VOL. 24. NO. 36

BARRINGTON, ILLINOIS, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1908

$1.50 A YEAR IN ADVANCE

WAUCONDA.

Let us all be thankful.
Miss Hazel Ehlinger is visiting relatives here this week.

The chicken pie supper was a success both socially and financially.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Carr and Jamie were Waukegan visitors Monday.

Mrs. G. W. Block and little son are here to spend the week with relatives.

Charles Clark of Clana, Illinois, is visiting his mother, Mrs. Celestial Clark.

Mrs. Clara Tidmarsh and daughter, Cora, of Elgin, visited relatives here Saturday and Sunday.

Harry Graham, James Kirwan, J. F. Henry, Henry Geary and Ray Paddock were Waukegan visitors Monday.

Miss Vera Jenks is at Deerfield and will accompany her sister, Miss Olive Jenks, home to spend Thanksgiving.

Mrs. E. A. Golding was pleasantly surprised at her home Friday evening, the event being in honor of her birthday.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fetter gathered at the Oakland hall on Saturday evening and enjoyed a pleasant time. Dancing, visiting and feasting passed the time till 11:30 when all repaired to their homes.

PALATINE.

Postmaster C. D. Taylor had charge of the massive funeral of Mr. Oils at Barrington last Friday.

Julius Christoph has sold his twelve acre farm two miles west of town to John Krug for $2,500. Mr. Christoph on account of the tragic death of his wife recently has decided to go back to the city.

William Stephens died of scarlet fever early Sunday morning after an illness of four days. The deceased was only twenty-four years old and had worked in the Bowman plant the last two years. His parents moved from here to Chillicothe, Missouri, last spring.

Dan Bergmann, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Bergmann, of Highland Grove, was married to Miss Mathilda Schaefer, of Elgin, at the home of his parents Wednesday, November 25th. They will reside in the upper flat of the Bergman residence.

This is a Christian Nation.

The first meeting this year of the Men's club was held at the M. E. church Monday evening. The attendance was not as large as it should have been.

The question for discussion was "Is Ours a Christian Nation?" Rev. Mattison read a very able paper which was well received and followed by general discussion.

It was difficult to get anyone to take the negative view and those who spoke on the negative side apparently did so against their own convictions. About the only argument used was that a country that legalized the selling of liquor could not be considered as a Christian nation. Following the program coffee and doughnuts were served in the church parlors. The next meeting will be held December 15th when C. W. Farr, assistant superintendent of Cook county schools, will be the principal speaker.

Thanksgiving Offerings.

Persons who may desire to give some practical expression to their thankfulness for the blessings of the year, may find an opportunity of doing so through the agency of the Epworth League of the Methodist Church.

The church will be open from 9:30 to 11 on Thanksgiving day, and a committee will be present to receive offerings of money, fruit or vegetables, to be applied as the donor may designate. The Agard Rest Home for Deaconesses, at Lake Bluff, has been suggested to the League as a worthy object of their thanksgiving offering, and to this place doubtless most of the offerings will go.

Youth Blind From Overstudy.

Blindness caused by overstudy has overtaken Jacob Schwartz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Schwartz of Waukegan. The young man has been a student at Lake Forest university. He undertook much outside work in addition to his college studies, being editor of the Annual and a member of several debating teams. He was forced to study constantly late into the night to keep up with his classes. Monday he awoke to find that he was blind. He is under the care of Chicago specialists.

Special Notice to Woodmen.

Notice is given that at the next regular meeting, December 1, of the Woodmen, there will be an election of officers. All members are requested to attend.

WILLIAM GRUNAU, Clerk.

SCHOOL NOTES.

The second year German class have begun reading a new book, "Hohes als dir Kirche."

The 100 per cent record in spelling for last week in Miss Paddock's room was attained by Irene Fuesle.

All the grades made extensive preparations for Thanksgiving programs which were given Wednesday afternoon.

The Laurean literary society held an open meeting Wednesday, November 25th, in the assembly room, rendering an appropriate program in honor of the season.

Those who have been perfect in spelling during the week ending November 25th in Miss Matthews's room are—John Frey, Alice Thies, Florence Fuesle and Mina Jacobson.

The boys of the Barrington high school have organized a club for practice in public speaking. Meetings will be held in the assembly room of the high school, the first and third Mondays of each month. Officers will be elected to serve for two meetings. The present officers are—George Wilburn, president, and Newton Plagge, secretary. The club held its first regular meeting Monday evening.

QUENTIN CORNERS.

Our long wanted rain has arrived. Fred Kleinschmidt's horse he sickness this week.

Charles Landwehr is again under the care of the doctor.

John Witt is building an addition to his residence at present.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Herman Junber, on November 16th, an eleven and one half pound girl.

Jacob Sturm, Jr., has had a new Fairbanks & Morse steel windmill installed. Charles Weste was the chief and to say everything went off O. K. is putting it mild.

LAKE ZURICH.

Henry Pepper is visiting relatives in Born, Kansas.

English services will be conducted on Thanksgiving evening in St. Peter's church.

D. Pepper is recovering from his shock after having been confined to the bed for nearly a week.

Mrs. Laudsiegal was so fortunate as to again be able and strong enough to attend services last Sunday.

Belihart Dead.

Jacob Belihart, 42 years old, head of the Spirit Fruit movement in this country died at the Lake county colony located at Wooster lake, 20 miles north of Barrington, Tuesday, November 24. Last Saturday, Mr. Belihart was operated on for appendicitis by Dr. Foley of Waukegan. While the operation was successful it was found that the disease was too far advanced to insure successful treatment.

