The City Park and Chicago & Northwestern Depot

There is no little pride that these things present to the people and the world at large. In this city which is the seat of a rapidly growing business, our productive agricultural section, our wide-awake and enterprising citizenship, our location near a great trading metropolis like Chicago, Barrington is destined within the next few years to take the highest rank among villages and cities of her class in Illinois, in matters of general public importance. The object of this edition is to present to those who may be interested, a brief resume of the growth and prosperity of Barrington, and of the conditions which state forth its advantages as a city of residence.

In connection with this is also presented a brief review of the more progressive business firms and the men who through their untiring energy and public spirit, which enters so largely into the prosperity and growth of Barrington. A village of city is measured very largely by the character, ability, and enterprise of the men and firms which constitute its business interests, and in this respect Barrington is peculiarly fortunate. Nowhere can be found a more progressive and intelligent citizenship than that representing the trade and professional interests of Barrington. They are very conservative, but enterprising, and every proposition having merit receives careful consideration and, if found worthy, meets with liberal and hearty support. A good example of their enterprising spirit was seen last summer, when they so liberally contributed toward the financial success of the Depot park. Another example was their support to the "dry" wave eight years ago.

Barrington has never been compelled to withstand the thrusts of a professional real estate boom, but has enjoyed a steady and healthy growth year to year, and is today a wholesome village economically, socially, and physically.

Barrington Public School is the equal or superior of any school in villages of its class, and as much can be said of High School. Barrington's churches include six denominations; its homes are substantial and in keeping with a prosperous people; its State Bank is sound to the core and possessed of ample capital to double the business required of them; its streets are broad and shaded; its mercantile establishments represent every line of trade needed in any village, and are properly prepared to care for the needs of their customers.

THE REVIEW will touch lightly upon the history of Barrington; the present and future are what most vitally concern us. This edition of the paper tells a story of more practical interest than that of past events. To tell of the Barrington of today, to boast of the Barrington of now is what counts.

This is a greater Industrial Edition; its interest is to engender a spirit of confidence in its readers in effect that Barrington is really a good town, in which to live and do business, in which to invite the stranger to invest, because its development is safe and certain.

Did you ever stop to realize that the main factor in the upbuilding of a community is the outspoken confidence of its people? The great cities like Chicago, Denver, Kansas City, Los Angeles and others of their class are splendid examples of what persistent and consistent boosting can accomplish for an American town. Not many years ago, the above mentioned cities were young and unimportant, but determination to win, to become greater than other towns by attracting people to them to inhabit, provided and helped themselves, have made these cities homes of an ever increasing population.

The life of the knacker in such a community is brief. He is a "persona non grata." The only person who is welcome is a booster, which in plain language means the man who says, "WILL," the fellow who can smile gamely in the face of adversity and pickily meet conditions which would cause weaker men to despair.

Barrington is located on the Chicago & Northwestern and the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern railways, thirty-two miles northwest of Chicago. It is noted for its progressiveness, and out classes any other town on the Northwestern between the Chicago city limits and Harvard. Nature could not have designed a more charming spot for the building of a city and to nature's gifts has been added man's industry. It is a flourishing village, beautifully situated in the northern part of one of the greatest states of the union, and in the center of one of the most populous and richest farming and dairying districts of the United States.

Barrington is a "dry" town, thanks to the efforts of its foremost citizens. It has broad and shaded streets and is one of the best lighted villages of the state. It has a fine system of sewer works, good drainage, a well equipped public and private, are up-to-date in most respects. In fact, Barrington stands well abreast of her sister villages of northern Illinois. Let her slogan continue—"A GREATER BARRINGTON."

W. F. Burkhardt Jeweler

IN 1907 W. F. Burkhardt decided that Barrington was an ideal place to start a jewelry business. He was formerly located at Sibley, Illinois. The up-to-date establishment that he now has goes to show that his judgment was correct.

