

LIBRARY ELECTION
CAUSES COMMENT

The Chicago Herald Writes Sarcastic Editorial on the Outcome of the Recent Election.

CASTLE CORRECTS MISTAKEN IDEAS

"The voice of the people" has spoken. It spoke against the establishment of a public library in Darrington. His decision, especially on the part of the women voters, so astounded the water world that one of the world's most prominent newspapers, the Chicago Herald, commented on the election in its editorial columns.

Editors of big city newspapers are on important subjects; they are written by men of brains and wide information and so, the fact that space would

The Herald asked for the "inside story." Later it published an article, no doubt from a Barrington pen, telling of our expenses at present, but the figures given are incorrect. All kinds of wild and exaggerated stories claiming a library would be started in the village, scared many who hurried to vote against the proposition to establish of house and home, food and clothing, automobiles and diamonds.

Following are the two clippings from the Herald:

Is Harriet Martineau's Practical Education the first text to have been compelled to answer those questions? Is the fate of the review, in turn, the first to have been compelled to answer those questions? We are grateful to the editor for his affirmative answer to these questions. We are also grateful to the editor for his affirmative answer to the question, "Is Harriet Martineau's Practical Education the first text to have been compelled to answer those questions?"

There are about $5,000 worth of bonds still to be paid for on the school and $12,000 more for a septic tank put in last year. The town is looking forward to the installation of a sewer system to cost from $75,000 to $100,000.

"The bequest of Mrs. Caroline Elwell, which started the library movement, calls for the interest on $1,000 in maintaining a library if the town levies a tax for the remainder. As the interest cannot amount to more than $50 a year, the establishment of a

PARADISE FOR THE ARTIST

Devotees of the Brush Are Accorded Accommodations Without Price

Capri, beautiful in itself as a winter resort, offers an irresistible invitation to artists, since it has an art where, by painting a picture on the wall, can get free board.

To the lovely island of Capri, with its perennial summer, its blue grotto, and its lemon groves, came, some fifty years ago, a ruined artist. He opened an inn, and died rich in his art, leaving the inn to his heirs. He made these conditions:

"The charge per day, two bottles of red Capri wine included, is never to be more than six francs.

"If any artist is too poor to pay he shall paint upon some wall space, recording all the accommodations accorded to those paying the highest price.

"If any German artist shall come to the inn he shall be accommodated, and shall receive the amount of the fare to Germany upon his promising to return to Italy."

The inn is conducted today on these conditions. Its walls are covered with paintings. Now and then a German gets his fare home.

His Contribution.

"Have you contributed anything to the surface cause?"

"Yes, two statures and one wife."

Regular Rates.

"Pa, what are literary accommodations?"

"About five dollars a story, son, and five dollars for a poem."

SICK DOCTOR

Proper Food Put Him Right.

The food experience of a physician in his own case when weak and sick from sickness and when needing nourishment the worst way, is valuable.

"An attack of grip, so severe it came near making an end of me, left my stomach in such condition I could not retain any ordinary food. I knew of course that I must have food nourishment or I could never recover.

"I began to take four teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts and cream three times a day and for 2 weeks this was almost my only food. It tasted so delicious that I enjoyed it immensely and my stomach began to get back to normal health and strength.

"Grape-Nuts is of great value as food to sustain life during serious attacks in which the stomach is so damaged it cannot digest and assimilate other foods.

"I am convinced that were Grape-Nuts more widely used by physicians, it would save many lives that are otherwise lost from lack of nourishment."

Names given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

The most perfect food in the world. Trial of Grape-Nuts and cream 10 days gives, "Grippe's Remedy."

THE REWARD OF COURTESY

From little sprouts big trees will grow.

And it is much the same in social affairs. We think too much of the ending and not enough of the beginning.

We overlook the little things today which have to do with the making of the big ones of tomorrow.

This tendency of human nature is strikingly illustrated in the case of a gentleman who had occasion to employ a clerk in a country town. He was remarkably impressed by the uniform courtesy shown him by the citizens of the place.

It was interesting to him to find a public building, or a park, or a manufacturing enterprise, a dozen men were ready with information and explanations, pointing out the various advantages, and with ever a good word for the people. They made him welcome.

A few weeks later while traveling in another state he met a manufacturer who was in search of a change of location for his plant. He mentioned the place he had recently left, and spoke in glowing terms of the people, their character, and especially of their courtesy to the stranger within their gates.

