LEWIS SINGLE BINDER

STANDARD CHAIR SEATERS

HAT WANTED (See inside page, page 10, N. W. U. Chicago, No. 27-131.)

Very Unusual.

"You newspaper fellows are ordinarily hard pressed for funds, are you not?" asked the genial stranger.

Our natural pride forbade us to agree with this outsider's conclusion. So we said:

"Why—no, not necessarily. What makes you think so?"

"I'll tell you. I am acquainted with a member of your profession—and a fine chap he is too. The other day I wanted to talk to him, so I called him up on the phone and asked him if he would lunch with me. He accepted, and at the appointed hour we sat at the table. I opened the conversation thus:

"Well, what's the news? Anything unusual in your line?"

"Yes," answered the reporter, "this."

Why They Came.

Willie, aged four, had been invited out to tea with his mother, and while he was being dressed for the occasion, the delights in store for him had been depicted in glowing terms.

While his mother chatted with her hostess, Willie sat in solemn silence, and at last the lady of the house rose. "Now I must bring in tea," she announced, then added: "Would Willie like some tea?"

The child eyed her in astonishment, and in a deeply hurt tone, responded: "Why, that's what we came for!"

Studying the Game.

On a certain southern golf course the sand pits are famous for their difficulty. A New York man played into one of the pits, and then cursed none the less malevolently, if silently, while he took six ineffectual strokes, raising only clouds of sand and fairly burying the ball. Presently he was aware of an interested and incredulous ducky watching him.

"What you see do make you try to kill, man?" he demanded.

Militant Housewife.

Neighbor's child, a door-plate, please, ma'am, mother wants to know if you'd be so kind as to lend her your recipe for makin' bombs. The last one she made only smelled bad and wouldn't burn.

Its Term.

"When a comet comes back—"

"Yes, dear?"

"Could you properly call it a star revival?"

BANISHED

Coffee Finally Had to Go.

The man who stammers is apt to break his word when telling the truth.

COFFEE

Every one who knows it to coffee, even after they claim it is doing them harm, is a punter. But it is an easy matter to give it up for good, when Postum is properly made and used instead. A girl writes:

"Mother had been suffering with nervous headaches for seven weary years, but kept on drinking coffee."

"One day I asked her why she did not give up coffee, as a cousin of mine had done who had been in Postum. But Mother was such a slave to coffee she thought it would be terrible to give it up."

"Finally, one day, she made the change to Postum, and quickly her headaches disappeared. One morning while she was drinking Postum so freely and with such relief, I asked for a taste."

"That started me on Postum and I now drink it more freely than I did coffee, which never comes into our house now."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Write for booklet, "The Road to Wellville."

Postum comes in two forms.

Regular Postum (must be boiled).

Instant Postum doesn't require boiling, but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in an ordinary cup of hot water, which makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and some people who like the Postum put in a large spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream.

Experiment, until you know the correct Postum for your taste and have it served that way in the future.

"There's a Reason" Postum.

NEWS and GOSSIP OF THE NATION

Tells All About Styles at the National Capital

WASHINGTON.—A curious request came to the editor in the early spring months. The next time you go to Washington, write a subscriber, "won't you make some observations and tell us what the latest styles are, as observed by Mr. We have fashion books, of course, but what does the average man observe in woman's attire?"

The letter was dispatched to Washington with one memorandum, but lay neglected until one day, one afternoon I stumbled in on a delegation from a fashionable young ladies' school being received by the president in the east room of the White House, writes Joe Mitchell, Chaplain in National Magazine. They were a bright lot of girls, laughing and chatting as beauteous young and pretty maidens. Every hat seemed to have a ribbon rudder veering out prominently astern. "Boat-shaped" hats seemed the trend of that line of military. There were hats with a little less elaborate popping up like a lonecom try-all looked well aft. There were sweeping hats, suggesting ancy yachts, floating over dainty little shell-like ears.

Some of them might have been worshipped without breaking any of the commandments, being utterly unlike anything either in the heavens above or the earth beneath. The absence of birds on these hats would have delighted the Audubon and Humana societies, for not a bird was in sight in that line of hat craft, although it looked as if several birds' nest lace creations were stowed away in some of the crowns. As for the editorial eye of the observer could see, the hat bodies were made of straw. This, I believe, characteristics summing up the hat fashion of the season.

