SERVICES WERE FINE

The Dedication Services at the Baptist Church Last Sunday Were Enjoyed by All—Pastor Gets Credit.

Not for a long time have Barrington people been privileged to hear in one day such a remarkable series of religious and musical services as on last Sunday. The occasion was the rededication of the Baptist church, which on the preceding week had been rendered complete as a place of worship, by the installation of a beautiful pipe organ. Many people from out of town were present at the various services.

At the morning service, Rev. F. L. Anderson, president of the Chicago Executive Council of the Baptist Church preached the sermon. Dr. Anderson is a man of fine presence in the pulpit and the quality of his ability and very scholarly was evident to all who were present. Pretty floral decorations and good music by the choir helped to make the service effective. Miss Cornelia Smith presided at the organ.

Long before three-thirty o'clock the hour fixed for the organ dedication service, the church was filled with an expectant audience. Chairs had to be placed in the aisles and in all the extra spaces to accommodate the people who came for the musical treat in store for them. The theme for the afternoon was the life of Christ, expressed in the scripture selections, read by Rev. Anderson and by Rev. Erb, the latter coming from his church in Hyde Park for the occasion, and in the solo by Mr. Cameron and the quartet of Misses Florence Collier and Viola Lines and Messrs. A. C. Lines and Herbert Wigman, with songs by the choir and congregation interspersed. Mr. H. C. Miller of Chicago, an organist of fine ability, rendered several selections in such pleasing fashion that the tones of the new instrument were wonderfully sweet to the ear.

At the commencement of the service, Rev. Lockhart announced that Miss Little Spinner and Mr. and Mrs. George W. Spinner had contributed one half, and Andrew Carnegie the other half of the cost of the organ. Correspondence last night that this month was carried on before Mr. Carnegie was satisfied that the conditions he stipulated could be complied with. The members of the church are very grateful to those who, by their generosity, have made it possible to have this, the first pipe organ in Barrington.

Last, but not the least of the day's events, was the address in the evening by Dean Schalles of the Chicago University divinity school. The subject he chose was "The Thing the Church Stands For" and he handled it in a very interesting and forceful manner. Mr. Miller was again at the organ. Miss Elvora Aps of Palestine assisted the choir by singing two pleasing solos.

At all the services of the day Mr. Lockhart, the pastor, presided. To his untiring effort is due, not only the success of the day's services but the series of additions to the membership of the church for a more effective work in the community, which is sure to follow these rededication services.

To increase yield per acre. The Middle West Soil Improvement association, which for the past six months has been perfecting its plans, met in Chicago Thursday and launched its active campaign for the purpose of increasing the yield per acre in Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Missouri. Its plans include general publicity, practical field tests, co-operation with all other agricultural and commercial interests, state experiment stations, colleges of agriculture and agricultural schools.

ARRESTED FOR SPEEDING.

Frank Warner, chauffeur for H. W. Hahn, Arrested Last Saturday—Fined $25 and Costs.

Frank Warner, chauffeur for H. W. Hahn, was placed under arrest last Saturday by Constable George M. Wagner on complaint of George Hansen, who charged him with running an automobile at a speed exceeding the limit permitted under the state law, in miles an hour, on Main street, in the village of Barrington, about two o'clock last Saturday afternoon. Mr. Warner was taken before Justice of the Peace P. H. Frye and put up a cash bond for his appearance Monday morning at eleven o'clock.

The case was heard before Mr. Frye Monday morning promptly at eleven o'clock. Besides Mr. Hansen, Edward Magee, Samuel Peters, August Rohmeyer and James Catlow appeared as witnesses for the prosecution. All the witnesses told practically the same story. They claimed that Warner was driving his car at a speed of 25 miles an hour and that he opened the muffler on the engine making an unusual noise which frightened horses tied on Main street. Mr. Hansen said that when he passed him, about a half mile west of the public square, his muffler was wide open and that he was running at least 25 miles an hour. He said that his horse was badly scared and that the horse would be unfit for family driving.

Mr. Warner cross-examined the witnesses and brought out the point that as none of them had seen the car, they were not competent to judge the speed at which he was running. He also claimed that the village ordinances or state law did not prohibit his opening the muffler on the car, and told "Judge" Frye that he did not think the witnesses had made a case. Mr. Frye thought differently, however, and assessed a fine of $25 and costs, which Mr. Warner paid under protest. This is Mr. Warner's third appearance in a justice court in this village during the past year.

ONE DAY OF ROAD RACES.

Only One Day of Elgin Road Races This Year—The Lack of Entries Given as Reason.

