WAS A SUDDEN DEATH

Dietrich Minnecker, Old and Respected Citizen, Seized With Apoplexy.

Thursday, December 3rd, shortly after noon, Dietrich Minnecker, aged eighty-one years, of North Hawley street, died after an illness of a few hours. Wednesday night he was seized about eleven o'clock by a stroke of apoplexy and passed into unconsciousness from which he did not awaken. He had been as well as usual and went to bed without any feelings of weakness, although he had been steadily failing in strength since last spring.

The old gentleman was always respected in this community for honest dealings and kindly disposition. He was amiable and generous and his life was a quiet one of hard work. He belonged to no organization but was a member of St. Paul's Evangelical church of Barrington.

March 17th, 1827, Mr. Minnecker was born in Soegeln, Hanover, Germany. His parents died when he was young and he had a brother and two sisters, now dead. He became a blacksmith and followed that work in Germany. In 1855, when twenty-eight years he came to America with his brother and sister-in-law and his future wife, Miss Anna Leonard. They landed in Baltimore and remained in Washington for a time where the young couple were married the following year. Later they lived in Chicago and then came here where for years they lived on the farm they owned which is west of town, now occupied by William Klingenberg. Twenty-one years ago they moved to the village and lived in a house for nine years which stood on the site of the present Plagge lumber yard. In 1887 Mrs. Minnecker died. They had no children.

The next year Mr. Minnecker married Mrs. Carolina Seif who survives him. They have resided on North Hawley street for a long time. Their daughter, Mrs. John Wesolowski, Mr. Minnecker was a true father to his step children and they all loved him as such. They are August Seif, Mrs. Arnold Shaulbe and Mrs. Wesolowski. John Meiners, Mrs. Leopold Kratin and Mrs. Chris Hieke are a nephew and two nieces living.

The funeral service was held Sunday at half past one at St. Paul's church by Rev. G. H. Stanger. Mr. Minnecker was buried in Evergreen cemetery.

FOR CIRCUIT JUDGE

Three circuit judges will be elected in June, 1909, in this judicial district, which is composed of the counties of Winnebago, Boone, McHenry and Lake. Lake county is justified in asking for a resident circuit judge, because of its large and growing law business, which is equal at least to that of Winnebago county in that respect. I shall be a candidate for one of those positions at the Republican primaries to be held on April 13th, 1909, at which the three Republican candidates receiving the highest number of votes in the entire district will be declared the nominees of the party. With about 25,000 Republican voters in the district, it will be impossible for me to call on all of them, as I should like to do, to personally submit my candidacy, but in Lake county, where I know so many, and so many know me, I feel that you will be willing to excuse me if I am not able to see you all.

Therefore, I write this open letter, respectfully soliciting your support during my campaign this winter, and at the primaries next April.

Ever remembering that I am under obligations to the good people of Lake County for past favors manifested in so many friendly ways.

I am, Sincerely yours,

CHARLES WHITNEY.

Royal Neighbors Elect Officers. The Royal Neighbors of America at a regular meeting held Tuesday evening, December 8th, elected the following officers for the ensuing year:

Oracle, Kate Leonard.
Vice-Oracle, Emma Constock.
Chancellor, Mary Jukes.
Recorder, Mattie Dill.
Receiver, Margaret Lamey.
Marshal, Jennie Sutherland.
Inner Sentinel, Lena Jacobson.
Outer Sentinel, Lena Dreyer.
Manager, Minnie Hager.

The Men's Club.

The next meeting of the Barrington Men's club will be of special interest for two reasons:

The address will be given by Prof. C. W. Farr, assistant county superintendent of schools for Cook county. His topic will be "A Character Study" and it will be illustrated by large artist's prints.

Every member of the club is expected to bring with him a young man or boy who will be profited by such a talk as Mr. Farr will give. Here is a good chance for the club members to do a little for the boys and young men of the town.

The meeting will be next Monday night, December 14th, at 8 o'clock at the Methodist church.

A social half hour with refreshments will follow the address.

Any man will be welcome whether a member of the club or not.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Young Lady Nearly Drowned

In Honey Lake Last Saturday.

While skating on Honey Lake, three miles north of town, alone Saturday afternoon about three o'clock, Miss Edna Hollister, a Barrington high school girl, and the daughter of Frank Hollister, of Cuba township, broke into the lake near the island in the center and was nearly drowned, when rescued with difficulty by Nels Nelson of the Grace farm and a hired man.

They attempted to reach her with boards which she could not grasp on account of the tempestuous sea and hand with which she clung to the ice; they succeeded in saving her finally, by one man lying on the breaking ice and the other pushing him by the legs toward the opening.

Miss Hollister was taken to the Nelson farm house on the west bank of the lake where she was cared for by Miss Esther Nelson, a young girl who was alone at home and later taken home by a brother, suffering to ill with this week but a general ache and has attended school.

The Truce With Japan.

If the new understanding between this country and Japan merely puts a quietus upon the war talk of the jingoists of both nations it is well worth while. While not a treaty nor even an agreement in the true diplomatic sense, it may be all the better for what is lacking in the way of definiteness and guarantees. Agreements and treaties sometimes lead to serious quarrels, but one who relies upon some incident like the San Francisco school affair, the sailing of the fleet or the war upon Japanese immigration to predict war will be laughed down so long as the word given by the two nations that a conference shall be had before either takes the initiative in any important movement involving the other stands unrevoked.

As world politics is today, a treaty of alliance or any formal agreement with Japan might turn out a handicap. The British ministry received many a knock for elevating a yellow race to the dignity of alliance with a foremost white power. But Japan is formidable. She cannot be ignored or slighted. And it is not a sign of truckling when this country gives its word of honor to meet the Japanese half-way in certain emergencies which call for prompt action. Agreement not to disagree before talking it over is a long step toward ultimate harmony. We will stand by it, and our growing navy will be a reminder to Japan that it takes two to "keep" a bargain also.

Marked For Death.

"Three years ago I was marked for death. A grave yard trough was tearing my lungs to pieces. Doctors failed to help me and hope had fled, when my husband got Dr. King's New Discovery," says Mrs. A. C. Williams, of Bae, Kentucky.

"The first dose helped me and improvement kept on until I had gained 55 pounds in weight and my health was fully restored."

This medicine holds the world's healing record for coughs and colds and lung and throat troubles. It is present in pneumonia. Sold under guarantee at Barrington Pharmacy, 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

LAST MEETING OF 1908

Village Board Discussed Much Important Business Mpn-

Day Evening.

The board of trustees of the village of Barrington met in regular session Monday evening with President Spinner in the chair and all members present.

The proceedings were as follows: Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Treasurer's report for the month ending November 20th read and approved.

Bills of the month which were ordered paid were as follows:

Fred Palmer, labor, $ 3.00
John Shumacher, labor, 6.50
H. P. Asker, labor, 1.00
H. Pingle, Sec., 15.45
A. L. Robertson, pumping, 75.00
do lighting, 76.60

Laney & Company, cement, 30
F. L. Waterman, 6 months salary, 2.15

August John, materials and labor, 100
George Stiefenhofer, material and labor, 5.85

Edward Peters, salary for November, 45.00
Fred Johnson, salary for November, 40.00

Messrs. George W. Daily, the new superintendent of the Wisconsin division of the Chicago & Northwestern, and B. E. Terpening, his assistant, were at the meeting accompanied by Lyman A. Powers. The question of renewing the contract to supply water to the railroad was before the board.

The old rate is six cents per thousand gallons, but members of the board say they are losing money on that basis. After carefully inquiring as to the rates charged by other villages they decided on eight cents. Mr. Daily was willing to pay seven cents.

