EDITOR J. L. WILSON IS DEAD

Owner of Seattle Post-Intelligencer Expires in Washington After an Hour's Sickness.

His body was taken to his birthplace, Crawford, Ind., for burial. He had been in the capital on business two days. Wilson was a former United States senator. He had served two terms in the house, and part of a third when he resigned to go to the senate to fill the unexpired term of John R. Allen. He was a brother of Henry Lane Wilson, ambassador to Mexico.

"BIG TIM" SULLIVAN IS ILL

New York Petitioner, Elected to Congress, May Never Take Seat at Washington.

New York, Nov. 8.—"Big Tim" Sullivan, New York's noted East side statesman, will probably never take the seat of the congressional office to which he was elected Tuesday on the Democratic ticket. "Big Tim," who at present is a state senator, has been ill for several months in a sanitarium in New Jersey and was unable to participate in his own campaign or to attend the conventions. He was discharged from the sanitarium Thursday, but his friends say his condition is still serious. He is said to be expected to be similar to the brain disease that caused the death of his nephew, "Little Tim."

New York.—A Democratic landslide. That tells the story of Tuesday's election. Wilson and Marshall won a sweeping victory and carried with them the state, congressional and legislative tickets in many of the states. Col. Theodore Roosevelt and the Progressive ticket ran second and President William Howard Taft landed in third place in the presidential race.

Wilson carried practically all but ten states. Four and possibly five of these go to Taft and the rest to Roosevelt. The colonial came out ahead in Pennsylvania with a margin of about 40,000, and the 38 electoral votes of that state will be cast for him. Illinois contributed its 29 votes by a plurality of approximately 4,000. Michigan, Iowa and Vermont are also in the Roosevelt column.

Wilson's Triumph

Wilson's victory in New York state was most complete. His plurality was about 150,000. Taft had a slight lead over Roosevelt in the total vote, but the Democratic candidate for governor ran close to Wilson and carried with him the entire state ticket.

The popular vote for Wilson and Marshall was about 2,000,000, breaking all records for a national election. Old Republican strongholds have been smashed into smithereens by the Roosevelt ticket. Chief of old New England, which manifested a tendency to wander toward Democracy in the congressional elections two years ago, has been carried by the Roosevelt ticket. Tuesday as far as the bulk of its electoral vote was concerned. Massachusetts and Maine, which have been Republican since 1856, were in the Roosevelt column.

Ohio, which has been Republican since 1856, was in 1902 when it gave one of its electoral votes to Cleveland, has been swept by the Democrats. The returns indicate that Wilson has carried President Taft's home state by an overwhelming plurality. All three of the home states of the leading rivals for the presidency, indeed, have been annexed by Wilson—Ohio, New Jersey and New York, where Wilson was given a vote of landslide proportions.

Indiana has gone Democratic by a considerable margin, although Wilson did not get as large a vote as did Bryan four years ago—this on the face of the incomplete returns.

WOODROW WILSON

to Cleveland, has been swept by the Democrats. The returns indicate that Wilson has carried President Taft's home state by an overwhelming plurality. All three of the home states of the leading rivals for the presidency, indeed, have been annexed by Wilson—Ohio, New Jersey and New York, where Wilson was given a vote of landslide proportions.

Indiana has gone Democratic by a considerable margin, although Wilson did not get as large a vote as did Bryan four years ago—this on the face of the incomplete returns.

Republican strongholds in the west that were not smashed by the Democrats appear to have fallen under the hammer of the Progressives. Michigan, which has been Republican since 1856, excepting in 1892, when it gave Cleveland five of its 14 electoral votes, has been carried by Roosevelt on the face of incomplete returns.

Roosevelt carried Illinois. Illinois, which has gone Democratic only once since the Civil war, has been carried by Roosevelt by 20,000 plurality—strongest Roosevelt state.

Wisconsin, the state in which the Republican party was born—at Ripon, in the little frame schoolhouse that still stands on Ripon college campus—has gone Democratic, for the second time since 1856. The returns indicate that Roosevelt is running in third place, way behind Taft and Wilson, the latter of whom has a wide lead on the incomplete figures.

