VOLUME 28, NUMBER 8

BARRINGTON, ILLINOIS, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1915

$1.50 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE

LOCAL POLITICS NOW COMMAND ATTENTION

Quiet Spring Elections are in Prospect—But Four Announcements Made Thus Far.

Barrington township primary March 14.
Cuba township primary, March 15.
Village primary, March 23, (probably 1).
Township election, April 1.
Village election, April 15.

The above are the political dates, outside of the regular school elections, of interest to local voters. The township primaries, coming first, are of first importance. In both Barrington and Cuba townships a highway commissioner, two justices and two constables are to be elected, while in Barrington township there is also a supervisor and school trustee and in Cuba a trustee commissioner to be elected. But three announcements have yet been made. William Gleske in Cuba township and George Humphrey in Barrington township, commissioners of highways whose terms expire this year, both being candidates for reelection, will in Cuba township John E. Cullon in opposition to William Gleske. It is generally understood that the present incumbents of the other offices expiring this year will also run again but none of them have made definite announcements as yet. All positions must be filed next week in order to have the names placed on the ballot.

In village affairs the first political announcement to be made this spring was that of George F. Atkins, who is a candidate for village trustee. There are three trustees and a president and police magistrate to be elected this year. Trustees Peters, Lageschulte and Hager are the trustees whose terms expire this spring. It is generally conceded that Mr. Atkins has a fair chance of election and it is possible that he will be without opposition at both Mr. Peters and Mr. Lageschulte have said that they are not particular about being returned to office this spring and none of the three out-going trustees have yet signified their intention to become candidates for reelection. Ernest C. Lines, who has been police magistrate for the last eight years will be a candidate to succeed himself and is yet without opposition.

The date of the village primary given above is only a guess. It will be fixed definitely at the March meeting of the board of trustees to be held next Monday evening.

As most of the important township officials hold-over this year, and there is little talk of opposition for other offices, it is quite apparent that all primary elections will be tame affairs this year.

Political notices and the announcements of all enterprising candidates will be found on page five of each issue of this paper. There is no way in which an applicant to public office can advertise his candidacy as well as through the columns of the local paper, and experienced politicians are not slow to recognize and take advantage of this fact.

CARY SKI TOURNAMENT SUNDAY

Recent Snow Enables Norge Ski Club of Chicago to Plan Annual Event at Cary Slope.

The Norge Ski club's international championship ski tournament, scheduled this year for January 28 at Walcott's hill, which is located just this side of Cary Station, and postponed on account of the lack of snow, will be held next Sunday, March 2.

Ragnar Omvred, the amateur who won third place at Cary last year, and won the world's championship at the meet at Ironwood, Michigan, a short time ago by a jump of 169 feet, will participate, competing with all the best ski runners of this and other countries.

The slide at Cary is one of the best in the country and the slide and hill will be in the best of condition for the meet, there being plenty of snow to cover well. For a time it was feared that three would not be a tournament at Cary this year, but the recent storm has made it possible to hold one to the great delight of all lovers of that exhilarating sport in Chicago and this vicinity, and a very large crowd is expected on Sunday.

There will be two classes, amateurs and professionals, and the Norge club is depending upon Omvred to repeat his former success and carry off the honors for the club.

SOIL EXPERT FOR LAKE COUNTY

Lake County Follows Lead of Other Up-to-date Agricultural Communities Near-by.

Plans are being made to secure the services of an agricultural and soil expert for Lake county, following the lead of DeKalb and McHenry counties. Farmers are commencing to realize the value of such experts and have been offered an excellent opportunity to secure one for Lake county by Samuel Insull, Armour, Swifts and other money men who have extensive realty holdings in that county. Samuel Insull of Libertyville, Ill. is reported, has promised to give $10,000 toward a fund to secure such an expert, providing the farmers in different parts of the county manifest interest enough to help a little.

It has been decided to lay plans at a banquet which soon is to be held at Gurnee, the date not having been set. At this banquet three farmers from each town in the county will be appointed to a special committee to make a personal canvass of all the farmers living in their own towns for the purpose of securing their signatures to a petition and also a donation of $5.00 from each farmer. Seven hundred signatures and donations of this kind are necessary before the soil expert can be secured.

SCHOOL NOTES

High School Valentine Party.
The postponed valentine party of the High School club was held Friday evening, February 21, and enjoyed by a large proportion of the membership in spite of the stormy night. The fun began with a hunt through the building for large red hearts from which the funder's fortune was learned. Then came a "back yard spell-down" in which Nettie Hillman, one of the captains, was successful. Several games appropriate to the holiday were played and the evening closed with light refreshments and music. The hard-working committee who carried out the affair deserve much appreciation.

High School Club Meeting.
Last Wednesday evening the High School club held the third meeting of the year. The meeting was called to order by the president, Marguerite Boehmer. Then followed roll call and the minutes of the previous meeting. After all of the business had been transacted, the program was opened with a duet by Ida and Louise Pedersen. The rest of the program consisted of a vocal solo by Irving Horn, an original essay by Mabel Landwer, a concert solo by Paul Thoren, and then a debating session. Lincoln did more for his country than Washington. The affirmative side, which was represented by May Calkins and Mabel Landwer, won. The speakers on the negative side were Irene Holmes, Norris Larson and Heube Aund. After the debate, a violin solo was given by Walter Nightingale and last but not least were renditions by the band. The club is divided into two parts; the captains are Nettie Hillman and Paul Thoren. Nettie's side received eighty-five points and Paul's side forty-nine.

