NEW CARE FOR INSANE

State May Take Over County Patients and Provide for Their Treatment.

Springfield, Ill., July 2.—Under the administration of Governor Deacon, the state charitable institutions have entered upon one of the greatest periods of advancement in the history of Illinois. The state, which for many years had been too heavily burdened to keep pace in its charitable service with the advancement made during the last quarter of a century by medical, architectural and engineering science, now, however, owing to the thrift and business shrewdness of Governor Deacon, a cash balance in excess of $100,000 has been piled up in the state treasury, thus providing means for many improvements. A part of this money will be used to improve the service in the charitable institutions, to erect new buildings, chiefly of the hospital type, and to begin a thorough rehabilitation of existing buildings and equipment.

Soing, in a speech improving the charitable service, Governor Deacon, when he appointed the present board of charities, with Dr. Frank Billings as president, asked the board to work out plans ultimately to make the seventeen charitable institutions of Illinois the equal of any like institutions anywhere and to indicate what new institutions were needed to lift the service in Illinois to the level of that of the most progressive American states. The board worked out such plans. They were submitted to the general assembly. The members of the legislature recognized practically every policy advanced by the governor and the state board of charities and, so far as they felt the finance of the state would permit, made appropriations of money to take the first steps in carrying out the program and advancement as submitted to them.

Complete State Care of Insane.
Perhaps the greatest single piece of legislation was the passage of the bill for complete state care of the insane, which was introduced by the great Senator T. C. Tracy in the state of Illinois at the time of the Dooly-Douglas bill. The state law in Illinois is the same as in the outside New York and Massachusetts. While the new act does not carry appropriations, it provides the machinery for gradually removing to curative state hospitals all insane in county almshouses, the unsatisfactory conditions in some of which were published by the state board of charities in a recent report. The new law, in the case of the insane, the ultimate act of the state, not as a criticism of counties, but because the larger resources of the state are necessary to properly handle the great, growing problem of insanity. It also provides, through a system of pay patients, if thought best, to enforce that provision, for an hour, which set up in the new law. This help would materially in supporting the hospitals for the insane and, to that extent, would reduce the demand upon the taxpayer.

Bartonsville a Curative Hospital.
This new law, however, changes the policy of the state towards the chronic insane. The large institutions at Bartonsville was established to care for the chronic insane of the state, and, in that it is successful, by a remarkable way, from the other state hospitals, into almshouses into Bartonsville. A careful study of the conditions, not only in Illinois, but in other states, showed that it was impossible ever to collect all of the chronic insane of Illinois on the restricted hilltop of Bartonsville. There are 2,000 chronic insane there now, but there are other scattered chronic insane in Illinois in public institutions today. Furthermore, the board of charities recognises it is respondent to consider any insane person as beyond the pale of cure—to be legal and officially pronounced "incurable" as the old law did. The new law for the complete state care changes the Bartonsville institution from a place for the care of the "incurable insane" into a private district hospital like Kankakee, Jacksonville and the others. It will be provided with every possible curative resource. Persons will be received there both in acute and chronic conditions of insanity. By a separate act, not originally associated with the state care act, but fitting nicely in with it, this institution is to be known as the "Illinois General Hospital for the Insane," thus further emphasising, that most repugnant name "incurable insane". The board of charities is at work now redistricting the state so that Bartonsville may begin with a district of its own, gradually increasing in size as the number of vacant beds warrant, or people are discharged, cured or pass beyond the pale of state care. The board has written to send back to other districts patients now at Bartonsville whose home residence is not in the new Bartonville district, but, in the future, to take only those at Bartonsville who reside in the district assigned to that institution. In this way it will gradually be brought about that all chronic patients will be within easy visiting distance of their home so that the painful separation from relatives for long periods will be a thing of the past so far as the state service is concerned and frequent visits can be made at comparatively small expense.