The earliest returns from New York, which were among the first significant figures to come over the wire, demonstrated that Wilson had won the great 1913 presidential race. From the first day of the election, the Democratic polling about as many votes as his two rivals combined and that he was sweeping the downstate sections of New York right down to the Harlem river, as well as New York City itself.

The new legislature will be Democratic in both houses by a heavier majority than that of two years ago. Then the Democrats controlled 116 of the 200 senators and assemblymen.

Home State Loyalty to Wilson

Governor Wilson's home state, New Jersey, stood by him handsomely, late returns indicating that he will have a plurality of about 75,000. The Democrats have elected ten out of twelve congressmen from the Democratic state committee claims a majority in the legislature on joint ballot.

Maine has joined the Democratic column, giving Wilson a safe plurality. Roosevelt ran second with Taft a poor third.

Massachusetts gives Wilson a plurality of about 70,000. The returns from the state committee claims a majority in the legislature on joint ballot.

Massachusetts gives Wilson a plurality of about 70,000. The returns from the state committee claims a majority in the legislature on joint ballot.

Return from New Hampshire are coming in very slowly, but they indicate that Taft has carried the state by a small margin.

Married Democrats. Wilson carried Maryland by a plurality of about 18,000. The official Democratic ticket was swept to victory in the Wilson landslide.

South Dakota, where Roosevelt electors were running on the Republican ticket, was annexed to the column by a moderate plurality, despite the desperate efforts that were made to keep the state for Wilson.

In New York, Ohio and Massachusetts. He was second also in Wisconsin, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Delaware, New Jersey, Missouri, Kentucky and Oregon. Roosevelt ran second in Maine, Indiana, West Virginia, Colorado, Minnesota, Iowa, Arizona, Nevada, California and Montana. In most of the southern states Roosevelt ran second to Wilson. Wilson ran second in Pennsylvania, Michigan, South Dakota and Washington.

A byproduct of the election was the success of woman's suffrage in four of the five states where constitutional amendments were submitted to the people. The victory of the woman was complete in Kansas, Arizona and Michigan. In Oregon they apparently have succeeded by a small margin. The equal suffrage proposal was decisively defeated in Wisconsin.

Wilson Makes Statement

Princeton, N. J.—Governor Wilson, with a party of friends, received the returns at his home in this city. The first results the governor got were encouraging, but he would not permit himself to become overconfident. When a message came from Chairman McCombs assuring him of his election he could not hide his satisfaction.

He sent the following reply to Mr. McCombs:

"I deeply appreciate your telegram and wish to extend to you and the members of the campaign committee my warm congratulations on the part you have played in the organization and conduct of a campaign fought out upon essential issues.

"A great cause has triumphed. Every Democrat, every true progressive, of whatever alliance, must now lend his full force and enthusiasm to the fulfillment of the people's hope, so that justice and progress may go hand in hand.

This was Governor Wilson's first utterance of a public character following his acceptance of the reports that he had been elected.

Roosevelt to Wilson

Oyster Bay.—Colonel Roosevelt expressed not at all perturbed over the failure of the progressives to win this election. He issued the following statement:

"The American people by a great plurality have decided in favor of Mr. Wilson and the Democratic party. Like all good citizens I accept the result with entire good humor and contentment. As for the Progressive cause I can only repeat what I have already said so many times: The fate of the leader for the time being is of little consequence, but the cause itself must in the end triumph, for its triumph is essential to the well being of the American people.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT"

At the same time he issued his statement Colonel Roosevelt sent the following telegram to Governor Wilson:

"The American people by a great plurality have conferred upon you the highest honor in their gift. Congratulate you thereon.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT"

Taft to Wilson.

President Taft sent telegrams to Governor Wilson and Chairman Hill of the Republican national committee.

Here are the messages:

"Hon. Woodrow Wilson, Princeton, N. J. I cordially congratulate you on your election, and extend to you my best wishes for a successful administration.

"WILLIAM H. TAFT." "Hon. Charles D. Hill, Chairman Republican National Committee, Times Building, New York: You have conducted a most efficient campaign in the face of unusual obstacles. I congratulate you heartily on the fight you have made, and I am deeply grateful to you for it.

