Rock River Conference.

The Rock river conference of the Methodist Episcopal church embraces in its territory all the northern portion of the state of Illinois. It holds its sessions annually. It numbers about 350 churches, and all of these men who are in active service, receive their appointments year by year from the bishop who may provide. A Methodist bishop may exercise the functions of his office anywhere in the world for the "world is his parish."

Matters of great interest come before every conference and often problems that are perplexing. The most difficult of all is the suitable arrangement for so many ministers. In this work the bishop is assisted by the six district superintendents. There will be some important changes in appointments this year.

The conference begins on next Wednesday, October 1, and will last for a week.

The pastor of the local church is closing his sixtieth year of service here and has received a cordial invitation from his people to return for another year. The prospect is that he will be permitted to do so. As it is, he is one of only five or six in the whole conference body, who have served so long in one charge. The time limit of five years has been removed and a pastor may stay a lifetime if he and the people, and the bishop agree.

The annual conference in Methodism is not a law-making body. Only the general conference, meeting once in four years, has any legislative function.

Laymen, either men, or women, on each pastoral charge hold a laymen conference and discuss matters of interest to them and to the church.

Fire Prevention Day.

Governor Duane has issued a proclamation making Thursday, October 9, fire prevention day. Of this day Mr. Duane says:

"I earnestly recommend that our people observe it by a general cleaning up and removal of all rubbish, trash and waste from their premises."

"Let all heating apparatus and chimneys be carefully gone over and placed in a proper condition for winter use."

"Let all public and private institutions, hotels, asylums, factories and theatres be carefully looked over on that day and, when necessary, any changes made that will further protect the safety of the occupants."

"Let local authorities give attention to the matter of better building regulations, fire prevention and prevention, as well as added apparatus for fire fighting."

"Lastly, let fire drills be held on that day in institutions, factories and in public, private and parochial schools, and let our citizens be instructed in their proper conduct through short talks and proper programs, on the dangers of fire and the simpler means of fire prevention."

The waste of energy and resources in all parts of the country by fire is in spite of the extreme dry and many states are setting aside a day to be observed in this manner.