Abandonment of the stock chassis races and limitation of the road races at Elgin to only one day, Aug. 24, was the decision of directors of the Chicago Motor club Friday afternoon following the return of the contest committee without a single entry after two week's effort. The contest board in a meeting Thursday afternoon recommended the change which was formally adopted. The speed kings will sweep around the course only one day in two separate events, morning and afternoon of Saturday, August 24.

Failure to secure entries effectually stopped all chance of holding the two day chassis event. What will be the result with only one day of racing is dubious.

Rumors have been prevalent in the city for the past year that the Elgin races would not be held. Attempts to secure stock car entries proved futile and the committee was sent to Detroit two weeks ago to ask manufacturers to make nominations, but returned without a single word of encouragement.

New Pension Law Goes Into Effect. Congress has passed the new pension bill, which gives the old soldier of the Civil and Mexican wars quite a substantial increase in their pension. Soldiers who are 60 years of age and up to 64, get an increase from one to four dollars per month, depending upon the length of time they served in the army. From 65 to 70 years of age, they get from three to seven dollars per month, and between 70 and 75 years, they get from three to five dollars a month. Above 75 years, they get from one to ten dollars per month.

Any of the old soldiers who desire to have their pensions increased under the operation of the new law, should write to their Congressman, Honorable Frank Buchanan, Washington, D. C., and he will see that proper information and blanks are sent to them. This should be done as quickly as possible as the increase in pension begins from the date of the filing of the application.

Congressman Buchanan supported the bill to give them a dollar a day, and it passed the House carrying a pension at that amount, but the Senate saw fit to make quite a little reduction, and the result is a compromise, but taking it all in all, it has given the old soldier quite a little assistance in his declining years.

BASE BALL NOTES. News About the Games Played by Barrington's Two Teams at Home and on Other Ground.

The game last Saturday between the Sterling Athletic club of Chicago and the home team was won by the latter by the score of 19 to 17. The game was a long drawn out affair and although the score doesn't show it was exciting from start to finish. Pomeroy and Hreeda did the picking for the locals and Shearer caught. Next Saturday they will play the Clover Leaf ball team from Chicago.

On Decoration day this year there will only be one game played. The home team of Chicago will be the opposing team and Manager Blocks promises a good game. The game will not be started until after the memorial services are over so that all will have a chance to see it.

The high school team went to Arlington Heights last Friday and played a ten inning game, winning by a 14 to 6 score. Thorton pitched for the locals.

Memorial Day. In honor of the gallant boys of '61 and '65 who followed Old Glory through hardship and battle in order to preserve the Union, we run in this issue of the REVIEW an article that every one of our subscribers should read.

Too much cannot be said or done in honor of the old soldiers who are still with us and those who have answered the last roll call. Each Memorial Day the ranks are thinner and the step of the veteran more feeble.

Read our tribute to the memory of the men who answered "Here" when their country called for them.

LORIMER REPORT IN

MAJORITY OF INVESTIGATORS SUSTAIN SENATOR'S TITLE TO SEAT ON EVIDENCE.

O. K. RES ADJUDICATA PLEA

Minority Members Declare That Yes Votes Were Secured Illegally and Money Was Corruptly and Fraudulently Used in Election.

Washington, May 21.—Senator Lorimer's vindication by the majority members of the senatorial committee which investigated his election was written into the official records of the United States senate.

Senator Dillingham, chairman of the committee, presented the report, signed by five members of the committee—Dillingham, Gamble, Jones, Johnston and Fletcher. It is a document of 91 printed pages, detailing at length the evidence upon which the committee found that there had been no corruption in the election of the Illinois senator.

Three members of the committee—Senators Lea, Kenyon and Kern—later presented a minority report, opposing the views of the majority and insisting that corruption had been proved. They presented a resolution declaring Senator Lorimer's election invalid and his seat vacant.

The minority report holds that Mr. Lorimer's election was obtained by fraud and improper use of money. It is declared that ten of the votes cast for Mr. Lorimer were obtained by corrupt methods and that Edward Hines, the millionaire Chicago lumber man, was influential in "putting Lorimer over."

The statement of the minority members is particularly sharp in its denunciation of the methods used in Mr. Lorimer's election. According to these senators the testimony taken by the committee establishes Mr. Hines as "one who looked upon everything and everybody as being purchasable, the only question of doubt in his mind being the amount of money necessary to purchase this or that person."

The majority report sustains the plea of res adjudicata, which is in effect that the case, having once been decided by the senate, cannot again be brought into issue upon the same evidence. In this connection it is strongly pointed out that the claim of newly discovered evidence was not substantiated.

PASTOR IS EXECUTED

CLARENCE V. T. RICHESON ELECTRO-
CUT SHORTLY AFTER MIDNIGHT TUESDAY.