High School Entertainment Course.
The fourth number of the entertainment course was given at the high school last Tuesday evening. The attraction for this evening was Charles Taggart, the trick violinist. His program consisted of readings, piano and violin selections, songs and ventriloquism. The first number, a reading entitled, "A session of a country school board," was full of humor and pleased the audience. The next selections were familiar classical piano solos and the other well known melodies illustrating such readings as a visit to the county fair. In an impromptu of an old Scotch "Bilder" many Scotch folk songs were given. "Trick violin playing" was another feature in which Mr. Taggart held and played his instrument in a variety of difficult positions. "The little man in the pants" caused much excitement and amusement especially among the children. A final number included imitations on the violin of human voices, Scotch bagpipes, a church organ and different bird songs. The entertainment was well attended and we hope to see as many at the final number to be given March 2.

Annual Meeting.
The annual meeting of the Barrington Mutual Quakers' association will be held at the M. E. church at Barrington Center on Monday, March 2, commencing at 1:30 p. m. The annual business of officers will take place and other business will be transacted.

NEWS OF THE FARM AND DAIRY

Notes of Comment and Interest to Local Agriculturalists and Milk Producers.

A goodly majority of the local dairymen gathered at the village hall last Monday morning to participate in the milk producers' meeting. The new secretary, Mr. Jack of Antioch, and Attorney V. S. Lumley of Woodstock made addresses. The price for the coming year was the chief subject for discussion and the general verdict seemed to be that the price suggested by the association, an average of 12 cents for the summer months, would have to be paid by the bottling company or there would be little milk.

Lewis M. Gross, owner of a dairy farm near Sycamore, does not think much of the Chicago health department and its imposition of dairies. Mr. Gross said in a letter to Health Commissioner Young: He suggested that the city take steps to clean its dirty streets, corral its auto bandits and rejuvenate its police force before it concerns itself with country life. He stated that the city milk inspectors are a lot of "ignoramuses."

STORM CAUSES ENORMOUS DAMAGE

The sleet storm of Friday caused much interference and trouble but did not cause the damage here that it did further south. Elgin was hit the worst and was completely cut off from the outside world Friday night and nearly all day Saturday! The telephone and telegraph companies, light and power lines and traction companies were all out of commission for nearly 24 hours, causing a great deal of inconvenience to the citizens of that city and a great deal of expense to the public service corporations. The Elgin manager of the Chicago Telephone company estimated the damage to that company in the Fox river valley alone at $1,000,000.

In Barrington many long telephone lines were out but long distance communication with Chicago was preserved. The train service was not greatly interrupted although the telegraph lines were in bad order. Linemen to the extent of 40 arrived here Monday from Rochester, New York, and were put to work repairing the long distance line from Chicago to St. Paul which runs east of this village, passing through Lake Zurich and Wauconda. The men stopped over night at the Commercial hotel, and Landford Lines managed to feed and house them all, although he was unprepared for their coming and his hotelery was already well filled, demonstrating his ability to cope with an emergency of this sort which would prove too much for many hotels in villages much larger than this.

Throughout Lake county many villages were almost entirely isolated. Libertyville and Wauconda were able to communicate with each other but with no other places. Waukegan was practically helpless for 18 hours. Telegraph communication north and south with the exception of one wire was cut off and about 150 telephones were out. Reports from other villages in Lake and McHenry counties and southern Wisconsin are to the same effect.

The snowfall was heavy during Friday and the change to sleet during the day caused the formation on the streets and sidewalks of a very sticky ice which made walking and driving very difficult, but which, now covered with the snow which fell Tuesday night and Wednesday, makes excellent sleighing, the first of the year in this vicinity.

OBITUARY.

CHARLES WESTPHAL.
Charles Westphal, a well known and well liked resident of this village, just in the prime of life, died Monday morning at three o'clock at the Sherman hospital, Elgin, following an operation for an abscess on the brain.

Mr. Westphal had been troubled for some time with an abscess over his left ear which affected his hearing and a while ago had an operation performed at the hospital. He received immediate relief and came home but soon had to be taken back and another operation was performed two weeks later Thursday. From Monday set in and the hopes for an early recovery lasted but a short time. The complication of disease proved too much for even his rugged health and he succumbed to spite of the efforts of physicians and nurses.

Charles Westphal was born in Germany April 23, 1873, and came to this country with his parents when he was a young child. He was married in August, 1896, to Miss Ida Schultz, divorced widow who survives him, and has since made his home in this village. He has been in the employ of the Chicago & North Western railroad company as a painter for a number of years, and had charge of a gang of painters at the time of his death. The departed leaves beside the widow, two sons, aged seven and ten years, two brothers, John of Chicago and Louis, who conducts the Pooson farm in Els township, two sisters, Mrs. Charles Horn of Chicago and Mrs. Edward Hanson of Barrington township, and an aged father.

The funeral was held yesterday afternoon at the Salem church, Rev. G. H. Stanger of St. Paul's church of this village, assisted by Rev. H. H. Thoren, conducted the ceremony, and the remains were interred in the St. Paul's cemetery. The pall bearers were Messrs. E. F. Wichman, L. W. Dooley, Nicholas Becherer, John Hatje, John Weikert, and Earl Schaefer. All the close friends of the deceased and members of the Barrington Post club of which he also was a member.

Huerta Issues Statement in Which He Declares That the Killing of Madero's Former Executive Heads Was Due to the Fact That an Attempt Was Made to Rescue the Prisoners From the Soldier Guards Who Were Escorting Them From National Palace to the Penitentiary—Investigations Ordered.

Mexico City, Feb. 24.—A reign of terror has been inaugurated. Francisco I. Madero and Jose Pino Suarez, deposed president and vice-president of the republic, have fallen, shot down in cold blood during a ride early Sunday morning from the national palace to the penitentiary.

Pelle Diaz's threat of Saturday night that "We will use such energetic means as to put an end to rebellions forever" has been followed by swift execution.

