All Feet's Day.

When Frankish April lifts the latch all wise and consider themselves free to vent their nonsense upon the victims whom they consider their tricks. The gay Parisian calls such "April fish;" in bonnie Scotland on that day they make merry "bunting the gown," while in England they consider a man keeps a sharp lookout lest he be caught at a disadvantage by the joker who glories in his smartness. If he only can make some one else ridiculous. But it is just as well not to be too smart. The boomerang has a wicked habit of coming back. Silly as All Feet's day custom may seem to the solemn, it has an ancient history. Its origin is obscure, but somewhere from the far-off times when those old Romans felt the tilt of the vernal equinox, and went on the spring account, comes this relic which still thrills forth its merry ditty in our streets. Deeper still, the calm, contemplative Hindu, for some reason or other, from time immemorial has gone a-footing on the first of April. It was probably from France, whence all things vicious come, that Europe got the unruly itch for turling this day into a comedy of errors.

Parcel Post Adventure.

"I had a tough time delivering the mail yesterday," declared the postman.

"How was that?"

"Had a bullock and a chunk of liver in the same delivery."

FRIENDS HELP.

St. Paul Park Incident.

"After drinking coffee for breakfast I always felt languid and dull, having no ambition to go to my morning duties. There is about an hour or so a week, nervous derangement of the heart and stomach would come over me with such force I would frequently have to lie down."

Yes is just as harmful, because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.

"At other times I had severe headaches; stomach finally became affected and digestion so impaired that I had serious chronic dyspepsia and constipation. A lady, for many years State President of the W. C. T. U., told me she had been greatly benefited by getting coffee and using Postum; she was troubled for years with indigestion. The said it was as good to quit coffee when she found she could have as delicious an article as Postum."

"Another lady who had been long bed-ridden with chronic dyspepsia for years, found immediate relief on ceasing coffee and using Postum. Still another friend told me that Postum was a Godsend; her husband, who had been long bed-ridden after leaving of coffee and taking on Postum."

"The third such case came to my mind when I considered how I was the victim of my trouble and I quit and took Postum. I am now more contented in my life than I have been for many years."

Look to Postum for the famous "Milk Food," the "Food of the World."

Postum is the only food that is a pure, healthful, and delicious food.

FINE DESIGNS IN LACE

REALLY PRETTY BLOUSES ARE SHOWN THIS SEASON.

What is Known as "All-over Shadow" Effect is Employed, and the Garments Are Marvels of Loveliness.

One well-known house is specializing in simple blouses of all-over shadow lace. Just below the bust line, underneath the lace, a wide ribbon surrounds the bodice. Some of the blouses have ribbon of a shade to harmonize with the shirt with which it is to be worn and others have gay colored ribbon, or pale pink, blue or lavender. There is a turn-down collar, a little below the elbow and are finished with a turn-back cuff of black chiffon. An attractive model of all-over shadow lace had a blouse of fine cream shadow lace with trimmings of rose pink velvet and an ornament of Bulgarian embroidery. The flat turn-down collar is of velvet and a touch of velvet appears at the lower part of the elbow sleeve. Finishing the lower part of the collar or revers is an ornament of Bulgarian embroidery underneath which falls a layer of soft cream shadow lace. A frill of the shadow lace also edges the sleeves. There is a vest or gilette of cream net.

Bulgarian embroidery plays an important part in the trimming of the lingerie blouse this spring and wonderful color schemes are obtained by these embroideries. One blouse of cream colored velvet trimmed with Bulgarian embroidery. The sailor collar, revers and deep shaped cuffs were trimmed with the colored embroidery. The fronts opened over a fine cream net trimmed with a row of colored glass buttons.

Another blouse was of fine batiste of simple design, with large, flat turn-down collar embroidered about the edges with beautifully colored Bulgarian embroidery. The front of the blouse and cuffs were trimmed with the colored glass buttons.

One important firm makes blouses of tulle for tailored wear, to match any suit. The blouse has a turn-down collar of velvet and is trimmed with a narrow frill of lace. The long sleeves are also trimmed with the lingerie, cuffs lace trimmed.

Tailored lingerie blouses for street and outing wear are on sale now by the thousand. Many of these have the Directorate collar of the turn-down kind and finished at the front with the eye of the collar.

A smart blouse for sporting wear is shown by one firm, which makes a specialty of tailored blouses. This model is of light weight heather mixture. There is a Robespierre collar buttoned to the blouse at the corners with small jet buttons. The blouse is fastened at the front with small square jet buttons and jet buttons trim the cuffs. There is a four-hand tie of dark fuchsia red.

NEW IDEAS IN VANITY BOXES

Article Has Become Practically Indispensable, and Many Quaint Designs Are Offered.

The vanity box has become so much a part of a woman's outfit that the manufacturers are discovering many odd ways for her to carry it.

To take one's powder puff and lip rouge from one's handbag has become commonplace; now a woman can tuck these in her toilet case. One of the new kind has flexible links of gold wire, with the vanity box on top in the shape of an oval medallion with a handsome monogram.

Or she can wear it round her neck as a sash. Fascinating vanity necklaces are shown of all styles and prices, from tiny ones of French jewelry to diamond studded boxes no bigger than a child's locket. Among the most popular of the colored Russian enamel on a linked chain to match.

Again, one may carry a vanity box on the end of the parasol, or as the head of a big hatpin, disguised as a charm for her chain, or even set in one of the big buttons that ornament her corset garters.

One girl, who wore a watch on the back of one riding glove, had set in the other a small vanity case ready for instant use when she dismounted. Another girl has a similar case in the end of her crop.

