

BARRINGTON REVIEW.

VOL. 23. NO. 25.

BARRINGTON, ILLINOIS, FRIDAY, AUGUST 30, 1907.

ATTORNEY'S OPINION

On the Question of the Hour in

Barrington, vis., Sunday

Base Ball.

The question, whether the playing of baseball on Sunday shall be permitted, is one of acute interest to the citizens of Barrington. Here is an attorney's opinion on the subject:

"Baseball has become the nation's pastime and all matters concerning or affecting the game are sure to command attention. Each season agitation respecting Sunday games is revived. The present season is no exception. Sunday baseball has two aspects, viz., moral and legal, and without desiring to dwell at any length upon the moral view point, it may be said that there are many arguments and some very strong ones in favor of Sunday baseball.

Nations are gradually changing their attitudes toward Sunday observance. We are already many years removed from the Puritanical idea of what the Bible means, when it commands us to keep the Sabbath holy. We no longer deem it a sin to warm our places of worship, or accompany our hymns of praise with an orchestra, and in matters of recreation we have advanced equally far. Walking and driving on Sunday are not now considered sinful and society reads Sunday newspapers, novels and magazines. The book of sermons is a thing of the past. There is therefore no longer any advocate of the modification of still more of our liberties in the interest of the game of baseball.

Baseball when properly played is the cleanest, healthiest and manliest of all sports and the most popular of all forms of amusement. Perhaps in this fact lies the greatest objection to its being played on Sunday. Thousands and thousands crowd into our baseball parks at every opportunity and where so many people are gathered, there is bound to be considerable noise and more or less disturbance of the public peace and repose.

But there are worse things than a hearty laugh or an exuberant shout, especially when ball games are played at such hours that they do not draw from religious worship. It should be plainly written, that ball games draw their patrons from saloons, dance halls, gambling houses and worse, and not from churches. Is it not better that young men should laugh and shout in the open, even at some expense to the peace of society, than that they should lurk in the dark and secret byways leading to a game of poker?

Mr. Justice Gorman of the New York supreme court says, "It is practically the unanimous sentiment of the religious and God-fearing people of the community that it is far better for our young men to go into the fields on Sunday afternoon after attending church and participate in, or witness good, elevating, healthy exercise, than to be driven instead to dance gardens, drinking places and poolrooms for amusement. And this is something which our ministers will know and must appreciate. Looking at the Sunday baseball question from the legal aspect, the situation is indeed puzzling. In Indiana Sunday baseball for an admission fee is expressly prohibited by statute and yet Sunday ball games are played in most of the cities of the state.

In Ohio Sunday baseball is expressly prohibited and yet National League games are played in Cincinnati on Sunday and American League games in Cleveland.

In Michigan the statute reads, "No person shall take part in any sport game or play on the first day of the week," and this has been held to include baseball.

Nebraska has held both ways on the question and baseball is played on Sunday both in Michigan and Nebraska.

In Missouri the statute is held not to apply to baseball. The court holding that the prohibition was levied against sports and games that have a demoralizing tendency and do not extend to athletic sports. In the case of the St. Louis Agricultural Association vs. Delano the court said, "Base ball does not belong to the same class as horse racing, cock fighting, or card playing. It is a sport of athletic exercise and is commonly called a game, but it is not a gambling game, nor productive of immorality; so no hold would include chess, backgammon, checkers, dominoes, and when played on Sunday any one would be as illegal as any other. Until law makers expressly provide for such sweeping changes in the laws, customs and habits of our people, it is not proper for officials by influence to impair the natural rights to enjoy those sports, or amusements, that are neither immoral nor hurtful to body or soul.

In Illinois the only statute bearing upon the question are paragraphs 428 and 429 of the criminal code which provide a fine for any one who shall disturb the peace of society, or of a private family, by engaging in any amusement or diversion on Sunday. The question has never been raised in either the Appellate or Supreme courts.

In New York the law is confused and perplexing. However, in 1904, in the case of Poole vs. Hesterburg, 43 Misc. 510, the question of Sunday ball playing was raised in a Habeas Corpus proceeding. In that case the arrest was made by an officer voluntarily and the court said, "No complaint was made by the police; the information is sworn to by a captain of police. It can not be too often reported to those who rule the police, that our government, like all free governments, is a government of laws and not of men. Those who turn it into one of men, and not of laws, are more dangerous to society than any other class of law breakers, or all other law breakers combined.

There are many minor offenses which should be left for redress to the coming forward of private accusers before the magistrates, or other authorities, as our law and the procedure of our courts contemplate. The accessory method of enforcing criminal law is open to every citizen. The community can take care of itself in such matters with out any police meddling, acting under the authority of a competent, or otherwise resident of a municipality.

Baseball games, to which the public are invited and to which an admission fee is charged, are in my judgment within the inhibition of the statute, as in such case the statute will presume that they interrupt the repose of the community. All common law judicial proceedings are prohibited on Sunday and village ordinances must come within the scope of the power delegated by statute to be valid. The weight of authority in my judgment sustains the proposition that Sunday baseball games can not be classified among the games prohibited by law in the state of Illinois."

What a Knocker Is.

We are much surprised that any one who has lived as long in Barrington as Mr. Lytle of 100 Indian Church Road, Buffalo, New York, should ask "What is a knocker?" There is ample opportunity to study the knocker here, enough to satisfy the most skeptical.

We agree with the learned doctor that there are two forces struggling for supremacy here, but it is not necessary that a man should surrender to either. The well balanced mind is a happy medium, leaning to neither extreme. It is only the fanatic that upholds either extreme.

Environment does not necessarily shape the character of a being with a well balanced mind; the best of men have come from the vilest of parents, nurtured in the meanest surroundings, and often the children of the best of people make the worst of degenerates. The artist, poet and lover of Nature is born, not made, so is the knocker, and their characters seldom change, no matter what the surroundings. What the doctor so poetically terms the work of the builders and destructionists, is necessarily the opposing of good by evil. In every town there are natural builders and natural knockers.

Our fathers with only the idea of what was right and just to themselves and their children spent years in carefully building this town. They overcame the opposition of the knocker and built a town that today we are proud of. But the knocker has hung on, trying to impede the progress and today would overthrow the principles of our fathers and take the reins of government to gain local notoriety and selfish power. Those people are knockers. This government is ruled by a majority, not by fanatical reformers, and run by men who have given a life time of study and experience to it. They have clear heads and calculating brains and know what is best for us all.

Don't show your ignorance by street corner speeches in opposition to every thing. Try to keep your mind as generous and well balanced as possible even if the administration don't suit you. Don't be a knocker, what you think is right, the majority may consider wrong.

Jap a Lao is any quantity you desire at Lamey and Co's.

not exist. By way of a final advice, it is well never to accuse one's husband of neglect, no one is more sensible of the fact, if he is guilty, than he is himself, and an accusation of "it is now nearly six weeks since you took me out" is not likely to lead to anything except a still rejoinder to the effect that it was impossible to take you in. Tom will no doubt in a very short time see the folly of his ways and thoroughly repent of his bad behavior, and the wife will have preserved her dignity throughout, which of course, is a very important point!

MAGOON GETS BUSY

TAKES SANITATION OF CUBA INTO HIS OWN HANDS.

PEST MOSQUITO MUST GO

Municipalities Being Unable to Eradicate Yellow Fever, Governor Creates a National Health Department.

Washington.—Despairing of the ability of the Cuban municipalities to keep the cities clean and free from yellow fever, the central government has at last formally undertaken that task. Chief Surgeon Koss called the war department Monday upon his return from Cienfuegos, where he says is at present the only place where yellow fever prevails, that Gov. Magoon had signed the decree nationalizing the sanitation.