Murder and anarchy have been let loose to cement the work of the revolution. The Maderistas and all other opponents of the military dynasty which has handed down a decision in which he refused to set aside the will granted by Judge Edward F. Dunne, now governor of Illinois.

An international phase of the treaty, which is causing great concern, is that these two officials were slaughtered after diplomatic representatives had been made by the ambassador from the United States to their behalf and assurances from Huerta that their safety would be guaranteed.

An official investigation has been ordered to determine the responsibility and solemn promises have been made that the guilty will be punished.

Not unambiguously, a great part of the public regards the official versions of doubt, having in mind the use for centuries of the notorious "Ley Puga," the unwritten law which is invoked when death of a prisoner is desired. After its application there is written on the records, "Prisoner shot trying to escape."

Senora Madero, widow of the ex-president, received the first definite information of his death from the Spanish minister, Senor Coloman y Coloman.

She already had heard reports that something unusual and serious had happened, but friends had endeavored up to that time to prevent her from learning the whole truth.

Soon afterward, accompanied by his brother, Jose Perez, and Mercedes Madero, a sister of Francisco, Senora Madero, who was in the penitentiary, was refused permission to see the body of her husband. Senora Suarez also was denied admittance to the mortuary, where physicians, in accordance with the law, were performing an autopsy.

The officers were infuriated.

"You! The men who fired on a defenseless man! You and your superior officers are traitors!" No effort was made to remove the women, nor did the officers attend to the women. Senora Madero continued weeping and the girl did not cease her hysterical tirade until the arrival of the Spanish minister and the Japanese charge, who came to offer their services.

The minister spoke with the officers in charge, but was told that on account of the autopsy it would be impossible for anyone to see the bodies. Later in the day, they said, the request would be granted.

Widows Taken Away. The diplomats then conducted the women away from the penitentiary. Madero's father and Rafael Hernandez, the father of the interior and other friends, made efforts to recover the bodies, and it was stated that the American ambassador, Henry White, had interested himself and secured the services of Minister De la Barra that the bodies should be delivered to their families for burial.

The tragedy occurred early Sunday morning. The two widows, who had been prisoners in the national palace since their arrest on Tuesday last, were placed in an automobile, which was accompanied by another car and escorted by 100 rurales under the orders of Commandant Francisco Cardenas and Colonel Rafael Plinio.

The news was received quietly, and apparently philosophically. This was due perhaps not only to the fact that the majority seem to be in favor of the present government, but because the people are still overawed by the developments of the last two weeks.

One hundred representative members of the British colony have sent a memorial to the American ambassador, expressing "appreciation for the able manner in which the ambassador has handled the delicate situation caused by the recent disturbance."

The memorial extends sincere thanks for the help afforded all foreigners by the American ambassador, without distinction of nationality, and more especially all British residents.

Mexican Situation Strains. Washington, Feb. 25.—The killing of Francisco I. Madero and Pino Suarez, deposed president and vice-president of Mexico, after Provisional President General Huerta had assured American Ambassador Wilson of the safety of his prisoners from just such attacks, created a painful impression in administration circles.

When the first feeling of surprise had passed it was realized by officials that this last tragic event had added greatly to the gravity of the situation and undoubtedly had played an additional strain upon the already tense relations between this government and that in the Mexican capital. Still, as President Taft himself declared, the event in itself was not sufficient to demand any departure from the policy of strict nonintervention which so far has governed his administration.

May Hasten Invasion. Probably the immediate result will be to hasten the military and naval preparations in order to have the soldiers and sailors and marines ready to answer a call for instant embarkation if further developments in Mexico should demand their employment.

The one danger to be apprehended, which almost certainly would result in the launching of an army of invasion, would be the commissioning of some act or acts in Mexico that would endanger the lives of foreign citizens and Americans, for having assured the diplomatic representatives of Washington of the disposition and ability of this government to protect their nationals in Mexico in the same degree as Americans, the government has assumed an obligation that cannot be ignored.

Must Protect Americans. Therefore any attack upon the American citizens or foreigners by the hand of the government, or even the exhibition toward them of mob violence clearly beyond the ability of the provisional government to prevent, would be the signal for active intervention.

The administration officials feel that they have discharged their full duties and exhausted their constitutional powers in the orders they have given or planned for the preparation of a sufficient military and naval force to insure a successful fight to the Mexican capital in case of need.

It is practically certain that beyond this point the executive would not proceed except upon direct instructions from congress, or the exhibition of military force beyond the seas of Mexico might be regarded as an act of war which, under the Constitution, can be directed only by congress.

Communicate With Congress. To secure this direction probably it will be necessary for President Taft to communicate to the congress through a special message, reciting the recent events and existing conditions in Mexico and asking for instructions from congress. The president considered the preparation of such a message, has been reluctant to forward it and probably will not do so unless still graver events happen in Mexico and the remaining days of his administration.

Secretary Stimson and Major General Wood made no change in the program of concentration of troops at Galveston, which is smoothly working out in conformity with Saturday's orders to Maj. Gen. William H. Carter, commander of the second division of the army at Chicago.

These orders called for the dispatch to Galveston of the elements that make up only one brigade of troops—namely, the Fifth brigade, Second Division, commanded by Brig. Gen. Frederick A. Smith. These troops should all be in Galveston before the end of the present week at the latest.

Two other brigades of troops are under preparatory orders to entrain for the Texas coast. These, or two other brigades, are expected to make a change in the composition of the force, doubtless will be directed to start almost immediately.

Preserving Graceful Necks. If the neck is firm and no lines show, then keep it so by a good massage of the head and regular massage with good skin food. A woman's neck, for the really it is, if she permits her neck to become wrinkled and her chin baggy, the graceful neck may be long or short, but it must be molded in a circle that is firm, smooth and well rounded.