On motion by Trustee Peters, seconded by Trustee Alverson, the matter was referred to the committee on fire and water, and that committee was instructed to confer with the railroad officials and report at the next regular meeting.

The "water" item was also deemed advisable to make arrangements to install a new meter for measuring the water supplied to the railroad. It is said that the meter now in use runs short over 400 gallons at every filling of the tank.

The chairman of the committee on fire and water reported that practically all leakages in the water mains had been discovered and remedied.

Trustee Hager mentioned the fact that the galvanoid pipes are fast rusting out and suggested that preparations be made for replacing them with lead pipes. To do that the ordinance now in force concerning that matter would have to be amended and a new ordinance passed.

Village Attorney Howard P. Castle was requested to investigate this matter of ordinances and report at the next meeting.

The board of local improvements presented an ordinance for the opening of a new street between Cemetery and Hough streets.

This matter has been under discussion by the board for sometime. It was moved and carried that the ordinance be passed.

Board then adjourned upon motion by Trustee Peters, seconded by Trustee Plagge.

McINTOSH PROPERTY SOLD.

Property of the Late M. B. McIntosh Brings High Prices at Auction.

The McIntosh property offered for sale at auction by John Robertson, executor and trustee under the last will of Milton B. McIntosh, deceased, last Saturday brought handsome prices and the bidding was spirited. Dr. E. W. Olcott purchased the Clark McIntosh property situated on Lake street for $3,300.

The business property consisting of about 25 feet on Cook street improved with two frame store buildings, with 25 feet facing on Station street improved with a one and one-half story building, was bid in by Theodore H. Schutt for $6,000.

It is said by agreement John C. Plagge gets the property occupied by Gus Pulos on Cook street, also the 25 on Station street.

The price for these properties is considered every dollar it is worth.

Saved From Collision.

The following account clipped from a Chicago daily paper will be of interest to many, enjoyed the excitement address delivered by the Rev. Blanchard in June for the graduation class of '08:

"Miss May Blanchard, a daughter of President Charles C. Blanchard, of Wheaton college, Wheaton, Illinois, and a nurse in the Presbyterian hospital of Chicago, was one of those saved in the collision of the steamer Finance and freighter George off Sandy Hook in lower New York bay, on Thanksgiving day."

She was enroute to Colon, Panama, on the steamer Finance, where her sister, Mrs. J. M. Weaver, wife of an engineer stationed in the Cuba cut, is ill.

She telegraphed her father an announcement of her safety and expressed her intention of resuming her journey to the Bahamas on the next steamer.

MRS. JOHN NATE DEAD

Wife of Former M. E. Pastor

Passed to the Beyond.

It is with much sorrow that we chronicle the death of Mrs. Mary Leonard Nate, wife of Rev. John Nate, who was at one time pastor of the Barrington M. E. church.

Mary Leonard Nate was born at Kingston, Ontario, August 2nd, 1826, and died at her home in Chicago on December 2nd, 1898. She was the daughter of Rev. Joseph H. and Susanna Lockwood Leonard, her father being a clergyman of New England lineage who was a founder of the Methodist Episcopal church of Canada, and the first editor of its Christian Advocate.

The Leonard family removed to Chicago in 1833. Mr. Leonard being stationed there as Seamen's chaplain, a position in which he continued until his death.

The daughter was married to Rev. John Nate, then a minister at Macleanburg, Illinois, on December 1st, 1855. Their home has usually been in or near Chicago since 1859, where Mr. Nate's ministerial labors have centered.

In October 1882 they came to Barrington assuming the pastorate of the Methodist Episcopal church here, and remaining in charge of that church for two years.

Mrs. Nate was received into the Methodist church when a young girl by her father and for the last ten years of her life was member of the First Methodist church of Chicago. She gave herself largely to active religious work for which she was most admirably fitted both by nature and by training. In former years she also gained distinction as a writer, especially of music and poetry and upon religious themes for publications of that period.

Mrs. Nate is survived by her husband and three sons, J. J. Nate of Minneapolis, Rev. Joseph C. Nate of Jacksonville and the Rev. J. S. Nate of Chicago, and two daughters, Mrs. Mary S. Strickland of Evanston and Mrs. Ada E. McIntosh of Chicago.

The funeral services were held at the family home 1810 North Sawyer avenue, Chicago, Saturday, December 6th, and were in charge of Rev. John P. Brushingham, D. D., assisted by Rev. Elmer L. Williams, pastor of the Avondale Methodist Episcopal church of Chicago. Interment was at Rosehill cemetery.

Board Will Put Ban On Snowballing. At the meeting of the board of village trustees, last Monday evening, complaint was made that some of the boys of this village were indulging too freely in snowballing parties. An instance was cited where a number of boys had gathered on a street corner snowballing every team and pedestrian passing that way. One team, it is said, was badly frightened, nearly causing a runaway.

This is a very dangerous practice and should not be allowed. There is no harm in parties of boys snowballing each other but it should be carried no further. And parents who allow their sons to follow such practices as this are also to be censured.

The board extends a warning to all boys and young men who have been guilty of snowballing others, and this warning should be heeded.

GAVE GOOD LECTURE

Rev. Ernest Wray Oneal Interests and Pleases His Audience.

"Popular Fallacies," the lecture given by the Rev. Ernest Oneal, pastor of the First Methodist church, Chicago, at the Methodist church here Monday evening, was not a fallacy in itself, but popular with all listeners and most interesting. Mr. Oneal, as a speaker, does not disappoint in any way and fulfills all obligations claimed for him in the announcements.

The audience was not large, owing to the difficulty of getting people, out in this village to intellectual treats. Rev. Mattison, pastor of the church, is endeavoring to promote entertainment, friendship and instruction for our people by securing good lecturers on varied subjects; his idea is excellent, un denominational and his reward should be a more general patronage.

Rev. Oneal's geniality, enthusiasm, powerful and versatile oratory, dramatic worth, cultured mind and speech have made him an able platform teacher, while the interesting humor is original and clever. His tone was of the delicious under which we live as to traditions, heredity, health, education, customs and morals. He presents his thoughts in a convincing way and one feels ready to adopt his views for the natural, inoffensive style of offering them.

Physical development, he thinks, is the foundation of success and he urges systematic exercise, thinking, happiness and health, "keeping on the sunny side of the street," as the means of attaining and keeping a high ideal. "Sound minds in sound bodies" is his slogan. He dealt with feeling, the fact that the success of genius is not alone through natural gift and inspiration, but through hard work. "Hard work" is the basis of all achievement.

The regular Wednesday night prayer meeting at the Methodist church will be held this week on Thursday night on account of the entertainment being in that church. Teacher's meeting and teacher's training class study will follow.

Barrington Review

M. T. LAMEY, Ed. and Pub.
BARRINGTON, ILLINOIS

Among the laboring classes in Germany meat once a week is the rule. A medical "expert" advises women to smoke. Anything to get your name in the papers.

The German emperor is probably ready to join the party whose platform is: "Let us alone."

England, which was 700 years in passing the deceased wife's statute, is not likely to grant women the ballot this year.

London did not have an adequate water supply till 1906. Two-thirds of it comes from the Thames, the rest from artesian wells.

The Panama canal is one-third completed. Evidently there is some work going on than talk in the enterprise under its present management.

Overcrowding in Scotland is not so bad as it used to be. The proportion living more than four per room fell from 18.67 per cent. in 1861 to 9.55 in 1901.

There would be deeply interested in Mrs. Melba's statement if she meant that the women we know are to be more beautiful 100 years hence than they are now.

