The Frauenverein of St. Paul's church will hold a home-baking sale next Saturday afternoon, commencing at three o'clock. Many women will welcome the chance to secure some of their good breads and pickery and they should have a good patronage.

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Prouty gave a party at their home Friday in honor of Mr. Prouty's mother, Mrs. Kate Prouty, who celebrated her eighty-first birthday anniversary that date. About 25 friends and relatives were present to extend congratulations.

NEWS OF THE FARM AND DAIRY

Notes of Comment and Interest to Local Agriculturalists and Milk Producers.

The local branch of the Milk Producers' association will hold a meeting at the village hall next Monday, commencing at 10 o'clock. V. S. Lumley of Woodstock will address the meeting. An invitation is extended to every milk producer.

From surrounding villages and farming communities comes reports of many interesting and instructive farmers' institute meetings. Barrington has, in former years, had one or more such meetings; why has it not been so favored this year? "Scientific farming" may be all fold-over but it seems to be quite popular, and profitable, in neighboring communities and these meetings are surely worth the attention of every agriculturalist and dairyman.

Deserved Better Audience.

The eighteen boys who are members of the high school band were quite disappointed with the attendance at their concert in the high school assembly room last Thursday evening. Any sum which might have been realized would have been spent for articles to be used in connection with the manual training course, but there was no surplus for the few dollars taken in. The first, public appearance of the band had to be in meeting a few expenses incurred. These young fellows should be better patronized as they play well and are earnestly trying to perfect their work so that they may further assume the public. A program of twelve numbers was given. A "TRIP AROUND THE WORLD"

Novel and Interesting Baptist Entertainment Friday Evening Was Well Patronized.

About 125 Barrington citizens went "abroad" last Friday night for 25 cents on a trip arranged by the Young People's Social Union of the Baptist church. They visited four countries and traveled in four parties, sailing on the "Callow motor truck" line, with Arnett Lines and Roy Loomis as couriers, and so genuinely a good time passed that the tourists are still talking of "when I was in Europe."

The church basement was converted into a depot with American features, such as a pile and coffee counter with Walter Banks, Edward Smith and Ralph Winegar as chefs, a ready booth managed by the Misses Catlow and Mabel Peck, a fortune teller, Mrs. Emily Hawley; and last but not least, a general factotum in the person of Jim Powers, who called trains, checked baggage, etc. Some of the church ladies, among them Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Winegar and Miss Tuttle, arrived in costumes depicting old travelers with fashions articles of baggage to check.

The first landing was "Kendall county," Ireland, where the home of the hostess had been transformed into the Emerald Isle in every green way imaginable, where Irish stew was served by three Irish beauties in green clothes, Mrs. Kendall, Mrs. Peck and Miss Elmore Arps, after entrance was granted at the door by a formidable "cop" with a tin star as big as a shield, who was only the mild and genial Tom Green, when recognized. A little apple woman, who looked like Mrs. Jennie Colekins, pleaded for patronage.

"Die Vaterland" was reproduced at Mrs. Albert Robertson's and was made especially interesting by the exhibition of German curios from the large and wonderful collection of George Frowlich, Sr. Mrs. F. T. Seaverns and the hostess, as "frauleins" offered a Dutch lunch of frankfurts, rye bread and coffee.

A Persian "belly-boo" man met the excursionists at the Holy Land, as the new vehicle abode in the Baptist church yard, were graciously called. He wore a red fez and a red flowing robe and but for his loud voiced advertising of his show might have resembled the dignified Baptist minister. Dr. C. E. Loomis, the stable of the birth place of the Christ child was presented here with the aid of someone's cow, a famous local jenny and its offspring which kept escaping from the show, interrupting the historical lecture being given by the Persians.

The home of Miss Viola Lines was a veritable Japanese bower of pink tissue cherries, blossoms and chrysanthemums with seemingly real Gaijins girls, who live among us as Mrs. Arnett Lines, Misses Viola Lines, Myrtle Plagge and Margaret Boehmer, in very pretty "Japanese" clothes. They served the travelers with tea, who to the absence of all seats were obliged to crouch on the floor, as is done in the Orient, much to the extreme discomfort of the "heavy weights."

It takes time and energy to make a success of such an affair and those working in its promotion are very glad of the result.

CAVALRY IN FRONT OF THE NATIONAL PALACE

MADERO'S REGIME SUCCEUMBS TO THE VICTORIOUS DIAZ

Mexican Executive and His Entire Cabinet Prisoners in the National Palace.

HUERTA HEAD OF STATE

More Than 2,000 Men Have Been Killed During the Week and Between 8,000 and 10,000. Mostly Non-Combatants. Were Wounded—News Please Taft. But Intervention Plans Will Proceed Until Peace Is Restored.

Mexico City, Feb. 19.—Gen. Victoriano Huerta was proclaimed provisional governor of Mexico Tuesday afternoon, following the imprisonment of President Madero in the National palace. The appointment followed a conference between representatives of Huerta and General Diaz. While no official announcement was made, this move marks the end of the civil war that has been waged in the capital for the last ten days. When it was learned that Huerta had been installed temporary head of the nation crowds began to gather on the streets shouting "vivas" for Huerta and Diaz.

