On last Wednesday a meeting of the girls of the High school was called by Miss Ellis and Miss Bray to discuss the matter of organizing a literary society Monday afternoon the girls met again and formally organized such a society, which is to be called "The Laurean Literary Society." The officers elected are: Midred Erfrink, President: Annabel Welchy vice president; Loudia Landwer, secretary. It is the intention of the society to be a permanent organization in the school and the officers each year are to be chosen from the twelth grade. The meetings are to be heid every other Monday evening at 7:30. For each meeting there will be a new program committee.

Auduben's Hensymoon.

Auduben married Lucy Bakewell, daughter of an Englishman. The father of the girl regarded the naturalist as unpractical and induced him to enter a commercial house in New York, but John James soon proved that he had no aptitude for trade. He busied himself with collecting specimens and the tubusiness take care of itself. Ills neighbors made a legal couplaint against him on account of the disagreeble oder from the drying skins in his room. He and his bride spent their honeymoon on a common flatboat footing down the folio in Louisville. Possibly this was one of the original houseboats. A smill tent, like an Indian's tepse, was the bridal chamber.

"You are possessed with a drowsiness when you awake in the morning, and your head often sches and feels were heavy?"
"Right again," answered the Irishman, still sipping his coffee.
"Well, then," exclaimed the doctor, sitting erect in his chair, "aren't you now convinced that the coffee is the cause?"
"Is that so?" said the Irishman in astonishmen. "Patth, I always thought the way the whisky?"—What to Est.

A Bad Bargain.

The unprofitableness of some of the rush and worry of business life is neatly suggested in the following dialogue, found in one of the papers:

"Where is Jones?"

"Gone to Europe."
"What for?"
"To regain his health."
"How did he lose his health?"
"Earning the money to enable hi