From this time on the work of disinfection and the extermination of the yellow fever mosquito will proceed under the direction of officers appointed by Gov. Magoon, in most cases surgeons of the army or marine hospital service.

In the opinion of Gov. Magoon, as set out in a cablegram received at the war department Monday, the yellow fever will be eradicated within six weeks. There may be a few sporadic cases during the period, but there is no danger of an epidemic. Koss reports five new cases in Cienfuegos, making ten in all, but these were among civilians. All of the soldiers who were at first affected, with one exception, have been discharged as cured, and that one is convalescent.

Havana.—A decree creating a national department of sanitation has been signed by Gov. Magoon, and is to become effective upon the perfection of the organization. The personnel of the department will consist of one chief and a national board of five members holding office for four years. This board will have full control of the sanitation of Cuba, supplanting all local boards.

Up to the present time the inefficiency of the local sanitary authorities and their failure to report yellow fever cases has thwarted all the efforts to stamp out the disease. Maj. J. R. Koss, of the medical corps, reported four months ago upon the urgent necessity of national control in sanitary matters and this has been emphasized by the recent outbreak of yellow fever among the American troops at Cienfuegos.

SMALL SCOFFS AT ARBITRATION.

Telegraphers' Strike Head Says It Is Out of the Question.

New York.—Arbitration of the telegraphers' strike as it stands at present is out of the question, according to President S. J. Small, of the Commercial Telegraphers' union. Mr. Small said the strikers are prepared to remain out for two months and the union will support them for that time. The executive board of the American Federation of Labor, he added, will consider the relation of the federation to the strike in a day or two.

DOUBLE KILLING IN HOTEL.

Indiana Man Shoots His Wife and Himself in Chicago.

Chicago.—Charles A. Andrews, 40 years old, of South Bend, Ind., shot and killed his wife, and then committed suicide, in the Saratoga hotel, just after one o'clock Monday afternoon. There is much mystery as to the cause of the crime, though there is evidence that both persons had been bowed under some grief. The couple came to the hotel on Saturday, and little more than that was known about them.

STEAMSHIP TURNS TURTLE.

Acapulco Sinks at San Francisco Dock, All Aboard Escaping.

San Francisco.—The Pacific Mail Steamship company's steamer Acapulco, Capt. D. C. Prank, turned turtle Monday and sank at the company's dock in this city. All the passengers and crew escaped, but it is believed that the cargo, consisting of general merchandise, will be almost a total loss.

Approves Goethals' Request.

Washington.—The president has approved Col. Goethals' request to continue expenditures in excess of the present fiscal year on account of "pressing necessities and unforeseen developments" since those estimates were submitted. Congress will be requested at the next session to make appropriation to cover this deficiency. Col. Goethals asked for authority to expend $2,000,000 more than the appropriation, saying it was in the interest of true economy.

Fatal Tornado in Wisconsin.

Ladysmith, Wis.—A tornado struck the home of L. V. Moore, four miles north of the city, carried the building several rods and demolished it. Harry Moore, 70 years old, had his head so badly crushed that he died three hours later. Mrs. Moore and her little daughter were seriously injured. The storm also hit the home of George Warren, picking up the log house and landing it several rods away. The family of five were left seated on the floor unharmed, except a slight cut sustained by a child.

Self-Forgetfulness.

John B. Lennon, treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, delivered recently an address on strikes.

"Turning to the amazing features of the strike question, Mr. Lennon said: 'I remember a strike of bobbin boys, a just strike, and one that succeeded. These boys conducted their fight well, even brilliantly. Then the day they turned out they posted in the spinning room of their employers' mill a great placard inscribed with the words:

"The wages of sin is death, but the wages of the bobbin boys is worse."

"The most popular remedy in Osego County, and the best friend of my family," writes Wm. M. Dietz, editor and publisher of the Osego Journal, Gilbertville, N. Y., is Dr. King's New Discovery. It has proved to be an infallible cure for coughs and colds, making short work of the worst of them. We always keep a bottle in the house. I believe it to be the most valuable prescription known for Lung and Throat diseases." Guaranteed to never disappoint the taker by Harrington Pharmacy. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

"Everybody Should Know."

says C. G. Hays, a prominent business man of Bluff, Mo., that Bucklen's Arnica Salve is the quickest and surest healing salve ever applied to a sore, burn or wound, or to a swollen pile. I've used it and know what I'm talking about." Guaranteed by the Harrington Pharmacy. 25c

Women's Right.

Every housewife has a right to demand a telephone in her home. It eases the drudgery of housework, it lessens the loneliness of a long, dreary day. It is a constant guardian and protector. Not a luxury for we have a rate for any purpose. Chicago Telephone Company.

Wet And Drear.

With a telephone in your home you defy "blue" weather and enjoy the peace and pleasure of a contented life. When tired or discouraged, you may sit down and talk to a distant friend or relative without effort. Regardless of your finances, we have a rate for your purse. Chicago Telephone Company.

Home Sunshine.

Your home will be brightened by a telephone. It gives you power to talk to friends, relatives or business houses. Get a telephone even if you have no other modern conveniences in your home. Five cents per day. Chicago Telephone Company.

Are You Old Fashioned?

Get a telephone and be up-to-date. Other people use it. Even Chinese laundrymen realize its value. Are you as well? Five cents per day. Chicago Telephone Company.

For Young People.

Insist upon having a telephone in your home. Your parents may not realize its value. You do. Don't let them rest until they order. Your happiness is at stake. Insist! Five cents per day. Chicago Telephone Company.

Disturbance of Tenancy.
A Dorchester farmer writes as follows to the Standard: "A recent legal complication led me to look up the records of my family, and I think the result will interest your readers."

"I am a tenant farmer in this country, where my family has been settled for many centuries, and I knew that our connection with our present holding had existed for many generations. Through the hunting up records of the case I referred to, however, I became sufficiently interested to undertake a more serious search than I had at first intended. I found that my ancestors were held practically the same tract of land since the year 1004. Beyond that I could find nothing, but very possibly if records existed I think they would show that we were connected with the place even before that date."—London Standard.

Always the Politician.
A Germantown woman was not long ago watching a workman as he put up new window fixtures in her house. "Don't you think that you have placed those fixtures too high?" asked she, having reference to the curtain rollers just put in place.
The workman, a stolid German, made no reply, but continued to adjust the fixtures.
"Didn't you hear my question?" demanded the lady of the house. "How dare you be so rude?"
Whereupon the German gulped convulsively and then replied in the gentlest of voices:
"I had my mouth full of screws, and I could not speak till I swallowed some!"—Harper's Weekly.

A Weak Brother.
Penn had a very strong aversion to tobacco. One he came unexpectedly upon some of the Friends who were enjoying the fragrant weed, but out of respect for their great leader they hid their pipes, which, however, still continued to emit smoke. Perceiving this, the governor said pleasantly, "Well, friends, I am glad to see that you are at last ashamed of your old practice."
"Not entirely so," replied one of the brethren, "but we preferred laying down our pipes to the danger of offending a weaker brother."—Westminster Gazette.

Not to Be Beaten.
"The station at a certain city," says a traveler, "is surrounded in all directions with a lot of autone and cheap restaurants. In great illuminated letters over one of these autone was the sign:
"Open all night."
"Next to it was a restaurant bearing with equal prominence the legend, 'We never close.'"
"Third in order was a Chinese laundry in a little tumble-down hovel, and upon the front of this building was the sign in great scrawling letters, 'We wake too.'"

