BARRINGTON, ILLINOIS, THURSDAY, JUNE 29, 1916

$1.50 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE

EVERYTHING SET FOR GREAT CELEBRATION

Barrington's Patriotic Spirit to be Displayed Here in Manner Worthy of Support of all Citizens

BIG PARADE WILL BE THE FEATURE

Many Other Good Attractions to be Pictured off at Big Celebration on July 3rd and 4th

Barril for the Glorious Fourth of July in Barrington.

"Sauvons l'Amour,"—we are the people.

No town around us will surpass us in giving an appropriate celebration. Some may be larger on account of a larger population, but none will be finer.

The festivities begin that night before. The parade will be a showing that will make us proud of our community spirit.

On Monday evening, July 3, marchers will assemble at the school house at 6:45. Promptness and preparedness are expected in order that there may be no delays.

The order of march will be:

Flag Bearer

Master of Ceremonies on Horseback

Delegate of Horseback Riders (of all ages)

High School Band

Boy Scouts

Foresters' Drill Team, M. W. A.

Corralled Farms Milkers

Bowman Dairy Employees

Women's Country Life Association

Carpenters

Cement Workers

Florists

Automobiles

General Pedestrians (everybody welcome)

In a reviewing stand speech by the founders triangle will be the judge, Mayor, Justice of the Peace, and Clerk of Lake Zurich; the mayor of Barrington and the village council; prominent citizens.

Ribbon prizes of blue, red and white ribbons will be given for the best horseback rider, best float best decorated automobile and best appearing organization. All who wish to arrange floats or features of any kind for the parade are urged to join in line.

The line of march will be: From south side of school house—South on Bough street to Russell street.

East on Russell to Cook

North on Cook to Main

East on Main to Els

North on Els to Franklin

West on Franklin to Williams

South on Williams to Main

West on Main to Hopkins

South on Hopkins to School

JULY FOURTH PLANS

The celebration was originated by the two country life associations of this community and the general and subcommittees have worked with a vim to perfect all the details. These undertakings always mean work for a few for the good of the whole.

The general committee of the men's association are E. S. Smith, Edward Landwehr, F. H. Plagge, Dan Gilby, Eugene Phillips, H. J. Lageschulte and George Hager.

The local subcommittee are:

Mrs. Sam Glotz, Mrs. Albert Robertson and Mrs. Arthur Weichsel.

All stands and booths in which food and other articles are sold will be managed by the associations and all money will be used to pay the expenses of the day. No private enterprises will be permitted.

The site of the picnic is on the north bank of Hawthorne lake and the entrance will be just south of the cement bridge on the Duindeer road; an entrance will be opened, opposite to the Charles Hawley farm, where automobiles and carriages will be parked, these will be parked all day by boy scouts and the scouts will also serve around the grounds as messengers and aides.

The program in the morning will include band music, a boy song drill and demonstration of signaling, first aid to the injured, etc., which will last about three-quarters of an hour; speeches by William King of Crystal lake, secretary of the Mill Publishers Organization and by Attorney Edward P. Castle of Barrington, and patriotic songs by the Plagge Sisters, etc.

The afternoon will be given over to general fun. We are Americans, we are to celebrate the birthday of our country, let us "get back to Nature's heart" and be happy together with love of country and brotherly love in our own hearts. This celebration should bring out representatives of every faction, church, club, business, social set and descendants of all nationalities who are now under the American flag.

BARRINGTON TO HAVE NEW BAND

Members Meet and Organize Tuesday Night and Lay Plans for a Successful Future

WE ARE GOING TO HAVE A NEW BAND AT ONCE.

Semi-professional band instruments players of the village had a meeting at the home of Clarence Plagge on Cook street Tuesday evening to organize a band.

Three men were present, all musicians who have played in various bands here and in other states. The officers elected to manage the business affairs of the band are:

Arthur Plagge, President; Edwin Plagge, Secretary and Treasurer; Howard Stiebenhofer, Librarian.

A committee was appointed—Rudolph Auerard, Warren Plagge and Walter Schutte to secure some suitable place for practice. The first rehearsal will be on Thursday evening, July 6, from 7:30 to 9:30. These hours will be strictly maintained during rehearsals and members will be expected to be prompt. There are sixteen members now, others are desired if they can qualify.

The ability to read music at sight is the main qualification, and, although this is an adult band, any boy who can read quickly and correctly will be admitted. In placing over the names below it can be realized that these young men are known as excellent musicians, several of whom have played professionally with bands in the big cities.

