It appears to be the impression of many that commercial clubs are necessary only in large cities, and therein, they are mistaken. The smaller the town the more necessary is such an organization. It is the logical and conscentrated action of the business people of a community which makes large cities out of small towns.

Just now a piano factory wishes to me here. It would bring a good class of citizens here, make more business and advertise the town. All admit is would be a good thing and would like to see the factory choose this village for a location, but it is left to a few of nor a location, but it is left to a tew on the more public spirited citizens to de-yote their time and attention to the project. What a first thing it would be if we had a commercial club now to handle this matter. The subject would be handled much more readily and ad-azantageously, and everyone would bear this share of the burden. There are a number of business men new who take the same view that we

In addition to the contributions of this all-star cast of writers and artists in every issue of The Chicago Sunday Tribune, you get fifty to sixty feature articles by from fifty to sixty writers whose words are an admitted authority upon the themes on which they write; every item of interest worth printing from every spot on the globe—the cream of the world's doings, both in our own America and foreign lands, furnished by every reliable news-gathering agency known to modern newspaperdom.

For nearly 65 years The Chicago Tribune has been the ideal newspaper of newspaper makers and the discriminating EVERYWHERE.

Buy It Every Day And Sunday Too!

From the first page to the last The Chicago Sunday Tribune is perfectly printed from large, clear, easily-read type; its color work, of which there are many pages, is a beautiful example of rapid press work and the many striking half-tone and line drawings with which its columns are illustrated are sarpassed by no paper published in the English language and are equated by few.