In his store are found reliable watches of many makes which are manufactured in this country. Rockford, Waltham, and Elgin watches or any other makes that you might prefer are sold at this up-to-date jewelry store. A good assortment of mantle and alarm clocks are always on display. He has a well lighted salesroom stocked with many of the latest standard goods, including anything in the line of cut glass and Rogers, Yonkers, Community and other staple silverware.

A well selected stock of first quality rings, pins of all kinds, watch chains, fobs, cuff links, and a complete line of other novelties are found in this place. There are also Fackler's Lucky Carve, Waterman's Ideal and Conklin's non-fakeable fountain pens.

All kinds of high grade repair work is done, for Mr. Burkhardt is a thoroughly experienced jeweler and repairer, having been in the business 22 years. He aims to make his repair department one in which people may get prompt service and good work at prices which are right. He is the kind of a business man that tries his best to please, for a great deal of satisfaction is given to every customer.

Sanford Peck Real Estate

AN example of what can be done with plenty of "push" and foresighted business judgment, is the real estate business which has been built up by Sanford Peck. This gentleman has been with us for many years and was formerly one of Barrington's foremost merchants. In 1903 Mr. Peck retired from the mercantile business and took up the real estate line. Since that time he has sold about one hundred and fifty farms in the community. He has done his work well and has always given entire satisfaction to the buyers.

Many prominent men have been induced by property in this community through the efforts of Mr. Peck and he surely deserves much credit for boosting Barrington. Such men as Spencer Otis, George Van Hatten, St. John Hart, R. H. Hammond and William Grace would make any community proud, and we are glad to hail them as Barringtonians.

Every year Mr. Peck's business has increased, and at present he has 7,000 acres to offer prospective buyers.

Both as a real estate man and citizen, this gentleman has established a reputation for honest dealing and progressive business methods. Anything that is good for Barrington has his honest support.

decompositions, a public school system with its present application is one of the best in the county, local and long distance telephone facilities, a good hotel, twenty-four hour electric service for lighting and cooking service, law, lodges for the principal fraternal orders, and facilities for the prompt handling and distribution of freight, passenger, mail and express traffic equal to any village or town of its size in the state. The Northwestern Railway company has just completed a new and up-to-date station.

Commencing with today, let us all renew our allegiance to Barrington. Let us realize that we have cause to be proud to say we live in Barrington, Ill., a town as good as any on earth. Let us get up and do things, do things that are "peppy" and along the line of endeavor suggested in this issue. If every business man in Barrington would put some one effort out of the ordinary in his line of endeavor during the present year, he will have created more business for Barrington in general, more praise and boosting for his town.

There are hundreds of evidences that our village is rapidly improving; that a loyal spirit for Barrington uplift prevails among all classes of her citizens. But we must not remain satisfied with what we have accomplished. There is room for more improvement.

Our village is made up of intelligent, God-fearing, energetic and progressive people. Her institutions, both public and private, are up-to-date in most respects. In fact, Barrington stands well abreast of her sister villages of northern Illinois. Let her slogan continue—"A GREATER BARRINGTON."

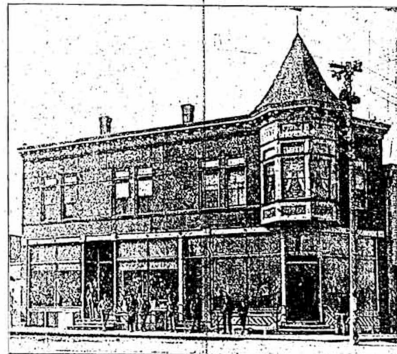

First State Bank of Barrington

WHAT the blood is to the human body, the banking capital of the community is to its business and industrial system; and as long as the capital of the city circulates freely and abundantly among the different members of that complex body we call "business," it will be charged with vigor and vitality.

Barrington is favored with a banking institution of high character, the First State Bank of Barrington, which has a capital of $50,000, a surplus of $5,000 gave bonds, and public service bonds forming absolutely safe investments are for sale.

