

BARRINGTON REVIEW.

VOL. 23. NO. 11.

BARRINGTON, ILLINOIS, FRIDAY, MAY 24, 1907

$1.50 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.

JUST 130 YEARS AGO

The 14th of June is the 130th Anniversary of the Birth of the Stars and Stripes.

Flag of the free hearts hope and home,
The stars have all the qualities given,
The stars have all the qualities given,
And all thy hues were born in heaven,
Ever float that standard sheet,
Where hearts beat for the best cause,
With freedom's banner streaming out,
And freedom's banner streaming out.

Proclamation issued by W. L. Goss, national patriotic instructor of the G. A. R.

"Friday, the 14th of June, will be the one hundred thirtieth anniversary of the birth of the flag of the United States. The flag was designed for a nation of thirteen colonies, stretched like a belt along the Atlantic coast, made up of less than three million people without common traditions or language; drawn together only by common danger from savages within and opposition without, which hardened their exterior and liberties. That flag has now wave over a great land, extending from the Gulf of Mexico to the Lakes from the Atlantic to beyond the Pacific sea, and inhabited by nearly thirty millions of people, who speak a common language."

Our flag is now, in form, the oldest of civilized nations. The resolution in Congress for the adoption of the Stars and Stripes, on June 14, 1777, was as follows: "Resolved, That the flag of the United States be thirteen stripes, alternately red and white, that the Union be thirteen stars, white in blue field, representing a new constellation." The design of the flag is credited to George Washington, and in part was derived from his family crest as well as the former's of McVicker's theories. That scene was the greatest to its day, but the battle in "The Round Up" is even more terrific and blood-curdling. Here the contestants are fierce, crafty, adroits and bloodthirsty savages, a band of marauding Apache Indians on foot, and a troop of U. S. Cavalry on the other. The battle is fought from the rocky pass leading into the Valley of Desolation, and is thrilling in the extreme.

Special Features Decoration Day.

"The Round Up" is still the sensation of Chicago although most of the "summer shows" have got into place now. The melodrama has all the qualities that delight audiences. Its comedy is clean, crisp and delicious; its pathos is the sort which brings the lump into your throat and tears into your eyes without harrowing the emotions too strongly, and the thrills, and the play is full of them are of the sort that make you sit on the edge of your chair and hold your breath. They perhaps more than any other of its drawing features have made the melodrama the greatest success it has ever been.

Special features are to be added to the performances Decoration Day, Thursday, May 30; matines and night. The program cards have been especially designed for the day and contain the words of the national anthem as well as certain information concerning the play. At the close of the famous third act, the battle in the canyon, the soldiers will line up in front of the stage and they with the audience will sing "America," the inspiring words and music of which the classic and national song will ring true to the traditions of the day. The heroic American character of the play makes it an ideal one for national soldiers.

The canvas battle scene is the most splendid representation of war that has ever been staged in America. It surpasses in realism the wonderful battle of Jacob Lin's "Sheephead," the revival of which during the Spanish-American war began his tenancy of McVicker's theories. That scene was the greatest to its day, but the battle in "The Round Up" is even more terrific and blood-curdling. Here the contestants are fierce, crafty, adroits and bloodthirsty savages, a band of marauding Apache Indians on foot, and a troop of U. S. Cavalry on the other. The battle is fought from the rocky pass leading into the Valley of Desolation, and is thrilling in the extreme.

Show Under Difficulties.

The show Wednesday evening was given under such circumstances that no fair judgment of the play can be arrived at. The ground, rain-soaked through the tent, gave out the evening, and the delay in arrival of part of the properties all disengaged the performers. Given under more favorable conditions the show would have many good features. The people running in are above the ordinary class who travel with small shows, and are educated people of more refinement than generally are in the business. The circus has only been on the road one week and has been hindered from getting fairly started by bad weather. Gleske and Wallace Hill were engaged for the evening. Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Fitter and Mr. and Mrs. LaFosse are the owners of the show and Barrington will take a little added interest in knowing that Miss Grace Young, daughter of William Young, who left Barrington a few years ago to enter theatrical and circus life, received her training from these people and traveled with them in stage companies and Ringling Bros. circus until lately. She is now acting in a Chicago musical hall.

