EXHIBITS AT STATE FAIR.

"Shorty" Miller of Libertyville is Planning Display of Lake County Products at Springfield Fair.

Lake county is to have a display at the state fair to be held in Springfield next month. It will be the first time in history that a real representation of the field products of this county will have been displayed at the state fair.

W. E. Miller, who is taking the necessary steps to have such an exhibit there, states that he is trying to get together a collection of every kind of produce which grows from the ground, including grains, grasses, vegetables, etc., in fact, everything, he says excepting weeds.

Mr. Miller gathered an exhibit of products from the southwestern part of the county for the Lake county fair and he will take this display to Springfield and will gather other products from all parts of the county so he may have a comprehensive display of Lake county products.

"We're going to advertise Lake county," said Mr. Miller, "and I would like any person who has anything which they believe would show up well in the exhibit to confer with me that I may call for it and get it in the collection. We are doing this to advertise the county and I believe it will be a mighty good stunt."

A Dairy Survey.

The dairy survey department of the University of Illinois has been carrying on during the month of August a dairy survey of Kane county and is now at work on McHenry county. A force of seven men under the immediate direction of F. A. Pearson, formerly of Cornell, has been doing the work. It is expected that the survey will be completed by September 20. When completed they will have visited over 600 farms in the two counties. These men in their visits to the farmers asked all sorts of questions in regard to the number of cows kept, the amount of milk and other dairy products obtained during the past year, amount of food consumed by these cows, the size of the farm, amount of grain, etc., raised, all with the object of finding out conditions of the dairy industry and the profits and expenses. Eventually it is intended that these data will be worked up and published in the form of a bulletin of the agricultural experiment station.

and for the transaction of any other business that may come before the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. George Froelich, John Wenzelowski and J. H. Hagle took an automobile trip through Lake and McHenry counties Monday, visiting the towns of Lake Zurich, Wauconda, McHenry, Crystal Lake, etc. They spent the day in this manner and had a very pleasant time.

G. H. Niemeyer left this week on a business trip to St. Louis, Missouri, and from there will return to his home in East Orange, New Jersey, visiting several other cities on his return, on the way. Mrs. Niemeyer will leave for East Orange next week. The Niemeyers have been visiting here nearly all summer with Mrs. Niemeyer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Ryan.

I will sell my household furniture, both oak and walnut, bedroom and dining room furniture, carpets, curtains, screens, and dishes. Call my list. Mrs. Burton, corner Grove avenue and Russell street.

COUNTY FAIR IS OVER.

Lake County Agricultural Association's Annual Fair Attracts Many People—Ended Last Friday.

The fifty-ninth annual fair of the Lake County Agricultural association closed last Friday, that day being the poorest in point of attendance of the three days, the excessive heat keeping many from going. Thousands of people visited the fair grounds, enjoyed the races, the exhibits, and the meet with friends and acquaintances throughout the county, and although many local people talked rather disappointedly about the fair on their return the officials of the society estimate that they will be money ahead on the event in spite of the fact that the expenses this year were heavier than usual.

Although the midway was made up of more than the ordinary number of shows and games, an effort was made by the officials to prevent "bunco" games and during the fair seven concessions were put off the grounds because they were thought to be crooked. Thursday the Wauconda and Lake Zurich ball teams played at the fair grounds, the former winning by a four to one score.

The airship flight advertised to take place on Friday was cancelled because the aviator's machine failed to arrive in time.

The exhibits in all lines were good, and all who attended the fair with an interest in livestock and farm products, the exploiting of which is the primary motive of a county fair, were not disappointed.

Officials say that the society's membership list next year will be in this wise: the exhibits were good, the races were good enough to prove of interest, the ball games were good and the attendance was excellent.

These are the things that make a good fair, so the Lake county fair must have been a good fair—good at least in comparison with many that this society has given, and the officials are deserving of commendation.

HOME TEAM WINS AGAIN.

Omnes Vitae Baseball Team Trims Chicago Players in Good Shape.

Last Saturday the local baseball team, the Omnes Vitae, defeated the Arion Councils of Chicago by the score of 13 to five, Mr. Francis pitching for the home team.

Next Saturday the contest will be with the Chicago Park Rangers. E. M. Blocks, the official "game getter" for the local team, is endeavoring to secure a game with the Rockefellers team. These players claim the championship of Lake county since their wining at the county fair, and the local team is going to attempt to take some of the accolade out of them.

Cattle Family Reunion.

The annual reunion of the descendants of Lester D. Castle took place this year last Saturday, instead of on Labor day as usual, at the home of Miss Eva Castle. There were present thirty-one of the thirty-six Castle descendants, besides Mrs. Ira J. Chase, widow of Gov. Chase of Indiana, who is the aunt, great-aunt, and great-great-aunt of the various generations of the Castles present.

There were games to suit all, including croquet and pitching quito for the men, and egg carrying and throwing contests for the women. The ball game between the married men and single men, for the first time resulted in a victory for the former, by the score of 7 to 5.

Putting up Silage.