MINISTERS ARE WITH HIM

Doomed Man Does Not Falter and Walked to Chair With Firm Step and Every outward indication of calmness.

Massachusetts State Prison, Charlestown, Mass., May 22.—At 12:10 Tuesday morning, in the Charlestown state prison, former clergyman Clarence V. T. Richeson paid the penalty for the murder of Avis Linnell by being electrocuted.

The condemned man walked to the electric chair with more firmness and courage than had been expected by those who had observed him for the past few weeks. He had spent his last hours in seeking spiritual consolation in the Bible and in conversation with his spiritual advisers, who were in almost constant attendance up to the last moment.

Prison Chaplain Stebbins and Dr. Johnson had a nerve-racking experience with the condemned man before they succeeded in having him resign himself to his fate.

Only when they had reminded him that he was once a minister and ought to show a sublime faith in the hereafter did the man announce that he was ready to face the ordeal of legal death without flinching. Before this he had exclaimed:

"It is terrible I cannot stand it. They will have to carry me. Afterward, however, he seemed to take the attitude that it was his duty to the church to be brave. Under the influence of that attitude he bore up remarkably well, although there were periods when outbreaks occurred.

In a hotel near the Charlestown jail was Douglas Richeson, a brother of the condemned man, who had come here from Chicago. A lawyer asked him to go and say farewell to his brother. He said he was ready. The lawyer sent word to the condemned man, who cried:

"I can't! I can't! Douglas had best not come here. I could stand it, but he might break down."

The solemn hour of midnight found Richeson praying, after which he recited the Twenty-third Psalm. He seemed to find consolation in this part of the psalm:

"Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me; Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me."

"I am ready now," he said. A moment later the warden appeared to escort him to the death chamber. Richeson did not falter, and walked to the chair with firm step and every outward indication of calmness and resignation.

CHAPTER I.

The roaring reports of the motor fell into abrupt silence, as the driver brought his car to a halt.

"You signaled," he called across the grid of set brakes.

In the blending glare of the search lights from the two machines, the gray one arrived and the limousine drawn to the roadside, the young girl stood, her hand still extended in the gesture which had stopped the man who now leaned across his wheel.

"Oh, please," she appealed again.

On either side stretched away the Long Island meadows, dark, soundless, apparently uninhabited. Only this spot of light broke the monotony of dreariness. A keen, chill October wind sighed past, stirring the girl's delicate gown as its folds lay unneeded in the dust, fluttering her fur lined cloak and shaking two or three childish curls from the bondage of her velvet hood. The driver swung himself down and came toward her with the unobtrusive swiftness of one trained to the unexpected.

"I beg pardon—can I be of some use?" he asked.

"We are lost," she confessed hurriedly. "If you could set us right, I should be grateful. I—we must get home soon. I have been a guest at a house somewhere here, and wanted to return to New York this afternoon. The chauffeur does not know Long Island; we cannot seem to find any place. And now we have lost a tire. It was afraid—"

She broke off abruptly, as her companion descended from the limousine.

"We only want to know the way, we're all right," he explained. "This is my cousin. I came out after her, you see. Don't get so worried, Emily—we'll get straight on as soon as Anderson changes the tire."

He huddled his words slightly and spoke too rapidly, the round, good-humored face he turned to the white light was too flushed; otherwise there was nothing unusual in his appearance. And his caste was evident and unquestionable in spite of any circumstance. There was an eager, anxious look in his dark eyes as she gazed straight before her, only pity and helpless distress.

"I can tell your chauffeur the road," the driver of the gray car quietly said. "Have you far to go?"

"To the St. Royal," she answered, looking at him. "My uncle is there. Is that far?"

"No; you can reach there by ten o'clock. I will speak to your chauffeur."

"Do, like a good fellow," the other man interposed. "Awfully obliged. I'm not angry, Emily," he added, lowering his voice, and moving nearer her. "Since we're engaged, why should you get frightened simply because I proposed we get married to-night instead of waiting for a big wedding? I thought it was a good idea, you know. It isn't my fault. Anderson got lost instead of getting us home for dinner, is it?"

"Hush, Dick," she rebuked, hot color sweeping her face. "You are not well. And we are not engaged; you forget. Just because people want us to be—"

"Too proud to let her stolidness quiver, she broke the sentence."

If the driver had heard, and it was scarcely possible that he had not, he made no sign. By the acetylene light he produced an envelope and pencil and proceeded to sketch a map showing the route to the limousine's chauffeur.

"Understand it?" he queried, concluding. He had a certain decision of manner, not in the least arrogant, but the result of a serene self-reliance that somehow accorded with his lithe, trained grace of movement. A judge of men would have read him an athlete, perhaps in an unusual line.