The arrest of Madero came after a conference of several of Madero's military leaders and General Diaz, and other rebel officers. At the conclusion it was agreed that it was for the best interest of Mexico that Madero be forced out of the presidency. General Blanguet, who Monday was given command of the palace guard, was ordered to make the arrest.

About the time Madero was seized by Blanguet, his brother, Gustavo Madero, the former minister of finance, was arrested by General Huerta, who was dining with him in a public restaurant.

Ernesto Madero, uncle of the president, who held the portfolio of finance, managed to make his escape.

Agree to Stop Fighting. In consideration of the assistance of Madero's military leaders, the rebels agreed to stop fighting and support the selection of a loyal federal minister for provisional president. Diaz was writing that General Huerta, who has commanded the forces of the federal district since the uprising, be selected provisional president, pending the election of a chief executive to succeed Madero.

General Blanguet, as soon as the agreement was made, went to the palace and placed Madero under arrest.

John Connally was to have been married to Miss Nellie Lamhart at River, and later after the hour and the wedding guests retired much excited by his absence. "I know if he is living he will come to me," said the bride, a couple of days later the mystery of Connally's absence was explained by the finding of his body at the top of Spruce mountain. He was in a severe crisis.

and placed Madero under arrest. Madero made no resistance, as all the troops were commanded by Blanguet. President Madero and his entire family were guaranteed protection, both as to person and property. It was explained to him that the steps taken were necessary to prevent intervention by the United States in Mexico; that intervention was bound to come sooner or later if the fighting which the Mexican capital was expecting continued.

Notwithstanding the fact that some definite action was expected, the coup d'etat at the palace caused a sensation and the exact status of affairs could not be ascertained for several hours.

Movement Result of Plot. The movement against Madero was the result of a plot which had been brewing since Monday, and which possibly existed with Blanguet for a much greater length of time.

From the first it had been known that General Blanguet was unwilling to fight. His men were of the same mind. He held complete command over them, and it was not doubted that they would follow him in any adventure, which they did at the National palace.

The lancers, numbering 1,000 men, which arrived late Monday, were sent immediately to the palace, ostensibly to relieve the reserves there. The reserves were sent into the field.

An agreement between Generals Blanguet and Huerta was reached Monday night, but the first intimation that Blanguet's men had of the new role they were to play was shortly before the successful stroke was made. Blanguet drew his men up in order and delivered a stirring speech.

"This lancers battle must end," he said. "The time has come when some drastic means must be taken to stop a conflict in which father is killing son and brother is fighting against brother; when noncombatants are sharing the fate of war—and all this because of the caprice of one man."

Blanguet then issued orders for the arrest of the president and assigned a detachment to that duty. Madero was soon a prisoner in his own rooms. The soldiers given for the arrest of General Blanguet from the beginning was the presence of his son in the ranks of Diaz.

Estimate 2,000 Dead. Estimates based on reports of scores of officers of the White and Red Cross societies place the number of dead in the city at 2,000 and the wounded at from 8,000 to 10,000. How many of the wounded are bleeding and starving to death in dingy doorways and cellars to which they crawled cannot be told.

Many homes are believed to be sepulchers for whole families. Only a sickening stench tells the gruesome sights which these houses must contain, for there has been no effort to clean them, under existing conditions, to seek out the dead and account for missing names.

STRIKE IS AVERTED

ROAD MANAGERS AGREE TO ARBITRATION UNDER THE ERDMAN ACT.

LAW AND PUBLIC IS BLAMED

Rail Heads Declare That Their Only Reason for Yielding to the Men Was That the People Would Not Tolerate a Walkout.

New York, Feb. 20.—The proposed strike of 30,000 firemen on the eastern railroads will not occur. The railroads yielded Tuesday and agreed to arbitrate under the Erdman act, a controversy with the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers. The firemen had stood to a man for the method of arbitration over the strike the deadlock began. The railroads had stood firm for arbitration before commission of six or seven men. Three men, acting under the law, will decide the firemen's claims. Their decision will be binding.

The firemen selected their representative on the board of arbitrators as soon as the railroads' decision was announced. He is Albert Phillips of Sacramento, Cal., vice-president of their organization. The railroads selected as their man W. W. Atterbury, vice-president and general manager of the Pennsylvania lines east. These two will select the third or neutral member. Within thirty days the arbitrators must render their findings.

Judge Martin A. Knapp of the United States conference court and C. W. Hanger, acting federal commissioner of labor, acting as mediators under the Erdman act, at the firemen's request, conducted the negotiations which resulted in the agreement to arbitrate.

Throughout the mediation proceeding the railroads managers bitterly opposed arbitration. They felt that the Erdman act, on the ground it was unfair to place so much responsibility on the shoulders of the odd man on the board. They vehemently protested in giving ground and declared that their only reason for yielding was that the public would not tolerate a strike.

The firemen themselves admit the defects of the Erdman act, and while the present dispute will be settled under the existing law, afterward the firemen's president, W. S. Carter, will meet with the heads of other railway organizations and representatives of the railroads to request congress to amend the law in certain respects.