It is the man who is not afraid of the present that need not fear the future.

A right to run down the rest of the world does not go with the purchase of an automobile.

Paris is thinking of building "off the earth" subways for pedestrians. This is the automobile age.

The new ten-dollar bills appear to be the most popular yellow-backed literature ever put on the market.

That London pickpocket who was arrested in Chicago made a mistake in coming so far west, says the Chicago Daily News. He should have remained in New York, where the people would have loved to have their pockets picked by a crook from dear old London.

Of course, the charge that kissing is dangerous is true. But kissing is dangerous that ever gave a human being a moment of happiness upon this poor old earth. Happiness itself is only another name for sin. If you don't believe it, just study a few of the old theologians.

An Indianapolis girl tried to commit suicide because her relatives would not "leave her alone," while another young miss out in Colorado took the same course because her relatives did leave her alone. It is hard to satisfy the diverse cravings of the human heart.

A rich old man who recently married a fair young woman has had a river abolished because it interfered with what she considered the beauty of the landscape. The case of charity is not dead. Neither Charles II. nor Louis XIV. could have acted more splendidly in the circumstances.

"In Kansas," says an exchange, "the stern arm of the law has stepped in and decided that bakers shall no longer knead dough with their feet." It is high time, therefore, for the stern foot of the law to seize the cabbage raisers in its slawery grasp and after the time period demand that they shall no longer pack their suetcrust in barrels by the process of tramping it with their bare boots.

An actress who has recently been divorced says she couldn't live with her husband because he seldom kissed her, although he was kind and thoughtful in other respects. She should have been patient. Perhaps his apparent neglect was merely a sanitary precaution.

TIME TO CLEAN UP, SAYS MAG

MOTOR CAR RUNS INTO WALL.

BOSTON BROKER AND CHAUFF.

FOUR INSTANTLY KILLED.

Four Other Occupants of Automobile Escape—Accident Happens Near Narragansett Pier.

Saunderstown, R. I.—Waldo Merrill, of 115 Beacon street, Boston, a State street broker, and Eric Landstrom, of Mattapan, Wash., a chauffeur, were killed Sunday by the overturning of an automobile which crashed into a stone wall at a sharp curve in the road leading to Narragansett pier.

Four other occupants of the touring car, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Milliken, of Milton, Mass., their daughter, Miss Rita Milliken, and Mrs. Merrill, wife of Waldo Merrill, escaped with slight injuries. Mr. Milliken is a member of the firm of Corey, Milliken & Co., stock brokers, of Boston.

The party of six persons left Newport Sunday afternoon in Mr. Milliken's big touring car for Narragansett pier, Mr. Merrill riding with the chauffeur. The latter, according to Mr. Milliken, has been over the road before and was familiar with it, and was usually a careful driver. Just before reaching a corner known as the South Ferry, five miles from the pier, where the road takes a sharp turn, Landstrom apparently attempted to slow down, but there was some trouble with the brakes, and the car swung around so rapidly that it overturned. The momentum was sufficient to carry it in this fashion across the road against a stone wall. Merrill and Landstrom being caught beneath the car, were instantly killed. The four occupants of the tonneau were thrown a considerable distance, but with the exception of Miss Rita Milliken, whose wrist was badly hurt, they escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

The survivors of the party returned to their hotel in Newport. Mr. Merrill was the head of a stock brokerage company bearing his name.

MORE MONEY IN LOW FARES.

Effect of the Two-Cent Law in Minnesota Shown.

St. Paul, Minn.—Though the injunction suits now in the federal court in which the state has been made a defendant are principally directed at the commodity rate law, the two-cent passenger law is also involved, and in anticipation of trouble, Attorney General Young and his assistants have just compiled figures covering the passenger law that are startling.

The figures are the roads' own computations, furnished at the request of the railway and warehouse commission, and show that the two-cent passenger law, instead of being confiscatory, is directly the reverse. The figures furnished the commission are of the passenger revenues for the months of May and June, and compared with an average two months' business for the previous year, show a marked increase for all roads with the exception of three, the Soo, Minneapolis & St. Louis and the Great Western.

Try to Dynamite Train.

Cripple Creek, Col.—An attempt was made about noon Thursday to blow up the incoming Short Line passenger train with dynamite at St. Peter's dome, midway between Cripple Creek and Colorado Springs. Every window in the last car was broken. A similar attempt was made to blow up the same train at Duffield Wednesday. The dynamites escaped, but the sheriff is on their trail.

Pretty Girl Accused of Theft.

Chicago—Miss Rose Haines, a beautiful convent graduate, who carried off the honors of her class, a prominent church worker of Hyde Park and the daughter of one of the wealthiest men of Bridgeport, Conn., is a prisoner in a Hyde Park police station cell, accused of theft.

The principal charge against Miss Haines is that she stole two large diamonds valued at $500 from a house where she was a guest, and then pawned them. The police say she lost $75,000 on the open board of trade.

Ten Killed in French Wreck.

Courtesy, France.—Ten persons were killed and 25 injured in a collision Sunday between an express train bound from Bordeaux to Paris and a freight train. The accident was caused by a misplaced switch.

No Hope for James Oliver.

South Bend, Ind.—Dr. C. H. Myers, attending James Oliver, millionaire plow manufacturer Sunday night said that Mr. Oliver showed signs of improvement, but that recovery was not expected.

Forest Fires in Michigan.

Marquette, Mich.—Serious forest fires have been raging in the western end of the upper peninsula during the last week. Reports from various localities indicate that much timber has been burned. The damage will run into the millions. A number of logging camps have been destroyed with their equipment.

ROOTS ARE RECOVERING

REGAINING HIS HEALTH AND ENERGY AT MULDOON'S.

NO OCCASION FOR WORRY

Has Spent Three Weeks at Sanitarium Unknown to Public—Received One Visit from the President.

New York—Secretary of State Elihu Root, who has already spent three weeks at the farm-sanitarium of William C. Muldoon, ex-champion wrestler, near White Plains, taking Mr. Muldoon's course of salt-lake treatment for a severe attack of nervous exhaustion, expects to complete his cure in two weeks more. He is now well on the road to complete recovery and all reason for apprehension about his health seems to have disappeared.

On the quiet farm among the West Chester hills, so secluded that the secretary of state was enabled to pass three weeks there, he was visited by the president of the United States before his whereabouts were discovered by the public. Mr. Root has fished up, put on a healthy coat of tan, lost the drawn worried look of the early summer, and will go back to Washington, as Mr. Muldoon phrases it, "the strongest member of the cabinet, not even James T. Smith."

During the first two weeks of his stay he gained a pound of energy, acquiring therewith such a stock of energy that he was able Friday to ride 15 miles, walk three miles and in addition to the usual course of exercise with the big medicine ball, box 15 vigorous minutes with Muldoon.

When visited Friday on the veranda of the Muldoon residence, his face showed good color, his eyes were clear and his hand steady. He looked a trifle tired but otherwise well. Mr. Root asked to be excused from talking about his health, but his appearance was a sufficient contradiction of the exaggerated reports of a complete breakdown. His physician visited him but left without making any arrangements for his return.

According to Mr. Muldoon, Secretary Root, when he arrived, was suffering from nervous exhaustion, the result of overwork and strain.

COSTLY BLAZES IN PITTSBURGH.

Two Fires Cause Damage Estimated at $250,000.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Two fires Thursday caused by the explosion of gasolene in the clearing sheds of the Enterprise Cleaning company's place at 6339 Penn avenue. The three story brick building was destroyed and 14 employees were rescued from the windows by firemen.