"Yes, sir," the chauffeur replied. "I'll get Miss Pfrance home in no time after I get the tire on."

The indiscretion of the spoken name was ignored, except for a slight lift of the heavier's eyebrows and pencil.

"How long does it take you to change a tire?"

"About half an hour; it's night, of course."

An odd, choking gurgle sounded from the gray machine, where a dark figure had sat until now in quiescent motionless.

"What an idiot!" echoed the gray machine's driver, and faced toward the chauffeur. "Report, it isn't in your contract, but do you want to come with me?"

"I'd do it for you, Darling," was the cool answer; the small figure stepped over the edge of the car with a cat-like alertness. "Where are your tools, you chauffeur? Quick!"

The bewildered chauffeur instinctively reached for a box on the running-board, as the young assistant came up, grinning all over his malign dark face.

"Oh, no!" What's the matter, rheumatism? They wouldn't have you in a training camp for motor trucks on Sunday. Hush, please."

There never had been anything done to that sedate limousine quite as this was done. Even the preoccupied girl looked on in fascination at a rapidity of movement suggesting a conjuring feat.

"By George!" exclaimed her escort. "A splendid man you've got there! Really a splendid chauffeur, you know."

The driver smiled with a gleam of irony, but disregarded the comment. "Would you like to get into your car?" he asked the girl. "You will be able to start very soon."

"I see that," she acknowledged gratefully. "Thank you; I would rather wait here."

"Is your chauffeur trustworthy?"

"Oh, yes; he has been in my uncle's employ for three years. But he was never before out here, in this place."

There was a pause, filled by the soft monotone of insinuating drifts from the side of the limousine, for Rupert talked, while he worked, and his fellow-worker did not please him.

"Wrench, baby! Wrench! Oh, look behind you where you put it—you need a monkey course. You ought to be passing screws to a lady with a new machine. Did you ever see a motor car before? There, pump her up a bit. He rose, drew out his watch and glanced at it. "Five minutes. I'll have to beat that day after tomorrow."

The driver looked over at him and they eye laughed together. Now, for the first time the girl noticed that across the shoulders of both men's jerseys ran in silver letters the name of a famous foreign automobile.

"I am very grateful, indeed," she said bravely and graciously. "I'll have to say more, or say it better. The journey will be short, now."

But all his dignity could not check the frightened shivering of her glance, first toward the interior of the limousine and then toward the man who was to enter there with her. And the driver of the gray machine saw it.

"We have done very little," he returned. "May I put you in your car?"

The chauffeur was gathering his tools, apparently outraged, and making ready to start. Suddenly the ruck and cushions, under the light of the luxurious car, the girl deliberately drew off her glove and held out her small uncovered hand to the driver of

"So you won't fall out," cooed the grinning Rupert. "You ain't well, you know. Not that I'd care if you did, but somebody must blame Darling."

The girl leaped forward, gathering speed to an extent that was a revelation in motorizing to Pfrance. The limousine, the steady rush through the dark, was a sobering tonic. After a while he spoke to the man beside him, nervously embarrassed by a situation he was beginning to appreciate.

"This is a racing car."

"It was."

"Isn't it now?"

"If I were going to race it day after tomorrow, I wouldn't be risking it over a country road to-night. A racing machine is petted like a race horse until it is wanted."

"And then?"

"It takes its chances. If you are connected with the Pfrances who manufacture the Mercury car, you should have something of automobile racing yourself. I noticed your limousine was of that make."

"Yes, that is my uncle's company. I did see a race once at Coney Island. A car turned over and killed its driver and made a nasty mess. I—I didn't fancy it."

A wheel slipped off a stone, giving the car a swerving lurch which was as instantly corrected—with a second lurch—by its pilot. The effect was not tranquilizing; the shock swept the last confusion from Pfrance's brain.

"Where are you taking me?" he presently asked.

"Where do you want to go? I will see you down at the next village. If you come to, you can stay there tonight or you can get a trolley to the city."

The question remained unanswered. Several times Pfrance glanced, rather diffidently, at his companion's clear, firm profile, and looked away again without speaking.

"I went out to get my cousin today, and my host gave me a couple of high balls," he volunteered, at last. "I don't know what you thought—"

LeStrange twisted his car around a belated farm house.

"How did you like it?" he inquired calmly.

"Twenty-three."

"I'm nearly twenty-seven. That's what I thought."

The simpler mind considered this for a space.

"Some men are born awake, some wake themselves, and some are shaken into awakening," paraphrased LeStrange, in addition. "If I were you, I'd wake up; it comes easier and it's sure to arrive anyhow. There is the village ahead—shall I stop?"

"It looks terribly dull," was the doleful verdict.