POINCARÉ FRENCH PRESIDENT

Simple Ceremonies Mark Induction into Office of New Chief Executive—Much Enthusiasm.

Paris, France, Feb. 20.—The inauguration of Raymond Poincaré as president of the French republic, for a term of seven years, took place Tuesday with simple ceremonies. There was a great display of popular enthusiasm as the new chief executive proceeded to the palace of the Elysee to take office.

Premier Briand shortly after two o'clock in the afternoon called at the private residence of the president-elect. The two then proceeded in a four-horse open carriage, escorted by a regiment of Cuirassiers, through the Avenue du Hotel de Boulogne, the Avenue des Champs Elysees and the Avenue de Marigny to the palace.

In spite of poor weather the streets were lined with people. A school holiday had been proclaimed and most of the children were on hand to cheer and wave handkerchiefs and flags.

As the president-elect's carriage entered the courtyard of the palace a battalion of infantry came to salute, while the trumpeters played a fanfare. M. Poincaré, the retiring president, with Emile Loubet, the former living ex-president of the French republic, received M. Poincaré on the steps of the palace and walked with him to the reception hall, where M. Fallieres delivered a brief address, at the end of which he transferred the seals of office to M. Poincaré. The latter in a few remarks accepted the responsibility of his new post.

Two Months at Hard Work. London, Feb. 20.—H. W. Emerson, the militant suffragette of Jackson, Mich., who has been carrying on a campaign of window smashing with Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, was arrested again Tuesday and sentenced to a term of two months' hard labor by the police magistrate before whom she was taken. Miss Pankhurst was arrested at the same time and received the same sentence.

Yale Defeats Southern Team. New Haven, Conn., Feb. 20.—Yale defeated Washington and Lee, the southern basketball champions, 33 to 15, Tuesday, leading from the start and having the margin wide when the final period closed with Yale ahead, 30 to 7.

HOW MRS. BROWN SUFFERED

During Change of Life—How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her a Well Woman.

Iola, Kansas.—"During the Change of Life I was sick for two years. Before I took your medicine I could not bear the weight of my clothes and was distressed very badly. I doctored with three doctors but they did me no good. They said nature must have its way. My sister advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I purchased a bottle. Before it was gone the bloating left me and I was not so sore. I continued taking it until I had taken twelve bottles. Now I am stronger than I have been for years and can do all my work, even the washing. Your medicine is worth its weight in gold. I cannot praise it enough. If more women would take your medicine there would be more healthy women. You may use this letter for the good of others."—Mrs. D. H. Brown, 809 N. Walnut St., Iola, Kan.

Change of Life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

WILLING TO TRY.

Mrs. Youngblood—No one can ever take the place of my dear dead husband.

George—Why—er—er—I was going to suggest that I take his place.

Similar Position. Little Robert was much interested in the picture of a stork which he saw in a magazine.

"Say, mamma," he asked, "what has become of the bird's other leg?" "It has raised it up among its feathers," replied the mother.

"That's funny," the boy observed. "I thought it was trying to clean its shoe on its stocking like sister Ethel does."

AS TO FLAVOUR. Found Her Favourite Again.

A bright young lady tells how she came to be acutely sensitive as to the taste of coffee:

"My health had been very poor for several years," she says. "I loved coffee and drank it for breakfast, but only learned by accident, as it were, that it was the cause of the constant dreadful headaches from which I suffered every day, and of the nervousness that drove sleep from my pillow and so degraded my stomach that everything I ate gave me acute pain. (Tee is just as injurious, because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.)"

"My condition finally got so serious that I was advised by my doctor to go to a hospital. There they gave me what I supposed was coffee, and I thought it was the best I ever drank, but I have since learned it was Postum. I gained rapidly and came home four weeks later."

"Somehow the coffee we used at home didn't taste right when I got back. I tried various kinds, but none tasted as good as that drink in the hospital, and all brought back the dreadful headaches and the 'sick-all-over' feeling."

"One day I got a package of Postum, and the first taste of it I took, I said 'that's the good coffee I had in the hospital.' I have drunk it ever since, and eat Grape-Nuts for breakfast. I have no more headaches, and feel better than I have for years." Name given upon request. Read the famous little book "The Road to Wellville," in plain "There's a reason."

Postum now comes in concentrated, powder form, called Instant Postum. It is prepared by stirring a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water, adding sugar to taste, and enough cream to bring the color to golden brown.

Instant Postum is convenient; there's no waste; and the flavor is always uniform. Sold by grocers—45¢ to 50¢ per tin. 25¢ to 30¢ per cup.

TRIANGLE FIGHT ON

REPUBLICANS AND DEMOCRATS FOLLOWING EXAMPLE OF THE PROGRESSIVES.

START IN CAMPAIGN OF 1914

Opening of Democratic Headquarters Delayed Until Mr. Wilson Makes His Appointment—G. O. P. Leaders Still Hope for Amalgamation.

By GEORGE CLINTON.
Washington.—Beginning not later than the first week in April, the campaign of three parties for the control of the next house of representatives will be in full progress. There will be no halting, it is promised, at the time of the 1914 elections, for it is the intention of the three political organizations to keep up the fight till the successor to Woodrow Wilson is chosen in 1916.

