Fair Offer.
 It was a political meeting in the east end, and the M. P., an exceptionally popular man, was addressing his constituents. The politician in question rode in a luxurious car of hair. The audience was sympathetic to the speaker, but there was one man in the front row of the audience who made anomalous interruptions. He was a coarsely, apparently, and had but recently been leaving work.
 "Give your hair cut!" he shouted during a most pathetic passage in the orator's speech. The well-known phrase seemed particularly applicable, so a good many of the audience laughed.
 "But the M. P. was equal to the occasion.
 "I will make a bargain" with that fellow," he said. "I will get my hair cut if he will get his face shaved."
 There were no more interruptions.
 -Lindon T. Willis.

One Way.
 "How do you hold onto your coat when you are away on your vacation by paying her a bonus to come back?"
 "No, by not paying her what I owe her."

When the Warm Turns.
 "No power on earth will make me to lie," he declared, finally. She proached close to his side. Her face blushed into his and her lips came close to his.
 "You shall do it! However you like," she said. "No! No! No! No!"
 "I refuse utterly!" Such a thing is unworthy for a man of pride and honor to undertake!" he repeated, driving back from her as from a whip.
 Suddenly she was at his side again, gripping his arm with fingers still hard as steel.
 She slipped a small knife into his hand. "There!" she said. "This obstacle was momentarily driving her to the verge of insanity.
 Her voice broke with passion, and the cry, in a loud, angry tone: "With this knife, if you don't do what I want and go just those moments at once, you'll go to bed without any dinner!" -Puck.

Men and Women.
 As time goes on we have to be more realistic in our estimate of the world.
 The point—usually early in life—where business or politics absorbs their whole attention, and they have little time, strength or interest left for the broader culture and the amenities of life, while women are prone to be too much preoccupied with these things to the injury of the home—ent, perhaps the average American home.
 The wheels of its machinery do usually run smoothly, though at great expense and to the injury of the home spirit.