Belihart was formerly located at Liston, Ohio, but was threatened with lynching and was obliged to seek another location, coming to Lake county. The colony at Wooster lake owns 300 acres of land and a large cement block building that would accommodate 50 to 75 persons. At present there is only 12 persons at the colony. He advocated men and women living together without the formality of a marriage service. His divorced wife and children are living in Kansas.

Good Lecture December 7th.

Make place in your plans for the lecture on "Popular Fallacies," to be given by Rev. Ernest Wray Oneal on December 7, at the Methodist church. Mr. Oneal has an established reputation as a popular and eloquent platform speaker, and his lecture will equal that given by Dr. Quayle last spring. You will be sorry if you miss it. It will cost you only twenty-five cents to hear it. Oneal is scholarly, witty, eloquent, fluent and fervid and "suits the action to the word," as Shakespeare says. If you think it is a sin to laugh, you would better not come.

The Woman Beautiful.

Beauty in face and form depends upon mental peace and contentment. Avoid the discomforts and troubles of traveling by using the long distant telephone. A rapid, pleasing way—and economical. Chicago Telephone Company.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to express our sincere thanks to the many friends, for their kindness and assistance during the illness and death of our husband and father.

MRS. ANNA OTIS AND FAMILY.

The custom of keeping birthdays, many thousands of years old. Pharaoh's birthday festivities are mentioned in the Pentateuch.

New York has discovered a new and unique use for prisoners. In other words, he saw no way of saving his own life except to be locked up. As he was of refuge this is a decidedly new role for prisoners to play. And the incident does not speak in trumpet praise for the metropolis' ability to protect life.

William M. Chase, at the request of the Italian government, painted a portrait of himself this summer to hang in the saloon of modern painters in the Uffizi palace in Florence. The picture was done at a single sitting of three hours. It hangs opposite a portrait of John Singer Sargent, also painted by the subject at the request of the government. The only other portrait of an American painter in the gallery is that of G. P. A. Healy. Two saloons of painters in the palace contain the portraits of famous artists of all nations nearly all done by the artists themselves.

The French censors which has ordered 50 aeroplanes of the type designed by American inventors refuse to explain as to what use the flying machines will be put, saying the matter is a secret, but it is intimated in dispatches from Paris that the aeroplanes will be for naval purposes, and that hereafter such appliances may be expected to play an important part in war maneuvers on the water. And those who are watching the experiments at Fort Myer, Va., are certain the army must have flying machines. Things are being revolutionized rapidly.

What Is Hell?

Whatever It May Be It's Not Annihilation

By REV. DR. ROBERT S. MACARTHUR, New York.

We do not understand our Lord to speak of literal fire. Literal fire could act only on material bodies, but the devil and his angels have no such bodies, and yet we are told that they are to suffer the torments of eternal fire. Neither do we suppose that streets of gold and gates of pearl constitute the essential elements of heaven, but they are symbols of the purity of heart and life, and the glory of the environment, of its blessed inhabitants. In like manner the material descriptions of hell are the best pictures of the unutterable wretchedness of its guilty subjects.

We speak of hell as a place, but its essential elements, as we have already implied, are found in the inward conditions and not the outward circumstances. The external and material description is the reflection of the internal and spiritual condition.

If we study carefully the account of man's creation we shall see that his soul was made in the image of God and that it partakes of God's immortality. When God breathed into him the breath of life and he became a living soul he partook of the immortality of the Creator himself.

To assume that when eternal death is threatened annihilation is declared is to rob the word of God of its glory, and language of its true significance. We know that the world is to be burned up, but we know also that combustion is not annihilation.

In no instance are we warranted in saying that God will ever destroy a human soul. He certainly does not destroy Satan. Nowhere are we taught that death is a cessation of being. Annihilation, furthermore, is contradictory to all the passages of Scripture which represent punishment as eternal.

The interpretation which closes hell closes heaven. The egress which would end the sufferings of the lost must end also the blessedness of the saved; the reasoning which would make the sufferings of the wicked cease would bring the existence of God to an end.

Selfish Egotism and Wife Murder

By UGO GIETTL, Famous Italian Revd.

Which is the more respected, a deceived husband who puts his wife out of his house, or an assassin? At first, while the revolver is still hot or the knife still bloody, public opinion, at any rate in the primitive state of civilization in which Italian morals rest to-day, may be favorable to the wife-slayer, although an instinctive generosity makes it more favorable to one who kills a man, his rival, than to one who kills a woman, defenseless and ill.

But we must accompany the wife-slayer beyond his crime, beyond his trial, beyond his probable acquittal. He is a man condemned to live alone forever. Between him and his most intimate friends, if he still have any, there will always be the remembrance and the red shadow of his crime. In all men, even the freest, and in the vilest, the instinct of respect for human life, except in the fleeting intoxication of passion, is profound, unconquerable, constantly watchful, because it is founded on the most reasonable of selfishness—love of one's own self.

So long as the wife-slayer struggles, defends himself, despairs, and especially declaims, the listening crowd is moved. But when he has returned to his normal life, and with his emotions the emotions of the spectators have died out, then the assassin, even though acquitted and applauded, becomes again merely an assassin—that is, he excites a shudder which is a form of potential fear and is stronger than all grandiloquence about his honor and his crimes of honor. It is even felt that honor is nothing but a rhetoric veil of egotism; that the hero is rather he who in battle has killed thousands of persons in defense of our lives, our possessions, our present and future peace, and never the wretched man who has slain to defend his own caprice, his own passion, his own pride, his own property. Such a man, then, appears to us what he really is—a pitiful and crazy egotist.