"WILLIAM H. TAFT."

DON'T forget your little boy and girl are growing up and you will regret it if you don't have their picture now.

Washington.—Of the 28 governors of states elected Tuesday, the Democrats elected 18, the Republicans 8, and the Progressives 2.

In national interest, the gubernatorial contests in New York and Illinois surpassed all others, and in both the Democratic nominees were successful. William Sulzer, member of congress, captured the Empire state with comparative ease. Oscar S. Straus, Progressive, falling far below what even his opponents expected of him. Job Hedges, the Republican candidate, was in second place. Sulzer has made himself very popular in New York city and the effort to curtail the heavy Jewish vote there for Straus failed utterly.

Governor Densen Loss.

The contest for the governorship of Illinois was bitterly waged, and Governor Densen was hampered unmercifully and badly defeated for reelection. His Progressive rival, Frank Funk, could not begin to keep pace with the Roosevelt vote in the state, and Edward F. Dunne won the prize. Mr. Dunne was especially strong in Chicago, which city he secured a major vote some years ago, and in the southern part of the state. Funk polled a respectable vote in Chicago, but his main strength lay in the middle counties. Downright indorsement of his candidacy by Roosevelt came late in the campaign and did not seem to help him much. Governor Densen lost immensely by reason of his warring course for weeks following the Progressive convention which nominated the man whom he had so eagerly supported in the Republican convention.

National attention was directed to Indiana by the gallant struggle made by former senator Albert J. Beveridge, Progressive candidate. His personal popularity carried him far, but he could not stem the great Democratic tide and was defeated by Samuel H. Ralston.

Wisconsin Elect Karel.

In Wisconsin, as in Illinois, a one-time supporter of Colonel Roosevelt went down to defeat in the person of Gov. Francis E. McGovern, the Republican candidate for reelection. It seemed that he was a victim of the policy of the La Follette following to defeat Roosevelt. All hands were against him, though they voted the straight Democratic ticket to carry J. C. Karel to victory. Charles L. Hill, Progressive, did not make much of a showing.

Woodrow Wilson will not have to labor under the same handicap as Grover Cleveland, for the Sixty-third congress will be in the control of the Democrats, both in the senate and the house. Just how large their majority will be cannot be stated until complete returns are received from many states, but it will approximate 149 in the house and will be about two in the senate.

Senators are to be elected by the legislatures chosen Tuesday in those states: Colorado (2), Delaware, Ohio (2), Illinois (2), Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, New Hampshire, Nebraska, New Jersey, Oregon, Rhode Island and Wyoming.

Old Thayer Defeated.
Several of the old time members of congress have been relegated to private life. Former Speaker Cannon was defeated in the thirty-ninth year of his service.

Bay State Members Re-elected.

It was a great day for a politician who was working for a reelection. It was a day when he was sure he had his hand bound to go in for the reelection. He was sure he had his hand bound to go in for the reelection. He was sure he had his hand bound to go in for the reelection.

New York, author of the tariff, was elected to the U. S. House of Representatives. In Connecticut, W. A. Rodeburg of Illinois and Cyrus Sullova of New Hampshire.

By a coalition of Republicans and Democrats in Wisconsin, the so-called Socialist ticket was beaten, including Congressman Berger, who had the distinction of being the only Socialist elected to congress.

"Nick" Longworth Re-Elected.

In Ohio there was some possible consolation for Colonel Roosevelt in the fact that his son-in-law, Nicholas Longworth, was re-elected a member of congress. The Progressive movement had nominated a candidate to oppose him, but it may well be the colonel did not become the result.

The Democratic majority in the next house will be so large as to be really unyielding, and that was what the party leaders were trying to avoid. They thought to have a majority of congress, but not one too big to be handled conveniently. They admit to having some fear that their huge majority will split in two, the Progressive Democrats joining the Progressive Republicans, in which case Speaker Clark might find some difficulty in succeeding in his office.

The Democrats profited enormously from the Progressive movement, which injured Republican candidates more than it did the Democratic nominees. The vote cast for Progressive candidates for the house was tremendous large throughout the west and middle west and in some parts of the east.