Education of Institution Physicians.
The legislature provided for a vocational institution of instruction to be established in the state. This will be under the direction of a man who has made a successful study of mental and nervous diseases and who is familiar with the scientific laboratory work used by the foremost men in the world in the study and treatment of insanity. To this institution the physicians of the other state hospitals will be sent for instruction. Each institution will be sent one man with a scientific laboratory.

All these creature results are obtained by a skilled operator without the least harmful effect, that will not only remove depression, stupor, weakness, nervousness or loss of appetite, which are so prone to follow drug treatment and mechanical restraint. In fact, water treatment, and an adequate nursing staff, will render needless the use of mortifying and humiliating douches and chains and of stupefying drugs. These roles of bartonism are rather than assist nature to effect a cure.

Training schools for nurses and attendants have been established to educate the persons who come in close contact with the insane so that their service will be more intelligent and their work more kind. In the same way the buildings to be erected at the hospitals for the insane are as stated in the foregoing, of a more hospital character for the most difficult treatment of acute and hopeless insanity and for the best treatment of those patients who fall sick with ordinary physical diseases like typhoid fever and pneumonia.

Provision for Insane Consumers.

Consumptives are separated from other patients, the idea being to keep them from infecting others and to give them the most comfortable and rational chance for a cure, which is life in the open air and food which is simple and nourishing. Probably the most perfectly arranged and managed tent colony for consumptives in America and perhaps in the world is located on the hill at Bartonsville.

For the feeble-minded it has been determined to provide at Lincoln and to increase the manual training. The presence of feeble-mindedness against intellectual work. These unfortunate also are provided with a new gymnasium which is very much needed. Many physical improvements are being made at this institution.

The Township School Convention of the Illinois State S. A. Association, District of Lake County, will be held at Lake Zurich in the St. Peter Evangelical church on Sunday, July 14th at 2 p.m. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

A Minister's Hair Cut.

Chicago Papers have this week published articles concerning the hair of ministers of different denominations on account of the subject being brought up by the Rev. Dr. Ritchell of the M. E. Church of Australia that a minister's sec can be told by the cut of his hair. Various preachers were asked for their opinions by reporters and agree that you can tell a Baptist pastor by his nice, clean hair cut, a Methodist by his long hair and a Presby by far by his resemblance to any business man, a priest by his short hair and smooth face. Rev. Louis Cain of the Edgewater Presbyterian church says he believes preachers have outgrown any distinctive styles of hair cutting their hair and that the personal looks of the man is considered before his religion; long hair and whiskers were formerly affected by ministers, like the patriarchs of old, but nowadays the custom of men of good taste is adopted, well trimmed hair and either smooth faces or small trimmed mustaches.

The weather has been very unsettled this week. There has been several "showers" at which Miss Blanche Schleider was guest of honor. Mrs. Huse gave a quilting party at her home; Mrs. Alma Smith, a "kitchen shower" at Desplaines and Mrs. T. C. Catlow, a "novelty shower" in Evanston.

Niagara Falls Excursion.

The Publishing fraternity of Chicago, under the auspices of the Chicago and Suburban Publishers Association, made a trip to Niagara Falls this summer. The Wahbas Publishing has granted special rates; tickets for the trip, including a special train, with the best of service, are sold for $12. trip to Toronto, Can., on the river boat on the program. The trip will be made under the direction of a competent guide, who is thoroughly familiar with the great falls, and special rates on the Gorge railroad, the steamers and other conveyances, as well as the hotels at Buffalo and the Falls, have been secured. The train will leave Chicago at midnight on Friday the 12th of July, and returning will arrive in Chicago Tuesday morning, July 15th. Everybody who desires to make the trip is welcome. The Charming Woman is not necessarily one of perfect form and features. Many a plain woman who could not serve as an artist's model, possesses those rare qualities that all the world admires: neatness, clear eyes, clean smooth skin and that sprightly line of speech and action that accompany good health. A physically weak woman is never attractive, not even to herself. Electric Bitters restore weak women give strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth, velvety skin, beautiful complexion. Notice is hereby given that all thistles on the farms of Cuba township must be cut. BERNARD HACKER—Thistle Commissioner.