The second fire was more serious and before it was controlled seven buildings were wiped out. The blaze started in the Enterprise Pressing plant, a three story building, and spread to two o'clock and spread with great rapidity east and west.

A number of automobile garages in the neighborhood had quantities of gasoline on hand and barrels and tanks of the fuel were removed from the vicinity. A hundred or more automobiles were run out of the garages and for a time stood in a row of a block, several blocks from the burning district.

The flames made a great roar and leaped into the air 50 feet above the burning district, and a burning building block and the handsome East Liberty market house only a narrow lot intervened and grave fears were entertained that the market should catch.

The building escaped, however, but for the scorching of the east side and the shattering of the windows. Shortly after four o'clock the fire was decided to be under control.

Four firemen were hurt during the fighting of the fire.

Swedish Prince at Newport.

Newport, R. I.—The Swedish armored cruiser Fylgia, with Prince Wilhelm of Sweden on board, arrived here Thursday from Jamestown, Va. The prince was entertained at dinner by Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, and later attended a dance given by Mrs. Edward J. Berwind. Salutes were exchanged between the cruiser and Fort Adams and the battleship Oregon.

Money for Crop Movements.

New York.—The first considerable transfer of currency to the west for the movement of crops and other better needs of the country was made by the subtreasury Friday. Five hundred thousand dollars was transferred to Chicago and another half million to San Francisco.

CALLS THE NEGROES GUILTY

GEN. MYER'S REPORT TOUCHES ON BROWNVILLE AFFAIR.

Garrison Removed From Fort Brown as Result—Commander Urges Better Pay and Canteen.

Washington.—That Brig. Gen. Albert L. Myer, commanding the department of Texas, thinks the colored troops "shove up" Brownsville, Tex. last August is shown by his annual report. After calling the affair "a lamentable occurrence which is still shrouded in mystery to a great extent," he says:

"However, it seems to have been established that on the night in question a few enlisted men of the first battalion, 25th Infantry, then garrisoning Fort Brown, did go armed into Brownsville and do some promiscuous firing resulting in the death of one civilian, one horse and the wounding of one policeman. It has been impossible to identify the individuals who actually did the firing. Undoubtedly there was at the time mutually bad blood between a part of the garrison of Fort Brown and some of the citizens of Brownsville and this fact must, to some extent, account for the occurrence."

As a result of the occurrence, Fort Brown has been deprived of a garrison and the reservation has been temporarily transferred to the department of agriculture.

In line with other department commanders, Gen. Myer takes the ground that the pay of enlisted men should be increased, particularly of non-commissioned officers. He favors legislation increasing the infantry by at least ten regiments of full peace strength, and he declares that the continuing absence of so many officers renders more apparent and evident the necessity for some legislation giving two officers at least to a company or troop at all times.

Gen. Myer renews the recommendation of most of his predecessors relative to the removal of the canteen restrictions on the sale of malt liquors. He says there has been about 8 per cent. decrease in the number of trials by court martial, and the number of trials for desertion far exceed that of any other crime or charge.

EDDY CASE ENDS SUDDELY.

"Next Friends" File Motion to Dismiss Their Plea.

Concord, N. H.—A sudden, though not wholly unlooked for, ending of the master's hearing in connection with the suit of Eddy brought by relatives of Mrs. Mary Baker E. Eddy, leader of the Christian Science faith, came in the superior courtroom here Wednesday.

Former Senator William E. Chandler, senior counsel for the relatives, announced to the court that the board of masters that they had filed a motion with the superior court to dismiss their action.

The suit was brought on the ground that Mrs. Eddy, being incompetent on account of age and infirmities, to manage her own affairs, was the victim of persons associated with her in Christian Science work, who were named as defendants in the equity suit. The masters were appointed by the superior court to determine the competency of Mrs. Eddy's competency, and hearings before them have been in progress for several days.

The reason for the petition for dismissal, as made known at the hearing Wednesday by Mr. Chandler, was the belief that suits along the line desired could not be obtained, and the unprofitableness of any immediate result of a decision in favor of the friends in the suit. The case is now framed, compared with the burdens and disadvantages to be endured both before and after such a decision.

EXPLOSION STARTS BLAZE.

Dynamite in Cedar Falls, Ia., Causes a $110,000 Conflagration.

Cedar Falls, Ia.—An explosion in the rear of George Sheerer & Co.'s hardware store Sunday night started a blaze that caused damage to the extent of $110,000. Three buildings, together with their stocks of goods, were destroyed. It is believed that a quantity of dynamite kept in stock was jarred, causing it to explode. The shock was felt for several miles around, and hundreds of windows were broken near the scene of the explosion. No one was hurt.

Cortelyou Will Try New Plan.

New York—Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou announced Friday a new plan of depositing government funds in New York, Boston and other cities, to afford relief to the money market in the approaching crop movement period. Mr. Cortelyou will, commencing next week, place at each point in the country as he shall designate, government funds to such an amount as he deems sufficient to prevent an acute monetary stringency and possible panic when the demand for money is greatest.

MAN-A-LIN Is An Excellent Remedy for Constipation

There are many ailments directly dependent upon constipation, such as biliousness, discolored and pimply skin, inactive liver, dyspepsia, overworked kidneys and headache.

Remove constipation and all of these ailments disappear.

MAN-A-LIN can be relied upon to produce a gentle action of the bowels, making pills and drastic cathartics entirely unnecessary.

A dose or two of Man-a-Lin is advisable in slight febrile attacks, la grippe, colds and influenza.

The sullen allotted me was at the end of a gloomy corridor. I threw open one of the narrow windows. The noisy stream below, beating futilely against the walls, almost deafened the voice of the servant as he asked if he could be of assistance to me. I looked out. There was a sheer drop of some 50 feet.

That fact vaguely disconcerted me. The words of Dr. Starva were a jarring note to the serene calm of the room. When I had dressed I was almost prepared to find the massive door of my chamber locked or barred. I had entered the spider's web audaciously enough. To escape might be less simple.

The dinner was simply but well served in a small dining-room. My situation being less serious I had more time to devote to the elaborate defense shown me by my companions for the benefit of the two servants who waited on us. Even Dr. Starva, followed the lead of Madame de Varnier in solemn respectability.

But did Madame de Varnier believe me so complaisant a fool, that, like another Bottom, I was expected in this modern Midsummer Night's Dream to accept this difference without question? I became more and more convinced that she did not. Once she even referred to the events of the night before in such a manner that I believed her not ignorant of my true condition. If she were persuaded that I had been acting a part then, that would account for her confidence in expecting me to continue acting that part. It would give her encouragement that I was the willing tool she looked for.

And suppose that she really believed that, did she think that I expected no reward? She had hinted that in serving her ends I was to serve myself as well. But Madame de Varnier was not the kind of woman to believe that a man would be allured by a promise so vague. Then the reward?

She had protested that she had not expected me to fall in love with her. She had protested that, but in the same breath she had confessed a half-resolve to bring me to her feet. Now as she exerted every charm of coquetry she was giving the lie to her words. Oh, the reward was obvious enough, if I chose to take it.

"We will smoke our cigarettes in my favorite music room. You must hear Dr. Starva play on the 'cello. You have had the piano carefully tuned, Jacques?"

"All is in readiness," replied the servant, as he preceded us with candles.

Dr. Starva had pushed back his chair eagerly. For the first time since I had met him his face lost something of its heavy sullen expression.

"My fingers have not the practice," he said modestly, "but to play with Madame de Varnier—ah, that is worth while."