As the request was limited to styles, nothing may be added or conjectured as to the "high cost" of the various and the fancy jackets, loosely worn, resembled in the upper story the lines of a fancy pajama, while the lower story was refused to preserve the nautical trend of the fashions.

She Was a Grand Little Lorgnette Operator

THE wife of a government official and as a climber she could beat anything in the fire department. At mounting the ladder she was better than Chief Wagner's bestest fire eater. She could put one hand on the barrier of social legerde and leap into the center of things and pretend she had always been in it.

She was a grand lorgnette operator. That was one of her prime acquisitions. She had practiced lorgnetting in much the same fashion that feverish golfers practice driving with a professional on the side lines. As a professional on the side lines, she was a grand lorgnette operator. She had practiced lorgnetting in much the same fashion that feverish golfers practice driving with a professional on the side lines. As a professional on the side lines, she was a grand lorgnette operator.

We will call Johnson, although it is nothing like it.

One day Mrs. Lorgnette had occasion to visit the office in which Mr. Johnson was working. Mrs. Lorgnette had a hearty broadened friend with her and for some reason it pleased her to pretend not to know Mr. Johnson.

Up went the trusty lorgnette and she scanned the office. A large-sized, well-sharpened look of inquiry.

"Let me see," she said with a tea party accent, "have I not met you somewhere about. Isn't your name, or—ah—let's try it."

Remember, now, she knew that name Johnson perfectly well.

"Yes," he said, "it is Gray. So good to see you to remember it."

And now Mrs. Lorgnette is beginning to believe that Gray-Johnson was making game of her.

He Illustrated the Great Possibilities of Debate

REPRESENTATIVE Charles D. Carter of Oklahoma is proud of the fact that he is one of the few men in Congress, in whose veins there is a goodly share of original American blood. In other words, Representative Carter boasts of seven-eighths Cherokee and Cherokee Indian blood.

Representative Carter spent his boyhood on the western frontier of the Chickasaw nation, and since he entered national politics has had much to do with the framing of Indian legislation under the dome of the capitol.

When the lumber schedule of the new tariff bill was discussed a while ago Carter, who is straight as an arrow and swarthy of complexion, told the following story to illustrate the possibilities of debate on that important schedule:

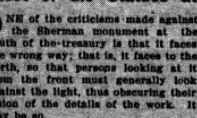

"In the early days of Oklahoma politics there was a joint political discussion between a Republican and a Populist. Both played checkers with their past political records, the Republican having been a 'Greenbacker' and the Populist a Republican. After the former had finished a scathing attack on the vagaries of Populism the latter read a 'Greenback' speech made years before by his antagonist and rested his case."

"The evidence was conclusive and the case looked bad for the Republican, when the accused dramatically demanded a recess."

"Mr. Populist, did you never make a political utterance of which you were ashamed and for which you would apologize?"

"Yes," replied the Populist with absolute frankness: "I was living once in a dugout in southwest Kansas, dirt for the bottom, dirt for the top and dirt for the sides, and it was a bitter winter. I had nothing but a flimsy, run-out quilt hung in the doorway to keep the chilling blast of winter from freezing my shaking frame. I stood shivering and shivering, and raised my hands to heaven and prayed for a high tariff on lumber!"

Most of the Statues at the Capital Face North

ONE of the criticisms made against the Sherman monument at the south of the treasury is that it faces the wrong way; that is, it faces to the north, so that persons looking at it from the front must necessarily look against the light, thus obscuring their vision of the details of the work. It may be so.

Most of the statues in the public spaces of the capital face toward the south, but a number of statues in addition to that of Sherman look toward the north. Among those facing north or northerly are Rawlins, Cook, Cushman, Steuben, Paul Jones, Alexander Shapburt and Samuel D. Cross, the Christian whose effigy stands in the grounds of the Smithsonian institution.

Among those facing to the south are Andrew Jackson, George Washington, Lafayette, Rochambeau, Benjamin Franklin, Farragut, Dupont, Thomas, McCallister and Witherspoon, Jackson, Green, Hancock, Polaski and Marshall at the foot of the capitol look toward the west.

Albert Pike, Sheridan and Longfellow face toward the east, and as the correspondent writes this his memory seems to tell him that the statues of Garfield, Grant and the statue of Daniel Webster face east, but memory is sometimes a tricky thing.

