The railway facilities of Western Canada have been taxed to the uttermost in recent years to transfer the surplus grain crop to the eastern markets and the seaboard. The large laftux of settlers and the additional area put under crop have added largely to the grain product, and notwithstanding the increased railway facilities and the seaboard of the public, and not the disposal of the public, and not transportation has proved to be a serious one.

It will, therefore, be good news to everyone interested in Western Canada to know that an authoritative statement has been given out by C. M.