Some young Chinese women are reported on routes to this country to study housekeeping. Can we teach them anything on that subject, or are they probably better capable of teaching us?

A British medical investigator advances the theory that high speeding checks the tubercular germ in chaffeurs. It is, however, also conducive to sudden deaths for the intersecting part of the population.

Hereafter men will think twice before they spend a half-dime of the other day a half-dime of the issue of 1802 sold for $715. But after they have thought twice they will spend it, for there are not any more coins like that in circulation.

Of the 1,125,000 persons in Berlin who support themselves or themselves and families only $5,511, or less than 5% per cent. have incomes of $714 or more a year. About 1,066,000 or less than that amount more than 214 a year.

A distinguished Methodist preacher, Rev. Charles Goodell, expresses a somewhat prevalent notion when he rises to remark that the superfluous money of Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Rockefeller is really tainted it is inculcated on the churches to take it and relieve it of its taint.

Prof. Goodwin of New York, who thinks that the education of the public schools of the largest cities must be revolutionized, says that he would form the pupils into groups, one for learning trades, another for preparation for commercial life, and a third for the college and university. It is so easy for a ten-year-old boy to decide whether he is going to be a haberdasher or a minister!

A Japanese lady of rank, who has been traveling in this country, says American women are unhappy and discontented, and she ascribes this to the fact that they are so well taken care of that they miss in their lives the stimulating influence of a little neglect. The inference is that if their husbands loved them, they would be more in a position to appreciate their happiness.

An election board chairman in New York made trouble for a woman applicant when he tried to register her. She came on his trail, found out he had a home in New Jersey, lay in wait for him to vote, and had him arrested and deprived of his vote and his job on the ground that a woman cannot vote. So much for a woman's cause, can even in politics, when she makes up her mind to get even.

Why should the merits of the proposed model husband content in Chicago be based solely on their comparative speed in buttoning up the backs of the embroidered shirt waists of their respective wives? Has the good temper displayed by them while performing the task and their ready compliance in undertaking it as often as requested nothing to do with it? Yes, rather!

"While the southern states suffer the stigma of night riders we cannot justify pointing the finger of accusation on earth," says the Pilot. And while there is so much crime and lawlessness here in the north none of us can afford to point the finger of accusation at the southern states. Pointing the finger of scorn is poor business, anyway, remarks the Boston Globe. It is a great deal better to be charitable to our neighbor's shortcomings and to do all in our power to correct our own.

Every American girl is a queen, according to the old song, but they cannot all have warships to accompany them on their journeys back to the homes of their husbands, like some that might be mentioned.

In the presence of an ordinary crop failure one may remain unmoved, but it is grievous indeed to learn that the recent forest fires which caused a shortage of Christmas trees. The least that Santa Claus can do in such circumstances is to permit good children to hang up more than one stocking.

SOO CITY AND CREW LOST

LAKE STEAMER GOES DOWN IN NEWFOUNDLAND GALE.

No Doubt of Vessel's Fate Remains—Was Being Taken to Gulf of Mexico.

St. Johns, N. F.—Wreckage which is some 50 feet from Cape Ray leaves little room for doubt that the sturdy little steamer Soo City, which for 20 years has been an excursion vessel on the Great Lakes, went down with her crew in the midst of the gale that lashed the Newfoundland coast for two days this week.

The steamer was in command of Capt. John G. Dillon of Brooklyn, who was formerly commander of the United States government transport Missouri. A wife and three children awaited his return home. The exact number of the crew is in doubt. It is known, however, that not less than 18 men were on board, and it has been reported that the crew was recently increased to 35 men.

The Soo City was recently sold by the Indiana Transportation Company to Felix Jackson of Volusia, Tex., and was being taken to New Orleans, where it had been planned to put her service between that city and Texas ports. She carried no passengers. She was to be first overhauled in New York, and for that purpose had been consigned to Agent T. H. Franklin of New York.

The steamer sailed from Michigan City on November 1 and reached Ogdensburg, N. Y., November 11. Up to that time the steamer was in charge of Capt. F. V. Dority of Milwaukee, but at Ogdensburg the command was turned over to Capt. Dillon. She was reported at Quebec November 18, a week later, when nothing had been heard, much anxiety was felt, and on the 24th the vessel was listed by the Maritime Exchange among the missing. The steamer's first mate was John Casey of Chicago.

Fifty-a-deck cable and fittings and 16 life preservers came ashore. These all bore the name "Soo City," or other marks identifying them as belonging to the steamer. During the day life buoys, deck boards and other gear unquestionably belonging to the steamer were washed in.

RAILROAD TROUBLE ENDED. Pennsylvania Road and Engineers Reach an Agreement.

Washington.—A successful issue of the conference between representatives of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and of the Pennsylvania railroad lines west of Pittsburgh and the board of mediation, consisting of Chairman Knapp of the Interstate Commerce commission, and Dr. Charles P. Neill, commissioner of labor, was reached Friday night and an agreement proposed by the board of mediation was accepted by General Manager G. L. Peck of the Pennsylvania line, and by the board of locomotive engineers.

WARNS FLOCK OF HIS DEATH.

Toledo Pastor Calmly Announces That He Cannot Live Long.

Toledo, O.—I won't be with you much longer. The doctors tell me that I may live a month, but not longer than six months. In a voice that showed no more emotion than he might exhibit in one of his regular sermons Rev. John P. McCloskey, assistant pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, and one of the best loved of Toledo clergymen, told his congregation that his death is near. He informed his listeners that he was suffering with cancer of the esophagus, an incurable disease, and that his physicians had told him an operation would be useless. He is 46 years of age and was ordained 30 years ago.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Dr. Cyrus Northpot will retire from the presidency of the University of Minnesota at the close of the present college year. His formal resignation was presented to the regents Tuesday. When it becomes effective he will have completed a full quarter century at the head of the university.

"I have definitely made up my mind to retire," said Dr. Northpot Saturday night. "I have intended to retire at the end of my twenty-fifth year of service, and that will come with the close of this college year."

Dr. Northpot is 74 years of age. He feels that he is entitled to a rest and he has made a decision which is final and unalterable.

His assailant suddenly discovered he had shot the wrong man and offering an apology, disappeared. Ramstead will recover.

To Prove Electricity Kills.

Trenton, N. J.—County Physician Frank G. Scammett announced Sunday that he would make an effort to reanimate the next man electrocuted in the New Jersey state prison in order to disprove the claim of a New York physician recently put forth, that electricity does not kill but that electrocuted criminals die under the sub-gun's knife in the autopsy or in the quicklime in which they are buried. The next man to be electrocuted is John Mantasana, who is to die during the week of December 21.

CONGRESS CONVENES FOR ITS SECOND SESSION.

LITTLE DONE FIRST DAY

Two New Senators and Nine Representatives Take the Oath—Fairbanks and Cannon in Their Places.

Washington.—Monday at 12 o'clock both houses of congress convened for the beginning of the second session of the Sixtieth congress. Vice-President Fairbanks opened the senate and Speaker Cannon presided in the house.

Practically no business was transacted in either house Monday. In the senate ex-Gov. Cummins of Iowa took the oath of office as the successor of Senator Allison of that state, as did Carroll S. Page of Vermont as the successor of Senator Stewart.