The officers of the bank are: John Robertson, president; H. J. Lagache, vice-president; Howard P. Castle, vice-president; A. E. Robertson, cashier; A. T. Ultsch, assistant cashier. The directors are: John Robertson, H. J. Lagache, Howard P. Castle, A. L. Robertson, J. F. Gietke, A. W. Meyer, John C. Plasse, George J. Hager, Miles T. Lamey, John L. Melons, H.

and an undivided profit of $2,500. The bank began business on July 10, 1913, with John Robertson as president. Since the very beginning it has made steady advancement. In 1907 the business was a private institution known as the Barrington Bank of Robertson, Plasse & Company. This soon gained prestige and in 1913 the institution was bought and was succeeded by the First State Bank of Barrington.

In addition to an extensive general banking and checking business this bank does a farm loan business which is exceptionally large. Besides the extensive commercial department, the bank has a savings department in which deposits large and small are received and savings bank books issued. The savings bank book method of handling interest earning savings accounts appeals to a large class of depositors; and the bank is desirous of building up a clientele among people seeking a safe place to put the savings where they will earn interest while being available for emergencies. In the bond department $102 farm mort-

K. Brockway, E. W. Riley, R. R. Hammond, G. W. Spomer and G. W. Lagache. The above men are some of the most prominent successful farmers of Barrington and it goes to show that the First State Bank of Barrington is sound to the core and more than capable and efficient for carrying on all important monetary matters.

The recent purchase by this bank of the most prominent business corner lot in the city, which is occupied by the Solt building, suggests the possibility of a new and more spacious bank building in the near future. It is alleged that a new building, when built, would be large enough and extensive enough to carry on the important business of banking in Barrington for at least a period of forty years.

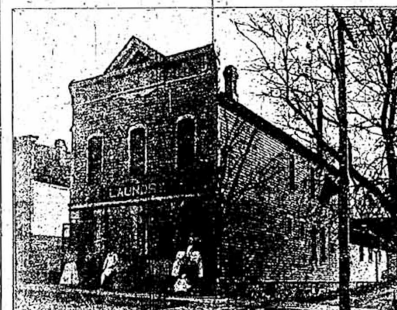

The bank welcomes the friends whose co-operation has made possible the growth shown in its records. Every service consistent with sound banking practice is offered depositors and upon this service the First State Bank of Barrington depends for its continued progress and development.

The Barrington Steam Laundry

If we were asked to name one of the most beneficial and essential institutions in the world today, we should unhesitatingly answer, the modern laundry. The modern laundry is one of the best of the modern, and is the result of a fad, but is the sign of the progress of the times, a big contributor to the evolution of civilization, a factor in the sum of human happiness, sanity, sweetness and light.

Blue Monday was until very recently a disagreeable day. Everybody washed doing its share in keeping the community clean and sanitariously "spick and span." It was on December 12, 1896 that Frank Gietke began the laundry business in the place known as the old Dickinson property on Station street. The first equipment consisted of a boiler, engine, washer and shirt-ironing machine. In 1900 the present laundry was built and owing to the enormous growth of the business since then, numerous additions have been

Jencks & Rohlmeier

THE great agricultural country, of which our city is the center, gives great opportunities for exporting products in farm implements, machinery, etc., on account of Barrington being located in the best agricultural and best dairying district in the United States.

Jencks & Rohlmeier are dealers in all kinds of implements, gas engines, cream separators, harvesting machines, wagons and trucks. They not only do a large local business, but it extends throughout adjoining counties and their patronage is steadily increasing as a result of the commendable business policies which have always been carried out in this firm.

They are also agents for the International trucks, Star horse equipments, Northwestern wagons, also, mature spreaders, and trailers and vulcanizing machines. This company carries a complete line of garden and farm tools, lawnmowers, rollers, and all the accessories to any kind of machine.

Repairing of all kinds of machines is one of the specialties of this institution. Dr. Jencks has been in the business for twelve years; three years ago A. Rohlmeier bought out E. Probst and the company was then called Jencks & Rohlmeier. They always keep a stock of first class goods which sell at fair prices, its meeting the requirements of the trade and following the methods that have met the approval of the buying public this firm has gained respect and patronage which have made it successful.