Wallace's Farmer gives this advice to users of silos: Those who will put up silage this year for the first time are likely to make the mistake of cutting their corn too short. This will add to the labor and will make sour silage and of less feeding value. The best stage at which to cut corn for the silo is when it is ready to shock. That will be evidently later this year than usual. Don't get in a hurry. Wait until the ears are dried and hard. Let it get rid of some of the surplus water; there will be plenty left.

Exhibits at State Fair.

All farmers of Lake County should be interested in the exhibit of vegetable products of the county which W. E. (Shorty) Miller of Libertyville is planning to take to the annual state fair at Springfield. All having anything in this line of especially excellent or unusual nature should communicate with Mr. Miller.

BUCHANAN IS HIT

DREW SAYS CONGRESSMAN WAS INVOLVED WITH McNAMARAS
IN DYNAMITE CASE.

LETTERS ARE TO BE CITED

Senate Subcommittee on Judiciary Will Receive Charges Made by Members of National Erectors' Association Against Congressman.

Washington, Sept. 11.—Representative
Frank Buchanan of the Seventh Illinois district will be accused in charges to be filed with the senate subcommittee on judiciary by Walter Drew of the National Erectors' association. Buchanan, a resident of Chicago, is alleged in the Drew papers to have been connected with acts of labor violence in Ohio and Pennsylvania in conjunction with J.
J. McNamara, now serving a term in prison for the Los Angeles dynamiting cases. Buchanan once was president of the International Association of Structural Bridge and Iron Workers.

The new charges embody a letter declared to have been written by Buchanan to McNamara in which the Illinois congressman said that two dissatisfied workers in the Toledo labor troubles of 1906 who were threatening trouble "had had nothing on him and let them do their worst to me."

The charges also deal with the case of a man named William McIlwaine, who wrote to the International white Buchanan was president, saying that "snakes" were working on a job at Abrams, on the Philadelphia & Reading railroad, and that fifteen of the "snakes" had been sent to the hospital, but that the railroad was getting more and giving them protection.

It is charged that President Buchanan advanced $500 bail money for McIlwaine when he was arrested, and the minutes of the international are reproducing the record of this transaction. One of Buchanan's later reports is quoted as stating that he has arrived at Philadelphia and met Business Agent McIlwaine.

In connection with labor trouble in Cincinnati, while Buchanan was president of the international, additional charges are made.

bor of Belmont county, editor and agriculturist, for lieutenant governor and nominated John L. Sullivan for secretary of state and William Kir-

NAME STRAUS FOR GOVERNOR

Former Cabinet Officer Is Picked to Head Progressive Ticket in New York.

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 9.—After one of the most remarkable demonstrations in the history of political conventions, Oscar S. Straus, former ambassador and cabinet officer, was Friday afternoon nominated by the New York state Progressives as their candidate for governor.

Just when it seemed that the bickerings between the adherents of Comptroller Prendergast of New York and State Chairman Hotchkiss were certain to split the "Bull Moose" party wide open on the day of its birth, J. C.
Mabee of the Fifteenth New York assembly district fought his way to the platform and, with a ringing speech, turned thunderous howls of derision aimed at the speaker into a wild outbreak of enthusiasm.

The cheering lasted 16 minutes.

BY FRENCHMAN AFTER RE-MARKABLE FLIGHT.

FLIES 105.5 MILES AN HOUR

Maurice Prevost, his Countryman, Is Only Other Contestant to Finish—Andre Frey Came to Earth on Twenty-Third Lap.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—Jules Vedrines, the hard-driving Frenchman, with the big Deperdussin monoplane, broke all American records when he won the Gordon-Bennett cup here Monday after a sensational flight in 70 minutes and 55.5 seconds. The distance was 124.8 miles, in 30 laps of 4.14 miles each.

Vedrines covered the course without a hitch. A great crowd of people watched the race from the parking spaces, and many thousands viewed it from positions all around the course, having been prevented from entering the field by most officials. After he had completed his distance Vedrines flew an extra lap, finishing the total distance in 73 minutes and 15.5 seconds. It was a remarkable performance, chiefly because of its tremendous speed, the distance being covered at the rate of 104 miles an hour.

Vedrines was alone dead when he completed his sensational dash. He recovered under medical treatment in twenty minutes.

Vedrines' average speed for the entire distance was 105.5 miles an hour.
While some laps were made in poorer time than others, the daring flyer on certain of his laps around the 4.14 mile course attained his own world's record of 106 miles an hour. His best time was made in the eighteenth lap, which was done in 2:18, or at the rate of 108 miles an hour. Vedrines started at 9:30 a. m. and finished at 10:44.

speaking at the reunion of his old here Thursday. He had been in ill health, the host was intense, and he sank back in his chair, saying he could not continue. He lapsed into unconsciousness and died in a few minutes of which he was appointed commander in 1862. He took part in the battle of Missionary Ridge and in the Atlanta campaign, being awarded ment and planting them on Missionary Ridge.

BORDER IS CROSSED

MEXICAN TROOPS, 1,200 STRONG, PASS THROUGH UNITED STATES TERRITORY.

SEEK TO INTERCEPT REBELS

Washington Officials Keep Route Secret—Soldiers Will Convey Arms and Ammunition to American Employees in the Cananea Mines.