And men never understand the egotism of others.

HENRY ON LAWMAKERS

BY GEO. V. HOBART, ("HUGH M'HUGH.")

Dear Bunch: I've been in this burg for a few hours mingling with the lawmakers, and it isn't such expensive mingling at that—only about 50 kopecks to the hour.

This afternoon I was introduced to a couple of hand-made politicians, and they certainly did hand me a scream.

These two language-killers have been political enemies for years, and every time they meet they simply stand around and throw worn-out words at each other.

One of them listens to the name of Mike, and the other will squeeze up to the bar and nominate his brew if you call him Rudolph.

As for their last names—well, in interests of good government I won't mention them.

Suffice it to say that Mike bears the same relation to Albany politics that a mustard plaster does to a cold on the chest—even if he doesn't get there, he leaves his mark.

When Mike reached the age of discretion he decided to become a great man, so he opened a saloon and became.

I was standing in front of the Ten Eyck talking with Mike when Rudolph, his lifelong opponent, bore down upon us.

Just to show me a good time, Mike immediately stopped Rudolph and asked him if business was good in his lemon factory.

"It's all right," roared Rudolph, like an old war-borne answering the bugle-call. "I challenge you to a joint debate!"

"All right," said Mike. "Let us go to my joint and have it."

They did so, and I followed on. Never before in Albany were there so many quick questions and loose answers.

Epigrams flowed like water. "Two beers—what will you have?" inquired Mike.

"Make mine the same," answered Rudolph.

"You are my opponent, I believe?" said Mike.

"Your belief gives me much pleasure," said Rudolph, with a tall, fat bow.

"How long have you been in politics?" asked Mike.

"Not so long as to be out," answered Rudolph.

"I suppose you for Rudolph," said the referee.

"One what?" asked Mike.

"Make it a beer," answered Rudolph.

"Do you know Demosthenes?" asked Mike, winking at the bartender.

"Yes; his first name is Abe, and he works in a seagorero near the N. Y. Central depot," said Rudolph.

Mike began to look worried.

"I wish to conduct this joint debate along literary lines," said Mike.

"All right," said Rudolph; "make mine the same."

"Do you know Socrates?" asked Mike.

"Do you mean the guy that runs the

PER-RI-NA AS A LAST RESORT

MR. WM. F. VAHLBERG, Mr. William F. Vahlberg, Oklahoma City, Okla., writes: "One bottle of Peruna which I have taken did more toward relieving me of an aggravated case of catarrh of the stomach, than years of treatment with the best physicians."

"I had given up hopes of relief, and only tried Peruna as a last resort. I shall continue using it, as I feel satisfied it will effect an entire and permanent cure."

"I most cheerfully recommend Peruna to all who may read this." Peruna is usually taken as a last resort. Doctors have been tried and failed. Other remedies have been used. Sanitariums have been visited. Travel has been resorted to.

At last Peruna is tried. Relief is found. This history is repeated over and over again, every day in the year. It is such results as this that gives Peruna its unassailable hold upon the people. We could say nothing that would add force to such testimonials as the above. That people who have had catarrh and have tried every other remedy available, find relief in Peruna, constitutes the best argument that could be made.

DR. D. JAYNE'S Expectorant has been successful for seventy-eight years in curing Colds, Coughs, Bronchitis, and Pleurisy. It is also a standard remedy for Croup, Whooping Cough, Inflammation of the Lungs or Chest and Asthma.

Cure your cold now—go to your drugstore and get a bottle of Dr. D. Jayne's Expectorant. Three sizes: 10c, 50c, and 25c.

Dr. D. Jayne's Tonic Vermifuge will build you up splendidly if "run down" from a severe cold.

Western Canada MORE BIG CROPS IN 1908

Another 60,000 acres from the United States and Canada are now open for settlement. 320 acres of land to each settler, $1.00 free homestead and 160 at $3.00 per acre.

A vast rich country and a contented prosperous people. Extract from correspondence of National Editor, Chicago, Ill., to the Western Canada, in August, 1907, was an illustration.

Mary has been sold to the best of the best farms and had a balance of from $10.00 to $20.00 per acre as a result of crop.

Spring wheat, winter wheat, barley, flax and peas are the principal crops, while the wild grasses bring to perfection the best cattle that have ever been sold on the Chicago market.

Splendid climate, schools and churches in all localities. Railways touch most of the settled districts, and prices for produce are always good. Lands may also be purchased from railway and land companies.

The Tramp and the "Transient"

By W. H. YEN, Detroit.

When the average citizen passes a ragged, shambling bit of humanity on the street, he is apt to repeat to himself: "Only a tramp," and to let them go at that. He thinks that he knows. He is not likely to reflect that the uncouth is "a bit of humanity," nor is he inclined to trouble himself as to the "why" of the man's condition.

The word "tramp" is used to characterize a multitude of men who deserve a better name. Webster tells us it is "often used in a bad sense for a vagrant or wandering vagabond."