"Then come with me," flashed the other unexpectedly, for a fraction of an instant his eyes left the road and turned to his companion's face. "Did you ever see race practice at dawn? Come try a night in a training camp. You'd bother with me?"

"Yes."

A head bobbed up by Pfrance's knee, where Rupert was clinging in some inexplicable fashion.

"Once I rode eight miles out there by the hood, head downward, holding in a pin," he imparted, by way of entertainment.

Pfrance stared at the reeling perch indicated, and gasped.

"What for?" he asked.

"So we could keep on to our control instead of being put out of the running, of course. Did you guess I was curing a headache?"

"But you might have been killed!" exclaimed Pfrance.

Even by the semi-light of the lamps there was visible the mechanic's droll twist of lip and brow.

"I'd drive to hell with LeStrange," he explained sweetly, and settled back in his place.

Pfrance drew a long breath. After a moment he again looked at the driver.

"I'll come," he accepted. "And, thank you."

It was LeStrange who smiled this time, with a sudden and enchanting warmth of mirth.

"We'll try to amuse you," he promised.

"The Journey Will Be Short Now."

the gray machine.

"That you," she said again, meeting his eyes with her own, whose darkness contrasted oddly with the blonde curls clustered under her hood.

"You are not afraid to drive into the city alone?" he asked.

"Alone! Why, my cousin—"

"Your cousin is going to stay with me."

She flung back her head; amazement, question, relief struggled over her sensitive face, and finally melted into irrespressible mirth under the fine amusement of his regard.

"You are clever—and kind, to do that! No, I am not afraid."

He closed the door.

"Take your mistress home," he bade the chauffeur. "Crank for him, Rupert."

"Why, why?" stammered the limousine's other passenger, turning as the motor started.

No one heeded him.

"By-by, don't break any records," Rupert called after the chauffeur. "Hold yourself in, do. If you shut any more tires, telegraph for me, and if I'm within a day's run I'll come put them on for you and save you time."

Silent, closed in again, at the red light vanished around a bend. The gray car's driver nodded curtly to the stupefied youth in the middle of the car.

"Unless you want to stay here all night, you'd better get in the machine," he suggested. "My name's LeStrange—I suppose yours is Pfrance?"

"Dick Pfrance. But, see here, you mean well, but I'm going with my cousin. I'd like to drive with you, but I'm busy."

"You're not fit to go with your cousin."

"Not—"

"You," completed LeStrange deliberately. "Can you hang on somewhere, Rupert?"

"I can," Rupert assured, with an insouciance of his own. "Get your friend around."

LeStrange was already in his seat, waiting.

"What's that for?" repeated the guest, as, on taking his place, a strap was slipped around his waist, securing him to the seat.

PROTECTING FOOD FROM DUST.

The movement begun by the women of Washington, D. C., to obtain the delivery of bread properly wrapped so as to be protected from dirt and dust is eminently in accordance with modern sanitary principles. The danger of infectious disease lies particularly in such goods as are eaten in the household without further cooking. Dust constitutes one of the most frequent conveyers of infection. The movement should, however, apply to many other foodstuffs besides bread. Fruit and vegetables are constantly exposed to dust during the process of sale in large cities, says the New York Herald. Such fruits as are necessarily peeled before being eaten are not dangerous under these circumstances. The bananas and oranges for instance, are thoroughly protected by their skin. Apples and pears and other fruits that are commonly eaten without removing the peel are always dangerous if they have been exposed to street dust. It would not be a difficult matter to enforce protection from dust for such food materials. To some extent at least health department regulations in large cities already do so. Now that the dusty season is upon us it is the time to call attention to the need for reform.

Italy has the distinction, enviable or otherwise, of being the first power to engage practically in aerial warfare. It was made known some time ago that she was sending a number of experts and daring aviators to Tripoli, equipped with aeroplanes and balloons of the most approved pattern, and it was intimated that in addition to scouting and observation work, these would be employed in fighting. Now we are told that Italian dirigible balloons have been cruising over the lines and camps of the Turkish forces which are beleaguering the Italians, and dropping bombs upon them, says the New York Tribune. The effect of the aerial bombardment is not reported, but we may imagine it to have been damaging and demoralizing to those who formed its target, particularly as it is not known that the Turks have any guns suitable for returning the fire from above.

A woman in New York captured a six-foot burglar and marched him five blocks to a police station at the point of a harmless toy pistol. Another woman in New Hampshire town, on being denied damages to her property by the officials' action, placed attachments on the city hall, and tied up the entire municipal machinery for two hours, when the town surrendered. Still another in Chicago caused her husband to desert her by following him to his business office to caress him. The timelike has certainly acquired the feminine habit.