Washington, Sept. 12.—To intercept and disperse the bands of rebels gathering along the northern boundary of Mexico, especially in the state of Sonora, under the leadership of General Salazar, and threatening American property, a detachment of 1,200 Mexican federal troops were rushed across American territory Tuesday.

War department and state department officials are keeping the route of the Mexican federal troops secret at the request of the Mexican government.
Most of the federal troops massed at Juarez, Tex., and shipped by train to southern point near Nogales, where they will be within striking distance of the Cananea district.

Reports reached the war department that the rebels were gathering in force in the vicinity of Cananea.
They seemed to be preparing for a long march, as horses, supplies, ammunition and dynamite were being concentrated near Salazar, where they were camped at Canabolas.

The determination of the Mexican government to drive the rebels out of the Cananea district is in complete accord with the request of this government, following demands for protection from the managers of the 159 mining properties in the Cananea district. The state department has at Douglas or Naco 1,000 rifles and 200,000 rounds of ammunition for shipment to the Americans employed in the Cananea mines for use in resisting the raids of the rebels. It is necessary that there shall be a safe conveyance of federal troops to get the rifles to the Americans. For this reason the Mexican troops are being rushed into Sonora.

Describing the fight at Orizaba, Captain Adams, stating that the rebels reported through General Steever to the war department, that the rebels numbered nearly three hundred men and that the fight ended about 6 o'clock in the evening. The federal lost four killed and five horses. The mayor of Orizaba crossed the river and informed the American commander that the federals could easily hold the town.

MAINE WON BY REPUBLICANS

Latest Returns Give Haines 70,072, Plafsted 66,515.—Straight to Be U. S. Senator.

Portland, Me., Sept. 12.—The political overturn in the Maine election in which the Republicans won back the governorship and cut three of the four congressmen and a sufficient majority on a joint ballot in the legislature to drive the election Republican United States senator, became more apparent Tuesday with revised and additional returns.

William T. Haines of Waterville (Rep.) was elected governor by a plurality of 3,557 over Gov. Frederick W. Plafsted, Democratic candidate of Augusta. The vote, with 18 towns missing, was: Haines (Rep.), 70,072; Plafsted (Dem.), 66,515. Two years ago the vote for governor was: Bert
M. Fernald (Rep.), 64,972; W. W.
Plafsted (Dem.), 72,425. The missing towns two years ago cast 517 votes for the Republican candidate and 814 for the Democratic leader.

Congressman Arthur C. Hinds, First district, and Frank S. Guernsey, Fourth district, Republicans, were re-elected by increased majorities, and Forrest W. Stevens, Republican, succeeded Congressman Samuel W. Gould (Dem.), in the Third district. The Democratic candidate in the Second district, Congressman D. J. McMillin-cuddy, was re-elected.

The new legislature will stand on a joint ballot 94 Republicans and 78 Democrats, with ten districts yet to report. The state senate will be made up of 22 Republicans and eight Democrats, with one district missing.
The house will be composed of 73 Republicans and 27 Democrats, with nine districts missing. This majority will be sufficient to elect former Congressman Edwin C. Burleigh of Augusta as United States senator, to succeed Chadash Gardner, who was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator William P.
Frye (Rep.).

WHAT DO TARIFF REVISIONISTS WANT?

What would interest a good many people in this campaign would be to learn just what the tariff revisionists want. A lot has been said to the effect that the system now prevailing and that included in the general policy of the Republicans is wrong. We are told that the wage-earner is being robbed, that certain privileged classes are sharing unequal profits and that the tariff is responsible for the high cost of living. Granting that all this is so—although it is not so—what do the revisionists propose to do? The only prof of their intent lately shown has been in the nature of the Underwood bill, which were slapped together in a hurry to meet the demands of the pressing national campaign and about which the Democrats themselves were uneasy for fear they might ultimately become the law, and the effect upon the industries concerned would prove disastrous to their political aspirations. Voters who have been impressed with the charges laid up to the score of the tariff should demand of the revisionists a statement of something definite in regard to their intentions. "Revising the tariff downward" is a generality which elicits an uncertainty about the problem that it would be well to clear away before voters endorse it as a battle slogan. "Revision downward" means much or little. So far as industries of this city and vicinity are concerned, it is very essential to know how far downward the revision is going before it stops. The voter interested in those industries should ask himself whether he prefers that the revision be made by the party which is pledged to protect the industry while revising the tariff, or by the party pledged to levy duties only to the amount of the expenses of the Government and to let them fall haphazard, mainly as chance directs. The latter was the way the revision started by the Democrats tended. The Republican policy on the tariff is a safe one. Revision should be conservative and scientific—Fall River Herald.

ROOSEVELT AND THE TRUSTS.

Robert M. LaFollette, United States senator from Wisconsin, foremost Republican progressive in the upper house of Congress, is against Theodore Roosevelt for a third term, because, he says, Roosevelt, while president, co-operated with the trusts instead of co-operating with him in his fight against the trusts. "On the day that Roosevelt was made president of the United States," declares LaFollette, "there were 149 trusts in the United States. When he turned the government over to Mr. Taft there were 10,020 great trusts and combinations."