Those who come in close contact with men who travel over the country draw a line between the so-called "tramp" and the "transient." The former is a very small class compared with the latter. During 1907 the McGregor mission became the temporary home for 7,300 different men, which means that on an average of 20 new men applied for a lodging each night of the year, and that does not take account of those who came back more or less frequently. It would be placing the figures altogether too high to say that the "three hundred" represented the number of loneside tramps—the men who will not work, but who only work those who do work.

As a matter of fact, the real "gentleman of the road" does not often avail himself of the accommodations of a carefully managed mission or lodging house. He fears a too close contact with bath, fumigation or the woodpile. For him the "side-door Pullman" or the docks offer better attractions for a place in which to stop Morpheus.

One of Them Listens to the Name of Mike.

butcher-shop over at Troy?" said Rudolph.

"No," said Mike; "the Socrates I mean is dead."

"Cut out the dead ones—they don't vote," said Rudolph.

"Score another for Rudolph," said the referee.

"Make mine the same," said Rudolph.

"What is politics?" inquired Mike.

"Politics is where we get it—some time in the neck and sometimes in the bank," answered Rudolph.

"You're full of wisdom, ain't you?" said Mike.

"Yes; but I'm willing to get it wet—another beer, please!" said Rudolph.

"Time!" said the referee; "take your corners!"

"Now," said Mike; "you ask me some questions."

"What is a politician?" asked Rudolph.

"A politician is the reason we have so much politics," answered Mike.

Much applause fell the hands of those present.

"What is a statesman?" inquired Rudolph.

"A statesman is a politician in a glass case," answered Mike.

"Do you believe that all men are born equal?" said Rudolph.

"Sure I do," said Mike; "but some are lucky enough to get over it."

"The joint debate is finished!" exclaimed the referee.

"What is the result?" inquired Mike.

"About right, both in the end and in rounds of beer on the house," said the bartender.

JOHN D. IS QUIZZED

SHARP CROSS-EXAMINATION OF STANDARD OIL CHIEF.

IMMENSE PROFITS SHOWN

Earnings of the Octopus in 1907 Were About $50,000,000—Witness' Memory Concerning Rebates Is Not Good.

New York. — For over five hours Friday John D. Rockefeller, witness for the defense in the government suit to dissolve the Standard Oil Company, faced an unceasing fire of questions from the federal counsel, Frank H. Kellogg, and when adjournment was taken until Monday the head of the oil combine was still being cross-examined on the charges that the company in its early days secured rebates to the disadvantage of its rivals.

Mr. Rockefeller's cross-examination will probably not be concluded until late Tuesday, as Mr. Kellogg made it known that he would inquire into every detail of the company's business.

Enormous Earnings Shown.
The enormous earning power of the oil combination was sharply brought out in Friday's hearing when Mr. Rockefeller, after testifying that the Standard had paid dividends amounting to $10,000,000 in 1907, said it had earned as much more and that this was added to the company's profits, which was stated by the government's counsel to be $30,000,000. It was further stated by Mr. Kellogg that the company within the last few years had earned nearly half a billion dollars.

The course of Mr. Rockefeller's testimony in the hands of government counsel ran not so smoothly as on Thursday when he told his story under the direction of friendly counsel, but the rapid fire interrogations of the prosecutor were always met with unshaken imperturbability and readiness to answer except when, as he explained:

"It is quite impossible for me to remember after 25 years. I do not recall."

Remembers Only One Rebate.
Mr. Rockefeller was questioned closely regarding rebates which the Standard was charged with receiving. But with the exception of one shipment with the Pennsylvania railroad, which Mr. Rockefeller explained, gave the Standard a rebate because it effected an equalization of oil shipments, he could not recall any other rebates, though he thought it was likely that he might have heard of it at the time.

The president of the Standard Oil Company when he learned that the government would not be able to conclude the cross-examination by Saturday night, suggested an adjournment until Monday, which was agreed to by counsel.

Cross-Examined by Kellogg.
New York. With the telling of the story of the first score of years of the industrial development of the Standard Oil Company, the testimony of John D. Rockefeller, president of the oil combine, on cross-examination in the federal suit to dissolve the Standard Company, was brought to an unexpected close Thursday afternoon.

The head of the Standard told of the processes and causes of the company's growth up to the trust agreement of 1882 and, after he identified the parties to that agreement, counsel for the defense announced that Mr. Rockefeller had concluded his direct testimony and requested an adjournment until Friday.

Friday found Mr. Rockefeller on the witness stand under the sharp fire of the cross-examination by Frank H. Kellogg, special assistant attorney general, prosecuting the case for the government. The cross-examination by the government will be confined to the period from 1862 to 1882, except where the testimony has direct bearing on developments in the company's affairs in its later period.

New Revolution in Haiti.
Port au Prince, Haiti.—Gen. Antoine Simon, commander of the south for 20 years, having refused to comply with the recent request of President Nord Alexis to come to Port au Prince and confer with the president on the political situation, has been declared a rebel.

The revolutionary movement appeared to be serious, as Gen. Simon is in the possession of arms and ammunition. Communication with the south is interrupted.

AWFUL BLAST FATAL TO 25

GAS EXPLOSION IN BROOKLYN TEARS UP A STREET.

One Woman, Five Children and About Nineteen Workmen Killed—Remarkable Escape of Four Laborers.

New York. — Twenty-five persons are believed to have lost their lives in an explosion of gas which tore up a great section of Gold street, Brooklyn, Friday. It is definitely known that 15 persons were buried under the hundreds of tons of earth and timber that were thrown into the air by the explosion, and ten more persons are reported as missing.