At the time the plans of the Progressive party and the details of its campaign beginning were given in these dispatches recently it was intimated that the Democrats and the Republicans might be heard from in a few days. Now it is fully ascertained that the Democrats and the Republican parties are to follow the early example of the Progressive party in starting its campaign, and each of the older parties hopes that it may profit thereby.

The Republican leaders have just announced that headquarters shortly will be opened in the city of Washington and that the endeavor will be to "readjust matters" and to put the organization into fighting condition for the battle of 1914.

The Democrats have not yet made public announcement but your correspondent is able to give their plans. The Democratic national committee will be called to meet in Washington just prior to the inauguration of President-elect Wilson. While here the members of the committee, after a conference with Mr. Wilson, will appoint four or five men to act as leaders of a campaign which shall be continuous from now until the presidential election of 1916, the first 18 months to be given over largely to efforts to make sure that in 1914 the party shall re-grip its present majority in the house of representatives.

The Democrats intend to have their headquarters in New York, but already they are planning to have an auxiliary office in Washington for the purpose of giving immediate and direct publicity to such national legislative action as they think will appeal to the people in behalf of continued Democratic rule.

Wait for Wilson Appointments.

It is known that the Democrats would like to open headquarters at once, but they are held from so doing by a curious and interesting fact. They do not know what Mr. Wilson intends to appoint to office. It is impossible for the Democrats today to ask any man of political prominence and of known campaigning strength to agree to take the post of campaign leader. There are four or five men who are looked upon by their party colleagues as eminently fit in a militant and strategic way to meet the leaders of Progressivism and Republicanism in the field, but the fear, or if not fear the belief, is that most of these men will be given government places by Mr. Wilson, which will keep them from giving anything but counsel to the chiefs of the active political organization.

The Republicans closed their Washington office some time ago and it was thought that it might not be reopened for a long time, but the leaders of the party realized that the closing of the office might be construed as an act of hopelessness. Militant counsel has prevailed and the Republicans are to get into the triangular fight which many of them hope, if only a few of them believe, may lose its angles before long, the field becoming a scene of battle with two lines of fighting men opposing each other. That is, the Republicans continue to hope that some sort of an arrangement can be made by which the Progressives can be brought back into the ranks.

The Republican leaders who talk with the Progressive leaders are convinced that there is no hope of any such amalgamation unless the Republican leader comes from Republicanism. The Progressive campaign already is on. Progressive political clubs, Progressive service clubs and Progressive social clubs are in process of forming all over the United States.

Forming Tariff Bills.

The Democratic majority of the ways and means committee is fast at work on the tariff bill which will be introduced at the next session. When Congress gets together again there will be a large number of the tariff bills and means committee, and of course they will be considered about the bills prepared by their brethren of the House and the Senate. The majority of the present committee will be the prevailing majority of the next session, and so the bills which are now being prepared are likely to be the ones to be introduced at the next session.

The hearings opened in the upper house and committee on the tariff bill which will be introduced at the next session. The committee will be made up of the Progressive and the Republican members of the House and the Senate.

on the work of framing the bill. One thing can be said for the members. They rarely give the seat of attention to everybody who cared to open his mouth to speak for or against any schedule.

It seems now that the net result of the hearings will be that the Underwood bill of the last session, virtually in the form in which they were then presented, again will be given the honor for consideration, and later will be sent to the Senate to run a course of tariff and free trade criticism. It is said by men in Congress, Democrats and Republicans alike, that Underwood expects his bills after the Senate has considered them will come back to him considerably disfigured.

Much Depends on Wilson.
The bills will be passed by the House unquestionably almost as Mr. Underwood, in behalf of his committee, presents them, and just how much punishment they will undergo at the hands of the Senate Democratic conservatives, aided perhaps by some of the high tariff Republicans, depends on the intention of the President. Underwood expects his bills after the Senate has considered them will come back to him considerably disfigured.

The wool bill which will go over to the Senate probably will be the wool bill of last session. The House measure, however, was not the one which was vetoed by President Taft. Some of the Progressive-Republican bills in the Senate antagonized the bill in its presented form and were added in their antagonism by some of the Democratic senators who thought Mr. Underwood's bill made cuts in the rates which were too deep. The President therefore, did not veto Mr. Underwood's bill. His veto would have been called the Senate bill, and the Senate at the extra session shall insist upon a compromise. Mr. Wilson will be called upon to sign a wool bill which will be called the bill of Underwood, but will bear the secret mark of some senator who succeeded in effecting a compromise.

Rockefeller Plan Favored.
It seems to be the general belief in Washington that the Senate will pass and the President will sign the bill recently sanctioned by the House of Representatives for the incorporation of what is known as the Rockefeller Foundation. There was opposition to the incorporation of the Rockefeller Foundation in 1914 and it was thought at one time that the representatives would fail to sanction it, but a change suddenly came over their temper and the bill went through by an entirely unexpected majority. It is now for the Senate and the President to act.

