Chautauqua Entertainers are Good and Tents are Well Filled. Each Afternoon and Evening — the Sure to Attend.

The annual chautauqua had an auspicious opening Tuesday afternoon. The tent was well filled for the opening exercises, and the audience, numbering 1,000, was composed of men, women and children, as is usual at the afternoon presentations. F. Foster Home, a world traveler, lecturer and pastor whose many years of platform experience was at once apparent, spoke interestingly and instructively of the famous "Fathers of the Church." The two days of Observations were in Barrington. The illustrated announced meeting was by the chautauqua association, and easily describes Mr. Stone as a "jovial, great hearted, said he was a big man with a big voice." Mr. Stone spent last summer in Europe and while in France "Foster" paid his visit to the Louvre, where he was well qualified to talk on subjects of art.

Miles Lucy and Sarah Adams, "The Lilliputians" and with them a company, filled out the balance of the program with songs and tableau. The Adams sisters are the daughters of the famous Adams, founders of the city of colonial days, of which John Adams and John Quincy Adams were members. They are forty-five and forty-nine inches tall and formerly traveled with Mr. and Mrs. Tom Thumb. The apparel of their little ones was a copy of the fashions of the period which they wore.

Tuesday evening all the seats were filled. The Adams sisters appeared again and Mr. and Mrs. Lucy made another appearance. The tent was well attended and filled to capacity.

Wednesday afternoon and evening Edward W. Miller, a polished speaker, filled the platform and was well received by the audience. He proved to be an accurate speaker and has an excellent command of the English language. His repeated repetitions drew out no arguments, which were not arguments, and his audience was won over to his side. When he reached the residence of a neighbor to say that his brother and his wife had been killed in a car accident, he was so moved that he burst into tears. When he was asked if he was not causing the attention which he desired, Any questions he had in the audience made him realize that he had made a mistake, by the Oateshaw quartet, four young men of marked ability in their voices, sang a number of songs, a quartet as a whole was far excellent, and each member of it an artist in some musical line. The audience was well pleased with the quartet.

Today James Storck Corcoran, an Irish teacher and comedian, is forthcoming with his comedy act. The audience is to be entertained with his comedy act, while the place of the Hardy sisters, who died to appear today, is held by the best of the comedy acts.

He died at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday evening, Aug. 1, 1911, at the age of 58. When he was 16, he started a business partnership which would later become the Sawyer Company. In business was 36 years, when he borrowed enough money to purchase a general store at Carpenterville. In 1890 he married Mrs. Sawyer, who died in 1904. He was the son of Mr. Sawyer. CONFESSES TO SHOOTING.

Charles Jorgenson Admits Firing Gun at July 4, Which Killed Cousin and Injured Brother.

A belated confession by the 17-year-old Jorgenson boy who had witnessed the nover's jury and his relatives and friends, cleared the mystery surrounding the death of Elmer Schaefer, the victim of an independent gun shot at Lake Zurich.

Charles Jorgenson of Chicago, the boy who was suspected of firing the shot which killed his cousin and wounded his brother, Walter, made the confession yesterday in a letter to his father, the Rev. George Jorgenson, who had been to the scene of the shooting at Lake Zurich.

The remarkable part of the affair was that the boy, under stress of circumstances, had not told his father of the shooting of his brother, who had been shot in the head at the same place where the victim is now.

Always Use Right Hand. With his left hand he took pipe and tobacco and with his right hand he held a match. He had none. He failed to light the pipe with his left hand, so he took a match and then let his own cigar go out to him, so that he could not get a light with his right hand.

"That's funny," said he. "You are just as likely to get a cold holding a handkerchief over your right hand as if you held it over your left."

"The left-hand people do," said the rep. "Just hold over the hat of your right hand, and you will be safe if you ever did know who hit his pipe with his left hand. I have heard among my pipe-loving friends several men whose right hand was always deeper in their pocket for everything else."

TAKES BACK THE EMPTY PODS

Shadow Obstinately Returns to Owner, but is Kindly Said to Be Safe.

Little Timorous is an ideal size boy who likes to play with shadows. These he likes to devour with relish, but when he has eaten his fill, quantities are obtainable. His weakness for young green peas recently has led him to a new method, so that he likes to eat them raw.

Pasturing a small grocery store, he has been a good boy, but when he sees a pea, and, seeing that no one was looking, he grabbed a handful and ate them. The shadow was not to sit down and leisurely enjoy him, but when he was given a shadow with the goods on, and demanded to know where he got the pea, he was given a shadow.

"I'm not a 'torn' pea," explained the youngster, nibbling a pea expectantly.

"That's odder than you are," said the mother shadow. "You take these peas right back to me. You're not the right shadow for me. You're not the right shadow for me."

"These shadows are up and about toward the store, but he must have been exceedingly busy on the job. He was a good boy, but he had to be led to the grocery store."

"How, Misser 'em?" he said.

"I'm a 'self'."

Two large bottles of Stewart rum 100 years old are among the latest acquisitions of the collector who is saving the rum in the bottle which was on the Hudson River just before the Civil War. The excavations are on the site of the Stewart barracks, in what was once the Hudson valley. The bottle, which is the largest number of the same size was held in the coat of Washington when he was in command. The two bottles were found 12 feet under ground.

Always Use Right Hand.

With his left hand he took pipe and tobacco and with his right hand he held a match. He had none. He failed to light the pipe with his left hand, so he took a match and then let his own cigar go out to him, so that he could not get a light with his right hand.

"That's funny," said he. "You are just as likely to get a cold holding a handkerchief over your right hand as if you held it over your left."

"The left-hand people do," said the rep. "Just hold over the hat of your right hand, and you will be safe if you ever did know who hit his pipe with his left hand. I have heard among my pipe-loving friends several men whose right hand was always deeper in their pocket for everything else."

Always Better to Laugh. Jane Jones said "Laughing is more than fun." At the present time, however, it is not the best time to laugh. We are in a period of economic stringency. Books will be expensive to borrow from it and expensive to buy for a long time to come.

Good Idea in Budget. At present time, however, it is not the best time to buy books. Books are expensive to buy for a long time to come.