It is a special privilege to the town to have such artists as residents and, in fact, that they are going to entertain us this summer with ensembles such as we have never had here. One of the plans is to cater to all classes.

The band is for "the people" and the players are going to give the public a varied program, from the best compositions of the best band-music composers to the lighter selections and "fragments" of the period.

Considerable sheet music will be necessary. Funds are necessary to start and to start a purchasing fund the band will give a lawn social about the middle of July. Popular music will be bought and members will be able to play, "off the reel," the score but in front of them.

It here becomes the duty of all to help the band in every way. There will be ways of assisting pointed out and one should be called upon to promote the work.

Uniforms will not be adopted at first, and during the summer the boys will wear white duck trousers, blue jackets and white hats.

The members are:

Newton Plagge Edwin Plagge

Horner Plagge Clarence Plagge

Warren Plagge Stanley Kennedy

Horner Waterman Maurice Waterman

Walter Schutte Orville Meiners

Sam Landwehr Walter Canepo

H. Stiebenhofer Ben Schroeder

Rudolph Auerard Reuben Auerard.

Mr. and Mrs.

The City of Numbered Days

By FRANCIS LYNDE

Copyright by Charles Scribner's Sons

The power of a good woman over the man who loves her, what a great force it is! Brouillard, head over heels in dishonest speculation, wants to go to Amy and tell her everything. He needs her sorely, but he fears she will throw him over if she learns what has been done and how deeply he is involved.

"You want counsel and you are not willing to buy it with the coin of confidence," he said at length, adding: "It is not as well, perhaps, I doubt very much if I am the person to give it to you."

"Why do you doubt it? Isn't it a part of your job?"

"Not always. I am not your conscience keeper, Brouillard. Don't misunderstand me. I may have a bad conscience, but I have a good one. I have lived more—great deal more. That fact might be set aside, but there is another: In the life of every man there is some one person who knows who understands, whose word for that man is the only fitting word of inspiration. That is what I mean when I say that I am not your conscience keeper. Do I make it clear?"

"Granting your premises—yes, Go on."

"I will. We'll pass that leaf down and turn another. Though I can't counsel you, I can still be your faithful accuser. You have committed a great sin, Brouillard, and you are still destined to do so. You are the leader in the mad scramble for riches here in this abandoned city, you have been only a step behind the leaders. And you were the one man who should have been like Caesar's wife, the one whose example counted for most."

Brouillard got up and thrust out his hand across the desk.

"You are right, Castner, and that is better than being a priest!" he answered soberly. "I'll take back all the spiteful things I've been saying. I'm down under the hoofs of the horses, and it's only human nature to want to pull somebody else down. You are one of the few honest, upright, whole-hearted men who hasn't been a party to a curse who hasn't had a purely selfish greed to satisfy."

Again Castner shook his head. "There hasn't been much that I could do. Brouillard, it is simply dreadful, the hard, reckless, half-demoniac spirit of this place! There is nothing to appeal to here. There is no time for anything but the mad, noisy dash or the still, maddening desolation in which the poor wrecks seek to forget. I can only try here and there to drag some poor soul out of this at the last moment, and it makes me sick-at-heart!"

"I made a long look at it that day, and Brouillard suddenly became more sober. "You have been doing good work and a lot of it—more than any three ordinary men could stand up under. I haven't got beyond seeing and appreciating Castner; truly I have not. And I say this: 'If I had only half your common sense, I would be no use. I'm too deep. I can't see any farther ahead than a man born blind. There is one end for which I have been striving from the very first, and it is still unattained. I must help him, I have reached a point at which I'll pull the whole world down in ruins to save that end!'"

Young Castner turned up his nose and then came back to the desk for his hat. At the leave-taking he said the only helpful word he could think of.

"Go to your confessor, Brouillard—your real confessor—and go all the more readily if that can happen to a saint. You are a good boy, but you do that. Then often set more steadily than we do—the good women. Try it; and let me help while a man can help."

For a long hour after Castner went away Brouillard sat at his desk, fighting as those girls who see the cause lost, and who know that only make the rule more completely by struggling on.

Cortwright's guess had found its mark. He was loaded to break with "front feet" and oplomas and "corliers." In the least speculative period he had bought a thousand yards and bought a thousand yards more, and bought a thousand yards out of drying sponge again the time when David Massingale should have it. At first the under-taking seemed easily possible. But with the drying of the speculative sponge, it became increasingly difficult.