Struck By Engine.

Saturday night about eleven o'clock an accident occurred in the North Western yards near the Bowman Dairy Company's plant which cost the life of Frank Boylan, Janesville, Wisconsin. Boylan was a brakeman on a freight train which was switching in the yards and while adjusting a switch was struck by an engine which was backing up and hidden from his view as it approached him. One leg was badly crushed and the other broken in several places. The company's physician sent him to the Chicago hospital, but he did not survive necessary operations and died between seven and eight o'clock Sunday morning.

"I have only contempt for a woman who tries to hold a man when he wishes to go," said Anita, with quiet but energetic bitterness. "Besides—" she hesitated an instant before going on. "Gladys deserved her fate. She doesn't really care for him. She's only jealous of him. She never did love him."

"How do you know?" said I sharply, trying to persuade myself it was not an ugly suspicion in me that lifted its head and shot out that question.

"Because he never loved her," she replied. "The feeling a woman has for a man is a man for her without any response. I don't know if it's worth the name of love. It's a sort of baffled covetousness. Love means generosity, not greediness." Then— "Why do you not ask me whether what she said is true?"

The change in her tone with the last sentence, the strange, ominous note in it, startled me.

"Because," replied I, "as I said to her, I have no right to interfere. It would be to insult her. If you were riding with him, it was an accident." As if my rude repulse of her overtures and my keeping away from her ever since would not have justified her in almost anything.

She flushed the dark red of shame, but her gaze held steady and unfinching upon mine. "It was not altogether by accident," she said. "And I think she means to kill him."

When a man admits and respects a woman's rights where he is himself concerned, he either is no longer interested in her or has begun to love her so well that he can control the savage and selfish instincts of passion. If Mowbray Langdon had been there I might have killed them both; but he was not there, and she, facing me without fear, was not the woman to be suspected of the stealthy and traitorous.

"It was he that you meant when you warned me you cared for another man?" said I, so quietly that I wondered at myself, wondering what had become of the "Black Matt" who had used his fists almost as much as his brains in fighting his way up.

"Yes," she said, her head down now.

A long pause.

"You wish to be free?" I asked, and my thoughts have been gentle.

"I wish to free you," she replied slowly and deliberately.

There was a long silence. Then I said: "I must think it all out. I once told you how I felt about these matters. I've greatly changed my mind since our talk that night in the Willoughby. But my prejudices are still with me. Perhaps you will not be surprised at that—whose prejudices have cost us both dear."

I thought she was going to speak. Instead she turned away, so that I could no longer see her face.

"Our marriage was a miserable mistake. I went on, struggling to be just and judicial, and to seem calm. "I admit it now. Fortunately, we are both still young—you very young. Mistakes in youth are never fatal. But, Anita, do not blunder out of one mistake into another. You are no longer a child; you are a woman. I mind you. You will be careful not to let judgments formed of him long ago decide you for him as they decided you against me."

"I wish to be free," she said, each word coming with an effort, "as much on your account as on my own." Then, and it seemed to me merely a truly feminine attempt to shirk responsibility, she added, "I am glad my going will be a relief to you."

"I wish to be free," I confessed. "Our situation has become intolerable." I had reached my limit of self-control. I put out my hand. "Good-bye," I said.

If she had wept it might have modified my conviction that everything was at an end between us. But she did not weep. "Can you ever forgive me?" she asked.

"Let me be free of forgiveness," said I. And I fear my voice and manner were rough, as I strove not to break down. "Let's try to forget." And I touched her hand and hastened away.

When two human beings set out to misunderstand each other, how fast and far they go! How shut-in we are from each other, with only halting means of communication that break down under the slightest strain!

As I was leaving the house next morning, I gave Sanders this note for her.

"I have gone to live at the downtown hotel. When you have decided what course to take, let me know. If my 'rights' ever had any substance, they have starved away to such weak things that they collapse even as I try to set them up. I hope your freedom will give you happiness and me peace."

"You are ill, sir?" asked my old servant, my old friend, as he took the note.

"Stay with her, Sanders, as long as she wishes," said I, ignoring his question. "Then come to me."