GETS HARDEST JOB

J. P. TUMULTY, AS PRESIDENT'S PRIVATE SECRETARY, MUST BE "MAN UNAFRAID."

MEETS PRESS OF WASHINGTON

Woodrow Wilson and All Other Presidents Will Take Good in Filling Position Which Requires Infinite Tact.

BY GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington.—Woodrow Wilson's present executive secretary, who has been appointed as his future private secretary, Joseph Patrick Tumulty, has been in Washington as the guest of the National Press Club. There was a large gathering of newspaper editors and of others to meet the man who, in a way, will be second in command at the White House after March 4.

If Mr. Tumulty can remember the names and the faces of one-fifth of the public men and Washington correspondents who greet him here he probably will prove qualified to a considerable degree for the duties of the office which he will assume on the first Tuesday of the first spring month. It may be that one of the reasons given to the underestimating of the necessities in the case of a president's private secretary. He is more to a president than any cabinet officer and he can make or unmake friendships for his chief faster than any man who sits at the president's round table. The personal equation figures more largely in the success of an administration than anything else which mathematicians lend itself for a figure of speech.

Mr. Tumulty is a keen-looking American of Irish lineage. It ought not to take him long to learn the names and the faces of the men who will call upon his chief. If he is not a genius in learning their follies, their temptations, their crochets, their strengths and their weaknesses, he may be in trouble before the end of his term. In three months old, being all things to all men is seemingly an essential in a private secretary to the president of the United States.

How He Can Make Good.

Everybody says that Mr. Tumulty is going to make good, and everybody hopes so. He has had numerous predecessors in office within the last ten years. He will find that, like them, he must accustom himself to what may be called a "dignified humility" in the presence of men who modestly think themselves the great of the land. The member of congress who has a bill for the building of a postoffice in the country seat is just as big a man in the White House as the senator whom he seniority, if not qualification, has made the head of the finance committee. No member of either house has more than one vote, but the prestige of a congressman who has made no big mark on legislation may cost a presidential aspirant the electoral vote of a state.

The secretary of the president of the United States must be the "man unafraid." There are scores of things upon which he must speak for the president, and he must always speak with the certainty that his speech is to go unchallenged by his chief. There have been one or two secretaries who declined on any occasion to speak for the president, preferring to go to him on every trivial matter. The president has a lot to do and he cannot act at all times as chief executive and as private secretary to himself.

Mr. Wilson, it is said, has a private-moving faith in Mr. Tumulty. If he did not have, he probably would not have made his present secretary his future secretary. Mr. Tumulty, if he follows the example, or is allowed to follow the example, of some of his predecessors in office, will have to speak subjects great and small the mouthpiece of the administration. He must keep his tongue from tripping. Secretaries have succeeded in doing this through long years and the strain of protraction seemingly has not worn away their health.

Features and the Yarn. It is possible, even probable, that the congress of the United States may interpose its authority to change utterly the fashion in woman's hats. Does it seem that this is a trivial matter to take up the attention of the careful law makers of the land? The legislators apparently do not think so, and a good many of them say that the agricultural interests and all persons who love nature will rise to call them blessed if they enter with legislative intent into the realm of Dame Fashion.

It is possible that the ways and means committee under the leadership of Oscar W. Underhill will make up its mind before March 15 to take congress to prohibit the importation of this variety of all feathers for millinery use. It is possible that the search of domestic fowls and of game birds. If the committee which frames laws legislation shall take the same of his kind, it will be a step in a crusade which had its beginning in the parlors of a few American houses about fifteen years ago. It is possible that the ways and means committee will take up a provision in the tariff laws which will prohibit the importation of the plumage of birds which are being exterminated from that of America's birds, including migratory, crane and swan.

MAN OF BUSINESS

But His Methods Were Bad, and Then Love's Young Dream Comes True.

BY SELMA ELIZABETH HIGGINS.

"Don't stand in your own light, Hilda. Mr. Armitage is a rising man of business, and many a girl would count it an honor to have the attention of a man like him. He has shown you."

"Mother, his attentions are more than distasteful to me. I cannot bear to see him here. He is a man of business, and I am a girl of business. There are a good many reasons why you should encourage him," declared Hilda Mason's stepmother.

The girl's lips closed tightly. A worried, anxious look came over her face. She put on her wraps and left her humble home for her daily work. The worldly advice of her stepmother had made little impression upon Hilda. Mr. Armitage was practically her employer. He was in full charge of the silk factory of Messers & Co., one of the largest and wealthiest firms. Hilda's father had been engineer of the plant half his life time. Her brother, Bob, was in charge of the shipping room, and she was an errand boy in the office. Hilda had left agreeable work in the sample department.

It was only recently that the Masons had felt that prospects were brightening for them. A strike, sickness, the failure of a bank carrying away their savings, had brought about a sharp reverse. Now, with all hands at work, the future looked encouraging. Armitage had come to the plant about a year previous. From the first Hilda had felt repelled by him. He had a hard, cynical face. He was pitiless in his exactions with the workers. He was a growler, and Hilda had heard that his wife had died of a broken heart.

Armitage had seemed to take a fancy to Hilda, as the thoughtless Mrs. Mason put it, and she had been told. When on two occasions recently he had asked permission to take Hilda to places of entertainment, she had not been able to refuse, and was glad to get home again.

"I wouldn't wipe my shoes on the wretch," a discharged office girl told Hilda. "He is a snake, a tyrant. He discharged my father because he was a man of business."

"To ask your parents if I may be considered as a suitor," I came here under an assumed name to set the details. My correct name is Victor Mervin."

"Lak the craven he was, Armitage slipped from the room. With a slight twinkle in his eye, young Messervin looked to the astonished Hilda. "Miss Mason—Hilda," he said, "judging that you just told me that you intended to remain a spinster. Still, recalling your kind words about myself, I must hope that you will allow me to call on you."

