

CROWDS AT MEETINGS

Evangelical Campmeeting Has Most Successful Opening To Its History—Twenty-five Ministers Present

Weather and beauty of grounds brought many people to the Harrington campmeeting this year, and the hotels and dormitories have been filled from the first day. The large hall and additional cottages were used to house the thousands who were attracted to the annual campmeeting this year.

On young people's day the report of the secretary showed that fully double the attendance of that of last year greeted the speakers this year. The business side of the campmeeting is attended to by a board of officers who care for every detail in order to make the meetings successful.

Warm words of praise are heard on the grounds. The management secured Mr. Boyd of Chicago, a splendid choir leader, to lead the singing and to help. The services have been spiritual and helpful from the start, and the best of the campmeeting has been the singing and the preaching. Dr. C. M. Cook, of Ames, Oklahoma, Lakeland, Iowa, several lectures on the subject of the Christian life, and of sociology, bible criticism and Christian experience. Though he was ministerial in his approach, his message was to the people, and his message was to the people, and his message was to the people.

Rev. E. S. Woodring, of Allentown, Pennsylvania, preached two well received sermons on Wednesday and Friday. The campmeeting will continue until Monday morning, and close with a farewell service. Bishop U. S. Bengtson of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, is expected to arrive tomorrow morning and will speak each day until the close of the meeting.

The program for the remaining days of the campmeeting is as follows: Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock Rev. F. Busse of Chicago will speak on the subject of the Christian life. Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock Rev. F. Busse of Chicago will speak on the subject of the Christian life. Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock Rev. F. GROW ALKALFA HAS PLEA.

Practical Farmer Tells How It Is Grown—Urges Farmers to Take Up Crop Without Delay

The value of alfalfa in the average farm of Illinois is the varying problems relating to its feeding, value questions and its future culture, manager of the Illinois Farmers' Institute, is a live one and is in its acute stage just now.

"Enough, however, is known of the value of this wonderful plant to satisfy the most exacting of the farmers of the future and particularly to the live stock farmers. That it will to some extent displace the supremacy of 'king corn' there is no doubt. To determine this extent is a question of evolution and need presents of present methods.

"The average farmer will change his farm methods there are two questions which must be answered in the mind of the practical farmer. The first is: Is it profitable? The answer to the second is that all soils which will produce alfalfa will produce alfalfa, and which soils to produce of their kind are not so numerous as to be well adapted to not clover will produce alfalfa profitably.

"The extent of the question that there is a smaller per cent of failures from alfalfa properly sown than from red clover is a question of fact. The limited space allotted will not permit of detailed discussion of the proper method of sowing alfalfa, but only that the well known methods of sowing alfalfa are: broadcast, drill, and strip sowing. The broadcast method is the best, and the strip sowing method is the best, and the strip sowing method is the best.

"The second question—as to the value of alfalfa—is an interesting one. The value of alfalfa is in its value of alfalfa. The value of alfalfa is in its value of alfalfa. The value of alfalfa is in its value of alfalfa. The value of alfalfa is in its value of alfalfa.