"It is the honest man I am supposed to be, that is precisely the fact that it is impossible to do it."

"And the fact that I can never be sure that the Cortwright gang hasn't the inside track and will not wait out in spite of all efforts. That is the touchstone of the whole degrading business."

"I am afraid," Massingale said.

"I am afraid."

"It is true. I have betrayed my trust. Cortwright will make good in all of his despicable schemes. Congress will intervene and the Niquo will be abandoned."

"Tell me," she begged briefly, and ring often to the notes in his ledger, and printing the words neatly in his accurate, clearly-defined handwriting.

When it was finished he translated it laboriously into the department code. Brouillard copied it out and signed his old name in as once more a messenger. Instead, he put the cipher and the cipher, under a paper weight and sat gloomily to the final act of treachery which would be consummated in the sending of the note.

Since the treason of Cortwright's tamperings with the smaller people and the railroad, the "Little Susan" had become a locked treasure vault, the secret, acting upon his own initiative, had tried the law. As soon as he had ascertained that David Massingale had been given sixty days longer to live, he had sent the longer note to the man to take his life rather than his money. Brouillard had submitted the facts in the case to a trusted lawyer friend in the East.

This barge had pulled in like a framed card. Massingale must pay the pence or lose all. Until he had obtained possession of the promissory notes there would be no evidence in which to draw the legal wedge. And even then he must be patient, for he had brought to him under the pretense to make them disappear, there was no chance of Massingale's recovering more than he allotted two-thirds of the stock; in other words, he would still stand committed to the agreement to sell the mine to him. He had to make the grafters present, a few simple, one-third of his mine.

Brouillard had written one more letter to the lawyer. In it he had asked how David Massingale could be unassailably reinstated in his rights as the sole owner of the "Little Susan." The answer was simple and explicit.

"Only by the repossession of such sums as had been actually expended in the reorganization and on the betterments—for the modernizing machinery and improvements—and the voluntary payment, by the other partners, of the amount agreed upon for the dispute," the lawyer had written; and Brouillard had smiled at the thought of Cortwright voluntarily surrendering anything which was once well within the grasp of his pudgy hands.

Failing to start the legal wedge, Brouillard had written again, consulting Massingale—into the master of land titles. The "Little Susan" was legally patented under the land laws, and Massingale's title, if the mine were located upon government land, was without a flaw. But on a former reclamation project Brouillard had brought in contact with some of the experts in the field, and cut out of the old Spanish grants and in at least one instance he had seen a government patent invalidated there by.

As a man reasonably close touch with his superiors in Washington, the cast of construction knew that there was a Spanish grant involved.

"How do you know?" he asked. "How do you know that the paper step log atop it was it a sentient thing to feel the carcass."

"I didn't know it," Brouillard said. "I only knew that I have heard of paper step log atop it was it a sentient thing to feel the carcass."

"How do you know?" he asked. "How do you know that the paper step log atop it was it a sentient thing to feel the carcass."

"I didn't know it," Brouillard said. "I only knew that I wanted to get out of it."

Rev. George Lockhart's subjects for next Sunday are: 10:30 a. m., "A Mighty Unfolding"; evening at 7:30, "From Joppa to Jerusalem," illustrated. Next Sunday promises to be an interesting day from the opening of the Sunday school to the close of the evening service. Some new voices will be heard. Mrs. Franklith's pipe organ player last Sunday was greatly appreciated.

It used to be the custom when we had presidential campaigns or patriotic parades to light up the homes of the town during the evening of the parade, especially along the line of march, and this would be a good idea for the coming Fourth of July parade in Barrington next Monday night. A little extra electric current or gas or kerosene candle would make the town look all lit up and cheerful.

Mr. and Mrs. William Webster and daughter, Mabel and Elsie, motored to Elgin Saturday visiting relatives and friends. Mr. Webster returned Sunday and the others Wednesday afternoon.

The milk producers are asked by their secretary, Dan Gill, to meet at the Barrington school at 6:45 p. m. on July 3 to march in the parade. Also to deliver milk at the Bowman plant early on the morning of the Fourth of July.

In the Chicago Board of Education teachers are now dismissed with a hearing, while in Barrington it is by examination and search here on the part of the superintendent. One of the teachers, a district superintendent, who was let out without warning Tuesday was William Dodge formerly of Barrington, a man of many years' success as a teacher. Ralph Otto, one of Chicago's most influential men and a member of the school board, says this case is quite work as are most of them.