In the house the seven members who were elected in November to succeed members who have died or resigned in that body also were sworn in. They are: Henry A. Barnhart (Dem.), who succeeds the late Mr. Bricker (Rep.) from the Thirteenth Indiana district; Albert Etztholp (Dem.), who succeeds the late Mr. Meyer from the First Louisiana district; Otto G. Foelker (Rep.), successor to Mr. Duwell (Rep.), in the Third New York district; Frank E. Guernsey (Rep.), successor to Mr. Powers (Rep.) from the Fourth Maine district; Eben M. Masters (Rep.), successor to Mr. Parker from the Second South Dakota, at large; O. C. Wiley (Dem.), successor to his brother, A. A. Wiley (Dem.), from the Second Alabama district; P. B. Seavey (Rep.), successor to Mr. Littlefield, who resigned during the last session from the Second Maine district.

The two houses then appointed committees each to notify the other house and the president that the two bodies were organized and prepared to go forward with the business of the session. The senate then adjourned for the day out of respect to the memory of Senator Allison, who died during the recess. The house transacted its brief session with resolutions commemorative of the lives of Messrs. Parker, South Dakota; Wiley, Alabama; Dunbar, New York; and Powers, Maine, who have died since adjournment last May.

Wentz, aged 33, cashier of the First National bank of Canal Dover, and his wife, Mrs. Mary Wentz, a stenographer of 353 Marshall avenue, this city, and formerly of Uhrichville, O., were found in the Bellwood Inn, a rural resort east of this city, soon after noon Sunday. Death, according to Coroner Murphy, was undoubtedly due to asphyxiation caused by an open gas stove.

The couple were natives of Ohio. Victor was a native of Uhrichville, O., where his family is heavily interested in the bank of which he was cashier. He was a thirty-third degree Scotch Rite Mason.

DYING MAN AT THE THROTTLE.

Engineer of Great Northern Train Found with Crushed Skull.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Unknown to passengers, a dying man's hand controlled the throttle of the east-bound Great Northern coast passenger train as it sped on its way from Minneapolis to Clear Water Junction late Monday afternoon. The man was George P. Irwin, the engineer, who died a moment after he was taken from the train in Minneapolis.

Irwin was forty-one years of age and leaning out of the cab window by his friend, George Ridgeway. Pulling the limp form of his companion back into the cab, Irwin immediately notified the engineer's skull was fractured.

OFFICER AND GIRL DIE

"Adam God" and Two Patrolmen Fatally Wounded and Two Others Shot in Bloody Street Battle.

Kansas City, Mo.—In the very shadow of the city hall in this city, and less than a half mile from the business center, a riot in which religious fanatics and police were the participants and in which a hundred shots were fired Tuesday afternoon resulted in the death of one policeman and a little girl, fatal injuries to three and slight injuries to two other persons.

The dead—Albert O. Dalbow, a patrolman; Lola Pratt, aged 13. Fatally injured—John Sharp, known as "Adam God," a street preacher; Michael Mullane, a patrolman; and Slightly injured—Harry A. Stages, policeman; George M. Holt, probation officer.

Probation Officer Holt, coming upon Sharp exhorting a street crowd and accompanied by Louis Pratt, Mrs. Pratt and five little children, asked as to the identity of the children and was struck with a revolver by Sharp. He ran into a police station and Patrolmen Dalbow and Stages were sent out to arrest Sharp and his followers.

The officers were not expecting serious trouble and were not prepared for the volley of bullets which met them almost immediately after they appeared on the scene. Dalbow was killed instantly and a bullet passed through Stages's arm.

In the meantime a riot call had been sounded and policemen were appearing from all directions. The officers closed in on Sharp and his followers, firing as they went, but taking great care not to injure any of the children, and when the firing ceased "Adam God" lay fatally wounded, shot through the head and body.

The woman and the children escaped and fled to a houseboat where they lived in the Missouri river. The police did not pursue them. The woman barricaded herself in the houseboat, where she defied the cops. Then taking two of the children she got into a houseboat and started away. On her refusal to stop the police fired, killing little Lola Pratt.

The party was proceeding toward Mount Vernon and Senor Barrios was carrying a wreath to place on the tomb of Washington for President Cabrera of Guatemala.

CHAPTER I.

The Masters.

I heard about the pair first from Emmeline Eldridge, "Emmie T." as we always call her. She was first mate to the cook at the Old Summer Home house that summer. She came down to the landing one morning after breakfast and hove alongside of where I was sitting in the stern of my sloop, the Dora Bassett, untangling fish lines. She had a tin pail in her fist, indicating that her sailing orders was to go after milk. But she saw me and run down in haste to swap yarn.

"Say, Emmie," I said, "Ever since I come to Wellesmouth."

"I mean about what him and his wife has just done," she says. "It's the queerest thing! You'll never guess it is the word."

"Ain't been giving his money to the poor, has he?" says I, for, generally speaking, it takes a strong man and a cold call to separate Nate Scudder from a cent.

"Oh! ain't you the funnest thing!" she squeals. "No indeed! He's let his house to some city folks, and—"

"Ain't that the cook calling you?" I asks. "I'm a housewife when it comes to Emmie T.; I like to take her in small doses—she agrees with me better than that way."

"It was the cook, and Emmeline kited off, after the milk, only stopping long enough to tell back: 'Folks—say they're dreadful rich and stylish. I'll tell you next time I see you.'"

Well, I called as she wouldn't—not if I saw her first—and didn't pay it more attention to the yarn, except to think that June Nettie Brown, a city folks to be renting houses. There was only three or four boarders at the Old Home so far, and I was to take a couple of 'em over to Trumet in the sloop that very day.

But, while we was on the way over, one of the couple—sort of a high-toned edition of Emmie T. she was—she turns to her mesmate, another splitt from the same coop, and says: 'Oh! say!'" she says. "Have you heard about the two young fellers from New York who've rented that Scudder house on the—what do they call it? Oh, yes! the Neck road. I heard Nettie Brown say they were two dear for anything. Let's drive past there to-morrow; shall we?"

So there it was again, and I began to wonder what the two cravers Nate had hooked. I judged that they must be a kind of goldfish or he wouldn't have baited for 'em. Nate ain't the man to be satisfied with a mess of sculpin.

York that I sell cranberries to. He said a couple of friends of his wanted to come to a place like the place where 'twas quiet. Did I know of such a place round here? Well, course I wrote back that 'twas nice and quiet right at our house. There was no noise in that, was there, Sol?"

"No," I says. "I should say 'twouldn't be having the truth too close if you'd said there was more quietness than anything else down on the Neck road."

"Well, he goes on, not noticing the sarcasm. 'I wrote and never got a word back. Me and Hildy had given up hearing. And then, yesterday morning, the come-both of 'em. Nice lookin' young fellers as ever you see, they're; dressed just like the chaps in the clothes advertisements in the back of the magazines. The biggest one—there's both half as tall as that mast, seems so—he took up his hat and says, kind of lassy and grand, like a steamboat captain:

"'Mr. Scudder?' he says. "'That's my name,' says I. I was kind of suspicious; there's been so many sewing-machines agents and such a-bout round town this spring. And yet I ought to have known he wasn't no sewing-machine agent."

"'Ain't he says. 'You've been expecting us, then. Has the luggage come?' 'What in time did I know about his luggage?' as he was going to on another rap. 'No,' says I. 'Tails!'

"'Oh, well, never mind,' he says, just as if a ton or two of baggage didn't count says, 'You give us two sleeping rooms, two baths, a setting room, and a room for my man?'

"'Two baths?' says I. 'Can't you take a bath by yourself? You seem to be having lots of funny jokes with your name is and what you want?'

"'He looked me over sort of odd. 'Beg pardon,' he said. 'I thought you were expecting us. Here's my card.' 'I looked at it, and there was the name 'Edward Van Brunt,' printed on it. Then I began to get my bearings, as you might say."

"'Oh! I see,' says I. 'So glad, I'm sure,' he says. 'Now can you give us the sleeping rooms, the baths, and the room for my man?'