The manufacturer was much impressed, and a few days later visited the place. He is there now with his factory and his 100 employees.

Truly, a man's tongue has a wider influence upon the future of his own town.

Is there a lesson in it for us?

SOCIAL CENTERS

The crying need of rural Illinois is social centers where our young people can be entertained, amused and instructed under the direction of cultured, clean and competent leadership, where aesthetic surroundings etc. etc. are the beautiful, pleasant and charming atmosphere with inspiration and power, and innocent amusements features and brighten their lives.

To hold our young people on the farm we must make farm life more attractive, as well as the business of farming more remunerative. The schoolhouse should be the hub, properly equipped for recreation and building character, so that the lives of our people can properly function around it and become supplied with the necessary elements of human thought and activity.

rary on such a basis was considered impossible.

To the Editor of the Barrington Review: I believe that it is not necessary because the men and women of Barrington are against libraries, or the diffusion of knowledge, or books, that the proposition to establish a free public library was overwhelmingly defeated at last Wednesday's election, as suggested by the Chicago Herald editorial of Friday. The real reason, I think, is found in the misstatements of the law inferentially circulated by the opponents of the library the last day or two before the election, which deceived a majority. The voters.

From the information at hand these misstatements were apparently three in number, viz: (1) that the library directors when elected could run the village into debt by issuing bonds, (2) that the library tax, although limited to two mills on the dollar the first year, could to subsequent years be increased, and (3) that it would be unwise to build a library building to allow a room in the school building to be temporarily used for a library and reading room. I shall discuss briefly these three propositions in their order.

(1) The library directors have no authority to issue bonds. If they should a building is erected they may report to the village board, and if the village board approves the report and believes it necessary that bonds be issued to pay the cost of a building, an ordinance to that effect can be passed. But before such ordinance can become effective, or any bonds legally issued, the question of issuing such bonds would have to be submitted to the voters of the village, at an election called for that purpose, as was done before the bonds for the public park were issued.

(2) The library tax rate is limited by statute to two mills on the dollar, or two on each $100 assessed valuation. The library tax must be levied in the annual appropriation ordinance passed the village board. No tax levied in excess of the above rate would be legal. In places of over 1,500 inhabitants this rate may be in addition to the regular village rate of 1.50 on each $100 assessed valuation, but in places under 1,500 it must be included in this rate. Based on the tax rate for the year 1913, there were to be a library tax in Barrington of two mills on the dollar, each tax payer who pays $25.00 in taxes would have to pay an additional $1.00. The fact that the rate of such tax shall cause in case the legal voters shall so determine by a majority vote at any annual election.

(3) The law gives the board of education supervision and control of all school houses in this district. In a recent case a taxpayer sought to enjoin the school directors from permitting certain fraternal organizations to hold meetings in one room of the school building, and the Supreme court of Illinois refused the injunction, holding that the directors were not exceeding their statutory powers, and that as such use of the building did not in any way damage or injure the building, it was proper for the school board to rent a portion of it for that purpose.

The attempted justification for the refusal of the library proposition, as stated in last Tuesday's Herald, lies down in the fact that the same persons who were "vicariously" opposed to the library were very prominent at the public hearing in the village hall, called by the village board to consider the sever question. The only owner of real estate so that meeting who had the courage to express himself in favor of the sever system was Mr. Spenser. Apparently, when the sever question is being considered, it is popular to oppose it because of some other contemplated movement, and when the library question is being considered, to oppose it because of the sever question.

Mrs. Zia, who left the bequest of $1,000 for a free public library, did not think that the income from that amount would sustain the library, but that the income from that bequest would form, to use her own words, "a nucleus for a free public library for the village of Barrington."

Those of us who took the trouble to hear Dr. Ertle of Des Plaines, at the public meeting held at the school house, heard that the library proposition, when first voted on in the Plaines, was defeated, but that subsequently, when the voters learned that by pledging an annual amount for the library's support, an amount ten times the annual support then pledged could be secured from Mr. Carnegie to build a library building; they voted for the library, and a building costing $4,000 was built. In Park Ridge a library building costing $5,000 was obtained in the same way.

I venture the prediction that when the library question is again submitted to the voters of Barrington, they will show by their votes that Barrington favors that which many other American cities have chosen. And for many years, an institution which has been able to do anything but benefit to all men, women and children of the village, who are willing to use it and obtain its benefits.