It appears from government reports that we eat something like 92 pounds of sugar per capita annually. This would explain, in part, why this is the land of the sweetest girls on earth.

There are said to be 99,000 people to the square mile on Manhattan Island, but it is considered the same of provincialism to be acquainted with one's next door neighbor.

A surgeon in California performed an operation for appendicitis upon himself. But this is not to make the part of the profession feel cut up.

A bricklayer was trailed by detectives through being fastidious in his toilet. Probably he handled a trowel with the little finger extended.

The St. Louis robber who was whipped by a girl, visiting a neighbor probably came to the conclusion that he had put his foot in it.

British soldiers are likely to be given with their hands behind their backs, will have brought about his own destruction.

The complete records of the life of the famous John of Turkey are to be published. They will probably be found in a volume.

An elderly man has been captured with a captured fox, probably in search of a captured fox.

Memorial Day Services

Memorial day will be observed in this village under the auspices of Thomas Stacey, Post No. 276 G. A. R. and W. R. C.

The procession will form in the public square at 10 o'clock and march to Evergreen cemetery where suitable ceremonies and decorations of graves will take place; then return to public square and break ranks for dinner.

The sons of veterans are especially invited to march with the old soldiers. Then at 1:30 form and march to the Salem church where Rev. O. F. Matson, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church will deliver the address of the day.

On Sunday, May 26, the G. A. R. and W. R. C. will attend services at the Baptist church. In the afternoon they will go to Barrington Center, leaving here at 1:30, and attend Barrington Center church and later decorate the graves of old soldiers and comrades there.

Dinner will be served in the post hall on Decoration day and all old soldiers and wives and visiting comrades are invited to partake of the meal.

To improve County Line Road.

There will be a meeting of the road commissioners of the towns of Barrington and Cuba and property owners west of this village at the village hall tomorrow evening. The meeting is called for the purpose of discussing a plan for the improvement of the county line road. All persons interested are invited to attend the meeting.

The moving picture show held last evening was appreciated by a large audience. The next show will be held next Tuesday evening.

SENATOR VANCE'S READY WIT

Records Show That Very Rarely Did Carolina Statesman Fail to Rise to the Occasion.

The late Senator Vance used to say that his latest campaign for the governorship of North Carolina was that in which Judge Settle ran against him. They stumped the state in joint debate. All the while the Democrats turned out to hear Vance and all the colored Republicans to hear Settle. On one occasion, Vance was informed that some young ladies desired to verify their devotion to the Democratic party by kissing the Democratic candidate for governor. Nothing loth, Vance descended from the platform and kissed a dozen or so of the young beauties, and then paused long enough to turn around toward his competitor and shout: "Settle, I'm kissing my girls, now kiss yours!" Then, he married the second wife he saw on his way in their wedding day. "My dear, I'm a stubborn fellow, and you may as well give me a piece of advice. If you follow it, we'll get on mighty well. It is this: Make me do just as I darned please." A newspaper man, who was about starting for a rather out-of-the-way portion of Vance's own state, was asking him one day what kind of accommodation he was likely to find. "They'll give you some of their tried hog and eggs," the senator replied. "That's better than nothing," said the newspaper man. "I don't know—I don't know," the senator answered, in a dubious tone. "I've tried both."

Creature of Habit.

"Man," dictidically began Professor Twigg during a recent session of the Soc Et Tu Un-Club, "is a creature of habit." "Eh-yah!" grunted Old Codger. "Tennyrate, my nephew, Canute J. Babson, seems to be. He has been run over by the same automobile twice. But then Canute always comes home down the same lane at about the same hour in the evening after he has partaken of about the same amount of hard cider."—"Puck."

Care of Child's Eyesight.

Don't let little children read at dusk or by firelight; read ill-printed books, nor set in small type; have a light too near the eyes, the heat and glare being injurious; read too long at a time or stoop over a book. Bad positions in sitting are a fruitful source of curvature of the spine. Don't let them suffer from imperfect sight. At the first sign of trouble have the eyes attended to. Take the child to the best oculist you can afford.

Degrees of Freedom.

Freedom and progress are not the same thing. Freedom is the necessary means to the highest progress, but it may also be used as the means to the lowest degradation. Let us hold fast to our freedom, but let us hold it by the hilt, not by the blade.—The Christian Register.

PROTECTING FOOD FROM DUST.