We were in the music room that Madame de Varnier had described to me so enthusiastically the day before. Dimly lighted with wax candles, paneled in dark oak to the ceiling, the room was a row of carved seats built into the wall. There were no pictures or tapestries. The one touch of color was the vivid flame of blazing logs.

"The strife of the world, its life and its shams, I leave behind when I enter here," said Madame de Varnier sentimentally. "Look, I throw open this casement, and the sea breeze blows my voice. Beyond, you see the moonlight on the valleys, and still beyond, the mountains. This is your seat. Once this was a chapel; in these carved seats the monks chanted vespers; in the seat of honor which you occupy dowered the father superior. When you hear the enchanting melodies of Dr. Starva you will not have lived in vain."

This hour at least was innocent. Perhaps it was the lull before the storm, but why should I look for clouds when the heavens were clear?

The loud, dark, the room, its shining floor seeming to rise and fall mysteriously in the flickering firelight, the noisy murmur of the stream below, the white moonlight that struggled feebly through the casement windows—all had its charm. And these two adventurers, unscrupulous and conscienceless, had abandoned themselves for the moment to the joy of their music.

I looked over toward Madame de Varnier. The shaded light of the candles fell on her white shoulders. The splendor of her beauty had never seemed more serene.

I asked myself incredulously if this dreaming woman was the desperate adventuress whom Locke had warned me against.

content to forget the unpleasant task that was before me; to invent even the monster by her side in the garb of humanity.

The servant who had shown me to my rooms appeared at the door, letters on his salver. I held up my hand warningly to him that he should not disturb them, and motioned that he bring the letters to me. He did so without either of the musicians noticing his entrance.

The sonata of Beethoven swept to its glorious climax. I started to my feet to take the letters to Madame de Varnier.

But without a pause Dr. Starva began a tender romance. The woman sat at the piano, her hands falling idly to her lap.

Again she smiled across the room at me. But now it was no longer spontaneous. The lips held something of that indefinable cruelty of that woman of the Renaissance made famous by Da Vinci. I frowned; I refused to meet that smile.

Then, as I looked down deliberately, I felt myself turn pale. A shudder convulsed me.

I was gazing in horror at an en-

His Heavy Hand Closed over the Letter.

velope that bore the interdicted stamp of Bulgaria, the death-mask.

Did she know the ghastly significance of that double stamp? Was she one of the desperate band that had doomed Ferdinand?

I resolved to play a hazardous experiment. I would thrust that stamp under her eyes without warning. Consume that actress though she was, she would find it difficult to repress a tremor if she were guilty.

Dr. Starva's head was still bent lovingly over his 'cello. I reached the piano without disturbing him.

I placed the letters in front of Madame de Varnier, the envelope that bore the death-mask on the top of the little pile. I watched her closely.

She took the letters carelessly in her hands. The stamp at once arrested her attention. She regarded it with a frank curiosity. She even called my attention to it.

"It is one of the new issue," she whispered, so as not to disturb Dr. Starva; and continued to sort her letters.

I was almost convinced of her innocence, but not quite. I had yet my experiment to play.

I had opened one of the letters and was engrossed in its contents. As for Dr. Starva, he was lost to the world.

I took the envelope that bore the mysterious stamp, and placing it in such a manner that the death-mask could be most easily seen by the woman, I began to trace the likeness of a serene child, meanwhile watching her intently.

Slowly Madame de Varnier opened her eyes. Equally anxious, Starva and myself waited her recovery consciousness.

I was quite convinced now that she had not been aware of the significance of that stamp. The horror that had deprived her of her reason for the time being proved that. The fierce snarl with which Dr. Starva had snatched the letter from her lifeless hand and had concealed it, bore out my conviction. Then if my surmises were correct, would she communicate to Dr. Starva her newly acquired knowledge?

"It was the heat, I think, and the fatigue of the journey," were the first words she spoke. I heard them with relief. Beyond question she wished to conceal from Starva that she had seen the death-mask.

Whether he was satisfied with her reasons was less certain. He paced the length of the room, his head bent in thought; his interlarded fingers, moving restlessly, betrayed his concern. Madame de Varnier carefully avoided my gaze and played idly. But I noticed that if Dr. Starva had been enraged that she had seen the letter with its death-mask, Madame de Varnier was anxious that he should not know of the existence of the letter that had excited her. It had fallen to the floor. When his back was turned she had stooped swiftly and placed it in the bosom of her dress.

What the letter was so careful to hide from him merely personal? Or was its message of moment? If so, if it were concerned with the strange game these two were playing, it meant that either mistrusted the other.

I welcomed such a possibility. That fact might simplify my own action. At least it showed that Madame de Varnier was not abjectly the creature of this infamous scoundrel.

The strained situation was happily relieved by the entrance of the servant who had brought in the letters. Instinctively the three of us assumed that the letter was in the manner of the world before us.

He brought a card to Madame de Varnier. She took it from the salver quietly, but her hand trembled as she read the name engraved on it.

We had all three heard that name before. Its crisp, Anglo-Saxon nomenclature gave one the impression of a strong, dogged personality that pursued its own purposes.

"Captain Redfield Forbes!" That was the name she read in a low voice.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Captain Forbes intrudes.

There was a silence lasting several seconds. Paule was writing on both their faces. Evidently they had looked for no such intrusion as this—above all for no visitor so inconvenient as the king's messenger. They had confidently counted on a clear field for the execution of their plans. The they should have been, indeed, to the chafers so easily and so quickly thrust them into consternation. Dr. Starva was the first to recover his presence of mind.

"Whom does he wish to see this time?" he demanded harshly.

"He asks for his Excellency, the English ambassador," replied the servant, looking at me askance. "But if he is engaged, or, as well, he is anxious to speak with madam."

At first I was surprised that the man had not brought the card directly to myself. It was strange that he should ignore me if he had been given to understand that I was Sir Mortimer.

But if he were in the confidence of Madame de Varnier he would do precisely that.

Finally the coming of Captain Forbes at this time was a surprise scarcely less disagreeable to me than for them. To-morrow, or the day after, he would have been perhaps too late to return. But now the intrusion was premature. It interfered with my own plans as well as theirs.

More than that, I could have wished myself in a position to forewarn him. The man who looked at me as if I were again in danger of being caught red-handed in a criminal deception. More than ever would Captain Forbes have been convinced that I was one of the conspirators if he discovered at this moment that I was not Sir Mortimer.

The man and woman conversed together excitedly in a barbaric tongue. Dr. Starva, who was evident, was vehemently advocating the cause of Madame de Varnier opposing it. But the shock to which she had been subjected previous to the coming of Captain Forbes had left her unsteady, almost apathetic. Hilbert the man had been sulkily subservient to the woman; now his animal strength fought for her agency. He was brushing away her agonized protest. It was he who humiliated the servant.

"Show this Captain Forbes to the armory. I shall see him myself."

Again he spoke fiercely to Madame de Varnier. She listened to him in silence, her eyes cast down. He strode to the door, then left the room, shutting the door behind him.

Madame de Varnier remained where he had left her, trembling violently, her hands covering her face. This was my opportunity to appeal to the woman, and not the adventures. I took her unresisting hand and led her to one of the carved seats.

"Madame de Varnier, it is a desperate game you are playing," I said, sternly yet gently. "I don't know what the stakes are, but you are not going to win them."

A white hand clung to my coat sleeve. "Why do you say that?" she cried, staring at me with frightened eyes.

I pointed silently to the card she still held in her hand.

"There is one factor to be reckoned with."

She shook her head in defiance. "Dr. Starva has reckoned with him already, my friend. Perhaps not in the best way, but effectually at least. And the other?"