THE GIRL WHO CAN SEW.

The girl who can take a few inexpensive materials and make herself an attractive dress is much more accomplished than her friend who can sing in two languages or paint roses in all colors of the rainbow. There is more art in making a pretty dress than in covering the parlor wall with fearful and wonderful paintings. The girl who can dress herself neatly and also attractively has more culture than the one who can pound seven kinds of music out of the piano and has to buy her dresses ready made.

Yesterday died at midnight; it has gone into the unremembered past. Today is the living, pulsing present, to be taken joyfully into our hearts and made the most of. Tomorrow is a wonderful opportunity you have.

A bunch of that good old fashioned corn growing weather has been given between the last two weeks. A little more of it and they will have a bumper crop to harvest.

GIRL CAPTURED BY BRIGANDS FINDS HERO

By JOHN PHILIP ORTH.

Mrs. Claire Benson had the pony and phaeton brought around to the door of her father's house in Bellview that she might take a ride down the Shady Beach road. She stepped into the vehicle, gathered up the lines and gave the pony a cut with the whip and was off. A man always utters a cluck to start a horse; a woman always gives him a cut. After a drive of three miles Mrs. Claire turned out of the road and hitched the pony and then strolled into a grove to sit down and think as the summer breeze sighed through the branches above her head.

The girl thought and thought and thought! She had got it about settled in her mind that her hero would never come along, when a chipmunk ran along the ground before her and dived into his burrow.

"Poor thing! He shall not smother down there because he fears me!" exclaimed the tender-hearted girl as she rose up and looked around for help. In a moment more she was running through the woods, thinking she heard the voices of men. She was right about that. She hadn't taken a hundred steps when three brigands lying hidden in a hollow leaped up and came rushing at her. They wore black cloths over their faces; their whiskers were black as the ace of spades and matted with leaves.

"Seize her and to horse!" shouted the leader. Mrs. Claire was duly seized. She wanted to stop and explain about that suffering, outcrying chipmunk, but the brigands were hustlers and they meant business. In a minute and a half three horses were reached, and the leader of the brigands shouted:

"Keep that sheriff off, boys, until I can get a little start!" And then there were whoops from the bushes across a creek, and the reports of firearms from all around, and Mrs. Claire was hustled further. That is the leader mounted his cayuse and she was grabbed and hoisted up to him and the beast started off on a run for life.

"After 'em, boys!" "Shoot 'em down like dogs!" "No quarter to brigands!" "Right! Whoop!"

Mrs. Claire only partly lost consciousness. It was a wild ride up and down hills—across meadows and through thickets, and she prayed that the sheriff's party would not fail. It was wonderful how very quick that suffering chipmunk was forgotten.

At length justice prevailed, as it always should, but never does when the other man has the most money to spend on lawyers. The two brigands covering the retreat were killed off after being struck in vital parts about thirty times apiece, and then the leader's horse gave a stumble and a groan and fell to breathe his last. Nobody hurt in the fall—merely worked some of the muscles.

Behind the carcass knelt the last and the most desperate of the brigands and emptied his guns at the advancing foe and he died with the sacred name of "mother" on his ashen lips. Then the sheriff's posse dashed in with whoops of victory.

Mrs. Claire Benson lay sprawled out in a graceful and picturesque position. "Who are you, and how did you happen to butt in here?" "Strike the girl," answered the brigand leader who had died and come again to life with promptness and dispatch.

"The girl be hanged! You made a mistake! There is the girl over there you should have carried off," but she was late in getting here. Nice sort of a thing you've done!

Mrs. Claire recovered her dignity, and as the "sheriff" stepped forward and raised his hat she demanded in turn:

"Sir, will you explain this outrage?" "I'll try to, miss, and beg your pardon a thousand times over. We are moving picture actors, and are out here acting a play for a reel. The girl who was to be carried off by the brigands is a farmer's daughter, but through some blunder she didn't reach her assigned place in time. It seems you were there, and the brigands thought it was all right to go ahead. Isn't it so, Mr. Aldrich?"

The brigand leader had doffed hat, wig and whiskers and laid aside his guns and bandolier, and he now appeared as a fine looking young man. With a bow and a smile he said:

"It's my fault, and I can't hope to be forgiven. I think you tried to make an explanation, but it was too late then. Our cue was out and we had to hustle. You were in the woods to gather flowers!"

The heathen in his blindness. An Indian went hunting one day for deer. After tramping through the woods for some hours he came across a herd and managed to kill one. He skinned it and started for market, which was some five miles away. Now of course, the longer he walked the heavier the deer got, and by the time he reached the deer market he was about all in. He hung the deer on the scales and stood looking at it with wonder. Finally he said to the man: "Ugh! Let him hang a while!"

Bones as a barometer. The merits of bones as indicators of fair or foul weather have been vouched for by the captain of an Italian steamer carrying a cargo of bones from the South American port of Buenos Ayres to New York. When the ship was sailing toward a storm recently the skipper stated the bones cracked and moaned, and when fair weather was ahead they were silent again.

