherwise by or with the authority of the commissioners, the offender shall forfeit a sum not less than three dollars nor more than fifty dollars."

Trouble For Society Folks.

It is said that trouble is in sight for society folks who promoted the Libertyville field day last Saturday. A warrant was issued Tuesday against James Brown of Libertyville, charged with selling liquor at the fair. State's Attorney L. P. Hanna at Waukegan will prosecute the case on complaint of Harry Stripe of Waukegan and Horace Wells of Ivanhoe. These two men secured the evidence, and, while their first onslaught is made against the man who actually sold it they propose, if they succeed in convicting him, to take steps against the promoters of the event.

The complainants acted independently of the Lake County Law and Order league, which made no investigation at the meet Saturday.

"The reform league," said a Waukegan official to-day, "is composed of some of the wealthiest men of Lake Forest, who happen to be interested in making the meet of Saturday a success and who, accordingly, saw it to their advantage to overlook what might take place at that time."