"'Humph!' says I, looking back at the house behind me; 'if me and Hildy binked in the henhouse and the chore boy in the cellar, maybe we could accommodate you, that is, all but the baths. You'd have to take turns with the wash-tub for them, I says."

"'He laughed. He was so oversteering cool about things that it sort of riled me up. 'Perhaps you'd like to hire the whole shebang?' says I, sarcastic, pointing to the house."

"'He looked at it. It looked sort of cheerful, with the syringa over the door and the morning-glories hiding where the whitewash was off."

"'Goodness!' he says. 'I would.' 'Well, that was too many for me! I went into the house and fetched out Hildy Ann—she's my wife. There's a lot of many rooms in this town can beat her when it comes to managing and business, if I do say it."

"'How long would you want the house for?' says Hildy, when I told her what was going on. 'A month,' says Van Brunt, turning to the other city feller. 'Mr. Mart?' 'Truher chap nodded."

"'All right,' says Van Brunt. 'How much?' 'Thanks I, I'll scare you, my fine feller. And so I said: 'A month? Well, I don't know. Maybe, to accommodate, I might let you have it for two hundred.' I sort of edged off then, thinking sure he'd be said; but he wa'n't—not him. Two hundred it be, he says, and fished out of little black book and one of them pocket pens."

"'Name's Scudder?' he asks. "'Yes,' says I. 'Nathan Scudder. One T in Nathan.' 'And I don't know as you'll believe G. Sol,' says Nate, flashing up, 'but that feller made out a check for two hundred and passed it over to me like 'twas a postage stamp. What do you think of that?'

I didn't know what to think of it. On general principles I'd say that a man who wanted to board with Nate and Hildy Ann Scudder was crazy anyhow; but of course these fellers didn't know."

"'It beats me, Nate,' I says. 'What do you think?' 'Blessed if I know!' says Scudder, with another of them long breaths. 'All I'm sure of is that they're up home, with the parlor blinds open and the carpet faded, and me and Hildy's living in the barn. She's doing the cooking for 'em till this 'morn' of their comes. Land knows what kind of a man he is, too. And that check was on a New York bank, and I've just seen up to Trumet here with it. And the cashier says 'twell be a week afore I know whether it's good or not. And I can't make out whether them two are bluffers or business, or what."

"'He cheer up, Nate,' I says. 'Maybe you'll get the reward, whether it's lunatics or thieves. Only you want to look out and not be took up for an accomplice.' 'He fairly shriveled up when I said that, and I laughed to myself all the way out of Trumet harbor. One thing I was sure of: them two New Yorkers must be queer birds and I wanted to see 'em."

POINTS CONCERNING THE USE OF STARTERS

Practical Suggestions Which Will Prove Helpful to Butter and Cheese Makers—By L. D. Bushnell, Michigan.

A growth of micro-organisms in a milk and cream is called a culture. If only one species of micro-organism is present the growth is called a mixed culture; but if two or more be present the growth is called a mixed culture. For us to be thoroughly familiar with a starter we must understand a culture, because a starter is used in dairy operations is generally a culture containing one species of micro-organisms. In some few instances bacteria or more micro-organisms are found that harmonize in their modes of growth, a mixed culture is used, thereby perhaps bringing about better results than when developed separately. The starter is used to overcome obnoxious micro-organisms and adds to the finished product the desired flavor, aroma, keeping quality and perhaps other essential properties. Starters are of two general classes, viz., natural and commercial.

Under the head of natural starters are placed all those originating at home, usually by selecting and setting aside until lapped a quantity of cream, butter, milk, buttermilk, whole milk, sour cream, and whey are sometimes used in this capacity. A starter produced in this way may contain any species of micro-organisms. Thus it is not difficult to understand why a starter produced by natural souring may develop taint or become gassy.

The commercial starter is generally developed from a single micro-organism and is built up as a pure culture of a known species. This class includes those starters originated and offered for sale in solid or liquid form by various commercial firms. Though the different brands differ more or less as to activity at a given temperature as well as in the flavor imparted to butter or cheese, yet from the very fact that these are pure cultures, uniform growth and acid production may be expected. This being the case, a commercial starter is kept free from contamination, and developed under the same conditions, may be used for an indefinite time and produce an unvarying product.

As sterilization is to replace pasteurization in this process, a steam sterilizer is a necessary piece of apparatus and Fig. 1 has been inserted mainly to show the parts of a serviceable sterilizer. A common copper wash boiler may be fitted up for sterilizing purposes in much the same way, or a box constructed of wood or galvanized iron may be used.

A more detailed explanation may prove errors. The part of the apparatus that is to be sterilized, whether it be a butter churn, a cheese vat, or a box constructed of wood or galvanized iron may be used.

The inlet, A, should be placed near the bottom and of the proper size to admit a jet of steam. The siphon tube, B, for the removal of condensed water, always has its inner end covered, thus preventing loss of steam. The highest point of the outlet should be lower than the opening C, so that steam upon entering will not have to pass through water. For the support E, some light material should be used, as heavy metal or solid bodies condense large quantities of steam; the perforated bottom, F, should have numerous openings to permit the free upward movement of steam; G, should be of wire netting. This causes a more uniform distribution of steam, thereby preventing many breakages.

As all factories are not supplied with apparatus for the production of steam, a substitute may be made on the plan of an ordinary steam cooker with an inch or two of water in the bottom. When this plan is used sterilization begins when the steam begins to issue from the opening. A thermometer placed in the opening D, should register 210° F.

Testing Eggs in Water—A pall of any kind of water in which the eggs are to be tested. A real fresh egg will sink; one that is not so fresh will topple around, apparently standing on its end; one that is spoiled looks dull and porous, while that of an old egg appears thin and shriveled. When shaken, a stale egg will rattle in the shell.

Red Flood in Fiction.

Harper's Weekly recently issued a reactionary note against the present day demand among American readers for novels of action. The editor declares that sensibility is the great possession of the truly modern novel in contrast with the old novel of action. The argument sets forth that an act in itself is nothing. It becomes something only when thought interprets its intent and effect. Yet we have often been told of late that to depict life as it is and as it might be is the highest achievement of fiction. Life is action. Novelists of today are not tormented by moralizing on the side, but they are asked to portray life as it is within the range of the reader's experience. This makes the story readable anyway and may make it helpful. Perhaps it would be better for us all to think out our acts and their probable effects before-hand. But we don't do it, and few of us can grasp characters in novels who always "show straight to the line." Something in the blood impels our actions day by day, and the average novel reader enjoys stories of blood-compelled experiences and adventures above all other kinds.

How fate plays pranks with mortals is again demonstrated by the experience of Miss Peck, who made a record by climbing 20,000 feet in a mountain top in Penn. a few months ago. Recently she was disabled by stepping on a nail. Conway, the famous English climber, broke his leg by a mistake while lecturing about his mountain exploits. And there was Lord Cardigan, who led the Light Brigade "into the jaws of death" at Balaclava and survived to be killed by the fall of his horse when taking a quiet morning ride at home.

That 265,000 cubic feet of rock piled upon Gatun dam's "south toe" by the cruel Colonel Goethals suggests that the uplift commission might do a humane stunt down in Panama.

St. Louis' claim for distinction as the best place in the world for aeroplanes to sail away from could well have been covered by the population boomers before publication.

The "strick" of the green hat is declared to be the worst of mankind. But often a wreny "peters out" into a yelp.

It is easy to let the other fellow do the worrying after you once get the happy-go-lucky pace.

Anyway no trust will ever "control" Roosevelt either as editor or senator.