As the country knows, Mr. Rockefeller wants the national legislature to incorporate this foundation which he has established in order that it may do its work with the government and the back of its endeavor. The proponents of incorporation say that the good which will come from the expenditure of Mr. Rockefeller's millions along the proposed lines cannot be measured. They say that the government is not committed to anything except an act of incorporation and that there can be no real opposition except that which leans on what they call false sentiment. There are other views on this question of the faith of sentiment, but inasmuch as the measure has been approved by a House which supposedly was hostile, it seems likely that the Senate, supposedly less hostile, will give its sanction and that Mr. Taft will give his signature.

Crusade Against Hookworm.
The moment that the Rockefeller Foundation bill becomes a law, the incorporators will announce the entrance upon a field of labor which they say, if fully understood by the lawmakers today, would furnish a powerful argument for the proposed incorporation. The Rockefeller money is to be used in part for a world-wide crusade against the hookworm disease. The Rockefeller sanitary commission is prepared for the crusade and it is said that the only thing new lacking to make the work a success is the assurance of that prestige in foreign countries which nothing can give except incorporation papers sanctioned by the Congress and the President of the United States.

The Rockefeller sanitary commission has been co-operating with the department of state to the extent of communicating with the American representatives in all foreign countries asking for information on the hookworm subject. Letters have been written to physicians and public health authorities in foreign lands and the reports received have been appended by reference to the material on file in the Surgeon General's office in Washington.

This preliminary inquiry has shown that the hookworm infection is widespread in forty-two foreign countries, including an area of 14,000,000 square miles and 919,000,000 inhabitants. The countries include Italy, India, Australia, British East Africa, Egypt, Persia, Russia, Persia, and the United States. The Rockefeller sanitary commission has been co-operating with the department of state to the extent of communicating with the American representatives in all foreign countries asking for information on the hookworm subject.

The claim is that if Mr. Rockefeller is allowed to use his money in the United States of service in the United States of the hookworm disease, something like 50 per cent of added energy and efficiency in all working conditions will be the result. The Rockefeller sanitary commission has been co-operating with the department of state to the extent of communicating with the American representatives in all foreign countries asking for information on the hookworm subject.

FACING A CRISIS

How Bank Was Saved in Face of Frank Mob of Depositors.

By GEORGE ELMER COBB.

Randal Webster, the young and handsome president of the Bank of Greenville, opened the door of his private office. He glanced into the counting room and beyond it to the jostling crowds in the street outside. Then with a groan he sank to a chair, the picture of despairing misery. "It has come," he told himself in a harsh, racking whisper—"the worst, the end!"

There came a tap at the door. The young financier sprang to his feet. A brief, vague hope gave him momentary energy. Then his soul seemed to die within him, as his cashier entered the room with a face blanched and fear-crossed as his own. "Any word?" projected Webster, hoarsely.

"None," Mr. Webster, we must face the crisis, the word of rumor as to the solvency of the institution have got abroad. A mob of depositors from the mills is in front of the bank. They are crowding up and demanding what they want. There is no promise what they want. They are not paid their money. It is not paid them promptly."

"Impossible!" gasped Webster. "No one knows that better than myself," responded the cashier in a low tone. "There is no promise what they want. They are not paid their money. It is not paid them promptly."

"How much is there in the bank ready cash?" "Less than $10,000."

"Pay it out to the last dollar as slowly as you can. If we can tide over for a few hours the expected help may come."

"And if it does not—and when the money gives out?" questioned the cashier, fearfully.

"Put up your hand close the bank," Left to himself, the young banker reviewed the situation. Energetic, impetuous, ambitious, he had gone beyond his depth in an investment sure to turn out profitable in the end. A temporary complication, however, had tied it up. He could not realize in ready cash under a week. A heavy draft came upon the surplus funds, depleting the bank reserve to a dangerously low figure. Somehow a report of all this got out. The report was current that the bank was going to fail. Result? A mob of frightened depositors now clamoring at the great locked doors.

Webster had sent a trusted employee out to the bank to rich relatives in the city. He carried an urgent appeal for aid. The messenger had not reported. A graver shade of feeling covered the features of the young financier as he thought of the one dearest to him in all the world—Ethel Morris. They were to have been wedded in a month, but if it came to this—then Webster would know her proud, exclusive family would scarcely favor a discredited bankrupt. It was a frightful fight for business preservation and love.

Webster hurried into the counting room as a great outcry arose. He hoped it was his messenger arriving. Indeed, it was. He had but five minutes of ten. A remarkable scene greeted his sight.

A white-haired, farmer-looking man sat slumped in the counting room. He was waving a great bundle of bank notes in one hand. There was a cheer. In his other hand the stranger carried an old-fashioned revolver. With it was now pointed on the door.

"Let me in. I must get in!" the so-called Webster heard his shout out and then the man sprang forward. "Don't get nervous, Randal Webster is an honest man, and the Bank of Greenville is solid as a rock!"

"Why, I can't say that I do," was the hesitating reply. "Never mind, I've changed. Had to, under the circumstances. 'See here,' and he began to bring from his pockets bundle after bundle of bank notes. 'There's $20,000. Use it.'"

"But, my dear sir—" began the bewildered cashier.

"Use it, I said, didn't I interrupt the cashier's monologue?"

"But we have no right; the condition of the bank is in—"

"I know all about your worry here. It won't last. Keep the crowd goodnatured. Pay them off as fast as you can. The run will soon stop."