Wild Red Rice. In Senegal red rice grows wild. The fields in which it grows are inundated regularly by the Senegal or by its affluents, and in measure as the tide rises the rice plant rises above the flood. The grain is very red and very dry and hard. It swells in the water and as it swells loses some of its rich color. It is very nourishing and requires no cultivation.—Harper's Weekly.

Japan's National Drink. Sake is the national alcoholic drink of Japan. It is brewed from rice, and, according to the latest available figures, the annual production is about 210,000,000 gallons. Beer is becoming popular, however, and there are several large breweries. The total annual output being over 7,000,000 gallons.

Not Possible

We can't divide our profits with you. Our business has not increased $75,000,000 the past year and we don't spend $2,000,000 in advertising; our buildings don't cover 5000 acres and we don't employ 4,000 stenographers. But we do sell the best gasoline engine made, the Stickney with 57 points of superiority over all others and at a price which represents value in every pound.

CONCERNING GIRLS AND GOLD BAGS

The girl who likes to talk and was edged away from the gold mine by a suddenly thrown down beside her.

"Take it away," she ordered. "It is solid ore, as I can easily see, and it makes me nervous to see it. I'm afraid of their influence! Now, I can face a German silver gold washed one without flinching, but I can't see up against a solid gold bag and begin to get chills and fever. I guess it is because I am always so overpowered by the thought of several hundred dollars tied up in such a small bit of frivolity."

"Now, if I could only get it, then it is some relative should catch me and blind and gag me and thrust a solid gold bag upon me by main force—I think I should devote the rest of my life to sheltering it and giving it the reverence which was its due. I know I should waken in the night with a shiver, thinking I had not locked it up in the jewel case that was in the secret drawer of the time-lock safe behind a padlocked closet door. And I know that in my waking hours I should either sit upon it or wear it chained to me."

"That is why the women who actually do own solid gold bags make me so nervous. The minute you possess one it is the correct thing to do as though it were the mud under your feet or as though you were so sick of having them cluttering up your pathway that you simply couldn't stand it and must get rid of it. You can't belong to the class at all unless you learn to scatter your bag around recklessly where people will find it and where heart disease for fear they won't get it back to you before you have called out the police reserves and set them on their trail."

"It is always the people who don't own them who do the worrying. 'Why, I once knew a man who used to run around with a girl who owned a solid gold bag, and she carried it upon every occasion, of course. She used to drop it here and there, and he would pick it up and remember she had done so when they were three-quarters of the way home. And then the man would be obliged to take the rest of the night chasing up janitors and box office men and routing them out of bed and groveling under parquet seats or traveling miles to the residence of the usher on that side and having a talk with him."

The bag always was found, of course, and the person finding it was only too tickled to get rid of it and perfectly delighted to pass it on to the harassed young man. But that did not help much at 4 or 5 or 6 o'clock in the morning, when he was due at the office again at 8. If this particular girl did not drop it at the theater she would leave it on the table at the cafe, and then, when she telephoned this unfortunate young man at 3 p. m. that she had just remembered doing so and would be very much mind seeing about it, he knew he was in for a quarrel with all the waiters at that restaurant and that he would never dare face the haughty head waiter in that particular place again, even if all the other restaurants burned up and he had to starve to death. Finally, by the end of the winter he was the most popularly hated young man in town at restaurants and box offices."

"Once she lost it on the suburban train, discovering the fact when they arose to leave. She said, of course, he could easily find it. Shoving her into her front door the young man tore back to the station and caught the same train on its return trip to town and tackled the conductor, popped by anxiety and responsibility and helplessness. 'Gold bag!' repeated the conductor casually. 'Sure—here it is! I picked it up right after you left!'

"But the unluckiest for luck was too much of a shock for the young man and he gulped and fell all in a heap. When he had quite recovered from his illness he went away quickly and married a girl who had never in her life owned anything more elaborate than a $2.98 bargain meat bag that looked its price."

"There was another woman with a solid gold bag who spent her summer at the lake last year and who used to leave the bag on logs in the woods or on steps when she went calling on the cottagers. The children, finding it on the steps, would gleefully bury it in their sand forts and forget all about what they had done, and then for hours all the resorters and inn servants would search for that bag."

"When they had searched all the shrubbery and devastated their homes and politely accused everybody else, and when nearly all the maps and compass had been laid to rest and everyone up their positions, somebody would accidentally kick over the sand fort and fall upon the bag with a help of it. Then every one would stop for a few moments and call for someone and then talk about how they found that woman. She actually seemed to enjoy the commotion she caused over her bag and when she lost them gave her a big party, they were so glad to be rid of her!"

"But you go!" asked the girl who loves to talk. "If you would you might notice about the fact that I am now leaving behind! I promise you I won't!"

"Dear me!" said the boy's owner. "I believe I did suggest it! I wish that I had!"

To Police Officer: Read this story carefully with plenty of shade and supplied with an abundant supply of water. It is a story of a girl who was very much interested in a gold bag. It is a story of a girl who was very much interested in a gold bag. It is a story of a girl who was very much interested in a gold bag.

