THE RETURN OF SANITY.

When the horrors of the European war commenced to percolate through the American brain a mighty protest went up from one end of this country to the other.

Soldiers were denounced as murderers, as butchers, as men to consider the earth. Insolent and vehement demands were made for disarmament and international peace.

Ministers thundered from the pulpit, orators howled from the stump, excitable citizens declaimed in the public streets, and even the great newspapers of the country led the van in the march of the times.

It was the popular cry of the hour.

If perchance some isolated maverick with an over abundance of nerve timidly suggested that the country was in need of better measures of protection, that relic of barbarism was forthwith cast into the dust of the righteous as a thing useless.

The nation was made quite madly finally upon the peace of peace, not entirely without cause.

But the Brad-shoot, snl, snub, has passed away, and, as is customary in this country, the people have passed for record and more sober thought. The sense of the nation is returning.

People are now beginning to see that the conditions as a whole are practically without the power of resistance.

The public eye is becoming opened to the fact that the American continent offers many tempting invitations to a horde of invasion from foreign countries. The people are becoming reconciled to the fact that unless we place our country in a state of defense, we shall be the first to suffer the fury of the iron heel of the possible conqueror, of sharing in a measure the fate of the unhappy Belgians.

People living Americans have been staggered at the millions of troops being placed in the field by the warring nations of Europe, of the terrible odds and ends in which the world stands apathetic.

In the United States we have a handful of troops, and at best we have the arms and equipment for a maximum army of not to exceed 500,000 men. Our own defenses are lamentably weak, and our navy is so small we would be powerless to prevent the landing of the hordes of invaders.

Our defense is to be in the field of the army and navy, and to be prepared for the coming and bitter war of sterility, for we have no means of checking them.

These disagreeable facts are causing folly here to the people, now that they are taking time to consider conditions as they exist.

Men and women who a week ago were denouncing war and those who fight them, are today demanding that conditions take present measure for placing the country in an adequate state of defense.

Parade Will Feature Marching.

The most imposing Odd Fellowship parade ever witnessed in Illinois will be presented through the principal streets of the city on November 18, the commencement soon to be celebrated by the members of the Odd Fellows lodge and the grand encampment of the I. O. O. F. and the Rebekahs as well as the Knights of Pythias, delegates to the state convention to meet for three days in this city; commencing on November 19.

Over three thousand outwaiters will attend and in company with 1,000 local Odd Fellows, the Rebekahs, Knights of Pythias, and the Rebekahs will compose the bulk of the procession.

Five hundred Patriotic Militant I. O. O. F. members will lead the parade from the city and detachments of the military lodges, Knights of Pythias, Decatur and Bloomington will participate.

The parade will be in full dress with plumed hats and formal equipment of the order.

The attractive march will be greatly enhanced by the decorative effect of each of the lodges.

The corps, exemplifying some fundamental truth or some important element of Odd Fellowship, will be prepared by the seven city organizations, Simeon, Lexington and Templeton, the Knights of Pythias, Knights of Rebekah, Lilla and Triple Link Rebekah lodges.

Nearly two hundred automobiles will be present into service, as all the Rebekahs will ride following their men.

As far as can be estimated, the line will be 1000 feet long and consume over one-half hour.

Aside from the fact that the most prominent members of the orders will march in the parade, the Rebekahs will be the first grand parade in 20 years.

It is planned to have it start at 10:30 a. m. and to be completed by 12:30 p. m.

The march will be under direction of the committee on Fourth street, between Monroe and State streets.