The movement begun by the women of Washington, D. C., to obtain the delivery of bread properly wrapped so as to be protected from dirt and dust is eminently in accordance with modern sanitary principles. The danger of infectious diseases, particularly in such goods as are eaten in the household without further cooking. Dust constitutes one of the most frequent conveyers of infection. The movement should, however, apply to many other foodstuffs besides bread. Fruit and vegetables are constantly exposed to dust during the process of sale in large cities, says the New York Herald. Such fruits as are necessarily peeled before being eaten are not dangerous under these circumstances. The banana and orange, for instance, are thoroughly protected by their skin. Apples and pears and other fruits that are commonly eaten without removing the peel are always dangerous if they have been exposed to street dust. It would not be a difficult matter to enforce protection from dust for such food materials. To some extent at least health department regulations in large cities already do so. Now that the dusty season is upon us is the time to call attention to the need for reform.

Italy has the distinction, enviable or otherwise, of being the first power to engage practically in aerial warfare. It was made known some time ago that she was sending a number of experts and daring aviators to Tripoli, equipped with aeroplanes and balloons of the most approved pattern, and it was intimated that in addition to scouting and observation work these would be employed in fighting. Now we are told that Italian dirigible balloons have been cruising over the lines and camps of the Turkish forces which are beleaguering the Italians, and dropping bombs upon them, says the New York Tribune. The effect of the aerial bombardment is not reported, but we may imagine it to have been damaging and demoralizing to those who formed its target, particularly as it is not known that the Turks have any guns suitable for returning the fire from above.

A woman in New York captured a six-foot burglar and marched him five blocks to a police station at the point of a harmless toy pistol. Another in a New Hampshire town, on being detained damages to her property by the officials' action, placed attachments on the city hall, and tied up the entire municipal machinery for two hours, when the town surrendered. Still another in Chicago caused her husband to desert her by following him to his business office to carry him. The flashlight has certainly acquired the feminine habit.

It appears from government reports that we eat something like 82 pounds of sugar per capita annually. This would explain, in part, why this is one land of the fattest girls on earth.

There are said to be 99,000 people to the square mile on Manhattan island, but it is considered the acme of provincialism to be acquainted with one's next door neighbor.

A surgeon in California performed an operation for appendicitis upon himself. But this is apt to make the rest of the profession feel out up.

A bricklayer was trailed by detectives through being fastidious in his tastes. Probably he handled a trowel with the little finger extended.

The St. Louis robber who was whipped by a girl wielding a slipper probably came to the conclusion that he had put his foot in it.

British armies are likely to displease with their brass bands. Thus the cornetist will have brought about his own destruction.

The complete records of the life of the deposed Sultan of Turkey are to be published. They will probably be found in subsoil.

Memorial Day Services

Memorial day will be observed in this village under the auspices of Thomas Sweeney Post No. 275 G. A. R. and W. R. C.

The procession will form in the public square at 10 o'clock and march to Evergreen cemetery where suitable ceremonies and decorations of graves will take place; then return to public square and break ranks for dinner.

The sons of veterans are especially invited to march with the old soldiers. Then at 1:30 form and march to the Salem church where Rev. O. F. Mattison, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church will deliver the address of the day.

On Sunday, May 26, the G. A. R. and W. R. C. will attend services at the Baptist church. In the afternoon they will go to Barrington Center, leaving here at 1:30, add attend Barrington Center church and later decorate the graves of old soldiers and comrades there.

Dinner will be served in the post hall on Decoration day and all old soldiers and wives and visiting comrades are invited to partake of the meal.

To Improve County Line Road. There will be a meeting of the road commissioners of the towns of Barrington and Cuba and property owners west of this village at the village hall tomorrow evening. The meeting is called for the purpose of discussing a plan for the improvement of the county line road. All persons interested are invited to attend the meeting.

SENATOR VANCE'S READY WIT

Records Show That Very Rarely Old Carolina Statesman Fell to Rise to the Occasion.

The late Senator Vance used to say that his liveliest campaign for the governorship of North Carolina was that in which Judge Settle ran against him. They stumped the state in joint debate. All the white Democrats turned out to hear Vance, and all the colored Republicans to hear Settle. On one occasion, Vance was informed that some young ladies desired to testify their devotion to the Democratic party by kissing the Democratic candidate for governor. Nothing loth, Vance descended from the platform and kissed a dozen or so of the young beauties, and then paused long enough to turn around toward his competitor and about: "Settle, I'm kissing my girls; now kiss yours!" When he married the second time, he said to his wife on their wedding day: "My dear, I'm a stubborn fellow, and you may anticipate trouble. Now, in the beginning, while I am submissive, I want to give you one piece of advice. If you follow it, we'll get on mighty well. It is this: Make me do just as I darned please." A newspaper man, who was about starting a run out of the way portion of Vance's own state, was asking him one day what kind of accommodation he was likely to find. "They'll give you some of their fried hog and eggs," the senator replied. "That's better than nothing," said the newspaper man. "I don't know," he don't know," the senator answered, in a dubious tone; "I've tried both."