Before or After. "I thought that in the 15 years of my practice of medicine," said a physician, "I had answered almost every possible foolish question, but a new one was sprung on me recently. A young man came in with an inflamed eye, for which I prescribed liniment—to be dropped into the eye three times a day. He left the surgery, but returned in a few minutes, poked his head in the doorway, and asked: 'What I drop this in the eye before meals, or after?'

A Colossal Scheme. The great highway of the commerce of the future will be the Pacific ocean. Mighty capitalists throughout the world are putting their heads together to erect the most colossal system for wireless telegraphy in the world. The system contemplates the linking together of all points along the western coast of America from Bering sea to the Straits of Magellan, and spanning the miles of the ocean, to link with this chain the whole easterly shore of Asia, running on down to the Straits Settlements. The contemplated system will cost in the aggregate many millions of dollars.

Eight Who Deserve Slaps. Eight men who deserve to be slapped on the face: He who despises a man of power; he who enters a house uninvited and unwelcome; he who gives orders to a house not his own; he who takes a seat above his position; he who speaks to one who does not listen to him; he who intrudes on the conversation of others; he who speaks favors from the ungenerous, and he who expects love from his enemies.—From a Persian Saying.

Beauty of Woodwork. There is a friendly atmosphere in the presence of much woodwork—not painted wood, but wood finished to show the beauty of its natural growth—that is entirely lost in an expanse of smooth, hard paint. Its mellow light and soft shades form a far more useful background than any papered surface, and its strength and durability make a wood finish ideal for a house that is to suggest the feeling of permanence and stability that belongs to the true home.—Suburban Life.

CURT THEATRE.

According to all reports, "Fine Feathers," the tremendous play by Eugene Walter which has been running at the Curt Theatre, Chicago, since early August, still remains the finest dramatic offering in that city. So great has been the demand to see this play, that contracts for its appearance on the road have been cancelled and the Chicago engagement extended four weeks. But the opening of this attraction in New York cannot be postponed and but three more weeks remain of its Chicago engagement. Not only the dramatic critics of the Chicago press, but every one of the thousands of playgoers who have witnessed this play, declare it to be the greatest drama of the day, not only because of its wonderful scenes and situations, its brilliant lines and sparkling dialogue, but because it is a drama in such a way as to appeal to every man and woman in the audience. It deals with conditions as they exist in every modern home, with the advanced standard and cost of living, the tendency of the woman today, who is in moderate circumstances, to imitate the manner of living and the mode of dress of her more wealthy neighbor, and the struggle of the head of the house to provide these added comforts and luxuries. It shows the tentacle of modern "big business" finding its way into the humble home, sowing the seeds of discontent and temptation. And the author, Eugene Walter, who has written such plays as "The Eastest Way" and "Paid in Full," handles these things with all the force and vigor of his mighty pen, and holds the audience spellbound from the rise of the curtain to the final scene. This play has a wonderful appeal because it is true to life, and because every auditor recognizes its great truth and conviction. The play is acted by an all-star cast, the finest ever seen in Chicago, and those who contemplate a visit to this city should plan to see it. Matinees are given Wednesday and Saturday.

SYNOPSIS.

Last, Harry Mallory is ordered to the Philippines. He and Marjorie Newton decide to elope, but wreck of train prevents their seeing minister on the way to the train. Transcontinental train is taking on passengers. The elopement is a lively time with an Englishman and Mrs. Lathrop, a Yankee business, a woman with an exciting time getting to the train. "Little Jimmie" Wellington, bound for Reno to get a divorce, boards train in mauling condition. Mrs. Jimmie appears. She is also bound for Reno with her child. Later, Mallory and Marjorie appear. Later, Mallory and Marjorie appear. Later, Mallory and Marjorie appear.

CHAPTER VI.—(Continued.)

Then Ashton intervened like a dog in the manger and dragged her off to her seat, leaving the young man to exclaim:

"Some tamarin, that!"

Another young man behind him growled: "Cut out the tamarins and get to business. Mallory will be here any minute."

"I hate to think what he'll do to us when he sees what we've done to him," he went on to say.

"Oh, he won't dare to fight in the presence of his little bride-widow. Do you see the porter in there?"

"Yes, suppose he objects."

"Well, we have the tickets. We'll claim it's our section till Mallory and Mrs. Mallory come."

They moved on into the car, where the porter confronted them. When he saw that they were loaded with bundles of all shapes and sizes, he waved them away with scorn.

"The emigrant sleep, runs only Tuesdays and Thursdays."

From behind the first mass of packages came a brisk military answer:

"You black hound! About face and forward march! Section number one."

The porter retreated down the aisle, apologizing glibly. "Scuse me for questioning you, but you'll baggage looked kind o' eccentric at first."

The two young men dumped their parcels on the seats and began to unpack them hastily.

"If Mallory catches us, he'll kill us," said Lieutenant Shaw. Lieutenant Hudson only laughed and drew out a long streamer of white satin ribbon.

It glimmered, and the glimmering eyes of the young man excited Mrs. Whitcomb so much that after a little hesitance she moved forward, followed by the jealous Ashton.

"Oh, what's up?" she ventured. "It looks like something bad."

"Talk about womanly intuition!" said Lieutenant Hudson, with an interesting salutation.