"What—what is it?" faltered Hilda, as a rose.

"To ask your parents if I may be considered as a suitor," I came here under an assumed name to set the details. My correct name is Victor Mervin."

"Turkey butter."

"These sandwiches on my face," he said, "don't indicate that I am un happily married. They indicate that I am a turkey butter."

"High grade turkeys are brought up to the proper degree of corpulence by hand stuffing. That is where I come in. With a short cane I stuff their food down their throats and trills. The object is this. They expel waste with beak and claw. Hence these scratches."

"What do we stuff our high grade turkeys with? Well, their morning meal is ground pea flour and olive oil. Their evening meal is wheat boiled in milk. Sometimes, for a change, I use chestnuts and chestnuts boiled in milk. You'd hardly believe what a delicious nutty flavor this gives."

"But it's hard work, the work of a turkey stuffer. Your assistant holds the bird's legs; you hold its head with one hand while you stuff through the foot into its mouth with the other, and then you shove the bolus down where it belongs with a short cane. The turkey gives you many a slip many a scratch, during this forcible feeding. A turkey stuffer's job is no sinecure."

Improving Under Difficulties. Few cities are doing so much building as Buenos Aires, easily the largest center of population south of the equator. From the first he had a pleasant work for her. Then he began to question her about her work and its details. One evening he was strolling past her home when, about the corner, he saw a band concert going on in the public square. The young man asked for her company there. Both enjoyed the concert.

Mrs. Mason gave Hilda a good lecture when she got home. "Spoiling her changes," "out of respect for Mr. Armitage," were some of the points made. But Hilda could not help thinking of the many young fellows whose bright natural ways had opened a new chapter in the book of the world. A few evenings later young Mervin called at the Mason home. But for the glum looks of Mrs. Mason, it was a happy occasion for Hilda. Her mother made her happier still when she talked the matter over with her. In his eyes, that told her was thinking of her with a friendly sentiment, that of simple friendship.

TWO EXPLORERS DIE

SEVEN STAY IN FAR SOUTH

Leader of Explorers and Six Others Remain in Adelle Land After Missing Boat—They Are Heard From by Wireless.

Sydney, N. S. W., Feb. 21.—By the news received here Tuesday of the death of two members of the expedition commanded by Dr. Douglas Mawson, another was added to the list of antarctic tragedies. The party left Tasmania in 1911, accompanied by a large body of scientific men, to explore thoroughly the regions around the southern magnetic pole.

Once again the British army is affected by the loss of a brilliant officer, Lieut. B. E. S. Ninnis of the famous Royal Fusiliers. The party had a close friend of Capt. Lawrence Oates of the Inuiting dragons, who perished returning from the south pole expedition. The party had not been killed by falling into a crevasse nearly a year ago. His death was practically instantaneous.

Switzerland has suffered a great loss by death of Doctor Merz, a prominent scientist and sportsman. After winning the ski jumping championship of Switzerland in 1908 he offered his services to Dr. Mawson.

Lieutenant Ninnis was the expert of the expedition on surveying and sledging. Wireless messages hitherto received from the Aurora do not state the cause of the death of Doctor Merz.

Unfortunately Doctor Mawson and six of his companions, after they had been scotched up in Antarctica, had to look another expedition and were unable to rejoin the ship, which was compelled to leave them to spend another year in the antarctic.

"Your employ," repeated young Mervin, "is to be a secretary to the office and be ready for an accounting, which will be demanded of you by my father, the owner of this business. You are discharged from my employ. Out of here at once, or I will have you thrown out."

ILLINOIS NEWS TERSELY TOLD

Quincy.—The annual convention of the Farmers' State Union of Illinois, in session at Mount Vernon, was largely attended. E. B. T. Association, and Joseph Shurtz on "Business Agencies." V. Blakely of Mill Shoals and O. B. Young of Springfield discussed "Shipping Stock." "Rural Credit Systems" was the theme assigned John P. Doyle of Mount Vernon. The principal address was that of Albert H. Evans of Tamarac on "Tamarac Enterprises." Other speakers were J. D. Kirby of Anna, R. F. Austin of Carlin Rock, and W. H. Richter of Omatad.

LOOM.—FIRE OF UNKNOWN ORIGIN

completely destroyed a large frame barn on the farm of Witt Workman, two miles west of this city. An automobile of the property of Mr. Workman, also was burned, as were 200 bushels of corn, 200 bushels of oats and between four and five tons of hay, the property of a tenant who had expected to move on the Workman farm March 1. The only thing saved from the building was a farm wagon. The building, which was almost new, was erected at a cost of $2,500. On this there was $2,000 insurance, and an insurance of $1,000 was carried on the automobile. The grain and hay belonging to the tenant were uninsured.

Virginia.—Joseph Hickey who recently purchased the Widmayer meat market here, was notified that the big barn on his farm north of town was destroyed by fire, together with the contents, which included three horses and a mule, many farming implements, a large amount of grain and harness. Partial insurance was carried on the building and contents, except the live stock, which was a total loss. The origin of the fire is not known.

Springfield.—City councils here have passed a resolution to have the shops and meat markets on Sunday, according to opinions handed down in the Illinois supreme court. The test case on motion picture films was appealed to the city of Clinton, and the one questioning the right to close meat markets came from the Sangamon circuit court.

Pana.—Fire destroyed the residence of William Walker of Green Valley, five miles southwest of here. The home is a total loss. The home was covered by fire, together with $10,000 insurance to the amount of $5,000 was carried in the Shelbyville Mutual Fire insurance company. The origin of the fire is said to be a defective flue.