The exact number of dead cannot be determined yet, for those working to recover the entombed bodies must dig through 50 feet of dirt, rock and a tangle of pipes and timbers.

The explosion occurred in a 50-foot deep excavation that had been made in Gold street between York and Front streets where a water main was being laid. The gas main recently sprung a leak and in a manner unsprung a spark came in contact with escaping gas.

Immediately there was a terrific explosion that lifted the surface of the street for half a block in both directions and hurled dirt, paving stones and debris into the air.

Gold street was crowded with school children when the explosion occurred, and that score of children were not killed or injured was remarkable. A woman and three children were almost opposite the excavation when the earth crumbled under their feet and they were swept down into the hole under tons of wreckage.

Two other children were on the opposite side of the street when the side walk caved in and they lost their lives.

Only four of the men working in the excavation escaped, and their escape was remarkable. These men were digging near the opening of a four-foot sewer where the force of the explosion blew them to the entrance of it. Arthur Strand was hurled farthest in and he pulled the other men after him from the broken main before it poured into the sewer and the four men, in danger of being drowned, ran to the river where there was an outlet to the sewer.

Cleveland, O.—Mayor Tom L. Johnson, who for years has been credited with possession of a very large fortune, Thursday announced that he had lost everything and would be compelled to leave his mansion.

The president of the Standard Oil Company when he learned that the government would not be able to conclude the cross-examination by Saturday night, suggested an adjournment until Monday, which was agreed to by counsel.

CHILDREN CONTRACT PLAGUE

FOUR HAVE FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE IN DANVILLE, PA.

Officials Believe Spread of Contagion Will Be Checked—Cattle Shipments Are Stopped.

Washington.—Alarming results following the outbreak of a contagious foot and mouth disease in New York and Pennsylvania, existing in those states to be quarantined against interstate shipments of cattle, etc., were shown Friday in advice which reached Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, stating that four children in Danville, Pa., had contracted the disease.

A rigid investigation is in progress in Danville and elsewhere to determine whether others have become similarly affected. The officials believe that the spread of the contagion will be checked, although admitting that the situation is grave and will require energetic and concerted action by the state and federal authorities.

New York. — Cattle shipments to foreign ports from New York and Philadelphia were brought to an abrupt close Friday by the quarantine established in this state and in Pennsylvania on account of the outbreak of the foot and mouth disease.

The quarantine did not affect ports outside of New York and Philadelphia, except as to cattle from the two states affected by the ruling. Western cattle and the Central Union Telephone Company (Bell long distance system) and the Central Union Telephone Company (Bell company operating in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois), restraining them from interfering with the business of the independent companies operating in those and adjoining states.

The injunction was granted upon the application of the independent companies, and James S. Hralley, Jr., president of the United States Telephone Company, which is the independent long distance telephone company operating in Ohio and adjoining states, in a suit brought by that company.

BIG LABOR BODIES MEET.
Building Trades and Railroad Employers Convene at Denver.

Denver.—Two national labor bodies, adjuncts to the American Federation of Labor, convened here Monday. Three hundred delegates representing over 1,000,000 men, are the building trades and railroad employees departments, the latter organization of 500,000 men formed in Denver on Saturday last. The building trades department represents about 600,000 men, and the first session was called to order by James Kirby of Chicago, a leader in the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners.

H. B. Perham, president of the Order of Railway Employees together, and P. J. Flannery of Chicago, president of the International Freight Handlers, was the secretary.

Insane Farmer Kills Nephew.
Danville, Ky.—Hugh Thompson, a wealthy young farmer, became suddenly insane Thursday and shot and killed his nephew, Frederick Garrison, aged 18 years. The boy after being shot fired one shot at his uncle, the bullet lodging in a lower limb. The wound, it is believed, will prove fatal because of the large amount of blood lost. Thompson had only recently been released from an insane asylum.

Bad Tragedy in New York.
New York.—Lying side by side on the floor of their apartment in the Bronx, the bodies of Charles A. Walters, an aged veteran of the civil war, and his daughter, Emma, 40 years old, were found Sunday. The room was filled with gas and all the coals of a gas stove were turned on. It is the theory of the coroner that Miss Walters died first and that her death was due to heart disease. Later, the coroner thinks, the father entered and upon beholding the body of his daughter, committed suicide.

Two Tornadoes Sweep Over Western Arkansas.
PROPERTY LOSS IS GREAT
Many Towns Partly Laid in Ruins by the Furious Storms—Details Are Slow in Coming In.

Little Rock, Ark.—Two tornadoes, one going east and the other south-west, swept over west Arkansas Monday afternoon, destroying many lives and much property. All means of communication were destroyed and only indefinite reports have come from the districts visited by the tornado. From reports received at least thirty lives were lost. The property loss will reach hundreds of thousands of dollars.

One tornado started in the extreme southwestern part of the state and went north, following the second tier of counties from the western boundary line. The other started in the northwestern corner of the state and went south.

The property loss will reach hundreds of thousands of dollars.

One tornado started in the extreme southwestern part of the state and went north, following the second tier of counties from the western boundary line. The other started in the northwestern corner of the state and went south.

The counties through which the tornado passed are Lafayette, Columbia, Miller, Pike, Howard, Hempstead, Montgomery, Yell, Pope, Johnson, Franklin and Carroll.

