President Buchanan had the misfortune to be in a position which roquired qualities which he did not posses, yet he had rime fine traits. It has recently been disclosed that in 1259 a railroad company sent him a pass over its lines. He returned it with the statement that it had been the practice of his life to pay, his fare because he was opposed to the whole system of granting privtieges to persons not connected with the railroads. It has taken more than 4 years for this feeling to become strong enough to induce congress to prohibit the insuing of passes on interstate railroads.

Even in some parts of thickty settled New England, offers of $2.75 a day have failed to procure seough men to harvest the hay crop. Pathers whose some feel that they are in need of new tennis rackets, golf clubs or "home gymnastum" apparatus, says Youth's Companion, should paste this bit of information in the sons' hats.

Scott, and then to the secretary of war and the president. War department officials do not believe, however, that Col. Howaze went that the superintendent of the scademy without reference to the department.