MAJESTIC.
 Cealla Lofius, the most distinguished of all the impersonators, will be the headline feature at the Majestic Theatre, Chicago, next week. Returning to this country from England last fall after a long absence, Miss Lofius opened her tour at the Majestic and soon demonstrated that her art had mellowed and ripened during her long absence. Lew Sully the famous minstrel man will present an entirely new act which he calls "Words and Music." Harry Richards and Beatie Kyle, two exceptional comedians will appear in a sketch called "A Regular Club Fellow." Callahan & S. George's sketch, "The Old Neighborhood" is one that invariably scores a hit with the public. F. O'Malley Jennings and Katherine Nelson will appear in a comedy singing and talking sketch, called "A Little Bit of England." Cook & Lorenz, comedians of the broad and convulsing sort, will undoubtedly repeat the success which they have frequently made in the past. The Three Gladiators are Holland gymnasts who have recently finished a tour of England and are now making their initial visit to this country. Miss Gladiators is known in England as "The Lady Sandow" and is capable of some remarkable feats. The Four Vanis distinguished wire experts will also be featured in this country's most entertaining program.

TRAP IS EASY TO CONSTRUCT

Excellent for Extinction of Rats, Also for Catch Rabbits and Other Animals.

(By J. W. GRAYSON.)
 Set the trap over a barrel that is partly filled with water, fasten the falling doors so that they will not fall and let the rats run through the trap for several nights—then pull out the nail that holds the doors, and you will catch every rat that has visited the trap.

Two boards ten inches wide and two feet long are used for the sides; one board two feet long and one foot wide for the top; two boards ten inches wide and one foot and six inches in length for the bottom or falling doors.

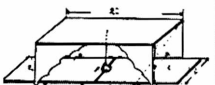

The falling doors should have the fastenings on the top side from where the pivots enter the sides to the end next to the bait; this will prevent the sharp claws clinging to the board and climbing back, when the door falls.

The description by letter is as follows: A bait; B, on the dotted line, shows the position of the falling doors when the game enters the lower part of the trap; C, the entrance to the trap; D, the nails that serve as pivots for the falling doors.

E, nail-holes in which are the nails that hold the trap unmet while the game is getting used to it. The bottom part of the trap—that which retains the game after trapping—should be made of hardwood or should be lined with roofing iron or tin.

The bait should be suspended with a small wire and should hang within two or three inches of the floor, or falling door.

If the trap is neatly made and fitted out—so that all parts work well, there is not the least possible doubt as to the game it will capture (besides the rats one wishes to exterminate), such as rabbits, squirrels, opossums, raccoons, muskrats, in fact all animals that will eat of prepared bait.

Excellent Trap.

In setting the trap, choose a place on a hillside, in a gully, or a small hollow so the entrance may be placed on a level with the earth, and the animals will have no trouble in entering.

PREPARATION OF CELERY BED

Plant Does Best in Moist, Mucky Soil and in Situations Where Water Supply is Abundant.

Sow celery in March, or beginning of April in rows in fine, rich soil, and, if dry enough, press the soil firmly with a roller or the back of the spade. Keep the seed bed well watered, as celery germinates very slowly. Transplant from June to August.

Celery does best in a moist, mucky soil, and in situations where plenty of water is abundant in the soil. It can be planted in single or double rows, earthing up as it grows two or three times, and in doing this, care should be taken not to let the earth get into the heart of the plant.

When severe cold weather comes, take up and transplant celery in a bed close together, and cover gradually with leaves, hay or straw, as necessary to prevent freezing.

GARDEN and FARM NOTES

Weeds along the fence are fine harbors for insects.

Long, straight garden rows make cultivation easier.

Asparagus should not be cut the first season at all.

Poultry droppings make fine fertilizer for the onion bed.

A plant of rhubarb once well established is good indefinitely.

The market price of commercial foods is no indication of their real value.

Clean all home-grown seed and grade, so only the largest seed can be used.

Rhubarb or pieplant is one of the perennials that should be in every garden.

Any time in the year is the right time to begin planning for an asparagus plot.

Lettuce and cabbage plants in the cold-frames must be given air every mild day.

Sweet corn is a very profitable crop. One reason for this is because it is so easily handled.

The silo is now a necessity, and for you to compete with the man who has one you must have one, too.

It is always best to order the vegetable seeds early to insure prompt delivery and to get such variety as is wanted.

Fall plowing usually produces a better corn crop than spring plowing, the ground being mellowed by the frost and rain.

Heavy grain crops, timothy and best seed corn should be sown and sown every season possible to insure farmers to feed every one of their seed corn.