H. D. A. Grebe--Hardware

WHEN in need of hardware it is best to look over a line that is known to be complete. It is convenient for a person to trade in a store where he knows he can find anything that pertains to the line. It is also good to know that the quality is of the very best. The Grebe hardware store is one in which you will find anything you want, and which may also depend upon the goods for that carry the best brands on the market.

Lageschulte & Hager

OF all important industries, there is none so distinctly American as the trade in lumber and building material. In Barrington because of its progressive qualities there is a large trade in these commodities and its location makes this city the point of supply for a large area of surrounding territory. In any city the firm who supplies the material for her residences and buildings is an important factor in her development and progress.

Lageschulte & Hager do an extensive business in all kinds of lumber, such as, doors, shingles, posts, lath, etc., and in addition they sell tile, feed, hay, all kinds of seeds, roofing, plaster-board materials, red brick, shingles, hard wood, and coal.

This lumber yard has been one of the oldest firms in our city having been here nearly twenty years, but it was in 1913 that Lageschulte & Hager bought out Lageschulte Brothers. George Hager and Walter Lageschulte are the present managers. Good service is one of their aims as well as good quality; and they aim to deliver a most efficient service in the most possible time.

This lumber company's yards are located near the Northwestern railroad tracks and is one of the largest concerns in this part of Lake and Cook counties. The present management has kept all in its power for the interests of the patrons and Lageschulte & Hager is now one of the soundest institutions in our community.

John C. Plagge--General Store

GROCERY and merchandise establishments.

Among the men's furnishings are found stylish Arrow collars and dress shirts, Cooper's closed cloth underwear, Smith & Wallace's line of shoes and everything that a man needs in clothing. The future sex is not slighted at this store, for the famous American Lady corsets, Dependence underwear, Black Cat hosiery, the latest fashions in new idea patterns, shoes and gloves for young and old are sold here.

To include all that Mr. Plagge is affiliated with in Barrington would most involve the writing of a book. Space here only provides for the mention of a few. He is president of the Board of Education, and also of the Barrington Park Campmeeting association, a member of the village board, a director of the First State Bank of Barrington, assessor for the township of Barrington, notary public, an agent for four of the leading fire insurance companies of the country and one of the most prominent members of the Salem church. In brief Mr. Plagge is not only a big man physically, but also commercially, socially, mentally and spiritually.

Mr. Plagge has been in the business since 1878 at which time he was located in the old 214 building. Several important steps mark the progress which have taken place in Mr. Plagge's merchandise career. In 1891 he built the building at which he is now located, the Plagge Block. In October 1910 a line in the retail trade as Mr. Plagge's. Fancy groceries, Danabon's, coffee ground by an electric mill, a full line of canned goods, spices and oils of the best grades of flour are a few of the special features of this store. When we say well we don't give much thought to anything but business and pleasure, but when we are sick we send a hurry call for a doctor—the druggist is a secondary consideration. This is all wrong, for the druggist is almost equal in importance to the doctor, by reason of the fact that the prescriptions must be filled to the letter.

In addition to the standard drugs, chemicals, proprietary medicines, a complete line of toilet articles, stationery, E. P. S. paints, candles, cigars and tobacco is carried by the Hawley drug store. A big line of Kodaks and photographic supplies are a specialty with this store.

V. D. Hawley

This establishment is located on Cook and Railroad streets in the South building. Although there was considerable damage and loss by fire a few weeks ago, Mr. Hawley has restocked and is again able to supply customers. A fire and removal sale is now taking place.

V. D. Hawley is one of our youngest and most energetic business men. He is a Barrington product, having graduated from the local high school in the class of '07. In 1909 he graduated from the Northwestern College of Pharmacy and has been in the pharmacy business in Barrington since that time. He has every quality to do great things for Barrington in the future and we wish him success.

It is plainly evident in 1920 when he helped elevate the position that brought the great water works system to Barrington. He also is an energetic worker in the "dry" cause. He endeavors to give the public the benefit of his experience and we hope to meet with more men like him.