According to advices received, the storm was at its height when it swept through Piney, a German settlement on the Iron Mountain railroad between Knoxville and London. Late reports from Russellville, the nearest town with which communication can be had, are that between twelve and twenty persons were killed and many others injured at that place.

Five lives are also reported to have been lost ten miles from Mulberry, where one of the tornadoes did great damage.

The storm also visited Ozark, whence nothing has been heard yet; Lodi, near Texarkana, where three buildings were destroyed and a woman injured; Lewisville, in Lafayette county, where great damage was done to timber and fences, and several buildings destroyed; Berryville, where eight people were injured but not seriously, and a number of residences were wrecked; Fulton, where great damage is reported and Jethro and Wallersville, which towns are reported to have been completely wrecked.

Some reports stated that nothing had been left in many districts, that homes, timber, buildings, fences and everything had been uprooted and blown to bits.

A report from Fort Smith states that it seemed that 25 miles are lost in towns outside of Piney and Mulberry. This dispatch declares the destruction of the town of Craven was complete. Four persons were killed, two fatally injured and eight missing at that place.

Gov. Deneen Claims Control.
Gov. Deneen claimed he had won his fight to secure control of the senate organization in the next general assembly.
He claimed 20 sure supporters, a sufficient number to control the Republican caucus, and an additional six "friendly" members who would support his bills.
If he can control 26 members, the governor can put through the senate any legislation he may desire, as the 26 comprise a constitutional majority.

The governor also is claiming control of the next house.

ONE KIDNEY GONE

But Cured After Doctors Said There Was No Hope.

Sylvanus O. Verrill, Milford, Me., says: "Five years ago a bad injury paralyzed me and affected my kidneys. My back hurt me terribly, and the urine was badly discolored. Doctors said my right kidney was practically dead. They said I could never walk again. I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. One box made me stronger and freer from pain. I kept on using them and in three months was able to get out on crutches, and the kidneys were acting better. I improved rapidly, discarded the crutches and to the wonder of my friends was soon completely cured."

NO SKIN LEFT ON BODY.

For Six Months Baby Was Expected to Die with Eczema—Now Well—Doctor Said to Use Cuticura.

"Six months after birth my little girl broke out with eczema and I had two doctors in attendance. There was not a particle of skin left on her body, the blood oozed out just anywhere, and we had to wrap her in silk and carry her on a pillow for ten weeks. She was the most terrible sight I ever saw, and for six months I looked for her to die. I used every known remedy to alleviate her suffering, for it was terrible to witness. Dr. D. recommended the Cuticura Remedies. She will soon be three years old and has never had a sign of the dread trouble since. We used about eight cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment. James J. Dunn, Durand, Va., Oct. 14 and 22, 1906."

A MATTER OF HEREDITY.

Agnes Had Only Followed in the Footsteps of Her Mother.

Even if there had not been kernels of rice on her hat and a glad light of love in her eye any bachelor could have told that she was a bride. And the manner in which she spoke to her husband showed they had not been married long.
"A man in the passing crowd spoiled the couple, and rushed over to greet the bride.
"Well, well, Agnes," he cried, extending his hand, "you don't mean to say that you're married?"
"Why—yes, why," the girl stammered, vivid color mounting to her cheeks, as she tried to defend her novel situation. "You—know, it runs in the family. Mother was married, too."

Always Exciting.

FOUR LEGGED TURKEY

BY FRANK H. SWEET

COPYRIGHT 1908 BY FRANK H. SWEET

"See, it's better!"

"WELL, mother, if tomorrow ain't Thanksgiving," said Jacob Bennett, broaching the subject as if it had just occurred to him, though one might have known by the troubled expression on his kindly face that it had been for some time under serious consideration. He was putting the finishing touches on a whetstone to an ax as it he held on his knee.

Looking at Jacob with indifferent interest was a boy of fourteen years, who sat curled up in a comfortable position on the floor of the low, that bottomed chair, his elbows on a knee, his chin in his hand, thankful that the labor of turning the grindstone was accomplished.

At one of the two windows which opened into the room, stood the child of a woman whom Jacob addressed. "Why, so 'tis Thanksgiving, father!" she exclaimed, her tone dissembling surprise more artfully than her face which she did not venture to turn to him, for she knew that there were tears on her cheeks.

Since she and Jacob were married all their Thanksgivings had been spent in the homely comfort of the "old place," as they always called their little home on the hundred acre farm. Almost a year ago they were forced to give it up because Jacob had signed the notes of a speculating friend. Home, farm and stock went to pay another man's debts, and Jacob was left penniless on the verge of old age, with a wife as old as he, an invalid daughter and a son scarcely old enough to earn his own living. It did not console him to remember Bently's assurance, as the speculator set forth with unabated faith in quest of fresh fields.

"Never you fear, Jacob, old man. I'll fix things all right yet," Bently had said.

Jacob bore his changed fortune patiently, and set himself to earn what he could by day labor for the support of his family. He was faithfully aided by his wife and their invalid daughter, who was cunning with her needle. More than by aught else he was cheered by the brave spirit with which his wife bore their misfortune, never offering him the cold consolation of "I told you so."

She covertly wiped her cheeks with the corner of her apron and turned from the window.

"Yes, it certainly is, an' I ain't got anything ready for't, only some pumpkin pie."

"Wash," said Jacob, "pumpkin pie is just the thing for Thanksgiving."

"Of course they be, but they kinder want something to help 'em out, seem's to me."

"An' we ain't got a thing perished, only pork an' potatoes."