Lost His Name.

One may, it seems, lose one's wits without altogether losing one's wit. Henri Mellhae, a French dramatic author who always had some clever thing to say, was troubled in his last days by a sad loss of memory. One day he exclaimed to a friend who called:

"Hurr, I've got my name back! You know 'twas forgotten."

"Why, nobody forgot your name"—"Tis, I did, and I should say that was quite enough!"

This was Mellhae's last joke. He died within a few days.

Long Live the King!

is the popular cry throughout European countries; while in America, the cry of the present day is "Long live Dr. King's New Discovery King of Throat and Lung Remedies!" of which Mrs. Julia Paine, Truro, Mass., says: "It never fails to bring immediate relief and to quickly cure a cough or cold." Mrs. Paine's opinion is shared by a majority of the inhabitants of this country. New Discovery cures weak lungs and sore throats after all other remedies have failed; and for coughs and colds it's the only cure. Guaranteed by Barrington Pharmacy. 50c and $1.00 Trial bottle free.

Good Music and Bad.

What is not always understood by the enthusiasts who listen and do not judge is that nothing in music is good because it is old, or de mode because it is old, or original because it is modern, not a note in the "Zauber Seite" has been drowned by the thousands of voices in the "Ring," and if any one tells me, as people will tell me, to do that, he only serves me music for Wagner, I have a strong suspicion that he does not care for music at all. Arthur Symons in London Saturday Review.

What is a Drop?
In medicine a drop is a "gutta," or a "minim." The words mean the same that is, one-sixteenths of a fluid dram. That is, one fluid dram divided into sixteen drops make one fluid dram; eight fluid drams make one fluid ounce; sixteen fluid ounces make one pint; two pints make one quart; four quarts make one gallon. Forty-five drops of water, or a common teaspoonful, make about one fluid ounce; a wineglassful about one fluid ounce; a wineglassful and a teaspoonful is about four fluid ounces, but my brethren in suffering know many different sizes of teaspoons. Wineglasses and teacups are there in this world of case? And as for drops, no two liquids if dropped from a bottle in the old fashioned way (holding the end of the dropper with the mouth) will drop drops of the same size—New York Press.

Women's Right.

Every housewife has a right to make a telephone in her home. It eases the drudgery of housework, it lessens the loneliness of a long, weary day. It is a constant guardian and protector. Not a luxury for her rate or for any purse. Chicago Telephone Company.

External Fitness of Things.

The mistress of the house is a cultress of good taste, and the whistling of the foot, man, who believed himself alone in the house, freited her artistic soul.

"Joseph," she called at last from the head of the back stairs, "please don't whistle those vulgar ragtime things."

"Yes, mam," returned Joseph meekly. "I know, mam," he continued, "you expect a shadow of List with cleaning the knives. That will come later when I'm polishing the silver."—Youth's Companion.

A Wonderful Happening

Peru, N.Y., has witnessed one of the most remarkable cases of healing ever recorded. Amos F. King, of that place says: "Bucknell's Anna Salve cured a sore on my leg with which I had suffered over 80 years. I am now fifty-five." Guaranteed to cure all sorts, by Barrington Pharmacy 50c.

The Scotch Juror.

In Scotland in a civil case journeys get 10 shillings a day for their services, and the litigants must in addition provide them with lunch. If two cases are tried consecutively on one day and the same jurymen officiate, they get 10 shillings for each case. But the same jurymen are not allowed to sit in two different cases, either an English and a Scottish jury is this.

Dr. Blyth was disappointed when several calls were made upon the sick manager without seeing Fidelia. She was constantly in his thoughts, and her lovely face seemed always before his eyes.

By chance his next call was in the evening. Fidelia met him in the hall as he was entering.

"Do you feel encouraged, Dr. Blyth?" "Yes," kindly, "but his nervous condition is serious. Is he worrying about the business?"

"I think not," hopefully. "I hold his position as manager, and that encourages him. He has all confidence in my ability."

"He is a brave girl," enthusiastically. "You have some one for the outside work?"