His look made me shake hands with him. As I did it, we both remembered the last time we had shaken hands—when he had the roses for my home-coming with my bride. It seemed to me I could smell those roses.

XXXI. LANGDON COMES TO THE SURFACE.

I shall not estimate the vast sum it cost the Roe buck-Langdon clique to maintain the prices of National Coal. I shall give you the probability that the public will buy in earnest in the third week of my campaign. Melville was so deeply involved that he had to let the two others take the whole burden upon themselves.

In the fourth week, Langdon came to me.

The interval between his card and himself gave me a chance to recover from my bewilderment. When he entered he found me busy writing. Though I had never myself written so many pages before I ventured to look at him. There he stood, probably as handsome, as fascinating as he was the last summer.

"What are your terms, Blacklock?" he said, leaning on an old friend, said he, trying to carry off his frankness for a mere smile.

I should have thought he would cut his throat and jump off the Battery wall before he would get on his knees for me.

"Well, you've done it," said Joe, coming with the news that Thorley, of the Discount and Deposit bank, had been appointed receiver.

"I've made a beginning," replied I.

I had decided to concentrate upon Roe buck, because he was the richest and most powerful of "The Seven."

For, in my pictures of the three main phases of "Finance" the industrial, the financial, and the political, Roe buck, as arch plotter in every kind of respectable skullduggery, was necessarily in the foreground.

My original intention was to demolish the Power Trust—or, at least, to compel him to buy back all of its stock which he had worked off on the public. I had collected many interesting facts about it, facts typical of the conditions that "Finance" has established in so many of our industries.

For instance, I was prepared to show that the actual earnings of the Power Trust was two and half times what its reports to stockholders alleged; that the concealed profits were diverted into the pockets of Roe buck, his sons, 11 other relatives and four of "The Seven," the lion's share going, of course, to the lion. Like almost all the great industrial enterprises too strong for the law and too powerful for the supervision of their stockholders, the Power Trust used its revenues to disburse them chiefly in salaries and commissions and rake-offs on contracts to favorites. I had proof that in one year it had "written off" 12 millions of profit and loss, 10 millions of which had found its way to Roe buck's pocket.

I had no choice. I must turn aside from Roe buck. I must first show that, while he was a scoundrel, he was not that at that time, it had been known, and would be unbound again as soon as Langdon had gathered in a sufficient number of lambs to make a battue worth the while of a man dealing in nothing less than seven figures. I proceeded to do so.

The market yielded slowly. Under my first day's attack Textile preferred to sell six points. Textile common three. While I was in the midst of dictating my second to the second day's attack, I suddenly came in a full tilt and found across my way this announcement: "Isn't it strange that Langdon, after humiliating himself to you, should make this bold challenge? It's a trap!"

I hear no shouts as the soldiers come
To the mellow throb of the distant drum.

They come—A fragment of what they were;
The ranks are scattering year by year,
For one by one with his golden air
Has answered the summons of Death with "Here!"

I see the others, who still stand and falter,
The blue, brown shadowy gray as in years ago—
Their sabers fell into shadowy rust.

O, this is the vision that comes to me;
I watch them trudging down the street.
The ready soldiers that used to be.
With their heads down, to the touch of their feet;
I see them swinging along the way
With brave Old Glory above them all;

And all the lines are complete to-day—
Made so by the mystical trumpet call.

And quick and eager, erect and bold,
They march triumphantly through my dream—
The bugle's shrill, the drum's雄伟的鼓声，
With flags above them, with swords aye-ay.
The cannons rumble their warning note,
The muskets blaze on the battle's marge,

And out of the bugle's brazen throat
There shrills the terrible cry of "Charge!"

But hold! The mist that comes to my eyes
Now lifts, and what I see is cloud and smoke,
And the redoubt fades, as across the skies
The silent arm of the wind is thrown.
And gray, and grizzled, and hilt, and lame—
They falter to the rounded graves

That glow to-day in the grace of fame
Beneath the sombre boughs of the banyan tree.

There is a shadow of what they were;
The ranks are vanishing year by year,
For one by one with his gallant air
Has answered the summons of Death with "Here!"

And so they waver and falter on.

Their blue made gray as in years ago—
The fading host that in years ago
Bore forth the grail of the nation's trust.