And then they explained to her that their classmate at West Point, who had been ordered suddenly to the Philippines, had arranged to elope with his beloved Marjorie Newton; had asked them to get the tickets and check the baggage while he stopped at a minister's to get applied and hike for Manila by this train."

Having recounted this plan in the full belief that it was even at that moment being carried out successfully, Lieutenant Hudson, with a ghoul's smile, explained:

"Being old friends of the bride and groom, we want to fix their section up in style and make them truly comfortable."

"Delicious!" gushed Mrs. Whitcomb. "But you ought to have some rice and old shoes."

"Here's the rice," said Hudson. "Here's the old shoes," said Shaw. "Lovely!" cried Mrs. Whitcomb; but then she grew soberer. "I should think, though, that they—the young couple—would have preferred a steamer."

"Of course," said Hudson, almost blaspheming. "But it was too late. This was the best we could do for them."

"That's why we want to make it nice and bride-like," said Shaw. "Perhaps you could help us—a woman's touch."

"Oh, I'd love to," she glowed, hastening into the section among the young men and the bundles. The unusual air attracted the porter's attention. He came forward with a look of anxiety.

"Come me, but what—what's all this?"

"Nothing—get out," said Hudson, looking a little at a loss. As he turned to obey, Mrs. Whitcomb checked him with: "Oh, Porter, could you get us a basket and some nails?"

The porter almost blushed: "Good Lawd, miss, you ain't allowin' to drive nails into that woodwork, is you?" That awkward way to him what the other is to the priest.

But Hudson, resorting to heroic measures, sympathized him with a two-dollar bill and told him to get out and get nothing, nor taking any notice.

The porter came out and checked: "I'm blind, and deaf, and dumb." The awkward way to him what the other is to the priest.

"You ain't got a word, is you?"

"You ain't got a word, is you?"

"You ain't got a word, is you?"

"You ain't got a word, is you?"

"You ain't got a word, is you?"

"You ain't got a word, is you?"

"You ain't got a word, is you?"

"You ain't got a word, is you?"

"You ain't got a word, is you?"

"You ain't got a word, is you?"

"You ain't got a word, is you?"

Antony, the porter pleaded: "I just want to see a question. Is you all fix' up for a bridal couple?"

"Polish question, number eight million, forty-three," said Shaw. "Answer no, we are."

The porter's face glowed like fresh rose polish as he gloated over the prospect. "I tell you, it be mighty dreadful to have a bridal couple on board. This dozen Reno train don't carry nuthin' much but divorcees. I've just natchin' hungry for a bridal couple."

"Little couple-ple!" came a voice, like an echo that had somehow been more intoxicated in transit. It was Little Jimmie Wellington looking for more sympathy. "Whass is about bride couple?"

"Why, here's Little Buttercup!" sang out young Hudson, looking at him in amazed amusement.

Did Jimmie's somebody say you're preparing for bride couple?"

Leutenant Shaw grinned. "I don't know what you're understood, but that's what we're doing."

Immediately Wellington's great face began to churn and work like a big eddy in a river. Suddenly he was weeping. "Excuse the tears, then, lemme, but I once—I was once a b-b-ride myself."

He looks like a whole wedding party. That, Hudson explained, is a little piece of rain. We hang that up there and when the bridal couple sit down—bust a shower of rice all over them."

Everybody agreed that it was a happy thought, and even Jimmie Wellington, like a great baby, bounding from tears to laughter on the instant, was shouting: "A rice trap! That's absolutely splendid—greats! Invenish modern times. I must stick around and see her when she sops."

And then he turned forward like a too-obliging elephant. "Let me help you."

Mrs. Whitcomb, who had now mounted a step ladder and peered herself as gracefully as possible, shrieked with alarm, as she saw Wellington's bulk loomed toward her frail support.

If Hudson and Shaw had not been football veterans at West Point and did not know just what to do when the center rush comes bucking the line, they could never have blocked that flying wedge. But they checked him and impelled him backward through his own curtains into his own berth.

Finding himself on his back, he decided to remain there. And there he remained, oblivious of the carnival preparations going on just outside his canopy.

The happiest runaways that ever sought a train. They were not miserable. The young couple in the train cab. They were white-haired both. They had been married for thirty years. Yet this was their real honeymoon. Their real honeymoon.

"The little woman in the timid gray bonnet clasped her hands and uttered like a schoolgirl."

"Oh, Walter, I can't believe we're really going to leave Ypsilanti for a while. Oh, but you've earned it after thirty years of being a preacher."

"Hush. Don't let me hear you say the awful word," said the little old man in the little black hat and the close-fitting black bib. "I'm so tired of it. Sally, I don't want anybody on the train to know it."

"They can't help guessing it, with your collar buttoned behind."

And then the amazing minister actually dared to say: "Here's where I change it around. What's more, he actually did it. Actually took off his collar and buttoned it to the front."

The old carriage seemed almost to rock with the earthquake of the deed.

"Why, Walter Temple?" his wife exclaimed. "What would they say in Ypsilanti?"

"They'll never know," he answered, definitely.

"But your bib?" she said.