Then he lifted the matchbox. "As it opened, the startled cashier, used as he was to the sight of money, uttered a great cry. The man piled up bundles after bundles of crisp green bank notes."

"Shove them up against the glass where they will show," ordered the stranger. "You won't pay out any of this. You won't touch it. That pile, the real cash paid out right along, will soon take that unruly mob."

"How could you?" exclaimed the dumfounded cashier. "Open up!"

The stranger drew to one side, as if enjoying the scene. The astounded cashier was soon too busy to notice him. The mob of depositors, however, everybody was paid promptly. The sight of the great bundles of bills began to have an effect. Some, ashamed, recognized their money. Others, catching the infection of restored confidence, did not ask for their money at all. Within an hour the news went out that the bank was saved.

With a great sigh of relief Randal Webster beckoned the stranger into his private room.

"Thank you," he said, "what does this all mean?"

The stranger laughed. Then he seized the banker's hand in a friendly grip.

"Don't you know me, eh?" he said. "Well, I'm bringing you back some of the bread you cast upon the waters five years ago."

"I don't understand you," murmured the puzzled banker.

"You was a lawyer then, and you defended a man who was a member of a gang of counterfeiters. Now do you remember?"

"Why, yes," answered Webster, slowly.

"My name was Dallas—now I've changed it. You got me free, you gave me a great lecture. It was my life chance, and I improved it. I went to my folks fifty miles from here. A relative left me a fortune. I have kept track of you. I heard of your trouble."

"You have saved the bank!" cried the grateful Webster.

"The gang believed a large amount of their counterfeiters destroyed. I was the satchel containing them. I went on the man. 'I buried it. That show money I took from the satchel is counterfeit. The real money I drew from my bank today is loan to you. You will turn the counterfeiters, now they have served their purpose.'"

An hour later the bank messenger came with the good news. He showed Webster plenty of money to safely die the bank over.

Webster paid back his grateful friend in need. He did not tell even the bank's own clerk of his heart, however, he fervently cherished the gratitude of the returned criminal who had saved the bank at a critical juncture.

NEWS OF ILLINOIS

Quincy.—Fire destroyed the property of the Bloomer & Michael Packing company, entailing a loss of nearly $100,000. The origin is not known. The loss to the stock is about $100,000. The concern has been located in Quincy for years and was one of the largest in the middle west. Bernard Baker, a watchman, was overcome and is in a serious condition.

Joliet.—Two men, who were smothered in flames, may die as the result of an explosion in the plant of the Western United Gas and Electric company. The injured, Henry Berg, face and hands badly burned, may lose both eyes if he recovers; Judah Buterbach, foreman, face and hands burned, internal organs feared. Both lived at 825 North Hurst street, Joliet. They were about to clean a pipe supplying gas to the ovens when the gas leaked out and had taken off a cap. Berg went too fast, for the gas ignited and the explosion threw him to the ground unconscious. Buterbach, who tried to stop the flow with his hand, was also overcome instantly.

Springfield.—Lieutenant Governor O'Hara announced the appointment of Senators Beall and Juhl, Republicans, and Woodard and Toesey, Democrats, as members of the committee authorized by the Senate to investigate the white slave traffic in Illinois. Mr. O'Hara will act as chairman. The committee is instructed to make its report at the next regular session of the legislature two years hence.

Springfield.—The supreme court denied the petition for a writ of habeas corpus of William J. Joliet, who is serving a term in the penitentiary at Joliet for murder.

Monier, who is a professional hunter and trapper, was out chasing raccoons and with the aid of his dogs managed to kill one of the animals. He chased the coon into a hole in a large tree and then lit a fire at the root. The tree burned through while Monier was watching for the coon to come out, the trunk falling upon his head and killing him almost instantly.

TRUCK GARDENING AND POULTRY RAISING

THESE, AS WELL AS OTHER MIXED FARMING BRANCHES, PAY IN WESTERN CANADA.

Truck gardening and poultry growing are two branches of agriculture in which the farmers near the main lines of the three transcontinental lines traversing Western Canada are much concerned. The abundance of sunshine during the long days from June to September, and adequate moisture in the spring and early summer permit of a wide variety of crops. The soil is rich and warm and is easily worked. Close attention to cultivation has resulted in record yields of all sorts of vegetable and small fruits which bring good prices in the cities and at the numerous railway construction camps.

Mr. Harris Otam, an Alberta farmer, came from South Dakota eleven years ago and homesteaded the first 160 acres in his township in 1902, which was divided into grain and pasture. He earned sufficient money to buy a quarter section of railway land at $11 an acre. The half section netted proportionately and he gradually increased his holdings to 1,930 acres, which was devoted to mixed farming last year. He values his land at $50 an acre.

Mr. Otam markets from 100 to 125 hogs and a similar number of beef cattle each year. He has 100 hogs, mostly pure bred Poland China, 15 head draft horses and 35 head of pure bred Hereford cattle. By feeding barley to hogs he estimates that the grain nets him 80 cents a bushel, as compared with 40 cents, the average market price when delivered to the warehouse. His average crop of barley is 40 bushels to the acre, while oats average 30 bushels.