Sterling.—Illinois State Farmers' Institute elected directors as follows: Second congressional district, August L. Newkirk, Chicago; Fourth, John M. Clark, Chicago; Sixth, T. R. Barnes, Chicago; Eighth, J. R. Clark, Chicago; Tenth, Ralph Crittenden, Chicago; Twelfth, George F. Tallock, Rockford; Fourteenth, W. H. Ashdown, Port Byron; Sixteenth, Frank Allen, Delevan; Eighteenth, Ralph I. Mansfield, Twenty-second, P. G. Winchester; Twenty-second, Edward Burroughs, Edwardsville; Twenty-fourth, D. M. Martin, Norris City.

Springfield.—Questions which confront county superintendents of the west part of the state will be discussed at the last of the county superintendents' convention to be held Wednesday and Thursday at the normal school at Macomb. State Superintendent P. O. Blair, his assistant, U. J. Hoffman and V. L. Lewis from the state office here, will attend.

Peoria.—In unanimously adopting a resolution introduced by one of the local unions, representing and backed by 4,000 miners in the northern district of Illinois, the Illinois state miners' convention in session here provided that the $2,000 miners in the state go on record as favoring a general strike whenever war is declared either by or against the United States.

Pana.—The Central Illinois Dental society called the following officers: President, Dr. T. T. Baker, Litchfield; vice-president, Dr. J. H. Hite, Shelbyville; secretary, L. T. Grundy, Edinburgh; treasurer, H. A. Broering, Pana; librarian, J. M. Eldridge, St. Elmo. The date for the next meeting was left open, as also was the place of the meeting.

Springfield.—Retail hardware dealers of Illinois gathered here for the annual convention of the Illinois Hardware Association. A frank discussion of the problems of their business was held at the opening session.

Chesterfield.—Chesterfield residents, though looking ahead early, already have begun to lay tentative plans for another farmers' institute and house hold science meeting in 1913. They base their hopes of a joint record-breaking event on the success of the combined meeting of the joint county organization held on November 13 and 14, when over $300 in premiums were distributed among county exhibitors of farm and household products, and when a notable display of draft horses was made in connection with the joint meeting.

"Why not?" asked Hilda.

"I shan't tell you, but you'll see. I do hope you are not falling in love with him."

Hilda protested indignantly. She seated her mother, and twice she called managed to be out of the way. Hence her stepmother's advice.

A new interest came into the life of Hilda on "Friday." Armitage passed through the sample department accompanied by a bright-faced athletic young man. The latter seemed interested in everything he saw. "Something about me frequently from the first he had a pleasant work for her. Then he began to question her about her work and its details. GOOD ADVICE

St. Louis Times: In his "History of the American People," Woodrow Wilson has something to say about what he regards as the unusual and even extraordinary manner in which President Cleveland chose the men who were to constitute his cabinet.
"In his first cabinet," says Mr. Wilson, "there were men who had been chosen in accordance with well recognized precedents in such matters; because of their service in party councils; but the rest were men, as far as might be, of his own personal selection, whom he chose, not for their influence among politicians or in political canvases, but because he knew their efficiency as men of business. In his second cabinet the element of personal choice was still more noticeable. The president's object was to surround himself, not with a party council, but with capable heads of departments."
Grover Cleveland's story is now told. He was a failure as a politician. During his last two years in office he was "a man without a party," as Mr. Wilson himself observes. But he is today regarded as one of the comparatively few really great presidents this nation has had, and his worth has been recognized by all statesmen and scholars and historians who have found it possible to free themselves from partisan points of view.
In the forthcoming task of choosing a cabinet, it may be suggested that Mr. Wilson turn to his own interesting book, and read again the story of the Cleveland methods.

Poetry and Music.

If I had to live my life again, I would have made a rule to read some poetry and listen to some music at least once every week; for perhaps the parts of my brain now atrophied would thus have been kept active through use. The loss of these tastes is a loss of happiness, and may possibly be injurious to the intellect, and more probably to the moral character, by encroaching on the emotional part of our nature.—Charles Darwin.

AMBITION TALKS

BY HARLAN READ
Our Happiness of Today Depends Upon Our Plans for Tomorrow.
Tell me why well-meaning people go from the stork's nest to the Styx without saving the price of a rainy-day meal and I will give you the reason boys get drunk.
Explain why children or their parents neglect the very fundamentals of education while the glow of youth is yet within them, and I shall quote your own words to tell you why the Chinese smoke opium.
There is a similarity between all follies, and a kinship among fools, and it lies in this: That the fool says in his heart, "Tomorrow is not important." Extravagance, book-fighthing, means neglected and optim are only possible to the half-wit who lives for the sake of today.
Tomorrow is the day for which we must prepare, and in the preparation they discover a wonderful today; for happiness and peace depend upon imagination, and imagination looks forward.
Tomorrow is what brings to us the reward or punishment for today. Our plans and efforts of today must inevitably be controlled by the sort of man we desire for every man wants for what he wants, and the stork is not at all divine in sending in the rolling pin of effort.
Joy is a state of conscious growth that looks toward what is to come, and the permanent happiness can come to the man who lives only in yesterday and today.
Imagination and ambition are soul-mates because they are both looking forward to tomorrow.

MARY, THE FAITHFUL

By CORA CARSON.