D. C. Schroeder--Garage

AMONG the newest of our business men in the automobile occupation is D. C. Schroeder. Although he has been dealing in automobiles for the last seven years, it was not until last September that he built his salesroom and service station. He is thoroughly experienced in his line, and knows the automobile "from top to bottom." He is agent for the well known Ford and DeSoto machines.

D. C. Schroeder Garages and G. F. Stiefenhofer, Black

HAVE you ever given it a thought, the difference between skilled labor and that which is not skilled—have you just gone along without any regard for the future? The things of things? It will pay you to consider the matter, and when it comes to settle the horsehoeing you will want it done by someone who knows how to do it right.

George F. Stiefenhofer and his able assistant are expertly skilled in this business and are prepared to satisfactorily and promptly execute any job in their line that may be entrusted to them. They will show you the difference both in price and appearance between skilled and unskilled workmanship and cheap shoddy labor. Their buggy and wagon repairing is done in conjunction with August John, who is capable and experienced wagon maker. Polishing is a specialty, and the shop is fully equipped with machinery for

Arnold Schauble--Inventor

DO you realize that Barrington has in her midst an inventor of no mean ability, who has accomplished great things in the world of invention? He is our own Arnold Schauble. He has worked hard during the past twenty-five years, and in that time has acquired a name as a mechanical genius, which has helped to put our city on the map.

In the early autumn he manufactured a creamery machine of his own contrivance which he shipped to every state in the Union as well as to Germany and Denmark. In 1908 he secured a patent on a gasoline engine which he named "The Barrington Gasoline Engine of A. Schauble & Co., Barrington, Ill."

Telephone Exchange

THE Chicago Telephone Company, by which the Barrington exchange is controlled, reaches every point in the city and sections immediately tributary, Cook, Lake, Kane and McHenry counties. There are about 250 city and rural phones, receiving service through this exchange, about 1,600 calls are taken care of daily.

This exchange connects with the following four interstate companies: Chicago, Wisconsin, Cleveland and Michigan companies.

The present local force consists of a manager, J. H. Conrath; chief operator, Ross Kampert; wire chief, George Williams, and five day and night operators. The service is of the best.

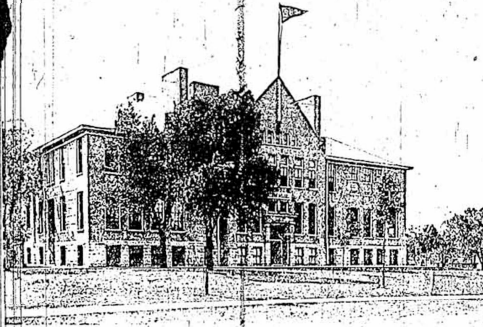

John Cadwallader

The Main Street Jeweler

JEWELRY stores play an important part in the industrial life of a community, especially commercial centers. For their business of selling and repairing watches is an absolute necessity to the community. By time, we reckon everything, and it is necessary that we have the right time. At the Main Street Jeweler store you can buy the best known South Bend watches which are used by many of the railroad men of the United States.

At this store can be found a complete line of everything that pertains to jewelry. They sell only the best. Their watches are a beautiful stock of cut glass, and an exceptional assortment of fine clocks and fountain pens.

Mr. Cadwallader has been the Main Street Jeweler since April 1, 1914, having graduated from the Bradley Theological College of Peoria, Ill. He is an expert watch repairer and makes engraving a specialty. During his career as a jeweler he has always been a pleasant gentleman to deal with, and he always give good prices, and are right.

Barrington Public School

THE Barrington public school occupies a delightful and attractive location in the central and most prominent part of Barrington. Situated on North, Lake and South Halsted streets, it is easily accessible from all parts of town. Barrington is a most desirable town for a wholesome educational influence. Its people are thrifty, enterprising and cordial.

Country Life Association

UNITY in a community means strength, and no other organization has accomplished in Barrington more unity in a given length of time than the Barrington Country Life Association. Its purpose in organization is to produce community interest, to encourage harmony among people of the different walks of life, and to raise the standard of living in the society at large. The membership consists of business men of this village and energetic citizens and farmers of this town and country.