By writing an Canadian Government Agent, full particulars as to best districts on which to secure homesteads will be cheerfully given. Address: "The Canadian Government Agent, Ottawa, Ontario."

Model Boy Found.
William Allen White, the Kansas newspaper man, says that the model boy, so long sought by all Sunday school superintendents, has been found. The discovery was made quite by accident by a baseball fan while discussing with a class of ten-year-old boys, in Sunday school, the question of Sunday amusements.

"Now what is there a healthy boy can do on Sunday afternoon?" inquired the fan, blandly, even while his wayward thought dwelt on the fascinating baseball game. "What do you think, Henry?"

Without blinking an eyelid Henry replied, "Read the Bible and pray." "Heard's Magazine."

READING WISELY.

A good many people waste a good deal of the time that they devote to reading. They do not exercise discrimination in the selection of their reading matter, but spend much time reading frothy, sensational and meaningless stuff.

An evening's reading of this kind leaves the reader no wiser or better off than he was before. An evening of instructive reading would leave him with broader views and with a new idea stored away for future use. Instructive reading need not necessarily be "dry." The best weekly papers and magazines are coming to realize that their matter must be interesting as well as instructive, and are printing much valuable material that is as easy reading as one of the "six best sellers." The wise man reads to remember, to increase his store of knowledge and ideas, and to broaden his sympathies and his understanding, and reading matter which fulfills these requirements should be plentiful in every home.

PARCEL POST IMPROVEMENTS.

That the parcel post is "making good" there is no doubt, but its usefulness is more limited than was at first supposed because many of the rates are as high or higher than express rates, without giving service of equal quality, and restrictions on certain articles make it useless for many purposes. It is probable that these matters will be remedied, however. In fact, Postmaster General Hitchcock's annual report, recently made public, hints that changes are now under consideration. He tentatively suggests the reduction of some of the rates and the increasing of the limit of weight, and recommends the consolidation of the third and fourth classes so books and papers may be forwarded by parcel post.

This new method of transportation is sure to be useful and well patronized as soon as it is perfected and becomes familiar to the people.

Eating Sunflower Seeds.

Sunflower seed eating is the favorite holiday pastime of the Spanish Hebrews of the Levant. The kernel of the seed, which is about as large as a grain of rice, has a nutty, oily flavor, somewhat similar to raw peanuts. On Saturday, after synagogue, Hebrews all over the Orient are to be seen munching the sunflower seeds with gusto. The wealthier classes substitute the salted pistachio for the sunflower seed.

Couple Too Much Obscured.

An example of an absent-minded bridal pair is reported from Switzerland. A couple had arranged for their marriage by the civil and religious authorities failed to appear at the appointed hour, having as they declared, "forgotten all about it."

REFORMING OF A MAN

By GADSDEN KILLIAN.

Mrs. Lawrence came back from the woman's club with a firm determination that her husband should reform. This feeling had been aroused by a very remarkable paper by Sarah Jane Hutchinson of Boston, who had mapped out an elaborate system whereby husbands could be reduced to their proper subservient and helpful state in the household.

Mrs. Lawrence's husband's reform was to begin on Wednesday. Mrs. Lawrence wisely refrained from mentioning the fact to him. Sarah Jane Hutchinson had said that the more subtly one acted in the matter the better would be the results. Mrs. Lawrence was thankful that the prescription didn't call for an opening conversation with the patient. Her husband had a awful temper and he might not understand at first just how good the treatment was going to be for him.

The plan was going to be a very easy one to work. According to Sarah Jane Hutchinson, if the articles of wearing apparel which the husband flings about in the morning are left undisturbed until his return in the evening his chagrin and the effect upon his clothes will be so great that he will be a model of neatness from that time on.

Wednesday morning Lawrence strolled around the flat, the usual number of collars, neckties and shirts. He got out his necktie and umbrella and then, having decided that the day would be clear, took down his new fall topcoat. On discovering that the temperature was too high for this garment he dumped it into the Morris chair and made a hurried exit from the house, tossing a couple of soiled handkerchiefs on the divan as he went out of the door.

For the first time Mrs. Lawrence surveyed this scene with satisfaction. Nothing could be a better object lesson for her husband than the flat in its present condition. She decided to do the breakfast dishes and the leaving for her sister's house. She preferred that her husband should face the confusion alone on his return.

In the course of an hour she set about dressing for her visit. She had to put away some of the neckties in order to find her toilet articles. She was obliged to put the collars in the drawer so that she could make the bed. The clean shirt which had been rejected in favor of the one which Lawrence wore that morning could never be left on the window seat, for a shower might come up and soak them. The laundry was paid for out of the house pocketbook, and it wouldn't be good policy to be so extravagant in this reforming business. Before she realized it, the bedroom was quite neat and free from the original appearance of disorder. She unbraided herself and then reflected that the parlor and dining room would be bad enough to teach the desired lesson. She had to take the hat and raincoat off the sewing machine in order to sew up a rip in her skirt and really the safest thing to do was to hang them up to get them out of the way.