And into the shadows march they all
To the sign of a far-off trumpet call.

STILL LIVE FOR US

Funeral March for Heroic Dead Has Meaning Beyond Mere Honor to the Fallen.

EVERY year, in the full tide of spring, at the height of the symphony of flowers and love and life, there comes a solemn pause, and through the silence the nation hears the lonely pipe of death.

Year after year, lovers wandering under the apple boughs and through the clover are surprised with sad news as they see black-veiled figures strolling through the morning to a soldier's grave.

Year by year the comrades of the dead follow, with public honor, procession and commemorative flags and funeral march—tribute from us who have inherited a nation's glory to the heroes who gave it.

As surely as this day comes round we are in the presence of the dead. But the feelings of the relatives of this day are sad; some of them are triumphant, even joyful.

We seem to hear the funeral march become a pean. Our heroic dead still live for us, and bid us think of life, not death—of life to which in their youth they lent the passion and glory of the spring.

Memorial day may and ought to have a meaning beyond mere honor to the dead. It celebrates the national re-birth, from year to year, a national spirit of enthusiasm and faith. It embodies in the most impressive form our belief that to act with enthusiasm and faith is the condition of acting greatly. To fight out a war men must believe something and want something with all their might. So must they to carry out anything else to an end worth reaching.

Peace calls for its patriotic devotion, no less than war. And, stripped of the direct associations which call for national consent, we pause to become conscious of our national honor and to rejoice in it, to recall what our country has done and is doing for us, and to ask ourselves what we can do for our country in return.

The great French soldier, de Latour d'Avuergne, was the hero of many battles, but remained by his own choice in the ranks. Napoleon gave him a sword and the orders: "The French are your country." When he was killed the emperor ordered that his heart should be entrusted to his regiment—that his name should be called at every roll call and that his next comrade should answer, "Dead upon the field of honor!" In the keeping of this nation are the hearts of many heroes; we treasure them in consecrated ground, and when their names are called we answer in flowers, "Dead upon the field of honor."

As surely as this day comes round we are in the presence of the dead. But the feelings of the relatives of this day are sad; some of them are triumphant, even joyful.

We seem to hear the funeral march become a pean. Our heroic dead still live for us, and bid us think of life, not death—of life to which in their youth they lent the passion and glory of the spring.

IN LABOR OF LOVE

Multitudes Gather to Aid
Veterans Decorate Graves
in Beautiful Arlington Cemetery.

THE Coliseum in the national cemetery at Arlington, in which people gather annually for the exercises, is indescribably beautiful. The space is surrounded by columns, a light lattice work forming the roof. Beside the columns have been planted wisteria, roses, clematis, and other early flowering vines, while the large trees make ample shade for the multitude who come to join in the labor of love.

The thousands of ex-veterans and soldiers who have died during the 85 years since the first Decoration day, and the hundreds that have fallen since the Spanish-American war, and whose bodies have been borne across the sea to be buried in Arlington, have made this the largest city of patriotic dead on the globe. This 30th of May, like all others, will be a day of low green mounds of the extensive field covered with flowers and monuments. This will be a repetition of the annual ceremonies, with probably additional interesting features.

Alas! the column of ex-veterans does not present a long line, and the few who participate are for the most part bowed with age and increased disability which time has wrought.

The patriotic organizations, some and dairies, some veterans, and the women people have taken up the work which older hands have had to lay down. The spirit of gratitude and devotion to the memory of the country's defenders inspires the whole nation to-day as it did in 1865.

DIED IN PRISON PENS

Record of Those Who Passed Away in Military Confine-ments Is an Appalling One.

The largest confederate prison was at Andersonville, Ga., where 45,613 union soldiers were imprisoned. The prison had its maximum number on August 8, 1864, when the rolls showed the presence of 33,114. Death claimed 13,812, or 28 per cent. of the entire number. Every day the death toll averaged 20. The greatest number of deaths occurred on August 22, 1864, when 127 yielded up their lives. The largest military prison in the north was at Elmira where 11,916 prisoners were confined in an open pen or stockade. The death list reached 2,994, about 25 per cent. In March, 1865, the greatest mortality occurred—495, or 16.5 per cent. of all the deaths. All except 10 of the dead were buried in a single mass, the earth being piled up and planted with wheat, and not another summer nor winter showed a sign of where 3,000 hapless confederates were laid away.