She hesitated, coloring rosy.

"I—I have the services of a very competent linneman."

"Where is your 'central'?"

"Here," indicating the room adjoining. "I've always been father's belle girl," smiling brightly.

He recalled his uncle's remarks regarding Fidelia's knowledge of the business.

"The brave little girl," he murmured, with a tenderness wholly unaccustomed. "She will wish to supervise the linneman's work for awhile. I'd like to be the linneman if it means a daily drive with the little Fidelia."

On the following evening he saw Fidelia in her office. He reported his business. Fidelia's knowledge of the business.

"The brave little girl," he murmured, with a tenderness wholly unaccustomed. "She will wish to supervise the linneman's work for awhile. I'd like to be the linneman if it means a daily drive with the little Fidelia."

He reached the driveway at Hall's in time to see the slim figure leap from the buggy and dash into the house.

The doctor followed hurriedly.

"Go tell your sister that I must see her at once!" His imperative command started Blyth into instant obedience.

When Fidelia entered the room, with cheeks that rivalled the crimson of the soft robe she wore, Blyth sprang toward her.

She motioned him back with a repelling hand, even while her eyes gave him the assurance he sought.

"I know you don't approve—you said."

"I don't care what I said! I was wrong, Fidelia. I approve of anything that you do and of everything that you are, Fidelia, my little linneman!"

Are you Old Fashioned?

Get a telephone and be up-to-date. Other people use it. Even Chinese laundrymen realize its value. Are you wise? Five cents per day. Chicago Telephone Company.

The Way of the Child.

A small boy who had recently passed his fifth birthday was riding in a suburban car with his mother, when they were asked the customary question, "How old is the boy?" After being told the correct age, which did not require the conductor to pass on the next person.

The boy sat quite still, as if pondering over some question, and then concluding that full information had not been given, called loudly to the conductor, then at the other end of the car, "And mother's thirty-one!"—Humble, dressing mask.

"Not at all up to date," smiling, "Anything else?"

"Well—er," lamey—"I don't recall anything at the moment."

"You wouldn't approve, then, of a woman being a steamboat captain or an engineer or a house painter or a man?"

"Certainly not. The last two are very impossible anyway."

"Oh, I don't know," lightly, "I can't of the decent people would come."

As Dr. Blyth stood in the hall a young girl stepped from an adjoining room, inspiring anxiously, "How do you find my father, Dr. Blyth?"

"His condition is serious," he admitted, "but with good care—"

She cut short the conventional platitude.

"When will he be able to go out again?"

"Not for weeks," emphatically.

Her look of anxiety deepened.

"What is your father's business, Miss Hall?"

"He is manager of the local telephone system and attends personally to repairing and keeping up the line."

"That means a great deal of hard work?" sympathetically.

"You particular in the winter. The telephone carries nearly 300 phones and the line extends out into the country in all directions."

"Discontinue it in the winter," unthinkingly.

"The subscribers need it more then," gravely. "Nearly all of them are farmers and depend upon their telephone for news, especially with the winter weather, and with each other."

"If possible, keep from your father all anxiety concerning the business, I fear nervous prostration in his case."

During his round of calls Dr. Blyth thought often of the beautiful girl with the sweet, grave voice. He was a stranger in Lindsey and was taking up a number of practices.

"That's too bad," was his wife's comment. "But don't you manage all right?" with a country doctor's knowledge of his patient's afflictions.

"Mrs. Hall is strong and a good nurse. Fidelia understands the business thoroughly. Too bad she isn't a boy. It will take about all the manager's salary to hire a man to come here from the city to do the outside work."

Dr. Blyth was disappointed when several calls were made upon the sick manager without seeing Fidelia. She was constantly in his thoughts, and her lovely face seemed always before his eyes.

By chance his next call was in the evening. Fidelia met him in the hall as he was entering.

"Do you feel encouraged, Dr. Blyth?"

"Yes," kindly, "but his nervous condition is serious. Is he worrying about the business?"