"Well, there is myself."

She smiled on me wily. "If you were an enemy that might be more serious. I admit. But I have reckoned with you. You are to be my friend. You are to help me."

"That remains to be seen. But the third and most serious factor is treachery."

"My God! Treachery?"

"Do you trust Dr. Starva absolutely? Have you told me that the death mask had as little meaning for him as for you, until I showed you that significance?"

"But you understood its meaning as well as he. Was are you that you should have called you by that name several hours ago?"

"Oh, you need feel no consternation. I might have called you by that name several hours ago."

"Since you know so much," she said in bitter disgust, "perhaps you know the service I expect to ask of you."

She made a shrewd guess at even that.

She sank back, her fingers interlocked supporting her head. She remained some time in gloomy thought. Suddenly a door slammed. I heard a faint shuffling of feet.

Then there was quiet again. I glanced at my companion. She was listening intently, her hands clutching the carved arms of the seat.

"Bah, that is a hysterical schoolgirl!" She shrugged her shoulders in self-contempt. "Say that you know everything, monsieur, so much the better. It will save the trouble of explaining to the morning. For I shall go on with my plan. There is danger, yes; but I have expected danger. It is too late to retreat. I have risked all on a single throw. I shall win. Say that there is treachery, I shall know how to deal with it. He is not indispensable. Yes, my friend, I have a plan that cannot fail."

"You are mistaken," said obstinately. "Your plan will fail miserably. I am not necessary to its success, I am. And I—"

"You will perform the service I shall ask of you. I hope, I trust, that you will do so to the best of your ability for myself, perhaps, but that you may bring happiness and peace to a downtrodden people."

FINDS LONG LOST SON.

Search of Mrs. Pebbles is Rewarded After Two Years.

Edinburg.—Mrs. Mary Pebbles' search of two years for her son, who had suddenly left home, has been rewarded. Mrs. Pebbles spent thousands of dollars in the search and traveled over many miles of the country. Finally, broken down with grief and in very poor health, Mrs. Pebbles departed for California to recuperate. She had been gone but a short time when notification was received from an elder son that the lost boy had been discovered by him on the streets of Los Angeles. The boy had enlisted in the United States army.

SUPPOSED MURDER MYSTERY.

Authorities Looking Into Death of a Woman Buried Under a Coffin.

Bloomington.—A supposed murder mystery of long standing is being investigated by the authorities of Grand county. While workmen were making an excavation recently they unearthed the bones of a woman who, it is thought, was foully dealt with. The case is estimated at 60 years at the time of death. No trace of a coffin could be discovered and it is generally believed the body was quickly buried after the commission of the crime.

BANKERS OFFER REWARD.

Will Pay for the Capture of Missing Decatur Manufacturer.

Decatur.—The Illinois State Bankers' association has offered a reward of $500 for the arrest of Felix B. Tait, was J. B. Lucas. The case is in the hands of the Pinkerton National Detective agency. Tait disappeared from Decatur May 21, 1907. A state warrant for his arrest for forgery and uttering forged documents is in the hands of Chief of Police Mason.

Dynamite in Oak Stock.

Durand.—A stick of dynamite has been discovered in a stock of oats on the C. L. Weaver farm and the find has created no little excitement and indignation. If the explosive had not been discovered before the oats were threshed, it is certain that when ground in the separator the dynamite would have blown the machinery into fragments.

College Head Resigns Place.

Kankakee.—Rev. Father M. J. Marale, for 25 years president at St. Vincent's college at Bourbonnais, Ill., has been forced by ill health to resign. The announcement was made at the close of a retreat at the college and at the same time it was announced that Rev. Father P. J. O'Mahoney, prefect of studies, had been chosen as his successor.

Ends the Jug Traffic.

Lovington.—The whisky business is at an end in this place. The action of Walter B. Wolfe in refusing to deliver consignments of whisky marked C. O. D. has been upheld by the express company and furthermore the Pacific Express company has issued an order to do away with handling of this sort of business over their system.

Accused Husband of Deserter.

Clatskanie, Ore.—Lafayette Haas has fled with his wife to the county court here. The couple were married here four years ago. She states that her husband left her without notification and that since he has failed to appear he is a deserter. The father of the defendant is one of the wealthiest men in Clatskanie county.

DIDN'T THINK BIGAMY WRONG.

Young Woman with Husband in Russia Marries Another in America.

Kewanee.—Mrs. Milka Bere, a country young woman, was sent to the county jail for bigamy. She came from Russia with relatives a year ago, leaving a husband there and expecting to rejoin him after a visit in America. Recently she met Michael Tarbuck here and decided to marry him, when he told her she could marry again in this country without violating the law. Tarbuck had made a scene of Paul Tamowich by suing him for $30 and the latter, knowing Tarbuck's life had another husband, swore out a warrant for his arrest. The woman admitted the charges but pleaded ignorance of the law. Tarbuck has disappeared, leaving her to face the matter alone. She could not furnish bonds so was taken to jail.

NEW EDIFICE FOR PIKE.

Florence Dedicates a Handsome Church for the Methodists.

Pittsfield.—For 70 or more years, before Pittsfield was in existence, Florence on the Illinois river, 11 miles from here, has been a place of no small importance. At one time commercial metropolis, some of the great fortunes of this city having had their foundations laid in its mercantile business at that small river landing.

In all these years, Florence has never had a church edifice or place of worship, but she has at last awakened to a realization of her spiritual needs, and the Methodist people have dedicated a handsome new church to the service of God. The lot on which the building stands was donated to the society by Capt. Ross Matthews, a prominent banker of this city and is a beautiful several thousand dollars. The structure is a neat and last specimen of architecture.

Old Notes Turning Up.

Litchfield.—Eight of the signers of the notes for the construction of the Belt railroad were summoned to appear before Squire Grassel in Hillsboro. The signers of the notes contend that the notes have gone by default as the Belt railroad has not been built. The notes date back to the beginning of the American Radiator company, when the proprietors asked the citizens to raise $30,000 to build the Belt railroad.

Files a Will Contest.

Clinton.—State's Attorney Miller has prepared a petition for letters of administration to be granted the public administrator of DeWitt county in the estate of John Danaher in order that the validity of the will made by Danaher may be tested. It is claimed that the dead man placed a will, leaving about $12,000 worth of property near Wapella to a Catholic priest of Bloomington.

Boy Beaten Until Inevitable.

Danville.—Olin Bensley, a colored lad, has been beaten by the police authorities and will be declared dependent. Bensley, who has resided with a stepmother, has been beaten into insubordination times by her. His head contains many marks which are the result of injuries inflicted with a poker.

Telephone Company Buys Site.

Decatur.—The Home Telephone company, of this city, purchased property from J. R. Race on which they will erect a three-story building at an expense of several thousand dollars. The property bought was occupied by an old valueless building and $12,000 was paid for the location.

Youth Stabs Another.

Quincy.—Robert Reagan, son of Quincy's late city marshal, is lying fatally injured in St. Mary's hospital, this city, suffering from knife wounds in his lungs and wounds are the result of a fight with Thomas Clarke, Jr., aged 17 years.

New Church for Missions.

McLeansboro.—The contract for the construction of a new $15,000 Methodist Episcopal church here has been awarded to Edward Snell, of Grayville.

Death in Aged Woman's Pipe.

Rockford.—Mrs. Lavina Crosby, of Ridott, 94 years old, set fire to her clothing while lighting her pipe, and was burned to death.

Boys in Jail for Man's Death.