Make-Up of Congress.

The make-up of the next congress, according to the returns now in, will be as follows:

| State | Total | HOUSE | | SENATE | |
| | | Rep. | Dem. | Rep. | Dem. |

Some Interesting Results.

The fights in some of the districts represented by legislators just mentioned were not so fierce. Representative Payne, for instance, was opposed in the new Thirty-sixth district by R. C. Drummond, Democrat, and Wilson M. Gould, Progressive. It was one of the liveliest political scrambles the experienced Auburn legislator ever enjoyed. Mr. Payne is one of the oldtimers in the house, having served, with the single exception of the Pittsfield congress, during all sessions since the Forty-eighth, or nearly thirty years. He has been prominent in Republican national conventions every four years since 1882. Mr. Payne was a member of the American-British Joint High Commission in 1893.

Mr. Cannon's battle was given him principally through the hard work of his Democratic opponent, Frank T. O'Hair, who tried to turn the Eighteenth Illinois district topsy-turvy. Mr. O'Hair had the able assistance of E. F. Royce, Progressive candidate.

Another feature of the congressional elections was the return to the house of Richmond P. Hobson, sixth Alabama, who helped sink the cozier Merrimac in Santiago harbor, and thus blockaded the port. Mr. Hobson, occupying the tour of the country which was so sweetly punctuated by glib snatches on lip and cheek, has attracted more attention since the Merrimac incident by his continuous pessimism relative to an impending war with Japan. In the house he always has been handing out solemn warnings of the yellow peril.

In the Tenth Indiana district it was another story. Here Edgar D. Crumpecker was sought to a standstill by John E. Ferguson, Democrat, and John G. Swann, Progressive. Mr. Crumpecker was the only Republican member of the Indiana delegation in the Fifty-second congress. Repeating in the Fifty-fifth congress, he had served continuously for 16 years. He had been considered for many years as one of the strong men of the house body at the national capital.

ENTIRE DEMOCRATIC STATE TICKET WINS

Dunne Choice for Governor, but Roosevelt Gets Electoral Vote.

DENEEN AND FUNK RUN CLOSE

Indications Are That Legislature Will Be Deadlocked—Extra Session to Be Called to Elect Successor to Senator Lorimer.

Chicago.—The entire Democratic state ticket, headed by Edward F. Dunne, was elected in the veritable landslide which swept the country, but Theodore Roosevelt, Progressive candidate for president, was successful in the fight for Illinois' electoral vote.

In Cook county Roosevelt has a plurality estimated from 15,000 to 20,000. In Chicago he has a plurality of approximately 10,000. In the state his plurality probably will approximate 4,000.

In the governorship race Dunne carried 47 of 65 counties, from which fairly satisfactory reports have been received. Deneen carried ten and Funk eight. Deneen has a slight lead over Funk.

Dunne carried Cook county by 65,000. His estimated plurality downtown is $5,000—$5,000 for the entire state.

Swamp Cook County.

The Democrats practically swept Cook county. Barton, Democratic candidate for county chairman, was defeated by a small plurality after one of the bitterest fights ever waged in the county. A. McCormick was the victor. With this exception the Democrats captured almost every office.

The state's attorneyship fight proved a spectacular three-cornered contest, with William A. Gunnea, the Socialist nominee, developing surprising strength. For a time it seemed if he might win. His kept Mackay Hoyle, the successful Democrat aspirant, on the anxious seat for hours. Lewis Rinkner, the Republican candidate, ran third in the spectacular race.

Legislature to Be Deadlocked.

The new Illinois legislature is to be in a deadlock from the jump. Neither Republicans nor Democrats will control a clear majority in the house. On joint ballot neither party will be able to muster 103 votes necessary to elect a United States senator and the Progressives have both old parties at their mercy.

This is the story of the latest returns.

The Progressives, it is believed, have elected a clear majority in the house. Two Socialists anyhow and one independent have finished inside the money, and the only sure thing is that the Republicans have lost the house and are a half dozen votes shy of enough to insure the election of Lawrence V. Sherman to the United States senate.