"I think not," hopefully. "I hold his position as manager, and that encourages him. He has all confidence in my ability."

"She is a brave girl," enthusiastically. "You have some one for the outside work?"

She hesitated, coloring rosy.

"I—I have the services of a very competent linneman."

"Where is your 'central'?"

"Here," indicating the room adjoining. "I've always been father's belle girl," smiling brightly.

He recalled his uncle's remarks regarding Fidelia's knowledge of the business.

"The brave little girl," he murmured, with a tenderness wholly unaccustomed. "She will wish to supervise the linneman's work for awhile. I'd like to be the linneman if it means a daily drive with the little Fidelia."

On the following evening he saw Fidelia in her office. He reported his business. Fidelia's knowledge of the business.

"The brave little girl," he murmured, with a tenderness wholly unaccustomed. "She will wish to supervise the linneman's work for awhile. I'd like to be the linneman if it means a daily drive with the little Fidelia."

The doctor followed hurriedly.

"Go tell your sister that I must see her at once!" His imperative command started Blyth into instant obedience.

When Fidelia entered the room, with cheeks that rivalled the crimson of the soft robe she wore, Blyth sprang toward her.

She motioned him back with a repelling hand, even while her eyes gave him the assurance he sought.

"I know you don't approve—you said."

"I don't care what I said! I was wrong, Fidelia. I approve of anything that you do and of everything that you are, Fidelia, my little linneman!"

The Way of the Child.

A small boy who had recently passed his fifth birthday was riding in a suburban car with his mother, when they were asked the customary question, "How old is the boy?" After being told the correct age, which did not require the conductor to pass on the next person.

The boy sat quite still, as if pondering over some question, and then concluding that full information had not been given, called loudly to the conductor, then at the other end of the car, "And mother's thirty-one!"—Humble, dressing mask.

"Not at all up to date," smiling, "Anything else?"

"Well—er," lamey—"I don't recall anything at the moment."

"You wouldn't approve, then, of a woman being a steamboat captain or an engineer or a house painter or a man?"

"Certainly not. The last two are very impossible anyway."

"Oh, I don't know," lightly, "I can't of the decent people would come."

ever imagines a woman being a good linneman."

Blyth laughed in open sarcasm.

"I wouldn't care to see the woman. Wouldn't she be a terror?"

"Why?" sharply.

"Take your own linneman, for example. Miss Hall's a woman in his place driving in a wagon when about this sparsely settled country, climbing poles, sitting astride crossroads?" He shrugged his shoulders impatiently.

"That's worse than being a doctor!"

Afterward he wondered if she would think he disapproved of what she was doing. He hoped not. He considered it only poor judgment for a woman to climb poles when the latter is inserted into the former. In fine weather it will be found that the water will rise into the bottle, but it will fall back into the jar when wet weather is due. Though the idea of this quaint homemade barometer is not new, it is quite reliable.

A Homemade Weather Glass.

A very simple weather glass can be made out of such simple materials as an empty oil bottle and a quart quart jar.

Blyth procured these articles, a small pour spout, a piece of glass, a jar, so that it covers the mouth of the bottle when the latter is inserted into the former.

In fine weather it will be found that the water will rise into the bottle, but it will fall back into the jar when wet weather is due. Though the idea of this quaint homemade barometer is not new, it is quite reliable.

The Woods in Old Vienna.

The woods most favored by the old masters for violin construction were pine, pear, lemon, ash, maple and sycamore, and by some of the later masters the birch.

They were principally employed for bridges.

Hawkins says, "A perfectly harmonious marriage is an arrangement of violin and viola, a bridge and a bow."

He deplores the heartless substitution of new bridges for old ones and insists that a new bridge will never match perfectly with an old violin, and thus rather resort to substituting a new bridge and repairing the old one as long as it can be made to last."—Circle Magazine.

Igneous Rocks.