"There! Doesn't it sound a thousand times better than before it was tuned?" demanded Dorothy as she let her fingers glide nimbly over the keys in exhibition of the improved condition of the piano.
"At least two thousand times better," assented her father, with an assumption of gravity. "I suppose you'll never practice on it again for fear of spoiling it!"
Dorothy nodded so vigorously in agreement that her short braided hair swooped about her head the swung around on the piano stool, which, since it had had no ministrations to its voice, squeaked an exasperating accompaniment to her words. "And then, that old piano tuner would come back and take a week to fix it!"
"Daughter, you exaggerate too much. Do try to be more liberal," lectured her father as he settled himself comfortably in his leather chair for the evening.
"Well, this time it took his just 'sactly five days," insisted Dorothy, with an aggrieved air of one who has spoken the truth vainly.
"Five what?" asked her father, amusements in his voice.
"Five days," reiterated the little girl, emphatically.
"Five days to tune a piano? What do you mean, Dolly?"
"I thought he was awfully slow, but he said it was awfully awfully out of tune."
"But even so, whatever did he do all that time?"
"Well, he came Monday. First of all he played a long time—to find out which keys were wrong, I suppose. He plays just grand, marches, and waltzes, and variations of 'The Star Spangled Banner' and such pieces, you know."
"Then?" asked her father, with much excitement to her words.
"Then he stopped and tried each note separately."
"That wasn't so grand, was it? Well, how long did the concert last?"
"Most all day. I got very tired of the noise and went over to Kathryn's. But I told Mary to take care of him."
"Mary is a faithful maid and took such good care of him that he came again next day, didn't he?"
Dorothy missed the sarcasm in her father's words and continued her explanation placidly. "Oh, yes, he seemed to like her. Well, on Tuesday he took the piano all apart and raised such a dust it kept Mary busy cleaning up around him."
"I see. Her father's intonation was ominous. "Well, on Wednesday?"
"He put it together again—but something was loose, or tight. Any place he didn't like the way it sounded and he tried it for him and made that Mary and I could tell it wasn't quite right."
"So he had to come on Thursday in order to take the poor old piano apart again," guessed her father.
"Yes, and as it was Mary's day out, it was glad he was here only in the morning, so I could go over to Kathryn's after he went. Then Friday morning he put in what he called the finishing touches. You see, that does make five days. But I didn't ask him to stay to luncheon again, so he finally left at noon. You don't care if I didn't do you, father? I did so hate to sit with him; he gabbled so." And Dorothy looked both disgusted and apologetic.
"But her father's patience gave way and he asked sternly, "Whatever made you ask him to luncheon with you at any time?"
"Why, you told me to be nice to him," Dorothy burst into tears. "So I gave a party and he had extra good luncheons and—and—"
"But, my dear, I was joking," the exasperated father explained.
"You were always telling me to be liberal," the little girl declared in her own defense. "Once before, when Mr. Jenkins, you remember, came for a visit and you told mother to be

WORDS OF TRUTH

FROM

THE SECOND DAY OR EPOCH

There are various theories regarding the formation of the Earth. We follow the one which seems most closely to harmonize with the Bible account. It is called the Valtan theory. It assumes that Saturn's rings and Jupiter's belts illustrate the various stages of development of the Earth.

The Earth was once molten, as indicated by the igneous rocks of the Azoic period; so-called by scientists but not discussed in the Bible. When the Earth was thus molten, its water and minerals were thrown off a great distance in gaseous form. As these and the Earth cooled and took shape, the water and mineral substances constituted great rings at a distance from the Earth.

Gradually the motion of the rings became different from that of the Earth in proportion to the distance from the center of gravity. These rings of water and mineral under the law of attraction, gradually approached the Earth. Yet they would be kept off by centrifugal force, particularly strong at the equatorial line. Thus, one after another these rings as they approached the Earth would spread out like a great canopy, but would not be permitted to come down directly upon the Earth because of the circumambient air, referred to in the Scriptures as a "firmament."

God made the firmament and separated the waters which were under the firmament from the waters which were above the firmament. The strongly mineralized waters above the Earth held off by the "firmament" and centrifugal force, gradually approached the Earth, gradually concentrated at the two poles, where they broke and then reached the Earth, forming layer after layer of mineralized earth deposited by the water which rushed from both poles toward the equator.

These rings or belts of water and minerals followed each other as great deluges upon the Earth—perhaps thousands of years apart. The deluge of Noah's day was the last, and of pure water only, because the better minerals had been attracted first. Hence minerals are generally under several layers of shale and earth and soil. PASTOR RUSSELL.

AT THE CHICAGO THEATRES

FINE ARTS.

"Hindle Wakes," the Lancia hire play by Stanley Hoobson, has taken dramatic Chicago by storm. The critics are taxed to find words of praise for the best acting, dramatic play at the Fine Arts theatre, under the direction of the Chicago Theatre society by arrangement with William A. Brady, has almost exhausted all the laudatory adjectives. "One great play" and "season's best play," "best playing" some of the papers say about it. Herbert Lozano, has been universally pronounced a great actor, because of his work as the rich old mill owner, Nathaniel Jeffcoat, and the playing of all the members of the company has been praised without stint. The cast includes, in addition, Whitford Kane, Emmie Polin, Roland Young, Robert Forsyth, Alice O'Dea, Adah Barton, Kathlene Macpherson and Lillian Tweed. The play was brought to Chicago with some reservation, after its rejection by New York, but Chicago instantly agreed with London that it was a splendid play, and dispensed with New York. No play in years has caused so much discussion in Chicago.

SAD-LOOKING MAN SCORED

His "Bluff" Worked, and as a Consequence the Torment Went Hungry Through the Afternoon.

A sad-looking man entered the shanty where the workmen were eating their lunches. He was holding a red cap.

"Hey, fellows," he saluted them, "look at this can of powder I picked up outside. I've a mind to blow myself up."

"Aw, cut out that stuff and beat it out of here," ordered the foreman.

The man looked around, then walked deliberately over to the stove, opened the door and thrust the can inside.

There was a yell of dismay and in a moment the shanty was empty.

Ten minutes later the runaways returned. The can was lying harmlessly on the fire and the sad-looking man was gone. So were their lunch pails.

Jesus at Bethany

By REV. JAMES M. GRAY, D. D., Dean of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—"There they made Him a supper."—John XII, 2.