The Republican situation is so precarious that an extra session of the present legislature will be called within ten days by Governor Deneen to elect a senator for the Lorimer vacancy and to make a congressional appointment of the state—a job left undone by the last regular session because of the factional row.

The extra session possibility became a near reality when, at midnight, the Republican state leaders realized that they had met disaster. J. Hopkins, William E. Mason, and a state administration entry, possibly Governor Deneen himself.

Estimate of Party Strength.

The scattered returns, which are not complete for any district in Chicago or downstate, indicate this as the complexion of the new legislature:

| | | |
|--------------------|-------|----|
| REPUBLICANS: | | 18 |
| Holdover senators | | 14 |
| New senators | | 14 |
| Representatives | | 58 |
| Total joint ballot | | 80 |
| DEMOCRATS: | | 8 |
| Holdover senators | | 8 |
| New senators | | 11 |
| Representatives | | 76 |
| Total joint ballot | | 94 |
| PROGRESSIVES: | | 16 |
| Representatives | | 16 |
| Total joint ballot | | 16 |
| SOCIALISTS: | | 3 |
| Representatives | | 3 |
| Total joint ballot | | 3 |
| INDEPENDENT: | | 1 |
| Representative | | 1 |
| Total joint ballot | | 1 |

Complexion of Senate.

On the face of the figures compiled, the senate will stand: Democrats, 32. The estimate of the make-up of the new house of representatives, as figured upon the scattering returns, will be: Republicans, 58; Democrats, 75; Progressives, 16; Socialists, 3; Independent, 1.

The returns indicate that those nine Progressives have no chance. John M. Curran, Winnetka, Henry B. Fargo, Geneva, George Finch, Peoria, William H. Dunn, Essex, Charles W. Fleming, Danville, Joseph Carter, Champaign, F. H. Jarns, Monticomb, Roy D. Hunt, De Kalb, Ezra E. Miller, Naperville. The independent apparently elected is William H. Barver of Rockford, who ran as an avowed "wet," but who doubtless will act with the Republicans.

Democrats Claim the House.

The Democratic state committee claimed the house by a safe working majority and more than a chance, by complete returns, to hold a Democratic majority on joint ballot.

In the event of Democratic supremacy in the house the speakership candidates will include Lee O'Neil Brown, Martin J. Dillon of Galena, and John M. Rapp of Fairfield.

The result is highly unsatisfactory to the Anti-Saloon league of Illinois. Comparatively few of the successful Democrats were pledged to the county option platform of the league.

The indorsement of the Legislative Voters' league did not go to as many of the winners as was the case two years ago.

The senate remains in control of the Republicans ostensibly, but several of the holdovers classed as Republicans are now expected to act openly with the Progressives, notably Walter Clyde Jones, Thomas B. Stewart, and others.

TRYING COURTSHIP
Love-Making on a Fire Escape
Ends Happily.

By CLYDE JOHNSON.

A woman thirty years old who invents poetry, has a cat and a canary, scorns the hobbie skirt and has taken a vow never to marry, comes so near being an old maid that she may be herewith graded in that class.

A man thirty-two years old, who feels that he has a mission to write a book, and who keeps a bulldog, owns seven different canes—has a cuckoo clock and laughs at the idea of woman being intelligent enough to vote, will pass in any country as an old bachelor.

Her name was Amanda Jane Dillon—good old-fashion Amanda Jane—and when addressed by her landlady she wanted the Jane to follow the Amanda in natural sequence. She had an income, and she had a rented flat and a cook. The cook was also rented by the month.

His name was Perry Chase Perry. His parents had no named him when a red-headed infant by her landlady she would come when he would want to chase himself around the block, and thus giving him an early start. He had an income, and he had a rented flat and a cook. Same financial arrangement with his cook as Miss Dillon had with hers.

When Amanda Jane, as she may now be called, called to look over a "To Rent" flat the janitor called her attention to the fact that it was on the sixth floor and no elevator. Therefore, she would not be bothered with orphanas seeking homes or brokers in search of advice; also, that a fire escape was at one of the dining room windows and ready for her use day and night. It would be her escape. It was wide and roomy, and she could lay down a Persian prayer rug and take out a chair and have a little roof garden all to herself. Something in the pole of her head—the uplift of her eyebrows—the click of her heels on the stairs, told him that she had a soul for poetry. If he were right, and he had never taken a barber for a poetess yet, what a place for inspiration that fire escape would prove in the long summer afternoons and evenings. Amanda Jane signed a year's lease.