Igneous is derived from the Latin word ignis, meaning fire, and igneous rocks are those which have been produced through the action of heat. Igneous rocks are divided into two great groups, volcanic and plutonic. The volcanic, as the name implies, are those brought to the surface by volcanic action, while the plutonic are those which have solidified below the surface of the earth and have been exposed by the wearing away of the strata above them.

An Explanation.

"Why," replied Edie wisely, "the 'V' has its tummy on its back."—Harper's Weekly.

Animals in Groups.

The ingenuity of the sportsman is perhaps no better illustrated by the use he puts the English language in designating particular groups of animals. The following is a list of the terms which have been applied to the various classes: a corvy of crows; a side of doves; a nest of swallows; a flight of doves or swallows; a number of peacocks; a siege of herons; a brood of grouse; a stand of plover; a watch of nightingales; a clattering of crows; a herd of deer; a drove of cattle; a drove of hawks; a bay of quails; a cast of hawks; a swarm of bees; a school of whales; a shoal of herrings; a herd of swine; a skulk of foxes; a pack of wolves; a drove of oxen; a sounder of hogs; a troop of monkeys; a pride of lions; a sleuth of bears; a gang of elk.

A Poor Artist.

Patricia—Do you know Jules, the artist?

Patricia—Yes, but I don't like him.

"Why not?"

"Oh, I like a man who can look you in the eye."

"Can't he?"

"Why, he can't even paint a picture of a person who can look you in the eye!"—Yonkers Statesman.

WHERE DOCTORS FAILED.

An Interesting Case from Salem, the Capital of Oregon.

F. F. Sutton, R. F. D. No. 4, Salem, Oregon, says: "Acute attack of kidney disease and rheumatism laid me up off and on for ten years. Awful pains started from the kidneys and coursed down through my legs, though the best medical treatment but in vain, and when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I was walking with two canes and suffering continual pains, headaches and sleepless nights. I improved quickly and after taking these boxes felt better than I had for 15 years. The effects have been lasting."

The Psychological Moment.

The fact that Prism was closest with the adjuster did not prevent Cassandra from dropping in to say that she had told him so.

"I know it, I know it," murmured the burnt-out monarch, jerking his thumb at the retiring prophetess.

"Say no more," rejoiced the other. "We'll call the loss toll, and if I could make it say more than that, old man, I'd do it, under the circumstances."

Laundry work at home would be much more satisfactory if the right starch were used. In order to get the desired stiffness, it is usually necessary to use so much starch that the beauty and fineness of the fabric is hidden behind a paste of varying thickness, which not only destroys the appearance, but also detracts from the quality of the laundry work. This trouble can entirely overcome by using Defiance Starch, as it can be applied much more easily because of its greater strength than other makes.

Flow of Artesian Well.

To calculate the rate of flow of an artesian well, it is only necessary to fill a bottle of artesian fluid to a depth of 500 feet and then electrically explode a cap to burst the bottle. The time required for the fluid to appear at the surface gives an accurate gauge as to the velocity of flow. It is claimed that this method gives results as accurate as a weir. The diameter of the pipe being known, the rate of flow readily follows.

CARES FOR WARDS

NEW LAW PROVIDES FOR STATE CARE OF INSANE.

Many Improvements in the Various Institutions Are Made Under the Board of Charities—Now Best in the Country.

Springfield, Ill., July 11.—Under the administration of Gov. Denison, the state charitable institutions have been up and on for ten years. I was walking with two canes and suffering continual pains, headaches and sleepless nights. I improved quickly and after taking these boxes felt better than I had for 15 years. The effects have been lasting."

For Thorough, and Kind Care.

Women physicians are in service in the several hospitals for the insane, and a corps of house doctors who are known as regulars are being provided to assist the regular physicians. Dentists or dental internes are being provided to care for the teeth of the state's wards.

As part of the medical treatment, training for gradually removing to state hospitals all insane in county almshouses, the unsatisfactory conditions in some of which were published by the state board of charities in a recent bulletin. The new law makes the care of the insane a state duty of the state, not as a criticism of the former, but because the larger resources of the state are necessary to properly handle the great, growing problem of insanity. It also provides, through a system of pay patients, for an income to the state that may reach as high as $35,000 per annum. This will help materially in the care of the wards for the insane and to that extent would reduce the demand upon the taxpayer.

