At 1:30 in the afternoon the G. A. E. and members of the W. R. C. marched to Salem church where a large sudience greeted them. It speaks well for the citizens that they recognize the day by their presence. F. A. Laguechulte commander of the local post was in charge. Dr. D. H. Richardson read the Lincoin Gestryabory address.

The address of the day was girestly Rev. O. F. Mastison. It was strictly memorial in character, and did not full to recognize the great debt we own to the men and women of '61, but especially the soldiers dead and living and to the noble women who suffered much for country's and liberty's sales.

The address seems to have met all reasonable expectations.