The statue of Robert E. Lee in the Soldiers' home grounds is another that faces toward the north.

NEWS FROM FATHERLAND

A Brief Resume of the Most Important Happenings in the German Empire.

"Count Zeppelin and his technical staff at Friedrichshafen are convinced that the modern dirigible airship can cross the Atlantic," said a Berlin dispatch, "and it is probable that a voyage from Germany to New York will be undertaken this summer. This was a mighty interesting reading. But it was soon spotted by the following correction: 'The Zeppelin Airship company states that the report that a Zeppelin dirigible is shortly to visit America is unfounded. All that has happened is that a member of the company stated that such a cruise would be possible for Zeppelin and might possibly take place in the year 1914.'"

One of the most interesting features of the celebration of Kaiser Wilhelm's silver jubilee was a lecture at the University of Berlin. In the presence of a most distinguished audience Prof. Otto Hintze mounted the platform and announced that the Kaiser had permitted him to give out very important historical secret. When the revolution of 1848 compelled King Friedrich IV of Prussia to grant his country a constitution, he drew up a "political testament" for his successors. The document, which was written in his own hand, urged upon his successors to abrogate the constitution and to restore the empire in its place. The document was handed to Kaiser Wilhelm I, who, in turn, left it to Kaiser Friedrich III. At his death it came into the hands of Kaiser Wilhelm II, the present ruler. He took the matter very seriously, and finally decided to destroy the "testament," which he did by burning it, whereupon he returned the envelope to the archives after having written on it, "Contents destroyed." He afterwards made it as though he had made him feel as though he had "a keg of powder in the house." What the young ruler was afraid of was, that the weak ruler might try to make use of the document. This revelation made a profound impression upon the audience as well as upon the whole nation.

The newspaper men of the world were much excited by the golden jubilee of Kaiser Wilhelm to make another dig into the mysteries surrounding the last few months of his life and the fate of the present ruler of Germany. It is such fascinating reading in the matter-of-fact world of our day, the last few months of his life of the world story, the most outlandish of the present ruler of Germany. THE BEST TREATMENT FOR ITCHING SCALPS, DANDRUFF AND FALLING HAIR

To allay itching and irritation of the scalp, prevent dry, thin and falling hair, remove crusts, scales and dandruff, and promote the growth and beauty of the hair, the following special treatment is most effective, agreeable and economical. On retiring, comb the hair out straight all around, then begin to scalp and make the parting, gently rubbing Cuticura Ointment into the parting with a bit of soft flannel held over the end of the finger. Another additional parting about half an inch apart until the whole scalp has been treated, the purpose being to get the Cuticura Ointment on the scalp rather than on the hair. It is well to place a light covering over the hair to protect the yellow from possible stains. The next morning, shampoo with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Shampoos alone may be used as often as agreeable, but once or twice a month is generally sufficient for this special treatment for women's hair.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free with 12¢ Skin Book. Address: Post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."

Donald's Opinion.

Donald was an old Scotch beagle who officiated in a Highland Kirk where the minister, never a bright fellow, was a good deal of a failure in giving full value for the money, as it were, in his discourses. A stranger once asked him his opinion of the sermon.

"Ah, well," replied Donald, "you'll no get me to say anything against them, for they're a very good, but I'll just remark this much:

"The beaast's aye over far frae the end, an' it would greatly improve the force o' it if he left out 'a' that cam' in atween."

CAMPAIN TO SAVE BABIES

Before All Things, the Need of Pure Milk Comes First, According to All Authorities.

It is estimated that a baby nursed by its mother has approximately ten times the chances to live than a bottle-fed baby has. All weavers workers, therefore, are advised to encourage mothers to make every effort to carry out this most important maternal duty.

A clean milk supply is a fundamental need. Nothing short of clean milk for everybody. But the need for the prompt remedy of bad milk conditions is more urgent in its relation to the welfare of babies than that of adults, since dirty milk is largely responsible for the occurrence of diarrhoea and enteritis, the most frequent cause of death among infants.

The remedy lies in the intelligent and effective inspection of farms, the means of transportation, and the shops where the milk is sold, and in ordinances governing the sale of "dipped" or "loose" milk.