With net earnings making a better showing than a year ago, when the railroads of the country were swamped with freight, and with the brightest outlook for business just ahead, the common carriers have no sound reason to court trouble with shippers, consumers and the government by putting up rates. The plea of poverty won't go, for the roads will soon be faring well with the old rates in force.

It seems that neither General Gordon, Roosevelt nor any other American could catch the word "frazzle," for it was current in England before Columbus even discovered himself. At least this is the claim of the Westminster Gazette.

The country now has "congress on its hands," but hopes it will soon be reversed and that the other fellow's hands will make a good job of it.

That sudden and mysterious "talking off" of the empress dowager and the imprisoned emperor of China has enough of the color of "deep damnation" in it to excite outsiders against the palace clique.

Short Session of Congress.

Important legislation is seldom expected from congress in a short session. The Sixtieth congress is not likely to differ from its predecessors in this respect, although owing to the president's recommendations the schedule may include questions sufficiently urgent to occupy the attention up to the last hour of March 3 next. Problems of labor and of transportation will not cease from troubling because of the passing of one bill or the defeat of many bills.

In view of its origin and scope the country life investigation will doubtless arouse discussion and lead to action. Following the usual course, however, congress will be inclined to investigate on its own hook before passing laws in advance of the popular demand. Signs in many directions indicate that the note of economy will be sounded and retrenchment be made in all appropriations which will result in parting down.

It is to be hoped that the country life commission will not send in a report of "A. H. S. well" until it has taken at least one spin on the back road fringes of the Interior. Not that there is anything especially the matter with the man who tries to support a family by his gun and dog or even with a fiddle. There's another kind of fellow whose fillings shall be numerous and who also has a family, but doesn't support it at all. The blunders of his children when they stray into the school and meeting house may bespeak a sense of degradation, but at the same time they rebuke a social scheme which sends tracks to distant heathens and overlooks more promising material for uplift work right at home.

If promoters of "Just as good for less money" articles would get busy on all commodities they might put a stop to clamor for a tariff to fence out stuff "made in Germany."

Cuba's new president, who can speak Spanish, but not English, will find that he must think in English and act the part of Uncle Sam will make him "talk Spanish" too.

That football casualty list of over 200 in 1908 goes to prove that head-on collisions can put in gridiron events much the same as they do on the rail.

The Man Who Thought He Was In Love.

By LULU JOHNSON.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

The worst of it all was that Alice was happy. "That," Buck told himself, "was the cap of the climax."

He had been deeply miserable, as he had been ever since they had had their quarrel, the misery that loves company would have drawn them together, and once more the superb solitaire which Teddy Buck had bought with a glad heart and a half of his savings would have gleamed on Alice Hyde's finger.

By all precedent that very thing should have happened. Instead of which Alice presently became engaged to Harvey Post, and the expression of gloom which had become habitual to Ted's face deepened to a scowl. He took to reading poetry in the long hours of the night, and even in his dreams he lamented his lost love.

Retrospectively he gazed upon Alice's radiant face when he could not avoid meeting her in Harvey's society. At such times the sky seemed overcast, no matter how brilliant the sun shone, and Teddy hurried home to brood over his great grief, made the sharper by the very apparent happiness that had come to Alice.

The day that the wedding invitations were issued was Teddy's field day, and the sun was stealing through the half-closed curtains when at last he threw off his clothes and flung himself upon his bed to gain a brief transition from wretched to dreamy grief.

He did not so much as stir, but late in the afternoon his mother perceived him to take a walk, and he made for the fields, where he was least likely to be observed. He plunged into the woods, which in that happy summer had been the favorite objective point of their walks together.

Now the foliage was dead and withered, dappled to the ground as his own heart had been, and the plant that Alfred had taken from the common wilds in dumb supplication.

The place was thoroughly in harmony with his mood, and Ted found himself upon a bank of moss to commune with his unhappy thoughts.

The woods represented his own life, springing with his bursting buds and tender foliage, had marked the birth of love; then had come the summer of courtship, the rich fruition of promise under the radiant glow of the sun of love.

Ted skipped the harvest time, but now the woods were, like love, dead. The child of winter was in the air and in the dull November clouds.

The fancy pleased him, and so he consoled was he with his thoughts that he had failed to hear the footsteps on the rustling leaves until the newcomer halted him with a cheery cry.

"Morning again, Ted?" cried Alice brightly. "Forget your troubles for awhile and let me gather some hickory nuts."

Ted rose slowly to his feet, and as he did so he glanced about and made certain that Harvey was not to make a third. He felt that he could not stand by and see the lover's glances which the two would exchange.

Slowly he followed Alice along the path. Most of the nuts had been gathered, but some few remained, and presently Ted forgot his great grief in Alice's merry chat.

It was not until the nuts had been gathered and they sat down to rest on a fallen trunk that remembrance came again.

Alice saw the cloud that settled down upon his face, and she turned abruptly. "Ted," she asked, "do you want to make me very happy?"

"You're about as happy now as a girl deserves to be," was the unceremonious response. "What do you want?" "I want you to get married," was the surprising reply.

"That's what I wanted to do," exclaimed Ted, "but you wouldn't have it. Has Harvey liked you?"

"Merely I don't want you to marry me," was the hurried reply. "I want you to marry some other girl."

"Either hard on the other girl," commented Ted, "considering that I could only offer an empty heart!"

"And an empty head," was the caustic

He interrupted. "That's just the trouble, Ted. You are having a lovely time with your heartache, and you don't want to give it up yet, but I don't see how you can be really happy with Harvey with the thought of your accusing eyes following me."

"Then forget it," advised Ted ineffectually.

"That's what I want you to do," explained Alice. "You never were really in love with me. I know it, and you know it. That's why we were always quarreling. We need to get along beautifully before we became engaged. Then when you realized the mistake you had made you became ill-natured."

"All on my side?" asked Ted.

"I suppose that I was just as mean," admitted Alice, "but it was because we both realized that we had made a mistake. I want you to forget all about it. Marry Beth Agnes or Letty Fredericks or Nancy Bellman."

"What's the matter with Audrey Dunbar?" demanded Ted. "She is the only eligible you left out."

"I told you that I was not going to marry any one," was the impatient response as Ted shut the gate with a vicious bang and started for home.

He was not yet ready to abandon his grief, but one ray of comfort glared his once pervading gloom. Ted clanked his once deserted thoughts. He had never known Alice to do it before. Just to show Alice what he thought of her conduct, he escorted Audrey to the wedding and smiled sarcastically when she caught the bridal bouquet, unfurling sign that she was to be the next bride.

However, Alice kissed her in congratulation with a warmth that little suggested the jealousy she felt.

There were three weeks of the honeymoon, and Harvey was giving the reins to the new Mrs. Post after his first trip downtown.

"Ted's going to marry Audrey Dunbar," he announced as the choicest barrel.

"So mother was telling me," was the reply. "I expected it, but not so soon."

"I didn't suppose that you would relish such a quick desertion," said Harvey, with a laugh. But Alice only smiled.

She smiled still more broadly when Ted proudly escorted Audrey to call and welcome them home. There was an air of defiance in his manner that was amusing to the girl who knew him better than to know himself, and Ted did not realize how truthful was Alice's declaration.

"Audrey," was the very girl who would have picked out. He could not tell that Alice was another upon his stubbornness to make her happy by removing his responsibility. He only thought that he had shown her that he was a man of his own mind, and therein he found great content.

In certain localities in the old world they put salt in the coffin before it is lowered into the grave. This is the survival of an ancient custom which was once universal. The custom grew out of the idea that Satan hates salt because it is the symbol of incorruption and immortality.