The members of the Woman's Relief Corps make a great number of Memorial day cards, and pitiful it is that there are so many new graves to be decorated each year.

A Compliment.

"Of course," said Miss Cluney, "Mr. Kidder's language is not always elegant, but he can be very complimentary in his rough way." "Yes," asked Miss Wiss, "Yes. He says I'm a bird." "Ugh! So is an ostrich."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the disease. The only way to cure deafness, and that by constitutional means, is to have the disease removed from the body. When this is done, there is a remarkable cure or improvement in the deafness. This is the result of the recent, and unless the inflammation can be taken away, the deafness will not be cured. Hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are incurable, and the only hope is to have an improved condition of the nerves surfaces.

Slamless Object to Walking.
The Siamese, above all nations in the world, hate to walk, and the mode of progression is typified by a Siamese. The Siamese can walk by any means ride. A Venetian gondolier will walk sometimes; even a Hollander will ride on his rough cart; but a Bangkok man—not if he can help it. His family boat for him.—Windsor Magazine.

ITCHING RASH 18 YEARS.

Girl's Rash Spread and Grew Worse
Under Specialist's Care—Perfect
Cure by Cuticura Remedies.

"When my daughter was a baby she had a breaking out behind the ears. The doctor said that she would outgrow it, and it did get somewhat better until she was about fifteen years old, and after that it became worse, and that would drive it away. She was always applying something in the way of salves. It troubled her behind the knees, opposite the elbows, back of the neck and ears, under the chin, and then it got on the face. That was about three years ago. She took treatment with a specialist and seemed to get worse all the time. We were then advised to try the Cuticura Remedies, and now I don't see any breaking out. M. Curley, 1119 Sixteenth St., Bay City, Mich., May 20, 1907."

"Gumming" Season Over.

Like returning miners from the Klondike, the "gummers," amateur and professional, are coming out of the Maine woods with their golden grains, say the Boston Globe. Spruce gum has hardly reached the "weight in gold" price, but the lower the better. "Cure" gum, which is the best, is real salve, must pay at the rate of $2.40 a pound for it, and that in Bangor. Me., a city supposed to be the Dawson City of the gum regions.

Free Medical Advice.

A well known London physician at a dinner party one evening was much worried by one who was seeing grammar school children. "Do you know," said his questioner, "I know a man who suffers so terribly with his digestion that at times he can do nothing but howl with pain. What would you do in that case?"

"Well, I suppose," responded the medical man, "I should howl with pain, too."

Seoul and its inmates.

A recent estimate of the population of Seoul gives the total at 159,205. In every ward but the north one the number of males exceeds that of females, but in that part of the city the number of males is given as 17,000, while the females are 90,000. This would be hard to explain on any ordinary theory of population. Seoul has no quarter set aside for the exclusive residence of females.—Korea Daily News.

A grocer has excellent opportunity to know the effects of special foods on his customers. A Cleveland grocer has a long list of customers that have been helped in health by means of coffee and sailing. Put coffee on the menu. "Particularly in the morning I was so irritable and upset that I could hardly wait until the coffee was served, and then I had no appetite for breakfast and did not feel like attending to my store duties."

The HOLSMAN Automobile

PERFECT in CONSTRUCTION, CHEAP in PRICE and COST of OPERATING. When you see the HOLSMAN machine it will make you its friend at once for these reasons:

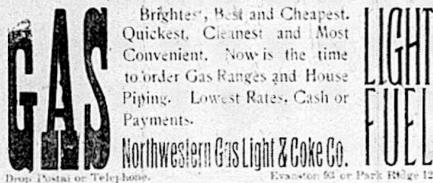

- 1. Solid tires, admitting of no punctures.
- 2. Air cooled. No water to contend with, or broken jackets which occur in frosty weather.
- 3. No live axes.
- 4. No transmission gears.
- 5. No drive gears.
- 6. No speed gears, in fact, not any gears to contend with. No clutches. The machine rides as easy as the best made carriage and is controlled by two simple hand levers. It started, guided, stopped, speeded, reversed and fully controlled by these two simple levers.