"The thought of the bib?" he cried, as he whipped it off and stuffed it into a handbag. "Look, what I've bought. And he dangled before her startled eyes the bib, that was the sudden light from a passing lamp-post revealed to be nothing less than a faring red tie."

The old lady touched it to make sure she was not dreaming it. Then, omitting further parody with fate, she snatched it away, put it round his neck, and, since her arms were embroiled, she knotted the ribbon into a flaming bow. She sat back and regarded the vision a moment, then flung her arms round him and hugged him till he gasped.

"Watch out—watch out. Don't crush my cigars."

"Cigars! Cigars!" she echoed, in a daze.

And then the astounding husband produced them in prof.

"Genuine Lillian Russells—five cigars straight."

"But I never saw you smoke."

"Haven't taken a puff since I was a young fellow," he grinned, wagging his head. "But now it's my vacation, and I'm going to smoke up."

She squeezed his hand with an earlier ardor. "Now you're the old Walter Temple I used to know."

"Sally," he said, "I've been traveling through life on a half fare ticket. Now I'm going to have my little fling. And you brace up, too, and be the old mischievous Sally I used to know. Aren't you glad to be away from those sewing circles and gossip-beds?"

"I tell you, I never mention them," she shrieked. "I'm going to be a stinger of recurring portulaca. If you start to smoke, I'll take up flinging once more."

He snatched her cheek and laughed. "As the saying is, go as far as you desire and I'll leave the coast clear."

He kept his promise, too, for they were no sooner on the train and snugly nestled in section five, than he was up and off.

"Where are you going?" she asked.

"To the smoking-room," he swung, brandishing a dangerous looking cigar.

"Oh, Walter," she shrieked, "I feel like a young runaway."

"You look like one. Be careful not to let anybody know that you're a runaway."

He lowered his voice—"An old preacher's wife."

"I'm ashamed of it as you are," she whispered. Then he threw her a kiss and a wink. She threw him a kiss and winked too. And he went along the aisle eyeing his cigar glottally.

As he entered the smoking-room, lighted the weed and blew out a great puff with a sigh of rapture, who could have taken him, with his feet cocked up, and his red tie rakishly askew, for a minister?

And Sally herself was busy disguising herself, lowering up her hair coquettishly, and giving the primness out of the set corners of her mouth and even—the hero the best of all costs—even passing a pink-powdered puff over her pale cheeks with guilty surreptitiousness.

Thus arrayed she was soon joining the conspirators basking the bower for the expected bride and groom. She was the youngest and most mischievous of the lot. She felt herself a bride again, and vowed to protect this timid little wife to come to too much hilarity at the hands of the conspirators.

Honor Utter of Engravers.

The Japanese are great admirers of epigrams and apt phrases. Their love of such things is carried so far that when a guest says something unusual or brilliant, the host or hostess will beg him to write down his remark in large ornamental script. The sentence is then mounted and hung on the wall as permanent addition to the list of ornaments, such as we might hang up a text or motto. Naturally the author of a bon mot treated in this way feels himself highly honored to be thus placed on record. But the sentence is selected more for their wisdom than their humor; so that the funny man is not in evidence.

Was Not and Didn't Know It.

John Wilson, a naval pensioner who has died at Southport, Essex, aged 84, was not and didn't know it.

His true life was only discovered after his death, when his naval service papers were examined.

The papers had been sent to the Admiralty, and the fact of his being a pensioner was discovered.

PROPER USE OF FATS

SHOULD BE KEPT SEPARATELY AFTER HOME RENDERING.

German Housewives Have Good Method of With Suet—Old-Fashioned Manner of Clarifying Fat From the Soup Kettle.

Fats that are derived from the cooking of bacon, ham, chicken, beef and other meats should be kept in its own receptacle, to be used for different purposes.

Home rendering of both suet and leaf lard has its advantages, because the product is generally superior to what can be bought for the same price.

Both suet and leaf lard require cooking in order to loosen the fat from the tougher membrane that holds it. For this purpose the material is cut in small pieces and covered with water and allowed to cook slowly for some time until no more water remains and the scrap has turned to a light brown.

When the fat is partly cooled it should be carefully poured off. This fat has no unpleasant taste or odor, and in many recipes may be substituted for the part of the butter or suet. A pound of leaf lard to four or five of the suet; this makes a softer fat, as the lard has a lower melting point than suet.

Many Driven From Home. Every year, in many parts of the country, thousands are driven from their homes by coughs and lung diseases. Friends and business are left behind for other climates, but this is costly and not always safe. A better way—the way of multitudes—is to use Dr. King's New Discovery and cure yourself at home. Stay right there, with your friends, and take this safe medicine. Throat and lung troubles find quick relief and health returns. Its help in coughs, colds, grip, croup, whooping-cough and sore lungs make it a positive blessing. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Barrington Pharmacy.

Oiling Shoes. The best way to keep black leather shoes from looking worn, and also from breaking, is to dip a small flannel rag in olive oil and rub it into the leather. If it needs further rubbing on, take a fresh, dry flannel rag and go over it. This method is good for the woman in mourning, as it keeps her footwear black without polishing it, and provides a dulled finish.