It is the last week of Jesus' earthly life and He is spending the days in Jerusalem and the nights in Bethany—the home of Lazarus and his sisters, Martha and Mary. There they made Him a supper. An exquisite touch of Christ's humanity; it is not only what He would have done to such a friend? But think of the human kindness and simplicity of the Redeemer here displayed! It recalls the marriage in Cana at which he was a guest. That was at the beginning of his ministry and this at its close. How better could he have demonstrated that he came into the world not to disturb its social arrangements or mar its domestic joys, but to elevate them to a higher plane? Blessed God, we may have Jesus at our feasts and festivals as well as at other times, and what heart is so cold that would attend a feast or festival where he could not be a guest?

But there is a practical question here of another kind. When we remember that Jesus knew he was to die within a week, and endure beforehand unprecedently continued, and describe by his ministry and this at its close. How better could he have demonstrated that he came into the world not to disturb its social arrangements or mar its domestic joys, but to elevate them to a higher plane? Blessed God, we may have Jesus at our feasts and festivals as well as at other times, and what heart is so cold that would attend a feast or festival where he could not be a guest?

The Devoted Mary and the Avaricious Judas. The central feature of this supper is the anointing of Jesus by the devoted Mary. The action was not common in eastern lands, where the heat is great and the feet exposed to it by sandals suffer from dryness and scorching. The mother of Mary was her lover for Jesus. Love, not only for what she had learned from him, but for what he had done for her brother Lazarus, whom he raised from the dead. All of which comes out the stronger in contrast with the fanaticism and avarice of Judas, "who was not this ointment sold for three hundred pence, and given to the poor?" A specimen of this of the way worldly people depreciate actions done for the love of God, and especially giving money for Christ's cause. Judas said this, not because "he cared for the poor," John says, "but because he had the bar and here what was put therein." He was thinking of himself and not the poor.

The truest friends of the poor, the people who do most for them, are those who do most for their souls. It is says Bishop Hyle, "the successors of Mary of Bethany, and not of Judas Iscariot, who really care for the poor."

As another says, even if Judas had said this from the heart it would have been wrong. It does not follow that the poor will not be benefited, because the rich live according to their means.

Social Distinctions to Remain. But how significant that remark of Jesus, "the poor always ye have with you." How clearly it teaches that distinctions of class and rank will never cease in the present age. It was never intended that society should become a massed and level where all are on a level. The distance of paper-money alone does not prove that states are ill-governed, or churches are not doing their duty. This separation between rich and poor which Jesus made was opposed to the spirit of Christ, for in the true veneration of his name consists the most effectual caring for the poor. It is important to keep this in mind in this humanitarian age when the gospel of good works (so called) is so persistently thrust into the foreground in opposition to the gospel of faith. Poverty is forever at our heels, but Christ in the moonlight may be vanishing away. How beautiful is "He ye have not always." Oh, let us take it to heart! Him we have no longer when the wings of death suddenly overshadow us; or when our senses depart, under the influence of disease, and the message of salvation no longer penetrates through the crowd of unburied immigrants to the souls of the living. Under the influence of disease, and the message of salvation no longer penetrates through the crowd of unburied immigrants to the souls of the living.

Queen Victoria Detested Tobacco. The number of smoking rooms now distributed over Windsor castle would considerably astonish Queen Victoria could she see them. Her late majesty could never bring herself to do more than tolerate the weed in any form, and the smoking room was always retained at a very distant part of her various residences. Nor were the guests permitted to solace themselves with a quiet smoke in their own apartments, as on their arrival they were specially warned not to do so.

MORE ATLANTIC LINERS REQUIRED

CONGESTION ON EXISTING STEAMSHIPS ON ACCOUNT OF CANADIAN IMMIGRATION.

It is reported that eight new Trans-Atlantic liners are under construction for the exclusive use of the Canadian trade. These are being built by the White Star, Canadian Pacific and Cunard Companies.

The liners to be built for the White Star are to be of the same type as the Laurentic and Majestic, and will replace the Canada and Teutonic. The Cunard Line's new steamer, Ascania, has already completed successfully her maiden voyage from England to Montreal, and her sister ship will be launched early next year.

It is predicted that the Canadian Northern will not be slow in following the example of the other big concerns as it is a matter of common belief that Canada, more than any other in the world, will be the country of the future, and the best field for investment by shipping interests.

An official of one of the companies already building steamers for this trade told the American yesterday that the ideal steamer for this service is the two-cabin boat, having accommodations for the first class and average passengers only.

"We do not expect that the $500,000 cabin de luxe class will travel between Canada and England very extensively," he said, "but the business that is to be obtained there will be immensely lucrative, and for the next few years the rates of the shipping world will be riveted on Canada. The Panama Canal, undoubtedly will receive a lot of attention, but the business in that route will be nothing compared with the Canadian trade for the immediate future. Panama will develop and become bigger in the years to come, but the present business is more concerned with the tremendous tide of immigration that is being diverted from the United States to the Dominion.

The farm land of the vast North West is the attraction, and while this flood of immigration is at its height, the Canadian Government exercises a strict censorship over the class of immigrants admitted. In this way they are drawing their future citizens from the Northern countries and have shown an antagonism to the people of Southern Europe.—Advertiser.

WHY INCUBATOR CHICKS DIE. When the Sun Will Die. It may be said unqualifiedly that the sun, like every other celestial body connected with the present order, will finally cease to be what it is today. The time will most surely come when the light and heat long before that happens, however, the earth and other planets will have become "dead worlds." Like the moon—no life of any sort upon them. It has been calculated that the sun will cease to throw out its heat somewhere about seven million of years from now.

He Knew the Kind. The guide, in referring to the Egyptian pyramids, said that they were built "It took hundreds of years to build them."