When Perry Chase Perry called to look at a flat next door to that just rented by Amanda Jane, the janitor went through the same process, with slight variations. There was the fire escape on one of the dining room windows. There was the freedom from callers; there was a grand view of a lumber yard and a brewery; there was the outdoor snugger in which, even without a prayer rug, one could sit and draw in inspiration by the yard. Something told that janitor that Mr. Perry Chase Perry had a head for literature, like Richard Harding Davis, and if he was right, and he had never been wrong about such things, why—Mr. Perry Chase Perry signed a year's lease.

There was one oversight on the part of both landlords and there was one thing neither lessee failed to take into consideration.

There were two flats. There was a distance of ten feet between them, but the building of the escapes had cut the distance down to six. Therefore, when Amanda Jane got out on her escape, and Perry Chase Perry got out on his, they would look into each other's eyes and read the language there. This fact was discovered in about four days after they had moved in.

As dinner was finished and the dishes went down and the bob-o-tins were getting ready to look Amanda Jane sought her ladder, taking her cat along; also a pad and pencil. Inspiration might come at any moment, and poetic inspiration must be caught on the fly.

Five minutes later Perry Chase Perry appeared in his bower, followed by his bulldog and one of his seven canes. He also had a pad and pencil. He was out there to invent a title for his book. He wasn't satisfied to let it go under the head of "No Name." A stray cat can be called by any old name, but it's different with a book. He had got it's different with a book.

"Great snakes, a woman!"
 "Mercy on a man!"
 "And an old maid, or I'm a goat!"
 "And an old bachelor, or is I live!"
 "By George, but I'll move out tomorrow, lease or no lease!"
 "He'll either go or I will!"
 "There might have been more mental exclamations between the couple but for the cat dog. They caught up of each other, and the one began to spit and the other to bark. It has been so and always will be, as a rule, the husband caused twenty h admale and female, to appear at twenty different windows, and the mouths belonging to those respective heads opened to emit words of different lengths and meanings. The bleached blondes led the procession, as usual:
 "Gilt on to his dog!"
 "Put your dough on pussy!"
 "He's getting bald-headed!"
 "She's living on anti-fat!"
 Mister Perry Chase Perry chased in. In the morning he would kick every tenant in his flat and then sue the landlord for enormous damages.

Amanda Jane chased in. In the morning she would see a lawyer. She would not only sue one about the landlord, but about the man who had so brazenly occupied the other fire escape. Had he remained in his rooms all would have been well. It was because of him she had been insulted in that outrageous manner and she would lay her damages at $20,000 and not a cent less.

When morning came, however, no one visited a lawyer and no suits were begun. A night's reflection had brought different plans. For the next three evenings the escapes were vacant, and the twenty tenants who were watching for more fun gave up in despair. On the fourth evening Amanda Jane and her cat and pad and pencil reappeared. Five minutes later Perry Chase Perry and his bulldog and cane and pad and pencil showed up.

"There she is!" he whispered to himself.

"The brazen thing!" she whispered to herself.

"Dear old maid, anyhow!"

"He's been jilted for sure!"

The cat and the dog saw each other from the flat, but made no hostile moves. They are not to be depended on to act twice alike under the same circumstances. It was very quiet. Amanda Jane sat with her head down and thought and thought and made strenuous efforts to find a rhyme for the word "huckleberry," and Perry Chase Perry invented and rejected a dozen different names for the book he would some day write. Just one ten-and looked out of her window, and after a peep and a peep she drew her head in and snuggled to herself!

"Now, then, why don't they see and be possible? I never heard of two people falling in love on a fire escape, but it can be done."

There was just five minutes more of the heavenly peace, and then the bulldog suddenly remembered the cat. The cat had climbed up on the railing of the escape and was blinking her eyes in sleep. The bark of the dog, and she rushed to make gave her a scare, and she lost her hold and went down to destruction.