Message Read to Both Houses of National Assembly

Financial Standing of the Nation Declared Excellent—Control of Con-

Washington.—The message of President Roosevelt was read in both houses of congress Tuesday. In substance the document was as follows:

during the period from July 1, 1901, to September 30, 1908, there was an increase in the amount of money in circulation of $902,991,250. The increase in the per capita during this period was $7.06. Within this time there were several occasions when it was necessary for the treasury department to come to the relief of the money market by purchases or redemptions of United States bonds; by increases short, during the seven years and six months there has been a net surplus of nearly one hundred millions of receipts over expenditures, a reduction of the interest-bearing debt by ninety millions, in spite of the extraordinary expense of the Panama canal, and a saving of nearly nine millions on the annual interest charge.

in all their future public relations. The public has a right to know, and furthermore, the public has the power, not by judicial but by executive action, to prevent or put a stop to the use of any form of improper favoritism or wrongdoing.

The railroads of the country should be completely under the interstate commerce commission and removed from the domain of the anti-trust laws. The power of the commission should be made punishing, so that it could exercise its power to raise and control over the raising of securities and the raising and lowering of rates. At least, this power should be given to the commission. The law as it is compatible with giving the power to all the employees of the railroads from the highest to the lowest, and the power to the shareholders, if they must not be for material gain, it is in such fashion as to necessitate that the wages of the employees or the dividends of the shareholders be made in the proper and legitimate form of honest share.

graph and telephone companies end in interstate business should be under the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission.

It is very earnestly to be wished that people, through their representatives, should act in this matter. It is, to the interest of all of us that there should be a premium put upon individual initiative and individual ca-

Legislation for Wageworker.
There are many matters affecting labor and the status of the wageworker to which I should like to draw your attention. I should like to discuss the problem in all its aspects, not to limit myself to one or two points. I believe in a steady effort, or perhaps it would be more correct to say, in a steady effort in many different directions, to bring to a condition of affairs under which men who work with hand or with machine, the superintendents, foremen who produce, the engineers, who find a market for the articles produced, shall own a far greater share of the product than they now do, and be enabled to invest their profits and instruments by which all work is carried on. As far as possible I hope to bring to the attention of the public the advantages to be derived from the organization and division of labor, accompanied by an effort to bring about a larger share of the product to the wage-worker of mill and factory.

[illegible]

The violence of the crusade for this country, and its complete failure, have shown that the only way to get our people should learn, in the first place, they ought to teach themselves, the laborer, the wage-worker, that he depends upon the employer and impossible he plays into the hands of his foes. Such a crude and vicious attack upon the courts, even if it were temporarily successful, would inevitably in the end cause a violent reaction and would band the great body of men together, forcing them to stand by the side of the courts. The incompetent alike, rather than to the wheels of justice stopped. The wage-workers, the workmen, the laboring men, are being misled by the way in which they repudiate the right to get them to cast their votes in response to an appeal to class hatred, to the cause of their sound patriotism. Americanism is such a broad and an object lesson in good citizenship to entire nation.

There are certain decisions by various States which have been exceedingly detrimental to the rights of wage-workers. The decisions which decide that certain men are, by the constitution, to lose their liberty" to contract to enter an dangerous occupation, or to work an excessive or improper number of hours, or to work in a certain place, and therefore, cannot recover damages, are a maim in that occupation, and not be forbidden to work what the law allows, and to work an excessive number of hours, or to carry on his work under conditions which the legislature decides to be unhealthy. Decisions such as these nullify the legislative intent to protect the wage-workers who need protection from those employers who take advantage of their ignorance. They halt or hamper the movement toward a fair and more equal conditions of labor.

It is also, I think, ground for the belief that substantial injustice is often effected by employees in consequence of the action of courts issuing temporary injunctions without regard to them, and punishing them for contempt of court in cases where, as a matter of fact, they have no knowledge of any proceeding. Organized labor is chafing at the unjust restraint which is placed upon them by resort to this procedure. Its discontent has been unwisely expressed, and improperly expressed, but there seems to be some basis for it, and the remedy of the courts by the use of law-abiding and responsible community would be in a far stronger position for upholding the courts if the unjustly existing abuses could be promptly eliminated.

Injunction Must Remain.

The power of injunction is a great and valuable remedy, which should not be destroyed. But safeguards

The Modern Corporation.
The huge wealth that has been accumulated by a few individuals of recent years, in what has amounted to a social and industrial revolution, has brought regarding some of these individuals made possible only by the improper use of the modern corporation, a sort of type of modern corporation, with officers and agents, its many issues securities, and its constant consolidation with allied undertakings, and become a more and more complex system to contain a greater number of elements that, under various judicial decisions, lend themselves to fraud and oppression than any device yet evolved by the human brain. Corporations are necessities of the modern business. They have been permitted to become a menace largely because of governmental representatives of the people have worked slowly in providing

Respect for Law Must Be Upheld.
The courts hold a place of peculiar and reserved sanctity under our form of government. Respect for the law is essential to the maintenance of our institutions, and respect for the law is largely conditioned upon respect for the courts. Any attack against the republic must begin with an attack upon the respect, above for the gravest reason and in the most carefully guarded manner. In no field so vast and far-reaching do the courts in the United States. All that is new is that the courts as a whole are now more closely identified with the wisdom already shown by those judges who scan the future while the present lets them exercise their great powers. It is not only a great privilege, but with wise insight into the needs and fixed purposes of the people, that the Justices, and the judges, are asked, so that they may protect all persons in their rights, and yet break down barriers of privilege, which is the function of a free society.

Forest Preservation. If there is any one duty which more than another we owe it to our children and to our country, it is to preserve the forest of this country, for they constitute the first and most important element in the wealth of the nation and the chief source of the country. Just as a farmer, after all his life making him a fortune, leaves it to his son, so the farmer, leaving it as an asset of increased value to his son, so we should leave it to our children. The forest, increased in value and not worn out, is the source of our wealth. There are small sections of our own country where the forest is being cut, in the Adirondacks, the White mountains and the Appalachians, and in the Rocky mountains. The forest is being cut, and the damage in the shape of permanent injury to the soil and the loss of the forest is being done. The forestation. It matters not whether the deforestation is due to the actual cutting of the forest, or to the fact that inevitably follow such reckless cutting of timber, or to reckless and uncontrolled grazing of the forest by the great herds of bands of sheep, the great wandering of which ever the forest is cut, the forest is being cut, and the damage to the small home-makers, the the use of limited means to the use of our splendid forests, have already crossed the verge of a timber famine in this country, and a large number of people, who can at least take care of themselves, are being driven to the forests to find their livelihood. In many years, under the best of circumstances, the highest degree reprehensible to further any such expedient convenience or temporary cost-savings interferes with such action, especially as the national forests which the State controls are now, at this very moment, the lesson of deforestation in China and the United States have been demonstrated many times already from the forests occurred in other places. Denudation leaves naked soil; then gully-erosion follows, and the soil is washed away. The rock-waste bank, and meanwhile the forest is gone, menaces the soil. When the soil is gone, menaces the soil. When the soil is gone, menaces the soil.

Plans for Inland Waters

tion should be begun forthwith, during the present session of the congress—the improvement of our inland waterways—action which will result in giving not only navigable but navigated rivers.