Joliet.—Five boys who unwittingly caused the death of Thomas Driscoll, a trainman of the Santa Fe railroad, were fined $100 each by Judge Howe and sentenced to the county jail to work out the fine. The boys appropriated a hand car to take them swimming. They left the car on the main track, where an engine ran into it. Driscoll was riding on the pilot of the engine and was killed. The boys held are Louis Dupich, Andrew Kurth, William Baska, John Konover and Frank Novak.

Wailing Babies by Chart.
The jet machines in the form of
and governesses raise our chil-
under printed directions tacked
the walls and some mothers
are proud of the completeness of their themselves to these charts—actually
because their babies are "scheduled" youngsters.

Yesterday I was shown such a chart—
a businesslike, austere product of some pseudo scientific brain and practical ink.

"Isn't it complete?" said the near
mother. "Read it."

I read: "Aerated milk, 9 a. m.
Scraped quarter orange, 9:30 a. m.
Pasteurized milk, 10 a. m. Slice of health toast, 1:15 p. m. 10:15 a. m.
Modified milk, 3 ounces, 10:45 a. m.
Walk eighteen steps, 11 a. m. Two teaspoons distilled water, 11:15 a. m.
The rest of the chart was similar to this.

"It is complete," said I, "but I should like to edit the next one they get out."

She opened her eyes and raised her brows. "You know the way superior
people, especially the recently superior kind, do it—so you get a taste in your mouth right away as you had handed you a grapefruit to eat without sugar."

"By putting in a line right here," I said, refusing to be frozen by her manner. "Twelve thirty to 1 o'clock,
leave baby a little."

She didn't even thank me for the suggestion—actually, she didn't. Women are peculiar propositions. What?

Interviewing a Chinaman.
A member one distinguished Chinese man who gave the newspaper man a big surprise. We knew that he was a high officer and that he had come to this country on a mission of importance, but not one of us dreamed of getting from him more than a perfunctory interview through one of his interpreters. The interpreter we conveyed to the big man our desire for an interview. He talked with his secretary in Chinese for a few moments, and then in the company of his British invited us to accompany him and the chief to the officer's suit. We filed in, dropped into the seats to which we were escorted by the statesman and waited for something to happen.

As we hesitated a peculiar smile lit
the big man's face. Lying back in his chair, he cocked one leg over the other,
lighted a cigar and dropped a bomb
saying: "Fire away, here, I'm ready."
But before you begin who won the last race?"—San Francisco Call.

Are Metals Alive?
"Metallic bodies are like a metallurgist
firmly—'not much life, but a little. And metals can be stimulated,
depressed, poisoned."

"Platinum wire, immersed in water,
gives off an electric current that may easily be measured. If you put in carbonate of soda in the water, the stimulated wire gives off a stronger
current. Put in bromine of potassium, and the depression is evident. Add weaker current. Finally, put in oxalic acid, and the poisoned wire gives off
no current at all. It will never again
give off any current. It is dead."

"Now, if I leave it alone, you can depress a metal, exhilarate it and finally administer to it a fatal dose
of poison, have you not a right to say that the metal has life?"

A Mollified Subject.
Nollekens, the sculptor, was a man
of pretty wit and of neat resource in compliment. He had at one time for a sister a woman of great beauty, but of an extremely nervous and impatient temperament. During her sittings she would constantly change her position,
and with each shift of posture her expression changed. At last the sculptor's patience gave way.

"Madam," he cried, "of what avail
is your beauty if you will not sit still till I have reflected it in my model?"

The sister smiled with amused vanity
and was as motionless as a lay figure
during the remainder of her sittings.

"Strong Even in Death."
There is a characteristic story of an American woman formerly well known in London that will bear repeating, says a writer in London Truth. The lady is said to have written the following letter to a royal personage:

"Sir—My medical attendants have just informed me that I am in a hopeless condition. If I great happy I'd I know that you would be represented at my funeral. I enclose a check for £1,000 to cover all expenses."

When He Got Sane.
Husband—Have you still the letters
I wrote you before we were married?
Wife—Yes. Why? Husband—Bring them here. I want to burn them. I am just making my will, and I am afraid that if any of my relations see those letters after I am dead they will think I was of unsound mind.—Lustige Blätter.

Easy, but Heavy.
"I suppose it was hard work to follow any argument?" said the lawyer.
"No," answered the judge. "It was easy to follow it, but it was difficult to keep awake until the destination was reached."

Disappointed.
"Tommy, you've got a new little brother. Aren't you glad?"

"A brother? I thought it would be a boy. Papa promised me one for such a long time."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

men and philosophers and divines.

The New Judge's Notes.
Chief Justice Falconbridge of Ontario
Mr. Justice Hutton and Mr. Justice
Hutton, a newly appointed judge,
were sitting together as a court in Toronto. Accidentally in some legislative were present, the presentation of argument on behalf of one of the clients
was rather prolix and not very much to the point, to put it mildly. Mr. Justice Hutton, at the close of the argument, said to the other: "The argument to the same extent inured against the tediousness of the proceedings as were his colleagues, was observed to pass
one of them a slip of paper, on which were written the words: 'The argument was written on the notes'—"
The case. Immediately the "notes"
were read, however, by his colleagues
there was a subdued suggestion of silence upon their part. It turned out that the "notes" read after this fashion:

THE "NOTES."

A Boomerang Contract.
The author of "A Temperance Town"
and "A Temperance Town" spent much of his time in his country home, but one day
he appeared unexpectedly in New York at the Lambs club. Going straight to the club, he made one large, inclusive gesture, which brought every man present about him. "It's on me," said Mr.
Hogt. Then he told his story.

It was before the days of electric and gasoline motors, and he had bought a little steam yacht. He engaged as his engineer one of his Yankee neighbors
and offered him liberal wages, with the provision that the engineer should run his own coal. The wages were paid, and the engine was going well.
The trouble he was looking for was
that his own furnace fed.

"But where shall I get the coal?"
the new engineer asked.

"I don't care," said the foreman of American stage humors. "Steal it."

So the bargain was struck. All went well until the early autumn Mr.
Hogt went into his cellar to see how much more coal he would have to purchase for the winter. Of several tons on hand in the spring only two or three stowfuls remained. The theft was speedily traced to the engineer. Saturday Evening Post.

The Sun and the Telescope.
The popular notion is that the astronauts point his telescope directly
at the sun and fires his vision point blank across the chasm of millions of miles. Instead, says a writer in the Chicago Magazine, the sun rays are reflected by a cyclostatic—a great
circular mirror driven by clockwork
in such a manner that it throws its light into another mirror above, and this in turn sends the light concentrated beam far into the interior of the telescope house. The two mirrors move in automatic adjustment to each other, so that the solar beams
may be shot into the building on matter in what portion of the sky the sun
may be situated. At the farther end of the building the reflected sunbeam
strikes a concave mirror which catches
the light and, flashing it back toward the opening whence it first entered, focuses it into a perfect image of the sun.

Female Diamonds.
The jeweler held a magnifying glass
to a superb white diamond.

"Do you see those little diamonds
on the farther edge?" he said. "They are invisible to the naked eye. The glass shows them quite plainly,
doesn't it? Well, they are the proof that this diamond is a female; hence
we say that the male and female
diamonds, the males, of course,
being those that don't produce these growths."

"Female diamonds are always the finest. In fact, nearly all the diamonds of world wide fame are female."—New York Press.

Society of the Cincinnati.
The Society of the Cincinnati was an order established by the officers of the Revolutionary army in 1783 to perpetuate their friendship and to raise funds for the relief of the widows and orphans of those who had fallen during the war. It was so named because it included patriots headed by Washington, between whom and the other famous American general, Cincinnati, there were supposed to be many resemblances.