Screams from Amanda Jane—screams, and then she fainted.

Cries-words from Perry Chase Perry, and then his foot of a dog leaped into the railing and went down after the cat. He wasn't going to let any grimalkin bite him.
 Five minutes later Amanda Jane recovered consciousness. She was lying on the lounge in her sitting room, and Mr. Perry Chase Perry was bathing her face with camphor brought in by a tenant—bathing her face with a mother's care and saying to the other: "Poor girl! if she dies I can never forgive myself!"
 "My cat!" exclaimed Amanda Jane, as she sat up.
 "Dead, and so is my bulldog!"
 "But you—you—"
 "I rushed up here without a second's delay."
 "But your dog?"
 "What is the welfare of a bulldog compared to that of a lady?"
 "You are so kind!" sighed Amanda Jane as she let him hold her hand.
 Three evenings later, as one fire escape held both people, that same woman looked out of her window again and saw them and drew back to smile and say:
 "I know they could fall in love, and they have. Why folks can fall in love up a tree if they only make up their minds to it!"

Unfortunate English.

Motor Car Jumps Three Feet.

Fact.
 Opportunity knocks but once; and nine times out of ten, she knocks you so hard that you have to spend the rest of your life squaring yourself with all of your friends.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Home Happiness.
 Probably sixteen-twentieths of the happiness you will ever have, you will get at home. The independence that comes to a man when he works in a city, and the feeling that he has run out of the storm into the quiet harbor of home, where he can rest in peace and with his family, is something real.

Specialists Recommend Yawning.
 In the opinion of learned specialists no one can be healthy unless he or she does a certain amount of yawning. When you yawn you expel from the lungs a lot of superfluous air, breathing muscles of both the chest and the throat are strengthened by yawning.

Certain Old School Books.
 The state board urges that all old school books be sterilized and told how it can be done to the damage of the bacteria, but not to the books. We suppose it is right. It is better that children live healthfully than that some lion honored an institution as the combination school book and towel survive.—Toledo Blade.

Thought His Duty Ended.
 The Duc de Ragusa once explained to the Countess de Dook the nature of his connection with the emperor as follows: "When the emperor said, 'All for France, I served with enthusiasm; when he said, 'France and I, I served with obedience; but when he said, 'I without France, I felt the necessity of separating from him."

Dick's Appreciate Whitman's.
 Shortly after Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass" made its appearance, J. T. Trowbridge was walking with Lowell in Cambridge, when the latter pointed out a doorway sign, "Groceries," with the letters set in zig-zag to produce a bizarre effect. "That," said he, "is Walt Whitman—with very common goods inside."

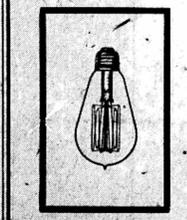

Still at It.
 "I wonder what has become of my husband. Three days ago I sent him to match a sample at a department store. He hasn't been seen since." "I saw him yesterday. He was at the third corner of the fourteenth aisle, and was just starting for the fourteenth corner of the third aisle."—Washington Herald.

Guess Either Way.
 A machine operable from either end, like a street car, has been introduced in England, and it is probable that the street car will make its appearance on London streets in a short time. The bus is steerable from either end, and when it is desired to proceed in the reverse direction, it is only necessary for the driver and conductor to change places.

Wine Destroyer Method.
 It is said that the following will destroy moths, eggs and larvae in a closet: Place a brick on the floor of the closet, and on this a tin of lemon juice. Heat a brick until it becomes very hot and then put it in the pan. Pour hot, strong vinegar on this brick. Shut down the door and keep it closed for 15 hours. The vapor from the vinegar will kill any live thing that may be in the closet.

Explosion.
 A man slightly under the influence of liquor straggled into the art gallery, stumbled about aimlessly for a while and returned home in the best of his mind. He had been told that he should not drink, but he had not listened to it. He reported the accident to the police and was taken to a hospital. When he was taken to a hospital, he was found to be in a very bad way. He was taken to a hospital, and he was found to be in a very bad way. ARE ONLY WON BY PATIENCE

Things Best Worth Having in Life Belong to Those Who Can Wait to Conquer.