Credit for the origin of this society may justly be given to two men, H. J. Lageschulte and Prof. E. S. Smith. In February, 1913, these two gentlemen began making plans for the beginning of this association, and through hustle and hard work managed to make it a reality. The first meeting was held the same month, and subscriptions were taken up to defray expenses of this meeting. The women who were interested prepared a free dinner, which was served to the people. Prominent speakers were present at this meeting, and a large crowd attended. H. J. Lageschulte was elected the first president. In March, 1915, the second annual meeting was held. This meeting was a decided success, and among the prominent speakers present was Mr. Fisher of the University of Illinois. At this meeting the Woman's Country Life Association was organized with Mrs. S. Gleske as president. Mrs. McKee, wife of the Secretary of Illinois State Farmers' Institutes was present to give an interesting address. At present the membership of the Woman's organization is 110.

In co-operation with the Woman's organization, the Barrington Country Life Association brought the Household Science Demonstration car to this village in January and it is useless to enumerate the benefits derived. A poultry show was held this year and was very interesting. The 1916 annual meeting was held on January 14 and 15. The invited speakers were: E. S. Smith, president; Daniel Gilly and F. H. Plagge, vice-presidents; A. L. Robertson, secretary and treasurer. The board of directors are: Edward Landwer, C. A. Hallberg, Fred Kirschner, James Sietel, Edward Nagge, George Humphrey, George Bauman, A. Neekles and Edward Rothmiller.

The Barrington Public School

has excellent steam heating and automatic ventilating systems. Barrington is an inviting community for families who wish to educate their children and to enjoy a good environment, with no great expense. The school ground is one of the beauty spots of the town, for the true principles of landscape gardening have so faithfully been observed in the location of the building, playground and walks, as to make the entire group a beautiful park.

The building is about 120 by 60 feet in width and 13 large class rooms and an office. It is fireproof throughout, of the best modern construction and arranged with suitable conveniences and facilities for thorough, high grade works in general educational lines.

The Barrington public school is one of the most complete and efficient educational institutions of its kind in Cook County. Among the various organizations of the school are: The Boys' Glee Club, Barrington school orchestra, the juvenile boys' band, the Senior Boys' band and the High School Literary Club. Athletics are becoming more and more popular in the school and is a useful outlet for the active energy of the young people. The baseball team is noted both locally and in the pentagon district and is made up of fast players and good sportsmen. The team finished second in the pentagon league last year. At the last two June festivals, in which several of our adjoining towns contested, Barrington was the majority of athletic events each year. Our track team is one which will make itself and Barrington famous in the future. Without a doubt one of the big reasons why our school has made more progress during the last 8 years, than during the fifteen years preceding through them, was the efforts of the principal, Professor E. S. Smith. It is because of his work that our high school is now listed as an accredited high school with the University of Illinois and our large colleges. Professor Smith came to Barrington in 1909. His administration here as superintendent and advisor of the school teachers, with his far-sighted educational ideas, makes it expedient to place him in the class of Barrington's most influential men.

Mr. Smith has the following able corps of teachers: Miss Mabel F. Gard, Miss Jessie Springstead, L. Z. Leland, Miss Ruth Gordon, Mrs. W. N. Sears, Miss Winifred Lawrence, Mrs. R. G. Plagge, Mrs. Alta Bennett, Miss Norma Deussle, Miss Edith Bowne and Mrs. Stella C. Maher.

Various Church Denominations

Names of Present Pastors

THERE are few villages more blessed with houses of worship than Barrington. Here, a stranger may follow the dictates of his own conscience and attend any of the seven denominations represented; that is better, all the congregations are healthy in a spirit sense and growing in good work. In addition to the regular church services, Sunday schools and other auxiliaries are always open to visitors who find a spirit of enthusiasm which at once excites their own enthusiasm and interest.