On Friday Mrs. Clara Sears closed her school in Norwood Park which she has taught for many years. The new Norwood Park school, erected at a cost of $200,000 without equipment, was dedicated last week. Mrs. Sears' school is a part of this school and included in the Chicago schools system, but is separated from the main building to accommodate a neighborhood at the north end of town. It was formerly a country school and all government buildings will be left by Mrs. Sears. She will go to Massachusetts soon with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Schultz of Palatine and later visit her south Dakota ranch.

BAND Day will, of course, be the big day of the Chautauqua, and the feature of the program of Band Day is the singing of Mme. Lillian Blodgendorf and her clever child impersonators. Mme. Blodgendorf with the largest bands that have played to Chautauqua audiences, heads her own company and is otherwise distinguished as one of the most charming and attractive women in the Chautauqua. She will be a feature attraction in the afternoon and evening programs of the Royal Hussars on the fourth day.

ARTHUR KACHEL stands first in the Chautauqua field as an interpolated actor. The two plays which he will use this season, "The Melting Pot" and "The Music Master," are well worth the study and best thought of every Chautauqua patron. He has been among the Chautauqua a number of seasons and thoroughly understands their demands. His winters are spent in study in New York under David Belasco. He will be here on the third day of the Chautauqua, following the Hall Entertainers in the night program with an interpretation of one of the above plays.

Miss Hazel Nelson is a new client in the McLeister store.

The Spunner elocutionary recital takes place this evening at the Baptist church.

News of the Week Cut Down for Busy Readers

Mexican War News

General Trevino, in a report to the war department at Mexico City, says the American forces have retreated northward, leaving the towns of Bachu, Ixala and San Geronimo in the hands of the Constitutionalists.

General Medina, former chief of staff of Pancho Villa, and Gen. Jose Yanez Robles, another former Villa chieftain, arrived in Juarez with 600 Constitutionalists.

The United States consul at Torreón, Mex., was demolished June 15 by a mob of 3,000 civilians led by the mayor of the city and a Carrancista army band, according to American refugees arriving at Eagle Pass, Tex.

Capt. Lewis S. Morey of Troop K, Texas cavalry, was brought to Pershing headquarters by automobiles which were sent to the vicinity of the Carrancista fight to search for him and any of his command who might be with him.

Thirty-eight strangers from the Carrancista engagement have reached camp and the number of missing is estimated officially at 15.

Capt. Lester S. Morey, dying from loss of blood and loss of water, crawled in a hole where he had sought a hiding place after his troupe had been scattered by Mexicans at Carrizal, wrote a simple, brief report of the fight to his commanding officer and then, believing that he was dying, Morey commanded the troopers to leave him and to carry on his message. A message to San Antonio, Tex., said he had been saved.

With all available information adding to the fear that practically the entire Carrancista Cavalry had been wiped out by a tremendous attack by Carrancista troops in overwhelming numbers at Carrizal, the United States is close to a declaration of war on Mexico, according to a dispatch from Washington.

The responsibility for the attack upon American soldiers at Carrizal is assumed by Minister of War Díaz, in an official statement issued at the war department at Mexico City. This says that the Americans were trying to occupy the railway station at Carrizal.

The state department at Washington was officially notified that the 17 prisoners taken by the Mexicans in the Carrancista engagement were being sent from Chihuahua to Juarez, where they will be turned over to the American authorities.

Commander Kavanagh's report on the Mazatlan affair, transmitted by Admiral Winslow from San Diego to Washington, declares the attack was unprovoked.

Domestic

It was reported at Washington that Senator Thomas Taggart of Indiana has offered a regiment of infantry to the United States government for service in the event of hostilities with Mexico.

Four men were killed, another was seriously injured and three escaped with bruises when compressed air blew out in an Eastern Electric Illuminating company's tube at Boston, Mass.

Five persons are known to have perished and several others are missing in a fire which destroyed the major part of Needles, Cal. Those who lost their lives were guests of the River-side hotel.

The executive committee of the National Housewives' league announced at New York that it had created a special national committee on "war-time food prices."

John Bryan, thirty-two, who was said to have insulted members of the Minnesota National Guard who were encamping at Duluth, Minn., died of injuries sustained when he was beaten by the guardmen.

Robert D. Hostet, professor of political economy at the University of Chicago, and a well-known educator, killed himself in his home by cutting his throat. Continued illness caused Professor Hostet's act.