Until the work of river improvement is undertaken in a modern way it can not be results that will meet the needs of a modern nation. The plan which promises the best and quickest results is that of a "massed" commission authorized to do the work of all the government departments in the country, to frame and supervise the execution of the laws, to coordinate and command the actual work of the country might be entrusted to the region, to the provinces or to the municipalities, or to the central government acting with a sufficient number of representatives of the people, so that it might be possible to work in time of peace, and to have a good explanation service and the corps of inspectors, and the necessary revenues if they are provided otherwise from the sale of bonds. The country would be able to go forward under the best possible conditions, and without any loss of time for playing with the past. The country demands that national parks be created, and that the parks adjacent to the cities be placed under the control of the service of the agricultural department; it also points out the need for a law of the forest derived from pure food legislation.

The message concludes:

Needs of the Secret Service

Last year an amendment was passed by the House of Representatives which would have authorized the secret service, which provided that there should be no detail from the secret service to any other branch of the government. The question of the amendment in question was of-bureaucratic in nature. It was not a question excepting to criminals, but it seemed to me that the detection of crime and the securing of evidence for the prosecution in favor of the criminal arguments of the congressmen did not belong to the secret service, but to the investigation of crime, the secret service men. Very little of investigation has been done in the past, but that is the duty of the secret agents was partly responsible for the indictment and conviction of a large number of persons in the state of Oregon. I do not believe that the secret service has any interest in protecting criminals, but I believe that in any branch of the secret service, exactly as we have again and again in the past, we have years prosecuted convicted such criminals, but the executive branch of the government has not been able to prosecute them. I believe to prosecute them if found in the legislative branch. But if this is the case, I believe that the secret service could be made in the law prohibiting the use of the secret service force in investigating crime, but I believe that

Postal Savings Banks.
I again renew my recommendation for postal savings banks, for deposit savings with the security of investment behind them. The only reason to encourage the economic wage-earner and person of moderate means, is believed that in aggregate vast sums of money would be put into circulation through the instrumentality of the postal savings banks.

Parcel Post.
In my last annual message I recommended the postmaster-general's recommendation for an extension of parcel post on the rural routes. The establishment of a local parcel post rural routes would be to the mutual benefit of the farmer and the consumer, stored and it is desirable that the routes, serving more than 150 people, should be utilized to the full practicable extent.

Education. With the limited means hitherto provided, the bureau of education rendered commendable service, but the congress has neglected to adequately supply the bureau with means to meet educational growth of the country. It is respectfully recommended that this unfortunate state of affairs be rectified by the national educational office be remedied by adequate appropriations. This recommendation is urged by the representatives of our common schools and great numbers of our country's school educators, who all unite in requesting favorable consideration and action by the congress upon this subject. The public should point out the necessity of better organization of the various bureaus responsible for the public health, and urges the placing of soldiers' homes under the jurisdiction of the war department.

On the question of statehood president says:
I advocate the immediate admission New Mexico and Arizona as states. This should be done at the present session of the congress. The people of the two territories have made it evident by their votes that they will not come in as a state. The only alternative is to admit them as two, and I trust that this will Interstate Fisheries. I call the attention of the congress to the importance of the problem of interstate fisheries in the waters of the Great Lakes we are now, under the wise treaty of April 11 of this year, endeavoring to come to an international agreement for preservation and satisfactory use of the fisheries of these waters which can not otherwise be achieved. Lake Erie, for example, has the richest fishery in the world; but the waters of this lake are divided among four states, one province and this province by two different ordinances in different counties. All the fish are taken on cross-purposes, and in no case can the protection to the fisheries, on the one hand, and justice to the localities and individuals on the other.

This nation's foreign policy is based on the theory that right must be done between nations precisely as between individuals, and in our actions for the last ten years we have in this matter proven our faith by our deeds. We have behaved, and are behaving, towards other nations, as in private life an honorable man would behave towards his fellows.

The commercial and material progress of the 20 Latin-American republics is worthy of the careful attention of the congress. The International Humanitarian Committee is doing a useful work in making these countries and their resources better known and in acquainting them not only with the people and with our purposes toward them, but with what we have to exchange for their goods.

Panama Canal.

The work on the Panama canal is being done with a speed, efficiency and economy that is a fine example and model for all work of the kind. The men on the isthmus, from Col. Goethals and his fellow commissioners through the various divisions, are doing their duty faithfully doing their duty, have won their right to the ungrudging respect and gratitude of the American people.

I again recommend the extension of the ocean mail act of 1931 so that satisfactory American sea lines to South America, Asia, the Philippines and Australasia may be established from Hawaii.

I call particular attention to the Territory of Hawaii. The importance of these islands is apparent, and the need of improving their condition and developing their resources is urgent.

The Philippines.

Real progress toward self-government being made in the Philippine Islands, I trust that within a generation the time will arrive when the Philippine

How to Make Christ-

Sexes—Hatpin Cush-

Suit Case Set For a Man.

The hatpin cushion shown is made of pompadour ribbons and val lace. It is tied in the center with baby ribbon.
The needlebook is also a dainty little trick, easily made, and appreciated either by men or women.
The design shown is a conventional prismatic pattern worked in ribbons.
For the man who travels nothing will be more appreciated than what is called a suit case set. So many people use the suit case, but have never been able to overcome the difficulty of keeping the shoes and brushes from rubbing up their clean linen. There are three different articles in this set, all of which are made of cotton linen.

The receptacle for shirts is in the shape of a large envelope, the edges bound with tinsel, and should be large enough to contain two shirts.

The bag for collars is made from the same material. The bottom is circular and made from pasteboard. A good idea is to sew in this a strip of pasteboard about two inches deep. These should be covered with the linen before being fastened together. The upper part of bag should be full and gathered with a drawing string. This protects the collars from crushing as well as keeps them clean.

The third article in the set is a plain linen bag lined with oiled silk. This is intended for sponges and protects the contents of the suit case from the moisture of this toilet necessity after it has been used. The hairbrush can be put in this bag if no sponge is used.
The monogram can be embroidered on the outside.

To make a slumber robe for baby take two and a half yards of plain silkoline, three bolts of No. 1 ribbon, one skein of Shetland flax and one lot of fine cotton.

Divide the silkoline into two equal parts, place in a frame and put in layers of cotton between, ready for tying.

Thread the ribbons all in tiny bows.
Thread the needle with the Shetland flax, using it double. Bring the needle up from the bottom, then down again, taking a stitch through one of the bows. Tie the yarn on the wrong side, with three or four extra needles tied in the knot to make a small knot.

Continue the knotting in this manner, beginning with two and a half inches from the edges, making the knots four inches apart. Turn in, the se with the yarn used many.

Crochet a row of shells around the quilt, each shell of five double crochet fastened with a single crochet and placed close enough together to make the work lie flat and filled at the corners.

On the right side, just inside the buttonhole, make a row of featherstitching with the yarn.
This makes a light, dainty cover for the baby. It is very pretty of blue silkoline tied with white ribbons or of white silkoline tied with pink and blue.

Safety Pin Holder.

As a gift to young mothers to accompany the baby basket and hatpin holders make useful presents.

Among the new fancy articles that are being made for Christmas is a folding hatrack which very much resembles a candlestick shade. A sentimental is first cut out of buckram or tulle, canvas, the outer edge being twenty-two inches and the height five inches. It can be covered with denim, colored linen or flowered cretonne and is bound with gold braid, which is glued on, or with silk braid to match the cover. Three clasps or hooks are sewed on the ends, and when these are fastened together the whole forms a cone on which the hat can rest on the table or the hatbox.

Another acceptable gift is a handmade medicine case, which would be found most useful when travelling. It is made of plain linen bound with red braid. Cut a piece of the linen 14 by 12 inches and fashion it so that it forms four well shaped flaps. Bind them with the braid. Then take about ten inches of red silk garter elastic and stitch it to the center of the flaps in a cross shape, placing in the elastic part five two ounce bottles.