The new opera bags include a vanity box and those that do not may be supplied with them by small pockets sewed to the interior of them.

Boudoir Gowns.

There are boudoir gowns of all-over embroidery over slips of silk, and some of these are trimmed with Irish lace which is always especially beautiful in combination with velvet and brocade. Delicate colors are selected for lining such negligees, and in fact, bright hues of any sort are taboos in lingerie or negligee wear of distinction. Pastel pink, the palest baby blue and equally pale lavender and yellow, are used for linings and ribbons in the French gowns, and only cheap ready-made undergarments run with black and velvet and bearing black velvet rosettes and show-bows.

Linon Economy.

For the woman who has no maid or who has a small apartment and does her own laundry work, a great deal of labor may be saved by using paper napkins instead of linen ones, when there are no guests present. The laundering of napkins takes quite a little time and care and one might just as well have that time for a bit of rest or reading. Paper towels, too, have been made quite practical and especially where there are children will also be found a great labor saving device.

Clothes Basket.

A basket with a partition is very convenient for keeping the white from the colored clothes or stockings, or starched clothes from the unstarched, writes a contributor to the Woman's Home Companion. The division may also be used for clotheing in our first basket we wore the partition of a heavy white cord.

WORE BLUE AT THE ALTAR

NEW DRAPED GOWN

Charming Costume in Which Widow Took New Matrimonial Vows at Recent Wedding.

Not long ago there was much restriction of color about the bridal dress of a widow, but this waning year has seen many changes in that respect. A very handsome and charming widow bride wore pale blue, with hat to match, and many plumes of the same soft hue. Another wore gold color, and looked fascinating with a silk embroidered tulle to match it in hue. Her black velvet hat was crowned with gold and yellow feathers. A short while ago the widow of a well-known man wore maize color on the occasion of her second marriage.

The gown was champagne, the long trained skirt bordered with dark brown fur, and some beautiful antique Brussels lace trimmed the bodice and formed each sleeve. To complete the harmony of the toilet the brown velvet hat was exactly matched her stable shoes. There is really no reason that the bride toilet of widows should not show as radiant as brides, except perhaps white and very light cream, and, of course, black.

New Trimmings.

Many of the afternoon gowns appear in green, soft, open de chise and even gowns.

Costly models of the latest made upon empire lines are often trimmed with heavy and heavy embroidery.

A BOY INTERPRETER

A Young Massachusetts Boy in Canada Twenty Years Ago Wants to Return.

Twenty years ago, a blond-haired young Swede, a boy of about 10 years of age, accompanied a party of his friends on a long trip to Western Canada as an interpreter. The party he accompanied landed at Wetaskiwin, Alberta, now one of the most thriving and best settled districts in Western Canada. For three years he remained in the district. Homesickness took him back to his home at Pittsburgh, Mass., and he has remained there for 17 years. He has heard frequently from his friends in the West. He has followed their movements and watched their progress. He has heard how the town he helped to establish has risen from a shack to a growing, thriving, brick business center, with the surrounding country peopled now by thousands of happy homesteaders. One of the first he was one of the first to help plant the colony of twenty or twenty-five. In his letter to an official of the Department of the Interior, he wrote: "When I was up in Canada, Calgary was a small town and so was Edmonton, but I understand they have grown wonderfully since."

The young man when he went last learned a machine trade, he has patents and inventions but he wants to go to Canada again. And he likely will, but when he does he will find a greater change than he may expect. Calgary and Edmonton are large cities, showing marvelous and wonderful growth. The railway line of the railway made a somewhat tortuous and indefinite way across the plains to its mountain pass, there are three lines of railway dividing the trade of hundreds of thousands of farmers, carrying freight to the hundreds of towns and cities crossing and criss-crossing the prairie in all directions, reaching out into new settlements, and preceding districts to be newly opened for incoming settlers. He will not be able to secure a homestead unless at a considerable distance from the town, the three dollar an acre land is selling at from $15 to $35 an acre. He will find now what was but a theory then, that this land was then $3 an acre is worth the $30 or $35 that he may be asked for, and a good deal more. But he will find that he can secure a homestead just as good as any that were taken in his day, and today worth $35 an acre, but at some distance from a line of railway, yet with a certainty of railway in the near future, and he will find too that he can still get land at $15 to $18 an acre that he will in a year or two be worth $30 or $35 an acre. Mr. Moss-son is talking to his countrymen about Canada. Advertisement.

If We Saw the Beyond.

Now I do not for a moment believe that if those mysterious portals were flung wide, and we could see without hindrance all the secrets of the great beyond, we should necessarily be either better or happier. On the contrary, the probability is that the average human nature being what it is, the reality would be degraded to the ordinary levels of the human interior. In this world we have the edge of life we cannot rise above what we are. What is wanted is a certain quality of life itself which will give us the assurance of the nearness and sweetness of the best and highest in the eternal kingdom of love.

PIMPLES COVERED FACE

1611 Dayton St., Chicago, Ill.—"My face was very red and irritated and was covered with pimples. The pimples fevered and came to a head. They itched and burned and when I scratched them became sore. I tried soaps and they would not stop the itching and burning of the skin. This itching and burning of the skin I lasted for a month or more. At last I tried Cuticura Ointment and Soap. They took out the burning and itching of the skin, soothing it very much and giving the relief that the doctors failed to give me. I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment about three weeks and was completely cured." (Signed) Miss Clara Mueller, Mar. 1st, 1912.