Following are the names of churches and pastors: St. Paul's Evangelical, Rev. H. Thiele; Baptist, Rev. G. H. Lockhart; Salem Evangelical, Rev. J. Hoerner; Methodist Episcopal, Dr. W. J. Libbertson; St. Ann's Catholic, Father E. A. McCormick; Zion Evangelical, Rev. H. Haug; Christian Science, Mrs. Albert Gleason; First Baptist, Rev. Henry Gillette, Second Reader.

Bowman Dairy Company

ONE of the people know all they had ought to know about the milk that they drink and the cream they use in their coffee? They should know if they value their health and if they have any regard for what is pure, clean and wholesome.

If the milk and cream they buy bears the name of BOWMAN you can be sure that it is pure, tasteful and sweet, for the company turns out nothing but products of this sort.

The Bowman dairy company has for years been the leading dairy concern that supplies milk to Chicago. The plant at Barrington was installed on May 1, 1904. It has increased its daily intake of milk from 16,000 pounds daily in 1904 to 39,000 pounds daily at the present time. 120 farmers from the surrounding community furnish the milk.

The first manager of the plant was E. J. Heise who acted in that capacity for 4 years. During the three years following, H. J. Lageschulte was manager and in 1911, Harry Frick, the present manager took charge. The latter was instrumental in building up the plant to its present condition.

Twenty-two men are employed in the plant and all are local citizens. All of the machinery is modern. A separator with 12,000 pound capacity per hour and a DeLaval direct-drive milk clarifier are the latest additions. The Willman pasteurizer and holder with a 12,000 pound capacity is also used. For pasteurization, the milk is heated to 155 degrees for 30 minutes and then cooled to 40 degrees. The bottle washer washes and sterilizes 30,000 bottles per day. The plant is run entirely by steam power.

Nothing more need be said as to the excellence of the Bowman Dairy Company's product. The name stands for quality and we are glad to emphasize this in writing.

Buff Wyandottes

"B" is the slogan of Frank L. Waterman & Sons, who won the blue ribbon for Wyandottes at the great Chicago poultry and pet stock show last month. At this show they took the first and second prizes for young fowls and second and third for old fowls. Professor Waterman & Sons have taken many prizes during the past fifteen years, including the silver cup offered to the first prize winner in the All-American contest at Quincy, Illinois, last November. Their chief aim is to raise prize fowls, but in so doing they are able to profit as well.

Barrington Woman's Club

THE Barrington Woman's club, in one year's time succeeded in getting a library of over 1,000 volumes. These eighty-five women of Barrington were organized mainly to obtain and maintain a library in Barrington. Besides being bookworms in a literary way, they have been a benefit in a social way. The club is divided into several departments. The Parent Teachers' department is instrumental in educating people in the things of nature, such as the identification of birds, kinds of trees and flowers. It was through the Home Economics department that we recently had the pleasure of listening to a series of lectures on scientific and economical ways of living. The Philanthropic department has been of assistance in aiding many poor families in Chicago. The Civics department maintains and furnishes a rest and reading room for all people who desire to make good use of the library.

Entertainments are given throughout the year for the purpose of raising money to be used in buying more books for the library. An old Mother Goose carnival and an Irish minstrel show are to be given in the near future. These entertainments will be open to the public.

Officers of the club are: Mrs. Mae Lane Spinner, president; Mrs. Emily Bayley, vice-president; Mrs. Frances Smith, secretary; Mrs. Harriet Carmichael, treasurer; Mrs. Eva Castle, corresponding secretary. Mrs. Mae Lane Spinner is a very efficient president and it is largely due to her tireless interest and conscientious efforts that the club has been exceedingly successful.

W. N. Landwer & Company

ONE of the most important factors in every advancing town is the general merchandise business, and W. N. Landwer & Company have one of the largest stores in our town. Ever since W. N. Landwer & Company came into possession of this place the people of Barrington have noticed a steadily increasing trade, and that the firm was bustling the grocery business better than ever before. The stock is always kept new and now fixtures are added from time to time when necessary, keeping it up-to-date in every respect as a first-class bargain store.
