Beestings, mustard-packs, and other uncommon remedies for rheumatism will have to take second place, in the matter of oddity, to a cure discovered in Australia. A whale, stranded on the beach at a health resort, had been cut open, and a freakish invalid plunged into the mass of blubber, remained there two hours, and found himself free from rheumatism when he crawled out. The incident seems to be vouched for, and although the prescription is more novel than enticing, projably many sufferers would like to catch a whale and try it.

Farrington Beview. MRS M'DONALD FREE

Guity.

Chicago.—Mrs. Dors McDonald, wing of wifelow of McDonald, wing of Chicago gamblers, was declared Toseday afgranoon not guilty of the murder of Webster Guerin, the artist who was killed in his studio in the Omaha building, Pebruary 21, 1907.

The crowd that filled the courtroom testified its approval of the jury's finding with an outburst that the court quickly checked.

There was a big crowd in Judge Brentano's courtroom when it was learned that a verdiet had been reached. Dora McDonald, heavily velled and accompanied by her nurse, Miss Amanda Beck, was assisted into the room and sank into a seat—the same one she has occupied since the beginning of the trial—in the listless manner that has marked her demeanor. There were many of her relatives as well as relatives of the Guerin family in court, and they all sat to getter on the other side of the courtroom behind the press table.

There was a brief delay while Judge Brentano tock his seat on the bench, looking tired with the strain of the long trial, which has leasted nearly a "Bring in the jury," said the judge brussuely; and the bailiff owned the