"An' onions," Jacob suggested.

"Why," said the daughter, lifting her pale, patient face, lighted with a smile, from her sewing, "with pork fried as mother fries it, an' such potatoes as we've got, an' onions an' pumpkin pie, I don't know what better anybody need ask for. I'm sure we can be thankful with it an' for it."

"You're always thankful," said her mother, "Thankful by name an' thankful by nature. We named you well."

"Why can't we have a turkey, same's we used to?" asked the boy without changing his position or diverting his gaze from his father's occupation.

"Turkey costs money," said his father, "when you don't raise 'em."

"An' that we haven't done," said the mother, "we've got a chicken, when I'm glad we haven't, for they'd scratch up the hull garden, it be so close to the house. A garden's with more'n chickens to eat. Still, I wish we had one for Thanksgiving. But we'll try to be thankful for what we've got, as Thankful says."

"An' that's considerable compared to what some folks got," Jacob said. "We've got a good roof over our heads, an' we an' Bently's earnings money enough to pay the rent on't for six months to come. We chop an' put up two cord a day. I tell you, Bently's gettin' to be a master hand with his ax. An' now 'at he's got a chance to do chores for his board an' go to school he's fixed complete for winter."

"An' Bently's money says 'I can come home every Sunday'" cried Bub.

"An' I'm glad to get such lots of sewin'," said Thelma. "I can earn a dollar every week."

"An' we're all to'able well," said Jacob, looking over at his daughter, the father supplemented his remark with, "That is, we haven't no wuss."

"An' best of all is we've got one mother," said his wife.

"That's so, Mahaly," he said fervently. "Was, my little fat chicken," addressing the boy as he arose and laid the whetstone on the crowded mantelpiece, "if mother's got our dinner put up we'll be off."

The tin dinner pail was ready at hand, and, shouldering their axes, the father and son trudged across the fields, making a new brown path through the upturned winter wheat.

"Mahaly Bennett sighed, and I did not to early fast things an' havin' our friends come. Hey, ho, hum! It seems sometimes as if our friends had gone with the turkeys."

"Oh, no, mother. They give us work, an' that's the best thing they could do for us. But if they all forsook us we've got one mother, as you just said."

"So we have, dear heart, an' whilst we have we can't be thankful enough. I'm thankful there's some folks sensible enough to 'preciate good ol' fashioned yarn mittens," she remarked as she looped blue yarn on a needle with her finger.

"Mittens, down to the Holler, as he'd call 'em, I can knit for a month, an' three pairs a week ain't no great strain."

The bracing air, tempered by unclouded sunlight, stirred the blood of the man and boy alike with healthful vigor as they trudged across the fields and entered the woods. Every brown, outstretched twig, every thorn, close crisscrossed and its cooling and cap of pearl gleaming in sunlight or blue in shadow, and the ranks of corded wood were dotted with it.

The new covering was already marked with the tracks of scampering squirrels, the broad pads of hares, the pronounced print of the partridge's dainty course, the dainty seam of wood mouse paths.

Birds gave audible proof that they were swift and alert now. A party of jays screamed in discordant unison, chickadees and nuthatches called and piped, a woodpecker hammered industriously for his hard earned breakfast, a partridge went booming away like a gray rocket with a trail of snow cloud trailing softly and silently behind his noisy course, and a red squirrel leered at the two intruders.

The boy's ears were alert for all sounds and sights. He had delivered the first ax stroke upon the bole of a great basswood his attention was attracted by a strange track that ended at its foot.

"Oh, father," he cried, "what kind of a track's this? It looks just like a little boy's bare foot!"

"Why, Ike, it's a coon, an' he's laid up for the winter in this here tree. See, it's better. An' there's the hole up there 'at he went in. Now, we'll just have his pelt nailed up on the wood shed door. I shouldn't wonder if it was pretty high prize, for it's laid there it's to get so in. They say fur's good in every month that's got an 'r' in it, but it ain't—not in September nor scarcely in October—an' it begins to get faded in April, some kinds does. But now it's most December, an' an' we'll just go for the feller, see?"

"An' we're goin' to get down half a cord o' wood at the same lick. Look out sharp at the hole when the tree comes down, for like's not hell cut an' run. We'll fall it right in here where it's all clear."

So saying, he drove his ax to the eye in the soft wood, while Isaac with a right good will delivered his less effective strokes on the other side.

When Jacob had driven his keef a little beyond the decayed center and paxed the ground about him with broad chips almost as white as the snow, he stepped back a real high and went around to the other side.

"Now, Ike, you just start off out there an' keep your eye on the hole that minute the tree falls, an' if he offers to come out 'fore I git there whack him on the head."

Jacob spat upon his hands and resumed his chopping, exclaiming with each blow a gasping "hab" that seemed to double his force, and Isaac took his post with eyes fixed on the trunk where the first branches split abroad.

"Now the great tree shivered at every stroke, then tottered on its sapless foundations and went down with an accelerated sweep and a final crashing boom."

In the succeeding moment of silence the echoes, so suddenly awakened, died from the comfortable winter's nap into which he had just fallen, protruded his black and gray head from the bole and, barely dodging the blow that Isaac aimed at him, came scrambling out with more speed than his short legs would seem to warrant. A surer blow from the more deliberate hand of Jacob prevented his escape.

With a shout of triumph at the unexpected sight, Isaac lifted the limp form by the hind legs and heaved it across the fallen trunk.

"Sakes alive, father, he's as heavy as a pig. You just heft him."