Should you have a breakdown, repairs are quickly secured. However, the chances of a breakdown are slim in a Holsman.

RIVERVIEW TO OPEN

Saturday, May 25, the Day for Opening of Chicago's Great Natural Park.

Riverview Park has undergone a transformation since last season. The new Riverview can be described only in superlatives, for it is largest in acreage and shows, it has the longest Velocipede Coaster, the longest Scenic Railroad, the longest Chutes structure and the largest Roller Skating Rink in the country. It will also produce this season the most stupendous show ever attempted in this country outside of Coney Island.

A number of the best bands have been booked for the season, which opens with Reynard and his Band in the beautiful new Band Shell among the trees.

"Big Otto and his wild animal" show is one of the season's features. There is a new "Brewery" added from the old "Pils Lager Hall" Gate, one of the spectacular successes of Coney Island.

The "Big Show" of the park this season is "The Great Train Robbery," which was the leading feature at Coney Island last season and which, owing to the unlimited space is reproduced here on a much larger scale.

The principal feature of this production is a real engine and train of regular passenger coaches. Over thirty trained horses are used in the production, and nearly one hundred and thirty people.

The very many new shows and ride devices, together with the shade and grass that has always been one of Riverview's chief charms, will make this one of the most enjoyable pleasure resorts in the country.

Advanced Vaudeville.

Elwin Stevens, the famous comedian, raconteur and dramatic star, will be headliner at the Majestic Theatre, Chicago, for the week of May 25th in a new comedy entitled "An Evening with Dickens." With the assistance of Miss Thia Marshall, Mr. Stevens will portray some of the most notable and enjoyable characters created by the great novelist, following closely the drawings originally made under the supervision of Dickens by Cruikshank, Seymour and Brown. Mr. Stevens' addition of a comedian and entertainer fulfills the expectations of an unusually brilliant and novel feature.

The brilliant women and sensational clowns, Bebe Wiggins, has attracted audiences all over the country in "The Wizard of Oz" and other noted musical comedy successes, will be the musical feature of this bill. With new songs and brilliant costumes this charming young lady is certain to contribute her full share to the enjoyment of the Majestic audiences. Jessie Coulthard, whose name has been familiar to audiences for some years, will doubtless please her numerous friends in a playlet entitled "11:40 P.M." which possesses more than the ordinary dramatic value. Miss Coulthard's experience in character comedy work has been so extensive that there is no doubt of her ability to portray characters of unusual value and create strong dramatic effects.

In the way of broad comedy, Mazur and Mazurine may be relied upon to add that element of nonsense which is sure to be relished and then by the most of us. The act is probably the most original in the entire line of comedy acrobatics and develops some of the most entertaining warm weather features that have yet been invented by an eccentric comedian.

During a former visit to the Majestic Theatre they created more laughter than any team of the kind yet seen at this house. Warren & Blanchard constitute another team of fun makers whose humor is the sort that excites the visibles without taxing the imagination. They have a bountiful supply of fresh jokes and stories and are regarded as among the most reliable fresh fun makers in vaudeville.

Linton & Lawrence in a lively sketch called "An Auto Elopement," and McWaters-Tyson company in a sketch called "Vaudville" will demonstrate how many kinds of fun a team can produce.

Niagara Falls Excursion.

The Publishing fraternity of Chicago, under the auspices of the Chicago and Suburban Publishers Association, will make a trip to Niagara Falls this summer. The Wabash Railroad has granted special rates; tickets for the trip, including a special train, with the best of service, are sold for $12. A trip to Toronto, Can., on the river, is also on the program. The trip will be made under the direction of a competent guide, who is thoroughly familiar with the great falls, and special rates on the Gorge railroad, the suspension and other conveyances, as well as the hotels at Buffalo and the Falls, have been secured.

The train will leave Chicago at midnight on Friday the 12th of July, and returning will arrive in Chicago Tuesday morning, July 15th. Everybody who desires to make the trip is welcome. Tickets and complete information can be obtained from Theo. A. Kolb, Sec., 741-742 Unity Bldg., Chicago. Telephone Central 5354.