It is always costly to raise money on expectations. It is the same with many advantages we secure in life. We saddle the future with the impatience of today, because we are too impatient to wait. It is patience that brings up whatever is best worth having. Mature skill and strength of character are won by waiting. They cannot be forced up in a day. It is the mature man who comes and sees and conquers, because he has ripened and is ready for action. The man who fails is almost always the man who has not been patient.

At it seems faire counsel to advise people to wait. The young especially are apt to think that they can go forth and possess the world. They believe in a sudden raid, a quick seizure. They think it both tedious and weak to do. They tell themselves that success is for him who can grasp it. They reach for it too eagerly and fall heavily to earth.

It is never wise to envy another person the things that are won easily. If we covet anything at all, it should be those things that are won with slow patience, fruits of ripe and mature growth, fabrics raised carefully on a secure foundation. These things, though they may well cover them, are the gifts that we may all win. They may be difficult, but they are always possible. Patience is their condition, and patience is their proportion in their value. Being worth much, they cost much, and yet their price is always within our means.—Arthur S. Salmon.

WHY ERMINE FUR IS COSTLY

Process of Trapping the Animal is Peculiar One, and Entails Hardship on the Trapper.

"This stole of imperial ermine is worth $1,000," said the dealer. "Dear! Nix. Just consider how the animals comprised in it were caught!"

"In the first place, they were caught in a winter of extreme cold, for it is only in such a winter that the weasel, or ermine, turns from tawny to snow white. In normal winters the ermine only turns to a greenish white—the blue 400 greenish white stole here."

"In the second place, the ermine were caught young; for, when fully developed, their coat is coarse and stiff—so in this 400 stole—and to catch them young, the tongue trap must be used. Any other trap would tear the delicate fur."

"The tongue trap is a snare, an ordinary hunting-knife smeared with grease, that the hunter lays in the snow. The little ermine sees the sticky bait and goes to catch it. It licks it—and so it takes the knife blade—and it caught that, its tongue is that now swollen, frozen to the steel."

"Yes, when you see a male like this, don't begrudge a good price for it; for every ermine in it was trapped in outdoor weather, a slightly slow and painful death process."

Billy Thompson. One principal point of good breeding is to not our behavior to the three cardinal virtues of nature—patience, courage and endurance.

GIVES BACK WHAT IS GIVEN

Life, in the Main, is Just and Almost Inevitably Returns Good for Good.

The echo is the principle of life. You get back from the world the measure you give it. Whether this be any other truth is true in all particulars; very often you receive evil for your good and good for your evil. The more you give, the more you receive. Justice is returns for your deeds honest and well meant, but like all truths it is true in general.

In fact, the essence of every truth is a generalization which the mind is able to pick from a mass of confusing particulars.

Is it a cold, hard-hearted, unfeeling world to you? Then I very much fear that you have given to it a selfish, narrow, egotistic heart.

Is it a tedious, unprofitable sort of place, and do you find men and women as a rule just and kindly disposed? You must have been yourself an honest and generous nature.

Have you had days when everything seemed to go wrong? You said you must have gotten out of bed with the wrong foot first. You have found your feet underfoot, your fingers have been all thumbs, and everyone about you has seemed smitten with the grouch.

In all this you have been but seeing yourself as in a glass. It is your ugly mood that dims the shining surface of a really pleasant world.

Nothing is so unerring as the total universe. Time and nature seem now and then slipshod, and do things unjust and uncalled for, but they always make it up in the long run and pay every soul back a hundred cents on the dollar.—Woman's World.

Difference. The only difference between a caprice and a life-long passion is that the caprice lasts a little longer.—The Tattler.

Always There. A New York theatrical man is advertising for a most beautiful woman in the world, as if every musical show present agent didn't claim that she was in the front row of the chorus.—Detroit Free Press.

To Sterilize Cistern Water. Cistern water can be thoroughly sterilized by the addition of one-tenth of a grain of hypochlorite of lime to the gallon. This does not injure the water for laundry and bathing purposes.