Provision for Insane Consumers.

Consumptives are separated from other patients, the idea being to keep them from infecting others and to give them III of this dread disease the rational chance for a cure, which is life in the open air and food which is simple and nourishing. Probably the most perfectly arranged and managed institution of its kind in America and perhaps in the world is located on the hill at Bartonsville. There are 2,000 chronic insane there now, but there are 8,000 so-called chronic insane in public institutions in the country.

The large institution at Bartonsville was established to care for the chronic insane of the state, entrance to that institution being by a roundabout way from the other state hospitals through almshouses into Bartonsville. A careful study of the conditions, not only in Illinois but in other states, showed that it was impossible to collect all the cases of the chronic insane of Illinois in the reformed almshouse at Bartonsville. There are 2,000 chronic insane there now, but there are 8,000 so-called chronic insane in public institutions in the country.

For the feeble-minded it has been determined to diminish the intellectual education provided at Lincoln and to increase the manual training. The very presence of feeble-mindedness argues against intellectual work. These unfortunate also are provided with a new gymnasium, which is very much needed. Many physical improvements are being made at this institution.

Soldiers and Their Wives Together.

One pitiful condition often met with in the charity service in Illinois is the veteran's wife in the pension. The pensionable wife is provided for in the erection of two cottages and a hospital at the Soldiers' and Sailors' home at Quincy, the soldiers and their wives to live together in the cottages in their declining years and the hospital to be for the care of wives who are taken ill.

Taking up the care of children, which has been the responsibility of the state, the legislature passed a bill allowing the counties to establish temporary detention homes and also providing that dependent orphan children, not soldiers' orphans, including children now in the unwholesome surroundings of almshouses, shall be cared for at the Soldiers' orphans' home at Quincy.

There will be given education and training to fit them for good citizenship.

By a separate act, not originally associated with the state care act, but fitting nicely in with it, this institution is now named the Illinois General Hospital for the Insane, thus forever superseding that most repugnant name "Incurable Insane."

Education of Institution Physicians.

The legislature provided for a central institution of instruction to be located at Kankakee. This institution will be under the direction of a man who has made a successful study of mental and nervous diseases and who is the head of the scientific laboratory work up to date in the treatment of insanity. To this institution the physicians of the other state hospitals will go for instruction. Each institution also will be fitted out with a scientific laboratory. As a result the medical administration and service throughout Illinois will be made equal to that in the best public and private hospitals in the world. It is in institutions of this character that new things are learned, which cure diseases that previously baffled science.

Water Treatment for Insane.

As a part of the medical administration the water treatment for the insane is being installed in every state hospital in Illinois. While this form of treatment marks behind a big Greek name, it is merely a precise, scientific use of the "home doctoring" methods of our mothers. The hot water bath, the cold wet dressings, the sheet pack, the steam bath on the skin and breathed into the lungs, the warm bath and the cold bath all bring up memories of the aches, colds, nervous attacks and fever that mother used to cure with water, steam and ice.

Water treatment as applied for mental patients has achieved its greatest triumphs in approaching insanity or in insanity in the early stages, particularly those forms which are said to be caused by the poisons generated in the systems, and particularly that form of toxic insanity of the most pitiful character which affects young mothers. There is an atmosphere of fear and dread from those forms of insanity which manifest themselves in great excitement or great depression of spirits. Without going into the scientific explanation of the how, why, and wherefore of the water treatment, it can be said briefly that the value of water lies in the ease with which it can be used to apply heat and cold to the affected parts of the human body, and the ease with which it can be used to apply pressure to the human body, pressure ranging from the gentle patter of a shower to the impact of a gushing stream. In fact, water by means of precise apparatus can be made soothing to the excited maniac, stimulating to the depressed insane person and irritating to the normal person when the process is a new and strong irritation to him out of his sluggishness. Water will help the system to throw off those poisons which may cause insanity.