Four men were killed at Wilson, Ind., when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by the Rocky Mountain Limited. The dead: Dr. H. J. Johnson, Charles Mott, Harry Livermore, Elmer Elie, all of Princeton, Iowa.

Dissolution of the Corn Products Refining company and its allied concerns, as an illegal combination in restraint of trade, was declared by Federal Judge Learned N. Hand of New York in a decision filed sustaining the complaint of the government.

After a day of wrangling the progressive national committee voted at Chicago to endorse Charles Evans Hughes for president. Thirty-two members of the committee supported the endorsement resolution offered by James R. Garfield of Ohio. Six voted against it and nine declined to vote.

The East's militia is on the way to the border. The first train left from the Framingham camp, in Massachusetts, in 12 sections. Connecticut's eight trains followed.

Company L of the First Iowa Infantry from Keokuk refused to take the new oath required of guardsmen entering the federal service. There are 80 men in the company.

A movement is on to call a conference of American and Mexican citizens at El Paso in an effort to avert war with Mexico was announced at New York by the American Union Against Militarism.

Sheriff Robert Phillips shot and killed himself at the county jail at Utica, N. Y. The sheriff left a note saying he had been suspected of the murder of Probate Judge W. T. Hart, but was innocent.

European War News

Two Austrian transports have been sunk in the harbor of Durazzo by the Italians. The transports were loaded with troops, arms and ammunition.

All Balkanians is in the hands of the Russians. The last of the crowd was taken at Sonnenburg, a town of approximately 7,000 square miles was taken on Sunday, a note issued at Petrograd.

The Germans have fought their way to Fleury, three miles northeast of Verdun. Paris conceded the German drive has reached Fleury, but contends that here it was stayed.

The German submarine U-35, which arrived in Cartagena, Spain, sank the French liner Provence in the Mediterranean a few months ago, with a loss of more than 3,000 lives. Considerable damage was said. Besides the Provence, 50 other Anglo-French ships have been sunk by the U-35 in the Mediterranean.

Washington

Sen. Lewis in the Senate at Washington said the Senate at the time of the Carrancista attack believed the American occupation of Mexico would be a long one. He urged the Senate to prepare the army for it.

After adding nearly $30,000,000 for the expenses of the Mexican mobilization the house at Washington passed a vastly increased army appropriation bill. The appropriation committee decided to submit a $25,000,000 deficiency bill for the expense of mobilizing the militia. An appropriation of $5,000,000 for the expenses of machine gun units was written into the bill.

After one of the most stirring debates in a decade the Senate at Washington passed the Hay resolution authorizing the president to draft the National Guard into the federal service for such use as he may care to put to in meeting the situation.

It was announced at Washington that the navy's transport Buffalo, with a full list of passengers from Mazatlan, Tepic and other west coast ports of Mexico, has sailed north, presumably for San Diego.

"If the sword is raised to strike, it is because the head of the de facto government of Mexico refuses to respect the rights of America." This utterance is part of an editorial on Mexico sent out from Washington by the Democratic national committee.

Eliseo Arredondo, General Carranza's ambassador at Washington, announced his government had accepted "in principle" the offer of the Central and South American republics to mediate between the United States and Mexico.

President Wilson reviewed the National Guard of the District of Columbia as it marched through Pensacola Avenue en route to the mobilization camp at Fort Meade.

Secretary Baker at Washington ordered all available militia to the border without waiting for complete mobilization.

Secretary Lansing at Washington said a decision had to be made by the representatives of South and Central American nations reviewing the situation existing between the United States and Mexico and announcing that if hostilities should ensue the purpose of the United States would be to defend itself against further invasion and not to intervene in Mexican affairs.

President Wilson told leaders of congress during a conference at the White House at Washington that all the facts in the interests of the government in the war with Mexico, at the time of the Carrancista attack at Carrizal, had been deliberately attacked by the order of the Carrancista government; that a demand had been made for the immediate release of the 17 American cavalrymen and sailors at the Carrancista camp; that for a proposal similar to the course of action it wished the government of the United States to understand it had determined upon.

BERLIN STATEMENT DECLARER THAT ENEMY FAILED TO ADVANCE.

HEAVY ATTACKS REPULSED

French Kill Own Countrymen in Bombarding Town—Paris Says Troops Occupied Crater in the Argonne Region.

Berlin, June 29.—Marked activity continues in evidence along the Franco-Belgian front held by the British and the northern wing of the French line. Numerous gas clouds are now caused by the Germans. The Germans in their operations the war office announced on Tuesday. The artillery fire on the German lines was especially intense in the vicinity of the Somme.

