DEATH OF MRS. MILLER

Woman Who Has Resided in Cook County Over Half a Century.

Mrs. Eliza Drew Miller, aged 77 years, 11 months and 5 days, died Sunday at the home of her son and daughter at Barrington Center.

Mrs. Miller was born in the town of Pultney, Steuben county, New York. In 1850 she came west to Illinois, first living with a sister at Barrington Center and teaching school near there and later going to Hebron, to which place her parents had moved. In 1852 she was united in marriage to William Marcellus Miller and to them were born three children, Helen, who died in infancy, and Mary and Drew, who now live at Barrington Center and with whom Mrs. Miller has resided since the death of her husband in May, 1900.

Mrs. Miller was a member of the Baptist church and a true Christian and her death was the cause of sorrow to her relatives and many friends.

The funeral was held at the home Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock p. m. and burial was in the Barrington Center cemetery.

Egworth League Meeting

The Egworth league was out in force on Tuesday evening last about forty being present. They were entertained for their business and social meeting by Mr. and Mrs. John Robertson at their home on Main street.

In the absence of the president, Miss Hattie Frye acted as chairman of the meeting.

The social hour or two that followed was made pleasant by readings from Miss Jennie Lincoln and Miss Alberta Horn, the latter who read an account of Rubenstein's playing. Miss Almida Plagbe read a piano solo and Miss Louisa Hieke sang. Other forms of diversion followed.

Mr. and Mrs. Robertson as host and hostess, added much to the enjoyment of the evening by their genial hospitality. Nice refreshments were served and everybody had a good time.

Young People Made Next Sum.

An amusing evening was confining to all who patronized the supper served by the young people of the Salem church Thanksgiving night in the Y. M. C. A. rooms and who tried to give their supper orders from "condemned menu" cards. Each dish served was designed by a question and many were the futile guesses as to the nature of the food. Lunch counters and small tables were used.

One hundred and fifty people is said to be the number partaking, and at an average of twenty cents apiece, the result was satisfactory. The money will be used by the Christian Endeavor society.

Day Passes Quietly.

Thanksgiving day passed very quietly in this village last Thursday. It was a day of reunion—a large number of visitors being entertained by local families. Events seemed to be greatly interested in the Thanksgiving dinner as the town was deserted until after vast quantities of turkey and "fixings" had been consumed. This town has much to be thankful for as this has been an exceptionally prosperous season for the farmers and laboring classes.

Medicine that is Medicine.

"I have suffered a good deal with malaria and stomach complaints, but I have now found a remedy that keeps me well, and that remedy is Electric Bitters; a medicine that cures malaria for stomach and liver troubles, and for run down conditions," says W. C. Kessler, of Halliday, Arkansas. Electric Bitters purify and enrich the blood, tone up the nerves and impart vigor and energy to the weak. "You money refunded if it fails to help," you at Barrington Pharmacy.

Get An Air Ship.

If safe aerial navigation were possible yet the telephone toll lines would be the fastest, most satisfying means of communication between distant points. Chicago Telephone Company.

Mysterious Language.

Without attempting to discuss whether legal phraseology is not at least as cryptic as that used by doctors or insisting on the fact that every case must have what the lawyers call a "jurisdiction" of it, we freely admit that there is in medical terminology a good deal not only of "back Greek" but of needless mystery. — British Medical Journal.

Progress in Chemical Invention.

A novel and very plausible reason for the eagerness of a certain class of discoverers to give their processes patented is given by Professor Duncan of the University of Kansas in Harper's Magazine. A few years ago, we are told, the university professor who "degraded his science to utilitarian ends" became a pariah among his fellows, and to take out a patent was of all sins against the cloth the one least forgivable. It was the duty of the man of science to "give his discoveries to the world." But things are now "sweepingly different," according to Professor Duncan, and no man, no matter how noble his desires, can "give his discoveries to the world."

The author cites the case of a recent discovery in color photography to show that the patenting of a discovery actually forwards its introduction. The case in point is the process in color photography referred to by the author. The fundamental idea, and nobody would touch it. Coming to the trend of modern chemical invention, Professor Duncan says it is always and ever toward the conservation of natural products to use more valuable than those for which they were originally employed. Cheapest, improvement of product or, economy in material is aimed at.

Two new processes, both of foreign origin, are described in the article, and the writer urges American manufacturers to be alert. In Germany water is being evaporated from peat bog by electricity with the expenditure of an insignificant amount of energy, and a London chemist has succeeded in welding iron together so that the weld is "tougher than either of the metals that constitute it." The author concludes that efficiency in factory practice must necessarily follow the application of pure science to industrial ends. "Fully three-quarters of all the patents of real chemical interest are German in origin, and it is, of course, in Germany that we find efficiency in factory practice the most successful result of the operations of the American manufacturer, then, must stand or fall by the degree of efficiency he has obtained in his factory."

Little and Yet Great.

How little a thing comparatively an individual life may be and yet do great service to the world that knows it is not emphasized by the recent death of the author of the lines—

Little grains of sand,
Make the mighty strand,
And the wonder stand.