WHY SHE WAS THANKFUL.

LITTLE ONE HAD REASON to Appreciate Father's Choice.

The sisters of a well-known New York family are married. She has one little girl greatly petted by all the aunts and subject to much advice from all of them. Of this last the little lady sometimes wears, which weariness on a certain occasion made itself shown in the following reply from her small ladyship.

Said one: "I am so glad you were my child, and I would have you do this and that." Said another: "Were you my child I would do so and so." The remaining aunt made a similar remark.

The little lady thought it high time to express her own feelings. "But I have," she said, "always been so thankful that papa married the sister he did!"

SERVIAN WEDDINGS.

The Bride Collects the Gifts, Which Must Be in Money.

If you receive an invitation to a wedding in Little Servia on the west side, you must not buy a present and take it with you or send it. That would be bad form, and the bride would probably feel insulted, but when you went to the wedding you would take with you the price of the present in money.

At the wedding you would find several hundred men and women all making stirring motions and talking in a strange, excited manner.

After the guests had assembled—and everybody in the colony would be welcomed—a young woman would pass around the wedding cake. Behind her would come the bride carrying a silver platter, and upon this she would collect the money given as presents. At the majority of weddings the platter is piled high with silver dollars, and around the edges are piles of various coins, from 25 to 50¢. It is not uncommon for a bride to receive $1,000 in cash. This amount, it must be remembered, is given by men who are mostly laborers in the packing houses.

Sometimes the groom passes cigars, and every guest will take a cigar and hand him a dollar. Another custom is to place a dollar in the large glass of whisky and every man take a drink, which is called "a drop."

These weddings are a great feast for the guest, and there is always plenty to eat, and sometimes the groom rents a hall where all may dance—Kansas City Star.

THE MONKFISH.

This Clutter Has Many Names and an Appalling Appearance.

Among the most curious of fishes is one known on the coast of Maine as monkfish, by Massachusetts fishermen as goosefish, by Rhode Islanders as the bellows fish, in Connecticut as the moulting, in North Carolina as the all-moulting. On the other side of the Atlantic it is called wide-gut, kettle maw and other names. Its adult length is about four feet, its weight about forty pounds.

The fish is a glutton, with no finely discriminating palate. It is said to bolt the wooden body of a lobster pot with an apparent satisfaction equal to that with which it swallows a mackerel.

Dogfish, scallops, squid, crabs and lobsters are items in its ordinary diet. Its Massachusetts name is said to have been given it because of its practice of swallowing geese. Seven wild ducks are said to have been taken from the stomach of one of these fish, which had pulled them down one by one from the surface of the water.

The fish, however, lurks upon the bottom, though it is occasionally seen near the surface. It is sluggish in its ordinary movements, but very quick and ready with its powerful jaws and well fitted by nature for its mode of life. Its margins have long fringes, which sway in the currents like vegetable sea growths, deceiving the wary prey.—Philadelphia North American.

Identified Men.

"Some people have odd ways of identifying themselves," said a disgusted westerner visiting New York. "The other night a man came up to me in my hotel and claimed old time acquaintance. I saw visions of the confidence game at once and fought shy. How do you think he convinced me? He took off his glasses and showed me his eye. Yes, sir, he did. It was a glass eye, of course, but I then realized his peculiar affliction despite a greatly altered appearance. But, do you know, it wasn't a pleasant performance. In fact, I suggested that he ought to carry a duly certified identification card"—New York Globe.

Expensive Modesty.

"What's the matter, off man? You look sad."

"I am. I just asked Farnsworth to lend me $7."

"And I suppose he said he didn't have that much in the world?"

"No. He had to get me a dollar bill changed in order to let me have what I had asked for."

Points of View.

"Beautiful memorial windows," remarked her husband as they left the church. "But the light from it fell on the Jones pew, and it made her complexion a sight!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Keenly So.

"Are you interested in the vital issues of the hour?"

"Intensely. Can you lead me to some good lunch?"—Baltimore American.