In the Verdun region, the French frantically attacked German positions on both sides of the Thiaumont redoubt.

The official statement says:

"On the British front and the northern wing of the French army patrol fighting developed. Numerous gas and smoke clouds floated toward us. They were driven back at some points. Hostile fire came from the enemy trenches. The enemy fire was directed with especially intense against us on both sides of the Somme."

"As a result of the bombardment of Neuse by the French, 22 of their own men were killed."

"On the right bank of the Meuse, French attacks northeast and west of the armored work of Thiaumont and southwest of Fort Vaux were ineffective. In Chaptelle wood an enemy detachment of two officers and a few dozen men was surprised and its members were captured."

Russian soldiers in Volhynia, have been stormed by Gen. von Lindenberg's troops and held against counter attacks, according to an announcement of the war office.

Paris, June 29.—The official communication covering western front of the war office on Tuesday, reads:

"In the Argonne, in the region of Balaïte, we occupied the southern edge of a crater occupied by the explosion of a German mine."

"On the right bank of the Meuse, the bombardment was less intense during the course of the day. It was more violent in the Woëvre in the sector of Eix."

"On the right bank the Germans about two o'clock in the afternoon descended on the part of the village of Fleury which we occupy, but were completely repulsed."

"On the Belgian front at the end of the evening the artillery was active on both sides at various points from Rumstappelle to Steenbeke. There was a reciprocal bombardment in the region of Dixmude."

GOV. DUNNE AND COL. FOREMAN REVIEWING FIRST CAVALRY

The only damper on the enthusiasm of the troopers of the Illinois cavalry regiment was the fact that they had to parade as infantry because of a lack of horses at the time of the review by the governor.

COMPANY OF FOURTH INFANTRY MARCHING TO MUSTER

The pace set by the men was an evidence of their eagerness to get into the federal service. The scene is typical of that of many during the mustering in process.

AT THE COOK TENTS OF THE THIRD INFANTRY

The war excitement did not impair the appetites of Colonel Green's fighters in the Third infantry. The cook tents of the regiment at Camp Dunn represented as busy a spot as could be found in the state fair grounds.

COMPANY B, FIRST INFANTRY, AT MESS.

The members of this old Chicago regiment had to forget table etiquette and get down to first principles at meal time. Many of the officers and men of the organization had learned the trick during their service in Cuba at the time of the war with Spain.

TRUMPETER MYERS

He made a perfect score at rifle practice on the Camp Lincoln range, and gave an evidence of the shooting ability of Illinois troops.

INOCULATION TO PREVENT TYPHOID

The corps of surgeons were kept busy for several days inoculating the Illinois boys for the prevention of typhoid fever.

WILCOX HEADS G. O. P. BODY

Former Postmaster of New York Named Chairman of Republican National Committee.

New York, June 29.—William R. Wilcox, former postmaster of New York and later public service commissioner, was appointed chairman of the Republican national committee on Tuesday. Mr. Wilcox was the choice of Charles E. Hughes.

Declares Rate Unreasonable. Washington, June 29.—The interstate commerce commission has decided to fix a rate of 2 cents per 100 pounds on sand from Burlington, Vt., to Chicago, over the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, to be unreasonable.

Two Allied Steamers Sink. Marsala, June 29.—The English steamer Forest and the Spanish steamer Cardiff have been sunk by a submarine in the Mediterranean. The French steamer Ville de Madrid was shelled by a submarine.

AUDITORIUM.
The first American city outside of the new York and California to see the newest pictures, "Rancho," called a cinematic history of the Southwest, and elaborate treatment of dramatic music to the product of the camera is Chicago. This remarkable pictorial transcript of Helen Hunt Jackson's "Home on the Range," was recently completed by the Clune Company of Los Angeles, whose head was one of the producers of "The Birth of a Nation," made a record in the history of Los Angeles nearly 170,000 persons paid to see the production, and many people attended two and three times to get the full measure of its beauty and stirring effects.

The conditions existing in California before and immediately after the construction of the railroads in that territory are graphically portrayed in this 10-reel production. The story of the Mission Indians and the clash of the old and new order in early California is told in such a way that it will touch a frayed heart and bring to mind that which will touch a responsive chord in the heart of every spectator.

Calling the Children.
Don't shun the children when they are out of doors and you wish them to come to the house. Call them with a small bell or whistle. — The sound will go farther than the voice carries, and there will be no strain on the vocal cords.
