AT THE CHICAGO THEATRES

FINE ARTS.

"Hindle Wakes" at the Fine Arts theatre, is arousing as much discussion in Chicago as it did in London during its run there. This four-act play by Stanley Houghton tells the story of a girl who becomes temporarily infatuated with a wealthy young man and runs off to spend a week-end with him. Her parents find out about the escapade and are determined that the young man shall marry her to save her reputation. The boy's father, the rich mill owner, likewise decides that his son shall wed the girl and the young man himself finally consents. At this point, skillful and thrillingly worked up to through three acts, the girl herself takes a hand.

She points-blank refuses to wed Alan Jeffcoat and sounds a clarion note for her sex. She dauntlessly declares that woman has as much right to happiness as a man and that she will not marry simply because she has been out on a limb with him. Her stand is a shock to every character in the play and the audience listens almost breathlessly while she delivers her views on the subject of woman's rights in the game of love.

The performance of Emille Polini as Fanny, the girl, and that of Herbert Luma, as old Jeffcoat, the father of the boy, help to make the play one of the most notable that has been seen in Chicago in a long time.

The terms of these auctions are all alike: 6 months at 6 per cent. on sums over $10.

We're going to send ten farmers to Bitter Root Valley. They must be married and the larger the families they have the better. They must be honest, industrious and have practical knowledge of farming. These 10 families will be placed on farms of their own that can be paid for out of the earnings and will be given good wages to help take care of our commercial orchards. This is the "poor man's chance." He will have every opportunity to make fortune in a few years on land good as can be found anywhere—land that will be worth $1.00 per acre when he gets it under cultivation, land that will net him $200 to $300 per acre every year in fruits and vegetables. You will need only a small capital to start with. You can pay for your farm land out of the profits after the second year. Remember we can send only seed 10 families, so write at once, if you think you can qualify. This is "The Poor Man's Chance." O. W. Kerr Company, 300 Andrus Building, Minneapolis, Minnesota.