Present Troubles.
"Ah, pretty much the same as the fortune
teller, you wish to be told about your future husband?"

husband is when he's absent."—Philadelphia Press.

which man has invented for displaying so many of the traits of the lower animals."—Washington Star.

A Cabbie Stung.
Foreigners often take a prey to the unscrupulous wiles of the British cabbie,
who basely takes advantage of the stranger's want of familiarity with English idiom, coinage and locality.
We have heard of the intelligent foreigner being driven about six statute
miles in a journey from London bridge to Charing Cross. That cabbie got the best of the tourist, and a second
attempt to impose upon foreign credu-lity was frustrated cleverly by a son of Gaul, whose taste for joking led him to try to bamboozle a cabby into a sumpung it with him. He demanded in exceedingly broken English to be driven to a certain place, the fare to which was exactly a shilling. It may be remarked that he really could speak English as well as he could his mother tongue. On arriving at his destination he asked, still in a struggling fashion:

"Ow much 'ave I to pay?"

"Five shillings," promptly responded
the cabbie.

"And 'ow much is 5 shillings?"
quoted the traveler, taking out three half crowns and laying them across his palm.

"Them three's right," said the cabbie,
pointing to the coins.

"Oht," said the Frenchman. Then,
dropping his assumed imperfect acquaintance with the vernacular, "Well,
here's a bob for you," he said and departed, leaving his erstwhile John staring with a perplexed expression
on his face which took some time to disappear.—London Tit-Bits.

Rules For Right Eating.
The rules for eating, which ought to be a part of every child's A. B. C., are few and simple, though neglected by half of the adult population.

Expressed in don'ts, they are:

Don't eat in a hurry; don't eat when tired; don't forget to chew well; don't drink much with meals—do it before-don't eat all one kind of food; don't take much cold food at one time.

Most of us live as if unconscious
that there are such things as laws of health whose violation brings pain and sickness. The stomach will bear as much abuse and neglect as any organ
of the body, perhaps more than most of them. But when it rebels there is usually one more cross despicable inflicted on society and destined to spend the rest of his days alternating between a diet of soft eggs and toast and sundry excursions into mince pies, pork
and cabbage and other things that he likes, but which make him miserable.
—Charles H. Cochrane in Metropolitan Magazine.

He Hung on to the Record.
A fish story I heard while tramp-
ing involves an old man who had little regard for the truth. Two young men made it up to go to the old gentleman's house and outgeneral him by telling the biggest lie of the old man, who held the record. After being at the old man's house some time one of them
asked the old gentleman if he had heard about the big fish. He said he had not and asked them where it was.
The young man told him a gasoline launch had exploded on the river and the whole river was on fire. The old man sat quiet for a moment, then turning to his wife and said, "Mother, I told you something terrible had happened
on the river today when I caught that catfish with his fins all burned off."—

How She Helped.
A servant girl who had been through the mill before was being cross examined the morning after her new engagement. Said her mistress:

"And did your last mistress assist
you in cooking, Maggie?"

"Weel, aye, in a way she did," admitted Maggie.

"How did she do it, now?" asked her mistress.

"By stoppin' out o' the kitchen,
mum," was Maggie's retort, and the mistress gracefully retired.—London

A Hot Knife.
"A knife that cuts better when it is hot" (and under no other circumstances) are sometimes met with, and
the reason of this is easily explained.
Heat expands metal and in proportion to the amount of metal which is heated. There is more metal in the broad-
blade of a blade than in its thickness,
and the former therefore is expanded immensely more than the latter. In other words, the wedge-like shape is lengthened, and the tool becomes "sharp."

The Greater Ache.
"You might think you've got such a heartache," said the woman, "that you can't stand it at all. You'll never get over it, never in the world! You can't stand it another minute without dying of it, but just wait till you get the toothache good and hard, then stand
by and watch the heartache go way back and sit down."—New York Press.

Calculations of the great mass of interesting propositions for the studiosely inclined. J. Dunk of Baltimore has compiled a rather remarkable arrangement of the title of a song from "The Maiden"—"I Want What I Want
When I Want It." In the following twenty-five squares the words are so arranged that by beginning in the upper left hand corner and reading across
or down, not up the sentence can be read in 18,421 different ways, according to the arrangement. There is no time to try to break to verify the count, but any one who so who has leisure. Here is the arrangement:

I	Want	What	I	Want
Want	What	I	Want	When
What	I	Want	When	I
I	Want	When	I	Want
Want	When	I	Want	It

A sentence which could be read forward or backward, such as "I saw a fear I saw war," if it had nine syllables, could be written in the same arrangement of squares and could be read in 25,422 different ways, or double
the above illustration, as it could be read down from the upper left hand corner or up from the lower right hand corner.—Baltimore News.

Berry He Spoke.
The conductor was inclined to seek
for sympathy. "Do you see that woman on the left hand side of the car,
up near the front?" he asked the thin
man on the back platform.

"Yes, I see her."

"The one with the dinky hat?"

"Well, I think she's tryin' to beat me
out of a fare. When I went in to collect she never looked around, an' I ain't quite sure that she didn't pay me
before, although I'm almost positive
she ain't. She looks to me like a woman who'd be glad to stir up a fuss.
I can pick 'em out as fast as I can see 'em. You never spot a woman with a face like that who isn't ready to bluff her way anywhere. I wish to thunder I knew whether she had paid
her fare or not."

"If you'dn't worry about it any more," said the thin man. "I paid the lady's fare some time ago. She's my wife."—Argonaut.

Live and Die on the River.
"The river population of Manila is a class by itself," said a traveler. "Not to be outdone by Canton, she has her sawpans, known as cascos and coracles, carrying a couple of people in the city limits, where thousands of children are born, grow, live and die
on these floating cargo carriers. They never dream of any other world than that which floats about them. These boats are small, but accommodate a family of five to seven. They have a fire pot, a platform and a rice kettle.
The fire pot is a covered portion is very small in fact, I don't see how they live—and it is a wonder to me that the children don't fall overboard and drown. You will often see a woman sitting at the end of the boat, rowing
with a child strapped on her back,
looking for all the world like a little monkey."

Seized the Opportunity.
There were bold thieves and bold
methods in the earlier days in Holborn.
Here is an example:

Said a stout, athletic old gentleman
to a well dressed stranger who was passing: "A rascal has stolen my hat.
I tried to overtake him, but I'm so out of breath I can't stir another inch."
The stranger removed the other with critical eye. The victim was puffing and panting as for dear life. In the pleasant tone in the world the stranger
said, "Then I'll be hanged, old boy."
The thief saw your wig! So saying,
he snatched that article from the suf-
ferer's head and departed like the wind,
leaving him with head as bare as a babe's.—St. James' Gazette.

Antiquity of the Census.
The idea of the census is almost as old as history itself. King Amasis of Egypt took a census of his people 500 years before our era. The Athenian soldier established a census for the purpose of facilitating taxation. We learn that about 443 B. C. Servius Tullius took a census of Rome. During the century of the dark ages the census
dropped into oblivion, but was revived
again about the beginning of the eighteenth century.

Folding a Coat.
Here is the way to fold a man's coat when you want to pack it in a box or a trunk. Lay the coat out perfectly flat, right side up. Spread your sleeves out smoothly. Then fold
them back to the elbow until the bottoms of the cuffs are even with the collar. Fold the reverse back and double the coat over, folding in the center seams. Smooth out all wrinkles
and lay it on a level surface in the trunk.