Millions of American children learned this verse and remembered it throughout life to rehearse to their own children and grandchildren. But the career and personality of the poet who penned it at the age of twenty and in the juvenile stage of our literature were known to only a handful, though she lived on over three-score years.

Mrs. Carney also wrote the poem "Dear Gently With the Erling," which became popular on its own merit, but was not so catholic in its appeal as the schoolroom gem composed by the little poetess.

Biologists with potent gate inspiration for a score of others turning upon the same wholesome sentiments. These variant thoughts in a schoolman's crowded hours may be compared to little drops of water, and for a straggler of the revolution into an ocean of influence we may turn to their contemporary schoolhouse favorite, "Tall tales from Little women crew."

Resources and the Public Good.

The Iron Trade Review suggests that the national conservation commission keep in mind the sum total of all the activities of the millions in this country who are able to do anything, while it is planning for economy in the use of the natural resources. Says this paper:

Enthusiasm and ambition are to be commended in all human effort, but the latter sometimes a question whether they are not excessive, or whether they are larger than can be maintained properly. At any rate, it is painfully evident that the rate of conservation movement is a slow statistical rather than practical thing. It may be well to learn just what our resources are, but in the long run it is more important to know what means whereby they can be conserved.

Encouragement to the use of natural resources in a way which will give the public the greatest good with the least detriment to the general welfare is another thing. The former is the line of action which most commends itself.

The "bottling" of the kaiser's hot air by the German public and the contribution in the fatherland were so eagerly illustrious, but still close enough to illustrate the play of cause and effect.

For the bearing of the popular vote upon the electoral vote the political student may get a pointer from a certain historic document known as the United States constitution.

SEASON OF BAZAARS

Baptists Bring Out Goodly Crowd, $80 the Result.

We are passing through a "Bazaar Zone" in this village at present, but the worthy causes for the benefit of which they are given, bring out the people, and at the Baptist bazaar Wednesday night the attendance was splendid.

However, where are the men at these affairs?

The ladies of the Dorcas society of the church were chief promoters and most active, but the younger women were also working for every dime to be acquired.

The donations were many; among them being a large consignment of soaps, household toilet articles and perfumes, and all the necessary red and green crepe paper, umbrellas and novelties to erect a Japanese booth given by Crofts & Reed's wholesale house of Chicago. This display attracted much attention and was secured through Mrs. George Banks. The firm's kindness is greatly appreciated.

The fancy-articles booths in green and white affairs were presided over by Mesdames Henry White, Kendall, and Colleen and Miss Dawn Silberman. Fine home made candies were sold by Misses Lawson, F. Peck, V. Lines, G. Palmer and F. Colleen in a dainty yellow and white booth.

Mesdames Keeler, Broughton, and Miss M. Peck were in the Croft & Reed booth.

Supper was served by a corps of ladies as chefs and waitresses who gave good service.

William Petters auctioneered off all unsold articles late in the evening, so that the total result is about $80.00 to be used in church work.

PARALYSIS CAUSE OF DEATH

Diedrick Minnecker, aged 75 years, was stricken with paralysis last night and died at noon today.

Hurra for the "Panama canal veteran," who is to wear a bronze medal showing that he was two years on the job. And, by the way, the job will last long enough to earn a service stripe or two in addition to the medal.

Among the earliest callers at the Outlook sanitarium to congratulate Associate Editor Roosevelt there will be a contingent of congressmen and senators wearing smiles that link ear to ear.

"Shall the people rule?" is the cry of the masses in Bulgaria, and they began knocking Prince Ferdinand the moment he declared an empire instead of a republic.

It would undoubtedly add to the happiness of New Year's if some one would publish a census of all the American peoples who are "happy though married."

"China can trot out an heir to 'my politics' any minute, for she has an assortment of all ages in the palace cod storage.

That "Order of the Eagle" badge which the kaiser pinned on the breast of Count Zeppelin is in the right place.

There was no celebration of the anniversary of the panic on the surface, but many a reminder of the event turned up under the surface.

Under parcels post the wife can make her letters too uncomfortable to be overlooked for a whole month in her husband's pocket.

Good Lecture December 7th.

Plans are in progress for the lecture on "Popular Fallacies," to be given by Rev. Ernest Wray Ouse on December 7, at the Methodist church. Mr. Ouse has an established reputation as a popular and eloquent platform speaker, and his lecture will furnish a feast for the intellect as well as a treat for the soul. You will be sorry if you miss it. It will cost you only twenty-five cents to hear it. Ouse is scholarly, witty, eloquent, fluent and fervid and "within the section," the word, as Shakespeare says, "if you think it is a sin to laugh, you would better not come."

The One-Room Country School.

The superintendent of public instruction has prepared a thirty-two page pamphlet on the one-room country school in Illinois. It contains drawings, plans and specifications for two up-to-date schoolhouses, one that can be built for about $1,400 and one that can be erected for about $1,000. The pamphlet provides for every convenience that is needed in a school building. It will enable any builder to figure closely on its cost, and the drawings are so clear that all concerned may know just what is contracted for.

Marked For Death.