"Well, it is a good one—fifteen pounds or upwaid," said Jacob after careful and deliberate hand weighing. "An' just feel o' the fur—as thick as wool! I reckon his pelt 'll fetch half a dollar, an' you shall have it all. Now let's skin him 'fore he gets cold."

"It looks good enough to eat," said the boy when the skinned carcass was laid along the trunk. "Ain't coons good to eat?"

"Some folks does eat 'em an' allows they're as good as roast pig."

"Say, father, why can't we have it for Thanksgiving?"

"Shh! but your mother wouldn't touch it. She spleens again all wild over ever since your Uncle Isaac blowed off his fingers bustin' a gun a-shootin' a partridge. I don't 'bserve sherd cook it, to say nothin' o' eatin' o' it."

"It looks just as good as a pig, an' I don't see why it ain't," persisted Isaac, with watchful eyes upon the game.

Then, inspired by a naughty thought, he said, "Say, father, why can't we tell mother it's a pig?"

"She, huh! that 'ould be lyin'," said his father in mild reproach as he cut off the feet and long, bony tail. "But," he said at last, smiling quizzically on the boy, "I don't know we're obliged to tell a body exactly what it is. We'll carry it home an' see. Now we'll go down to the brook an' wash our hands, an' then we'll go to work."

As Isaac dabbled in the clear cold water his wandering glances caught the gleam of scarlet fur up the brook, and he presently returned from a tour of investigation with several clusters of bright red berries.

"Cranberries," he exclaimed. "And there's snags of 'em."

"Good!" said his father. "They make just as good snags as the bare cranberries, only seedier. We'll carry home some on 'em, an' they'll go prime with the spouth, Mahaly. Maybe they want the skin and maybe that's their way o' dressin' 'em. Just look at the cranberries he's fetched. He's found 'em in the woods, an' ain't they nice ones?"

While the attention of the mother and daughter was diverted to the black bark basket of berries, he, with some qualms of conscience, bore his prize to the cellar.

As the best forenoon advanced the little kitchen was filled with a savory odor of baking meat and boiling onions, that, whenever the door was opened, escaped abroad in appetizing whiffs that made Isaac's mouth water.

The old clock never before ticked off the seconds as deliberately and its hands never lagged along their circular path so slowly as on this day. But at last the hour hand arrived at the figure 2, the minute hand again reached 12, the long, purring note of preparation sounded. As the second hour was struck the little family gathered around the bountiful board and waited, with bowed heads while the father devoutly thanked the Giver of all blessings.

"Now, mother, what part of the—ah—critter will you try?" Jacob asked as he skillfully carved the inviting roast.

"A leetle of the brownest, please, Jacob, an' not but a mile. I've been over it so much I don't seem to hanker after it."

No one but Jacob noticed that she tasted it cautiously and experimentally. His fears were soon relieved by seeing that her appetite grew with what it fed upon and were quite dispelled when she permitted him to help her again.

When the dessert of pumpkin pie was being served Jacob beamed a com placent smile upon his family and said: "Now 'at we've cut our Thanksgiving to meat I'm goin' to make bold to ask you one an' all if it wasn't good?"

With one voice they assented. "An' you needn't tell me, Jacob," said his wife, shaking with laughter. "It was coon!"

"How on earth did you know, Mahaly?"

"Why, I smiled at first you was a foolin', an' when I see a great long black and white hair into the nest I knew it wasn't no pig that it ever growed on, an' when I come to find the ring tailed skin under a barrel in the wood shed it was all plain."

"An' you went right on an' cooked it an' eat of it all just to please me an' the children? Now, I say for it, Mahaly Bennett, you be a good woman!"

She poured out a second cup of tea, cleared her throat and began with hesitating words:

"I kind of forgot—an'—kind of hated to tell you what Miss Barker said yesterday, Jacob."

He looked at her inquiringly with a piece of pumpkin pie within an inch of his open mouth.

"Miss Barker's cousin 'at has been out west they see Abram Bently, an' the land he bought out there ten years ago for most nothin' has ris so on ac-

"WHERE IN THE LIVIN' EARTH DID YOU OEE THAT FIG?"

our roast pig or four legged turkey or whatever it is, an' now it's get to choppin', fer we've got to put up our two cord afore night."

"This they accomplished and at night-fall bore homeward their meaty trophy."

"There, mother, see what we fetched you!" cried Jacob, holding up his prize before his wife.

"Where in the livin' earth did you get that pig, Jacob?" It is a pig, ain't it?" she asked, scanning it with admiring eyes, and looking her fat ribs with a cautious forefinger.

"It was give to me, an' you ain't to ask no questions," he answered.

"How come they to skin it? I don't know as I ever see a pig skinned on the feet cut off, but it does look real nice."

"You mustn't look a gift horse in count of a big town growin' up 'long side of it 'at it's made him rich."

"You don't say?" Jacob laid down his knife. "Well, I'm glad on't for his sake for your own. He'll come back an' pay up every cent he owes if he's able."

"That's what she says he says he'll do, but I shall believe it when I see it, and she shook her head. "It's hard payin' for a dead horse."

"He'll do it, Mahaly," said Jacob, looking at his absent friend. "He's certainly will if he's able. Oh, Mahaly, it most takes my breath away to think of him at the old place again. I can dash my dinner with a thank fuler heart just for the hope of it."

He was not disappointed, and their next Thanksgiving was in their old home.