When she left the house there were just three of her husband's belongings still misplaced—the two handkerchiefs and the new topcoat. This last would be an awful example to him, for it was in a nice little heap in the seat of the chair and would wrinkle beautifully.

Mrs. Lawrence made a long day's visit and returned home at 6:30. In the evening, Lawrence was due home at 6 and his wife thought how touching the scene would be when James should take her in his arms and say: "Dearest, I see the error of my ways. Never again will I be so careless."

She didn't know whether to say, "Darling I forgive you as her heart would prompt her to do, or to remark coldly, 'I hope you will remember this lesson.'" As Sarah Jane Hutchinson had suggested.

She walked into their apartment and looked about anxiously. There wasn't a soul in sight. The coat was still in its reformatory heap. The mail was untouched. Evidently James had not returned! After all, it would be rather fun to see just how he took it.

At 7 o'clock she heard the familiar sound of the latch key in the door. Then he walked James with two members of the firm whom he had brought home to dinner.

Mrs. Lawrence was excited. She hurriedly made the Morris chair ready for the complaisant senior member and hung the new fall overcoat on the bed. James followed her into the kitchen and demanded a hurried dinner. He had to go that evening with the two men to put through an important business deal.

He rushed out after dinner with the men, and Mrs. Lawrence had the evening to herself. The coat worried her. Really, men have so much to do that it is hard for them to think of little things. She hung up the wrinkled garment patiently. The next morning she smuggled it down to the tailor's to be pressed, using the money that she had saved out for the mattress.

Lawrence never knew how narrowly he escaped being reform—Chicago Daily News.

Ready-Made vs. Tailor-Made Clothes

Of all the men in this world probably no two are exactly alike in physical proportion. Is it, then, any wonder that ready-made clothes, made to fit everyone in general, fit no one in particular? Our tailor-made suits—made to your exact measurements by expert workmen—are made to fit you alone, and they do fit you. Prices are not much higher than for ordinary ready-mades, and our "satisfaction or money back" guarantee insures honest fabrics and workmanship.

AMBITION TALKS

THE RECLUSE IS NOT USEFUL.
Speculation, philosophy and mountain-peak observations are splendid developments of thought—but thought until it culminates in action, generates no power.

The hermit lived away from mankind to devote their minds to heavenly contemplation. They evolved into what they started out to become—useless beings; powerless, because power is action.

The long-haired, gray-bearded solitary cannot love people, because he does not understand them.

He cannot mold what he does not touch; and hence his learning has no effect upon the world, for efforts and results are caused only by contact.

It is not knowledge that is necessary to be useful and to be useful is impossible to the recluse.

Progress depends upon the ability and willingness of those who know, to improve what is within by putting it on to those who do not know. The world's greatest are its teachers and every man who does not teach others is a failure. His knowledge also within him and others see him as a failure.

We appreciate the liberal patronage given us during the past three months. We have now planned a sort of a farewell Washington Birthday Celebration to last all the week, closing Saturday evening, February 22. Aside from the general stock we call special attention to an opportune purchase we made of 300 pieces of Old English Ware, consisting of cups, ladies, pudding pans, sauce pans, etc., which we offer at 5, 10 and 15 cents each. Another timely offering is a line of suspended porch settees and folding lawn settees. Those $1.50 Clipper ironing boards are now 90c. The stoves are nearly all sold, only two guaranteed cook stoves remaining which we will sell at $22.00 and $28.50. We cannot enumerate all the items. You must visit the store once more. As an extra special inducement we give with every purchase amounting to $1.00 or more a 25 cent bottle of Matchless Sanitary Cleaner ABSOLUTELY FREE. Plans for dredging the Fox river from Elgin through the northern chain of lakes and then, in Wisconsin, to Milwaukee, were discussed at a public improvement meeting at Elgin last week. The river, thus being made navigable for many miles would be valuable commercially and would be vastly improved for pleasure purposes. The Fox river passes through many villages and the scenery along its banks is unequalled. The project of dredging it has been discussed for several years and is finding favor in all the towns along the stream.

Recalling the pioneer days, when prairie fires were the terror of the early settlers, the combined fire departments of Wheaton and Glen Ellyn for two and one-half hours last Thursday fought a disastrous prairie fire. Nearly the whole main population of the latter village joined in fighting the flames which traveled for a distance of two miles, burning fences, barns, chicken houses and telegraph poles. Only by persistent efforts were they able to save the residences in the path of the fire, which was choked just a block from the dense forest between Chicago and the Fox river.

We're going to send ten farmers to Bitter Root Valley. They must be married and the larger the families they have the better. They must be honest, industrious and have practical knowledge of farming. These 10 families will be placed on farms of their own that can be paid for out of their earnings and will be given good wages to help take care of our commercial orchards. This is the "poor man's chance." He will have every opportunity to make a fortune in a few years. Own a good piece of land as big as anywhere—land that will be worth $1,000 per acre when he gets it under cultivation, land that will net him $200 to $300 per acre every year in fruit vegetables. You will need only a small capital to start with. You can pay for your farm land out of the profits after the second year. Remember we can send only 10 families, so write at once, if you think you can qualify. This is "The Poor Man's Chance." O. W. Keer Company, 200 Aldrich Building, Minneapolis, Minnesota.