"Three years ago I was marked for death," says a yard rough was tearing my lungs to pieces. Doctors failed to help me and hope had fled, when my husband got Dr. King's New Discovery," says Mrs. A. C. Williams, of Baco, Kentucky. "The first dose cured me and I immediately kept on until I had gained 58 pounds in weight and my health was fully restored. This medicine holds the world's healing record for coughs and colds and lung and throat diseases. It prevents pneumonia and influenza, give notice at Barrington Pharmacy. 50 cents and $1.00. Retail bottle free.

Return Empty Cement Bags.

All persons who have purchased cement of us during the past season are earnestly requested to return the empty cement bags either for credit or cash at once. We do not guarantee to accept bags after 30 days from date of purchase. All bags returned in good condition are worth ten cents each. Don't put it off another day. Bring them to us today.

The Woman Beautiful.

Beauty in face and form depends upon mental peace and contentment. Avoid the discomforts and troubles of traveling by using the long distant telephone. A rapid, pleasing way—most economical. Chicago Telephone Company.

The Readiness of Tommy.

"Tommy is such a good boy," says Mrs. Tullius to the minister who served the pastry. "You know, he's a choicer than pie isn't good for little boys."

That is very true, Mrs. Tullius, the minister answered. "When I was a boy I was not allowed to eat pastry, and all mothers must watch their children's very carefully."

"But I am not at all harsh with Tommy, you will understand, doctor," Mrs. Tullius went on. "Whenever I have a piece of pie I don't let Tommy eat it, for example I give him 5 cents to pay for his deprivation. And Tommy takes it so cheerfully, doc."

"Tommy is such a dear boy," Dr. Choicer said.

"I am glad to hear it, Mrs. Tullius," the minister said. "I could not think of eating less than one piece of pie, excellent it is. But I am truly glad to hear of Tommy's manliness and cheerfulness when deprived of pie. I suppose, Tommy," the clergyman went on, "you like pie?"

"Yes! It makes you take the 5 cents so cheerfully to go without."

"Oh, with the nickel I can get a whole pie at the grocery around the corner."

Not Introspective.

The minister of a large parish in a certain well-to-do town has for some time been much troubled by the scandalous gossip that seemed to be occupying the minds of a portion of his flock. Some of the most prominent people of the town were particularly great amount of fact and perseverance at last succeeded in rousing to earth the minister of most of the settlement's society slander. The gully one was a regular attendant at the schoolhouse services, and the minister knew that should he take the least notice of it and individually he would inevitably lose a sheep, albeit a black one, so he decided to sermonize him. According to a speech he made was prepared and the following Sunday afternoon literally buried at the offending member as he sat on a desk in a corner of the schoolroom. Everybody present appeared to fully appreciate the situation and at the close of the service several quizzical and somewhat thoughtfully for some—all except the black sheep, who lingered to assist "parson" to hitch up his team and to get out of the town as fast as possible. "I bet that hit him on a nut pretty hard!"—Bellman.

READ THIS AND HEED IT

A Lesson in the Recent Panic

Which Should Be a Warning.

No one can object to calling it a "property panic" if that explanation of the slump in 1907 is taken as a warning to go slow as prosperity smiles. A year is much too short a time for learning how to do without and to find the simple life agreeable all around. The "muzzed child dreads the fire" only when the burn was a smart on kind.

With the panic for texts the preaching of sermons upon the national sin of waste will continue. But the best sermon is the lesson that is burned in.

If we cannot believe that the panic was a real scourge, we can at least make sure that the property of today is the real thing before we plunge into a property gait of high living.

The Majestic.

The Majestic theater, Chicago, will have a wonderful bill of acts for the week of December 7th. A dramatic playlet from the brilliant pen of Israel Zangwill is a rare offering in vaudeville, but the Majestic announces one when his intense dramatic episode "The Never, Never Land" will be presented by Miss Helen Grantley, supported by a selected cast including Julia A. S. Lipman, Fred Lindsay, the Australian whip wonder who was a feature of the great London Hippodrome will present his great novelty act. The principal musical event of the bill will be Miss Cheridan Simpson, the American prima donna, late artist of "The Flor de Caoba." The Big City quartette has been called the "sweetest singing four in vaudeville" by eastern critics, and are at the Majestic for the first time. The Three Moshers are expert cyclists and are considered among the leading exponents of fun and skill. Fentelle and Carr are two clever singing comedians, while Le Ville and Sinclair have a novelty number consisting of eccentric dancing creations, some being dialogue or chatter and original songs. There are a number of other smart acts which promise an unusually good bill of entertainment.

A Great Lecture.

Persons who heard Bishop Quayle's great lecture last spring in Barrington were enthusiastic over it. They will be as much so over that of Rev. Ouse. He will speak at the Methodist church in Barrington, on Monday next, December 7, at 8 p. m.

The subject of the lecture will be "Popular Fallacies," a timely theme for these days of money lumbering.

Mr. Ouse has received the very highest commendation as a platform speaker and orator, and we are very confident that all who hear him will feel well repaid for the pains they take. Admission 25c.

Tuesday evening the Modern Woodmen re-elected the following officers for the ensuing year:
